GOVERNORS VOTE TO HOLD FUTURE CONFERENCES AT CALL OF THE PRESIDENT

Third and Last Day of Meeting a Busy One.

Declaration of Principles Presented and Unanimously Adopted.

Governors Express Benefits Derived From Their Attendance.

Washington, May 15.—The third and last day of the conference of governors began with every indication that important action would result. A full attendance was present, and President Roosevelt called the conference to order at 10:15 o'clock.

Governor Blanchard of Louisiana, chairman of the committee on resolutions, at once asked for and received recognition to present the report of his committee. This report, which is an extended document, embraces recommendations along general and broad lines, avoiding specific recommendations for national or state legislation. The report is prefaced by a reiteration of what has been said in the conference regarding the necessity for united action, which will result in the preservation of the natural resources of the country. It heartily commends the action of President Roosevelt in calling the conference, and recommends that future conferences of a like character be called by the president at such times as conditions shall warrant and his judgment shall sanction. Legislation by congress and the states is suggested, not specifically, but along general lines to further the ends sought. It is also suggested that the states individually put the subject into the hands of competent commissions.

The resolutions were received with hearty approval by the conference. After they had been read, Governor Blanchard stated that it had been the purpose of the committee to prepare resolutions on broad, liberal lines of national scope; that it had purposely avoided making specific recommendations, or advocating any permanent form of organization for the conference.

Meet Whenever One-Third Desire It.

At the conclusion of Governor Blanchard's explanation of the decla-

TO MAINTAIN CONFIDENCE

The Directors Will Place $500,000 Cash in Pittsburg Bank.

Cashier is Said to Have Embezzled About That Amount.

Pittsburg, May 15.—Following a meeting held last night by the directors of the Allegheny National bank, and representatives of a number of other large financial institutions of the city, definite action was taken today to raise a fund of $500,000 cash, which will be placed in the bank for the purpose of assuring the depositors and public of the unimpaired solidity of the Allegheny National bank.

To further maintain public confidence in the institution, and to create a greater feeling of security in the minds of depositors, a plan of reorganization of its management has also been agreed upon. Both of these measures are to be put into immediate effect.

Concerning the placing of the half million dollar fund in the bank, National Bank Examiner W. L. Folds has made the following statement:

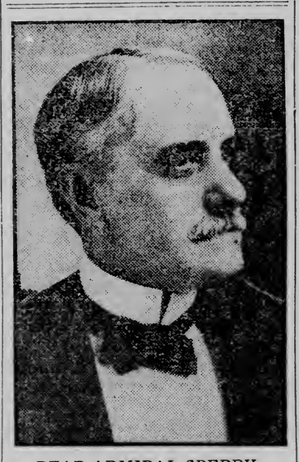
"Certain strong financial interests having come forward to the directors of the Allegheny National bank with the proposition to jointly, with the directors, raise a guarantee fund of $500,000 cash, to be placed in the bank, to the end that a greater confidence and feeling of security may be felt by the public and the bank's depositors. A meeting of the directors of the bank was held last evening and the proposition accepted and the fund provided for.

"The agreement also provides for an entirely new and competent management, to be selected immediately. This insures the continued active existence of the bank."

Mr. Folds stated there was nothing he could say concerning Cashier William Montgomery, or his confession, made Wednesday afternoon to Attorney Burleigh, counsel for the bank, except the former cashier was still out on $100,000 bail. He expressed the belief, however, that Montgomery would tell the whole truth concerning his transactions.

It is persistently rumored that the shortage will exceed $1,000,000, but this cannot be verified, and Montgomery is only charged with the embezzlement of $469,000.

REAR ADMIRAL SPERRY ASSUMES COMMAND OF THE BATTLESHIP FLEET



REAR ADMIRAL SPERRY,
Who Has Assumed Command of Battleship Fleet and Will Bring It Home.

Admiral Thomas Hauls Down Flag From the Connecticut.

Sperry Takes Charge and is Saluted by Entire Fleet.

He Will Bring the Ships Back to Hampton Roads.

San Francisco, May 15.—Another change in the command of the Atlantic fleet of world-touring battleships occurred today when the flag of Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas was lowered from the truck of the Connecticut, where it has floated for six days as the emblem of the commander in chief, but where it also flew for many weeks as a signal of "senior officer present," when Admiral Thomas was acting for Admiral Evans during the latter's enforced absence from the fleet soon after its arrival at Magdalena bay. The customary salute of thirteen guns was fired as the double starred square of blue bunting was lowered to the after bridge of the flagship and the long naval career of Admiral Thomas, covering a period of nearly forty-seven years was ended. Admiral Thomas does not retire until October next, but he will immediately go on leave and have no further active connection with the naval establishment. After he retires the admiral intends to spend two years abroad while his youngest daughter is at a school in Switzerland.

Soon after the Thomas flag was lowered Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry, up to this time the commander of the fourth division of the fleet, hauled down his subordinate flag of red from the main truck of the Alabama and proceeded to the Connecticut to establish headquarters on that modern but already historic flagship. As his flag was hoisted to the tall after-truck of the Connecticut every ship in the fleet fired a salute in its honor. Admiral Sperry will retain command of the fleet during the remainder of its voyage back to Hampton Roads.

AEROPLANE IS SMASHED

Aerial Navigators Meet Disaster After Long Flight.

Course of Flying Machine Directed Downward Too Soon.

Norfolk, Va., May 15.—Disaster yesterday overtook the daring aeronauts, Wilbur and Orville Wright, who have for two weeks made successful flights with their aeroplane at Killdevil Hill, N. C., when, after the greatest flight ever made with a similar machine, the aeroplane was wrecked.

Wilbur Wright, the navigator, escaped unhurt, except for a face scratch, but the machine was smashed and is now useless for further tests.

The aeroplane had flown eight miles in 7 minutes and 40 seconds, under perfect control, and the disaster was due to an error on the part of the navigator who directed the course of the flying machine downward too quickly.

NEW DEMOCRATIC STATE COMMITTEE

Includes F. L. Ryan, C. Jesmore, Emil Tessman and W. E. McEwen.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democratic state committee yesterday authorized the appointment of a state central committee for the coming two years. There are to be ten members at large and one for each county, with the exception of St. Louis, Ramsey and Hennepin, which will have three each. The three members of St. Louis county will be Fred L. Ryan and Emil Tessman of Duluth and Charles Jessmore of Eveleth. William E. McEwen of Duluth, it is understood, will be appointed one of the members at large.

Martin Hughes of Hibbing, who was to have been chairman of the state convention, yesterday was detained at home by legal business, and Senator Works of Mankota was then selected to fill the position.

DID GOOD SERVICE.

Felix Stidger Exposed "Knights of Golden Circle" During War.

Chicago, May 15.—Felix Grundy Stidger, exposer of the "Golden Circle," who dropped dead last Monday at his home here, will be buried today. Scarcely known by his neighbors, and having only a small acquaintance with the Civil war veterans of Chicago, his death attracted little attention. If he had passed away fohty-five years ago, Gen. Grant might have taken two more summers to reach Richmond. Stidger was a secret service man during the last two years of the war. He worked his way into the secret order of Southerners in the Northern states known as the "Knights of the Golden Circle" and became one of its chief officers.

ASYLUM SUPERINTENDENT SAYS PUBLIC WOULD NOT BE SAFE WITH THAW FREE

Dr. Amos T. Baker Says That Thaw is Certainly Insane.

Has Watched Him Closely Since He Was Incarcerated.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 15.—The testimony of expert alienists, by which District Attorney Jerome endeavors to prevent the release of Harry K. Thaw from the state hospital for the criminal insane at Matteawan, occupied the attention today of the court which is hearing the Thaw habeas corpus proceedings. Dr. Austin Flint, one of Mr. Jerome's alienists, was on the witness stand when the court adjourned last night, and Dr. Charles F. MacDonald and Dr. Amos T. Baker, acting superintendent of the asylum, have qualified as experts.

Dr. Amos T. Baker was the first witness to take the stand today. He was called by District Attorney Jerome, not as an expert, but to give the court a statement of Thaw's conduct during the three months he was in the Matteawan institution, beginning Feb. 1, 1908.

Conversations With Thaw.

Dr. Baker related conversations with Thaw, in which the latter told of epilepsy and nervous ailments suffered by a sister and uncle. Thaw, the witness said, also told of the desultory way in which his education was acquired. At 7 years of age, he said, he had St. Vitus dance. He described an attack of pneumonia at Monte Carlo, concerning which he did not agree with the diagnosis of his physician. Thaw told Dr. Baker, the latter said, that he used tobacco at 18, used alcohol in moderation and denied ever using drugs. The witness said Thaw described his movements preceding the shooting of White—his return from Europe and marriage to Miss Nesbit. He gave his age as 37, though he was 34 when he entered the hospital. Thaw told the witness that at his trial some of the doctors had greatly exaggerated their estimates of his condition; that they had in mind a nephew of his whom they had examined, who traveled under the same name and was often taken for him. He said that his lawyers and doctors did very clever work in his defense. Dr. Baker said that Thaw said to him:

"If I was ever insane in my life the

Physicians Say Jawbones Found at Gunness Place Are Human.

Sheriff Jubilant Over Discovery and Will Rush Investigation.

Work of Sluicing Ashes and Other Debris Progressing Rapidly.

Laporte, Ind., May 15.—The report of the coroner's physicians, to the effect that the jawbones found at the Gunness farm, yesterday, came from the skull of an adult human being, is all that is required to confirm the establishment of the corpus delicti in the case against Ray Lamphere, according to the prosecuting officials of this county. Just when this formal report will be made is uncertain. The same doctors considered their findings on the bodies found in the cellar of the Gunness home for ten days or more before making a formal return concerning them to the coroner. It is scarcely likely that the same delay will occur in the present instance, but the failure of some of the doctors to express themselves positively, last night, may mean that a difference of opinion is about to ensue. In that case a long discussion, possibly terminating in a split verdict, might result.

Sheriff Smutzer was jubilant over his discoveries last night, and will resume his investigations today. The material on the east side of the cellar, where the bodies were found, has all been screened, but the possibilities of the refuse piles are by no means exhausted. The ashes were shoveled

WILL OPPOSE THE ARMOURS

London, May 15.—Charles W. Bowerman, who represents the meat market district in the house of commons, has notified Winston Churchill, president of the board of trade, of his intention to question him in the house May 18 regarding what steps he proposes to take to prevent the Armours of Chicago from establishing in this country retail stores for the purpose of supplying meat direct to the consumer.

This query is based on the statement that the Armours are calling for $5,000,000 of new capital for the purpose of dotting London and the provinces with their own retail stores, the idea being to avoid the tolls and charges levied at the Smithfield market. Mr. Bowerman claims that the putting into effect of this scheme will destroy the business of the English butchers and meat salesmen.

TIME TO LOCK THE BARN.

CHARGED WITH ABDUCTION

Edward Peltier of Ely, Minn., is Arraigned at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Peltier of Ely, Minn., claiming to be a farmer, was in police court today charged with abducting Rose Sherrard, a 13-year-old girl.

The girl's mother informed the police of the disappearance of her daughter three weeks ago and said she had reason to believe that she had been taken to Ely, Minn.

Officer Patrick Smith was sent to that town and early this week he located her in a disorderly resort conducted as a road house between Ely and Winton and patronized chiefly by lumberjacks.

Peltier, the proprietor of the place, was placed under arrest and brought to the city. He was arraigned and the case continued until next Thursday morning, bail being fixed at $1,000.

REFORMERS DEFEATED

California Regulars Knock Out Lincoln-Roosevelt League.

Sacramento, Cal., May 15.—The Republican state convention last night elected four delegates at large and four alternates to the national convention at Chicago.

In the contest between the regular Republican organization and the Lincoln-Roosevelt league the "regulars" had no difficulty in securing the control of the convention and electing George A. Knight chairman over Former Mayor W. R. Davis of Oakland, the candidate of the reform faction, by a vote of 351 to 275, after a sharp fight on the floor.

The Lincoln-Roosevelt league people, however, succeeded in defeating Gen. Harrison Grey Otis, one of the four regular candidates for delegate at large, by the close margin of one vote and elected Former Lieutenant Governor Neff. The only other victory of the reformers was the election of their delegates and alternates in the Fourth congressional district.

Six of the eight congressional district delegations held their conventions last night, during the recess of the state convention, elected delegates and instructed them for Taft. The Third and Sixth districts have already held their conventions, and also instructed for Taft. This means the entire California delegation of twenty delegates will vote as a unit for the secretary of war for president at the Chicago convention.

Contesting delegations from Siskiyou, Sandiago and Sacrament counties were thrown out by the committee on credentials and the regulars seated. Grove L. Johnson was chairman of the committee on platform and resolutions, and the platform reported was adopted without opposition. The delegates-at-large elected were: George A. Knight, Henry Melvin, M. H. DeYoung and Jacob N. Neff.

PRODUCE IS UNCHANGED

Prices Remain About the Same as Last Week.

Receipts of Fresh Fruits and Vegetables Showing Improvements.

Commission row has enjoyed a steady trade during the week, with prices on practically the same level as they were a week ago.

Fresh vegetables and fruits have been coming a little more freely, but the movement has not shown an improvement marked enough to cause a great slump in prices.

Strawberries are getting more plentiful all the time. There was scarcely any break in the market this week, but one is expected in the near future, as the Arkansas berries are just about due. As the Louisiana and Tennessee berries are still coming in good quantities, prices are expected to take a drop shortly. The unfavorable weather has been responsible for some of the market's continued stiffness.

As strawberries have become more plentiful, oranges are getting scarcer in the local market. Receipts have been showing a gradual decline for several weeks, and there has been a firmer undertone to the market. However, the market is still considered low, as compared with last year. The quality of the fruit continues good.

Bananas are more plentiful than they have been for some time past. There is an easier undertone to the market at 4c a pound. Importers are shipping more freely than at any time in the last three months, and if local receipts increase much more, a drop is expected. A week or so ago bananas were selling at 4c a pound.

The grape fruit market continues firm at $3.50. The Cuban fruit is no longer in the market, all offered here being the domestic variety from Florida and California. Receipts are becoming lighter as the season is on the wane.

Lemons are firm at $3.50 to $3.75. The demand for them is good, but nothing to what it will be when the picnic season opens. July, August and September comprise the big open season for lemons in Duluth.

You can get peaches here now. They are very nice, only they happen to be the evaporated variety. The street offers them in fancy 20-pound boxes at $2.00.

Cocoanuts, famed in coon song and story are arriving right along. They are selling now at 65 cents a dozen or $4.50 a sack.

New York apples are not offered as freely as they were and the market for them has undergone a bulge of 25 cents. They will probably maintain the present level for some time as the depleted stocks are not expected to increase much. Receipts of other varities of apples have not been large for several weeks but the demand is not as firm as it was.

Radishes have been more plentiful during the week. They are coming in larger quantities and this fact has caused a decline in prices. The round ones are selling today at 50 cents per dozen bunches.

Lettuce is in good demand at $1 a box. Receipts have been good. Receipts of other fresh vegetables have been showing quite a little increase but prices are the same as they were a week ago.

Fresh eggs are about the cheapest things to eat in the market at the present time. Receipts have been very good for several weeks and the choicest nest products are being offered at 16 cents a dozen. These are supposed to be strictly fresh. The range of market for fresh eggs is 15 to 16 cents.

The easy tone in the cheese market continues. Full cream twins are selling on Michigan street for 13 to 14 cents and other grades are unchanged from last week.

Butter is the same as it was a week ago. Creamery prints are quoted at 29 to 30 cents a pound, and tubs at 28 to 30 cents. Quotations on other grades have not been disturbed.

The firmness of the poultry market has shown no abatement since last week. Chickens are still roosting high, so far as prices are concerned. Spring chickens and hens are 15 cents. Turkeys are 18 to 20 cents and ducks 16 cents.

There is an easier undertone to the meat market, but prices for the better grades are still up.

MINISTER DEFRAUDED

Land Locator Claimed to Have Secured $100 From Him.

H. M. Nelson is Indicted for Second Degree Grand Larceny.

N. M. Nelson, a land locater, has been indicted for grand larceny in the second degree. It is alleged that he defrauded Rev. F. O. Kling of the Swedish Mission church of $100. Nelson was arrested yesterday on a bench warrant following his indictment a few days ago.

According to the information before the grand jury Nelson attempted to do a large timber land locating business among West end residents last winter. It is alleged that he agreed for $100 to locate Mr. Kling on a heavily timbered tract of land which he showed the latter. Following Nelson's description Mr. Kling filed on certain land in section 10, 58-12, which it was afterward discovered to be another locality than shown by the cruiser and on which there was practically no timber. It is claimed that Nelson worked the same game on some twelve or thirteen other persons.

KILLED BY CARS.

Mankota, Minn., May 15.—Peter Person, single, 35, while crossing the Milwaukee railroad tracks at Rock Cut, a short distance from here yesterday morning was struck by the north-bound passenger train and his skull badly crushed. He lingered at La Suewe, where he was taken, until 1:10 yesterday afternoon, when he died. The body has been brought to Mankota for an inquest.

Person was in the center of the track when the pilot struck him. He was hurled about ten feet. Just as Person started to cross the track the engineer turned on the air, hoping to stop the train, or at least slow it down, but neither could be done.

CAPT. MITCHELL BORNE TO GRAVE

Negaunee, Mich., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rarely in the history of this section has such a memorable tribute been paid to a dead man as was the case here yesterday, when the last rites were said over the body of Capt. Samuel Mitchell, one of the best mining men in Michigan, philanthropist and prominent factor in the development of this region in a mining and business way, who died last Sunday in Chicago, where he was receiving medical treatment. The funeral was under the Negaunee lodge of Masons and was participated in by many Masons and others from Ishpeming, Marquette and other nearby points. The body was removed from the home on East Main street about 10 a. m. yesterday to the Mitchell Methodist church built through the deceased's generosity, where it lied until 1 p. m., when the casket was closed, the services beginning about 2 o'clock. The church was thronged, the funeral being one of the largest ever held here so general was the public desire to pay tribute to the deceased who long was held in high esteem here, because of his many acts of kindness and his innate generosity. Rev. Isaac Wilcox, a former pastor of the church, an old friend of the deceased, assisted Rev. W. B. Coombe, the pastor, in the services.

Rev. Mr. Coombe preached an able and eloquent sermon, in which loving tribute was paid to the dead mining man and well known citizen. The procession to the grave was a long one.

BURY FORMER MAYOR.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of William Findelsen, aged 51 years, who died at the City hospital, Minneapolis, from the effects of gas poisoning in his room at the hotel, was laid to rest here Tuesday.

Mr. Findelsen was held in universal esteem and was one of the oldest settlers of Red Lake Falls. He had held many positions of trust and responsibility and was at one time mayor.

He was a very successful business man, having conducted an agricultural implement establishment in this city for years and had accumulated considerable wealth. His remains were met at the depot by citizens, who turned out en masse. The I. O. O. F., of which he was at present noble grand, formed in procession, as did also the M. W. A., of which he was a member. Flags throughout the city were raised at half mast and all business houses were closed.

CARLISLE FOOTBALL MAN IS VISITING ASHLAND.

Ashland, Wis., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fullback Hauser of the Carlisle university football team, who made such a splendid record last year with that team, is in the city for a few days on pleasure. He is the guest of Mr. St. Germain, the Ahland baseball team's first baseman. Both of the gentlemen are football players, Mr. St. Germain, who is now with Attorney George F. Merrill, having played tackle on the football team of the University of Wisconsin.

THE PLANS FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Services Will be Held at First Church Sunday.

May 30, Memorial day, will be observed in Duluth with all due honor and respect to the dead veterans.

On Sunday, May 24, at 2:30 o'clock there will be services at the First M. E. church, Third avenue west and Third street, at which Rev. M. S. Rice, the pastor, will deliver the sermon. The final arrangements for the parade to the cemetery, where there will be services, and the decoration of the graves with flowers and flags, will be made by S. W. Clark, chairman of the joint committee from Gorman post, and the Culver post of the G. A. R., the Sons of Veterans, the Ladies of the Relief Corps and the ladies of the Garfield circle of the G. A. R., which met last evening to make the preliminary arrangements. Col. F. E. Resche will be the marshal of the day.

Two or three bands will take part in the procession. There will also be 125 G. A. R. veterans, a squad from the Sons of Veterans, three companies from the National Guard, hundreds of members from the citizen staff and school children from every public school in the city, probably about 2,500 in all. The old veterans who are unable to march, will be furnished with carriages. At the cemetery a company from the Sons of Veterans will fire several salutes over the graves and taps will be sounded by the bugler.

The citizen staff will have charge of the services to be held at the Lyceum, where there will be speeches, patriotic music and readings.

There will also be services on the water. From the U. S. S. Gopher the Ladies' Relief Corps will strew flowers in the wake of the cutter.

STATIONS ON ROAD TO HELL

Chicago Judge Names Winnipeg, Omaha, Memphis and Buffalo.

Chicago, May 15.—"The first stopping places on the road to hell for a chorus girl leaving Chicago are Winnipeg, Can., to the North; Memphis to the South, Omaha to the West and Buffalo to the East," said Judge Judson F. Going yesterday.

He was speaking to Clara Shalz, an 18-year-old runaway who had been arrested at the Grand Central depot as she was about to board a train for the Canadian city with twenty other girls to join a theatrical troupe there.

"I want to go on the stage," protested the girl when arrested. "I am old enough to take care of myself, and I don't want to go back home to my mother and sisters. I want to go on the stage."

"You were probably starting for hell, although you ticket read Winnipeg," said Judge Going, at the Sheffield avenue police court. "Most young girls who become stage-struck and run away from home to go on the stage go to one of these four towns. Without the good home influence they have left behind they soon fall into a life of shame, and after leaving Winnipeg or one of the other places, soon reach their final destination.

"I won't go home," replied the girl. "I'm going on the stage."

"You won't for a year at least," retorted Judge Going. "I'll send you to the House of the Good Shepherd for a year."

The girl ran away from her home at 29 Janssen avenue several days ago. Detectives Zabel and Gallagher learned, it is alleged, that she had been engaged by Thomas Olson of Winnipeg to join a company in Canada and went to the depot yesterday just before train time.

HIS LEG CRUSHED.

Contractor on Soo Extension Badly Injured.

Mora, Minn., May 15.—Word has reached this village that Gust Sundin of Knife Lake met with an accident while at work on the Soo road near Isle. Mr. Sundin with his brother Walfred and Nels and Helmer Peterson had taken the contract for work on the new line using dump cars for hauling dirt for filing purposes. In opening a switch Mr. Sundin slipped and fell and the cars passed over his leg, crushing the bones. Dr. Sweenes of Lawrence was called.

PERISHED WITH BARN.

Wagner, S. D., May 15.—Louis Uken, son of L. Uken, lost his life in a fire which destroyed a barn, and two brothers barely escaped with their lives. The young men were sleeping in the loft. The fire also burned six horses, a new automobile and several buggies.

"THE MAN WITH THE RAKE" WILL REIGN SUPREME ON SATURDAY

AN EXAMPLE FOR OLDER PEOPLE TO FOLLOW.

Tomorrow is cleaning day. It has been officially designated as such by Mayor Haven. Hoes and rakes will be in great demand. But most of all, human energy and a pride in cleanliness will be needed. It is the hope of the mayor, health authorities and everybody with the best interests of the city at heart, especially in the matter of civic beauty, that citizens in all parts of town will co-operate in the general movement to put Duluth in a more presentable condition.

If the plans of the administration carry out, the accompanying photograph may be taken as a fair sample of what will be seen all over the city tomorrow. The youth industriously working with his rake is a good example to follow. The man with the hoe is all right in his time and place, but at the present moment the boy with the rake, assisted by his big brothers and father, is more urgently needed. Hoes will help some, but rakes are generally more effective weapons when it comes to attacking the accumulated refuse of the winter and getting it out of the way.

School children will play an important part in the cleaning campaign. That is one reason why Mayor Haven selected Saturday as city clean-up day. There is no school then and many of the downtown offices are closed on that day during the afternoon, allowing the older people a chance to pitch in and help. School teachers have been their pupils today, in an effort to instill into them ideas that will prove of benefit to the city. Mayor Haven expresses the opinion that if they are taught the proper amount of civic pride in their youth, they can be depended upon to look after the needs of the future when they get older. It will be a case of "get the habit."

The old, slip-shod method of one man cleaning up his yard one day and another man cleaning up his yard the next day, leaving the vacant lots to take care of themselves, has gone out of fashion. Progressive cities all over the country are getting spring cleaning operations town to a fine system, and the work is carried on in an organized way. In Minneapolis, for example, every ward has a branch association, and every school an organization, to see that a cleaning campaign is conducted wherever and whenever needed. Several other cities follow out Duluth's system of having everybody pitch in on the same day to give back yards, front yards, vacant lots, etc., a thorough scouring. People are expected not only to clean up their own premises, but to give some attention to vacant lots, where old papers, boxes and other rubbish has accumulated.

FILTHY HABIT IS CONDEMNED

Campaign Against Spitters on Street Cars is Indorsed.

"My boy, will you please refrain from throwing those shucks on the floor," kindly requested an East end resident of a youngster about 14 or 15 years of age, who was munching peanuts on an east-bound street car the other evening, and throwing the shucks on the car floor. The car was well filled with passengers and the boy, who stood in front of the gentleman making the request, was thoughtlessly littering the floor of the car, instead of taking the small trouble of carrying the shucks to the rear and throwing them to the pavement. The request momentarily embarrassed the youngster and he seemed to appreciate his discourtesy as soon as somebody called attention to his act.

The boy had been doing exactly what a great many older people in the city do thoughtlessly at times and who would be very much offended if somebody called attention to their acts.

The street railway company is doing everything it can to keep its cars clean and it has been succeeding admirably in its efforts, especially since strict care has been paid to the anti-spitting ordinance. It has become such a rare thing for a passenger to spit on the floor of a street car in this city that the act of a stranger in so doing attracts the immediate and disapproving attention of everybody on the car who witnesses the act.

Of late the company has been urging its male patrons who stand on the rear vestibule to observe the letter of the ordinance and refrain from spitting on the steps or through the gates. Attention has been called to the matter through the press and the company has placed signs on the gates in the effort to stop the practice complained of. While the practice has been stopped to some extent, it is surprising to note the number of men who still persist in that discourteous and filthy act. They seem to have no regard for the women who get on and off cars and who must run the risk of having their garments trail in tobacco spit, or place their hands on gates covered with the expectorations of smokers.

It is almost an impossibility for a passenger to spit through the wire mesh of the gates or the perforations in the steps without some remaining on the gates and steps and there is no part of the car where such conditions are more objectionable, because every passenger getting on or off the car is likely to brush against the gates. In the case of women, their skirts brush the steps and become soiled.

AGED WOMAN DYING.

Mrs. Mary Hunt of Beloit, Wis., on Her Deathbed.

Beloit, Wis., May 15.—Mrs. Mary A. Hunt, said to be the oldest person in Wisconsin, is dying at her home in this city at the age of 106 years. She was born at Goshen, Conn., January 22, 1802, and at the age of 8 went with her parents to Mt. Morris, N. Y., where she lived through the stirring times of the war of 1812. The scenes of this conflict she remembered well up to the time of her present illness, the burning of villages along the lakes having made a particularly strong impression on her.

She secured most of her education at Litchfield, Conn., and in 1827 married Dr. Hiram Hunt, who died in 1853. The widow came West to Bay City, Mich., with her daughter, Mrs. Fayette Royce, in 1866, and two years later to Beloit, where she has since resided.

DEEP CRACKS FROM ECZEMA

Could Lay Slate-Pencil in One—Hands in Dreadful State—Disease Defied Remedies and Prescriptions—Suffered Seven Years.

FOUND A PERMANENT CURE IN CUTICURA

"I had eczema on my hands for about seven years and during that time I had used several so-called remedies, together with physicians' and druggists' prescriptions. The disease was so bad on my hands that I could lay a slate-pencil in one of the cracks and a rule placed across the hand would not touch the pencil. I used ——, ——, —— Skin Lotion, —— Remedy and others externally but I did not use any internal remedy, and while some gave partial relief, none relieved as much as did the first box of Cuticura Ointment. I made a purchase of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and my hands were perfectly cured after two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of soap were used. I now keep them on hand for sunburn, etc., and use Cuticura Soap for shaving. I could write a great deal more in reference to my cure but do not want to take more of your time. William H. Dean, Newark, Del., Mar. 28, 1907."

CHILD SUFFERED

"My little daughter suffered with sores on her legs all last summer. Her feet were sore, too, and she couldn't wear her shoes. I think she was poisoned by running through weeds but the doctor said it was eczema. I tried several remedies but failed to find a cure. Then I sent for Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment which cured her in two weeks. I find Cuticura the best I ever tried for any kind of sore and I hope I shall never be without it. Mrs. Gertie Loughlin. Ivydale, W. Va., Apr. 25 1907."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. CAPTURED WITH NETS.

Deputy Game Warden Rardin Makes Gull Lake Haul.

Brainerd, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Deputy Game Warden George H. Rardin made a big haul Tuesday morning in Gull lake. He found out that John Mushett and Jesse Brant of section 10 were using nets for the catching of fish and laid for them. He located them Monday night and laid out in the woods all night watching them. Early Tuesday morning he saw them start for the lake and followed them and saw them pull a gill net from the water. He started to row out to arrest them and they pulled down the lake. After a merry chase he succeeded in overhauling them and brought them and their nets to the city. The men were lodged in jail until Wednesday, when he took them to Walker to be tried, the capture having been made in Cass county. In addition to the one taken from the men he also secured two which he saw them hide in the bushes. He also secured one net from the boat of another party, who has not been arrested yet. Altogether he gathered in about 600 feet of nets.

LOST WOMAN IS FOUND BY DOG

Graceton, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Disher, an old woman of about 60, was lost for eighteen hours south of here in the settlement of former Crookston people in this remote settlement in the extreme northern part of Minnesota. She spent the night in a tree and was discovered by the aid of a little rat terrier dog that guided searching parties to where she was to be found.

Mrs. Disher left her home, situated on her claim, for her daughter's house, about two miles distant. She wandered from the path about two miles in the cedars and became lost. A search party was immediately organized containing Fred Harris and Nelson, former Crookston men, now holding claims, and William Ecker, her son-in-law, and three lumbermen, and they hunted through and through the woods and swamps, at one time passing within 300 feet of her. They shot off their guns and rifles and yelled but she did not hear them or the reports of the guns. In the morning, Mrs. Ecker, the daughter, brought out the little rat terrier dog belonging to the family and put it on the trail. The dog began wagging his tail and started off on a bee line for the cedars in which the old lady had enscounced herself. The old lady had suffered some from the night's exposure and her efforts in climbing the tree, but is getting well again.

FORTUNE FOR COLLEGE.

Lawrence University Receives $50,000 From Rockefeller.

Appleton, Wis., May 15.—A check for $50,000 representing the general education board's share of a $200,000 increase in endowment was received yesterday at Lawrence university. About a year ago the board at New York made a proposition to Lawrence, offering $50,000 to the Appleton school providing the authorities of the institution would raise the other $150,000 necessary to make the entire sum $200,000. President Plantz accepted the offer, and at once set out to obtain the necessary subscriptions. Before the conclusion of the annual meeting of the trustees, last June, the necessary $150,000 had been subscribed. Lawrence is now on the accepted list of American colleges, and it is believed will at intervals receive some of the earnings of the mammoth fund set aside by John D. Rockefeller for educational purposes.

STALWARTS WIN IN NORTH DAKOTA

Kennedy Elected National Committeeman and Taft Indorsed.

Minot, N. D., May 15.—The Republican state convention of North Dakota elected eight delegates to the national convention at Chicago, and instruted them to vote for the nomination of Secretary Taft.

The main fight came over the indorsement of a candidate for national committeeman. Frank Sprague, the insurgent candidate, was defeated by James Kennedy, stalwart, by a vote of 183 to 260.

The platform unqualifiedly indorses the administration of President Roosevelt, advocates the regulation of public service corporations, and condemns the administration of Governor Burke, Democrat.

THIRTY ARE DEAD IN LOUISIANA TORNADO.

Shreveport, La., May 15.—Thirty dead and 200 injured is a conservative estimate of the fatalities caused by the tornado which swept through Northwest Louisiana, destroying three small towns and leaving wrecked homes and ruined crops in a path a mile wide and fifty miles long.

W. J. BRYAN WANTS ALL DELEGATES INSTRUCTED.

Lincoln, Neb., May 15.—In the Commoner, W. J. Bryan, under a glaring caption, urges the instruction of delegates to the Democratic national convention. He says:

"Instructions to delegates are the order of the day. Nearly all of the states which have held Democratic conventions so far have instructed. This is as it should be. Indications are Democratic. The people speak through instructions—they cannot speak in any other way. A failure to instruct turns the delegates to party bossism."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Ferdinand Kramer, a wealthy cigar manufacturer jumped from the Eads bridge into the Mississippi river at St. Louis Thursday and was drowned. The body was recovered. No reason is known for his act.

A decree of absolute divorce in favor of Fritzie Scheff, the actress was signed Thursday by Justice McCall on a report of a referee who heard the evidence. Miss Scheff was married to Baron von Badetben in 1903.

TWO VERDICTS ARE RETURNED

Defendants in Two Civil Actions Are Assessed Damages.

Peter K. Peterson, who sued the street railway company for $8,000 for injuries received by his 8-year-old daughter, was awarded a verdict of $99 in the district court yesterday. The child was coasting down Tenth avenue east on the sidewalk early last winter and collided with the rear end of a passing Fourth street car. Peterson alleged the accident to be due to the negligence of the company through its employes.

In the civil action of D. Simon against Panton & White the jury, last evening, returned a verdict of $300 in favor of Mr. Simon. He sued for about $800 which he claimed was due him on wall paper and painting contracts. The defendant company denied any liability and put in a counter claim of over $2,000 which it claimed was due from Simon on contracts and for materials furnished him.

The personal injury case of Henry Peterson against the Lantry Construction company is being tried by a jury in Judge Cant's room. Peterson is suing for $12,000 for injuries received while on the tunneling job for the Wisconsin Central road at Eleventh avenue west. He claims he was injured by reason of a premature blast.

MARINE NEWS

MISSABE DOCKS GET SEASON'S FIRST ORE

Trains Are Running Down Hill From Proctor Once More.

Shipments Will be Very Light for the Present.

Once more the iron ore trains are rumbling down the hill from Proctor and unloading metal in the rough at the Duluth, Missabe & Northern docks in the West end.

The truly season is under way at last. For a time, shipments from the mines to the docks will be light but they will gradually increase.

The first ore of the season is being handled at the Missabe docks today. Light crews are working and they will continue so for a time. As soon as conditions warrant, they will be enlarged and the volume of the shipments from the mines increased.

No boats are loading at the docks yet but within the course of a day or two, three. The ore is not coming fast these. The ore is not coming fast enough yet to cause any congestion on account of the delay in shipments from the docks.

Just how soon the full complement of men on the docks and on the ore trains will receive orders to go to work, cannot be said but at the Missabe offices today it was stated that as soon as conditions generally warranted it, the regular crews would be put to work.

At the Great Northern docks at Allouez, there have been light shipments of ore for the past ten days but the first ore of the season did not come to the Missabe docks until today.

West enders residing in the vicinity of the docks felt very good when they saw the long ore trains trail down the hillside and roar over the trestle-work of the dock approaches.

Percy Scott Mitchell, general manager of the Oliver Iron Mining company is on the range today seeing to the opening of some of the Steel corporation mines. He will return to Duluth tomorrow.

WORKING AT DRY DOCKS.

Buffalo, May 15.—There is great activity at the Buffalo dry docks, where a force of 2,435 men is employed. The vessels receiving repairs are the Marshall, Dalton, Jenks.

Seven boats are waiting to go into the dry dock as soon as they can be taken care of. The new Steamer Honduras, which is being built for James Davidson of Bay City, will be ready for delivery June 10. The new steamer America, also being built in the dry dock, for the Crystal Beach line, is practically completed and will make her trial trip May 27.

STORM ABATES.

Boats Which Were in Shelter, Venture Into Rough Sea.

The storm on the western end of Lake Superior reached its height last night with a gale blowing 46 miles an hour at the most severe time and driving an intermittent fall of rain before it. This morning the wind went down and, though a heavy sea continues, the storm is practically over.

The storm lashed up the lake to a dangerous degree and the waves broke over the channel piers all day yesterday and at times, the spray went across Minnesota point. The steamers Fleetwood and Oceanica remained at the Allouez ore docks with their cargoes of ore and several grain boats, which were ready to sail, also remained in shelter. Some of them went out this morning, when the wind went down, although a heavy sea continued.

The weather bureau reports that there is likely to be more rain tonight, with an easterly wind and tomorrow will be partly cloudy and somewhat warmer. Another storm has started in the Far West and is coming this way. It may strike Sunday night or Monday. Yesterday's storm was confined to the western end of Lake Superior.

STEAMER TOWED IN.

Gratwick Picks Up the J. C. Suit Off South Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 15.—The Barry line steamer J C. Suit was towed into port at 1 a. m. by the steamer W. H. Gratwick, which picked up the Suit when in a sinking condition off South Milwaukee. The Suit carried no passengers but a crew of twenty.

SUIT IS CALLED OFF.

Toledo Steamship Company Drops Litigation With G. A. Tomlinson.

Detroit, Mich., May 15.—Announcement was made here yesterday that the Toledo Steamship company, owning the steamer Eugene Zimmerman, which was sunk in the St. Mary's river in April 1906, had filed notice of withdrawal from the arbitration which was begun to settle the question of damages between the Toledo company and G. A. Tomlinson of Duluth, owner of the Steamer Saxona, in collision with which the Zimmerman was sunk.

STEPHENSON RELEASED.

Considerable Trouble Experienced on Account of Low Water.

Buffalo, May 15.—The steamer I. W. Stevenson was released at 9:40 this morning, after a portion of her lumber cargo had been lightered. She is apparently uninjured. The water was a foot below normal level and some trouble was experienced in getting her off.

DECLARES "OPEN SHOP."

Escanaba Ore Dock Managers Will Not Treat With Unions.

Milwaukee, May 15.—The first step in a general movement to declare for the "open shop" policy in the operation of all ore docks at the Head of the Lakes, was taken yesterday at Escanaba, where the dock officials refused to treat with the union. The men will be hired for the season's work individually and last season's scale of wages will be paid.

WORKING ON NEW DRAWS

Wide Channels Will be Dredged at Openings of N. P. Bridge.

Vessels May Pass Through Draws, Must Use Caution.

The old draw-span at the Wisconsin channel of the Northern Pacific bridge, which was damaged a few days ago by a steam excavator that was being hauled over it on a flat car, has not been in operation since and will not be repaired. It stands in an open position, so that vessels may pass, but trains will be forced to use the Grassy Point bridge for some time to come.

Maj. Graham D. Fitch of the United States engineers' office, plans to have the old draw span taken to pieces in its present position and removed. The work of dismantling is about to begin, with derricks and wrecking crew, and will probably require a week's time to accomplish. At the same time, the trestle will be removed from the two openings of the new draw span and work has already been started there. After the removal of the trestle, the government will dredge the channels through the openings, making available the full width of 175 feet in each opening.

The new draw span will probably be ready to swing before the old draw is removed, as only a little more work is necessary on the motive machinery. The new span is exceptionally large, with 479 feet length, and it is said to be heavier than the draw span of the Interstate bridge, although not as long by six feet.

While the work is in progress, vessel masters should pass the bridge slowly and cautiously to avoid injury to the plants, both of the company and the government. Vessels should not use the north opening of the new span until further notice, on account of dredging operations immediately west of the bridge, which will take a little longer time.

After the operations on the Wisconsin side, a similar program will be carried out in the Minnesota channel. The old Minnesota draw will be removed, together with all obstructions in the two openings of the new Minnesota span. The Minnesota span is only 430 feet long, but it provides two 175-foot openings, the extra length being necessary on account of the bridge at the Wisconsin channel not being at right angles to the channel.

Vessels will not be seriously discommoded by any of the operations, although it will be necessary to use greater care at times in passing through the old draws.

DAMAGE TO STANTON.

Hutchinson Boat Will Go Into Dry Dock at Superior.

Houghton, Mich., May 15.—The steamer John Stanton, which grounded late Monday afternoon in Portage river, and which was released Tuesday, is believed to be more seriously damaged than at first believed. Capt. C. H. Heaton is of the belief that the hole in the steamer's forward compartment, on the port side, is sufficiently large to permit of a man to walk through. He ascribes this belief to the fact that the steamer's two 100-gallon pumps made no apparent inroads upon the volume of water which filled the compartment, which he says, demonstrates the hole is so large as to cause the compartment to fill as quickly as pumped out.

Capt. Heaton is now awaiting orders from the East as to what course he shall pursue. The Stanton will necessarily have to go into dry dock at Superior.

The work of discharging the Stanton's cargo of 10,000 tons of coal at the Copper Range coal dock is progressing favorably, and the boat should be ready to leave tonight. The damage to the boat's hull will, it is believed, cost about $5,000 to repair. Because of the inner construction of the vessel no trouble will be experienced in getting her to dry dock.

It was necessary to lighten the Stanton of but 100 tons of her cargo, that amount being equivalent to the amount of water taken in by the forward compartment, where the steamer was rammed.

In connection with the stranding of the Stanton Junior, United States Engineer Banks of Houghton, has issued a warning to vessemen to keep to the center of the channel until dredging can be done at the point where the steamer went aground.

CAPTAIN MILLS DIES.

Was to Have Sailed New Steamer E. F. Dunston This Season.

Cleveland, May 15.—Capt. Harvey W. Mills died of acute indigestion at his home in Watertown, N. Y., last night. Capt. Mills sailed the steamer H. W. Smith last season and was appointed master of the steamer E. F. Dunston building at Superior, which is to be launched on May 23.

Only One Charter.

Buffalo, May 15.—Dullness still prevails in coal shipping circles, the only charter reported yesterday being the E. L. Wallace to Milwaukee at 40 cents.

No Shippers in Market.

Chicago, May 15.—Shippers were entirely out of the market for grain yesterday, and their chief efforts were directed to getting cargoes that have already been chartered loaded and under way. Serious delays have been caused by the rainy weather.

Laying Up Carriers.

Buffalo, May 15.—The freight situation is without change in any line, and no more freighters are being sent out. Some of the big carriers which are now in commission will have to be sent to the dock.

UP TO THE OPERATORS.

Miners Will Not Continue Negotiations After Next Thursday.

Kansas City, Mo., May 15.—T. L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who is here, said today that unless the operators came to some agreement at the convention of miners that is to convene here next Tuesday, negotiations looking to an ending of the strike of the 35,000 Southwestern coal miners will come to an end.

PASTOR NOT GUILTY OF COUNTERFEITING.

Chicago, May 15.—The Rev. James A. Kaye was informed last night that the United States appellate court had reversed a decision by a lower court, which found him guilty of counterfeiting.

Dr. Kaye, pastor of a Presbyterian church at Lincoln, Ill., was convicted Jan. 1 last of having counterfeit coins in his possession. He was sentenced to two years in prison at Fort Leavenworth. His defense was that the coins were some he had made while experimenting with a medal for his Sunday school class.

SMALL SCHOONER ASHORE.

Life Savers Remove Crew From Vessel on New Jersey Coast.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 15.—An unknown three-masted schooner, apparently waterlogged and flying signals of distress, is lying several miles off Sea Isle City. The sea is so rough that life savers cannot launch their boat to go to the assistance of the disabled craft.

Philadelphia, May 15.—The distressed schooner is the William McGee, Capt. Pearsel, from West Point, Va., for New York, with a load of pine boards. In response to signals of distress the crew of the Sea Isle City life saving station went out in a life boat and brought the crew of five men ashore. The schooner is pounding on Townsend's Inlet bar and will be a total wreck. The William McGee was built in 1865 and was of less than 100 tons burden.

AMERICAN FISHERMAN CAUGHT BY CANADIANS.

Vancouver, B. C., May 15.—Found fishing inside the three-mile limit at the north end of Vancouver island, the American steam halibut schooner Francis Cutting, owned by the Seattle Fish & Cold Storage company, was seized by the Canadian fisheries cruiser Kestrel and brought to Vancouver yesterday.

Commander Newcomb wired Ottawa and the Dominion government will decide if the vessel is to be confiscated, theowners having the opportunity of fighting it in the courts if they wish to. As the Francis Cutting is a well built steamboat, worth about $30,000, the capture is an important one.

CARNEGIE SAILS FOR HIS SCOTTISH HOME.

New York, May 15.—Andrew Carnegie was a passenger on the White Star line Baltic, which sailed yesterday afternoon for Queenstown and Liverpool. Accompanied by his wife and little daughter, he will go to his Skibo estate, returning, according to Mr. Carnegie, in plenty of time to vote at the presidential election.

Mr. Carnegie was noncommittal on the question of presidential candidates. He spoke enthusiastically of the business situation.

TRYING TO SETTLE STRIKE.

Kansas City, May 15.—Active efforts to settle the strike of the 800 brewery workers who went out yesterday, tying up work in all the local breweries, were made today by Louis Kemper of Cincinnati, international secretary of the United Brewery Workers of America, who arrived in Kansas City last night. Mr. Kemper conferred with the strike leaders this morning, and later in the day a committee of the strikers met with the brewery representatives.

EMPRESS IS AGING.

Pekin, May 15.—The wives of the members of the diplomatic corps here were received by the dowager empress in audience at the summer palace today. It was noticed that the empress had aged materially since the last audience a year ago.

BAHR IS GIVEN A HEAVY FINE

Must Pay $100 for Keeping Saloon Open Too Late.

Max Bahr, bartender for J. D. Campbell of the St. James hotel, was fined $100 by Judge Windom in municipal court yesterday on the charge of having kept the saloon open after hours last Friday night. Campbell's license is due to come up for renewal at the council meeting next Monday night. Application will have to be made under some other name, as Campbell cannot take out a license for one year after being convicted of an offense against the law.

M. H. McMahon was attorney for the defense and Assistant City Attorney Kenny had charge of the prosecution. Bahr claimed on the stand that he closed the saloon at 11 o'clock Friday night, and went home with James Mitchell, his brother-in-law. Mitchel testified to the same effect. Charles Riley also claimed that with several others he was ordered out of the saloon at 11 o'clock and that twenty minutes later he returned to the place and found it closed. He said he even telephoned to the barroom from the hotel up stairs to make sure there was no one there and received no answer.

Riley was characterized by Mr. McMahon as a disinterested witness, but Judge Windom remembered him as the same man who had been summoned in two or three other saloon cases. The judge said he was satisfied the man was guilty, and gave him the heaviest fine possible.

Sergeant Toewe and Patrolman Bob Smollett were the only witnesses for the state. They said that at 12:45 Friday night they saw three men and a woman in the saloon, by looking over the curtains in front. Two of the men appeared to be drinking pint bottles of beer, they said. The doors which were tried were found locked.

After sentence had been pronounced Attorney McMahon asked for a stay of ten days, which was granted.

It would be a misdemeanor for any alderman to vote for the renewal of a saloon license within one year after the applicant has been convicted on a charge of law violation.

BANDITS SECURE MINERS' MONEY

Break Safe at French, N. M. and Get About $35,000.

El Paso, Tex., May 15.—Pursued by men and bloodhounds, three bandits with a $35,000 loot in their possession are fleeing through the rugged mountain passes north of French, a little station eighty miles from East Las Vegas, N. M., on the Santa Fe railroad in an effort to escape the clutches of the law.

At French yesterday afternoon they broke down the doors of the depot, bound and gagged the station agent and special guard, blew open the safe, took the money and rode away, leaving their victims helpless. A tramp wandered into the station half an hour later, released the almost unconscious men and gave the alarm.

The stolen money was sent from Albuquerque yesterday morning on a Santa Fe train to pay miners at Dawson, N. M. Only a branch road leads to the mines. A special train and a transfer of the money was necessary at French. A special guard, heavily armed, accompanied the treasure and upon leaving the train at French went inside the station, placed the money in the safe and locked the doors to the station.

Suddenly the noise of a breaking window attracted the guard and the station agent and they looked around to face the muzzles of two rifles. A third bandit broke open the door and entered. He then held the two men covered with a revolver while the other bandits entered the building. After tying the guard and agent, the robbers shot the safe with dynamite, took the money and fled.

GRAND JURY IS DOING THINGS

Big Grist of Indictments Have Already Been Returned in Court.

The grand jury for the present term of the district court is, to use a popular expression, "doing things." The men comprising the grand jury are mostly business and professional men, whose private business requires their attention and, while they may begrudge the time that they are in duty bound to spend about the public's business, they are grinding out a big list of indictments, the majority of which have not yet been made public, owing to the fact that the persons indicted are not in custody.

Up to yesterday noon there had been about twenty-two indictments returned. Another grist of about eight were returned at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, bringing the total up to this morning about twenty-eight or thirty.

At the rate the grand jury is working, if it continues in session longer the county attorney's office will have enough criminal cases for trialto keep one court busy for the next six weeks.

MRS. GUNNESS WAS ONCE A ROPE DANCER.

Christiania, May 15.—Mrs. Belle Gunness, the central figure in the Laporte, Ind., murder mystery, details of which have been received here, is remembered in Christiania as a girl, assisting her father, Peter S. Paulsen, a traveling conjurer and magician, who gave performances at all fairs in Norway. She performed as a rope dancer, and often was dressed in short skirts and fleshings. Her three sisters and brothers also took part in the show. The father made enough money eventually to retire to a small property, near Trondhjem. Mrs. Gunness has many relatives in Norway.

ICELAND BENEFITTED

By New Law to be Submitted to Parliaments.

Copenhagen, May 15.—The committee having the matter in hand yesterday presented to King Frederick a report containing its recommendations for the regulation of the future relations between Denmark and Iceland. The committee is composed of members of the Danish and Icelandic parliaments, and it was appointed at the time of his majesty's visit to Iceland, last year. The report is accompanied by a draft of the new law to govern the relations.

The bill to bring this law into being, which must be approved by both parliaments, constitutes Iceland "a free autonomous and independent country, united to Denmark by a common king and common interest, and forming with Denmark a state federation, the United Danish Empire."

If the bill passes, King Frederick will be entitled to call himself king of Denmark and king of Iceland. Various concessions have been granted to Iceland, giving a greater degree of independence.

EVANS AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, May 14.—With his old-time flow of animal spirits and looking much better than when he landed at San Diego several weeks ago, Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans arrived here last night. Admiral Evans alighted from the train in the union station here with the aid of crutches and upon seeing the roller chair that was awaiting him he exclaimed: "I don't want to take the chair, but I suppose I'll have to."

OREGONIANS INSIST ON SECRETARY TAFT.

Portland, Or., May 14.—Oregon's eight delegates to the Republican national convention were instructed for Secretary Taft at the state and congressional district conventions. The three conventions were absolutely in control of the Taft people, led by Senator Charles W. Fulton's friends.

Late in the afternoon, after the convention had passed resolutions instructing for Taft, a message was received from Senator Bourne at Washington urging that the delegates be instructed for President Roosevelt and stating that if otherwise instructed he did not wish to be a delegate.

Two efforts were made to have the name of Roosevelt substituted for Taft in the instructions to delegates and one to substitute the name of Hughes. Each of these motions was voted down.

The Great Pyramid.

The greatest of all pyramids is Khufu Khut, as the Egyptians call it, or the glorious throne of Khufu. All its four sides measure 755 feet, and the original height was 481 feet. The great staple beverage of the Northwest is golden grain belt beer. It is the most nourishing of all beers, because it contains every particle of the healthful, wholesome nutriment of the malt, and all the tonic properties of the hops from which it is made. LIST IS NOT YET READY

Bids for Courthouse Have Not Yet Been Tabulated.

Local Men Did Not Get Fair Deal From Manufacturers.

The list of bidders on the new courthouse and the class contracts in connection with the building, which have been under process of tabulation by the secretary of the courthouse commission and the architects, for the past three days is not yet ready for publication. There are so many details to be worked out in connection with the classification of the bids that the job is no inconsiderable one and the list, when completed will have about 400 bids tabulated running from small contracts for certain supplies to the high figures for the general construction contract.

It is understood from the local contractors who have been following the matter pretty closely, that there are six bids for the general construction work, some of these with and some without the heating and plumbing estimates.

As near as can be learned the four lowest bids are about as follows:

George H. Lounsberry, Duluth, without heat and plumbing..... 684,000
Landquist & Illsley, Chicago, without heat and plumbing..... 750,000
A New York firm of contractors, without heat and plumbing..... 751,000

Landquist & Illsley of Chicago, are said to have made a bid complete for the building, with the exception of the grading around the structure, for $800.-00 and, according to rumor, has been generally accepted as being the lowest bid. The grading bids are understood to run from $7,000 up.

It is further reported that the Chicago contractors were $5,000 under the lowest class bid submitted by any other competing contractor or contracting firm, while on the complete contract the Chicago men are said to be about $76,000 under the next lowest bid for the same work.

The local people who are interested in the bids submitted have not yet given up their claim that the Duluth bids were as low as those of the outside concerns, taking all the class contracts into consideration.

The local men claim that if the Chicago firm has come in with the lowest figures, it is because the Chicago material men have given the benefit of lower prices than the Duluth contractors could get, especially on the ornamental or fancy iron work. The local contractors do not yet concede that they are out of the race.

As soon as all the details can be worked out, the architects will probably make their recommendations to the courthouse commission, and the commission will lay the matter before the county board at the next meeting in June, asking for an appropriation sufficient to cover the construction expense. If the appropriation is made, it is likely that the contracts will be awarded directly after the county board meeting.

NEED PERMIT FOR TUNNEL

Wisconsin Central Work May Ruin West Michigan Street.

City Engineer McGilvray this morning notified Lantry & Co., who have the contract for the construction of the Wisconsin Central terminals in Duluth, that they would have to secure a city permit for their tunneling and rock-cutting operations between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues west.

The excavation work along the road has resulted in the filling under the street becoming loose and working toward the lake. Particularly is this true during the recent rains. Something will have to be done to stop this. It is considered likely that, as the loose earth and stone is dug away below the street, stone or concrete walls will be built to prevent the caving in of the street, thus protecting the city's property.

You can eat hot biscuits at midnight if they are made by a good cook who uses Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder.

PLAINTIFF DID NOT APPEAR

Delay Was Caused in Opening of Trial of Damage Case.

Two personal injury cases are on trial in the district court today.

In Judge Ensign's room the trial of the case of John Samardesh against the Croxton Mining company was started this morning, but the jury was excused until 2 o'clock as the plaintiff and none of the witnesses were on hand when the attorney for Samardesh was ready to open his case. Samardesh put in an appearance a few minutes after the jurors had left the building.

The damage case of Frank Norton against C. J. Petruschke is still being heard in Judge Cant's room, and is not likely to be finished today.

BETTER BEMIDJI STREETS.

Bemidji, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Considerable work has been done on the streets of Bemidji which will have a tendency to beautify the city, and if this work is completed as started, it will be a big improvement to the streets of Bemidji. Bemidji avenue has been brought to grade from the south point of the Minnesota & International to Twelfth street, and residents along this portion of the town should do their share towards beautifying their lots, the portion of the streets fronting their lots.

UNITED STATES TO MAIL PAPERS FOR CANADIANS.

Halifax, N. S., May 15.—A new arrangement has been reached between the publishers of weekly and semi-weekly papers in the maritime provinces and the United States postoffice, whereby the Boston postoffice will receive in bulk, by express, all the provincial papers intended for circulation in the United States and consign them to their destinations at a postage charge of but 1 cent for each pound of papers in bulk. This will enable the publishers to distribute their papers to a much larger patronage than has been possible lately, owing to prohibitive rates.

STIMULUS TO BUSINESS.

Good Crop Prospects Induce Farmers to Buy Liberally.

Fargo, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The magnificent crop prospects over the state are a great stimulus to business, especially in farm implement lines. The general agents report a rush of orders from many sections of the state for farm machinery of all kinds. The trade is heavier in the newer sections and right in the Red River valley than elsewhere. The unusual activity here in the valley is due to the fact that for some years crop conditions were unfavorable and no purchases were made that were not absolutely necessary. The prospects are now so bright the farmers are buying liberally. The early seeding, the fine condition of the soil, the evenness with which the grain came up and the recent moisture have all combined to make the present situation most satisfactory.

THREE BOSS PAINTERS SIGN.

Fargo, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The striking painters have won a partial victory in getting three of the boss painters of Fargo and Moorhead to sign up. Those at the head of the larger shops still stand out and assert they have a sufficient force of non-union men to do their work.

MUCH WHISKY BURNS.

Oskaloosa, Iowa, May 15.—The bonded warehouse of the C. A. Hoover distillery, containing 2,600 barrels of whisky, was destroyed by fire today. The Hoover distillery is the only one in operation in Iowa. The warehouse will be rebuilt immediately. The loss is $100,000. Insurance, $65,000.

LIEUTENANT IS SAFE.

Manila, May 15.—Second Lieut. Arthur R. Ehrnbeck, who was reported on May 12 to be missing from his station in Mindanao, is safe at Malabung. The authorities missed him because of interrupted telegrams.

Blue Serge Pants $2.95.

If you want to match up your last season's coat and vest come to the "Fitwell" Clothing Parlors tomorrow—100 pairs go on sale for $2.95.

CROOKSTON NEWS NOTES.

Crookston, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bids for the new Franklin school building were advertised for yesterday. This building will be strictly modern and will cost in the neighborhood of $20,000.

The Third street outlet sewer which caved in some time ago and which threatened to undermine the Great Northern tracks at that point has again been opened and it is believed that substantial repairs can be made without changing the route of the sewer, though they will be costly.

40 Different Styles

LIVED IN AN ATTIC.

The early history of J. T. Trowbridge is as romantic as anything his imagination devised later for the entertainment of his readers, says The Delineator. He actually lived on crusts in an attic as he fought to make his way in the world. He wrote for the Dollar Magazine, so called, not only because it sold for $1 a year, but because it paid its writers $1 a page! It is hardly necessary after this to quote his own statement that he "was hungry at times." He adds cheerily, however, "no more so, probably, than was good for me, and never for long." It was when he was managing editor of Our Young Folks that he began the work that has made him so well known and loved. After they had published a series of stories for young people, written by Mayne Reid, Mrs. Whitney, Aldrich and others equally famous, he was suggesting names for a successor in their work. His "chief" looked at him quizzically and observed, "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?" So John did, with the result that thousands of young people have adored his books.

AN OMELET FOR HARD TIMES.

When eggs are very high the omelet is a forbidden luxury in many households, says the Delineator. An omelet made in this manner, however, will meet all the demands of economy, and will, at the same time, be as light and fluffy as though prepared in the ordinary and more costly way. Put a cupful of finely crumbled bread into a bowl, and pour over it two-thirds of a cupful of sweet milk. When the bread has become thoroughly moistened, stir it with a spoon until it is entirely smooth and free from lumps. Add the yolks of two eggs, beating them into the bread and milk, one at a time; then, fold in the stiffly-whipped whites, and pour into a well-buttered baking-dish. Bake in a moderate oven until well set. A pleasing variation is to sprinkle the top of the omelet with grated cheese and paprika before removing it from the oven. If a sweet omelet is desired, a generous sprinkling of maple sugar will prove pleasing.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

PRIMARY LAW IS MUCH IN DISFAVOR

Auditors of North Dakota Decide It is a Failure.

Fargo, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual meeting of the North Dakota State Auditors' association, held here this week, did not take kindly to the present primary law.

One of the most important questions considered was:

"How many names does a candidate need on his petition in order to file same with the auditor, in new counties where no election has been held?"

This question was repeated several times, or different phases of the question, and in fact the most of the questions propounded to the association by the auditors were on the new primary law. It seemed to be the almost unanimous opinion of the auditors that the primary election law as it is at present, is not a success. As to the question above, the majority of the auditors were of the opinion that they would require 200 signers, although it was pointed out that in some of the new counties there would not be that many legal voters in some of the counties on the Democratic ticket. The law states that there must be not more than 200 names on the petition, and there was considerable discussion as to whether the auditors should refuse to accept a petition with more than 200 names. Some of the auditors were of the opinion that this law was meant to read not more than 200 required, but the word "required" does not appear in the statutes, and President Lewis stated that this provision was made for the purpose of preventing some candidates from going through the county and getting so many names on his petition that all other candidates would be kept from being able to get enough. The law will only allow a voter to sign one petition.

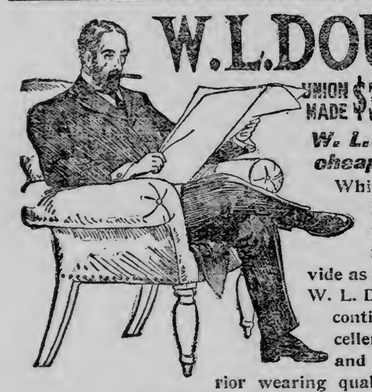
By a rising vote, the majority decided that they would not accept petitions with more than 200 names attached.

The next annual meeting of the association will be held at Minot. Retiring Vice President J. W. Fabrick, who is the auditor of Ward county, gave the association a pressing invitation to the magic city for the next convention and his invitation was accepted.

ALLEGED MURDERER HELD TO AWAIT GRAND JURY.

Lake Benton, Minn., May 15.—Martin Schwab, the suspected murderer of John Lorensen, was brought here Wednesday afternoon from Estherville, Iowa, by Sheriff Curtis. The accused man was arraigned before Justice of the Peace G. I. Larson and was sent to the county jail at Ivanhoe to wait until the convening of the grand jury for the October term of court.

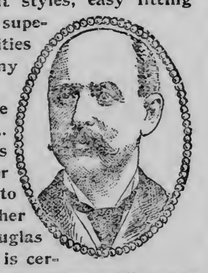
The general impression of the people here is that Schwab is the guilty man.



W. L. DOUGLAS
UNION MADE $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN

W. L. Douglas never cheapens his shoes.

While the high price of leather will make it impractical for other manufacturers to provide as good shoes as formerly, W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes will continue to afford those excellent styles, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities that have resulted in the largest sale of any $3.50 shoe in the world.



This will make it especially desirable for those who have never tried W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes to wear them this season, and thus prove that they are better than any other $3.50 shoes and equal to footwear ordinarily sold at much higher prices. While such action by W. L. Douglas must of necessity impair profits, yet he is certain that the increased business which it assures will prove the wisdom of such action.

FIGHT OVER HIS ESTATE

Fergus Falls Man Delayed Too Long in Making Will.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 15.—A vigorous contest is in progress in the probate court here for the administration of the estate of the late Peter Prinzl, who died suddenly in the railway station at Wadena a few weeks ago while returning from a trip to Hunters' Hot Springs, Montana. Mr. Prinzl owned some of the most valuable business property in this city and had been living alone for some years, his wife having died, leaving no children. He had spoken at different times of making a will, and a short time before leaving for the hot springs, consulted an attorney, and asked if a will could not be drawn that would be legal, without witnesses. The reply was that it would have to be witnessed, and in view of this fact, he decided to wait a while longer, as he did not wish anyone to know how he proposed to dispose of his property. It was currently reported that he planned to leave the greater part of it to Charles Kissinger, a prominent young business man of this city, and his closest personal friend. His sudden death which was due to heart failure, gave him no opportunity to dispose of his property as he wished, and a sister, residing in Austria, is understood to be his only heir.

Singularly enough, this sister was instrumental in having him disinherited at the time of the death of his father, and he always spoke of her with the deepest bitterness. His father was a man of some means, but Mr. Prinzl obtained little or nothing from his estate, and made his money in the general store business here. His sister was probably the last person in the world to whom he would have cared to leave his property, but he had no idea that he was seriously ill, and neglected making the will until death overtook him.

Mr. Kissinger has applied for letters of administration and has the indorsement of the Austrian consul, who, in a general way, represents Austrian affairs in America. O. H. Lee, who occupies Mr. Prinzl's business block, was entrusted with his keys at the time of his departure and was appointed special administrator of the estate immediately after his death and is now a candidate for the general administration. As the deceased had no relatives in America, the administration necessarily passes to some friend, and both applicants have secured legal talent and are urging their claims before the probate court. The estate is worth about $25,000.

ASHLAND COUNTY FAIR.

Plans for Holding One During Tri-State Racing.

Ashland, Wis., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although Ashland county did not have a fair last year there will be one this year during the races to be pulled off by the Tri-State Fair & Racing association. At a meeting just held of fair officials George W. Dopp was elected president; W. A. French, secretary; Carl Rudquist, treasurer, and J. Zoesch of the village of Butternut, M. J. Hawley of Odanah, Tobey of Mellen, J. E. Bissell of La Pointe, O. L. Lampson of Sanborn, H. L. Smart of Agenda and E. B. Gordon were elected vice presidents. The newly elected directors are F. S. Dhooge, C. H. Clarke, J. J. McGeehan, J. B. Mathews and William Kellogg. Dr. Brossard was elected superintendent of speed, George Wilkinson, superintendent of grounds and buildings and George Kuntz, superintendent of agriculture. A committee composed of G. W. Dopp, J. J. McGeehan, Dr. Andrus and James Good was appointed to wait on the county board next Wednesday, and ask for the annual appropriation.

THEY TILTED THE LID.

Some Brainerd Saloonkeepers Fined $20 Each and Costs.

Brainerd, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fines of $20 and costs were imposed yesterday in the municipal court upon Thomas H. Bears, George Ridley, Adam Armstrong, Iver Holden, George Hoyt and H. M. Johnson, saloonkeepers, found guilty of violating the Sunday closing law. Several cases against other saloonkeepers are pending and more arrests are expected.

OPEN SHOP POLICY AT ESCANABA ORE DOCKS.

Escanaba, Mich., May 15.—The first step in the general movement to declare for an open shop policy on all ore docks at Escanaba, where the dock officials have refused to rent with the unions and will hire men for the season's work individually. At the conference between dock officials and the men who struck before beginning work, it was announced that last season's scale of wages will be paid, but the union will not be recognized.

HELD TO GRAND JURY.

Men Alleged to Have Robbed Manvel Store, Bound Over.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas Payne and Joe Miller, the men charged with robbing the store of Colosky at Manvel were arraigned before Judge McLaughlin in this city yesterday and held to answer to the charge on $1,000 bonds which they failed to furnish. The men were returned to the Grand Forks county jail where they will remain for trial.

George Simmons, the other alleged burglar, who was caught at Oslo, is still being held there, he refusing to come across the river into North Dakota with Deputy Sheriff Johnson who went after him. State's Attorney Wineman has forwarded the necessary papers for his requisition to Governor Burke and as soon as returned the man will be brought here.

LESS VALUATION.

Calumet, Mich., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of review for the township of Calumet, composed of Supervisor James MacNaughton, W. H. Faucett and Edward Ulseth, has started its work of looking up new improvements in the building line in Calumet township and the equalizing of assessments so as to have the work completed for the clerk of the board of assessors by the first Tuesday in June.

The assessed valuation of Calumet township last year amounted to $57,328,937. It is expected the valuation will be considerably less this year, due to the depreciation in mining properties and other causes.

A conservative estimate places the depreciation in mining stocks and values in Houghton county at $50,000,000 less this year than last. This will naturally reflect itself in Calumet township where several large copper mines are in operation.

NORTH DAKOTA A. O. U. W.

Some Changes Result From Meeting of Executive Board.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state executive board of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, in session here this week made a few changes of importance with reference to the state organization. The deputy service of the order of having four men working through the state in the interests of the lodge, was decided to be continued. An investment was ordered, the board deciding to purchase Lisbon city bonds of $12,500 as an investment. The continuation of the $4 fee applicable to the lodges about the state for admission to the order, was continued. One of the new features discussed by the board which met with favorable action, was the adoption of limited payment certificates, to become paid in ten, fifteen and twenty years like the old line insurance. This latter step is considered quite important and means a lot to the order. The Ancient Order of United Workmen is in excellent financial condition. There are 6,000 in membership of the order in this state and about $10,000,000 insurance in force. The membership is growing rapidly and the order is one of the banner organizations of the state. The reserved accumulation is $250,000, which is invested in bonds and other securities bringing a good rate of interest.

CAUGHT IN CALIFORNIA.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. T. Mulhall, wanted in Minneapolis in connection with the Nicollet Creamery company fraud, which attracted wide attention last fall, was arrested in Los Angeles, Cal., Wednesday night, and is being held for the local authorities. Mulhall, in company with two other men, whom he used, it is said, as "tools," started into the egg, butter and poultry business under the name of the Nicollet Creamery company shortly before Thanksgiving of last year. He bought goods of farmers to whom he quoted higher prices than other paid, which resulted in the company receiving large consignments. This game he is alleged to have worked for some time without paying the farmers, and finally left the city in company with his two partners with all the proceeds of the sales.

United States Marshal W. H. Grimshaw, who made every effort to capture Mulhall last winter, claims no knowledge of who ordered the arrest in Los Angeles. According to dispatches from Los Angeles, Mulhall was arrested on information by wire from the Minneapolis police. Chief of Police F. T. Corrision denies that Mulhall is wanted by the local police.

CATCH SUSPECT.

Grafton, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a ticket for Winnipeg in his pocket, John Benner, an alleged holdup man, was taken from a Northern Pacific northbound train here Wednesday by a deputy sheriff from Welch county, and lodged in jail on a charge of holding up and nearly killing a man. Benner had been in East Grand Forks and was warned that the police were looking for him. A man named Nye was secured to drive him to Mekinock.

Shortly before the Northern Pacific train arrived in Grafton, Benner and Nye dashed toward the depot with horses covered with foam. Benner hurried to the train and made it, but the actions of the men excited the suspicions of Mekinock residents and Marshal Martin Lieber arrested Nye, believing him to be a safe blower. Benner was taken off the train at Grafton. Nye was later released.

KING VERY SORRY.

Slayer of Ed Tierbach is Consumed With Remorse.

Stanley, Wis., May 15.—Before leaving for Medford in charge of the sheriff of Taylor county, James King, the murderer of young Ed Tierbach, made the statement that he was very sorry for the deed, but that he fired in what he supposed at the time was in self defense, as he say Tierbach reach for his revolver, and that there had not been the most cordial feeling between the two for some time.

King is considered a peaceable man when not intoxicated, but young Matthewson, who witnessed the shooting, says Tierbach had no gun, and made no movement which could indicate to King he had one.

King will be unable to establish a self defense.

THE HOUSE BEAUTIFUL

Hotel St. Regis, New York, as Homelike as It is Beautiful.

ATTRACTIVE IN THE HIGHEST DEGREE

New York hotels are the wonder and admiration of the world. In no other city has hotel construction and management been carried to so high a degree of perfection. As a result no other city has such a large hotel population, the number of people who are patrons of hotels being estimated at two hundred thousand daily.

The leader among these great hotels and the one by which all others are judged is the St. Regis at Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street. It is indeed "the house beautiful" and it is as homelike and comfortable as it is beautiful. It is a common remark of those who have been so fortunate as to live there, even for a brief length of time, that the St. Regis does not seem like a public house but rather like a refined individual home of the highest type, wherein a host is putting forth the utmost effort to please his friends and make them enjoy their stay.

Everything is here provided which can in any way contribute to one's enjoyment and yet the cost of living at the St. Regis is no higher than at first class hotels generally. The restaurant charges are at standard rates, while a large, well furnished, outside room may be had for $4 a day, or the same with bath in connection for $5 ($6 for two people), or a parlor, bedroom and bath for $12.

The ever increasing popularity of the St. Regis, both for transient and permanent guests, is proof that the management's efforts to please particular people are meeting with well merited recognition.

BRAINERD MAKING MONEY.

Crow Wing County Capital to Entertain State Eagles' Meet.

Brainerd, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The committee in charge of the arrangements for the convention here of the F. O. E., which will be held from June 16 to 19, inclusive, is making preparations for a great time. The band will meet the delegates at all the trains and will escort them to the headquarters, which will be in the Commercial club rooms, where carriages will be at the disposal of the delegates and their ladies. There will even be prizes for the participation in the parade, the first one of $30 to be paid to the aerie having the largest representation and $20 to the one having the second largest. There will be a class initiation, a grand parade and ball and a banquet and social session.

BRIDGE AT ISANTI.

County Commissioners Look With Favor Upon Proposition.

Isanti, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—N. J. Enquist, Peter Peterson, George Baker, Ernest Carlson and Charles Ekstrom went to Cambridge Wednesday and appeared before the county board in regard to the Isanti bridge over the Rum river. The commissioners agreed to build a new steel bidge providing the village will pay $1,500 of the cost, estimated at about $5,000, the village to also receive credit on the $1,500 for all that can be saved from the old bridge. Commissioner Walker of Spencer Brook gave Isanti every possible assistance in securing favorable action by the board.

NEW YORK GETS POINTERS ON CALUMET STREET PAVING.

Calumet, Mich., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. Dewey of New York, an expert on pavements, was in Calumet Tuesday for the purpose of inspecting granitoid pavements here, with a view to recommending the same to a private firm in New York, which, is contemplating using this material in and around its business premises and large yards. It is also probable that he may recommend the material to the municipal authorities of some of the suburbs of the big city.

Mr. Dewey stated he was very well satisfied with the material, believing it has lasting qualities.

PAINS IN BACK

It's Your Kidneys. Warner's Safe Cure Absoluteiy and Permanently Cures All Diseases of the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder, Blood, Urinary Organs, Rheumatism and Diabetes.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

is the only positive remedy for all forms of kidney disease. There is health in every bottle.

We recommend to the readers of The Duluth Evening Herald the frank, straightforward letter from Dr. W. H. May, Philadelphia, Pa., whose experience is worth reading.

His letter carries conviction to the most sceptical mind of the wonderful curative properties of Warner's Safe Cure, for all kidney and bladder diseases.

This is his letter: "The sample bottle you sent me had an immediate good effect, so I purchased some of the large bottles, and am now taking it and will continue to take it until I am perfectly cured. I used to urinate about 8 times a day, particularly at night. Now I urinate normally (no pain), and on testing my urine found it to be perfectly normal. I therefore highly recommend it in all cases of urinary troubles, and will allow you to use my name publicly, if you desire to do so. Dr. W. H. May, 105 N. 19th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

This was quick action, but not quicker than it should be. If the kidneys are unable to do their work properly, the liver becomes affected, then the bladder, the blood and the stomach. The blood is thinned, the urine is muddy, contains brick-dust sediment after standing 24 hours; the liver is torpid and the pains in the back severe.

TEST YOUR KIDNEYS.

Put some morning urine in a glass or bottle, let it stand 24 hours. If there is a reddish sediment in the bottom of the glass, or if the urine is cloudy or milky or if you see particles or germs floating about in it, your kidneys are diseased and you should get a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure at once.

ANALYSIS FREE.

If after making this test you have any doubt as to the development of the disease in your system, send a sample of your urine, putting your name and address on the package, to our Medical Department, and our doctors will analyze it and send you a report, with advice, and medical booklet free.

In kidney disease the bowels are often constipated and the liver torpid. Warner's Safe Pills quickly relieve this condition, and no ill after effect is experienced.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE is put up in two sizes and is sold by all druggists, or direct, at 50 CENTS and $1.00 A BOTTLE. Refuse substitutes containing harmful drugs which injure the system.

TRIAL BOTTLE FREE! To convince every sufferer from disease of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood that WARNER'S SAFE CURE will cure them, a trial bottle will be sent FREE OF CHARGE, postpaid, to any one who will write WARNER'S SAFE CURE CO., Rochester, N. Y., and mention having seen this liberal offer in the Duluth Evening Herald. The genuineness of this offer is fully guaranteed by the publisher.

WHITE SOX ARE BLANKED

Maroons Bunch Hits Off Krick With Duluth Errors.

Winnipeg, Man., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The good south wing of little Mr. Glencke of Milwaukee, Wis., was too much for Bill Morrow's husky White Sox in the opening game of the season and the Duluthians were blanked with a score of 5 to 0. Glencke had the game safe at every stage, and at the end the score book showed but two hits for the visitors from across the border.

Josie Krick didn't do badly, but Glencke was too big a stumbling block for him to get over. He held the Maroons to five hits, but the Sox chucked in a similar number of errors and a couple of passes helped the Maroons around the bases. Up to the eighth the game held an element of uncertainty, but in that inning the Maroons bunched hits with errors and scored three men.

The opening of the league season here was an auspicious one. About 5,000 fans turned out to cheer the men who are to go after another pennant for Winnipeg, and they cheered lustily when the 1907 banner was raised to the top of the flagpole. The Winnipeg team played good ball all the way, and the fans were delighted with the showing.

GANS BEATS THE BOER

Referee Saves Unholz From Knockout by Interfering in Eleventh.

San Francisco, May 15.—Joe Gans, the lightweight champion, added another victime to his long string last night by defeating Rudolph Unholz, the rugged Boer from South Africa, in the eleventh round. The fight was Gans' all the way through. He systematically beat down Unholz and the referee interfered in the eleventh round as Unholz was then practically knocked out.

Although Gans held the fight safe at all stages, he had no easy time in solving the awkward defense of Unholz and in overcoming his natural stamina.

The first knock down occurred in the fourth round, Gans whipping in a terrific left uppercut to the point of the chin. Unholz got up promptly and came back full of fight, and although willing at all times to mix it and never afraid of the clever Gans his wild efforts were mostly unavailing.

In the seventh round Gans knocked Unholz down with a right uppercut to the chin, and one of the latter's seconds, losing his head, tossed a towel into the ring and quickly crawled through the ropes. Unholz got up promptly and made a wicked attempt to strike his second, who quickly crawled back outside the ropes and the fight went on.

In the tenth round Gans sent the Boer to the floor again and he got up dazed and unsteady. The unequal combat was prolonged into the eleventh round when with short arm jolts, Gans sent the Boer down with wicked uppercuts to the chin. Unholz got up completely blinded and Gans, seeing the condition of Unholz, humanely stood aside and Referee Welch stepped in and gave the decision to the champion.

The men weighed in stripped at the ringside shortly before commencing hostilities, the scales showing a trifle less than 133 according to the articles of agreement. It was noticed that Gans looked a bit drawn after he had stripped, while the Boer, who has trained hard with a view of wresting the laurels from the champion, fairly scintilated with the glow of health.

Betting on the general result was light, with the odds favoring Gans, at 10 to 8's.

Jack Welch refereed the main event which was preceded by two six round bouts, the first between Tommy Herman and W. O. Smith, and the second between Charlie Lucca of Chicago, and Billy Purtell of this city.

S.S.S. PURIFIES THE BLOOD

Bad blood is responsible for most of the ailments of mankind. When from any cause this vital fluid becomes infected with impurities, humors or poisons, disease in some form is sure to follow. Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Boils, Pimples, etc., while they show on the skin, have an underlying cause which is far deeper—an impure, humor-infected blood supply, and until this is corrected, and the blood purified, the distressing itching and burning symptoms will remain. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Blood Poison and all other blood disorders, are the result of a vitiated, polluted circulation, and will continue to grow worse unless the poison is removed from the blood. In all blood and skin diseases S. S. S. has proved itself a perfect remedy. It goes down into the circulation and removes all waste matter, humors or poisons, and makes the blood pure and health-sustaining. Nothing reaches inherited taints and old chronic troubles like S. S. S.; it cures because it purifies the blood and restores lost properties to the impoverished circulation. Not only is S. S. S. a blood purifier of the highest order, but a tonic and appetizer without an equal. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

THREE HITS FOR FARGO

Nelson Strong and Clark Easy With Men on Sacks.

Brandon, Man., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Profesisonal baseball was introduced to 2,500 Brandon fans yesterday, when Artie O'Dea's Brandon team took the first game of the season from McNeil's Fargo Browns by the one-sided score of 6 to 1.

Nelson was the principal cause for the Brandon victory. The big South Dakota boy was in fine form and after the first inning, when a couple of passes and a three-bagger by Sheehan scored one run, the Fargoans never had a chance. He settled down completely and Conyngham was the only man who could solve his delivery. He rapped out two singles, but they weren't placed so as to do any damage. A slip by Leighty in the first inning was the only error charged to the home team.

THE "DUKE OF BRANDON."

Clark was hit pretty freely and his support was wretched in spots. In the second, third and fifth the Infants bunched hits with Fargo misplays for all of their scores and after the fifth, the Brown twirler settled and wasn't to be touched.

Louie Linvingston at second base pulled off some great fielding stunts and a double play by him and O'Dea was the feature of the game.

The opening contest was preceded by a parade, in which the mayor and other city officials participated. Mayor Clement made a short speech at the park and pitched the first ball.

The detailed score follows:

CANFIELD WINS AGAIN.

Nolan is Far in the Rear in Handicap Pool Match.

In the fourth game of the handicap pool match at the Brown billiard hall, Canfield again defeated Nolan by a score of 100 to 59, making a total of 400 for Canfield to 245 for Nolan. Last night's game was slow for the first forty balls, but from that on, both players picked up. Canfield ran nineteen in the eleventh and Nolan ran fifteen. Canfield then ran seven and twenty-four and finished the game in the eighteenth, with a run of five. Canfield's high runs were twenty-four, nineteen and fourteen. Nolan's were fifteen, twelve and seven. The match will continue tonight.

Kelleys and Fitwells to Play at Virginia and Hibbing.

Both Clubs Have High Hopes of Scoring Victories.

Virginia and Hibbing fans are to get a look at the best semi-professional outfits Duluth can send to the outskirts of the baseball bushes. The Kelleys will perform at Virginia Saturday and Sunday and the Fitwells are to be at Hibbing for one performance only, Sunday May 17.

Managers Ziegler and Jacobs, respectively, are as full of confidence as turkeys with dressing at a Thanksgiving dinner. "I've got the best team Duluth ever saw," loudly shouts Ziegler and Jacobs, with a sardonic smile of supreme contempt retorts "Nix." They'll settle that question in about a month, but in the meantime, both teams are the best ever were or ever will be.

Max Cook, the high school boy, who hung one on Judge Brady's Colts in the first game of the season, will try to do likewise with Carey's high salaried men at Virginia tomorrow. He has mounted high among the youngsters in and around Duluth this season and the Kelleys have confidence in him. Larson will pitch Sunday and Brownlee will be in reserve at both games to jump in and save the day, should either of the other men go wrong.

Tommy Robinson will do the catching in both games. Tommy says he's in fine condition, his wing is great and it's the ring of the bullseye for him every shot. When it comes to getting around the bases—well, he can roll.

Virginia hasn't had much chance to practice this week on account of the weather, so that the team will not be much better off than it was when it met the White Sox. At that, it was dangerous. The men are all old heads at the game. Currie and Grogan are both good pitchers and Wix Tredway is liable to break loose anytime and pitch good ball. O'Hayer, Rovie, Walters, Freddie Olmstead, Fred Anthony and Jimmy Ryan have all cut their eyeteeth and the Virginia fans ought to see a couple of good bouts.

The Fitwells will make their debut in a regular game Sunday. Last Sunday's exhibition at Athletic park didn't assume the aspect of a contest at any time. The Fitwells just walked up to the plate, slammed the ball and tore around the bases. They showed great slugging powers and hope to beat Brady's men just by hitting the ball hard and often.

The victories over Brandon have set Hibbing crazy and, should the Fitwells win, the blow will kill a thousand fans. The Duluth boys will take chances and win, they say. They think Cummings can hold the Hibbing men in check, while they will cheerfully pound anything the range crowd can send to the center of the diamond.

The 1908 season of the Northern league is on and the Sox did not get away in front. The Maroons showed that they are as dangerous as Eddie Herr's pennant winner of 1907 and Glencke made one big splurge to start the season off.

In the face of such pitching as Glencke threw out yesterday, no team could be expected to win. Of course, the Sox may have been weak in the hitting department, but when only twenty-one men face a pitcher in seven innings, that man is working.

Josie Krick's pitching would win an ordinary game. His support wasn't the best in the world, but it was only the opener. The boys were playing their first regular game, on strange grounds before a roaring, unfriendly crowd, and the blanking doesn't reflect any discredit on them. Here's hoping for better things in the future.

At Brandon, Artie O'Dea's sluggers showed that the beating they received at Hibbing wasn't a true indication of their form. Young Nelson pitched up to the standard reports have set for him and McNeil's men were just as weak as everybody expected they would be.

The results of the first games, while not indicating the strength of the teams beyond the shadow of a doubt, show that both Canadian nines are to be regarded with wholesome fear. They are long on pitchers and hitters and unless the Americans strike a pretty speedy stride, they are due to be left at the post.

Rudy Unholz's beating by Joe Gans last night was just what was expected. The Boer was jumping up the ladder too fast and was due to have a slip and tumble to the bottom again. His gameness against the old master was refreshing in this day of wide yellow streaks, and his fighting ability in his own class was demonstrated. But he is not in Gans' class. There is only one man in the country able to give the negro a fight now and he is McFarland. Age hasn't spoiled the old fellow's science or wallop, and if Packey goes against him within the next year, he will very likely fare but little better than did the South African.

The fans always like to see a home boy go to the front in the baseball world, and this year, they are watching the ascent of two Duluthians with interest. Newt Randall is cracking the boards off the fence in the American association, and Si Bennett is burning up the Northwestern circuit. The papers out through the West are touting Bennett as the fastest fielder ever seen in the league, covering all kinds of ground and getting everything.

The first set of batting averages just issued shows Si standing second in the list with a percentage of .378. J. Bennett of Seattle, tops him with .420, but the Butte player's hitting has been consistent and he looks dangerous all the time.

Toot Thompson has finally found a berth. Duluth after some investigations, didn't want him and O'Dea wanted Summers more than he did the redskin. So Toot was turned over to Fargo and there he will stay for a while, at least. To be owned by three clubs of the league before the season started is a distinction, and Toot is lucky if he doesn't do some more shifting before the season goes very far.

FITWELLS ARE THE CHAMPIONS

Clothing Men Win Two Straight From the Bankers.

The Fitwells of the Duluth City Bowling league won the league honors and the championship of the Head of the Lakes last night by winning two straight games from the First National bank team. The match was to have been an extra one of three games to decide the championship, which was left in a tie at the end of the league season last Friday night.

The annual city tournament will begin next Monday night and will run about a week. There will be three events, five men teams, two men teams and individuals. The tournament will run on a handicap basis and all those having no league record will receive no handicap. Bowlers in Duluth and Superior may enter.

The scores of last night's games follow:

First Game Sunday.

Eveleth, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eveleth semi-professional team will have a practice game Sunday with either McKinley or Mt. Iron. A battery has been secured in Jacobson and Speer, recently of the Duluth White Sox, and they will be on hand Sunday. Butch Kinnelley will manage the team and he expects to secure a good squad. Uniforms have been ordered and the grounds are being put in shape.

Meet is Postponed.

The high school interclass track meet, which was to have been held tomorrow, has been postponed until next Friday afternoon. The rain of the past week has spoiled the track and it will not be in shape tomorrow. The meet with Blaine of Superior will take place a week from tomorrow at the driving park.

HOUSE PASSES VREELAND BILL

Fifteen Republicans Vote With Democrats Against the Measure.

Washington, May 15.—The Vreeland bill, agreed upon by the Republican caucus, was yesterday put through the house under a special rule by a vote of 184 to 145. Fifteen so-called insurgents of the majority party voted with the Democrats, who went on record solidly against the measure.

The closing moments of the debate were replete with excitement and Republican enthusiasm, caused by the refusal of the great majority of the Democrats to go on record for the Williams bill, which had been offered by Mr. Kahn of California as a substitute for the Vreeland bill, in accordance with a well-laid plan of the majority leaders to ascertain where the Democrats stood on the proposition, which, it was claimed by several, was supported by Mr. Bryan. Ninety-three Democrats voted "present," which aroused the Republicans to a high state of hilarity at the expense of the minority. Only a handful of Democrats had the temerity to vote "aye" or "no." The action of Mr. Kahn was due to the refusal of Mr. Williams to present his bill, as a substitute, which, under the rule, he was specifically authorized to do.

At 6:30 the house recessed until today at 11:30 o'clock.

As soon as the bill reaches the senate, Mr. Aldrich will call a meeting of the committee on finance to consider it. It is expected the committee will vote unanimously to amend the house measure by striking out all after the enacting clause and inserting the provisions of the bill which was passed by the senate. It is not doubted that the senate will approve the action of the committee. The effect of this course would be to send both the Vreeland and Aldrich bills to conference.

GREAT WAS ENTHUSIASM FOR GOVERNOR JOHNSON AT ST. PAUL CONVENTION

Delegates Refuse to Name Bryan as State's Second Choice.

Protest Against the Centralization of Power at Washington.

SENATOR S. D. WORKS,
Chairman of the Convention.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The most enthusiastic state convention ever held in Minnesota was that of yesterday, which indorsed Governor John A. Johnson as a presidential candidate and refused, by a decisive vote, to declare in favor of William J. Bryan as second choice. It was a Johnson convention from first to last. No Democratic state convention in Minnesota was ever better attended, and it was notable for the high class of delegates who were present. Farmers, business and professional men were on hand from every section of the state, and their enthusiasm for Johnson for president was frequently manifested during the convention's proceedings.

The followers of Mr. Bryan did not carry out the threat which they had so often made during the last ten days—that they would bolt and hold a rump convention if their contests were defeated before the committee on credentials, or if they were not able to secure a partial indorsement of their leader. They made a sturdy fight for their man, and when they had been overwhelmingly defeated, remained quietly in their seats and made no motion to leave.

The Johnson men were generous in their victory and declared in their platform that, while they entertained "an affection for, and confidence in, the integrity and ability of William J. Bryan," they believed that Johnson was a man better calculated to bring success to the Democratic party, and was first entitled to the support of Minnesota.

(From Thursday's Extra.)

The committee on credentials was not ready to report when the convention met for the afternoon session. Only five contests had been taken up, those of Cottonwood, Hennepin, Fillmore, Itasca and Waseca. The Cottonwood delegation was divided half and half between the Johnson and Bryan factions. Itasca was given to Bryan, and the others to Johnson. The promised contest in Ramsey county (St. Paul) was not brought before the committee.

The report of the credentials committee, in conformity with the foregoing, was read to the convention and adopted without a negative vote being made.

The committee on organization recommended that the temporary officers of the convention be made permanent, and this was done unanimously.

The Platform.

The report of the resolutions committee was read by T. D. O'Brien of St. Paul, chair of that body. Before commencing to read the platform he announced that all the members of the committee' except Knok of Jackson county and Whipple of Winona, had signed the report. The platform was as follows:

We affirm our allegiance to the principles of the party of Jefferson and Jackson and pledge our entire and faithful support to the candidate for the presidency whom the National Democratic party in its wisdom shall select at the convention to be held in Denver next July.

We commend and indorse the honest, upright and efficient administration of public affairs of this state during the past four years. With the co-operation of the legislature and other public officers, our wise and able executive has secured a system of taxation of high merit, the public resources have been conserved, the laws have been enforced and public duties discharged with efficiency and thoroughness.

The Tariff.

We declare that the high protective tariff now maintained by the Republican party has made possible unlawful trusts and combinations, has destroyed the equilibrium which should exist between the producing classes and is still the chief rampart behind which predatory wealth is entrenched.

We hold that while this condition remains unchanged, the best efforts of prosecuting officers, courts and juries will be ineffectual to afford permanent relief from trust domination.

We, therefore, insist that the tariff be at once revised to meet these conditions, and that the revision be by the friends of the people rather than by the friends of the tariff.

Supervision of Combines.

The corporate form of organization has been freely used as a cloak to hide overcapitalization, reckless speculation and illegal business methods. Strict supervision and control of the great industrial enterprises and public service corporations is necessary for the continued welfare of the American people. This fact should be accepted fully and in good faith by those in control of such industries, and in this way industrial peace can be most quickly secured, but until the right of the state and federal governments within their respective domains to so supervise is fully established we declare it to be the duty of all public officers to take the most effective means consistent with our system of government to bring all to a realization of the fact that the great fundamental objects of the American government are to maintain the dignity of labor; to preserve law and order; to keep men from injuring one another, and to afford equal opportunities to all.

We recognize that the commercial and transportation business of this country cannot be transacted except through the instrumentality of large aggregations of capital, but that fact makes it more than ever necessary that the rights of the individual citizen should be jealously guarded.

Protection of Labor.

It is not only their right to do so, but it is necessary that those who labor with their hands should organize for their own protection. The demand of labor should be granted for reasonable hours of work, for the compulsory adoption of safety appliances in connection with dangerous employments and for a modification of the rules of the common law fixing the liability of the master for injuries to the servant, so that in the future our jurisprudence will guarantee to labor that the industry will bear the risk.

We declare further that, in common with all other citizens, those charged with any crime in connection with or growing out of so-called labor disturbances, should enjoy the right of a speedy and impartial trial by jury.

Centralization of Power.

We believe that the powers ceded to the federal government by the states through the Constitution in its present form are ample. Notwithstanding the closer relations between the people which improved transportation facilities have established, a too great centralization of power is as dangerous now as when the Constitution was framed. The powers reserved to the states are necessary to enable each to manage its domestic and internal affairs; to preserve the American principle of home rule; to prevent the exercise of autocratic power by federal officers and to maintain between the states a generous rivalry as to which can best present a system of wise laws and efficient administration.

The dangers to be apprehended from centralization of power are already apparent, for under autocratic leaderships congress has become inactive and no longer responds to the public will, while a bureaucratic form of government is being rapidly extended to a point which threatens the extinction of state autonomy.

Senators by Direct Vote.

We favor the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people.

We favor progressive and practicable measures for the taxation of incomes, the establishment of postal savings banks and safeguarding of bank deposits along the lines suggested by William J. Bryan.

While maintaining an affection for and confidence in the integrity and ability of Hon. William Jennings Bryan, we now propose as the party's choice one who equally worthy gives a greater promise of a successful candidacy and is first entitled to our support.

Johnson for President.

In Governor John A. Johnson, Minnesota presents to the nation a Democratic candidate for president, of ability, integrity and honor, a constructive statesman, who holds no brief from any class, one who from early youth has been a wage earner, whose private life has been of such purity, vigor and earnestness as to win him the love, respect and confidence of all who know him. In public life he has by his virtue won the admiration of the people of his state and nation, regardless of condition in life or political faith.

We, therefore, instruct our delegates to the national Democratic convention to vote as a unit for, and continue to so vote as long as necessary to secure the nomination of Hon. John A. Johnson as the candidate for president.

The words, "along the lines suggested by William J. Bryan," in the postal savings bank plank, were added by the committee to the original draft of the platform, and the insertion of the Nebraskan's name was received with an outburst of applause. When the name of Johnson was uttered by Mr. O'Brien, a terrific yell broke from the great body of delegates, and men in all parts of the hall leaped to their feet and waived their hats and handkerchiefs in wild enthusiasm.

Minority Report.

A minority report was presented on the Bryan plank by P. J. Knox. He asked that his report be added to the majority report of the committee on resolutions. The minority report was as follows:

"Resolved, That in pledging our adherence to the candidacy of Governor Johnson we do not disparge or overlook the great service to the party, the nation and the world of that great commoner, brilliant orator and fearless reformer, William J. Bryan, and we instruct the delegates from Minnesota to the national convention at Denver that in case the nomination of Governor Johnson becomes impossible to vote for W. J. Bryan without variation or exception until a candidate is nominated."

The motion of Mr. Knox was greeted with loud cheers by the Bryan men, and a chorus of "no, no," from the Johnson men.

C. Vasaley of Little Falls made the first speech on the motion of Mr. Knox and urged the convention to declare in favor of Bryan as "second choice." He asserted that such action would in no manner stultify and declaration in favor of Johnson, and said that the Democracy cannot in any degree afford to abrogate the principles upheld by Mr. Bryan.

In concluding his speech Mr. Vasaley urged the Johnson men to be "fair and just and kind," and vote in favor of adding the minority report to that of the majority. His speeech throughout was more of an appeal than a demand, and his manner more beseeching than insistent.

Before the conclusion of his remarks, the speaker was interrupted by cries of "sit down," "shut up," and once, when he addressed the delegates as "My friends," a restless delegate shouted, "You've lost all your friends."

T. D. O'Brien, chairman of the resolutions committee, replied to Mr. Vasaley in favor of the report as read.

"This isn't a question between Governor Johnson and W. J. Bryan," he declared, "but the Democracy wants to put forward a man who will be the strongest candidate for the president of the United States. No man asks a girl to marry him and tells her that if she won't have him he will ask her sister next day. If Bryan is nominated at Denver, we will give him honest support, but Minnesota is for Johnson, and we should let the country know it."

Mr. O'Brien spoke only a few minutes and was greeted with cheers as he closed.

McKeon Talks.

T. J. McKeon of Duluth and D. J. Knox made short speeches in favor of the minority report, and R. G. Farrington of Wheaton and Martin O'Brien of Crookston urged the report of the majority.

The speakers in favor of naming Mr. Bryan as a second choice declared that such action could not by any possibility injure the chances of Johnston. The orators speaking for the majority report declared that the naming of Bryan was equivalent to giving notice to the Democratic party that the nomination of Johnson is an impossibility.

No Second Choice.

Chairman Works announced that he would hold that the minority report submitted by Mr. Knox was in the nature of an amendment, and a roll call was ordered on the question of its substitution for the majority report.

The convention refused to name Bryan as second choice to Johnson.

The platform, as reported by the majority of the committee, was then adopted.

It Reached the Spot.

Mr. E. Humphrey, who owns a large general store at Omega, Ohio, and is president of the Adams County Telephone company, as well as of the Home Telephone company of Pike county, Ohio, says of Dr. King's New Discovery: "It saved my life once. At least I think it did. It seemed to reach the spot—the very seat of my cough,—when everything else failed." Dr. King's New Discovery not only reaches the cough spot; it heals the sore spots and the weak spots in throat, lungs and chest. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c and $1.00. TWO MEN CLAIM THE SAME WOMAN

Melbourne, May 15.—An extraordinary marriage tangle has occurred at Geelong, the upshot being the return of a prodigal husband, believed to be dead and the dispossession of his unhappy successor in his wife's affections. In 1892 a Mr. and Mrs. Marigold married, and for the next two years lived together most happily. Then a quarrel occurred and the husband left home. Years passed, but no trace of him could be found. Then Mrs. Marigold heard from the police, who had a warrant from her for her husband's arrest for desertion, that they had learned that he was dead. Feeling that she was free, she married a Mr. Sawyer, and in due time two children were born to them.

Mr. Marigold, on leaving Geelong over fourteen years ago, went abroad. In time he came to repent what he had done, but was too ashamed to go back. Finally resolved to claim his wife again, he returned to Geelong last week, only to find that his wife was married again, had a family, and was a temporary inmate of the Geelong hospital for the inentally deranged.

He called at this institution on Thursday last. His wife recognized him instantly, and from that moment her condition has improved amazingly. She forgives all, and her husband assures her that he will not part from her again, but will take her and her two children to a home of his own and treat the past as if it had never been.

Mr. Sawyer, however, is terribly distressed at the denouement. He protests that Mr. Marigold has wilfully forfeited all claim to his wife, and swears that he will move all the powers of the law to assert his rights as the father of Mrs. Marigold's two children.

AMERICANS GET CHOICE BOXES AT COVENT GARDEN.

London, May 15.—Smart Americans will again occupy about one-third of the choice boxes at Covent Garden opera house this season. Instead of putting the boxes up at auction, the management's policy is to allow all subscribers of the previous year the refusal of their places. So that in the majority of cases well known Americans will be found in the same old positions. There are some exceptions, however. The American ambassador has altered his address from boxes 52 to 53 for Mondays and Fridays, has taken 36 on the pit tier and Mrs. Newhouse Lilly, duchess of Marlborough and Mrs. Almeric Paget are among other Americans who have also secured boxes. Mrs. Adair, Mrs. Burns and Mrs. Harry Higgins all retain their old places.

I hear that one immensely rich American, who, socially speaking, is never apt to "arrive," recently offered a fabulous sum for one of the royal boxes, but was curtly told that these were exclusively reserved for their original occupants.

An Open Letter to Dyspepties.

"Do any of your readers suffer from dyspepsia or acute indigestion? No doubt many of them do, and I wish this space to tell of a very effective home-made medicine. I was a sufferer for nearly five years and obtained immediate and lasting benefits which I consider worth more than a thousand times the cost of these simple but powerful ingredients. Get at most any drug store one ounce compound essence Cardiol, two ounces essence of Pepsin and two ounces Syrup of Ginger. Mix together thoroughly and take one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal. It is pleasant to the taste and gives such prompt relief. Because I suffered so much and had doctored in vain for so long, I want to make this valuable formula known to all. Some drug stores may not keep all the ingredients, but can easily get them from wholesale firms who supply doctors and druggists. Ask for them and the trouble will repay any one.

"Sincerely,
"MRS. S. A. J."

P. S.—I am told this prescription cured Mr. Rockefeller three years ago.

THE STATE CONVENTION.

The Democratic state convention held in St. Paul yesterday was a splendid tribute to Governor John A. Johnson, and a credit to the state and to the Democratic party. Minnesota has now launched a candidate for president, and it has launched him as though it meant it, as it does. Opposition to this indorsement, which was entirely out of place in this state and was properly repudiated by the voters, dissolved into impalpable vapor, and the emphatic and enthusiastic declaration of the convention was made with practical unanimity. Nor did this interfere with a graceful recognition of the services and worth of William J. Bryan.

Not only in its results, but in its make-up and the character of its proceedings, the convention was one of the most pleasant, most harmonious and most creditable ever held in the state. It was remarkable for the high character of its membership, the delegates being worthily representative of the citizenship of Minnesota.

The platform is in keeping with the convention and its candidate. It is progressive, and it embodies the spirit of an awakened and alert people. After commending Governor Johnson's administration of the affairs of this state, giving due credit to the co-operation of the legislature and other public officers, it plunges aggressively into the discussion of live topics, all of which it treats with a truly democratic and American fearlessness and breadth. Finding that the abuse of the tariff has given birth to oppressive trusts and monopolies, it advocates tariff revision "by the friends of the people rather than by the friends of the tariff;" a very pertinent and timely suggestion. The principle that the rights of the people demand a rigid supervision of corporations, including their capitalization, their methods and their profits, is emphatically affirmed. It is declared that labor has the right to organize for its own protection, and that it is entitled to reasonable hours of work, to fair pay, to safe and wholesome working conditions, and to the assumption of the risks of employment by the employer. The danger of a centralization of power in the federal government at the expense of the states and in violation of the principles upon which this government was founded is clearly pointed out, and the bitter opposition of the Democratic party to such tendencies is sharply reaffirmed. The direct election of United States senators, to make them responsive to the people's wishes; the taxation of incomes, to reduce the dangers of plutocracy; the establishment of postal savings banks, to draw out of hiding money needed to furnish a basis for credit and for the business whose life is credit; and the safeguarding of bank deposits along the lines suggested by Mr. Bryan, to avert the perils and evil results of panic: these excellent ideas are all emphatically approved.

Last but not least, the convention, with a mighty cheer, presented to the nation as its candidate for president Governor John A. Johnson as "a constructive statesman of ability, integrity and honor, who holds no brief from any class, who has from early youth been a wage earner, and whose private life has been of such purity, vigor and earnestness as to win him the love, respect and confidence of all who know him."

ARBITRATING LABOR DISPUTES.

There has probably never been a labor difficulty, either strike or lockout, which has not taught the three sides to it—there are always three sides, the employer, the employes and the public—that labor troubles, like war, are wasteful and expensive to all concerned.

There is interest and value, therefore, in every experiment in the creation and preservation of industrial peace. Arbitration is the dream of all concerned in labor difficulties, and that means everybody.

Canada has been trying, for more than a year now, a new "industrial investigation law," which is described by Consul-General Bradley of Montreal in a report to the state department. First it should be stated, as evidence that the plan has worked out well, that from March 22, 1907, the date of the passage of the act, to Feb. 15, 1908, thirty applications for proceedings under the act have been made, and strikes were either averted or ended in twenty-eight cases. In most of these cases, without the operation of this law, disastrous, wasteful and expensive strikes would have followed.

Under this law, before a strike or lockout can be declared in a dispute between employer and employes in connection with a mine or any industry associated with a public utility, it must be submitted to a board of conciliation and investgation, established under the law, with a view to working out a settlement. This makes it necessary that the parties to the dispute shall get together, getting together means talking it over, and talking it over, with reasonable men, means the possibility of amicable settlement.

The law also requires that employers and employes must give at least thirty days' notice of any intended change affecting conditions of employment with respect to hours or wages, and that pending investigation by the board of conciliation, relations shall remain as before. Neither party is permitted to do anything tending to bring about a lockout or strike, and suitable penalties are provided for violation of this provision.

Another important feature of the act is a provision that it may be made applicable to disputes other than those in industries in which its use is made compulsory, when the parties concerned desire it. Another essential feature is that the award of the board is obligatory and binding.

The board consists of three members, two appointed by the minister of labor upon the recommendation of the respective parties to the dispute, and the third appointed upon the recommendation of the two first appointed. If these fail to agree, the third member is appointed by the minister himself. The board has power to summon and compel the attendance of witnesses, and to do all that is necessary to secure a full investigation.

Justice, it would seem, would be more often attained in this manner than by the resort to strike or lockout both of which are tests of strength and endurance, without any necessary relationship with justice.

AN UNJUST PRACTICE.

New York has taken action against a practice of the police that has prevailed all over the country, and that ought to be stopped everywhere. That is the business of photographing and taking the Bertillon measurements of every person arrested.

The New York legislature passed a law prohibiting this except after conviction of a crime. That is time enough to begin this rogues' gallery business, and the police have absolutely no right to subject every accused person to the humiliation involved in the practice of "mugging" regardless of whether conviction has been had or not.

The Herald has said something about this practice before, and has urged the passage of laws similar to that which New York has adopted. Similar laws should be passed in every other state, including Minnesota. A start having been made in New York, no doubt the prohibition will promptly spread to other states.

The police everywhere have an unpleasant habit of overturning the legal presumption of innocence that attaches to an accused person until he is proven guilty. To them, too often, the presumption is that of guilt. This works out many injustices, because police officers have been known to bolster up their beliefs by tortured and distorted evidence. Believing a suspect to be guilty—and their not unnatural habit is to believe all suspects to be guilty and to seek to fix proof upon them—they too often treat him or her as they would a convicted person.

Thus, whenever a person is arrested charged with an offense, the habit of police departments is to have him photographed and "Bertilloned" immediately. The photograph and the Bertillon record are placed in the police department collection known as the "rogues' gallery," which is open to public inspection.

This is a rank injustice, unless it be postponed until a jury has found the accused person guilty. Many an innocent man has been falsely charged with crime, and one of the finest things in the English and American system of law is the doctrine that every accused person is to be considered innocent until he is proven guilty. The burden of proof is upon the state, and it is not necessary for the accused, as it is in some countries, to assume the burden and prove his innocence. The practice of "mugging" a suspect is a presumption of guilt, and not only tends to prejudice the case of the accused, but if he is acquitted and freed it compels him to live under the shame of having his picture in the rogues' gallery of some police office.

The practice is not invariable, and in many police departments it is not followed at all. In general, however, the practice properly prohibited by the New York legislature is the one followed by the police, and it ought to be stopped everywhere.

A TESTIMONIAL.

There are people who speak slightingly of the work of the federal department of agriculture and the various state departments which seek to make definite the science of getting the utmost results out of the soil without impoverishing it, but it would be hard to find a department of government activity that is doing a more valuable work for society.

This use of government activities for the benefit of the people is in sharp violation of the principles of those who protest that the best government is that which governs least, that each individual should be left to work out his salvation without government interference, and that the government should content itself with collecting and spending taxes, punishing crime—including the crime that results from society's failure to protect its members from the greed of the powerful—and protecting "property." It is paternalistic—even Socialistic—but so is the protective tariff, only that helps a few at the expense of the many, and public experimental work in agriculture helps everybody and costs nobody.

A concrete example of what the federal department of agriculture does is furnished by an incident related in The World Today magazine. An Ohio farmer wrote to the department of agriculture that he had struggled for twenty years on an eighty-acre farm, heavily mortgaged, but had been unable to reduce his debt or to rise above poverty that made the bringing up of his family a humiliation. Clearly, he was in despair, and it seemed to him that the efforts of the best part of a lifetime had been thrown away in a useless struggle to accomplish the impossible. As a last resort, and apparently without much faith, he had appealed to the department, and he asked if there was any hope for him.

The department requested that he make a detailed report of his farm and its soils, and upon this report it based a plan of farming which he was commended to follow to the letter.

The first year's work under this plan netted him a profit of $2,000, and the department believes that within a short time this man's farm can be made to yield $5,000 a year.

This story sounds like a testimonial, and that is exactly what it is. The department of agriculture maintains a staff of experts and scientists for just such purposes. It makes soil surveys, and then finds out what can be grown upon the various soils to the best advantage, and how it can be cultivated with the best results. All that it gave the Ohio farmer was the result of its experiments along these lines, and by availing himself of this knowledge he was able to turn defeat into victory.

In the face of such results it is silly to say that the functions of the department of agriculture are paternalistic. What does that Ohio farmer care about what you call it, in view of what it has done for him?

"On to Denver!"

We needed rain, all right, but not quite so much of it, Mr. Weatherman.

But some people don't need to have brick houses fall upon them to awaken realization.

The facts from La Porte put the fiction of all the Indiana novelists into the darkest shade.

There is no chance for a mistake about it; Minnesota wants Governor Johnson to be nominated for president.

The victory of the "stalwarts" in the North Dakota Republican convention indicates that the McKenzie machine refuses to die.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

It is not so very pleasant to be broken to the ways of the road. To this an auburn haired youth at the Lenox hotel, who is making his first trip as a knight of the grip can testify. He has been the mark for the rest of the bunch for the past week, but he has probably learned some things that will stand him in good stead when he moves on to the next town.

The young man sells postal cards. That is he has them to sell. Last night the telephone bell rang and the youth was called to the telephone. The voice that came over the wire informed the youth that the chief of police was talking, and also informed the youth that he was violating the law by selling postal cards without a license.

The auburn hair took on a more rigid attitude, a startled look came over the face of the young man, as he explained to the man at the other end of the telephone that his calling was perfectly harmless.

"You come down to my office tomorrow morning and see me," concluded the voice as a partin shot.

If there was a traveling man at the Lenox who didn't hear the tale of woe of the youth he hasn't been found yet. Of course they were all on and they told the young man with the limited experience that he probably would be arrested and heavily fined.

No arrest has occured as yet, but the novice is still wearing a nervous look. Every time a telephone bell rings in his presence he starts and looks wildly around for an avenue of escape. He is laboring under a nervous strain that will continue until he leaves Duluth and the fancied possibility of arrest. There is hardly a commercial man on the road who has not gone through precisely the same experience, so the youth can hardly expect sympathy from the U. C. T. members.

W. H. Saunders, at the Lenox hotel, states that the American cowboy is now practically extinct. That once picturesque figure that blazoned the way for Western settlement can be found in only one or two sections of the country. And even in those places he will have undergone many changes from the original, daring, reckless chap that was once ready to pull his gun upon the least provocation. In what is known as the sweet milk country of Montana, they have some of the original cow punchers left. In this country the cattle roam about unhindered by the fence, that more than anything else has driven the cowboy from Western life, and if you should happen to come face to face with some of the boys who round up the cattle in the sweet milk country you would almost be inclined to believe that frontier history had turned back a chapter or two.

"The Western cow puncher was a reckless and fearless fellow," says Mr. Saunders. "He was extremely fond of gaudy colors and decorations. In most instances, though, the pictures and the representations of the cow puncher are decidedly overdrawn.

"Now, for instance, every article worn by the cowboy has some use. The hat they wear, which is on the order of the modern Merry Widow title, is for protection from the sun that beats down with straight and piercing rays, and from the rain that hits the cowboy while on the trail. They invariably wear a silk handkerchief around their necks. These, too, have their uses. In a round up or in a stampede, when a thousand steers are kicking the dust like smoke into your mouth and nostrils, it would be impossible for the cowboy to live were it not that he wound the silk handkerchief around his face and breathed through the fine meshes of the cloth.

"In many pictures of the cowboy, he is represented with his sleeves rolled up. I went to see a well-known play the other night, and was amused to see all the stage cowboys strutting around with their sleeves rolled up to the elbows and their arms well tanned with stage grease.

"Now the only man in a frontier camp that rolls up his sleeves is the cook of the outfit. If a cowboy were to roll up his sleeve while on duty he would be liable to lose part of his arm by having it severed off by his lasso. They all wear wrist guards, which prevent the rope from catching on their arms, and they never, under any circumstances, roll up their sleeves and expose their brawny arms to the sun of heavens."

Mr. Saunders says the genuine cowboy was probably the most whole-hearted and generous person on earth.

But those rough and ready characters, typical of the times in which they have lived, have nearly all passed away. Today in the West there are few of the old guard left. The new order of things has changed the life of the plains. The coming of the fence and the sheep men to the West presaged the extinction of the cowboy.

The Better Part.

Puck: Three old men having met, by chance, it was but natural that they should fall into some comparison of their several achievements.

"In seventy years," said the first, "I have amassed a hundred willions of dollars."

"But I, during an equal span," said the second, "have written 100 novels, each of which sold more than a hundred thousand copies."

A slight smile, as of disdain, curled the lip of the third old man. "During seventy years," said he, "I have digested my food."

The others were too overcome to speak. They could only wring his hand, in silent acknowledgment that the palm was his.

THE WEATHER.

We have plenty of rain, thank you. And then some. After the new northeaster got a good start, with a boisterous wind and lowering clouds, it rained steadily, with frequent downpours, most of the night and this morning. The weather man expects it to remain showery tonight, followed tomorrow by cloudy and warm weather. The wind got up to 44 miles an hour yesterday. Last night's lowest temperature was 35 degs. and yesterday's highest was 41 degs.

A year ago today, after snow in the night, it was cloudy and warmer.

The sun rose this morning at 4:31 and sets tonight at 7:35, making 15 hours and 3 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Rainy weather continued Thursday or last night in most northern districts and in West Gulf states due to barometric depressions central this morning over Minnesota and the Plateau region. The Lake Superior storm is confined to the western portion of the lake and will gradually diminish today and tonight. Moderate temperatures are the rule except that cool weather prevails near Lake Superior and in the Rocky mountains. The barometer is highest over New England states and off the California coast. Indications favor some showers in this locality tonight followed by partly cloudy weather Saturday."

Following were last night's highest temperatures:

TRIFLES LIGHT AS AIR.

Philadelphia Ledger: "How do you know he has a lot of money?"

"He has gotten two automobiles."

"That is merely a sign that he used to have af lot of money."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "I see that a Pittsburg woman claims that her husband has been lazy for thirty-five years. Now she wants a divorce."

"Well, she certainly has given him a fair try-out."

Philadelphia Press: Crabbe—Who don't you cut that out? Tone your talk down a bit.

Crabbe—Instead of calling it you might whisper it occasionally.

Washington Star: "Mr. Rubinjay is a very timid young man."

"Timid. I should say so. He's afraid to begin a letter 'Dear Miss Smith' because it's leap year."

Philadelphia Ledger: "And do you know this man's reputation for veracity?" asked the late lawyer.

"Voracity?" replied the witness. "I should say I did. He used to board with me, and I lost money on him right along."

Chicago Tribune: "Johnny came mighty near choking the other day," said Mrs. Lapsling. "He was eating popcorn and he got a grain of it fast in his windpipe. At least that's where I thought it was, but when the doctor came he said it wasn't his windpipe, at all. The popcorn had lodged in his sarcophagus."

Baltimore American: "I don't believe Miss Vassar understands what she means herself by those long learned words she uses. It is all parrot talk."

"She certainly does talk in Polysyllables."

Washington Star: "How are you getting on with your great reform?"

"I can't say yet," answered the agitator.

"But I heard the law you wanted was sure to be enacted."

"Yes. But that's the A. B. C. of the proposition. We've got to get it enforced."

Johnson as a Leader.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: This wonderful popularity of a Democrat in a Republican state has broken down party lines in Minnesota. The qualities which have made John A. Johnson strong in Minnesota appeal to the whole Northwest and to the nation—character, ability, common sense, and a statesmanlike attitude on public affairs.

Johnson is described as both a radical and as a conservative. He is for reform, for curbing corporation abuses, and for several programs which would be called advanced in the East, but he is never hysterical and never a demagogue. He has been put to the test. When the Western Federation of Miners began to menace towns in his state by stirring up lawlessness and crime, he laid down the law to them with promises of the use of the state militia. Stop work, he said; strike as you will, but not a hand shall you raise against property or any rights of any other man in this commonwealth. They desisted.

What a campaigner he would make! Could there be a more striking appeal to the popular imagination than is afforded by the career of Johnson, which is suggestive of "Old Abe, the rail splitter," "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too," Andy Johnson's rise from the tailor's bench to the presidency, Garfield's advance "from the towpath to the White House," and U. S. Grant's progress from the tannery to the highest honors in the gift of the nation? And mere sentiment is not all. Johnson's hold on his own state is undoubted, and the Democrats, with Johnson for their leader, would start with the prospect of winning at least one Republican state, and with the possibility of sweeping the Northwest.

The Democrats have two strong candidates, Gray and Johnson. All Republicans are hoping that they may nominate William J. Bryan, because the Republicans want to win.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

The premises at 102 First avenue east, occupied by Mrs. Fiske as a lodging house, were entered by burglars last night and money and valuables belonging to lodgers were stolen.

It is rumored that Supt. George H. White of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad has resigned his position with the road. He has large cattle interests in Texas and will probably in the future devote all his time to his ranch.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has given notice that Peter Harvey has been appointed traveling passenger agent in charge of the passenger business of the company at Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis and the territory west thereof.

Rev. G. F. Walters, pastor of the Congregational church at Hancock, and Mrs. Walters are spending two weeks in Duluth.

T. R. Rainey of the firm of Rainey & French, is going East to select the furniture for the Hotel St. Louis, for which the firm has the contract.

The friends of Sam and Gus Lundberg, who have been Duluth citizens so long that they seemed fixtures here, attended a farewell reception last night at Ingalls' hall. There were many present and a pleasant evening was spent. The two brothers leave in a few days for Sweden to remain, leaving one brother in Duluth.

At a meeting of the chamber of commerce this morning, a strong protest was made against the project of removing the charge of rivers and harbors from engineer officers of the regular army to a board of civilians and urging that the present satisfactory method be not tampered with.

Murnane & Spencer of this city are to back Pat Killen in his coming fight with Mike Conkley. They will demand that the fight take place either in Duluth, Milwaukee, Omaha, St. Paul or Minneapolis.

Maj. Ruffee of Gull River, Cass county, is to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for representative from this district.

Charles Strader's little girl had a narrow escape from drowning last evening while playing ball near the corner of Twentieth avenue west and Third street. While in pursuit of the ball she tripped and fell into a hole containing about four feet of water. The little one was fished out by Mrs. Strader and was badly exhausted.

Alonzo Ransom of Niles, Mich., father of Mrs. J. R. Randall, died at that place on May 11.

1904--ECHOES OF HARMONY--1908

Mille Lacs Pioneer: Who dares say that Bob Dunn is dead? Why he's kicking up more vitrolized "harmony" in the Republican party of this state than all the "shirelings," "renegades," "judases" and "ingrates" that smoked at this wake in 1904 can hope to allay for many years to come.

Cannon Falls Beacon: We fear the friends of Messrs. Young and Jacobson are quite unwittingly perhaps, challenging party loyalty in the heat of their zeal for their respective candidates. The two state elections last past demonstrated we think that Republican party loyalty as it concerns the head of the ticket, is a most intangible and illusory thing and will bear neither baiting nor trifling. In the opinion of the Beacon these rival factions have already gone too far to leave either of these worthy gentlemen in condition to command the party vote, should either be able to land the nomination.

Appleton Press: If any one still doubts that the brewers are supporting Jacobson he need only read the Minnesota Record, an organ which was established for the sole purpose of combating temperance reform. Nearly 25 per cent of its editorial space is devoted to booming Jacobson.

Warren Register: A general complaint has been voiced by the country press that the recent Republican state convention was a cut and dried affair for which the city gangs arranged the program, which they carried out just as it had been planned without so much as "By your leave" to the country delegates, although they allowed the latter to accept and indorse it.

Warroad Plaindealer: The Republicans of the state hope that Bryan will be successful at the Denver convention. —Interlake Tribune. Of course they do —for the same reason that the Democrats of the state hoped that Dunn would be successful in the St. Paul convention four years ago. Dunn was successful.

Ortonville Herald-Star: Now watch the St. Cloud Journal-Press. Editor Eastman has resigned his job as a member of the state normal school board, tendered him by Governor Johnson in recognition of services rendered, and seems to be preparing to get back into the Republican party. It would be fun to see Alvah cut loose and rip up a few Democrats instead of Republicans. We would all be willing to see him "take care" of them as usual.

Hibbing Tribune: Newspapers whose idea of harmony is to damn Bob Dunn may be picturesque, but they are not helping anybody.

Virginia Enterprise: The full and undivided support of the Hon. Robert C. Dunn is one drawback to the Jacobson boom, and would cost him hundreds of Republican votes throughout the state in case of nomination.

The Coquette.

"You're clever at drawing, I own,"
Said my beautiful cousin Lisette,
As we sat by the window alone.
"But, say, can you paint a Coquette?"

"She's painted already," quoth I;
"Nay, nay!" said the laughing Lisette,
"Now none of your joking—but try
And paint me a thorough Coquette."

"Well, cousin," at once I began,
In the ear of the eager Lisette,
"I'll paint you as well as I can,
That wonderful thing, a Coquette.

"She wears a most beautiful face"
("Of course," said the pretty Lisette),
"And isn't deficient in grace,
Or else she were not a Coquette.

"And then she is daintily made"
(A smile from the dainty Lisette)
"By people expert in the trade
Of forming a proper Coquette.

"She's the winningest ways with the beaux"
("Go on," said the winning Lisette),
"But there isn't a man of them knows
The mind of the fickle Coquette.

"She knows how to weep and to sigh"
(A sigh from the tender Lisette),
"But her weeping is all in my eye—
Not that of the cunning Coquette!

"In short, she's a creature of art"
("Oh, hush!" said the frowning Lisette),
"With merely a ghost of a heart—
Enough for a thorough Coquette.

"And yet I could easily prove"
("Now, don't!" said the angry Lisette),
"The lady is always in love—
In love with herself—the Coquette!

"There—do not be angry—you know,
My dear little cousin Lisette,
You told me a moment ago
To paint you—a thorough Coquette!"
—JOHN GODFREY SAXE.

The Old Farm Home.

When my daily work is done,
With the setting of the sun
And my thankful prayer I say—
Thankful for the live-long day,
Then I fondly homeward look
And again recross the brook,
To my only happy dome,
To my pleasant little home.

There where nother need nor want
Ever trouble, crave or haunt,
There where joy and peace abound
With love and truth in every sound;
'Tis where all the blessed hours
Are perfumed with fragrant flowers
And the songbirds from the trees,
Mingle with the buzzing bees.

There I never meditate,
Never worry o'er my fate,
Only wish that when I die
My bones beneath these sods will lie.
Oh, how dear it is to me,
'Tis where I so long to be
When my daily work is done
With the setting of the sun.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Madison Western Guard: On the eve of another great election it is good to reflect that the American people have never yet chosen for their leader a man of evil life nor of empty head and it is a remarkable testimony to their good sense and decent morals. From Washington down, the list averages in dignity and ability above that of any of the rulers of other countries.

Madison Independent Press: Joel P. Heatwole of Northfield, is out for the nomination for governor on the Republican ticket and no mistake. Further than that he is making a better showing than any one thought he would when he was first mentioned.

Brainerd Dispatch: Jacobson seems to be leading the other gubernatorial aspirants a merry chase.

Milaca Times: State Senator Ripley Brower of St. Cloud is being favorably spoken of as gubernatorial timber, although he is not a candidate. Senator Brower is a statesman and has an enviable political record.

Morris Sun: Judging by the large number of letters E. T. Young is writing for publication these days, he is in grave danger of being accused of fighting with a typewriter, as were the British generals during the Boer war.

Little Falls Transcript: Bryan should have followed Taft's example, and let the few favorite son candidates have their own states. It is not a fair test to make a fight against a home man.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: What kind of an explosion do you think would result from a session of the state legislature and the lid on at St. Paul at the same time? Something awful to contemplate.

Fairmont Sentinel: The occasional batting of Joe Cannon's left eye is still more significant than the loud scratching of President Roosevelt's pen.

St. Hilaire Spectator: The contest for the Republican nomination for governor is a badly mixed up affair with Jacobson apparently in the lead at present.

Cass Lake Times: Isn't it about time for the political bosses of Wall street to begin to shout "A full dinner-pail?" There's nothing left them now but this ancient cry and it is doubtful if the feeling against tariff and trusts can be overcome by this or any other cry of the autocrats.

Big Falls Compass: As long as the Almighty Dollar holds sway over the metaphysical world, just that long will humanity bow before the shrine of opulence, and do homage to its dream of gold.

STUBBORN STOMACH TROUBLES

An Iowa Woman Cured by the Tonic Treatment After Giving Up Hope of Ever Getting Well.

The symptoms of stomach trouble vary. Some victims have a ravenous appetite, some loathe the sight of food. Often there is a feeling as of weight on the chest, a full feeling in the throat. Sometimes the gas presses on the heart and leads the sufferer to think he has heart disease. Sick headache is a frequent and distressing symptom.

Mrs. Emma M. Mayne of 635 Second avenue, Clinton, Iowa, was cured of stomach trouble by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills after suffering for a long time and having given up all hope of getting well. Mr. and Mrs. Mayne have lived in Clinton for over twenty-five years and are both prominent in fraternal society circles. Mr. Mayne is an Odd Fellow and is employed on the C. & N. W. R. R.

"I had brought up a family of five children," says Mrs. Mayne, "and had just worked myself out. While in this run-down condition I began to have stomach trouble. I could not eat with any relish and had deathly sick, vomiting spells, when my stomach would get rid of a dark, greenish fluid. I had terrible headaches, could not sleep well and became very thin.

"I took medicine from doctors here and consulted a specialist in Chicago, but did not get much benefit. I had been sick for about two years, when a niece, who had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with benefit, urged me to try them. A few boxes entirely cured me and I have since had the greatest faith in them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are guaranteed to be safe and harmless to the most delicate constitution. They contain no morphine, opiate, narcotic, nor anything to cause a drug habit. They do not act on the bowels, but they actually make new blood and strengthen the nerves. If you want good health you must have good blood. Bad blood is the root of all common disease, like anaemia, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, nervousness, indigestion, debility, general weakness, paralysis, locomotor ataxia and the special ailments that only women-folk know. The only way to cure these diseases is to strike straight at their cause in the blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y.

KILLS LOVER AND HERSELF.

"We Shall be United in Death," Writes Woman.

Venice, May 15.—The whole of Venice was much excited the other morning by news of a remarkable double tragedy, involving the death of a well-known lawyer and the suicide of a woman of his acquaintance. A few evenings ago, Signor Munari was approached by a widow, named Teresa Vanin, 40 years of age, whose lover he had been, but with whom he had recently broken off relations. They had a long conversation, and finally the lawyer accepted an invitation to Mme Vanin's house for a farewell supper.

The young advocate kept the appointment, and since that day nothing more was seen of him. At length, Munari's friends, suspecting that something in the nature of a drama of jealousy had occurred, reported his disappearance to the police. The door of the widow's residence was broken open and a terrible spectacle was presented to those who entered. The young lawyer was lying dead on the floor, with a large kitchen knife thrust in his heart. All about the room were empty champagne bottles, and it was apparent that the widow had made her victim senseless with drink before killing him. On the floor above the corpse of Vanin was found. She had suffocated herself by placing the end of a gas pipe in her mouth. She had left a letter saying: "We could not be united in life; we shall be united in death."

BULL FIGHTS TRAIN.

Animal Was Killed, But Succeeded in Derailing Engine.

Madrid, May 15.—A large and savage bull tried to wreck the Andalusian express recently by butting the engine with its head. The result was most unfortunate for the bull. While the express was traveling at the rate of twenty miles an hour the bull suddenly appeared on the line near the village of Rabonales. Before the driver could pull up, the bull rushed at the express with lowered head, and the impact was so terrific that the engine was derailed. The driver applied the brakes just in time to prevent the entire train from falling over an embankment. After the remains of the bull had been swept away, and a fresh engine secured, the express proceeded to Cordova, arriving two hours late. Senor Morot, the ex-premier, was a passenger on the express.

VICTORY OF PRESIDENT

In Brownsville Affair and the Case of Col. Stewart.

Foraker Capitulates Completely and Rayner Also Quits Fight.

Washington, May 15.—This has been a great week for the president. Senator Joseph B. Foraker of Ohio, the most active and belligerent antagonist of the administration, has capitulated completely on his Brownsville fight and agreed to have the whole matter go over until next December.

Senator Rayner of Maryland, who has been fighting the president on the case of Col. Stewart, receded from his position and declared that if the committee on military affairs would hear him that was all he would ask; abandoning his resolution instructing the president to convene an army court to try the case of Col. Stewart.

In the meantime in the White House conference called to consider conservation of the country's natural resources, the president declared in ringing tones that if congress did not take steps to perpetuate the inland waterways commission he would. Cheers greeted the utterance and so significant was the applause that leaders in congress are planning to carry out the president's program on this matter.

Wins on All Points.

"He who runs may read," and from the developments of the week no one can further dispute the fact that the president has won practically all he asked for. His opponents have been bowled over all along the line, his policies have been sustained, and he stands the great central figure dominating congress, dominating the states through their executive representatives and dominating the country.

The capitulation of Foraker came like a bolt out of the blue. He had declared that he would fight the Brownsville matter out if it took all summer; but on Wednesday, Foraker not only failed to make good his various assertions of the past, but took the lead in postponing all consideration of the Brownsville affair and the bills for the re-enlistment of the discharged negro soldiers until the next session of congress in the fall. The Democratic members of the senate unanimously supported a proposition finally to dispose of the matter Saturday.

Senator Foraker's action, supported as it was by the Republican majority first and later when it became evident that there would be no vote in this session by the Democrats means that all reports of the ending of the present session of congress in the midst of the sparks of contoversy, involving the harmony of the Republican party will come to naught. It means that the remaining business will be quickly wound up and congress will also certainly adjourn quietly and prossically on May 23, one week from Saturday.

The Foraker resolution to take a vote on the Brownsville affair Dec. 16 was passed by a vote of 62 to 8. Immediately following the vote Senator Bacon of Georgia congratulated the Republicans on getting together on the eve of the presidential election which, he said, was the way they usually did things.

RIOTING SHOWS UNREST IN INDIA

Mobs Vent Rage on Europeans in Tuticorin and Tinnevelly.

Calcutta, May 15.—Tuticorin and Tinnevelly have been the scene of an acute outbreak of disorder. The trouble began with a strike in a concern called the Coral mills at Tuticorin, which is the Liverpool of the Tinnevelly Manchester. Upon this the direction of a certain Swadeshi Steamer company gave orders to their agent at Tuticorin, one Chidambaram Pillay, to refrain from taking any part in the agitation, which by this time seems to have assumed a political complextion, and to have become mixed up with celebrations over the release of Bepin Chandra Pal, the home rule agitator. Mr. Pillay apparently took his own course, for he was arrested at Tuticorin along with several agitators and taken to the jail at Tinnevelly. On this the malcontents of Tuticorin flocked to the other town, and the usual storm signal was given by the traders shutting their shops.

Records Burned in Street.

The mob marched to the Hindu college and called on the students to join them. On the English principal remonstrating he was pelted with stones, and had to take refuge in some neighboring European premises. The mob, having stoned these, invaded the Church Missionary society's college, where they wrecked the interior. They then marchel to the municipal office, which they treated in the same fashion, the records being all carefully removed, drenched with kerosene, and burned on the spot. Next they went to the police station, beat the one constable on duty, released the few prisoners in the lock-up, and did what damage they could to the belongings. The Mustiff's court was the next object of their attention, and that officer was compelled to abandon his judicial duties and seek safety in flight. Here, too, the records were fired.

By this time the authorities had mustered what force they could command, and the mob found themselves confronted with a cordon of police under the collector, the superintendent of police and the deputy collector. As they would not give way the police eventually had to fire, with the result that they killed four rioters. Even then the mob seems only to have been checked; there was no dispersal and no arresting. The force at the disposal of the authorities was far too small for any attempt of that kind, and the local officers must have passed an anxious night, knowing how slender their resources were if the disturbance should be renewed. With the arrival of troops next morning from Trichinopoly this fear was removed, and a number of arrests were made.

Afridis Lost in Peshawar.

Immediately after the close of the Zakka Khel expedition, a large gathering of Afridis, numbering 1,000 men, assembled in Peshawar, at the residence of Sahibzada Adbul Quayum, assistant to the political officer of the Khyber, in order to learn the terms of the recent settlement with the Zakka Khels. According to the usual custom subsistence money was paid to the heads of the tribes to meet the cost of their food while in Peshawar. It seems that a dispute arose between the tribesmen and their maliks about the division of their subsistence allowance, and many of them, getting enraged, rushed off and began looting shops near the Dubdari gate, where the jirga had assembled.

A number of them then foundtheir way to a portion of the city where the money changers sit with trays of money and coins in front of them. The money changers, with their seats and trays, were quickly upset, and a wild scrimmage ensued for the scattered coins. The police closed many of the city gates, re-enforcements sent down from the cantonment surrounded the city, and a detachment of the Nineteenth lancers was hurried down to assist in scouring the country and bringing in the men who were making off with the loot. Some sixty of the jirga men were captured and locked up. One of them was shot by the police and two others were wounded.

Old People Must Give the Bowels Help

The muscles of the bowels become less active with age. They must have help.

That help should be regular. Don't wait till you need something violent.

It should be gentle and natural. One can't take harsh physic persistently without infinite harm.

People who must take laxatives regularly should take nothing but Cascarets.

Salts and pill cathartics irritate the bowels until the lining grows calloused. Then one needs larger doses.

Take one tablet as often as necessary to insure one free movement daily. Learn how much help you need.

Then be persistent and regular. Never give the poison a chance to accumulate. Keep yourself well.

You would wreck the bowels if you did that with harsh cathartics.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

Cascarets

The vest-pocket box is 10 cents. The month-treatment box 50 cents. 12,000,000 boxes sold annually. 828

ANARCHIST GANG ROUTED.

Rapallo, Italy, May 15.—A characteristic and violent demonstration against anarchists has been witnessed in this town on the Ligurian Riviera. The anarchists, coming mostly from Genoa and Spezia, had called a meeting at Rapallo to protest against the hospitality extended by her to Joao Franco, the dictator of Portugal, and the dowager empress of Russia. Thea uthorities prohibited the meeting and their decision was suported by the population, who determined that there should be no gathering.

The anarchists, however, arrived from Genoa and, after holding an assembly in private, decided to have a public meeting. When they proceeded to the spot selected for the gathering, a crowd which increased at every moment followed them. The anarchists were easily recognized, because they all wore big, black neckties.

Scarcely had their leader, one Zavatterf, who was surrounded by his comrades, attempted to deliver a speech than a police officer approached and ordered him to desist. Moreover, the first word that fell from his lips was the signal for a noisy demonstration on the part of the citizens against the anarchists. Stones flew through the air and sticks were freely used. One of the anarchists was seriously injured and had to be taken to the hospital. Zavatert was surrounded, and but for the intervention of the carabineers, would have been thrown into the sea. Eventually the anarchists were escorted to the station, whence, to the accompaniment of hisses and shouts, they returned to Genoa and Speczia.

RECKLESS MOTORING INCREASES IN ENGLAND.

London, May 15.—Lionel Barnes, secretary to the Highways Protection league, has compiled the fatality and casualty statistics of motoring in England during the past year. In that period there were forty-two people killed by motors, as against thirty-two in the preceding year. In the same time there were 145 people injured, as against seventy-three in the preceding year. The increase shown is greatly out of proportion to the increase in the number of motors on the road. There were 403 motors summoned and 365 convicted, as against 145 and 138 in 1907. It is apparent, therefore, that reckless driving has increased at an alarming rate, and as a natural consequence, deaths and accidents have also grown.

Mr. Barnes points out as a particularly bad feature of motor accidents the increasing number of cases in which motorists make off without rendering help to their victims. The increase in the number of fatal accidents is a matter which gives considerable force to the demand of those who urge that the penalties for exceeding the speed limit and driving to the common danger, should be substantially increased.

BERLIN TO ALLOW CREMATION

Berlin, May 15.—It is understood that the Prussian government is preparing a bill to allow cremation. An agitation in favor of "fire burial" has been going on for twenty years, but has hitherto failed to overcome clerical opposition. At present the bodies of Berliners, who wish to be cremated, must be sent to Hamburg or Weimar for the purpose.

SMOKE NUISANCE DONE AWAY WITH

Virginia, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday afternoon for the first time steam was turned into the pipe leading from the new mill of the Virginia Lumber company to the power plant of the Virginia Light & Water company, and the latter concern is now using steam from that source to drive its plant. This does away with the soft coal smoke and soot that formerly belched forth from the power company's smokestacks, and residents in the locality of the powerhouse will be greatly pleased thereat.

The new mill of the Virginia Lumber company has been sawing steadily during the week and making fairly large cuts, notwithstanding the several delays caused by adjustments to the machinery. The band resaws operate much more satisfactorily than they did last fall. A night shift will be put on as soon as all the machinery is running smoothly, probably at the beginning of next week. The night shift at the old mill has been discontinued.

NEW COMPANY IS NOW IN SERVICE

Hibbing Young Men Join Militia, Electing George Sullivan Captain.

Hibbing, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. Resche of Duluth last night mustered in what will be known as the Hibbing Militia company, fifty of Hibbing's prominent young men. George Sullivan, who has had a great deal of experience in this line of work was duly elected captain, John Haley was elected first lieutenant and William Fitch, second lieutenant. The annual encampment will be held at Lake Pepin on June 15th. The company will use one of the local halls until more suitable quarters can be found. The drills for the time being will be held in the ball park.

OGNONOVITCH BURIED.

Many Lodge Brethren Attend Funeral of Victim of Injury.

Chisholm, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of George Ognonovitch took place Tuesday afternoon from the Austrian church. Interment was made at Hibbing. The deceased was a member of an Austrian lodge, which furnished music to precede the members who marched to Hibbing. The deceased leaves a wife and two children, who reside in Austria. He was seriously injured at the Monroe mine and died of his injuries.

VIRGINIA ELKS' SOCIAL.

Many Visitors From Other Points Are Expected.

Virginia, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Elks will come pretty near owning this town this evening if the expectations of the members of the local lodge the way of attendance at the social to be given this evening are realized. Large delegations from Duluth and other points are expected. An elegant program has been arranged for this evening.

ON ACCREDITED LIST.

Ely High School Has Been Advanced in Standing.

Ely, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ely high school has been advanced to the list of accredited high schools in the North Central association of colleges and secondary schools. This places the school in the same rank as the best in the country, and makes its graduates eligible to such colleges without examination except in English.

In addition to these, the high school is on the accredited list of the Michigan School of Mines at Houghton. The Ely high school was admitted to the association at the meeting of the inspectors on March 27.

JUMPS OFF TRESTLE.

Would-be Suicide Does Not Succeed in Killing Himself.

Hibbing, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock a man giving the name of George Goddin attempted suicide by leaping head foremost off the water and light coal trestle. He was taken to the Rood hospital, where an examination was made. Aside from an ugly wound over the left eye and being badly jarred he was not injured. He was afterward confined in the village lockup.

GRAND JURORS DRAWN FOR ITASCA COUNTY.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following names were drawn from the jury box to serve as grand juro's at the June term of district court, which will be convened here June 3: W. W. Fletcher, Charles Anderson, Nels Felsted, Philip Hauck, Arthur Brown, Owen S. Kelly, Malcolm Campbell, A. McAlpine, William Smith, A. C. Bossard, George Shook, Frank Volet, Jr., Gus Gustafson, Charles Ollia, Lyman Seaman, John O'Brien, George F. Kremer, Frank Webb, Gust Anderson, John Schultz, James Taylor, Hugh McDonald and Edison Bierman.

GRAND RAPIDS FIRE.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—About 1:30 o'clock Tuesday morning the fire whistle at the power house awoke the slumbering citizens and in a short time the fire apparatus was lined up in front of the McAlpine block at the corner of Leland and Third streets. Fire was discovered in room No. 4 over the Chinese restaurant. The room had been occupied by a stranger who left on the 1 o'clock train going West. The room and hall were filled with smoke, but the fire had not gained sufficient headway to prevent entrance to the room. The mattress and other bed clothing was seized and carried into the street. It was not necessary to turn water on and in a short time the fire whistle announced "Fire out."

PREDICT FAST GAME.

Chisholm, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Chisholm baseball team will play the Superior City baseball team Sunday, May 17, on the Chisholm grounds. A fast game is predicted as both teams are strong.

FIRE ESCAPES MUST BE FIXED

Two Harbors City Council Red Hot After School Board.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 15.—At the regular meeting of the city council this week ditches for the drainage of water on Tenth avenue and on Maple street were recommended. Bids for concrete septic tank at outlet of North side sewer were as follows: N. Freeberg, $4,981; Pastoret & Lunz, $4,311. The contract was awarded to the latter firm.

Plans for sewer on Tenth avenue, 1,670 feet were adopted.

The committee appointed to confer with the school board as to the installation of fire escapes on the Third avenue school building reported they had repeatedly endeavored to have a meeting with school board but were unable to do so, or do anything with the matter.

A resolution was adopted requiring members of the school board to appear before the council at the next regular meeting, the 18th inst., and show cause why the necessary fire escapes should not be put on the building.

A resolution authorizing the construction by the city of an addition to the sewer on Second and Third avenue, the letting of contract for Ninth avenue sewer to Haugstein & Johnson; for construction of cement and wood walks about the city; providing for additional firemen at the city power station and allowing bills for $454.46 were returned approved by the mayor.

NEW POLICE CHIEF.

L. R. Root is to Preserve Order in Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council at its regular meeting this week elected L. R. Root chief of police to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Chief of Police Harry. J. F. McCormick has been serving since Mr. Harry's resignation and it was expected he would be elected Harry's successor but the unexpected happened. General Manager Matusseau of Mesaba Telephone company and Supt. French appeared before the council and promised some telephone improvements. They propose to replace the present system with an entire new system known as the "full metallic," two wires to each telephone installed with aerial cable. The charge of this would be $1.50 per month for private residences and $2.75 for business houses. Another, and still more desirable according to the Mesaba representative, is that known as the "battery system." The proposed charge for this service would be $2.00 per month for residences and $3.33 for business houses. The rate charged at present is $1.00 per month for residences and $2.00 for business houses. The councilmen listened to the gentlemen representing the telephone company, but concluded that there was nothing to be done in the premises so far a they were concerned. If the people desired an improved telephone service and were willing to pay a higher price for the same there would probably be no way to prevent them from doing so. Should the work of putting in a new system be decided upon by the Mesaba company the gentlemen present say that it will be in working order not latter than August 1.

The matter of the extension of water works and sewer system, for which several petitions had previously been presented, were referred to the proper committee for investigation. The putting in of cement crossings where needed throughout the village was not acted upon, but it is likely that this subject will be considered at another meeting, as the work should be done without any unnecessary delay.

AURORA TO CELEBRATE FOURTH IN FINE SHAPE.

Aurora, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aurora citizens have already taken up the matter of a rousing celebration for this village on the Fourth of July. The matter was discussed thoroughly at the business men's meeting Wednesday. It is estimaterd that over $500 can be raised by subscription. Some of the features will be a gun shoot, baseball game and possibly a balloon ascension. Aurora has its own band of seventeen pieces and it will be engaged to furnish music. The firemen are already making preparations to give a grand dance.

ERICKSON'S FUNERAL AT TWO HARBORS SATURDAY.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Gustaf Erickson, proprietor of the Northern hotel, who died Wednesday from cancer of the stomach, will be held this afternoon from the Swedish Methodist church. Deceased was 49 years of age and leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss.

MORE ACTIONS FILED AGAINST TWO HARBORS.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Additional damage cases have been filed against the city by the following account of the damage along Sixth avenue by the heavy rain and floods, September last, as follows: Gustaf Sandeen and Herman Anderson, $160; L. J. and M. J. Beckman, $90; Anna Strom, $170; D. Hjelmgren, $315; M. O. Waage, $160; Peter Larson, trustee I. O. G. T., $1,080. At the last term of district court judgments amounting to $1,222 were secured against the city by other parties.

PLAY COLUMBIAS.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Weather permitting, the first league ball game of the season will be played on the local grounds tomorrow afternoon between the locals and the Columbia team of Duluth.

MODERN SAMARITANS DANCE.

Hibbing, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A small but thoroughly satisfied number attended the dancing party given by the Modern Samaritans last evening at Close's hall. Punch was served during the evening.

OFFICIALS BELIEVE THEY HAVE THE CORPUS DELICTI FOR THE LAMPHERE CASE

from the east side to the west side of the foundation and partially back again during the search for the bodies, and the subsequent cursory examination of the ruins for evidence. As a consequence, some finds of considerable value to the prosecution may yet be turned up. And when the screening is finished the sheriff has the sluicing and panning method to fall back upon. This novel method of unerathing evidence has given several results already, although the amount of ashes gone over has been inconsiderable.

Lack of Water Supply.

The lack of an adequate water supply is the chief obstacle to this branch of the work, but a force pump installed recently has partially remedied this defect. The one well on the farm is depended upon for the water and the sheriff may yet decide to add a gasoline engine to his equipment with the idea of obtaining steadier work from the force pump than results from the wind-mill power used at present.

The bits of shining metal found by the miner among the piles of nails, bolts and other relics of the farm house will be evidence of one fact even if they do not prove to be gold fillings or crowns from Mrs. Gunness' teeth. Each globule is fused in the cinders with which it came in contact and molded into all sorts of irregular shapes. No better testimony is had as to the fierceness of the fire which consumed the farm house, and it is upon the alleged tremendous heat engendered in the flaming ruins that the state must depend for support of its contention that the head of Mrs. Gunness was incinerated on the morning of April 28.

Lamphere's Case.

The case against Ray Lamphere probably will be brought before the grand jury Monday, according to the first revision of the schedule in this regard. The time of his trial is less certain. Until Sheriff Smultzer has exhausted the possibilities of the farm house it is scarcely likely that the case will be docketed for trial. According to the present rate of progress this will mean a delay for months.

The prosecution is in fact almost ready to switch over from its former attitude, which contemplated an immediate trial. Discussion of the baffling aspects of the affair has been so negeral, and the prevalence of opinion hostile to the state's side so unexpectedly strong, that the chance of having to submit the case to a jury influenced by the circumstances is more than a remote possibility.

Much of this condition is due to the failure of the curbstone debaters to consider the salient facts already brought to light. It is the hope of the prosecution that opinions formed as a result of these discussions will change, or at least grow vague with time. In that case a postponement of the trial to the next term of court would be an advantageous move.

The defense shows no anxiety to push the matter forward. Lamphere's attorneys have complained that they have not been given free enough access to their client, and have threatened court proceedings to force a change in this regard. But otherwise they seem willing enough to have plenty of time in which to investigate the tactics of the state and to round up their own witnesses.

Description of White's Rooms.

The doctor repeated a description which Thaw gave him of the house alleged to have been maintained by Stanford White and others. He said that these men plotted to put him in an asilum to prevent him from exposing their alleged misdeeds.

"He told me that he appealed to Miss Helen Gould and was referred by her to Anthony Comstock," said Dr. Baker. "Thaw said that detectives employed by him to watch White and the latter's house informed him that he was in danger." When the witness asked him to give the substance of the detective's reports he refused to answer "by advice of counsel." He said that his physicians and lawyers had advised him not to discuss what had occurred on the Madison Square roof the night he shot White. He volunteered, however, this much:

"He compared his situation at that moment to that of a man standing on the brink of a precipice, seized with an irresistible impulse to jump."

Dr. Baker, who has been on the medical staff of the state hospital at Dannemora and Matteawan for eight years, was asked by Mr. Jerome:

"Have you encountered many insane persons who were able by cunning to conceal the facts of their insanity?"

Dr. Baker—"I have; such cases are not uncommon."

Mr. Jerome—"You have seen the letters written by Mr. Thaw and the codicil to his will?"

Dr. Baker—"I have."

Mr. Jerome—"From your reading of those documents, together with your conversations with and observations of Mr. Thaw, is he, in your opinion, sane or insane?"

Dr. Baker—"He is insane."

Mr. Jerome—"In your opinion would it be dangerous to public safety for him to go at large?"

Dr. Baker—"It would."

This testimony apparently qualified Dr. Baker as an expert, but it was learned that District Attorney Jerome would later ask the court to rule that Dr. Baker was not to be classed as an expert, since he is named as respondent to the proceedings. The court has limited the expert witnesses to five on each side. The relator, Thaw, has Drs. Jacoi, Grame Hammond, Pilgrim, Evans and Jelliffe. By an inadvertent question by Mr. Graham yesterday Dr. McGuire, the Tombs prison physician, was qualified as an expert. If the court insists upon this ruling one of Thaw's experts will be kept off the stand. The respondent had examined but one expert, Dr. Flint, prior to Dr. Baker's examination.

GOVERNORS VOTE TO HOLD FUTURE CONFERENCES

ration of principles, GoGvernor Glenn suggested that the governors meet in conference with the president whenever one-third of the governors requested it.

That there was nothing in the declarations which prevented the governors from forming an independent organization was the view of Governor Davidson of Wisconsin, who spoke briefly to that point. It was much better, he said, to have the president left independent of any organization of the governors and to have a governor's organization independent of the executive.

Governor Folk of Missouri in supporting the suggestion of Governor Glenn said that he did so because of his objection to taking any action which might hereafter form a precedent. He expressed the highest regard for the office of president of the United States and a high personal regard for its present occupant. However, he said, the present occupant "cannot always be president." (Laughter.) "Suppose," continued Governor Folk, "that some time in the future there should be some man in that office who should want to use such power or prestige as might be obtained from a gathering of the governors to coerce congress, for instance, into adopting some law. (Laughter.) Now, while we all think that the 'big stick' once in a while is a mighty good thing, (Applause and laughter) I do not know what man hereafter may have that instrument in his hand and so I for one am unwilling to commit not myself but the man who may follow me as the governor of Missouri, to something which may hereafter be used merely as an instrument to accomplish the will of the president."

Furture Conferences.

Governor Noel interrupted Governor Folk as he was about to conclude, by asking him if he thought it was not the proper courtesy for the governors to indicate that future conferences should be held.

"The governor is from Mississippi," responded Governor Folk, "and knows of Southern hospitality. Does he think it proper for a guest to indicate to his host that he receive another invitation for a visit?" (Laughter).

"I can express my joy at coming," retorted Governor Noel, who was applauded vociferously, and the incident was greatly amusing to the president.

Governor Folk took occasion to express the benefit he had received from the conference, and the good he believed it had accomplished. At this point Governor Glenn arose and, acting, as he said, upon the suggestion of the governor of Kentucky, whom he had found to be a very wise man, wanted to withdraw his motion amending the declaration. "Probably we will never have a little mon for president.' This created delight among the governors.

President Roosevelt, before putting the declaration to a vote, said he believed that any president needed only the information that a conference of governors would be agreeable to the governors as an inspiration to call one. The report was then adopted, no dissenting voices being heard.

Declaration of Principles.

The full text of this declaration of principles is as follows:

"We, the governors of the states and territories of the United States of America, in conference assembled, do hereby declare the conviction that the great prosperity of our country rests upon the abundant resources of the land chosen by our forefathers for their homes and where they laid the foundation of this great nation.

"We look upon these resources as a heritage, to be made use of in establishing and promoting the comfort, prosperity and happiness of the American people, but not to be wasted, deterlorated or needlessly destroyed.

"We agree that our country's future is involved in this; that the great natural resources supply the material basis upon which our civilization must continue to depend, and upon which the perpetuity of the nation rests.

"We agree, in the light of facts brought to our knowledge and from information received from sources which we cannot doubt, that this material basis is threatened with exhaustion. Even as each succeeding generation from the birth of the nation has performed its part in promoting the progress and development of the republic, so do we in this beneration recognize it as a high duty to perform our part, and this duty in a large degree in the adoption of measures for the conservation of the natural wealth of the country."

The conference of governors, after arranging that the papers prepared to be read today should be printed in the record without reading, adjourned sine die at 12:45 o'clock.

SOCIALISTS NAME TICKET

Debs and Hanford Nominated for President and Vice President.

Chicago, May 15.—Eugene V. Debs of Indiana this morning was nominated for president on the first ballot by the Socialist party's national convention.

The convention late last night adopted a platform after a long debate that grew acrimonious at times. As soon as the platform was adopted the convention proceeded after midnight to select a candidate for president. The names of Eugene V. Debs of Indiana and of A. M. Simons of Chicago were placed before the delegates. Phil Calgary of Missouri presented the name of Debs in a speech assailing President Roosevelt for his "undesirable citizen" remarks and declared the president to be the most "despicable coward the world had ever known." He denounced Secretary of War Taft for having drunk the health of the czar of Russia. He also cast aspersions at W. J. Bryan.

Seymour Stedman of Chicago presented the name of Simons, declaring Debs physically unfit to make the race. This remark caused the supporters of Debs to burst forth in a pandemonium of shouts and hisses. Much clamorous debate and many recriminations followed. The first ballot resulted in the nomination of Debs.

Debs received 152 votes. The poll of the votes had proceeded until 194 had been counted and upon the showing it was moved by Victor Berger of Milwaukee that the nomination be made unanimous. The motion went through with a deafening shout.

Benjamin Hanford of New York was nominated for vice president

THREE MEN HAVE VERY CLOSE CALL.

Aitkin, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work on the Rogers-Brown shaft at Rabbit lake on the new Cuyuna Iron range has received a discouraging setback for the time, being by a rush of quicksand and water from the lower part of the shaft that has filled nearly fifty feet of it. Such a rush of sand is said to be almost unheard of.

A number of men were working in the bottom of the shaft at the time and three narrowly escaped being buried, prompt action on the part of their companions in pulling them out and letting the bucket down for them to get hold of was all that saved them. The whole thing happened in about two minutes' time. The shaft timber work seems to be intact and it will be the matter of some days in getting the work back to the place it was before the accident. No one is blamed for the occurrence.

PAPERMAKER APPEARS BEFORE COMMITTEE.

Washington, May 15.—George C. Sherman, treasurer of the St. Regis & Taggarts Paper mills, and president of the Brownsville Paper company, was the first maker of paper to be examined by the select committee of the house that is investigating the wood pulp and paper question. Mr. Sherman stated that in recent years the price of pulp wood had increased about $7.50 a cord. The net profits of the St. Regis company for March of this year, he said, were $6.75, or about $7 per ton of paper. During this month, he said, his company operated but four days a week, owing to the lack of orders.

John Norris, the representative of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, was on the stand part of the day and presented documents to show that the price paid skilled labor in the Candaian mills was as high as that paid in American mills.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

The Great Restorative

Non-Alcoholic Tonic

of the day, made entirely of native medicinal roots and without a drop of alcohol in its composition.

There are no secrets---all its ingredients being printed on the bottle-wrappers.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" not only builds up the strength of the feeble, debilitated, languid, nervous and easily fatigued, whether young or aged, but it enriches and purifies the blood, thus making the improvement lasting.

In Chronic Nasal Catarrh, it is well to cleanse the nasal passages out freely with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" as a constitutional treatment. Old obstinate cases of catarrh yield to this thorough course of treatment.

Through enriching and purifying the blood, the "Discovery" cures scrofulous affections, also blotches, pimples, eruptions, and other ugly affections of the skin. Old, open, running sores, or ulcers, are healed by taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" internally and applying Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve as a local dressing. The Salve can be had of druggists, or will be sent by return mail on receipt of 50 cents in stamps. Address Doctor Pierce as below for it.

In short "Golden Medical Discovery" regulates, purifies and invigorates the whole system and thus cures a very large range of diseases. The reason Why it cures such a varied list of diseases is made clear in a little booklet of extracts from the leading medical authorities, compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and which he will be pleased to send post-paid and entirely free to any who send him their names and addresses.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good." They are the original Little Liver Pills first put up by old Dr. Pierce over 40 years ago. Much imitated, but never equaled. They are tiny sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

STAGE WEDDING WAS REAL.

Young Couple Cleverly Outwit Parents Who Oppose Marriage.

Vienna, May 15.—A remarkable story of a "surprise" marriage comes from Castelmoro, Dalmatia, where a young couple were wedded in the presence of their friends and relatives, although the latter objected strenuously to the match. The bridegroom was Anton Iron, a young and penniless lawyer, and his sweetheart, an 18-year-old girl named Estelle Berger, the daughter of a local merchant. As her parents refused to sanction the match, and the girl refused to take part in a clandestine marriage, the lovers were in despair until Herr Iron thought of an ingenious way out of the difficulty.

Both he and his sweetheart were enthusiastic members of an amateur dramatic club. He arranged a theatrical performance, in which both of them took part, and which included a two-act comedy. In the last act of the comedy the hero and heroine were married on the stage in full view of the audience.

The theater was crowded, the proceeds of the entertainment being devoted to charity. Fraulein Berger's parents were astounded, when they waited for their daughter after the performance, to be informed that she had been really married, and that the actor who impersonated a clergy was really a minister.

The bride's father was so delighted at the clever way in which he had been outwitted that he gave the couple $250 for their honeymoon, and has promised to furnish a home for them.

TO PURGE THEATERS

Abolition of Censorship Brings Expected Results in Paris.

Language and Scenes on Many Stages Severely Criticised.

Paris, May 15.—The abolition of the censorship of the stage in France has produced its logical result. License of language has invaded the theater until the public itself has begun to protest. A few weeks ago a woman well known in society and letters, wrote to a leading Paris newspaper, proposing to her sex to boycott those playhouses and cafes chantants where indecency is rampant. And again this week the academician, M. Etienne Lamy, publishes in the Echo de Paris a strong article entitled "Assez" against the public immorality promoters who are pandering to a lower empire taste. The situation he describes with eloquence, and anyone who has observed the evolution of Montmartre during the last six months can corroborate every word of his diatribe against those whom he calls "les exploiteurs des curiosities malsaines."

At all events, the Paris police have undertaken to purge the stables of so much indecency. They are now prosecuting theater and music hall managers where nude women are to be seen, as as well as the women themselves. It is a noteworthy fact that nothing was done until the public raised objections, an interesting confirmation, by the way, of the opinion already given on the authority of M. Jules Claretie, that "the public is entirely capable of exercising its own censorship." M. Hervieu remarked wittily when the censorship was abolished. "The caged animal does not always issue forth just at the moment the doors are opened." The beast is now well out in the open, but the police are on its track bent on caging it.

A magistrate this week summoned a number of the offenders before him. There were handsome girls from the "Folle this and Folle that," Montmartre cabarets and Latin Quarter theaters, who came tripping in, laughing or smiling, and feeling that they were objects of sympathy to the crowd of spectators gathered in the corridor of the court room. When brought before the magistrate they one and all assumed a serious tone, and wanted to know what harm they had done. Their intention never was and never could be to offend public morality. They simply acted the part assigned to them, and their only crime was that they were the slaves of beauty. The girls thought that they had cornered the magistrate with this powerful argument, but he was not convinced by it, and inflicted severe fines.

The criminal court of Bar de Duc has given judgment in the case of the Liechos Levy, charged with supplying unsound meat to the army. He was condemned to one years imprisonment and to pay a fine of $100 and $600 damages, as well as all costs. Levy is the first of several contractors who are being prosecuted for supplying the troops with diseased and putrid meats. The revelations which have attended the preliminary inquiries into these charges have arouse widespread indignation, and a general demand for exemplary punishment. The metropolitan cattle market at La Villette appears to have been the center of this abominable traffic. The police found that the usual system of inspection was being evaded and that a regular business was being done in old, lean, tuberculosis cattle, many of which were in a dying condition and were so near their end that on reaching their destination they had to be carted from the railway truck to the slaughter house. The corner of the market where these wretched beasts were sold to the army contractors was appropriately nicknamed "the eastern cemetery." The police and veterinary evidence against Levy showed that the price paid for the diseased and moribund animals that he cut up and supplied for "soldiers' meat" was from $20 to $40, or about half the wholesale price of sound beef, and that he could not fail to be aware of their tuberculosis condition, since the organs affected were systematically removed and buried.

The oldest ticketholder of the Paris opera house, Charles Bocher, who for over half a century has sat in the same stall at the opera at least three evenings a week, died a few days ago at his rooms in Paris at the age of 91. Mr. Bocher was the author of several interesting books, one of which was crowned by the French academy, but he was, perhaps, best known in Paris as a friend of the ballet. Every afternoon from 1 o'clock till 6 his door was left open, and his little flat besieged by all who wanted help of any kind. One amusing thing that he did for the ballet girls during the last twelve years of his life was to have their teeth seen to and pay the dentist bills of every woman in an opera ballet. Mr. Bocher was the son of a page of the chamber of Charles X. He himself served as a captain of artillery in the Crimean war, and was aid-de-camp to Marshal Canrobert and orderly officer to the duke of Orleans.

Some days ago a French savant, Gustave le Bon, who is convinced that most of the phenomena of spiritualism and of the so-called occult sciences are ocular illusions, offered the small sum of $100 as a prize to anyone who would, in his presence and that of a certain number of unprejudiced and scientific men, demonstrate a case of real levitation, that is, lifting by an occult power a cup or vase from one table to another, the object to be photographed in the actual transfer, showing without a doubt that there was no occular illusion. Prince Roland Bonaparte, who is of the same opinion as the scientist, has in a letter just published offered to add $200 to the prize. No medium has as yet proposed to submit to the test.

A man named Androuard of Mayenno killed his wife the other day under curious circumstances. The woman was a confirmed drunkard, and had been out all night. She returned at 6 o'clock in the morning, and, when her husband reproached her she laughed at him and told him to kill her. Androuard took up his gun, intending to frighten her, but it was discharged accidentally, and his wife fell dead.

A business man from the Vanguard district, who had missed a $200 note from his office safe and suspected a dismissed clerk of having stolen it, came upon him in a restaurant near the Montparnasse station. The young man had just time to crush a piece of paper in his hand when he was arrested. Shortly afterwards another customer complained of finding a piece of paper in his stew. In the presence of the waiter the paper was unrolled and proved to be a damaged $200 note. This the customer eagerly claimed, but the waiter refused to part with it. They went together to the police station, and there learned that the arrested man, by virtue of his assertions of innocence and having no note on him, had been released.

IS DODGING A BLACKMAILER

Berlin, May 15.—A few months ago a blackmailer attempted to extort the sum of $25,000 from a Munich millionaire named Ludovici, and, as his demand was disregarded, retorted by attempting to pour acid over two of that gentleman's sons and raising his claim to $500,000. Since that time he has continued to bombard the unfortunate millionaire with letters, in which, among other things, he threatened to blow him and his villa into the air. The utmost efforts of the police failed either to discover or silence the miscreant. At last the opportunity of his persecutor began to set on Herr Ludovici's nerves. He decided to retire with his family to some place, which he kept secret, and advertised his Munich villa for sale.

Another instance of the ineradicable romance of the house of Tuscany will be seen in the marriage which was celebrated last Saturday at the registry office of Nuremburg. The bridegroom was Prince Viktor of Isenburg-Birstein, whose mother was sister of the grand duke of Tuscany, and who is therefore first cousin to Frau Toselli and Leopold Wilfling, while the lady to whom he was united was Anna Rohrer, a damsel of unpretentious, if not actually of humble, origin. She was, in fact, the daughter of a doctor in the little Bohemian town of Schlackenwerth, which is situated on the southern slope of the Erzgobirge, not very far from Carlsbad.

During the coming summer the capacity of the imperial shipyard at Kiel is to be widely extended in several directions. The new works will include a forge, an electric power station and a quay wall which will place a larger area of water at the disposal of the admiralty for berthing the warships that are receiving their armament. Moreover, the controversy as to the respective merits of dry and floating docks have been finally decided in favor of the latter, and a structure of hits type, capable of accommodating the largest battleships, will be put in hand without delay.

Several thousand frogs have been bought from a breeder near Hildesheim and placed in the ditches, pools and small lakes at Finkenburg, a small place in the woods to the west of Berlin, to which thousands of Berliners and their families flock on Sunday. This experiment is being made in the hope of reducing the plague of the mosquito-like gnats.

It is understood that the Prussian government is preparing a bill to allow cremation. An agitation in favor of "fire burial" has been going on for twenty years, but has hitherto failed to overcome clerical opposition. At present the bodies of Berliners who wish to be cremated must be sent to Hamburg or Welmar for the purpose.

FILIPINO WOMEN MAY VOTE.

Bill Provides Husband Must Give Consent, However.

Manila, May 15.—Assemblyman Sotto has introduced a bill to give women the right to vote in the Philippines, but not to hold office. The bill has created considerable discussion. It is believed it will pass. The measure provides that a woman to vote must be 23 years old, and that a married woman must have the consent of her husband in writing before she will be allowed to cast her ballot. A woman who is under the care of her parents must have the parents' consent.

ADVICE BY THE POPE

Letter to the Catholic Members of the German Reichstag.

Priests Who Have Married Will Not be Reinstated.

Rome, May 15.—The pope is about to issue a letter of advice to the Catholic members of the German reichstag or parliament, who constitute the Center party, which has done so great service for the church in Germany. The letter will be addressed either to Cardinal Kopp, archbishop of Breslau, or to Cardinal Fischer, archbishop of Cologne. The letter will be a very important one, because it will tend to put an end to current dissension among the members of the Center party regarding the recent visit to the pope of Prince Von Buelow, the German chancellor. Since the return of the prince to Berlin many of the newspaper organs of the Center have complained of the cordiality with which he was received at the Vatican, the criticism having been aroused because since he came into power the German chancellor has done his utmost to down the Catholic element in the reichstag. Comments on this matter were so numerous that the German government felt obliged to issue an official note, in which it accuses the Center party of causing trouble by its opposition to the imperial chancellor. It is believed here that the forthcoming letter of the pope will do much to re-establish peace.

In the meantime Prince Von Buelow intends to keep in close touch with Rome and the Vatican. He has purchased here a splendid villa, which he intends to occupy for several weeks every year, until his term of office has expired. There he will spend all his winters in Rome. The new arrangement will greatly assist him in maintaining close relations with the Vatican, so long as he remains in office.

A few days ago the papal secretary of state, Cardinal Merry del Val, on being informed that a petition was being prepared by Mme. Gould and the Prince de Sagan, asking a regular dispensation, in order that they might be married in the church, stated emphatically that such a petition would neither be considered nor answered. This is held to settle the matter, for what the cardinal says is always what the pope has instructed him to say.

No Relief for Married Priests.

It is absolutely denied at the Vatican that there is any plan in view for the reinstatement of priests who have married. Efforts to obtain some concession in this matter have been repeatedly made by prominent ministers of Protestant denominations during the past few years, but the Vatican authorities have always ignored the requests. Excepting in the cases of some Greek and some Oriental priests, it is an ecclesiastical crime for a priest to contract marriage, and if the ceremony should be performed in a Catholic church, the couple would suffer excommunication. This has been the rule for centuries, and it is said to be certain that it will not be changed now, not only because of traditions, but because such an act, legalizing the marriage of the clergy, would probably determine many members of the Catholic clergy to do the same.

Judging from information just received here, there is likely to be another vacancy in the French hierarchy soon. Mgr. Denescheau, bishop of Tulle, is seriously ill, and the fact greatly concerns the Vatican, because the appointment of his successor will have to be made according to the new rules established. The American system of nominating bishops has recently been discarded in France, and instead of the bishops of the ecclesiastical province sending to Rome three names of preferred candidates, the Vatican authorities will themselves choose a new bishop, relying on information in their possession, which every French bishop is now required to forward to Rome once a year. It is not generally remembered that since the separation of church and state in France more than thirty vacancies have occurred among the members of the French episcopate, and that the pope has filled all of them to his satisfaction.

The pope is soon to issue a regular encyclical letter congratulating the Canadian people on the taird century of their independence. The letter will point out the great advantages enjoyed by Canadian priests and bishops, because of the absolute religious liberty prevailing in their country. The archbishop of Quebec is to be charged with the distribution of the pope's letter.

Pope Is Carefully Guarded.

The season of pilgrimage is in full swing here, because of the pope's sacerdotal jubilee. Last week a large delegation of the Catholic inhabitants of Tyrol, dressed in their characteristic costumes, arrived here and were received by the pope. They brought him a generous present as a testimonial of the faith that animated them. A few days ago a special train brought all the faculties and all the students of the Vienna university, and these also obtained a special collective audience. Such manifestations are especially gratifying to the pope, and the season has only just begun. Pilgrimages are expected from almost all countries of the world, including China and Japan.

Extraordinary precautions have recently been adopted at the Vatican for the protection of the pope's life. It has not been generally known that "black hand" letters have recently been received at the Vatican, addressed both to the pope and the cardinal secretary of state. The latter made light of the threats they contained, but the pope was alarmed, and since the receipt of the letters he has not gone alone for his usual walks or drives in the Vatican gardens.

It is now comparatively easy to safeguard the pope's life, as visitors to the museums and galleries may no longer enter by the bronze portals, but must use the new entrance in the rear of St. Peter's. This shuts them off completely from communication with the Vatican palace. Formerly one had but to mention to the Swiss guard at the bronze gate that he was a visitor to the museums to be admitted and allowed to ramble all over the palace at his will. This has now ceased and all visitors are not only closely scrutinized, but have also to show some credentials in order to obtain admission. This was found out to their cost a few days ago by a number of German pilgrims. In their innocence they thought that because they were Catholics they would be freely admitted to the Vatican. They were turned out.

PLAN BIG REGATTA WEEK.

Spanish King and Queen and Sir Thomas Lipton to Give Prizes.

Madrid, May 15.—Delegates from the Royal Sporting club of Bilbao have arrived here, and have had audience with King Alfonso on the subject of the coming summer regattas. They will have great importance this year, as the king expressed his desire to organize two big races—one on the high sea and the other a long distance race between Santander, Bilbao and San Sebastian. King Alfonso informed the delegates that several English yachts have entered for the races, including four boats belonging to Sir Thomas Lipton.

According to his majesty's statement, Sir Thomas Lipton's cutters will leave Southampton on Aug. 10, and indulge in a private race. King Alfonso and the queen will each give a cup, and a third will be presented by Sir Thomas. The municipalities and casinos of Santander, Bilbao and San Sebastian will also offer an important prize for crews, and other prizes will be given by the regatta clubs. King Alfonso desires to create a grand regatta week, to be called the Biscayan week, and this year's races will constitute the first effort in this direction.

PRIESTS LOSE RANK.

Pekin, May 15.—The imperial rescript of March 15, 1899, whereby China granted official rank to the Roman Catholic hierarchy, a priest to rank as a prefect and a bishop as a viceroy or governor, has been canceled. The effect of the rescript has been that at present 1,100 Roman Catholic missionary priests rank as prefects and forty-six Roman Catholic enjoy vice regal rank, some having even adopted the insignia of a viceroy. China herself has only nine viceroys.

The rescript at the time was not received with entire favor; it has since frequently been condemned by devout Roman Catholics; has frequently been abused, and has led to frequent difficulties, for it gave higher rank to missionaries than to the consular representatives of the countries whose subjects they were, or by whom they were protected. The conditions now being regarded as different from those existing when the rescript was issued, the Wai-wu-pu memorialized the throne, recommending that the decree should be rescinded. The memorial has received the imperial sanction, and the rescript has been canceled.

OXFORDS THAT ARE REALLY STYLISH

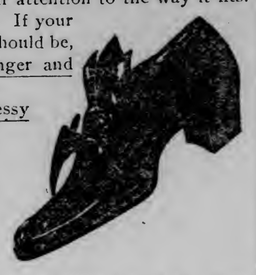
In selecting Oxfords the careful dresser will pay particular attention to the way it fits. The importance of this is patent. If your Oxfords are fitted the way they should be, they will retain their shape longer and always look dressy.



And if they look neat and dressy you may be sure they are stylish.

Anxious salesmen will squeeze some freak last on your foot—they call them "nifty"—lasts that are as foreign to your foot as they are to your hand—and they tell you "how stylish" that Oxford is. You buy, and pay the penalty "breaking in" this torturesome "footwear."

Take our advice—don't be deceived in this matter. If you would wear an Oxford with comfort, with grace—an Oxford that will give your foot the support and spring it requires—an Oxford that is REALLY STYLISH, have Suffel's shoemen fit your feet.

The dressiest and most stylish collection of Oxfords for men, women and children to be found at the Head of the Lakes from which to make selection. We do not charge more because we fit your feet—that is a part of our service. Quality is the first principle of this store.

SACRAMENTO REPORTS A FINE CASE.

A fine example of a recovery in a case of kidney disease that was supposed to be incurable is reported from Sacramento. Mr. I. T. Gibson of 521 Ninth street, Sacramento, was in October last in a local hospital in the Capital City, swollen with the dropsy that often attends the serious and supposed incurable forms. As is usual in these cases the hospital treatment got no results, when he was advised to try Fulton's Renal Compound by a friend (Charles A. Newton, the yardmaster of the S. P. R. R. Co., at Sacramento, who had himself been cured by the treatment.) Dropsy began to subside and the renal inflammation gradually abated and Gibson is now back to his employment with the S. P. R. R. Co., after recovering from a disease that is rated as incurable the world over.

In a letter he has just written he states, "I believe it has saved my life. It is the greatest remedy for kidney disease on earth."

No matter whether called "kidney trouble," "Nephritis," or "Bright's Disease," the real difficulty is INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS. Fulton's Renal Compound is the first emollient for inflamed kidneys that the world has ever seen. Send for literature.

KINGSHIP IS IN DANGER.

Belgrade, May 15.—King Peter's tenure of office, for a long time precarious, is now to be put to the test of a general election. If his partisans win he will have a new lease of kingship. If the Opposition is victorious he will have perforce to surrender his throne. Parliament has been dissolved. Conciliation of the Opposition might have been effected by the formation of a coalition cabinet, but the king has chosen to leave M. Paschics ministry practically intact. Fair play with the ballot boxes would spell disaster for the king. Even under the adroit management of M. Paschics, the premier, and the king's most ardent supporter, the elections must result in the return of many members of the Opposition and antiregicides.

The premier will, therefore, at the best be again confronted in the new parliament with an irreconcilable Opposition, bent on the identical obstruction policy that now forces him to the country. The commercial treaty with Austria will not be allowed to pass the Skuptchina, the budget will not be voted and the king will be subjected to still more envenomed attacks.

"What confidence can we have in a government," asked Dr. Velikovitch, the Opposition leader in the Skuptschina, "which has lowered Servia's prestige to the extent that its ruler is branded as an instigator of bomb outrages? Where are the projected visits to the courts of Italy, Austria and Russia? Our king is boycotted.

"We have fallen so low that a treaty unworthy of even a vassal state is proposed to us as a favor. If our position abroad is deplorable, it is worse at home. Here we have the nation's representatives assaulted by officers with impunity; political opponents locked up and killed; editors of Opposition journals persecuted or imprisoned on fictitious charges of debt. A murderous regime has set in in Servia."

WOULD SAVE THE BABIES

American Woman Will Open School for Mothers in London.

Infant Mortality in Somers Town Reaches High Figures.

London, May 15.—To an American woman, Hon. Mrs. Bertrand Russell, formerly Mrs. Alys Pearsall Smith of Philadelphia, is due the establishment of a school in London which, as its beneficent results become more apparent, is likely to lead to the establishment of many similar institutions in the metropolis and elsewhere. It is a "School for Mothers," and its object is to teach poor mothers how to take proper care of their babies.

One of the burning shames of England is its high infant mortality. The average death rate of infants under 1 year old in most American cities is about 55 out of every 1,000 born. In England the average is 155, and in some districts of London as many as 308 babies out of every 1,000 born die before they reach their first birthday. The chief cause of this terrible waste of child life is ignorance. Poverty alone can be held accountable for only a small portion of it. Comparatively few mothers are so poor that they can not nourish their infants if they know how. It is ignorance more than anything else which is decimating the infant population of England.

Terrible Mortality.

In no district in London, probably, is the infant mortality higher than in Somers Town, because there both ignorance and poverty abound. Through Dr. Sykes, medical officer of health for the borough of St. Pancras, of which Somers Town forms a part, Mrs. Russell was made aware of the terrible slaughter of the innocents that goes on in that squalid region, and she determined that she would do something to check it. Study and investigation convinced her that to strike at the fountain head of the evil a remedy must be found for the ignorance of the mothers. They should be taught. She decided to open a school for them in which competent instructors should teach them how to look after their babies so as to assure them a fair chance of developing into healthy men and women.

She worked hard and organized an influential committee, of which she is chairman. Money was collected and a house was taken in Chalton street. The school was placed in charge of Mrs. Barnes, an experienced woman superintendent, and invitations were sent round to all the tenement houses in the neighborhood asking the mothers of young babies to come to the school and be taught how to take care of them. Great placards, explaining the nature of the school, were exhibited in front of the building, and the school started a year ago with three pupils. It has now 150.

Made Fun Of.

Chalton street is what is known in London as a "coster's market." That is to say that Chalton street is lined from end to end with hucksters selling goods of every description from barrows and handcarts, and is crowded with poor women who draw most of their household supplies from these barrows. It is also well supplied with public houses, each with its attendant staff of loafers. At first the School for Mothers afforded huge amusement to the costers and loafers, and the "wit" which the women who conducted it had to encounter was not of the most refined character. Today the school has won the respect and gratitude of the neighborhood. There is hardly a coster or a laborer in the district who does not know and appreciate the work it is doing. Any one who attempted to molest any of the women connected with the school today would meet with a very rough reception in Chalton street.

The school began with nightly classes for the mothers, who were invited to attend and bring their babies. Dr. Dora Bunting talked to the mothers on the importance of natural feeding, and warned them that to give the babies a drop of gin or tea and a little of everything they ate themselves meant certain death to the babies. Then she undressed the babies and explained to the mothers the evils of tight binding and the importance of keeping baby warm. If it had any little ailment, she advised the mother what to do, and, if necessary, sent her to a hospital or nursery. In the meantime Mrs. Barnes, the superintendent, visited the mothers at their homes and pressed home the lessons taught by the woman doctor.

Natural Feeding.

A difficulty soon presented itself. The first principle taught by the school was the importance of natural feeding, for artificial feeding is frightfully prevalent among the poor mothers of England. Many of them, in fact, think it is better than natural feeding, and many adopt it because they prefer, even when harsh necessity does not compel them, to work in the factories.

Then Mrs. Bertrand Russell, Dr. Bunting and Mrs. Barnes soon found that if the mothers of Somers Town were to feed their infants they must be fed themselves. If there is one thing that the lower class Englishwoman is careless about, it is her own food. She revels in fats, and when it is a question of feeding her husband, for he has to do heavy work, but for herself she is usually content with tea and bread, and perhaps a salt herring now and again. In fact, it is not unusual for the man to buy his own meat, hand it to his wife to cook and eat it while his wife and children look on, perhaps famished.

The importance of feeding the mother was emphasized in the lectures, but talking had little effect. As a matter of fact many of the mothers could not afford to feed themselves, so the school determined to feed them. Now a substantial dinner is provided every day for the pupils of the school at a charge of 3 cents, while those who can not afford even this receive the dinner free.

Don't Want Charity.

It is a mistake to suppose that this pauperizes the mothers. Mrs. Barnes told me that the chief difficulty was to induce the poor mothers who could not pay to accept the free meals. "The food I don't pay for sticks in my throat," one of them told her.

Other mothers have to be watched to prevent them from carrying the food to the elder children at home. "How can I eat when I know they are hungry?" the women say. "The food chokes me." Mrs. Barnes has to explain that the school is particularly concerned only with the latest bady, but she often manages to supply a little extra food for the hungry mouths at home.

Every fortnight the babies whose mothers attend the school are weighed, and apart from its scientific value, this weighing has proved one of the most valuable features of the school.

In addition to the health lectures there are sewing and cutting classes, at which the mothers are taught to make babies' clothes and to cut down their own and their husbands' old clothes for the elder children.

Give Babies Jin.

The walls of the school are decorated with pictures and drawing showing the right and the wrong way to care for babies. One of the most striking features which meet the eye on entering the general room is a huge placard bearing the words, "Bring your baby up to be a teetotaler." This may sound rather ridiculous to American ears, but it is a very serious injunction in England for it is the custom among Englishwomen of the poorest class to give their babies a little sip of beer, gin or whatever else they drink themselves. One of the commonest sights in the public houses in the poorest quarters of London is the bar lined with women, each carrying a baby, and when the public houses close at midnight these women can be seen leaving them, still carrying the babies.

Then there are charts and diagrams showing the food value of different articles and proving that some foods that are much despised are more nourishing than others that are much more expensive. When the daily dinner is being cooked the mothers are instructed in the preparation of cheap and nourishing articles of diet.

The most recent development of the school is the class for fathers, which has just been started. This is the idea of Mrs. Barnes, the lady superintendent, who found in her visits to the homes that many of the fathers were anxious to help their wives if they only knew how. Others were entirely careless of their most elementary responsibilities. "We found," she says, "that the fathers of Somers Town can be divided into three classes—the attached, the semi-detached and the detached. The last class lives in the public houses and goes home only to sleep."

Men Invited to Come.

The men were invited to come to the school once a week. They are allowed to smoke and have a "sing song," which is the chief delight of the British working man. Then a man doctor who has worked among them and can talk their language drops in, and, apparently in the most casual manner gives them a talk on general hygiene, including the care of their own health, and that of their families. Sometimes the talk is pretty personal.

"I saw your old woman today, Bill," he will say to a burly navvy. "She's looking a bit clemmed (starved). Better see that she gets more to eat," or, "Jim, that last kid of yours is a regular little waster. Why doesn't the wife take better care of it? Better buy more milk and less beer."

The men take these admonitions in good part because they are couched in language that they can understand and because they know that the doctor is "all right" and "not off." They usually act on his advice. One to whom the doctor said that his wife was spending too much time in the public house and too little looking after her children, announced his intention of going home and "bashing her face." The doctor persuaded him to try gentler treatment.

The cost of running the school as it is working at present is about $2,000 a year, but its expansion is checked by lack of funds. The experiment has been such a success that other districts have asked for the establishment of similar institutions, and a series of drawing room meetings is now being held in London to interest society women in this fight to save the babies.

Beauty and Brains.

The Hon. Mrs. Bertrand Russell, to whom the movement owes its inception, is a woman to whom the fates have been unusually generous. She has beauty, such as brains and, best of all, she has an uncommonly kind heart. It is that latter which has led her to devote her talents and energies so unstintedly to movements for the betterment of humanity. And she does not spare herself to obtain a knowledge of conditions at first hand. A few years ago she disguised herself as a factory hand, and as such obtained employment. The result was the publication in a leading review of an article exposing the conditions under which women workers labored in certain industries which caused a great sensation and a stricter enforcement of the factories act. She is one of the most eloquent speakers on temperance in the kingdom. She is a suffragette, but not one of the shrieking variety that goes about seeking martyrdom by imprisonment. Her husband is a brother of Earl Russell and heir presumptive to the title. That means that she may become a peeress some day. But if she should it will make little difference in her devotion to social reforms.

GYPSY KING IS ARRESTED.

Geneva, May 15.—Emile Haussman, "the king of the gypsies," who is wanted for many crimes, has been arrested at Zulrich under dramatic circumstances.

The police had surrounded his tent in a forest near Bulach, and were on the point of entering when he bounded past them half dressed. The police fired in the air, but the fugitive continued until he was overtaken by one of the men named Schaufelberger.

The gypsy attacked Schaufelberger furiously, and would have strangled him but for the arrival of his comrades, one of whom shot Haussman in the leg. Even then he hobbled away to a rock, against which he placed his back and defied the police to seize him.

He was handcuffed after a struggle, whereupon he remarked: "You ought to thank your stars that I left my revolver in the tent, or some of you would have joined me in a long journey. I congratulate you on capturing 'the king of the gypsies' for the first time."

The gypsy bands in Central Europe paid tribute to Haussman, whom they regarded with awe and superstition.

VANDERBILT IS FINED.

Paris, May 15.—Some time ago W. K. Vanderbilt, Sr., who has a fine racing stable and is the owner of a trainer's ground at Les Grosillons, in the Poissy district, entered into negotiations with the local mayor, as he wished to include some public paths in his property, for its improvement. Time wore on, and tired of all the dilatory formalities which had been keeping him in suspense, Mr. Vanderbilt had walls built according to his plan, the consequence being that the objectionable lanes were included in his estate.

Horrified at this bold action, the mayor protested, but in vain, and a forester, who was sent to make a formal demand for the restoration of the paths, met with no more success. Mr. Vanderbilt explained that he was weary of waiting, and was prepared to pay any reasonable sum for the ground, but the mayor was firm, and the case was taken before the Poissy police court.

Vainly it was argued on Mr. Vanderbilt's behalf that the sale of the bits of road had been promised, and that he only wanted to put down the money. Counsel for the municipality maintained that its ground must be left intact, and the judge, adopting his view, condemned Mr. Vanderbilt to a fine of $3, while he has to restore the paths which he had rather prematurely annexed.

TO UTILIZE MOLTEN LAVA.

Scheme to Save Vesuvius's Overflow and Prevent Explosion.

Naples, May 15.—Signor Coartino has written a pamphlet pointing out the danger of an explosion of Vesuvius should the volcano vent, or chimney, become blocked, and proposes to afford an outlet for the incandescent mass contained in the crater by boring a tunnel at the mase of the mountain and leading the molten rock into the sea.

It might even be possible to lead the lava into molds that would give it the shape and size of blocks of cement, such as are used for building quays, breakwaters, etc., and, of course, smaller paving stones for the streets of Naples, such as are now quarried in the very old and cooled lava.

BRIGANDS AT PALERMO.

Palermo, May 15.—This gay metropolis of Sicily has been deeply impressed by an incident which occurred this week at the gates of the city. It was a case of brigandage, to which Palermo has not been accustomed for a very long time.

A certain Vincenzo Mancuso was proceeding on foot toward Villagrazia, a few miles from Palermo, when he was met by three malefactors, of whom two were masked, all armed with rifles and revolvers. More violently than courteously they offered him the embarrassing alternative of handing over all his money or parting with his life. At this moment two carts drove up, the occupants of which were ordered to jump out. This they did without offering any resistance, whereupon they were searched by the brigands, who deprived them of everything they possessed, even of small articles of no value, but which could easily be identified.

Then firing a few shots as a signal to their companions hidden in the vicinity that the "coup" had been effected, the brigands hurried away. People in Palermo are now thinking of the classical period of Sicilian brigandage and hoping that it will not return.

PREFERS FAITH TO LEGACY.

Terms of Will Required Canon Minister to Change Religion.

Canton, Ill., May 15.—Rev. Henry S. Dawson, pastor of St. Peter's Episcopal church, will not be enriched as a legatee of the estate of a relative, Miss Alice T. Booth of New York city, a settlement worker. To become a beneficiary under the will the rector would be required to become a Catholic, but the minister has announced he will not change his religion, and the legacy goes to Miss Booth's aunt.

Rev. Dawson, in discussing the matter, said:

"To me religion is the most sacred thing in the world. To comply with the alleged condition of this will, I should have to turn my back on my bishop, my brethren in the Anglican priesthood and the sacraments by which I have been hitherto nourished. Honest men have made this change, though not many. No one desires more earnestly than myself the reunion of Christendom, especially Catholic Christendom; but it is to be brought about in God's way, not man's way."

Rev. Dawson is married and has one child. He is an earnest preacher, indefatigable worker and highly regarded.

WEST END

MERCHANT MARINE WAR

West End Grocers Going After the Vessel Business.

Four Retailers Will Have Gasoline Launches This Year.

There promises to be a lively merchant marine war on the bay this summer between the different grocers and butchers of the West end. All of them are to be supplied with boats and they are going after the business of furnishing the big boats with food supplies, with a vengeance.

Two concerns which last season did not boast of craft of their own have just purchased gasoline launches and are having them fitted up for active service. One of the boats is owned jointly by a grocer and a butcher, and both will get a chance at the business.

Last season, only two West end stores made any effort to get the marine supply business but this year, two more have entered the lists.

The tradesmen say that the season may be short but that it is going to be a merry one.

Summer Underwear!

We carry a big selection of reliable makes, at lower prices than any of the uptown stores.

SCHOOL BANQUET.

Eighth Grade Pupils at Lincoln School Will Dine.

Members of the eighth grade graduating class at the Lincoln school will sit down to an elaborate banquet at the school this evening. Covers will be laid for about sixty and the affair promises to be one of the most brilliant ever held in the history of the school.

The eighth grade's annual banquet is always an event of the school. The school orchestra will be on hand to dispense music between courses. Parents of the pupils are furnishing the spread and it is given under the supervision of the teachers. There will be half a dozen responses to toasts by members of the class and the teachers.

Following the banquet and the speeches, the company will repair to the upper halls of the school where a short dancing program will be given. The Lincoln school orchestra, comprising fourteen students, will furnish the music.

ST. PAUL GIRL WAS ABDUCTED

Rose Sheerard of St. Paul, 14 years of age, who, it is claimed, was lured away from her home some weeks ago, has been discovered in a "stockade" resort not far north of Duluth.

Patrolman Pat Smith of the St. Paul police department, specially detailed to find the girl and the man who abducted her, has reported that both the abducter and his victim are in custody. They passed through Duluth today, it is understood, on their way to the Saintly City.

The "stockade" is a disorderly resort, run in violation of law, outside the city limits. Its location has not been specified, and the matter has not been reported to the Duluth police.

MEET WITH THE MAYOR

Fire Commissioners and Aldermen Get Together in Conference.

Mayor Thinks Improvements Have Been Delayed Too Long.

The council committee on city finance, fire department and the members of the fire board held a conference with Mayor Haven yesterday afternoon for the purpose of discussing needed improvements in some of the fire halls, and to give the men most directly concerned a thorough understanding of the situation in this respect as it exists at present.

Changes and additions to several of the halls are badly needed, but there is a lack of funds to provide for the desired improvements. An addition to house No. 3, corner of First avenue east and Third street, came in for particular attention, but no decision was reached in regard to the matter. Last fall the council made an appropriation of $2,500 for improvements to No. 3, but when the plans for the addition were completed it was found that it would take about $5,000 to cover the cost of construction and repair. Consequently no action was taken on the bids opened.

In a communication which will be read at the meeting of the council next Monday evening the fire board will recommend that entirely new bids be called for on this improvement. Some changes will be made in the plans. The Lakeside and West end departments are very badly in need of appropriations, but it is hardly likely that anything can be done in regard to them for some little time.

The mayor said this morning that hereafter council committees and men in charge of different departments of the city will meet more often than they have in the past. Heretofore it has not been the practice of the fire commissioners to meet and confer with council committees, for example, and consequently they have not been in as close touch with them and the needs of the department, as might have been desired. These conferences have a tendency to establish everybody concerned on a more friendly basis, and puts the council in a position to act more intelligently on recommendations and suggestions, by making the aldermen more friendly with the subject in hand.

"In the past there has been too much of a tendency on the part of the city to postpone needed improvements until the very last minute," said Mayor Haven this morning. "In future we will try to make needed improvements when their real need is first felt, and thus we will be able to prevent them all coming in a bunch. If everything is put off until the last minute, the city finds itself in a position where it cannot possibly finance all the improvement projects that seem absolutely necessary, and temporary repairs, that must be replaced two or three years later, have to be made. This is false economy. In the matter of bridges, for example, if the city had begun years ago to build, say one or two or three bridges every year, to replace the old and decaying structures, instead of temporarily repairing them, we would not be in a condition now where an expenditure of $40,000 in repairs will be entirely inadequate to meet the need of such work, and we would have been so placed that structures in the most dangerous condition this year could be replaced by more substantial structures of steel and concrete."

BEATING IN PLACE OF RENT

Mrs. Babcock Says Her Tenant Shook and Assaulted Her.

Mrs. Minnie Babcock, has sworn out a warrant of arrest against E. Gammon, charging the latter with having assaulted and beaten her. She said he struck her when she tried to collect money due her as rent.

Mrs. Babcock occupies the lower story of a building at 708 East Third street, and Gammon and his wife rent the upper rooms from her. She complains to the police that the rent is long overdue. Yesterday, she says, she went up stairs and asked Gammon for some money. According to her story, he used unpleasant language and, grabbing her, administered a shaking and beating.

When the woman appeared at the police station she was accompanied by her little daughter, and both were weeping bitterly, the girl in sympathy with her mother. It is alleged that Gammon was drunk at the time of the trouble.

It so happens that Gammon works for a man by the name of Toot.

CLEANING DAY POSTPONED.

Wet Weather Causes Mayor to Put It Off One Week.

On account of the bad weather and general wetness of the ground, Mayor Haven announced this afternoon that the official spring cleaning day has been postponed for one week, until next Saturday, May 23. It is believed that not much can be accomplished under present weather conditions, and therefore it is thought best to postpone the event one week.

STRAW HATS FOR THE BOYS

There are better days a-coming, at least the Ad-man is in hopes, because the Children's Man just telephoned from the second floor that his stock of Straw Hats for the boys is ready for business. A fine day to talk straw hats, isn't it?

We had a good notion to tell the Children's Man "Dry Up!" while he continues to tell us of his summer goods. Khaki Suits, says he, in Norfolk style with Knickers for the boys 8 to 16 years old. Washable, and rain won't spoil them. Very satisfactory for summer wear.

And while the wintry wind blows the big rain drops against the window, he is talking about light colored and light weight Wash Suits, in Russian and in Sailor styles. For boys 2½ to 10 years, and at all prices from 75 cents to $5.00.

Come on in—the water isn't fine!

JUDGE TARBOX DIES SUDDENLY

Well Known Minneapolis Jurist Expires of Apoplexy.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge James C. Tarbox, for many years a prominent Minnesota jurist and politician, was stricken with apoplexy at the Minneapolis Union depot, last night, while waiting for his train to Monticello, Minn., and died almost immediately. The body was taken to the county morgue and the relatives were at once notified. They arrived in Minneapolis today to take charge of the body.

For many years Judge Tarbox was associated with the Minnesota judiciary. When the Eighteenth judicial district was formed he was appointed judge and he held the position for a number of years. For some time past he has been troubled with heart disease, and at first it was thought this had caused his death.

Judge Tarbox was born in Maine, April 10, 1837. He graduated from Bowdoin college in 1879 and came to Minnesota two years later, settling at Monticello.

EAU CLAIRE DOCTOR IS CHARGED WITH CRIME.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. C. E. Phillips, a well-known local physician, has been arrested on a charge of performing an illegal operation and released on $5,000 bail, pending an examination next Wednesday. Edward Hanson, a young man of this city, is also under arrest charged with abetting in the crime. Eorgena Olen of Summit street is the complaining witness. Dr. Phillips and his friends are indignant over the affair, claiming that the case will result in his complete exoneration.

THOUGHT SHE WAS IN WAY

Aged Woman Living With Minneapolis Daughter, Ends Life.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Feeling that she was a burden upon her daughter's family, Mrs. L. E. Carr put herself out of the way yesterday at 115 Central avenue, by committing suicide.

The mother came from New York about three months ago and began living with her daughter, Mrs. Anna Sadenwater. The aged woman wanted to earn her own living, but it was difficult to secure employment, for nobody seemed to want the services of an old woman. She became despondent.

The daughter was away from home yesterday and when she returned at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, she found her mother in the pantry dead, where she had gone, closed the door and turned on the gas.

OLD ENGINEER DEAD.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Ackerly, for twenty-five years an engineer for the Omaha railroad, died Tuesday at Helena, Mont., from erysipelas. He was 54 years of age and had moved to Montana to reside only six months ago. He lived in St. Paul for a number of years at 755 Edgerton street. The body will be brought to St. Paul and the funeral will be held from the residence of his nephew, E. V. Goff, 904 Burr street.

TO SACRAMENTO.

Torpedo Boat Flotilla Will Sail 125 Miles Up River.

San Francisco, May 15.—The torpedo boat flotilla under command of Capt. E. N. Froeman left early today for Sacramento and will arrive there tonight. Five days of solid entertainment has been provided for the reception committee of the capitol city.

This will be the first time any of the vessels of the navy have gone so far inland in California, and, although the navigation of the river is expected to be accomplished without difficulty, the unusual event is attracting considerable attention. Sacramento is 125 miles from this harbor.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Clay Clement in "The New Dominion."

"THE NEW DOMINION."

Simplicity is the keynote of the play, and its charm lies in the natural manner in which the pretty little love story is unfolded, the refined nature of its comedy, and the absence of any of the ordinary stage "business" or reaching after effects.

Mr. Clement, during his student days at Heidelberg, had an opportunity to study the life of the high class German families, and his Baron Hohenstauffen is a gentle, mild mannered, nobleman, cultured and educated.

Mr. Clement is of a different school from the majority of actors of the present day. He reaches his end by a different course. There is a subdued note to all of his work, that is a refreshing change from the ranting of many of the modern dramatic stars.

"The New Dominion" is a one man play, largely. The action centers around the charming scion of German nobility, but the company contains, nevertheless, many finished actors. Miss Kerrigan, the leading woman, possesses a very charming stage presence, and no small measure of dramatic ability. Her interpretation of the charming Southern girl, is full of life and fire.

Martin Rutledge has a splendid character role as the Southern planter, and he handles it most capably.

"The New Dominion" will be repeated tonight. Tomorrow afternoon Mr. Clement will be seen in the role of Hamlet and tomorrow night, "The Bells" will be the attraction. This will close the engagement of the company in Duluth.

WITNESSES WOULD SKIP

Three Montenegrin Witnesses in Murder Case Are Jailed.

Claimed They Were Going to Canada to Work.

Because they threatened to pull up stakes and start for Canada to go to work on a railroad job, three of the men wanted by the state as witnesses in the trial of the murder case against Ell Matich have been placed in the county jail to await the further order of the court.

The three men, Mike and Dako Domjanovich and Gaber Radmlovich, with two other Montenegrins, were brought here from the range to testify before the grand jury in the case of the state against Matich, who has been indicted for murder in the first degree.

Yesterday the three witnesses above named demanded their witness' fees of the county attorney, and made open threats that they would not stay in Duluth longer, but would leave today or tomorrow for Canada.

Mr. Norton immediately petitioned the court to put them under bond for their appearance, and Judge Ensign granted the request, fixing a $500 bond in each case. As none of the three men could give a bond, they were committed to the county jail to be held for the trial.

The other two witnesses have gone back to their work on the range. They promised to be on hand when the case is called for trial.

LOSES $30,000 IN SWINDLE.

Evanston Grain Magnate's Wife is Victim of Canvasser.

Chicago, May 15.—Residents of Evanston were startled yesterday when it became known that Mrs. James A. Patten, wife of the grain magnate, and herself a leader in club and society life in the suburb, had been swindled out of several thousands of dollars by an oily-tongued canvasser. Whether it was a book agent or an art salesman who got the money is not quite clear, but he was an agent of some kind, and, according to reports, he, as the head of a syndicate of sharpers, succeeded in getting about $30,000 from Mrs. Patten.

NEW "COTTON KING" RISES.

J. L. Livermore Makes Profit of $500,000 in Two Weeks.

New York, May 15.—In the senational rise in July cotton in the last few days to 190 points, or $9.50 a bale, it has become known that a new "cotton king" has arisen in the financial world, one whose operations have played havoc with the bears in the cotton pit, and have assisted in cornering the July option.

J. L. Livermore's name was on the lips of every one in the cotton market yesterday, and a new Napoleon of the cotton market is already beginning to dictate terms. Since April 28, when July cotton was the lowest in five years, Mr. Livermore has been steadily accumulating contracts to be delivered next July. It is now estimated that he has made a profit of $500,000 in the last two weeks.

HICKS HAS NOT QUIT.

State Department Denies Reported Resignation of Minister to Chile.

Washington, May 15.—Flat denial is made at the state department of a story telegraphed from Washington to Milwaukee papers, last night, that Col. John Hicks, United States minister to Chile, has notified the state department that he is to return to this country, and has virtually resigned.

CLOQUET PLAY SUCCESS.

Amateur Production of "The Bigamist" Makes Hit.

Cloquet, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The Bigamist," a three-act comedy, presented by local talent under the auspices of St. Andrew's guild of the Episcopal church, last evening drew a packed house, regardless of the disagreeable weather prevailing. The production rivaled any previous attempts in this line by local talent, and the entire cast winning well earned praise for their good showing.

The cast of characters was as follows: "Dick Comfort," married yet single.... ..... F. E. Coolbaugh
"George Merrigale," an unfriendly friend ..... L. A. Kennedy
"Alexander Meander," Dick's uncle, blamed, but blameless .....F. D. Vibert
"Harris," Comfort's man servant ..... C. M. Kutzner
"Mrs. Clemintina Meander," Dick's aunt, blameless, but blamed..... .....Mary Regan
"Edith Comfort," Dick's wife, unknown, unhonored and unsung..... ..... Olivia Grant
"Sally," Mrs. Meander's maid..... ..... Edna Winter

Synopsis—Dick Comfort lives on an allowance given him by his Uncle Meander, upon condition he shall not marry. He, however, falls in love and is married, keeping the fact secret. While living mostly at their country home the young man receives a letter that his uncle will arrive the same morning for a short visit. How is he to keep his uncle from seeing his wife and so discover he married afforded some amusing incidents. Miss Laura Frankenfield of Duluth, who had the play under direction, is being congratulated on the success of the affair.

DIES AT STILLWATER.

Stillwater, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sophie, wife of Frederick Wolf of the town of Grant, died Thursday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. August Isermann, 1222 North Martha street, where she was taken three weeks ago to receive medical attention and nursing. Mrs. Wolf was born in Germany Sept. 20, 1848, and came to this country forty-two years ago, and has resided on the farm thirty-eight years. Surviving are the husband and seven children.

NOTABLE MINOT GATHERING.

Minot, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the finest gatherings that will ever be held in Minot from the standpoint of helpfulness to the home and children, will be the state Sunday school convention which convenes here next week, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Scores of delegates from all over the state will be in attendance. The very best Sunday school workers from all over the state will be present, as well as men of national reputation from the East.

HILL AT GRAND FORKS.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—President Louis W. Hill of the Great Northern railway spent Wednesday in Grand Forks. His visit here was in the nature of a pleasure jaunt. He arrived in the morning with Dr. Quinn and Dr. Charles Mayo of Rochester. They came in President Hill's private car. The car was attached to train No. 26 that evening, and the return trip was made to St. Paul.

RECOVER SOME LOOT.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police of Grand Forks and East Grand Forks have recovered a portion of the $100 worth of silk stolen from Taugbol Sisters' store in a burglary a couple of weeks ago. Twenty yards of it was found in East Grand Forks, where a bartender had given it to his best girl. He purchased it from a third party and claimed that he did not know it was stolen. A small quantity was located in another place on the East side.

IRON MINE PAY DAYS.

Ishpeming, Mich., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The employes of the Lake Angeline mine will be paid Saturday. The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company's pay-days started Thursday, when the workmen at the Cliffs shafts and Lake mines received their checks. The men at the Salisbury and Hard Ore properties will be paid today. The Oliver company's men will be paid next Wednesday.

POLICEMAN UPHELD.

Ashland, Wis., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police and fire commission, by a vote of 3 to 2, sustained Policeman Harvey Stinson and dismissed the charges against him. The charges were: His alleged connection with the occurrence in Mahoney's saloon last Christmas; alleged cowardice in the arrest of Tim Leland; neglect of duty in allowing a prisoner to escape, or in turning him loose, after he had been turned over to him by the chief; neglect of duty in staying for an hour or so off his beat Feb. 25.

ONTARIO BANKER COMMITS SUICIDE.

Forest, Ont., May 15.—Montague Smith of the private banking firm of L. H. Smith & Co., and the Liberal candidate for Tampton in the coming provincial elections, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself through the head. Mr. Smith's business and private affairs were in the best of shape. No cause for the suicide is known.

FUNERAL MARCH CAUSED A MURDERER TO WEEP.

Manila, May 15.—The military authorities will surrender Beacham, the Stotsenberg murderer, to the civil authorities, who will put him on trial for murder. It is alleged that he is insane, but inquiries show that the murder was premeditated and carefully planned.

The prisoner showed no remorse until he heard the regimental band playing the funeral march at Private Clark's funeral, when he broke down and wept.

HE'S A NICE MAN.

Chicago News: "He's perfectly to her,' said the man's wife.

"Humph!" said the man.

"Well, he is. Ellen says he's just a model."

"Pine!"

"She's certainly lucky—a great deal more than most women are. He doesn't belong to a single club, Ellen says. He did, but he gave them all up when he got married. He said he was going to make his home his club."

"How noble of him!" said the man.

"You may sneer," said his wife, "but I think it was sweet of him. I know some men who make their clubs their homes."

"Some clubs are pretty comfortable."

"Yours must be."

"It is. If you were only there I'd never leave it."

"I suppose not," said the man's wife, smiling a little nevertheless. "But he must be splendid. Ellen says he doesn't smoke or drink or anything and she was there a week and she never saw so much as an irritated look on his face, and there were times when the meals were simply awful. She remarked it to Grace and Grace said he was always that way."

"Marvelous!" said the man.

"Well, it really is, because I know how exasperating Grace can be at times. Whatever she does he thinks is exactly right. He never finds fault with her. If she wants him to do anything for her he does it without a murmur, and he's awfully handy. Once when they were without help he scrubbed all the floors and did the sweeping all the time. He would have cooked, too, if Grace had let him; but he did all the rough, hard work. And he'll sew a button on his clothes any time."

"Does he take care of the baby?"

"There is no baby, but if there was he would. Why shouldn't he?"

"That's the question. Why not?"

"And no matter what she wants he'll always let her have it. Ellen says she had the loveliest fur set that he gave her. She didn't even ask for it. Just hinted that she would like to have it and the next thing she knew it was delivered there at the house."

"Am I to understand by that that you want a fur set?"

"You know perfectly well that I don't. If I did it wouldn't be much use hinting. If I got it when I asked for it I should be lucky."

"You certainly would," admitted the man.

"Well, I've got one, anyway, and I suppose I'll have to make it do. But don't you think Grace is a fortunate girl?"

"I'm sure I don't know," said the man. "Don't they ever quarrel?"

"Quarrel!" exclaimed his wife. "Didn't I tell you just now that he never uttered a cross or impatient word?"

"You didn't say anything about Grace."

"It takes two to make a quarrel, doesn't it?"

"Not when you're married. It takes only one then. I don't suppose it's quite as satisfactory to a woman if she can't get her husband to lose his temper. You say he doesn't. Then I should say that Grace was rather unfortunate in her choice. It must be horribly monotonous for her. You wouldn't like it if you couldn't make me mad. You'd miss half the fun, and you know it. Own up, now! Would you want me hanging around the house all the time and doing the family ironing? Wouldn't you want to get rid of me one or two evenings in the week, and how would you know whether the meal was good if I didn't Kick when it was bad?"

"Well," said the man's wife, "I don't know that I should want to have you too good, because you might die young, and I don't want you to die just yet. But—"

"What is it?" asked the man.

"Of course, darling, if you want to get me that set of furs it would be just as cheap in the end, because I'll have to have them next winter, anyway."

REPUBLICAN TARIFF TWADDLE.

H. E. Miles in Success Magazine: The Republican light vaudeville politician will bring out his campaign puppet of free trade and make believe that it is an issue, though it is "deader than Hecuba." It never was an issue, except upon his insistence in his political addresses. Whenever our political artist hears the word "tariff," he will strike his puppet. And so used and skilled is he in this Punch and Judy act, that he will insist on demonstrating with it, whether the onlookers are willing or not. He knows that the country is absolutely and entirely committed to protection, and that it would be as easy to tear from the Bible the ten commandments as the principles of protection to American industries from the hearts of the people. He will claim for protection whatever of good the Almighty has vouchsafed us as a people, leaving to Beelzebub whatever blessings we have failed to acquire. The equability of the rainfall and the fortunate birthrate are due not to providence, but to the Dingley bill. The public will be told that the panic of 1893 was due to the fact that the Wilson bill was a free-trade measure, which it was not, and that the trials of the present day must not be called a panic, because they come under the Dingley bill, which will be called protective, as it is not. And so the politicians will take care that the people do not think, but, in Ingalls' phrase, only "think that they think."

HE WAS STILL COUNTING.

Success Magazine: A doctor, now eminent, was at one time serving as interne in one of the Philadelphia hospitals, as well as holding his own with a coterie of rather gay friends. On a certain morning the physician awoke to find that he had sadly overslept. Sleepily donning his attire he hastened to the hospital, and soon a stalwart young Irishman claimed his attention.

"Well, my man, what seems to be your trouble this morning?" inquired the doctor, concealing a yawn and taking the patient by the hand to examine his pulse.

"Faith, sor, it's all in me breathin', doctor. I can't git me breath at all, at all."

"The pulse is normal, Pat, but let me examine the lung action a moment," replied the doctor, kneeling beside the cot and lying his head on the Irishman's chest. "Now let me hear you talk," he continued, closing his eyes and listening attentively for sounds of pulmonary congestion.

A moment of silence.

"What will I be sayin', doctor?" finally asked the patient.

"Oh, say anything. Count. Count one, two, three and up, that way," murmered the physician, drowsily.

"Wan, two, three, fure, five, six,"

When the young doctor, with a start, opened his eyes, Pat was continuing weakly, "tin hundred an' sixty-nine, tin hundred an' sivinty, tin hundred an' sivinty-wan——."

THE WOMAN AND THE FELINE.

Isabel Gordon Curtis, in Success Magazine: A Western judge—let us hope he had been singularly unfortunate in his female relatives—recently remarked that all women were cats. Women read that press dispatch everywhere, one morning, and for a few hours at least the ears of that judge must have burned. Still, there are women who indorsed his judgment, although they feel that he might have qualified his remarks and said "some women are cats." One can't help wondering why poor pussy, from time immemorial, should have been picked out as the prototype of a mean, treacherous, back-biting woman, for a cat which is well-fed and kindly treated is a lovable animal, and, queerly enough, it is the animal on which most women lavish their love. A man who studies the traits of dumb creatures tells us, however, that the female cat treats the species of her own sex in a peculiarly mean and vicious manner. It bites insteads of back-biting, and, at the first throb of jealousy, will scratch like a good fellow. If that is so, we have to confess that there are cat-like women everywhere, in the lowest rank of life and in the highest, for we have had cat-like queens; clever old Queen Bess had many a pussy cat trait.

You can sell your real estate—and anybody else's—anywhere—any time—most any price (if honest)—if you can write or procure a convincing ad.

LOWER COURT UPHELD IN THE CLARK MINE CASE

Title to Clark and Leonard Mines Now Clear.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court handed down an opinion today in the case of David M. Rogers and others against the Clark Iron company, affecting title to two iron mines in St. Louis county, known as the Clark & Leonard mines, said to be worth upwards of $1,000,000. The decision leaves title to the property in the iron company.

The plaintiffs are heirs-at-law of James M. Rogers of Arkansas, who died in 1896, and the action was brought to quiet title to the property on which the mine is located. Their claim was that the elder Rogers entered the lands as a soldiers' homestead.

At the trial it was brought out that Rogers was a Confederate soldier and therefore was not entitled to benefit upon the soldiers' homestead law and that he had in fact sold the scrip. The plaintiffs then set up the claim that because the government had winked at the fraud in the first instance, the iron company could not plead it. They also claimed that the sale of the scrip was not an actual sale and that Rogers' signatures were forgeries.

The lower court held that Rogers and his heirs could not play both fast and loose, and this ruling is sustained by the supreme court.

The Findings.

The whole decision is based on the sale of the scrip. The syllabus first gives a general history, and then holds as follows:

"1. The introduction of the patent by the plaintiffs made out prima facie title to plaintiffs, although it remained in the Duluth land office.

"2. It was competent for defendants who were in adverse possession by adequate pleading to defeat plaintiffs' action by showing a title outstanding in a third person without connecting themselves with that title.

"3. Under the general denial plaintiffs were entitled to show an outstanding title in Baker by proving the fact on which it was based, and by invoking the rule that an interest which subsequently accrued may be an estoppel and other legal or equitable principles applicable to such facts.

"4. The burden of proof rested on the defendants to sustain such outstanding title by competent, strong and satisfactory evidence.

"5. The Rogers additional soldiers homestead scrip, was personal property and assignable notwithstanding the opposed practice of the federal land office.

"6. Four principles of evidence in particular apply to the testimony adduced to show the existence and contents of the missing powers through which title was transferred from Rogers to Baker, namely:

"(a) The acts of federal officials in allowing the location, executing final receipt and issuing the patent constitute evidence that all preliminary steps necessary thereto have been properly taken.

"(b) The existence and contents of a lost or destroyed instrument of great age may be shown by the best evidence obtainable under the circumstances.

"(c) Proof of business habits or custom is properly admitted in evidence in corroboration of the defective memory of a witness with respect to the existence and contents of a missing instrument.

"(d). Proof of actual use of a definite and conventional form of a power of attorney justifies a satisfactory inference as to the condition of such power.

"7. The finding of the trial court as a genuineness of Rogers' signature to the fraudulent application and entry, the existence and contents of the lost power of attorney, the location by Baker, the delivery to him of final receipt were sustained by competent evidences consisting in part of oral testimony of documentary evidence, and of testimony to the course of business and the use of conventional forms, and by the presumption of the performance of official duty.

"8. These powers were beneficial and revocable, and did not terminate with Rogers' death.

"9. They were adequate in the terms to form and convey to Baker the interest of Rogers.

"10. After the location Baker had a vested and substantial interest in the land.

"11. Upon the issuance of the patent to Rogers, his heirs and assigns beneficial ownership of the land passed to Baker by the doctrine of relation or of enforced estoppel.

"12. That defendants were not in provity with Rogers did not prevent an application of those doctrines to vest title in Baker in furtherance of the patent. Gibson vs. Chateau distinguished.

"13. Plaintiffs were estopped to use Baker's vesting title in their fraudulent ancestor and to repudiate it as conferring any interest in him as against a bona fide purchaser for value. Holding to the doctrine: 'Qui approbat non reprobat.'

"14. The finding of the trial court that defendants have established an outstanding title in a third person should not be disturbed."

TWO FINES POSSIBLE

Indictments Against Saloon Men May Raise Legal Point.

Prosecution Under Both Law and Ordinance, Legal.

If indictments are returned against saloonkeepers of the county who are charged with violating the state liquor laws the grand jury will establish a new precedent and raise an interesting point of law.

The grand jury will take the position that the liquor dealers in question have by their one alleged act been guilty of two distinct offenses, one being a violation of the city or village ordinances and the other being a violation of the state law.

According to this construction, any liquor dealer who has already been arrested and fined for violating the city or village ordinances governing the sale of liquor is still liable under the state law and will be prosecuted for violation of the same, although he has been punished once for the act.

Under such a precedent, saloonkeepers who sell liquor after hours or on Sundays would be liable to two prosecutions for the act, one under the city ordinance and the other under the state law. The aggregate penalty, in case of conviction in both instances would be made very severe.

Local attorneys claim that the supreme court has already passed on the constitutionality of the double prosecution, holding that prosecution for the offense under the city ordinances does not bar the state from prosecuting for the same offense under the state law.

BUILDING BILL PASSES HOUSE

The Cities in Minnesota Which Are Benefitted Thereby.

Washington, May 15.—The house today passed the omnibus public building bill. It carries a total of $23,100,000.

Austin and Rochester, $50,000.
New Ulm, increase of $20,000, making total cost $50,000.
Faribault, site and building to cost $50,000.
Alexandria, increase of $20,000, making total cost $50,000.
Virginia, site and building, $55,000.
Brainerd, $30,000.
Willmar, site and building, $50,000.
Crookston, $25,000 increase in limit of cost.
Moorhead, site $5,000.

COPPER STOCKS HAVE A RALLY

After a Decline During Middle of the Session.

North Butte opened at $65, advanced to $66.25, declined to $63.37½ and closed at $64.25 bid and $64.75 asked. Amalgamated opened at $68.75, declined to $66.62½, rallied to $68.37½ and closed at $67.87½ bid.

Greene-Cananea opened at $9.50, declined to $9.25, reacted to $9.50 and closed at $9.25 bid and $9.37½ asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $110, advanced to $112.50 and closed at $111 bid and $112 asked. Butte Coalition opened at $25.12½, declined to $24.12½, rallied to $25 and closed at $24.87½ bid and $25 asked. Anaconda opened at $45.12½, declined to $43.75, rallied to $45.50 and closed at $45.50 bid.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $13.50, declined to $13 and closed at $13.12½ bid and $13.25 asked. Calumet & Sonora was a feature of the local curb again today. It sold as high as $8.75, declined to $8.37½ and closed at $8.37½ bid.

Globe sold at $6.50 and $6.25 and closed at $6.25 bid and $6.37½ asked; Butte & Superior at $1.25 and closed at $1.12½ bid and $1.25 asked and Copper Queen of Idaho at $1 and closed at $1 bid and $1.12½ asked. Denn-Arizona sold at $2.87½.

Black Mountain sold at $4.50 and closed at $4.50 bid and $4.75 asked.

EARTHQUAKE RECORDED.

Washington, May 15.—An earthquake of considerable intensity that lasted an hour was recorded on the weather bureau's seismograph here early today. The origin, according to a statement of Chief Willis L. Moore of the bureau, is approximately 3,200 miles from Washington.

PROTEST AGAINST INCREASED RATES.

Chicago, May 15.—Delegates from fifty commercial and shippers associations of the East and Middle West met in conference here today to discuss means of preventing Eastern railroads from carrying into effect a proposed increase in freight rates. The conference was held under the auspices of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. It is expected by the promoters of the meeting that the result will be the starting of a movement to further pending national legislation which will make it impossible for the railroads to increase rates without the consent of the interstate commerce commission.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

A small maiden of demure appearance and so fashionable looking that she might have stepped forth from the Frenchy fashion pages of Vogue, tripped down the street, her short skirt bobbing in a pert and most saucy way. Her hair was bobbed and thick and shining. Her complextion was smooth and pink and beautiful. Her eyes were soft and blue and innocent of guile. She was about 7 years old and small for her age. She carried a library book under her arm, showing that she was awake to the advantages offered youth in the metropolis of Duluth.

She tripped along all the time it has taken to tell how she looked. Then she entered the library and walked with precise steps to the door of the children's deparament. It was closed. The immaculate and cherubic looking child placed her hand on the knob and turned it and pushed. Nothing happened.

"Stung," she said in a nicely moderated tone of voice while she turned to climb the stairs to inquire if Kant's "Critique of Pure Reason" was available.

Losing puffs is coming to be so common an occurrence that the popular young man who is experienced in the ways of woman no longer feels shocked and embarrassed if the maiden with whom he is enjoying life suddenly clutches the back of her head and with agitated violet eyes turned imploringly to him, announces, "I've lost my puffs." Time was when woman would as soon have admitted to teeth purchased by the set as to hair which could be removed and placed in a top bureau drawer. Not so any longer. She will unpin the puffs and rearrange her hair and repin the puffs with the same nonchalance with which she removes her gloves. The shy young man who is keen on keeping his illusion or delusions concerning woman is likely to be agitated by the almost appalling frankness of the girl of today.

These spring winds are hard on puffs. It is bad enough to keep the hair which nature has fastened in more or less securely, but with the additional troubles of pinning on the kind that is bought at so much a puff the wonder is that more are not picked up along the street.

The loss of a row of puffs is a loss like unto no other. No matter how frank one may be in acknowledging that they did not grow there, one rather hates to advertise for their return. They are total loss all around for the finder can utilize them only by dyeing her own crop or hair to their shade.

A SQUARE DEAL.

"Carlyle once said that his wife's relation to him was the same as his relation to his Creator. Carlyle lived a good many years ago. He was a genius. Geniuses say and do strange things. You look upon your wife quite differently. You have the enlightened views of the twentieth century American. Are you sure, however, that you are giving your wife a square deal?" asks a writer in the May Appleton's Magazine. "Perhaps she, with all her charm and brains, doesn't happen to have either great energy or executive ability. She may not want any occupation outside your home. She may not be strong enough for anything else. In that case she must get her experience of life second hand. She can perhaps, get much from her reading, from her friends. She must, however, depend mainly upon you. You must be her point of contact with the larger life outside your home. You must be the window through which she looks out upon the world and learns the lessons the world alone can teach. If you surround your doings with an air of mystery—make the patronizing assumption that she can't understand the affairs which interest and occupy you, you deliberately narrow her life, you deliberately lessen her chances for efficiency and happiness. No matter how good a provider you may be, no matter how kind and considerate, you are not giving her a square deal. This does not mean that you should heap your business cares and troubles upon your wife's head. That would be as wrong as for her to shift her domestic troubles to your shoulders.

"Perhaps you are so unfortunate as to be discontented with your wife. She is frivolous, extravagant, unpractical. You feel that her beauty does not counteract these deficiencies? Probably that is true, but who is to blame? Did you marry her because she was economical, practical, a good housekeeper, a good prospective mother? You were fascinated by her because she was pretty, irresponsible, illogical and whimsical. You are now discontented with her because she is irresponsible, illogical and whimsical. Did you thing that a wedding ring and a husband would change her nature? Would you buy a horse because he could travel in 2:10, and then become disgusted with him because he couldn't haul bricks? Strange as it may seem, the wife with whom you are discontented was once the pretty girl whom you were wild to marry. Nobody made you marry her! She didn't tell you she was a good cook or an experienced housekeeper. Your mother wanted you to marry another girl who was both. You laughed at the thought. You got what you wanted. If you don't want what you got that is your fault and yours alone. Why not give up expecting the impossible? If you thus give her an honest chance she may yet achieve what now seems impossible. If she does not, take your medicine!"

CHILDREN'S MATINEE

Special Arrangements Made For Children at May Festival.

As the matinee concert of the Festival series, on Tuesday afternoon next, has a special interest for children, on account of the children's chorus, singing Benoit's cantata, "Into the World," the directors of the Oratorio society decided, some weeks ago, to allow all school children to attend the matinee at a nominal charge of 25 cents. By this action it is anticipated that hundreds will avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing their schoolmates sing this charming little cantata, and at the same time listen to the Minneapolis orchestra in orchestral numbers, and solos by Miss Sammis and Mr. Towne.

CONSTANT SMOKERS.

Royal Ladies Said to Be Fond of Cigarettes.

It is not to be supposed that the class of women who ape the doings of the great should do otherwise than smoke cigarettes, when it is well known that nearly all the queens of Europe are constant smokers. How is it possible to do better than to follow their example? It is said the dowager empress of Russia smokes an enormous number of cigarettes every day. Her happier sister, Queen Alexandra, has never been known to smoke even one, but, then, she grew up under the eye of Queen Victoria, who was the last woman in the world to countenance such a habit. The unfortunate czarina, previous to her marriage, had never smoked, but it's not surprising that she took up the habit, for if anyone needs something soothing to the nerves it must be she. The mother of the queen of Portugal, the countess of Paris, is said to have preferred a mild cigar to a cigarette, but her daughter chooses a Russian cigarette, while ex-Queen Natalie of Servia selects Balkan cigarettes, which are privately manufactured for her. The queen of Roumania is credited with smoking continually and the queen mother of Spain allows herself cigarettes as her one luxury, and smokes both Russian and Egyptian. All these are ever-so-much-more-than-too awfully interesting facts; that is, they are said to be facts, but some details that should have been given are withheld.

When a royal lady is said to smoke cigarettes continually does it mean that she smokes sixty or one hundred, or more, a day? Does she make her own? Many cigarette smokers—that is, real "conoshers"—do and would rather go without than smoke the manufactured article. Does she inhale the smoke or doesn't she? All these questions are of interest.

Springtime Desserts.

After a winter of plum puddings, rich custards and heavy mince pies, all the members of the household will welcome the sight and taste of early fruits. In large cities strawberries have been in market for some time, pineapples are plentiful and cheap and pieplant always makes a tasty dessert after a sweet salad. Here are a few recipes which the housewife will welcome:

Pieplant Pie—This pie should have only the lower crust of fairly rich pastry. Cover a deep pie dish with a crust and fill with the following: Stew the pieplant in as little water as possible until very tender. Beat the yolks of two eggs, two tablespoons of cornstarch and half a cup of sugar all together. Put this in the pieplant and let it boil until thick, then add the juice of one small lemon. Fill the crust with this. Make a meringue of the whites of the eggs and two tablespoons of sugar, and brown in medium oven.

Pineapple Tipsy—Cut the top from a large, very ripe pineapple. Also cut sufficient from the stalk end to make it stand firmly on a platter. Now remove all the inside portion of the pineapple, tearing it away with a fork and leaving nothing but the hollow case. Remove the hard pieces of the fruit and cut into small dice. Put these into a deep dish with an equal amount of fresh strawberries, cut in halves. Sprinkle liberally with granulated sugar and cover with a wineglass of sherry, place on the ice for an hour, occasionally basting the fruit with the syrup which forms. Put the pineapple case in the ice box. When ready to serve, add half a cupful of nut meats to the fruit mixture, fill the pineapple case and serve on a platter garnished with geranium leaves.

Rhubarb Tartlets—Make a puff paste as follows and fill tart shells with it: One pound of butter, one of flour and the white of one egg. Wash the salt out of the butter, or use fresh butter, if you have it. It is likewise better to use what is known as pastry flour, not patent. Take a little of the butter with the flour and white of an egg and mix into dough with a small quantity of ice water. Roll out rather thin, spread on a layer of butter, fold over and roll again. Repeat this process until the butter is all used. Now put this away on the ice until the next day, when it will be ready for use. Fill the tart shells with rather a thick layer of this, brown in quick oven and fill with rhubarb, prepared as follows: Neatly trim one pound of fresh rhubarb, remove all the fibers, wash in cold water, drain and cut into pieces not over an inch long. Place in saucepan with four ounces of sugar (preferably brown) and half a teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Mix well with a wooden spoon, cover the pan and let it cook slowly for about twenty minutes, stirring frequently. Fill shells with this, edge with powdered sugar and serve.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Carrots, 10 cents a bunch.
New potatoes, 4 pounds for 25 cents.
Pie plant, 5 cents a pound.
Veal stew, 12 cents a pound.
Pork tenderloin, 30 cents a pound.
Spring lamb, $2.50 a hind quarter.
Veal stew or roast lamb is the choice that is offered and even though most people will say "lamb stew" it won't be because they really like it better, either. If ever there is an excuse for stew, such a day as has been provided during the last twelve hours is it. When one's marrow, a portion of one's anatomy, of which one is never conscious until one is frozen to that imaginary point, has become like a thin thread of very cold ice buried so deep within one that woollens and blankets cannot penetrate to warm it, then, if ever, one can view with kindly toleration a stew of tender lamb punctuated at intervals with bits of sweet and tender carrots, and adorned at still other intervals with light finely cooked dumplings and the whole thing so hot that war and its synonym seem like a flat which is heated by the landlord before the steam is turned on before 6 in the morning.

RAILROADS

MAY CAUSE MORE LAWS

Higher Freight Rates May Cause Renewed Railroad Legislation.

Shippers Are Preparing to Resist Increase in Rates.

In the opinion of a prominent local railroad man the placing in effect of increased freight rates at the present time would have the result of fostering anti-railway legislation, with the possible passage of more darstic laws than are upon the statute books of the state at the present time.

This official states that shippers have combined with the roads to terminate the hue and cry against the railroads. The fierce wave of anti-railway sentiment that swept the country has almost ceased, but with the talk of increasing freight rates the first mutterings of protest have indicated what action may be sure to follow the increase of rates at a time when many manufacturers are finding it extremely difficult to show a profit on the right side of the ledger.

The increasing of freight rates will have a tendency to decrease the territory of shippers and jobbers. In other words it will have the effect of restraining trade. The increase under consideration by the Eastern and Western roads is 13.3 per cent for first class freight, 13.9 per cent for second class freight, 14 per cent for third class freight, 14.3 per cent for fourth class freight, 10 per cent for fifth class freight and 8 per cent for sixth class freight.

This will include an increase on iron, lumber and other products for which the demand at the present time is at the lowest possible figure. In the present state of the business conditions of the country, as a whole, the placing in effect of the contemplated increases in freight rates would work an untold injury to many lines of business.

Another Duluth railway official is of the opinion that there are too many commodity rates. He is of the opinion that certain lines of manufactured goods could well afford to have the commodity rates removed. The removal of commodity rates on a good many lines of freight would result in the increasing of freight rates on certain lines which are receiving a very low rate and would obviate in a great measure the necessity—which railroad men claim—of raising the freight tariff on general class freight.

The shippers, through their various associations, are preparing to resist any attempt to increase the rates on general freight, is apparent from the reports that have reached this city. That is one reason why it is pointed out that the attempt to increase rates at the present time will undoubtedly result in a revival of the sentiment against railway methods.

Under the present administration the railways of this state would run their heads against a solid wall of opposition. Minnesota shippers are pretty well organized, too, and they are prepared to combat any increase in general rates. Taken as a whole, it would seem that the time is not propitious for the rate increase that is contemplated, and that certain shrewd railway men are aware of this and are opposed to any line of action thaat would result in the possible enacting of drastic anti-railway legislation.

Reduce Fare.

The Wisconsin Central railway has officially served notice upon the roads composing the Western Passenger association that it has made a rate of a fare and a half from points where the one way fare from points on its line to St. Paul is over $5. This is a special convention rate for the Shriner's convention, to be held in St. Paul next month, and is made over the protest of certain lines that are members of the Western Passenger association.

Just what effect the action of the Wisconsin Central will have it is difficult to say. Some railroad men believe that a small ruction may result from the special rate. Others state that the other roads in the association will fall in line and that no trouble among the roads will follow.

Convention Rates.

Some of the Western railroads have a plan for the establishment of the certificate plan for conventions where the attendance is over 1,000. Delegates to the convention under the plan would pay the full fare one way, and if is found that those utilizing the railroads number a thousand they would be given a half fare for the return trip.

The making of special fares for conventions of any size seems to have been established, and consequently the roads have set about making plans to meet the conditions imposed upon them by the action of the Western and Eastern roads in making special rates for the Republican national convention.

Ship Lumber Here.

Arkansas and Louisiana yellow pine is being shipped to Minnesota, said a railway official this morning, for the simple reason that certain lumber dealers in the South, by reason of the stringency, have found it expedient to sell their lumber at a sacrifice. Some pine of those sections has found its way to Duluth in search of a market. The shipments are not heavy, but it shows that some of the Southern dealers are forced to sell at prices low enough to compete with local lumber dealers in order to afford a market for a surplus of stock.

Your stomach can digest "FORCE"

when it can't digest any other food. That's because the crisp flakes of whole wheat are thoroughly mixed with the saliva and other digestive fluids, and because the starch in the wheat is converted into dextrine by barley-malt, thereby relieving your intestines of the hardest part of their work.

"FORCE" is made of the best white wheat, steam-cooked, rolled into thin flakes, combined with the purest barley-malt and baked. Always "crisp" it before serving it by pouring into a pan and warming it in oven. Then serve in large dish with cream, piling the flakes in one side of the dish and pouring the cream in the other side, dipping the flakes as eaten.

PRESIDENT HAS RIGHT TO DISMISS SOLDIERS.

New York, May 15.—The right of President Roosevelt summarily to dismiss a negro soldier of the Twenty-fifth Infantry for alleged participation in the riot at Brownsville, Texas, was sustained today by Judge Hough in the United States district court. Oscar W. Reed, the soldier sued the government to recover $122 as wages from the date of his dismissal to the expiration of his enlistment. District Attorney Stinson contended that the president had a right to dismiss the soldier. Judge Hough sustained this contention and directed a judgment in favor of the government.

JAPS NEVER TAKE COLD.

Chicago Tribune: With the approach of chilly weather people are becoming fearful lest they should take cold after a hot bath, but this opinion is unable to reconcile itself with the immunity of the Japanese from colds.

The ordinary bath consists of a large wooden tub, oval in shape and fitted with a cover. Before he enters the tub the bather thoroughly lathers himself from head to foot, and washes the suds off by means of a wooden ladle or dipper. He then sits in the tub, immersed up to his chin, for several minutes, enduring a degree of heat by which a European would be well nigh parboiled.

When Japan first began to study the methods of Western nations, the excessive heat of the baths was strongly condemned and a law was made that the water in the public baths should be only moderately heated. This caused great discontent, so a committee, composed of European and Japanese medical men was appointed to decide the question. The verdict was in favor of the national custom, which was pronounced to be not only harmless, but beneficial.

The high temperature of the water was said to open the pores of the skin thoroughly, even without the use of soap, and a healthy action of the skin and cleanliness were secured, which it was impossible to get with any amount of washing in cold, or so-called hot baths.

TWAIN ON PROHIBITION.

Crossing the Atlantic with Mark Twain last summer," said a W. C. T. U. woman, "I asked his opinion of the prohibition law. His reply was very characteristic, very humorous.

"'I am a friend of temperance, and want it to succeed,' he said, 'but I don't think prohibition is practical. The Germans, you see, prevent it. Look at them. I am sorry to learn that they have just invented a method of making brandy out of sawdust. Now, what chance will prohibition have when a man can take a ripsaw and go out and get drunk with a fence rail? What is the good of prohibition if a man is able to make brandy mashes out of the shingles on his roof, or if he can get delirium tremens by drinking the legs off the kitchen chairs?'"

SECOND MURDER INDICTMENT

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the grand jury was still in session and just when the final report will be made is not yet known. It is expected the final report will embrace indictments against liquor dealers and there may also be a reprimand of the city council on account of its attitude toward violators of the liquor laws.

It is expected that this afternoon an indictment charging murder in the first degree will be returned against Eli Matich. Matich is accused of shooting and killing a Montenegren named Mike Rodonovich near the Croxton mine at Chisholm. There will be two trials for murder in the first degree at the May term of court, an indictment also having been returned against Henry Wilson, who killed his wife at West Duluth March 23.

WOULD MAKE CHICAGO "DRY"

C. D. Woodward Says the Scheme is Not Altogether Visionary.

C. D. Woodward of Chicago, at the St. Louis, is an enthusiastic member of the Chicago Temperance league. He took an active part in the recent campaign in Illinois for Prohibition, which, he says, was successful beyond the hopes of the more conservative members of the league.

The next move on the part of the members of the league, says Mr. Woodward, is a campaign for the closing of the saloons of Chicago. This may seem a very big proposition to tackle, and Mr. Woodward says that the members of the league realize what a project they will undertake. But they are determined to close the saloon, if such a thing is possible, and propose putting the question to the suffrage of the people.

They have already begun a campaign of education in Chicago. They are working up sentiment in favor of the abolition of the saloon, and in view of the success that has attended the anti-saloon fight all over the country, Mr. Woodward states that he has the highest hope in the ultimate success of the anti-saloon fight in Chicago. He says that it may require years to abolish the saloon, but in time it must come, and that the efforts of the members of the temperance and anti-saloon leagues are bound to bear fruit.

LIGHTHOUSE BEING BUILT

Rock of Ages Light Will be Completed in October.

Walter L. Beyer of Detroit, Mich., the engineer in charge of the construction work of the Rock of Ages lighthouse, which is in process of construction three miles southeast of Isle Royal, is at the Lenox today.

According to the plans of Mr. Beyer the work will be completed about the first of October. Part of the work on the new lighthouse was accomplished last year, so that the engineers believe that it can be carried on to completion early in the fall.

The new lighthouse, says Mr. Beyer, will have a most important bearing on navigation. Vessels in the fall months encounter severe gales in that part of the lake and are obliged to beat up under the lee of the island. The completion of the lighthouse will be a blessing to sailing masters, as it will afford a mark as to the dangers to be encountered by vessels at that point.

Mr. Beyer was entertained at lunch today at the Kitchi Gammi club.

SENATE SUBSTITUTES THE ALDRICH BILL.

Washington, May 15.—The senate committee on finance met today and voted unanimously to amend the Vreeland currency bill, passed by the house yesterday, by striking out everything but the enacting clause, and inserting the provision of the Aldrich bill, as passed by the senate, and it was immediately reported to the senate by Mr. Aldrich. The Aldrich bill was amended, however, by the elimination of Section eight and eleven, the former being the Johnson reserve feature, and the other the La Follette provision, prohibiting a national bank from loaning money to a corporation, or investing money in stock of a corporation, the officers or directors of which are officers or directors of the bank making the investment or loan. Sections were added providing for the appointment of a commission of nine senators and nine members of the house, to be called the "National monetary commission."

The senate today passed the Aldrich currency bill as a substitute for the Vreeland bill, after considering it for about half an hour. The vote was 47 to 20.

Young Man Passed Forged Check for $75 and Fled.

Officers are now searching for a Duluth young man, who last evening passed a forged check for $75 on a Fourth street saloon keeper. The youth wrote the man a letter saying that this morning he would be in Canada, and that it would be useless to present the check for payment, as it was worthless.

Later another check for $14.75 turned up.

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE MEETS AT SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, May 15.—Delegates to the Independence League party state convention met today. James F. Peck of Berkeley, chairman of the state central committee, called the convention to order.

A REAL TOM SAWYER.

Gets Four Carpet-Cleaning Companies Into Competition.

Because the United States department is short of funds, the heads of the various departments of the Brooklyn navy yards have been compelled to tax their ingenuity to the utmost in their efforts to make both ends meet. This is especially true of the department of yards and docks, the head of which asked for largely increased appropriations this year, but who was granted even less than he had had the year before, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

The house cleaning and spring renovating time is fast approaching, and it is up to the civil engineer who has charge of all the construction and repair work on land and the general care of the plant in the navy yard to effect this renovating and cleaning in the most economical manner. In former years he has employed a gang of several men to beat all the carpets in the yard. This is no mean task, for there are upwards of 20,000 yards of carpets and rugs in the various buildings and quarters. It took several weeks last spring to beat all of them, and occasioned no end of discomfort.

When the civil engineer looked over his accounts this year he discovered that no funds would be available for carpet cleaning, and he knitted his brow and thought. While thus engaged, his eyes happened to rest upon a certain letter head that bore the name of a certain pneumatic house cleaning company. Then he remembered that he had been frequently circularized by several such companies that were anxious to introduce their machines into the navy department.

A bright idea struck him. Why not conduct a competitive test of all these machines? The very thing. So he had one of his assistants invite the manufacturers of dust-lifting machinery to enter such a test. Of course, each of them was more than anxious to demonstrate the superiority of his machine over all of the others, and this morning four of them appeared, pursuant to agreement, with their machines ready to take part in the test.

Engineer Gregory showed his superior acumen by designating his offices as the first to be experimented upon. There are three rugs in these apartments, all of which are in sore need of being separated from a year long accumulation of dust. His assistant, Bellinger, therefore, set to work to mark off squares in the rugs and to provide for fairness in the competition. Then all four of the competitors were set to work cleaning the rugs. They were given all the latitude they desired this morning. Each was allowed to clean his portion of the rugs in his own peculiar manner. The dust that each machine extracted from the rug was collected in a proper receptacle and weighed. The machine that extracted the most dust, of course, was conceded to be the winner of the test.

But other tests are in store for the competitors. The machines are to be tried on various kinds of carpets and under varying conditions. It is thought that practically the entire 20,000 yards of carpet will have to be utilized for these tests, and then, when all of the carpets are cleaned, a known quantity of dirt will be rubbed into one particular carpet and a test held to find out which machine extracts the greatest percentage of that known quantity. That will be quite the most important test, and the one that will determine the superiority of any one of the four machines. But in the meantime the civil engineer will have accomplished his spring house cleaning free of charge.

When congress hears of this it is probable that it will reward the civil engineer by elevating him to the rank of official house cleaner of the navy department, for it seems that that department is in sore need of a house cleaning.

MUSIC AND HEALTH.

Orison Swett Marden, in Success Magazine: Music has a decided influence upon the blood pressure in the arteries, and upon the respiration. We all know how it soothes, refreshes and rests us when jaded and worried. When its sweet harmonies fill the soul, all cares, worries and anxieties fly away.

Many nervous diseases have been cured by music, while others have been greatly retarded in their development by it. Anything which keeps the mind off our troubles tends to restore harmony throughout the body.

All the uplifting, encouraging, cheer-producing emotions, the emotions which create hope and buoyancy of spirits, expectancy of better things—all optimistic emotions—have a decidedly beneficial influence upon the health.

A feeling of uplift, of happiness, and well-being, quickens the heart's action, increases the circulation of the blood, and tends to open up all the avenues to health. Worry, fear, anxiety, jealousy—all the destructive emotions—tend to give a sense of restriction and repression. They inhibit the heart's action rather than accelerate it.

Where these emotions predominate there is a sense of construction through the whole arterial system; even the nerve centers feel the suppression and construction.

Whatever makes us happy, whether it is a good or useful story, a good joke, or the tonic which comes from success or any unusual achievement, tends to produce health and mental well-being.

ARE PLURAL WIVES JEALOUS?

In the American Magazine, Madeleine Zabriskie Doty writes very entertainingly on "Mormon Women and What They Think of Polygamy."

After telling the story of a plural wife, Miss Doty goes on:

"I began to wonder what feeling this little woman had for the other wife. 'Did you and sister Sara D. ever live together?' I asked.

"'Oh, yes, indeed, for several years after I was married we lived in the same house. My two oldest children were born while sister Sara and I were under the same roof, and I think the children care almost as much for their Aunt Sara as they do for me, and I believe she thinks as much of them as if they were her own.'

"'Why didn't you continue to live together then?'

"'Well, her children were older than mine and they spoiled my children and interfered with my discipline, so both sister Sara and I begged Mr. D. for separate houses. The man, of course, always likes to have all his family together. It makes it easier for him. But John finally consented to let us each have a home of our own. When he lost his business and his money we had to economize. He had enough to buy one house, and he gave it to sister Sara because she was the oldest and first wife. I am glad he did. Even if he had consulted me I should have told him to give it to her. My father gave me the house we are in.'

"'I should think,' I said, 'that it would be the little every-day things of life, the little jealousies that must arise, that would make it so difficult to live in polygamy. They would be much harder to endure than the agreeing to polygamy in the beginning. Why, you know how it is with any one you care very much for. It hurts if that person seems to be caring as much or more for some one else; yet, if a man is human he must have preferences—one wife must be more congenial than another.'

"'Of course that is all true,' she said thoughtfully, 'and it really is hard to live the faith right. It takes a fine man to live it, as well as the right kind of women. I suppose the man must like each wife for different qualities. Mr. D. has always been equally good to us both, and I think he cared about each of us for different reasons. At first I did find it a little hard—not exactly hard, because I am fond of sister Sara—but I guess I was a little conscious. I know I never wanted him to show me any affection when Sara was with us. It is only a little thing, but I remember one day he came into the pantry when Sara and I were both working there, and he kissed Sara and turned to kiss me, but I ran away quick before he could. Sara only laughed; she said she didn't mind. She used to let him kiss her just to tease me.'"

INVENTOR OF PANTOMIME.

London Evening Standard: The credit of producing the pantomime in England belongs to John Rich. This performance was on Dec. 26, 1717, at the theater in Lincoln's Inn Fields.

Rich bethought himself of the comic masques, occasionally performed in Edinburgh and he combined with their scenic and mechanical effects the attractions of the pantomime ballet. The result was "Harlequin Executed," which the advertisement of that day described as "A New Italian Mimic Scene, between a Scaramouch, a Harlequin, a Country Farmer, His Wife, and Others."

Of course the "earnest student of the drama" protested against this innovation, but Harlequin, Columbine & Co. have maintained their hold on public favor until the present year of grace.

Even a timid, or "scared", advertiser is not in much harder plight than an indifferent one. No store will thrive in the hands of either!

A BACHELOR ON MARRIAGE.

Peter Y. Haines, a rich bachelor of Duluth gave a New Year's dinner to seventeen bachelor friends, whereat each guest had to give a good reason against marriage.

"My own reason against marriage," the host said, "is embodied in a remark that I overheard this morning at the railway station.

"A strong, masterful-looking woman was bidding farewell to a small, slender man. The man's manner was meek, but it changed slightly as the woman got safely ensconced in her seat in the train, and before he hurried away, he shouted through the car window at her in quite a vindictive way:

"'And be sure, my love, to send me a nice long curtain lecture from time to time. I shall hardly manage to get to sleep without one, you know.'"

No one is apt to think more highly of a store than its owner does—hence his advertising should be so big that it will reflect his belief in his store's importance—and so continuous that it will have the force of iteration.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Commissioner McInnis:

Whereas, the Appraisers heretofore appointed by the District Court in the condemnation proceedings now pending for the purpose of acquiring a site for a County Court House in the City of Duluth have filed their award, as by law provided;

Therefore be it resolved, that the sum of Two Hundred and Eighty-Five Thousand Three Hundred and Sixty-seven Dollars and Five Cents ($285,367.05) be, and hereby is, set aside from the general revenue fund of this county, as the sum equal to the total amount assessed as damages by said Appraisers, and said sum is hereby made payable on demand to the persons entitled thereto, according to said award.

Provided, however, that if the purchase heretofore made by the County of lots seventy-seven (77) and seventy-nine (79), in block twenty-nine (29), Duluth Proper, Third Division, is otherwise closed, according to the terms of said purchase, for Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000), and the purchase of lots eighty-eight (88) and eighty-six (86), in block twenty (20), Duluth Proper, Third Division, is otherwise closed according to the terms of said purchase, for Forty-three Thousand Seven Hundred and Eighty-nine Dollars and Sixty-six Cents ($43,789.66), then said two amounts, the payment for which is otherwise provided for, shall be deducted from said total amount of $285,376.05 herein set aside.

Commissioner McInnis moved the adoption of the resolution, and it was declared adopted by a unanimous vote.

On motion of Commissioner McMahan, the Board adjourned to 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, same date.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The Board of County Commissioners of St. Louis County, Minnesota, met this, the 12th day of May, 1908, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Commissioners Tischer, Sundeen, Kauppi, McInnis, Ryan and Chairman Patterson—6. Absent, Commissioner McMahan.

As the adjourned session of the Board was for the purpose of opening bids for the wrecking and removal of certain buildings on the new Court House site, the following bids were read and referred to the committee on claims and accounts, to-wit: Bid of David Mair for the buildings on the Cash property, No. 206 North Fifth Avenue West, in the sum of $150.00; the bid of Ole Carlson for the buildings Nos. 211 and 213 North Fifth Avenue West, in the sum of $450.00; the bid of John A. Johnson, buildings Nos. 211 and 213 North Fifth Avenue West, in the sum of $450.00; Nos. 501 and 503 West Second Street, in the sum of $660.00; and Nos. 505 and 507 West Second Street in the sum of $500.00; the bid of H. P. Warner for the building No. 129 North Fifth Avenue West in the sum of $1,000.00.

To the Board of County Commissioners:

Your Committee on claims and accounts to whom was referred the bids for the wrecking and removal of the buildings on the new Court House site, having considered the same, recommend the adoption of the following resolution,

NEIL McINNIS,
JOHN SUNDEEN,
Committee.

Resolved, That the bids of the following persons be and are hereby accepted, to-wit: David Mair, the Cash dwelling and barn for the sum of $150.00; Ole Carlson, Barker block dwelling, 211 and 213 North Fifth Avenue West, for the sum of $450.00; J. A. Johnson, 501 and 503, 505 and 507 West Second Street, for the sum of $1,100.00; H. P. Warner, Spalding residence and shop, for the sum of $1,026.00; and the Chairman is authorized and directed to execute proper contracts to said parties for the wrecking and removal of said buildings including foundations in accordance with the terms of the notice, calling for said bids.

Commissioner Ryan moved the adoption of the resolution, and it was declared adopted upon the following vote: Yeas—Commissioners Tischer, Sundeen, McInnis, Ryan and Chairman Patterson—5. Nays—Commissioner Kauppi—1.

By Commissioner McInnis:

Resolved, That Commissioners Kauppi, Sundeen and Tischer be appointed a committee to arrange terms for sale at private sale for the best price obtainable, the dwelling house and barn on the McDougall property, and report to this Board such sale; the purchaser to enter into such contract for the wrecking and removal of said buildings in the same manner as the purchaser of the other buildings are required to do.

Commissioner Sundeen moved the adoption of the resolution, and it was declared adopted upon the following vote: Yeas—Commissioners Tischer, Sundeen, Kauppi, McInnis, Ryan and Chairman Patterson—6. Nays—None.

On motion of Commissioner Ryan the Board adjourned.

O. HALDEN,
County Auditor.

MAIL ORDERS
Are given our most particular attention. Out-of-town buyers find they can do best at this store. Their orders are promptly filled and shipped, and on every item they save money. Send in your order.

You pay less for the best quality goods here than you pay for inferior grades at the credit stores, as hundreds of our customers will testify. Some people may suppose, from our low prices, that we sacrifice quality—not so—only the leading credit stores carry the same high grade of groceries and meats that this store does, and they are compelled to get from 25 to 30 per cent more for them. If you are not a buyer at the DULUTH PUBLIC MARKET begin tomorrow. The ranks are swelling every day with converts from the extravagant credit system. These money-saving prices are for Saturday:

RENTS IN CITY OF MEXICO.

Baltimore American: "The prices that are asked for rental of houses in the City of Mexico are something appalling to Americans," said George T. Lessing of St. Louis.

"I expected to remain there the better part of the year and thought I'd get a house and send for my family. With this idea I went forth in search of a domicile, but was staggered at the cost. For the commonest kind of a two-story dwelling the agents wanted from $150 to $200 a month, and from that up to $2,400 a month for those of more pretentious architecture. It is true that these figures are in Mexican money, which is just one-half the value of our own currency, but even with this allowance the rents are far in excess of those charged in the cities of the United States. In many other respects living in Mexico is very reasonable."

Made in a Brand New Factory, They are Pure and Wholesome

CLEANLINESS is the point that you want to make sure about in your food. Schwalbe's Conserves are made in a new factory, sterilized, and come to you in hermetically sealed cartons—not in tins.

Schwalbe's Conserves will make pea or bean soup in one minute at a cent a bowl; or numerous vegetable dishes like croquettes, patties, fritters, baked beans and others.

Scientific experiment shows that a pound of Schwalbe's Conserves contains eight times the nourishment of a pound of beef.

Schwalbe's Conserves are recommended by physicians. Tasty and appetizing, they have found ready reception in the leading hotels, restaurants, and thousands of homes, wherever introduced.

Schwalbe's Conserves are made in Milwaukee by the National Conserve Company.

SCHWALBE'S CONSERVES

WHEAT HAS WEAK TONE

American Markets Are Soft, Despite Bullish Southwestern News.

Flax is More Active and Higher at the Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 15.—Weaker cables at the opening caused wheat to start out weaker in the American markets today. For a time the demand was better and prices showed some improvement on a bullish bearish report on the Southwest by the Modern Miller and a general feeling that the condition of the Southwestern crop is not as good as it was some time ago. The market fell off again later.

There was some little foreign demand during the day, five loads of Duluth No. 1 northern being worked by local exporters.

Minneapolis stocks are expected to decrease 400,000 bushels this week. The world's shipments are estimated at 4,000,000 bushels, exclusive of North America.

Cables were soft. Liverpool closed 5¾d @¾d lower, Berlin ¾c lower, Antwerp unchanged and Budapest ⅝c higher. The strength in Budapest was due to hot, unfavorable weather in Hungary.

The Modern Miller says:

"Telegrams from winter-wheat districts in Kansas and Northern Oklahoma report that the damage done there runs from 15 to 60 per cent. The fly is now reported in Central Kansas, but no extensive damage done yet. Cinch bugs are also in the wheat. Warm weather following recent rains developing rust in Illinois and Missouri. Drying winds are badly needed."

The May option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, 1⅝c lower in Chicago, 1c lower in Minneapolis, unchanged in New York and 1½c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth and Winnipeg, 1⅝c lower in Chicago and 1c lower in Minneapolis and New York.

July corn closed ⅛-¼c higher in Chicago and unchanged in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅝c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—The strength displayed in the American markets yesterday was offset here by the fact of larger Argentina shipments than expected and the favorable weather there, which prompted increased offerings and some liquidation, especially in the nearby options. The market opened quiet and from ¾d to 1¼d lower and further declined ¾d to ½d during the early trading. The distant months showed some recovery during the morning on the less favorable weather in the United Kingdom and continued unfavorable climatic conditions in Roumania. At midday the market was irregular, but generally steady, with prices ¾d to ⅝d lower than Thursday.

"Corn was quiet, unchanged and wholly neglected."

Primary receipts of wheat were 331,000 bus., last year 666,000 bus. Shipments 567,000 bus., last year, 326,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 215,000 bus.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 3,224,000 bus., against 2,616,000 bus., last week and 5,696,000 bus., a year ago.

Primary receipts of corn were 325,000 bus., last year 305,000 bus. Shipments 864,000 bus., last year 696,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 5,692 bus.

Argentine shipments of 2,755,000 bus., against 1,625,000 bus., last week and 255,000 bus., a year ago.

Wheat was quiet in the Duluth market. May wheat opened and closed ⅝c lower than yesterday at $1.04 nominal. July wheat opened ⅞c lower at $1.04⅛, advanced to $1.04⅜-½, declined to $1.04 and closed at $1.04⅛. September wheat was inactive and closed unchanged from yesterday at 91½c.

Durum wheat closed ¾¾c higher and cash spring wheat on a basis of 1c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet, except at the close. May flax sold at $1.23½ and closed there, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. July flax opened unchanged at $1.24, advanced to $1.25 and closed at $1.24½, a gain of ½c over yesterday. September flax was inactive and closed ¼c higher than yesterday at $1.25⅛. October flax sold at $1.24⅛, advanced to $1.24¼ and closed at $1.24, a gain of ¼c over yesterday.

Oats closed ⅛ higher and other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Sharp Decline of Wheat Prices in Liverpool Causes Weakness.

Chicago, May 15.—A sharp decline in the price of wheat at Liverpool due to liberal shipments from Argentina, caused weakness today in the local market, there being quite general selling by commission houses. The principal demand came from shorts. July opened ⅝@⅞c to ⅞@1c lower at 89½c to 90c, sold at 89c and then rallied to 89⅞c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 183 cars against 223 cars last week and 372 cars a year ago.

The market was inclined to be weak the greater part of the day. World's shipments were larger than had been expected and this had a depressing effect late in the session. The close was weak with July off ⅞@1c at 89½c.

The corn market was also weak, owing chiefly to improved weather conditions over the greater part of the corn belt. The slump in wheat was also a depressing influence. July opened ⅜c to ⅝c lower at 64⅜c to 65c and for a time held within the opening range. Local receipts were 157 cars with 20 of contract grade.

The market became strong during the last half of the day on an active general demand. July advanced to 65⅞c. The close was firm with July up ⅛@¼c at 65⅛@65⅜c.

Oats were bearishly affected by the weakness of wheat and corn at the opening, but the market soon rallied considerably on covering by shorts. July opened 5⅝@⅝c lower at 46¾@47⅜c, and sold up to 47⅛@47¼c. Local receipts were 140 cars.

Provisions were easy on renewed profit-taking, based on the slump in corn and on liberal receipts of live hogs. July pork was 2½@5c to 5c lower at $13.35 to $13.35@13.37½. Lard was unchanged to 2½c lower at $8.35 to $8.37½. Ribs were 2½c to 5c lower at $7.20 to $7.22½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.00⅝; July, 89½c; September, 86⅛@⅜c; December, 87¼c. Corn—May, 74¼c; July, 65⅜c to 65½@⅝c; September, 63⅝@¾c; December, 59⅜c. Oats—May, old, 51⅝c; May, 33⅜c; July, old, 47¼c; July, 46¾c; September, 37⅝c. Pork—May, $13.25; July, $13.40@13.42½; September, $13.65. Lard—May, $8.32½; July, $8.46; September, $8.57½. Ribs—May, $7.10; July, $7.25; September, $7.17½@7.17½c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.06¾@1.08; No. 3 red, 99c@$1.02; No. 2 hard, $1.00@1.05; No. 1 hard, 99c@$1.05; No. 3 spring, 99@$1.09; others, nothing doing.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Predictions for Warmer Weather Leave Crop Outlook Unimpaired.

Minneapolis, May 15.—Rains were a local influence for strength in wheat, as there was a little too much for best results, but a prediction for fair and warmer weather tonight and Saturday more than offset the cool drizzly weather and left the crop outlook unimpaired. Argentina shipments, estimated yesterday at 2,400,000 bushels, were found instead to be 3,224,000 bushels, which was disappointing to the bulls. On the other hand, the spring wheat supply figures were bullish. Minneapolis elevator stocks indicate a decrease of 400,000 bushels for the week and receipts today were only 145 cars against 316, and in Duluth 19 against 77. Less favorable news came from Kansas and Oklahoma where Hessian fly is said to have done damage. The market closed dull and lower. July wheat opened at $1.04⅝ higher $1.05; low, $1.03⅝; close, $1.04⅛. September wheat closed at 91⅛c; May, $1.05⅛.

In the cash market the local millers bought, and they found competition from outside millers, with the result that they paid 3c over July for No. 1 northern and 1c over for No. 2, and the market was strong at these premiums. No. 1 northern closed at $1.06¾@1.07¼ spot, $1.06⅞ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.04⅝@1.05¼ spot; $1.04⅝ to arrive; No. 3 wheat, 98¼@$1.02½; No. 3 yellow corn, 69⅝@70½c; No. 3 white oats, 50¼@⅝c; No. 2 rye, 76⅜@78¾c.

The barley market showed business in low grade stuff only, but prices quoted for malting were about the same as yesterday. Close, 57@68c.

Cash flax was quotable ½c over Duluth July and strong. Crushers quoted it only ½c over, but there were holdings at 1c over that found sale readily enough. Close, $1.25.

Millers' quotation for bran was $21.75@22.00 in bulk and they reported a satisfactory demand.

The flour mills will keep on running at least in greater part despite recent rumors that they would close. Some of the more important country mills that find Minneapolis a raw material supply source when country stocks are light, may close down. Flour dealers throughout the United States are following the hand to mouth policy as persistently, perhaps more persistently than ever. There is business enough however, to keep sixteen mills operating out of twenty-one here. Shipments 45,445 barrels. Prices were $5.45@5.60; second patents, $5.30@5.45; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.55@3.65.

THE GREENHORN COOK.

Col. George Harvey, the famous New York journalist, discussed at a recent dinner his views about the dieting of fat husbands.

"There are too many fat husbands; I maintain it stoutly," he said. "If the weight of these men were brought down to the right standard they and their wives would be happier. Diet's the thing."

Col. Harvey smiled.

"The diet need not be unsavory," he resumed; "and speaking of unsavory things, I recall a certain greenhorn cook. This greenhorn cook lived with one of the leading families of my native Peacham. On Christmas day, as soon as the burning Christmas pudding had been portioned out, a general cry of horror rose from the Christmas feasters, and the cook was summoned from the kitchen.

"'Martha,' said the mistress sternly, 'what on earth have you done to this pudding?'

"Martha shook her head in bewildered and hurt innocence.

"'Why nothin', mum,' said she, 'only I spilt the brandy ye give me, an' so I poured kerosene over it instead. Won't it burn right?'"

WHERE WOMEN WEAR TROUSERS

Chulalongkorn 1., King of Siam, is a fine, old fashioned monarch of the absolute type who does just as he chooses, and chooses to do a great many spectacular things, says The Delineator. He is the most absolute ruler in the world, perhaps, and he spends a fortune or two whenever the fancy takes him.

Since Chulalongkorn 1. reached Europe a few months ago none can calculate how many million dollars he has spent, but it has been certainly a good many. When one begins by buying a thimble for sixty-thousand dollars one may well end by buying a good many. It would seem as if, in the face of such royal expenditure, there could be little left for subjects in Siam.

It does not appear, however, that there is any more misery in the kingdom of Siam than in most other places. The king, perhaps, feels that he deserves a little merrymaking, for he has been playing for many years a pretty trying game of politics. The countries of Europe have all established some claim on Siam, and the ruler of that desirable land (which is about the size of Texas), has sewed very cleverly and really should not be begrudged his holiday.

It is interesting to note that Chulalongkorn is far from unfavorable to the education of women. The most fashionable Korean ladies have adopted European dress, so far as the upper part of the body is concerned, but they finish off a French waist, all lace and frills, with the old style of trousers always worn in Siam. The effect is, to say the least of it, astonishing. All women wear their hair short.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

General Level Was Restored Later to Thursday Night's Close.

New York, May 15.—The active dealings in stocks at the opening were at mixed price changes from last night, but the gains largely predominated over the losses.

Secondary prices were lower, the market giving way under pressure on the Hill and Harriman stocks. Business was active and widely distributed, the demand embracing a great number of usually obscure stocks.

Trading became quieter and the profit-taking sales gave the market an irregular tone. Individual stocks made sharp advances. Bonds were irregular.

Prices declined sharply on large offerings of the speculative favorites. The Hill stocks were the leaders in the decline.

The market closed steady to firm. A rise in Chesapeake & Ohio and Baltimore & Ohio of 2 started a recovery. Prices began to waver again, but when Union Pacific was bid up briskly 1½ on a new high level at 1⅝ over last night, the general level was restored to the neighborhood of last night.

OHIO CONGRESSMAN ASSAILS COLLEAGUE.

Washington, May 15.—Gen. Sherwood, Democrat, of Ohio, today bitterly attacked his colleague, Gen. Keifer, Republican, of the same state, in reply to a speech by the latter. He declared that Mr. Keifer's speech had been inspired by jealousy and charged that twenty-five years ago Keifer had left the house of representatives under a cloud.

FIRE IN NEW YORK.

New York, May 15.—Fire, which started late this afternoon in a big four-story brick warehouse and office building in Platt street occupied by Read, Holliday & Son, dealers in dye stuffs and chemicals, seriously menaced surrounding property. Several explosions scattered blazing embers.

SEVERAL KILLED IN AN ACCIDENT ON KATY ROAD.

Muskogee, Okla., May 15.—Southbound Missouri, Kansas & Texas passenger train No. 5, which left St. Louis last night for Texas points, collided head-on with a freight near here today. Several cars were wrecked and caught fire. Six or seven persons are reported killed and several others injured.

BAD FIRE RAGING IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Minneapolis, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire is raging in the four-story building of the Minneapolis Storage company this afternoon and property valued at upwards of $100,000 has been destroyed. The firemen have abandoned efforts to save the building and are trying to save adjoining property.

STUFFED TOMATO SALAD.

"A stuffed tomato salad is one of my new recipes," writes Fannie Merritt Farmer, the great cooking authority, in her monthly page in the Women's Home Companion. "Peel six small tomatoes, cut a slice from the stem end of each, remove the soft inside, sprinkle the insides with salt, and let stand, inverted, thirty minutes. Mash half a 10-cent cream cheese, add six chopped pimolas, one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, one tablespoonful of tomato pulp, one fourth of a teaspoonful of dry mustard and enough French dressing to moisten. Fill the tomato cases with the mixture, and serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing, which may be successfully made if one will but follow directions. Mix one teaspoonful of mustard, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of powdered sugar and a few grains of cayenne. Add the yolks of two eggs, and stir until thoroughly blended; then add one half teaspoonful of vinegar. Add olive oil gradually at first, drop by drip, and stir constantly. As the mixture thickens, thin with vinegar or lemon juice. Add oil and vinegar or lemon juice alternately, stirring or beating constantly, until two tablespoonfuls each of vinegar and lemon juice, and one and one-half cupfuls of olive oil have been used. If the oil is added too rapidly the dressing will have a curdled appearance. A smooth consistency may be restored by taking the yolk of another egg and adding the curdled mixture slowly to it. Olive oil for the making of mayonnaise should always be thoroughly chilled. The utensil used in the making of mayonnaise may be a silver fork, wire whisk, small wooden spoon or Dover egg beater."

A ZOOLOGICAL PARTY.

Woman Home Companion: A pencil together with a card numbered according to the guests present, is given each one. A slip, containing a number and the name of the animal, is also given each guest. One at a time they go to a blackboard hanging on the wall, and draw the animal for which the card calls. The others write on their cards, opposite the number, the name of the animal they think represented. At the close each marks his neighbor's card as the host reads the correct answers. A book may be given the one having the nearest correct list.

At the supper following a miniature Noah's Ark might form the centerpiece, around which toy and candy animals should be grouped in profusion. Ribbons should run from the ark to each cover, where a tiny teddy bear should mark the ladies' places, and a candy horse the gentlemen's.

ORDER FOR HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADMINISTRATION.
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. In Probate Court.
In the Matter of the Estate of Nils Lundstrom, Decedent.
THE PETITION of Othelia Lundstrom having been filed in this court, representing, among other things, that Nils Lundstrom, then being a resident of Oakland, State of California, died intestate, in Oakland, State of California, on the 30th day of April, 1907, leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said petitioner is the widow of said decedent, and praying that letters of administration of the estate of said decedent be granted to her.
IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth, in said County, on Monday, the 25th day of May, 1908, at ten o'clock, A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.
ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in the Duluth Evening Herald, according to law, and that a copy of this order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.
Dated at Duluth, Minn., April 30, 1908.
By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.
(Seal, Probate Court, St. Louis County, Minn.)

ALL READY FOR FIELD MEET

Fourteen School Teams Will Take Part This Year.

The Interscholastic field meet committee will meet at the boys' department Friday evening at 5 o'clock. Fourteen schools are taking part this year and as all the schools are pretty evenly matched the contest promises to be keen. The captains have been trying their men out and the entry list will be handed in at the meeting tonight. The boys selected to represent their school will work hard during the week so as to be in the best of condition for the big event, which will take place at the Driving Park, West Third street, Saturday, May 23, at 2:30. Additional interest has been added by the offer of the Northern Hardware company to give three extra prizes for the boys winning fourth, fifth and sixth places. The prize list to date is:
School winning the largest number of points, The Herald silver trophy and the boys' department silk banner made in the school colors.
The boy winning the largest number of points, solid gold medal.
The boy winning second largest number of points, the Kelley Hardware silver medal.
Third place a pair of spiked running shoes.
Fourth place, a pair of baseball shoes, donated by Northern Hardware company.
Fifth place, a Reach baseball bat, donated by Northern Hardware company.
Sixth place, a baseball mitt, donated by Northern Hardware company.

DYNAMITE FOUND.

Pensacola, Fla., May 15.—Fifty-seven sticks of dynamite, each of from one-half to two pounds in weight, were found last night at a point about 500 yards from what is known as Big Bayou trestle, west of this city, and the entire quantity is now in possession of the officers of the navy yard.

SMALL HOPE OF SUCCESS

Carbide Workers Arrive to Test American Company's Plant.

Results of a Month's Run to be Submitted to Stockholders.

The men who are to conduct the trial run at the American Carbolite company plant arrived this morning from Chicago. Six are from Constantine, Mich., all carbide workers from the Constantine plant, except W. H. Cornelius, a Michigan stockholder, who, assisted by Expert Schop, will conduct the experiments.
The tests will start this afternoon or tomorrow morning and will probably be continued for four weeks. Three of the furnaces will be employed. The tests are to be run to establish for the benefit of outside stockholders whether carbide can be made at a profit at the plant. The Duluth stockholders are confident that it can not, but to satisfy the outside stockholders, the court authorized W. W. McMillan, assignee, to have the tests made.
Some time ago there was a meeting of a committee of stockholders to consider the feasibility of reorganization, and at that time it was decided to run the tests for the benefit of the stockholders not in the city. Letters were writen to the different stockholders, and as a result, this delegation of carbide men have come to Duluth. Several of them were employed by the American Carbolite company before it closed down. If the tests warrant it, which in the minds of the Duluth investors seems very doubtful, the plant will be started up again.

Interest in Musical Event.

A great many West Duluth people are taking an interest in the Duluth Oratorio society, which will give its second May festival Monday night and Tuesday afternoon and evening at the First Methodist church, West Duluthians will be well represented in the oratorio. The members of the different West Duluth church choirs have been urged to take part and several have accepted. All the pastors of the churches will encourage their choirs to join and will announce the event next Sunday at their services.

Special Services.

There will be special services at the Salvation Army hall, 5507 Grand avenue west, Saturday and Sunday conducted by Maj. J. Milsaps of Minneapolis. Saturday evening at 8 o'clock his subject will be "The Great Peace Maker." Sunday at 11 o'clock, he will speak on "Holiness." In the afternoon there will be a children's service, and in the evening at 8 o'clock, the subject will be "Breakers Ahead."

West Duluth Briefs.

Peter Haberstad, who has been visiting friends in West Duluth, returned yesterday to his home in Little Rock, Ark.
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Doyle, 29 North Fifty-third avenue west, have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hughes of Bovey, Minn., who, after a few days' visit in West Duluth, will go to St. Paul for a short stay.

GOVERNORS VOTE TO HOLD FUTURE CONFERENCES AT CALL OF THE PRESIDENT

Third and Last Day of Meeting a Busy One.

Declaration of Principles Presented and Unanimously Adopted.

Governors Express Benefits Derived From Their Attendance.

Washington, May 15.—The third and last day of the conference of governors began with every indication that important action would result. A full attendance was present, and President Roosevelt called the conference to order at 10:15 o'clock.

Governor Blanchard of Louisiana, chairman of the committee on resolutions, at once asked for and received recognition to present the report of his committee. This report, which is an extended document, embraces recommendations along general and broad lines, avoiding specific recommendations for national or state legislation. The report is prefaced by a reiteration of what has been said in the conference regarding the necessity for united action, which will result in the preservation of the natural resources of the country. It heartily commends the action of President Roosevelt in calling the conference, and recommends that future conferences of a like character be called by the president at such times as conditions shall warrant and his judgment shall sanction. Legislation by congress and the states is suggested, not specifically, but along general lines to further the ends sought. It is also suggested that the states individually put the subject into the hands of competent commissions.

The resolutions were received with hearty approval by the conference. After they had been read, Governor Blanchard stated that it had been the purpose of the committee to prepare resolutions on broad, liberal lines of national scope; that it had purposely avoided making specific recommendations, or advocating any permanent form of organization for the conference.

Meet Whenever One-Third Desire It.

TO MAINTAIN CONFIDENCE

The Directors Will Place $500,000 Cash in Pittsburg Bank.

Cashier is Said to Have Embezzled About That Amount.

Pittsburg, May 15.—Following a meeting held last night by the directors of the Allegheny National bank, and representatives of a number of other large financial institutions of the city, definite action was taken today to raise a fund of $500,000 cash, which will be placed in the bank for the purpose of assuring the depositors and public of the unimpaired solidity of the Allegheny National bank.

To further maintain public confidence in the institution, and to create a greater feeling of security in the minds of depositors, a plan of reorganization of its management has also been agreed upon. Both of these measures are to be put into immediate effect.

Concerning the placing of the half million dollar fund in the bank, National Bank Examiner W. L. Folds has made the following statement:

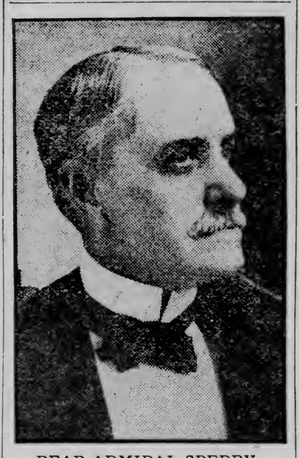
"Certain strong financial interests having come forward to the directors of the Allegheny National bank with the proposition to jointly, with the directors raise a guarantee fund of $500,000 cash, to be placed in the bank, to the end that a greater confidence and feeling of security may be felt by the public and the bank's depositors. A meeting of the directors of the bank was held last evening and the proposition accepted and the fund provided for.

"The agreement also provides for an entirely new and competent management, to be selected immediately. This insures the continued active existence of the bank."

Mr. Folds stated there was nothing he could say concerning Cashier William Montgomery, or his confession, made Wednesday afternoon to Attorney Burleigh, counsel for the bank, except the former cashier was still out on $100,000 bail. He expressed the belief, however, that Montgomery would tell the whole truth concerning his transactions.

It is persistently rumored that the shortage will exceed $1,000,000, but this cannot be verified, and Montgomery is only charged with the embezzlement of $469,000.

REAR ADMIRAL SPERRY ASSUMES COMMAND OF THE BATTLESHIP FLEET



REAR ADMIRAL SPERRY,
Who Has Assumed Command of Battleship Fleet and Will Bring It Home.

Admiral Thomas Hauls Down Flag From the Connecticut.

He Will Bring the Ships Back to Hampton Roads.

San Francisco, May 15.—Another change in the command of the Atlantic fleet of world-touring battleships occurred today when the flag of Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas was lowered from the truck of the Connecticut, where it has floated for six days as the emblem of the commander in chief, but where it also flew for many weeks as a signal of "senior officer present," when Admiral Thomas was acting for Admiral Evans during the latter's enforced absence from the fleet soon after its arrival at Magdalena bay. The customary salute of thirteen guns was fired as the double starred square of blue bunting was lowered to the after bridge of the flagship and the long naval career of Admiral Thomas, covering a period of nearly forty-seven years was ended. Admiral Thomas does not retire until October next, but he will immediately go on leave and have no further active connection with the naval establishment. After he retires the admiral intends to spend two years abroad while his youngest daughter is at a school in Switzerland.

Soon after the Thomas flag was lowered Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry, up to this time the commander of the fourth division of the fleet, hauled down his subordinate flag of red from the main truck of the Alabama and proceeded to the Connecticut to establish headquarters on that modern but already historic flagship. As his flag was hoisted to the tall after-truck of the Connecticut every ship in the fleet fired a salute in its honor. Admiral Sperry will retain command of the fleet during the remainder of its voyage back to Hampton Roads.

AEROPLANE IS SMASHED

Aerial Navigators Meet Disaster After Long Flight.

Norfolk, Va., May 15.—Disaster yesterday overtook the daring aeronauts, Wilbur and Orville Wright, who have for two weeks made successful flights with their aeroplane at Killdevil Hill, N. C., when, after the greatest flight ever made with a similar machine, the aeroplane was wrecked.

Wilbur Wright, the navigator, escaped unhurt, except for a face scratch, but the machine was smashed and is now useless for further tests.

The aeroplane had flown eight miles in 7 minutes and 40 seconds, under perfect control, and the disaster was due to an error on the part of the navigator who directed the course of the flying machine downward too quickly.

Includes F. L. Ryan, C. Jesmore, Emil Tessman and W. E. McEwen.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democratic state committee yesterday authorized the appointment of a state central committee for the coming two years. There are to be ten members at large and one for each county, with the exception of St. Louis, Ramsey and Hennepin, which will have three each. The three members of St. Louis county will be Fred L. Ryan and Emil Tessman of Duluth and Charles Jessmore of Eveleth. William E. McEwen of Duluth, it is understood, will be appointed one of the members at large.

Martin Hughes of Hibbing, who was to have been chairman of the state convention, yesterday was detained at home by legal business, and Senator Works of Mankota was then selected to fill the position.

DID GOOD SERVICE.

Felix Stidger Exposed "Knights of Golden Circle" During War.

Chicago, May 15.—Felix Grundy Stidger, exposer of the "Golden Circle," who dropped dead last Monday at his home here, will be buried today. Scarcely known by his neighbors, and having only a small acquaintance with the Civil war veterans of Chicago, his death attracted little attention. If he had passed away fohty-five years ago, Gen. Grant might have taken two more summers to reach Richmond. Stidger was a secret service man during the last two years of the war. He worked his way into the secret order of Southerners in the Northern states known as the "Knights of the Golden Circle" and became one of its chief officers.

ASYLUM SUPERINTENDENT SAYS PUBLIC WOULD NOT BE SAFE WITH THAW FREE

Dr. Amos T. Baker Says That Thaw is Certainly Insane.

Has Watched Him Closely Since He Was Incarcerated.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 15.—The testimony of expert alienists, by which District Attorney Jerome endeavors to prevent the release of Harry K. Thaw from the state hospital for the criminal insane at Matteawan, occupied the attention today of the court which is hearing the Thaw habeas corpus proceedings. Dr. Austin Flint, one of Mr. Jerome's alienists, was on the witness stand when the court adjourned last night, and Dr. Charles F. MacDonald and Dr. Amos T. Baker, acting superintendent of the asylum, have qualified as experts.

Dr. Amos T. Baker was the first witness to take the stand today. He was called by District Attorney Jerome, not as an expert, but to give the court a statement of Thaw's conduct during the three months he was in the Matteawan institution, beginning Feb. 1, 1908.

Conversations With Thaw.

Dr. Baker related conversations with Thaw, in which the latter told of epilepsy and nervous ailments suffered by a sister and uncle. Thaw, the witness said, also told of the desultory way in which his education was acquired. At 7 years of age, he said, he had St. Vitus dance. He described an attack of pneumonia at Monte Carlo, concerning which he did not agree with the diagnosis of his physician. Thaw told Dr. Baker, the latter said, that he used tobacco at 18, used alcohol in moderation and denied ever using drugs. The witness said Thaw described his movements preceding the shooting of White—his return from Europe and marriage to Miss Nesbit. He gave his age as 37, though he was 34 when he entered the hospital. Thaw told the witness that at his trial some of the doctors had greatly exaggerated their estimates of his condition; that they had in mind a nephew of his whom they had examined, who traveled under the same name and was often taken for him. He said that his lawyers and doctors did very clever work in his defense. Dr. Baker said that Thaw said to him:

"If I was ever insane in my life the

Physicians Say Jawbones Found at Gunness Place Are Human.

Sheriff Jubilant Over Discovery and Will Rush Investigation.

Work of Sluicing Ashes and Other Debris Progressing Rapidly.

Laporte, Ind., May 15.—The report of the coroner's physicians, to the effect that the jawbones found at the Gunness farm, yesterday, came from the skull of an adult human being, is all that is required to confirm the establishment of the corpus delicti in the case against Ray Lamphere, according to the prosecuting officials of this county. Just when this formal report will be made is uncertain. The same doctors considered their findings on the bodies found in the cellar of the Gunness home for ten days or more before making a formal return concerning them to the coroner. It is scarcely likely that the same delay will occur in the present instance, but the failure of some of the doctors to express themselves positively, last night, may mean that a difference of opinion is about to ensue. In that case a long discussion, possibly terminating in a split verdict, might result.

Sheriff Smutzer was jubilant over his discoveries last night, and will resume his investigations today. The material on the east side of the cellar, where the bodies were found, has all been screened, but the possibilities of the refuse piles are by no means exhausted. The ashes were shoveled

London, May 15.—Charles W. Bowerman, who represents the meat market district in the house of commons, has notified Winston Churchill, president of the board of trade, of his intention to question him in the house May 18 regarding what steps he proposes to take to prevent the Armours of Chicago from establishing in this country retail stores for the purpose of supplying meat direct to the consumer.

This query is based on the statement that the Armours are calling for $5,000,000 of new capital for the purpose of dotting London and the provinces with their own retail stores, the idea being to avoid the tolls and charges levied at the Smithfield market. Mr. Bowerman claims that the putting into effect of this scheme will destroy the business of the English butchers and meat salesmen.

CHARGED WITH ABDUCTION

Edward Peltier of Ely, Minn., is Arraigned at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Peltier of Ely, Minn., claiming to be a farmer, was in police court today charged with abducting Rose Sherrard, a 13-year-old girl.

The girl's mother informed the police of the disappearance of her daughter three weeks ago and said she had reason to believe that she had been taken to Ely, Minn.

Officer Patrick Smith was sent to that town and early this week he located her in a disorderly resort conducted as a road house between Ely and Winton and patronized chiefly by lumberjacks.

Peltier, the proprietor of the place, was placed under arrest and brought to the city. He was arraigned and the case continued until next Thursday morning, bail being fixed at $1,000.

REFORMERS DEFEATED

California Regulars Knock Out Lincoln-Roosevelt League.

Sacramento, Cal., May 15.—The Republican state convention last night elected four delegates at large and four alternates to the national convention at Chicago.

In the contest between the regular Republican organization and the Lincoln-Roosevelt league the "regulars" had no difficulty in securing the control of the convention and electing George A. Knight chairman over Former Mayor W. R. Davis of Oakland, the candidate of the reform faction, by a vote of 351 to 275, after a sharp fight on the floor.

The Lincoln-Roosevelt league people, however, succeeded in defeating Gen. Harrison Grey Otis, one of the four regular candidates for delegate at large, by the close margin of one vote and elected Former Lieutenant Governor Neff. The only other victory of the reformers was the election of their delegates and alternates in the Fourth congressional district.

Six of the eight congressional district delegations held their conventions last night, during the recess of the state convention, elected delegates and instructed them for Taft. The Third and Sixth districts have already held their conventions, and also instructed for Taft. This means the entire California delegation of twenty delegates will vote as a unit for the secretary of war for president at the Chicago convention.

Contesting delegations from Siskiyou, Sandiago and Sacrament counties were thrown out by the committee on credentials and the regulars seated. Grove L. Johnson was chairman of the committee on platform and resolutions, and the platform reported was adopted without opposition. The delegates-at-large elected were: George A. Knight, Henry Melvin, M. H. DeYoung and Jacob N. Neff.

WEATHER—Probably showers tonight; Saturday partly cloudy, and slightly warmer; fresh winds, mostly easterly.

PRODUCE IS UNCHANGED

Prices Remain About the Same as Last Week.

Receipts of Fresh Fruits and Vegetables Showing Improvements.

Commission row has enjoyed a steady trade during the week, with prices on practically the same level as they were a week ago.

Fresh vegetables and fruits have been coming a little more freely, but the movement has not shown an improvement marked enough to cause a great slump in prices.

Strawberries are getting more plentiful all the time. There was scarcely any break in the market this week, but one is expected in the near future, as the Arkansas berries are just about due. As the Louisiana and Tennessee berries are still coming in good quantities, prices are expected to take a drop shortly. The unfavorable weather has been responsible for some of the market's continued stiffness.

As strawberries have become more plentiful, oranges are getting scarcer in the local market. Receipts have been showing a gradual decline for several weeks, and there has been a firmer undertone to the market. However, the market is still considered low, as compared with last year. The quality of the fruit continues good.

Bananas are more plentiful than they have been for some time past. There is an easier undertone to the market at 4c a pound. Importers are shipping more freely than at any time in the last three months, and if local receipts increase much more, a drop is expected. A week or so ago bananas were selling at 4c a pound.

The grape fruit market continues firm at $5.50. The Cuban fruit is no longer in the market, all offered here being the domestic variety from Florida and California. Receipts are becoming lighter as the season is on the wane.

Lemons are firm at $3.50 to $3.75. The demand for them is good, but nothing to what it will be when the picnic season opens. July, August and September comprise the big open season for lemons in Duluth.

You can get peaches here now. They are very nice, only they happen to be the evaporated variety. The street offers them in fancy 20-pound boxes at $2.60.

Cocoanuts, famed in coon song and story are arriving right along. They are selling now at 65 cents a dozen or $4.50 a sack.

New York apples are not offered as freely as they were and the market for them has undergone a bulge of 25 cents. They will probably maintain the present level for some time as the depleted stocks are not expected to increase much. Receipts of other varities of apples have not been large for several weeks but the demand is not as firm as it was.

Radishes have been more plentiful during the week. They are coming in larger quantities and this fact has caused a decline in prices. The round ones are selling today at 50 cents per dozen bunches.

Lettuce is in good demand at $1 a box. Receipts have been good. Receipts of other fresh vegetables have been showing quite a little increase but prices are the same as they were a week ago.

Fresh eggs are about the cheapest things to eat in the market at the present time. Receipts have been very good for several weeks and the choicest nest products are being offered at 16 cents a dozen. These are supposed to be strictly fresh. The range of market for fresh eggs is 15 to 16 cents.

The easy tone in the cheese market continues. Full cream twins are selling on Michigan street for 13 to 14 cents and other grades are unchanged from last week.

Butter is the same as it was a week ago. Creamery prints are quoted at 29 to 30 cents a pound, and tubs at 28 to 30 cents. Quotations on other grades have not been disturbed.

The firmness of the poultry market has shown no abatement since last week. Chickens are still roosting high, so far as prices are concerned. Spring chickens and hens are 15 cents. Turkeys are 18 to 20 cents and ducks 16 cents.

* * *

There is an easier undertone to the meat market, but prices for the better grades are still up.

MINISTER DEFRAUDED

Land Locator Claimed to Have Secured $100 From Him.

H. M. Nelson is Indicted for Second Degree Grand Larceny.

N. M. Nelson, a land locater, has been indicted for grand larceny in the second degree. It is alleged that he defrauded Rev. F. O. Kling of the Swedish Mission church of $100.

Nelson was arrested yesterday on a bench warrant following his indictment a few days ago.

According to the information before the grand jury Nelson attempted to do a large timber land locating business among West end residents last winter. It is alleged that he agreed for $100 to locate Mr. Kling on a heavily timbered tract of land which he showed the latter. Following Nelson's description Mr. Kling filed on certain land in section 10, 59-12, which it was afterward discovered to be another locality than shown by the cruiser and on which there was practically no timber. It is claimed that Nelson worked the same game on some twelve or thirteen other persons.

KILLED BY CARS.

Mankota, Minn., May 15.—Peter Person, single, 35, while crossing the Milwaukee railroad tracks at Rock Cut, a short distance from here yesterday morning was struck by the northbound passenger train and his skull badly crushed. He lingered at La Suewe, where he was taken, until 1:10 yesterday afternoon, when he died. The body has been brought to Mankota for an inquest.

Person was in the center of the track when the pilot struck him. He was hurled about ten feet. Just as Person started to cross the track the engineer turned on the air, hoping to stop the train, or at least slow it down, but neither could be done.

CAPT. MITCHELL BORNE TO GRAVE

Negaunee, Mich., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rarely in the history of this section has such a memorable tribute been paid to a dead man as was the case here yesterday, when the last rites were said over the body of Capt. Samuel Mitchell, one of the best mining men in Michigan, philanthropist and prominent factor in the development of this region in a mining and business way, who died last Sunday in Chicago, where he was receiving medical treatment. The funeral was under the Negaunee lodge of Masons and was participated in by many Masons and others from Ishpeming, Marquette and other nearby points. The body was removed from the home on East Main street about 10 a. m. yesterday to the Mitchell Methodist church built through the deceased's generosity, where it lied until 1 p. m., when the casket was closed, the services beginning about 2 o'clock. The church was thronged, the funeral being one of the largest ever held here so general was the public desire to pay tribute to the deceased who long was held in high esteem here, because of his many acts of kindness and his innate generosity. Rev. Isaac Wilcox, a former pastor of the church, an old friend of the deceased, assisted Rev. W. B. Coombe, the pastor, in the services.

Rev. Mr. Coombe preached an able and eloquent sermon, in which loving tribute was paid to the dead mining man and well known citizen. The procession to the grave was a long one.

BURY FORMER MAYOR.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of William Findeisen, aged 51 years, who died at the City hospital, Minneapolis, from the effects of gas poisoning in his room at the hotel, was laid to rest here Tuesday.

Mr. Findeisen was held in universal esteem and was one of the oldest settlers of Red Lake Falls. He had held many positions of trust and responsibility and was at one time mayor.

He was a very successful business man, having conducted an agricultural implement establishment in this city for years and had accumulated considerable wealth. His remains were met at the depot by citizens, who turned out en masse. The I. O. O. F., of which he was at present noble grand, formed in procession, as did also the M. W. A., of which he was a member. Flags throughout the city were raised at half mast and all business houses were closed.

CARLISLE FOOTBALL MAN IS VISITING ASHLAND.

Ashland, Wis., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fullback Hauser of the Carlisle university football team, who made such a splendid record last year with that team, is in the city for a few days on pleasure. He is the guest of Mr. St. Germain, the Ahland baseball team's first baseman. Both of the gentlemen are football players, Mr. St. Germain, who is now with Attorney George F. Merrill, having played tackle on the football team of the University of Wisconsin.

SIX WEEKS TRAINING SCHOOL AT BEMIDJI.

Bemidji, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fifth annual state teachers' training school will be held in Bemidji beginning Monday, June 22, and will be continued for six weeks, with the following corps of instructors: J. H. Hay of Thief River Falls, superintendent of schools of Thief River Falls, conductor; Prof. John N. Palmer, Clinton, instructor; Mrs. Imogene Lectra of Duluth, instructor; Miss Bell Richards of St. Cloud, instructor. In addition to the foregoing, Prof. L. P. Harrington of the experimental station at Crookston will act as special instructor in agriculture for one week during the training school.

THE PLANS FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Services Will be Held at First Church Sunday.

May 30, Memorial day, will be observed in Duluth with all due honor and respect to the dead veterans.

On Sunday, May 24, at 2:30 o'clock there will be services at the First M. E. church, Third avenue west and Third street, at which Rev. M. S. Rice, the pastor, will deliver the sermon. The final arrangements for the parade to the cemetery, where there will be services, and the decoration of the graves with flowers and flags, will be made by S. W. Clark, chairman of the joint committee from Gorman post, and the Culver post of the G. A. R., the Sons of Veterans, the Ladies of the Relief Corps and the ladies of the Garfield circle of the G. A. R., which met last evening to make the preliminary arrangements. Col. F. E. Resche will be the marshal of the day.

Two or three bands will take part in the procession. There will also be 125 G. A. R. veterans, a squad from the Sons of Veterans, three companies from the National Guard, hundreds of members from the citizen staff and school children from every public school in the city, probably about 2,500 in all. The old veterans who are unable to march, will be furnished with carriages. At the cemetery a company from the Sons of Veterans will fire several salutes over the graves and taps will be sounded by the bugler.

The citizen staff will have charge of the services to be held at the Lyceum, where there will be speeches, patriotic music and readings.

There will also be services on the water. From the U. S. S. Gopher the Ladies' Relief Corps will strew flowers in the wake of the cutter.

STATIONS ON ROAD TO HELL

Chicago, May 15.—"The first stopping places on the road to hell for a chorus girl leaving Chicago are Winnipeg, Can., to the North; Memphis to the South, Omaha to the West and Buffalo to the East," said Judge Judson F. Going yesterday.

He was speaking to Clara Shalz, an 18-year-old runaway who had been arrested at the Grand Central depot as she was about to board a train for the Canadian city with twenty other girls to join a theatrical troupe there.

"I want to go on the stage," protested the girl when arrested. "I am old enough to take care of myself, and I don't want to go back home to my mother and sisters. I want to go on the stage."

"You were probably starting for hell, although you ticket read Winnipeg," said Judge Going, at the Sheffield avenue police court. "Most young girls who become stage-struck and run away from home to go on the stage go to one of these four towns. Without the good home influence they have left behind they soon fall into a life of shame, and after leaving Winnipeg or one of the other places, soon reach their final destination.

"I won't go home," replied the girl. "I'm going on the stage."

"You won't for a year at least," retorted Judge Going. "I'll send you to the House of the Good Shepherd for a year."

The girl ran away from her home at 29 Janssen avenue several days ago. Detectives Zabel and Gallagher learned, it is alleged, that she had been engaged by Thomas Olson of Winnipeg to join a company in Canada and went to the depot yesterday just before train time.

HIS LEG CRUSHED.

Contractor on Soo Extension Badly Injured.

Mora, Minn., May 15.—Word has reached this village that Gust Sundin of Knife Lake met with an accident while at work on the Soo road near Isle. Mr. Sundin with his brother Walfred and Nels and Helmer Peterson had taken the contract for work on the new line using dump cars for hauling dirt for filling purposes. In opening a switch Mr. Sundin slipped and fell and the cars passed over his leg, crushing the bones. Dr. Sweenes of Lawrence was called.

PERISHED WITH BARN.

Wagner, S. D., May 15.—Louis Uken, son of L. Uken, lost his life in a fire which destroyed a barn, and two brothers barely escaped with their lives. The young men were sleeping in the loft. The fire also burned six horses, a new automobile and several buggies.

"THE MAN WITH THE RAKE" WILL REIGN SUPREME ON SATURDAY

AN EXAMPLE FOR OLDER PEOPLE TO FOLLOW.

Tomorrow is cleaning day. It has been officially designated as such by Mayor Haven. Hoes and rakes will be in great demand. But most of all, human energy and a pride in cleanliness will be needed. It is the hope of the mayor, health authorities and everybody with the best interests of the city at heart, especially in the matter of civic beauty, that citizens in all parts of town will co-operate in the general movement to put Duluth in a more presentable condition.

If the plans of the administration carry oue, the acompanying photograph may be taken as a fair sample of what will be seen all over the city tomorrow. The youth industriously working with his rake is a good example to follow. The man with the hoe is all right in his time and place, but at the present moment the boy with the rake, assisted by his big brothers and father, is more urgently needed. Hoes will help some, but rakes are generally mare effective weapons when it comes to attacking the accumulated refuse of the winter and getting it out of the way.

School children will play an important part in the cleaning campaign. That is one reason why Mayor Haven selected Saturday as city clean-up day. There is no school then and many of the downtown offices are closed on that day during the afternoon, allowing the older people a chance to pitch in and help. School teachers have been their pupils today, in an effort to instill into them ideas that will prove of benefit to the city. Mayor Haven expresses the opinion that if they are taught the proper amount of civic pride in their youth, they can be depended upon to look after the needs of the future when they get older. It will be a case of "get the habit."

The old, slip-shod method of one man cleaning up his yard one day and another man cleaning up his yard the next day, leaving the vacant lots to take care of themselves, has gone out of fashion. Progressive cities all over the country are getting spring cleaning operations town to a fine system, and the work is carried on in an organized way. In Minneapolis, for example, every ward has a branih association, and every school an organization, to see that a cleaning campaign is conducted wherever and whenever needed. Several other cities follow out Doluth's system of having everybody pitch in on the same day to give back yards, front yards, vacant lots, etc., a thorough scouring. People are expected not only to clean up their own premises, but to give some attention to vacant lots, where old papers, boxes and other rubbish has accumulated.

FILTHY HABIT IS CONDEMNED

"My boy, will you please refrain from throwing those shucks on the floor," kindly requested an East end resident of a youngster about 14 or 15 years of age, who was munching peanuts on an east-bound street car the other evening, and throwing the shucks on the car floor. The car was well filled with passengers and the boy, who stood in front of the gentleman making the request, was thoughtlessly littering the floor of the car, instead of taking the small trouble of carrying the shucks to the rear and throwing them to the pavement. The request momentarily embarrassed the youngster and he seemed to appreciate his discourtesy as soon as somebody called attention to his act.

The boy had been doing exactly what a great many older people in the city do thoughtlessly at times and who would be very much offended if somebody called attention to their acts.

The street railway company is doing everything it can to keep its cars clean and it has been succeeding admirably in its efforts, especially since strict care has been paid to the anti-spitting ordinance. It has become such a rare thing for a passenger to spit on the floor of a street car in this city that the act of a stranger in so doing attracts the immediate and disapproving attention of everybody on the car who witnesses the act.

Of late the company has been urging its male patrons who stand on the rear vestibule to observe the letter of the ordinance and refrain from spitting on the steps or through the gates. Attention has been called to the matter through the press and the company has placed signs on the gates in the effort to stop the practice complained of. While the practice has been stopped to some extent, it is surprising to note the number of men who still persist in that discourteous and filthy act. They seem to have no regard for the women who get on and off cars and who must run the risk of having their garments trail in tobacco spit, or place their hands on gates covered with the expectorations of smokers.

It is almost an impossibility for a passenger to spit through the wire mesh of the gates or the perforations in the steps without some remaining on the gates and steps and there is no part of the car where such conditions are more objectionable, because every passenger getting on or off the car is likely to brush against the gates. In the case of women, their skirts brush the steps and become soiled.

AGED WOMAN DYING.

Mrs. Mary Hunt of Beloit, Wis., on Her Deathbed.

Beloit, Wis., May 15.—Mrs. Mary A. Hunt, said to be the oldest person in Wisconsin, is dying at her home in this city at the age of 106 years. She was born at Goshen, Conn., January 22, 1802, and at the age of 8 went with her parents to Mt. Morris, N. Y., where she lived through the stirring times of the war of 1812. The scenes of this conflict she remembered well up to the time of her present illness, the burning of villages along the lakes having made a particularly strong impression on her.

She secured most of her education at Litchfield, Conn., and in 1827 married Dr. Hiram Hunt, who died in 1853. The widow came West to Bay City, Mich., with her daughter, Mrs. Fayette Royce, in 1866, and two years later to Beloit, where she has since resided.

DEEP CRACKS FROM ECZEMA

Could Lay Slate-Pencil in One—Hands in Dreadful State—Disease Defied Remedies and Prescriptions—Suffered Seven Years.

FOUND A PERMANENT CURE IN CUTICURA

"I had eczema on my hands for about seven years and during that time I had used several so-called remedies, together with physicians' and druggists' prescriptions. The disease was so bad on my hands that I could lay a slate-pencil in one of the cracks and a rule placed across the hand would not touch the pencil. I used ——, ——, —— Skin Lotion, —— Remedy and others externally but I did not use any internal remedy, and while some gave partial relief, none relieved as much as did the first box of Cuticura Ointment. I made a purchase of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and my hands were perfectly cured after two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of soap were used. I now keep them on hand for sunburn, etc., and use Cuticura Soap for shaving. I could write a great deal more in reference to my cure but do not want to take more of your time. William H. Dean, Newark, Del., Mar. 23, 1907."

CHILD SUFFERED

"My little daughter suffered with sores on her legs all last summer. Her feet were sore, too, and she couldn't wear her shoes. I think she was poisoned by running through weeds but the doctor said it was eczema. I tried several remedies but failed to find a cure. Then I sent for Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment which cured her in two weeks. I find Cuticura the best I ever tried for any kind of sore and I hope I shall never be without it. Mrs. Gertie Loughlin. Ivydale, W Va., Apr. 25 1907."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.) LOST WOMAN IS FOUND BY DOG

Graceton, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Disher, an old woman of about 60, was lost for eighteen hours south of here in the settlement of former Crookston people in this remote settlement in the extreme northern part of Minnesota. She spent the night in a tree and was discovered by the aid of a little rat terrier dog that guided searching parties to where she was to be found.

Mrs. Disher left her home, situated on her claim, for her daughter's house, about two miles distant. She wandered from the path about two miles in the cedars and became lost. A search party was immediately organized containing Fred Harris and Nelson, former Crookston men, now holding claims, and William Ecker, her son-in-law, and three lumbermen, and they hunted through and through the woods and swamps, at one time passing within 300 feet of her. They shot off their guns and rifles and yelled but she did not hear them or the reports of the guns. In the morning, Mrs. Ecker, the daughter, brought out the little rat terrier dog belonging to the family and put it on the trail. The dog began wagging his tail and started off on a bee line for the cedars in which the old lady had ensconced herself. The old lady had suffered some from the night's exposure and her efforts in climbing the tree, but is getting well again.

FORTUNE FOR COLLEGE.

Lawrence University Receives $50,000 From Rockefeller.

Appleton, Wis., May 15.—A check for $50,000 representing the general education board's share of a $200,000 increase in endowment was received yesterday at Lawrence university. About a year ago the board at New York made a proposition to Lawrence, offering $50,000 to the Appleton school providing the authorities of the institution would raise the other $150,000 necessary to make the entire sum $200,000. President Plantz accepted the offer, and at once set out to obtain the necessary subscriptions. Before the conclusion of the annual meeting of the trustees, last June, the necessary $150,000 had been subscribed. Lawrence is now on the accepted list of American colleges, and it is believed will at intervals receive some of the earnings of the mammoth fund set aside by John D. Rockefeller for educational purposes.

STALWARTS WIN IN NORTH DAKOTA

Kennedy Elected National Committeeman and Taft Indorsed.

Minot, N. D., May 15.—The Republican state convention of North Dakota elected eight delegates to the national convention at Chicago, and instruted them to vote for the nomination of Secretary Taft.

The main fight came over the indorsement of a candidate for national committeeman. Frank Sprague, the insurgent candidate, was defeated by James Kennedy, stalwart, by a vote of 183 to 260.

The platform unqualifiedly indorses the administration of President Roosevelt, advocates the regulation of public service corporations, and condemns the administration of Governor Burke, Democrat.

TWO VERDICTS ARE RETURNED

Defendants in Two Civil Actions Are Assessed Damages.

Peter K. Peterson, who sued the street railway company for $8,000 for injuries received by his 8-year-old daughter, was awarded a verdict of $500 in the district court yesterday. The child was coasting down Tenth avenue east on the sidewalk early last winter and collided with the rear end of a passing Fourth street car. Peterson alleged the accident to be due to the negligence of the company through its employes.

In the civil action of D. Simon against Panton & White the jury, last evening, returned a verdict of $400 in favor of Mr. Simon. He sued for about $600 which he claimed was due him on wall paper and painting contracts. The defendant company denied any liability and put in a counter claim of over $2,000 which it claimed was due from Simon on contracts and for materials furnished him.

The personal injury case of Henry Peterson against the Lantry Construction company is being tried by a jury in Judge Cant's room. Peterson is suing for $12,000 for injuries received while on the tunneling job for the Wisconsin Central road at Eleventh avenue west. He claims he was injured by reason of a premature blast.

CAPTURED WITH NETS.

Deputy Game Warden Rardin Makes Gull Lake Haul.

Brainerd, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Deputy Game Warden George H. Rardin made a big haul Tuesday morning in Gull lake. He found out that John Mushett and Jesse Brant of section 10 were using nets for the catching of fish and laid for them. He located them Monday night and laid out in the woods all night watching them. Early Tuesday morning he saw them start for the lake and followed them and saw them pull a gill net from the water. He started to row out to arrest them and they pulled down the lake. After a merry chase he succeeded in overhauling them and brought them and their nets to the city. The men were lodged in jail until Wednesday, when he took them to Walker to be tried, the capture having been made in Cass county. In addition to the one taken from the men he also secured two which he saw them hide in the bushes. He also secured one net from the boat of another party, who has not been arrested yet. Altogether he gathered in about 600 feet of nets.

THIRTY ARE DEAD IN LOUISIANA TORNADO.

Shreveport, La., May 15.—Thirty dead and 200 injured is a conservative estimate of the fatalities caused by the tornado which swept through Northwest Louisiana, destroying three small towns and leaving wrecked homes and ruined crops in a path a mile wide and fifty miles long.

W. J. BRYAN WANTS ALL DELEGATES INSTRUCTED.

Lincoln, Neb., May 15.—In the Commoner, W. J. Bryan, under a glaring caption, urges the instruction of delegates to the Democratic national convention. He says:

"Instructions to delegates are the order of the day. Nearly all of the states which have held Democratic conventions so far have instructed. This is at it should be. Indications are Democratic. The people speak through instructions—they cannot speak in any other way. A failure to instruct turns the delegates to party bossism."

MARINE NEWS

MISSABE DOCKS GET SEASON'S FIRST ORE

Shipments Will be Very Light for the Present.

Once more the iron ore trains are rumbling down the hill from Proctor and unloading metal in the rough at the Duluth, Missabe & Northern docks in the West end.

The tardy season is under way at last. For a time, shipments from the mines to the docks will be light but they will gradually increase.

The first ore of the season is being handled at the Missabe docks today. Light crews are working and they will continue so for a time. As soon as conditions warrant, they will be enlarged and the volume of the shipments from the mines increased.

No boats are loading at the docks yet but within the course of a day or two, there. The ore is not coming fast there. The ore is not coming fast enough yet to cause any congestion on account of the delay in shipments from the docks.

Just how soon the full complement of men on the docks and on the ore trains will receive orders to go to work, cannot be said but at the Missabe offices today it was stated that as soon as conditions generally warranted it, the regular crews would be put to work.

At the Great Northern docks at Allouez, there have been light shipments of ore for the past ten days but the first ore of the season did not come to the Missabe docks until today.

West enders residing in the vicinity of the docks felt very good when they saw the long ore trains trail down the hillside and roar over the trestle-work of the dock approaches.

Percival Mitchell, general manager of the Oliver Iron Mining company is on the range today seeing to the opening of some of the Steel corporation mines. He will return to Duluth tomorrow.

WORKING ON NEW DRAWS

Wide Channels Will be Dredged at Openings of N. P. Bridge.

Vessels May Pass Through Draws, Must Use Caution.

The old draw-span at the Wisconsin channel of the Northern Pacific bridge, which was damaged a few days ago by a steam excavator that was being hauled over it on a flat car, has not been in operation since and will not be repaired. It stands in an open position, so that vessels may pass, but trains will be forced to use the Grassy Point bridge for some time to come.

Maj. Graham D. Fitch of the United States engineers' office, plans to have the old draw span taken to pieces in its present position and removed. The work of dismantling is about to begin, with derricks and wrecking crew, and will probably require a week's time to accomplish. At the same time, the trestle will be removed from the two openings of the new draw span and work has already been started there. After the removal of the trestle, the government will dredge the channels through the openings, making available the full width of 175 feet in each opening.

The new draw span will probably be ready to swing before the old draw is removed, as only a little more work is necessary on the motive macnhinery. The new span is exceptionally large, with 479 feet length, and it is said to be heavier than the draw span of the Interstate bridge, although not as long by six feet.

While the work is in progress, vessel masters should pass the bridge slowly and cautiously to avoid injury to the plants, both of the company and the government. Vessels should not use the north opening of the new span until further notice, on account of dredging operations immediately west of the bridge, which will take a little longer time.

After the operations on the Wisconsin side, a similar program will be carried out in the Minnesota channel. The old Minnesota draw will be removed, together with all obstructions in the two openings of the new Minnesota span. The Minnesota span is only 420 feet long, but it provides two 175-foot openings, the extra length being necessary on account of the bridge at the Wisconsin channel not being at right angles to the channel.

Vessels will not be seriously discommoded by any of the operations, although it will be necessary to use greater care at times in passing through the old draws.

STORM ABATES.

Boats Which Were in Shelter, Venture Into Rough Sea.

The storm on the western end of Lake Superior reached its height last night with a gale blowing 46 miles an hour at the most severe time and driving an intermittent fall of rain before it. This morning the wind went down and, though a heavy sea continues, the storm is practically over.

The storm lashed up the lake to a dangerous degree and the waves broke over the channel piers all day yesterday and at times, the spray went across Minnesota point. The steamers Fleetwood and Oceanica remained at the Allouez ore docks, with their cargoes of ore and several grain boats, which were ready to sail, also remained in shelter. Some of them went out this morning, when the wind went down, although a heavy sea continued.

The weather bureau reports that there is likely to be more rain tonight, with an easterly wind and tomorrow will be partly cloudy and somewhat warmer. Another storm has started in the Far West and is coming this way. It may strike Sunday night or Monday. Yesterday's storm was confined to the western end of Lake Superior.

STEAMER TOWED IN.

Gratwick Picks Up the J. C. Suit Off South Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 15.—The Barry line steamer J. C. Suit was towed into port at 1 a. m. by the steamer W. H. Gratwick, which picked up the Suit when in a sinking condition off South Milwaukee. The Suit carried no passengers but a crew of twenty.

SUIT IS CALLED OFF.

Toledo Steamship Company Drops Litigation With G. A. Tomlinson.

Detroit, Mich., May 15.—Announcement was made here yesterday that the Toledo Steamship company, owning the steamer Eugene Zimmerman, which was sunk in the St. Mary's river in April, 1906, had filed notice of withdrawal from the arbitration which was begun to settle the question of damages between the Toledo company and G. A. Tomlinson of Duluth, owner of the Steamer Saxona, in collision with which the Zimmerman was sunk.

STEPHENSON RELEASED.

Considerable Trouble Experienced on Account of Low Water.

Buffalo, May 15.—The steamer I. W. Stevenson was released at 9:40 this morning, after a portion of her lumber cargo had been lightered. She is apparently uninjured. The water was a foot below normal level and some trouble was experienced in getting her off.

DECLARES "OPEN SHOP."

Escanaba Ore Dock Managers Will Not Treat With Unions.

Milwaukee, May 15.—The first step in a general movement to declare for the "open shop" policy in the operation of all ore docks at the Head of the Lakes, was taken yesterday at Escanaba, where the dock officials refused to treat with the union. The men will be hired for the season's work individually and last season's scale of wages will be paid.

WORKING AT DRY DOCKS.

Buffalo, May 15.—There is great activity at the Buffalo dry docks, where a force of 1,135 men is employed. The vessels receiving repairs are the Marshall, Dalton, Jenks.

Seven boats are waiting to go into the dry dock as soon as they can be taken care of. The new Steamer Honduras, which is being built for James Davidson of Bay City, will be ready for delivery June 10. The new steamer America, also being built in the dry dock, for the Crystal Beach line, is practically completed and will make her trial trip May 27.

DAMAGE TO STANTON.

Houghton, Mich., May 15.—The steamer John Stanton, which grounded late Monday afternoon in Portage river, and which was released Tuesday, is believed to be more seriously damaged than at first believed. Capt. C. H. Heaton is of the belief that the hole in the steamer's forward compartment, on the port side, is sufficiently large to permit of a man to walk through. He ascribes this belief to the fact that the steamer's two 100-gallon pumps made no apparent inroads upon the volume of water which filled the compartment, which he says, demonstrates the hole is so large as to cause the compartment to fill as quickly as pumped out.

Capt. Heaton is now awaiting orders from the East as to what course he shall pursue. The Stantan will necessarily have to go into dry dock at Superior.

The work of discharging the Stanton's cargo of 10,000 tons of coal at the Copper Range coal dock is progressing favorably, and the boat should be ready to leave tonight. The damage to the boat's hull will, it is believed, cost about $5,000 to repair. Because of the inner construction of the vessel no trouble will be experienced in getting her to dry dock.

It was necessary to lighten the Stanton of but 100 tons of her cargo, that amount being equivalent to the amount of water taken in by the forward compartment, where the steamer was rammed.

In connection with the stranding of the Stanton Junior, United States Engineer Banks of Houghton, has issued a warning to vesselmen to keep to the center of the channel until dredging can be done at the point where the steamer went aground.

CAPTAIN MILLS DIES.

Was to Have Sailed New Steamer E. F. Dunston This Season.

Cleveland, May 15.—Capt. Harvey W. Mills died of acute indigestion at his home in Watertown, N. Y., last night. Capt. Mills sailed the steamer H. W. Smith last season and was appointed master of the steamer E. F. Dunston building at Superior, which is to be launched on May 23.

Only One Charter.

Buffalo, May 15.—Dullness still prevails in coal shipping circles, the only charter reported yesterday being the E. L. Wallace to Milwaukee at 40 cents.

No Shippers in Market.

Chicago, May 15.—Shippers were entirely out of the market for grain yesterday, and their chief efforts were directed to getting cargoes that have already been chartered loaded and under way. Serious delays have been caused by the rainy weather.

Laying Up Carriers.

Buffalo, May 15.—The freight situation is without change in any line, and no more freighters are being sent out. Some of the big carriers which are now in commission will have to be sent to the dock.

UP TO THE OPERATORS.

Miners Will Not Continue Negotiations After Next Thursday.

Kansas City, Mo., May 15.—T. L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who is here, said today that unless the operators came to some agreement at the convention of miners that is to convene here next Tuesday, negotiations looking to an ending of the strike of the 35,000 Southwestern coal miners will come to an end.

PASTOR NOT GUILTY OF COUNTERFEITING.

Chicago, May 15.—The Rev. James A. Kaye was informed last night that the United States appellate court had reversed a decision by a lower court, which found him guilty of counterfeiting.

Dr. Kaye, pastor of a Presbyterian church at Lincoln, Ill., was convicted Jan. 1 last of having counterfeit coins in his possession. He was sentenced to two years in prison at Fort Leavenworth. His defense was that the coins were some he had made while experimenting with a medal for his Sunday school class.

SMALL SCHOONER ASHORE.

Life Savers Remove Crew From Vessel on New Jersey Coast.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 15.—An unknown three-masted schooner, apparently waterlogged and flying signals of distress, is lying several miles off Sea Isle City. The sea is so rough that life savers cannot launch their boat to go to the assistance of the disabled craft.

Philadelphia, May 15.—The distressed schooner is the William McGee, Capt. Pearsel, from West Point, Va., for New York, with a load of pine boards. In response to signals of distress the crew of the Sea Isle City life saving station went out in a life boat and brought the crew of five men ashore. The schooner is pounding on Townsend's Inlet bar and will be a total wreck. The William McGee was built in 1865 and was of less than 100 tons burden.

AMERICAN FISHERMAN CAUGHT BY CANADIANS.

Vancouver, B. C., May 15.—Found fishing inside the three-mile limit at the north end of Vancouver island, the American steam halibut schooner Francis Cutting, owned by the Seattle Fish & Cold Storage company, was seized by the Canadian fisheries cruiser Kestrel and brought to Vancouver yesterday.

Commander Newcomb wired Ottawa and the Dominion government will decide if the vessel is to be confiscated, the owners having the opportunity of fighting it in the courts if they wish to. As the Francis Cutting is a well built steamboat, worth about $30,000, the capture is an important one.

CARNEGIE SAILS FOR HIS SCOTTISH HOME.

New York, May 15.—Andrew Carnegie was a passenger on the White Star line Baltic, which sailed yesterday afternoon for Queenstown and Liverpool. Accompanied by his wife and little daughter, he will go to his Skibo estate, returning, according to Mr. Carnegie, in plenty of time to vote at the presidential election.

Mr. Carnegie was noncommittal on the question of presidential candidates. He spoke enthusiastically of the business situation.

TRYING TO SETTLE STRIKE.

Kansas City, May 15.—Active efforts to settle the strike of the 800 brewery workers who went out yesterday, tying up work in all the local breweries, were made today by Louis Kemper of Cincinnati, international secretary of the United Brewery Workers of America, who arrived in Kansas City last night. Mr. Kemper conferred with the strike leaders this morning, and later in the day a committee of the strikers met with the brewery representatives.

EMPRESS IS AGING.

Pekin, May 15.—The wives of the members of the diplomatic corps here were received by the dowager empress in audience at the summer palace today. It was noticed that the empress had aged materially since the last audience a year ago.

BAHR IS GIVEN A HEAVY FINE

Must Pay $100 for Keeping Saloon Open Too Late.

Max Bahr, bartender for J. D. Campbell of the St. James hotel, was fined $100 by Judge Windom in municipal court yesterday on the charge of having kept the saloon open after hours last Friday night. Campbell's license is due to come up for renewal at the council meeting next Monday night. Application will have to be made under some other name, as Campbell cannot take out a license for one year after being convicted of an offense against the law.

M. H. McMahon was attorney for the defense and Assistant City Attorney Kenny had charge of the prosecution. Bahr claimed on the stand that he closed the saloon at 11 o'clock Friday night, and went home with James Mitchell, his brother-in-law. Mitchel testified to the same effect. Charles Riley also claimed that with several others he was ordered out of the saloon at 11 o'clock and that twenty minutes later he returned to the place and found it closed. He said he even telephoned to the barroom from the hotel up stairs to make sure there was no one there and received no answer.

Riley was characterized by Mr. McMahon as a disinterested witness, but Judge Windom remembered him as the same man who had been summoned in two or three other saloon cases. The judge said he was satisfied the man was guilty, and gave him the heaviest fine possible.

Sergeant Toewe and Patrolman Bob Smollett were the only witnesses for the state. They said that at 12:45 Friday night they saw three men and a woman in the saloon, by looking over the curtains in front. Two of the men appeared to be drinking pint bottles of beer, they said. The doors which were tried were found locked.

After sentence had been pronounced Attorney McMahon asked for a stay of ten days, which was granted.

It would be a misdemeanor for any alderman to vote for the renewal of a saloon license within one year after the applicant has been convicted on a charge of law violation.

BANDITS SECURE MINERS' MONEY

El Paso, Tex., May 15.—Pursued by men and bloodhounds, three bandits with a $35,000 loot in their possession are fleeing through the rugged mountain passes north of French, a little station eighty miles from East Las Vegas, N. M., on the Santa Fe railroad in an effort to escape the clutches of the law.

At French yesterday afternoon they broke down the doors of the depot, bound and gagged the station agent and special guard, blew open the safe, took the money and rode away, leaving their victims helpless. A tramp wandered into the station half an hour later, released the almost unconscious men and gave the alarm.

The stolen money was sent from Albuquerque yesterday morning on a Santa Fe train to pay miners at Dawson, N. M. Only a branch road leads to the mines. A special train and a transfer of the money was necessary at French. A special guard, heavily armed, accompanied the treasure and upon leaving the train at French went inside the station, placed the money in the safe and locked the doors to the station.

Suddenly the noise of a breaking window attracted the guard and the station agent and they looked around to face the muzzles of two rifles. A third bandit broke open the door and entered. He then held the two men covered with a revolver while the other bandits entered the building. After tying the guard and agent, the robbers shot the safe with dynamite, took the money and fled.

GRAND JURY IS DOING THINGS

Big Grist of Indictments Have Already Been Returned in Court.

The grand jury for the present term of the district court is, to use a popular expression, "doing things." The men comprising the grand jury are mostly business and professional men, whose private business requires their attention and, while they may begrudge the time that they are in duty bound to spend about the public's business, they are grinding out a big list of indictments, the majority of which have not yet been made public, owing to the fact that the persons indicted are not in custody.

Up to yesterday noon there had been about twenty-two indictments returned. Another grist of about eight were returned at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, bringing the total up to this morning about twenty-eight or thirty.

At the rate the grand jury is working, if it continues in session longer the county attorney's office will have enough criminal cases for trialto keep one court busy for the next six weeks.

MRS. GUNNESS WAS ONCE A ROPE DANCER.

Christiania, May 15.—Mrs. Belle Gunness, the central figure in the Laporte, Ind., murder mystery, details of which have been received here, is remembered in Christiania as a girl, assisting her father, Peter S. Paulsen, a traveling conjurer and magician, who gave performances at all fairs in Norway. She performed as a rope dancer, and often was dressed in short skirts and fleshings. Her three sisters and brothers also took part in the show. The father made enough money eventually to retire to a small property, near Trondhjem. Mrs. Gunness has many relatives in Norway.

ICELAND BENEFITTED

By New Law to be Submitted to Parliaments.

Copenhagen, May 15.—The committee having the matter in hand yesterday presented to King Frederick a report containing its recommendations for the regulation of the future relations between Denmark and Iceland. The committee is composed of members of the Danish and Icelandic parliaments, and it was appointed at the time of his majesty's visit to Iceland, last year. The report is accompanied by a draft of the new law to govern the relations.

The bill to bring this law into being, which must be approved by both parliaments, constitutes Iceland "a free autonomous and independent country, united to Denmark by a common king and common interest, and forming with Denmark a state federation, the United Danish Empire."

If the bill passes, King Frederick will be entitled to call himself king of Denmark and king of Iceland. Various concessions have been granted to Iceland, giving a greater degree of independence.

EVANS AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, May 14.—With his old-time flow of animal spirits and looking much better than when he landed at San Diego several weeks ago, Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans arrived here last night. Admiral Evans alighted from the train in the union station here with the aid of crutches and upon seeing the roller chair that was awaiting him he exclaimed: "I don't want to take the chair, but I suppose I'll have to."

OREGONIANS INSIST ON SECRETARY TAFT.

Portland, Or., May 14.—Oregon's eight delegates to the Republican national convention were instructed for Secretary Taft at the state and congressional district conventions. The three conventions were absolutely in control of the Taft people, led by Senator Charles W. Fulton's friends.

Late in the afternoon, after the convention had passed resolutions instructing for Taft, a message was received from Senator Bourne at Washington urging that the delegates be instructed for President Roosevelt and stating that if otherwise instructed he did not wish to be a delegate.

Two efforts were made to have the name of Roosevelt substituted for Taft in the instructions to delegates and one to substitute the name of Hughes. Each of these motions was voted down.

The Great Pyramid.

The greatest of all pyramids is Khufu Khut, as the Egyptians call it, or the glorious throne of Khufu. All its four sides measure 755 feet, and the original height was 481 feet. The great staple beverage of the Northwest is golden grain belt beer. It is the most nourishing of all beers, because it contains every particle of the healthful, wholesome nutriment of the malt, and all the tonic properties of the hops from which it is made. LIST IS NOT YET READY

Bids for Courthouse Have Not Yet Been Tabulated.

Local Men Did Not Get Fair Deal From Manufacturers.

The list of bidders on the new courthouse and the class contracts in connection with the building, which have been under process of tabulation by the secretary of the courthouse commission and the architects, for the past three days is not yet ready for publication. There are so many details to be worked out in connection with the classification of the bids that the job is no inconsiderable one and the list, when completed will have about 400 bids tabulated running from small contracts for certain supplies to the high figures for the general construction contract.

It is understood from the local contractors who have been following the matter pretty closely, that there are six bids for the general construction work, some of these with and some without the heating and plumbing estimates.

As near as can be learned the four lowest bids are about as follows:

George H. Lounsberry, Duluth, without heat and plumbing..... 684,000
Lundquist & Illsley, Chicago, without heat and plumbing..... 550,000

Lundquist & Illsley of Chicago, are said to have made a bid complete for the building, with the exception of the grading around the structure, for $890,-00 and, according to rumor, has been generally accepted as being the lowest bid. The grading bids are understood to run from $21,000 up.

It is further reported that the Chicago contractors were $5,500 under the lowest class bid submitted by any other competing contractor or contracting firm, while on the complete contract the Chicago men are said to be about $76,000 under the next lowest bid for the same work.

The local people who are interested in the bids submitted have not yet given up their claim that the Duluth bids were as low as those of the outside concerns, taking all the class contracts into consideration.

The local men claim that if the Chicago firm has come in with the lowest figures, it is because the Chicago material men have given the benefit of lower prices than the Duluth contractors could get, especially on the ornamental or fancy iron work. The local contractors do not yet concede that they are out of the race.

As soon as all the details can be worked out, the architects will probably make their recommendations to the courthouse commission, and the commission will lay the matter before the county board at the next meeting in June, asking for an appropriation sufficient to cover the construction expense. If the appropriation is made, it is likely that the contracts will be awarded directly after the county board meeting.

NEED PERMIT FOR TUNNEL

Wisconsin Central Work May Ruin West Michigan Street.

City Engineer McGilvray this morning notified Lantry & Co., who have the contract for the construction of the Wisconsin Central terminals in Duluth, that they would have to secure a city permit for their tunneling and rock-cutting operations between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues west.

The excavation work along the road has resulted in the filling under the street becoming loose and working toward the lake. Particularly is this true during the recent rains. Something will have to be done to stop this. It is considered likely that, as the loose earth and stone is dug away below the street, stone or concrete walls will be built to prevent the caving in of the street, thus protecting the city's property.

You can eat hot biscuits at midnight if they are made by a good cook who uses Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder.

PLAINTIFF DID NOT APPEAR

Two personal injury cases are on trial in the district court today.

In Judge Ensign's room the trial of the case of John Samardesh against the Croxton Mining company was started this morning, but the jury was excused until 2 o'clock as the plaintiff and none of the witnesses were on hand when the attorney for Samardesh was ready to open his case. Samardesh put in an appearance a few minutes after the jurors had left the building.

The damage case of Frank Norton against C. J. Petruschke is still being heard in Judge Cant's room, and is not likely to be finished today.

BETTER BEMIDJI STREETS.

Bemidji, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Considerable work has been done on the streets of Bemidji which will have a tendency to beautify the city, and if this work is completed as started, it will be a big improvement to the streets of Bemidji. Bemidji avenue has been brought to grade from the south point of the Minnesota & International to Twelfth street, and residents along this portion of the town should do their share towards beautifying their lots, the portion of the streets fronting their lots.

UNITED STATES TO MAIL PAPERS FOR CANADIANS.

Halifax, N. S., May 15.—A new arrangement has been reached between the publishers of weekly and semi-weekly papers in the maritime provinces and the United States postoffice, whereby the Boston postoffice will receive in bulk, by express, all the provincial papers intended for circulation in the United States and consign them to their destinations at a postage charge of but 1 cent for each pound of papers in bulk. This will enable the publishers to distribute their papers to a much larger patronage than has been possible lately, owing to prohibitive rates.

STIMULUS TO BUSINESS.

Good Crop Prospects Induce Farmers to Buy Liberally.

Fargo, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The magnificent crop prospects over the state are a great stimulus to business, especially in farm implement lines. The general agents report a rush of orders from many sections of the state for farm machinery of all kinds. The trade is heavier in the newer sections and right in the Red River valley than elsewhere. The unusual activity here in the valley is due to the fact that for some years crop conditions were unfavorable and no purchases were made that were not absolutely necessary. The prospects are now so bright the farmers are buying liberally. The early seeding, the fine condition of the soil, the evenness with which the grain came up and the recent moisture have all combined to make the present situation most satisfactory.

THREE BOSS PAINTERS SIGN.

Fargo, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The striking painters have won a partial victory in getting three of the boss painters of Fargo and Moorhead to sign up. Those at the head of the larger shops still stand out and assert they have a sufficient force of non-union men to do their work.

MUCH WHISKY BURNS.

Oskaloosa, Iowa, May 15.—The bonded warehouse of the C. A. Hoover distillery, containing 2,600 barrels of whisky, was destroyed by fire today. The Hoover distillery is the only one in operation in Iowa. The warehouse will be rebuilt immediately. The loss is $100,000. Insurance, $65,000.

LIEUTENANT IS SAFE.

CROOKSTON NEWS NOTES.

Crookston, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bids for the new Franklin school building were advertised for yesterday. This building will be strictly modern and will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000.

The Third street outlet sewer which caved in some time ago and which threatened to undermine the Great Northern tracks at that point has again been opened and it is believed that substantial repairs can be made without changing the route of the sewer, though they will be costly.

40 Different Styles

LIVED IN AN ATTIC.

The early history of J. T. Trowbridge is as romantic as anything his imagination devised later for the entertainment of his readers, says The Delineator. He actually lived on crusts in an attic as he fought to make his way in the world. He wrote for the Dollar Magazine, so called, not only because it sold for $1 a year, but because it paid its writers $1 a page! It is hardly necessary after this to quote his own statement that he "was hungry at times." He adds cheerily, however, "no more so, probably, than was good for me, and never for long." It was when he was managing editor of Our Young Folks that he began the work that has made him so well known and loved. After they had published a series of stories for young people, written by Mayne Reid, Mrs. Whitney, Aldrich and others equally famous, he was suggesting names for a successor in their work. His "chief" looked at him quizzically and observed, "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?" So John did, with the result that thousands of young people have adored his books.

AN OMELET FOR HARD TIMES.

When eggs are very high the omelet is a forbidden luxury in many households, says the Delineator. An omelet made in this manner, however, will meet all the demands of economy, and will, at the same time, be as light and fluffy as though prepared in the ordinary and more costly way. Put a cupful of finely crumbled bread into a bowl, and pour over it two-thirds of a cupful of sweet milk. When the bread has become thoroughly moistened, stir it with a spoon until it is entirely smooth and free from lumps. Add the yolks of two eggs, beating them into the bread and milk, one at a time; then, fold in the stiffly-whipped whites, and pour into a well-buttered baking-dish. Bake in a moderate oven until well set. A pleasing variation is to sprinkle the top of the omelet with grated cheese and paprika before removing it from the oven. If a sweet omelet is desired, a generous sprinkling of maple sugar will prove pleasing.

PRIMARY LAW IS MUCH IN DISFAVOR

Fargo, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual meeting of the North Dakota State Auditors' association, held here this week, did not take kindly to the present primary law.

One of the most important questions considered was:

"How many names does a candidate need on his petition in order to file same with the auditor, in new counties where no election has been held?"

This question was repeated several times, or different phases of the question, and in fact the most of the questions propounded to the association by the auditors were on the new primary law. It seemed to be the almost unanimous opinion of the auditors that the primary election law as it is at present, is not a success. As to the question above, the majority of the auditors were of the opinion that they would require 200 signers, although it was pointed out that in some of the new counties there would not be that many legal voters in some of the counties on the Democratic ticket. The law states that there must be not more than 200 names on the petition, and there was considerable discussion as to whether the auditors should refuse to accept a petition with more than 200 names. Some of the auditors were of the opinion that this law was meant to read not more than 200 required, but the word "required" does not appear in the statutes, and President Lewis stated that this provision was made for the purpose of preventing some candidates from going through the county and getting so many names on his petition that all other candidates would be kept from being able to get enough. The law will only allow a voter to sign one petition.

By a rising vote, the majority decided that they would not accept petitions with more than 200 names attached.

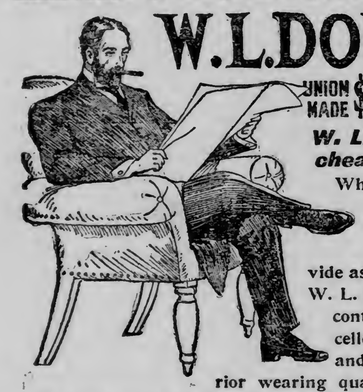
The next annual meeting of the association will be held at Minot. Retiring Vice President J. W. Fabrick, who is the auditor of Ward county, gave the association a pressing invitation to the magic city for the next convention and his invitation was accepted.

ALLEGED MURDERER HELD TO AWAIT GRAND JURY.

Lake Benton, Minn., May 15.—Martin Schwab, the suspected murderer of John Lorensen, was brought here Wednesday afternoon from Estherville, Iowa, by Sheriff Curtis. The accused man was arraigned before Justice of the Peace G. I. Larson and was sent to the county jail at Ivanhoe to wait until the convening of the grand jury for the October term of court.

The general impression of the people here is that Schwab is the guilty man.

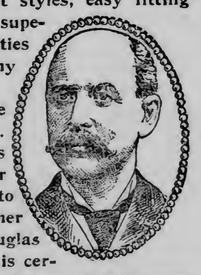
W.L.DOUGLAS



UNION MADE $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN

W. L. Douglas never cheapens his shoes.

While the high price of leather will make it impractical for other manufacturers to provide as good shoes as formerly, W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes will continue to afford those excellent styles, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities that have resulted in the largest sale of any $3.50 shoe in the world.



This will make it especially desirable for those who have never tried W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes to wear them this season, and thus prove that they are better than any other $3.50 shoes and equal to footwear ordinarily sold at much higher prices. While such action by W. L. Douglas must of necessity impair profits, yet he is certain that the increased business which it assures will prove the wisdom of such action.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

FIGHT OVER HIS ESTATE

Fergus Falls Man Delayed Too Long in Making Will.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 15.—A vigorous contest is in progress in the probate court here for the administration of the estate of the late Peter Prinzl, who died suddenly in the railway station at Wadena a few weeks ago while returning from a trip to Hunters' Hot Springs, Montana. Mr. Prinzl owned some of the most valuable business property in this city and had been living alone for some years, his wife having died, leaving no children. He had spoken at different times of making a will, and a short time before leaving for the hot springs, consulted an attorney, and asked if a will could not be drawn that would be legal, without witnesses. The reply was that it would have to be witnessed, and in view of this fact, he decided to wait a while longer, as he did not wish anyone to know how he proposed to dispose of his property. It was currently reported that he planned to leave the greater part of it to Charles Kissinger, a prominent young business man of this city, and his closest personal friend. His sudden death which was due to heart failure, gave him no opportunity to dispose of his property as he wished, and a sister, residing in Austria, is understood to be his only heir.

Singularly enough, this sister was instrumental in having him disinherited at the time of the death of his father, and he always spoke of her with the deepest bitterness. This father was a man of some means, but Mr. Prinzl obtained little or nothing from his estate, and made his money in the general store business here. His sister was probably the last person in the world to whom he would have cared to leave his property, but he had no idea that he was seriously ill, and neglected making the will until death overtook him.

Mr. Klissinger has applied for letters of administration and has the indorsement of the Austrian consul, who, in a general way, represents Austrian heirs in America. O. H. Lee, who occupies Mr. Frinzl's business block, was entrusted with his keys at the time of his departure and was appointed special administrator of the estate immediately after his death and is now a candidate for the general administration. As the deceased had no relatives in America, the administration necessarily passes to some friend, and both applicants have secured legal talent and are urging their claims before the probate court. The estate is worth about $25,000.

ASHLAND COUNTY FAIR.

Plans for Holding One During Tri-State Racing.

Ashland, Wis., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although Ashland county did not have a fair last year there will be one this year during the races to be pulled off by the Tri-State Fair & Racing association. At a meeting just held of fair officials George W. Dopp was elected president; W. A. French, secretary; Carl Ruhquist, treasurer, and J. Zoesch of the village of Butternut, M. J. Hawley of Odanah, Tobey of Mellen, J. E. Bissell of La Pointe, O. L. Lampson of Sanborn, H. L. Smart of Agenda and E. B. Gordon were elected vice presidents. The newly elected directors are F. S. Dhooge, C. H. Clarke, J. J. McGeehan, J. B. Mathews and William Kellogg. Dr. Bressard was elected superintendent of speed, George Wilkinson, superintendent of grounds and buildings and George Kuntz, superintendent of agriculture. A committee composed of G. W. Dopp, J. J. McGeehan, Dr. Andrus and James Good was appointed to wait on the county board next Wednesday, and ask for the annual appropriation.

THEY TILTED THE LID.

Some Brainerd Saloonkeepers Fined $20 Each and Costs.

Brainerd, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fines of $20 and costs were imposed yesterday in the municipal court upon Thomas H. Bears, George Ridley, Adam Armstrong, Iver Holden, George Hoyt and H. M. Johnson, saloonkeepers, found guilty of violating the Sunday closing law. Several cases against other saloonkeepers are pending and more arrests are expected.

OPEN SHOP POLICY AT ESCANABA ORE DOCKS.

Escanaba, Mich., May 15.—The first step in the general movement to declare for an open shop policy on all ore docks at Escanaba, where the dock officials have refused to treat with the unions and will hire men for the season's work individually. At the conference between dock officials and the men who struck before beginning work, it was announced that last season's scale of wages will be paid, but the union will not be recognized.

HELD TO GRAND JURY.

Men Alleged to Have Robbed Manvel Store, Bound Over.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas Payne and Joe Miller, the men charged with robbing the store of Colosky at Manvel were arraigned before Judge McLaughlin in this city yesterday and held to answer to the charge on $1,000 bonds which they failed to furnish. The men were returned to the Grand Forks county jail where they will remain for trial.

George Simmons, the other alleged burglar, who was caught at Oslo, is still being held there, he refusing to come across the river into North Dakota with Deputy Sheriff Johnson who went after him. State's Attorney Wineman has forwarded the necessary papers for his requisition to Governor Burke and as soon as returned the man will be brought here.

LESS VALUATION.

Calumet, Mich., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of review for the township of Calumet, composed of Supervisor James MacNaughton, W. H. Faucett and Edward Ulseth, has started its work of looking up new improvements in the building line in Calumet township and the equalizing of assessments so as to have the work completed for the clerk of the board of assessors by the first Tuesday in June.

The assessed valuation of Calumet township last year amounted to $57,328,937. It is expected the valuation will be considerably less this year, due to the depreciation in mining properties and other causes.

A conservative estimate places the depreciation in mining stocks and values in Houghton county at $60,000,000 less this year than last. This will naturally reflect itself in Calumet township where several large copper mines are in operation.

NORTH DAKOTA A. O. U. W.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state executive board of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, in session here this week made a few changes of importance with reference to the state organization. The deputy service of the order of having four men working through the state in the interests of the lodge, was decided to be continued. An investment was ordered, the board deciding to purchase Lisbon city bonds of $12,500 as an investment. The continuation of the $4 fee applicable to the lodges about the state for admission to the order, was continued. One of the new features discussed by the board which met with favorable action, was the adoption of limited payment certificates, to become paid in ten, fifteen and twenty years like the old line insurance. This latter step is considered quite important and means a lot to the order. The Ancient Order of United Workmen is in excellent financial condition. There are 6,000 in membership of the order in this state and about $10,000,000 insurance in force. The membership is growing rapidly and the order is one of the banner organizations of the state. The reserved accumulation is $250,000, which is invested in bonds and other securities bringing a good rate of interest.

CAUGHT IN CALIFORNIA.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. T. Mulhall, wanted in Minneapolis in connection with the Nicollet Creamery company fraud, which attracted wide attention last fall, was arrested in Los Angeles, Cal., Wednesday night, and is being held for the local authorities. Mulhall, in company with two other men, whom he used, it is said, as "tools," started into the egg, butter and poultry business under the name of the Nicollet Creamery company shortly before Thanksgiving of last year. He bought goods of farmers to whom he quoted higher prices than other paid, which resulted in the company receiving large consignments. This game he is alleged to have worked for some time without paying the farmers, and finally left the city in company with his two partners with all the proceeds of the sales.

United States Marshal W. H. Grimshaw, who made every effort to capture Mulhall last winter, claims no knowledge of who ordered the arrest in Los Angeles. According to dispatches from Los Angeles, Mulhall was arrested on information by wire from the Minneapolis police. Chief of Police F. T. Corriston denies that Mulhall is wanted by the local police.

CATCH SUSPECT.

Grafton, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a ticket for Winnipeg in his pocket, John Benner, an alleged hold-up man, was taken from a Northern Pacific northbound train here Wednesday by a deputy sheriff from Welch county, and lodged in jail on a charge of holding up and nearly killing a man. Benner had been in East Grand Forks and was warned that the police were looking for him. A man named Nye was secured to drive him to Melnock.

Shortly before the Northern Pacific train arrived in Grafton, Benner and Nye dashed toward the depot with horses covered with foam. Benner hurried to the train and made it, but the actions of the men excited the suspicions of Melnock residents and Marshal Martin Lieber arrested Nye, believing him to be a safe blower. Benner was taken off the train at Grafton. Nye was later released.

KING VERY SORRY.

Slayer of Ed Tierbach is Consumed With Remorse.

Stanley, Wis., May 15.—Before leaving for Medford in charge of the sheriff of Taylor county, James King, the murderer of young Ed Tierbach, made the statement that he was very sorry for the deed, but that he fired in what he supposed at the time was in self defense, as he say Tierbach reach for his revolver, and that there had not been the most cordial feeling between the two for some time.

King is considered a peaceable man when not intoxicated, but young Matthewson, who witnessed the shooting, says Tierbach had no gun, and made no movement which could indicate to King he had one.

King will be unable to establish a self defense.

BRAINERD MAKING MONEY.

Crow Wing County Capital to Entertain State Eagles' Meet.

Brainerd, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The committee in charge of the arrangements for the convention here of the F. O. E., which will be held from June 16 to 19, inclusive, is making preparations for a great time. The band will meet the delegates at all the trains and will escort them to the headquarters, which will be in the Commercial club rooms, where carriages will be at the disposal of the delegates and their ladies. There will even be prizes for the participation in the parade, the first one of $30 to be paid to the aerie having the largest representation and $20 to the one having the second largest. There will be a class initiation, a grand parade and ball and a banquet and social session.

BRIDGE AT ISANTI.

County Commissioners Look With Favor Upon Proposition.

Isanti, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—N. J. Enquist, Peter Peterson, George Baker, Ernest Carlson and Charles Ekstrom went to Cambridge Wednesday and appeared before the county board in regard to the Isanti bridge over the Rum river. The commissioners agreed to build a new steel bidge providing the village will pay $1,500 of the cost, estimated at about $5,000, the village to also receive credit on the $1,500 for all that can be saved from the old bridge. Commissioner Walker of Spencer Brook gave Isanti every possible assistance in securing favorable action by the board.

NEW YORK GETS POINTERS ON CALUMET STREET PAVING.

Calumet, Mich., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. Dewey of New York, an expert on pavements, was in Calumet Tuesday for the purpose of inspecting granitoid pavements here, with a view to recommending the same to a private firm in New York, which, is contemplating using this material in and around its business premises and large yards. It is also probable that he may recommend the material to the municipal authorities of some of the suburbs of the big city.

Mr. Dewey stated he was very well satisfied with the material, believing it has lasting qualities.

PAINS IN BACK

It's Your Kidneys. Warner's Safe Cure Absolutely and Permanently Cures All Diseases of the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder, Blood, Urinary Organs, Rheumatism and Diabetes.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

is the only positive remedy for all forms of kidney disease. There is health in every bottle.

We recommend to the readers of The Duluth Evening Herald the frank, straightforward letter from Dr. W. H. May, Philadelphia, Pa., whose experience is worth reading.

His letter carries conviction to the most sceptical mind of the wonderful curative properties of Warner's Safe Cure, for all kidney and bladder diseases.

This is his letter: "The sample bottle you sent me had an immediate good effect, so I purchased some of the large bottles, and am now taking it and will continue to take it until I am perfectly cured. I used to urinate about 8 times a day, particularly at night. Now I urinate normally (no pain), and on testing my urine found it to be perfectly normal. I therefore highly recommend it in all cases of urinary troubles, and will allow you to use my name publicly, if you desire to do so. Dr. W. H. May, 105 N. 19th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

This was quick action, but not quicker than it should be. If the kidneys are unable to do their work properly, the liver becomes affected, then the bladder, the blood and the stomach. The blood is thinned the urine is muddy, contains brick-dust sediment after standing 24 hours; the liver is torpid and the pains in the back severe.

TEST YOUR KIDNEYS.

Put some morning urine in a glass or bottle, let it stand 24 hours. If there is a reddish sediment in the bottom of the glass, or if the urine is cloudy or milky or if you see particles or germs floating about in it, your kidneys are diseased and you should get a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure at once.

ANALYSIS FREE.

If after making this test you have any doubt as to the development of the disease in your system, send a sample of your urine, putting your name and address on the package, to our Medical Department, and our doctors will analyze it and send you a report, with advice, and medical booklet free.

In kidney disease the bowels are often constipated and the liver torpid. Warner's Safe Pills quickly relieve this condition, and no ill after effect is experienced.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE is put up in two sizes and is sold by all druggists, or direct, at 50 CENTS and $1.00 A BOTTLE. Refuse substitutes containing harmful drugs which injure the system.

TRIAL BOTTLE FREE! To convince every sufferer from disease of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood that WARNER'S SAFE CURE will cure them, a trial bottle will be sent FREE OF CHARGE, postpaid, to any one who will write WARNER'S SAFE CURE CO., Rochester, N. Y., and mention having seen this liberal offer in the Duluth Evening Herald. The genuineness of this offer is fully guaranteed by the publisher.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

WHITE SOX ARE BLANKED

Giencke is Strong in Opening Game of the Season.

Maroons Bunch Hits Off Krick With Duluth Errors.

Winnipeg, Man., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The good south wing of little Mr. Giencke of Milwaukee, Wis., was too much for Bill Morrow's husky White Sox in the opening game of the season, and the Duluthians were blanked with a score of 5 to 0. Giencke had the game safe at every stage, and at the end the score book showed but two hits for the visitors from across the border.

Josie Krick didn't do badly, but Giencke was too big a stumbling block for him to get over. He held the Maroons to five hits, but the Sox chucked in a similar number of errors and a couple of passes helped the Maroons around the bases. Up to the eighth the game held an element of uncertainty, but in that inning the Maroons bunched hits with errors and scored three men.

The opening of the league season here was an auspicious one. About 5,000 fans turned out to cheer the nica who are to go after another pennant for Winnipeg, and they cheered lustily when the 1907 banner was raised to the top of the flagpole. The Winnipeg team played good ball all the way, and the fans were delighted with the showing.

The detailed score of the game follows:

GANS BEATS THE BOER

Referee Saves Unholz From Knockout by Interfering in Eleventh.

San Francisco, May 15.—Joe Gans, the lightweight champion, added another victime to his long string last night by defeating Rudolph Unholz, the rugged Boer from South Africa, in the eleventh round. The fight was Gans' all the way through. He systematically beat down Unholz and the referee interfered in the eleventh round as Unholz was then practically knocked out.

Although Gans held the fight safe at all stages, he had no easy time in solving the awkward defense of Unholz and in overcoming his natural stamina.

The first knock down occurred in the fourth round, Gans whipping in a terrific left uppercut to the point of the chin. Unholz got up promptly and came back full of fight, and although willing at all times to mix it and never afraid of the clever Gans his wild efforts were mostly unavailing.

In the seventh round Gans knocked Unholz down with a right uppercut to the chin, and one of the latter's seconds, losing his head, tossed a towel into the ring and quickly crawled through the ropes. Unholz got up promptly and made a wicked attempt to strike his second, who quickly crawled back outside the ropes and the fight went on.

In the tenth round Gans sent the Boer to the floor again and he got up dazed and unsteady. The unequal combat was prolonged into the eleventh round when with short arm jolts, Gans sent the Boer down with wicked uppercuts to the chin. Unholz got up completely blinded and unable to see his opponent.

Gans, seeing the condition of Unholz, humanely stood aside and Referee Welch stepped in and gave the decision to the champion.

The men weighed in stripped at the ringside shortly before commencing hostilities, the scales showing a trifle less than 133 according to the articles of agreement. It was noticed that Gans looked a bit drawn after he had stripped, while the Boer, who has trained hard with a view of wresting the laurels from the champion, fairly scintilated with the glow of health.

Betting on the general result was light, with the odds favoring Gans, at 10 to 8½.

Jack Welch refereed the main event which was preceded by two six round bouts, the first between Tommy Herman and W. O. Smith, and the second between Charlie Lucca of Chicago, and Billy Purtell of this city.

THREE HITS FOR FARGO

Nelson Strong and Clark Easy With Men on Sacks.

Brandon, Man., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Professional baseball was introduced to 2,500 Brandon fans yesterday, when Artie O'Dea's Brandon team took the first game of the season from McNeil's Fargo Browns by the one-sided score of 6 to 1.

Nelson was the principal cause for the Brandon victory. The big South Dakota boy was in fine form and after the first inning, when a couple of passes and a three-bagger by Sheehan scored one run, the Fargoans never had a chance. He settled down completely and Conyngham was the only man who could solve his delivery. He rapped out two singles, but they weren't placed so as to do any damage. A slip by Leighty in the first inning was the only error charged to the home team.

THE "DUKE OF BRANDON."

Clark was hit pretty freely and his support was wretched in spots. In the second, third and fifth the Infants bunched hits with Fargo misplays for all of their scores and after the fifth, the Brown twirler settled and wasn't to be touched.

Louie Linvingston at second base pulled off some great fielding stunts and a double play by him and O'Dea was the feature of the game.

The opening contest was preceded by a parade, in which the mayor and other city officials participated. Mayor Clement made a short speech at the park and pitched the first ball.

The detailed score follows:

CANFIELD WINS AGAIN.

Nolan is Far in the Rear in Handicap Pool Match.

In the fourth game of the handicap pool match at the Brown billiard hall, Canfield again defeated Nolan by a score of 109 to 59, making a total of 400 for Canfield to 245 for Nolan. Last night's game was slow for the first forty balls, but from that on, both players picked up. Canfield ran nineteen in the eleventh and Nolan ran fifteen. Canfield then ran seven and twenty-four and finished the game in the eighteenth, with a run of five. Canfield's high runs were twenty-four, nineteen and fourteen. Nolan's were fifteen, twelve and seven. The match will continue tonight.

S.S.S. PURIFIES THE BLOOD

Bad blood is responsible for most of the ailments of mankind. When from any cause this vital fluid becomes infected with impurities, humors or poisons, disease in some form is sure to follow. Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Boils, Pimples, etc., while they show on the skin, have an underlying cause which is far deeper—an impure, humor-infected blood supply, and until this is corrected, and the blood purified, the distressing itching and burning symptoms will remain. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Blood Poison and all other blood disorders, are the result of a vitiated, polluted circulation, and will continue to grow worse unless the poison is removed from the blood. In all blood and skin diseases S. S. S. has proved itself a perfect remedy. It goes down into the circulation and removes all waste matter, humors or poisons, and makes the blood pure and health-sustaining. Nothing reaches inherited taints and old chronic troubles like S. S. S.; it cures because it purifies the blood and restores lost properties to the impoverished circulation. Not only is S. S. S. a blood purifier of the highest order, but a tonic and appetizer without an equal. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

Kelleys and Fitwells to Play at Virginia and Hibbing.

Both Clubs Have High Hopes of Scoring Victories.

Virginia and Hibbing fans are to get a look at the best semi-professional outfits Duluth can send to the outskirts of the baseball bushes. The Kelleys will perform at Virginia Saturday and Sunday and the Fitwells are to be at Hibbing for one performance only, Sunday May 17.

Managers Ziegler and Jacobs, respectively, are as full of confidence as turkeys with dressing at a Thanksgiving dinner. "I've got the best team Duluth ever saw," loudly shouts Ziegler and Jacobs, with a sardonic smile of supreme contempt retorts "Nix." They'll settle that question in about a month, but in the meantime, both teams are the best ever were or ever will be.

Max Cook, the high school boy, who hung one on Judge Brady's Colts in the first game of the season, will try to do likewise with Carey's high salaried men at Virginia tomorrow. He has mounted high among the youngsters in and around Duluth this season and the Kelleys have confidence in him. Larson will pitch Sunday and Brownlee will be in reserve at both games to jump in and save the day, should either of the other men go wrong.

Tommy Robinson will do the catching in both games. Tommy says he's in fine condition, his wing is great and it's the ring of the bullseye for him every shot. When it comes to getting around the bases—well, he can roll.

Virginia hasn't had much chance to practice this week on account of the weather, so that the team will not be much better off than it was when it met the White Sox. At that, it was dangerous. The men are all old heads at the game, Currie and Grogan are both good pitchers and Wix Tredway is liable to break loose anytime and pitch good ball. O'Hayer, Rovie, Walters, Freddie Olmstead, Fred Anthony and Jimmy Ryan have all cut their eyeteeth and the Virginia fans ought to see a couple of good bouts.

The Fitwells will make their debut in a regular game Sunday. Last Sunday's exhibition at Athletic park didn't assume the aspect of a contest at any time. The Fitwells just walked up to the plate, slammed the ball and tore around the bases. They showed great slugging powers and hope to beat Brady's men just by hitting the ball hard and often.

The victories over Brandon have set Hibbing crazy and, should the Fitwells win, the blow will kill a thousand fans. The Duluth boys will take chances and win, they say. They think Cummings can hold the Hibbing men in check, while they will cheerfully pound anything the range crowd can send to the center of the diamond.

The 1908 season of the Northern league is on and the Sox did not get away in front. The Maroons showed that they are as dangerous as Eddie Herr's pennant winner of 1907 and Giencke made one big splurge to start the season off.

In the face of such pitching as Giencke threw out yesterday, no team could be expected to win. Of course, the Sox may have been weak in the hitting department, but when only twenty-one men face a pitcher in seven innings, that man is working.

Josie Krick's pitching would win an ordinary game. His support wasn't the best in the world, but it was only the opener. The boys were playing their first regular game, on strange grounds before a roaring, unfriendly crowd, and the blanking doesn't reflect any discredit on them. Here's hoping for better things in the future.

At Brandon, Artie O'Dea's sluggers showed that the beating they received at Hibbing wasn't a true indication of their form. Young Nelson pitched up to the standard reports have set for him and McNeil's men were just as weak as everybody expected they would be.

The results of the first games, while not indicating the strength of the teams beyond the shadow of a doubt, show that both Canadian nines are to be regarded with wholesome fear. They are long on pitchers and hitters and unless the Americans strike a pretty speedy stride, they are due to be left at the post.

Rudy Unholz's beating by Joe Gans last night was just what was expected. The Boer was jumping up the ladder too fast and was due to have a slip and tumble to the bottom again. His gameness against the old master was refreshing in this day of wide yellow streaks, and his fighting ability in his own class was demonstrated. But he is not in Gans' class. There is only one man in the country able to give the negro a fight now and he is McFarland. Age hasn't spoiled the old fellow's science or wallop, and if Packey goes against him within the next year, he will very likely fare but little better than did the South African.

The fans always like to see a home boy go to the front in the baseball world, and this year, they are watching the ascent of two Duluthians with interest. Newt Randall is cracking the boards off the fence in the American association, and Si Bennett is burning up the Northwestern circuit. The papers out through the West are touting Bennett as the fastest fielder ever seen in the league, covering all kinds of ground and getting everything.

The first set of batting averages just issued shows Si standing second in the list with a percentage of .378. J. Bennett of Seattle, tops him with .420, but the Butte player's hitting has been consistent and he looks dangerous all the time.

Toot Thompson has finally found a berth. Duluth after some investigations, didn't want him and O'Dea wanted Summers more than he did the redskin. So Toot was turned over to Fargo and there he will stay for a while, at least. To be owned by three clubs of the league before the season started is a distinction, and Toot is lucky if he doesn't do some more shifting before the season goes very far.

FITWELLS ARE THE CHAMPIONS

Clothing Men Win Two Straight From the Bankers.

The Fitwells of the Duluth City Bowling league won the league honors and the championship of the Head of the Lakes last night by winning two straight games from the First National bank team. The match was to have been an extra one of three games to decide the championship, which was left in a tie at the end of the league season last Friday night.

The annual city tournament will begin next Monday night and will run about a week. There will be three events, five men teams, two men teams and individuals. The tournament will run on a handicap basis and all those having no league record will receive no handicap. Bowlers in Duluth and Superior may enter.

The scores of last night's games follow:

First Game Sunday.

Eveleth, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eveleth semi-professional team will have a practice game Sunday with either McKinley or Mt. Iron. A battery has been secured in Jacobson and Speer, recently of the Duluth White Sox, and they will be on hand Sunday. Butch Kinnelley will manage the team and he expects to secure a good squad. Uniforms have been ordered and the grounds are being put in shape.

Meet is Postponed.

The high school interclass track meet, which was to have been held tomorrow, has been postponed until next Friday afternoon. The rain of the past week has spoiled the track and it will not be in shape tomorrow. The meet with Blaine of Superior will take place a week from tomorrow at the driving park.

HOUSE PASSES VREELAND BILL

Washington, May 15.—The Vreeland bill, agreed upon by the Republican caucus, was yesterday put through the house under a special rule by a vote of 184 to 145. Fifteen so-called insurgents of the majority party voted with the Democrats, who went on record solidly against the measure.

The closing moments of the debate were replete with excitement and Republican enthusiasm, caused by the refusal of the great majority of the Democrats to go on record for the Williams bill, which had been offered by Mr. Kahn of California as a substitute for the Vreeland bill, in accordance with a well-laid plan of the majority leaders to ascertain where the Democrats stood on the proposition, which, it was claimed by several, was supported by Mr. Bryan. Ninety-three Democrats voted "present," which aroused the Republicans to a high state of hilarity at the expense of the minority. Only a handful of Democrats had the temerity to vote "aye" or "no." The action of Mr. Kahn was due to the refusal of Mr. Williams to present his bill, as a substitute, which, under the rule, he was specifically authorized to do.

At 6:10 the house recessed until today at 11:30 o'clock.

As soon as the bill reaches the senate, Mr. Aldrich will call a meeting of the committee on finance to consider it. It is expected the committee will vote unanimously to amend the house measure by striking out all after the enacting clause and inserting the provisions of the bill which was passed by the senate. It is not doubted that the senate will approve the action of the committee. The effect of this course would be to send both the Vreeland and Aldrich bills to conference.

GREAT WAS ENTHUSIASM FOR GOVERNOR JOHNSON AT ST. PAUL CONVENTION

Delegates Refuse to Name Bryan as State's Second Choice.

Protest Against the Centralization of Power at Washington.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The most enthusiastic state convention ever held in Minnesota was that of yesterday, which indorsed Governor John A. Johnson as a presidential candidate and refused, by a decisive vote, to declare in favor of William J. Bryan as second choice. It was a Johnson convention from first to last. No Democratic state convention in Minnesota was ever better attended, and it was notable for the high class of delegates who were present. Farmers, business and professional men were on hand from every section of the state, and their enthusiasm for Johnson for president was frequently manifested during the convention's proceedings.

The followers of Mr. Bryan did not carry out the threat which they had so often made during the last ten days—that they would bolt and hold a rump convention if their contests were defeated before the committee on credentials, or if they were not able to secure a partial indorsement of their leader. They made a sturdy fight for their man, and when they had been overwhelmingly defeated, remained quietly in their seats and made no motion to leave.

The Johnson men were generous in their victory and declared in their platform that, while they entertained "an affection for, and confidence in, the integrity and ability of William J. Bryan," they believed that Johnson was a man better calculated to bring success to the Democratic party, and was first entitled to the support of Minnesota.

(From Thursday's Extra.)

The committee on credentials was not ready to report when the convention met for the afternoon session. Only five contests had been taken up, those of Cottonwood, Hennepin, Fillmore, Itasca and Waseca. The Cottonwood delegation was divided half and half between the Johnson and Bryan factions. Itasca was given to Bryan, and the others to Johnson. The promised contest in Ramsey county (St. Paul) was not brought before the committee.

The report of the credentials committee, in conformity with the foregoing, was read to the convention and adopted without a negative vote being made.

The committee on organization recommended that the temporary officers of the convention be made permanent, and this was done unanimously.

The Platform.

The report of the resolutions committee was read by T. D. O'Brien of St. Paul, chair of that body. Before commencing to read the platform he announced that all the members of the committee except Knox of Jackson county and Whipple of Winona, had signed the report. The platform was as follows:

We affirm our allegiance to the principles of the party of Jefferson and Jackson and pledge our entire and faithful support to the candidate for the presidency whom the National Democratic party in its wisdom shall select at the convention to be held in Denver next July.

We commend and indorse the honest, upright and efficient administration of public affairs of this state during the past four years. With the co-operation of the legislature and other public officers, our wise and able executive has secured a system of taxation of high merit, the public resources have been conserved, the laws have been enforced and public duties discharged with efficiency and thoroughness.

The Tariff.

We declare that the high protective tariff now maintained by the Republican party has made possible unlawful trusts and combinations, has destroyed the equilibrium which should exist between the producing classes and is still the chief rampart behind which predatory wealth is entrenched.

We hold that while this condition remains unchanged, the best efforts of prosecuting officers, courts and juries will be ineffectual to afford permanent relief from trust domination.

We, therefore, insist that the tariff be at once revised to meet these conditions, and that the revision be by the friends of the people rather than by the friends of the tariff.

Supervision of Combines.

The corporate form of organization has been freely used as a cloak to hide overcapitalization, reckless speculation and illegal business methods. Strict supervision and control of the great industrial enterprises and public service corporations is necessary for the continued welfare of the American people. This fact should be accepted fully and in good faith by those in control of such industries, and in this way industrial peace can be most quickly secured, but until the right of the state and federal governments within their respective domains to so supervise is fully established we declare it to be the duty of all public officers to take the most effective means consistent with our system of government to bring all to a realization of the fact that the great fundamental objects of the American government are to maintain the dignity of labor; to preserve law and order; to keep men from injuring one another, and to afford equal opportunities to all.

We recognize that the commercial and transportation business of this country cannot be transacted except through the instrumentality of large aggregations of capital, but that fact makes it more than ever necessary that the rights of the individual citizen should be jealously guarded.

Protection of Labor.

It is not only their right to do so, but it is necessary that those who labor with their hands should organize for their own protection. The demand of labor should be granted for reasonable hours of work, for the compulsory adoption of safety appliances in connection with dangerous employments and for a modification of the rules of the common law fixing the liability of the master for injuries to the servant, so that in the future our jurisprudence will guarantee to labor that the industry will bear the risk.

We declare further that, in common with all other citizens, those charged with any crime in connection with or growing out of so-called labor disturbances, should enjoy the right of a speedy and impartial trial by jury.

Centralization of Power.

We believe that the powers ceded to the federal government by the states through the Constitution in its present form are ample. Notwithstanding the closer relations between the people which improved transportation facilities have established, a too great centralization of power is as dangerous now as when the Constitution was framed. The powers reserved to the states are necessary to enable each to manage its domestic and internal affairs; to preserve the American principle of home rule; to prevent the exercise of autocratic power by federal officers and to maintain between the states a generous rivalry as to which can best present a system of wise laws and efficient administration.

The dangers to be apprehended from centralization of power are already apparent, for under autocratic leaderships congress has become inactive and no longer responds to the public will, while a bureaucratic form of government is being rapidly extended to a point which threatens the extinction of state autonomy.

Senators by Direct Vote.

We favor the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people.

We favor progressive and practicable measures for the taxation of incomes, the establishment of postal savings banks and safeguarding of bank deposits along the lines suggested by William J. Bryan.

While maintaining an affection for and confidence in the integrity and ability of Hon. William Jennings Bryan, we now propose as the party's choice one who equally worthy gives a greater promise of a successful candidacy and is first entitled to our support.

Johnson for President.

In Governor John A. Johnson, Minnesota presents to the nation a Democratic candidate for president, of ability, integrity and honor, a constructive statesman, who holds no brief from any class, one who from early youth has been a wage earner, whose private life has been of such purity, vigor and earnestness as to win him the love, respect and confidence of all who know him. In public life he has by his virtue won the admiration of the people of his state and nation, regardless of condition in life or political faith.

We, therefore, instruct our delegates to the national Democratic convention to vote as a unit for, and continue to so vote as long as necessary to secure the nomination of Hon. John A. Johnson as the candidate for president.

The words, "along the lines suggested by William J. Bryan," in the postal savings bank plank, were added by the committee to the original draft of the platform, and the insertion of the Nebraskan's name was received with an outburst of applause. When the name of Johnson was uttered by Mr. O'Brien, a terrific yell broke from the great body of delegates, and men in all parts of the hall leaped to their feet and waived their hats and handkerchiefs in wild enthusiasm.

Minority Report.

A minority report was presented on the Bryan plank by P. J. Knox. He asked that his report be added to the majority report of the committee on resolutions. The minority report was as follows:

"Resolved, That in pledging our adherence to the candidacy of Governor Johnson we do not disparge or overlook the great service to the party, the nation and the world of that great commoner, brilliant orator and fearless reformer, William J. Bryan, and we instruct the delegates from Minnesota to the national convention at Denver that in case the nomination of Governor Johnson becomes impossible to vote for W. J. Bryan without variation or exception until a candidate is nominated."

The motion of Mr. Knox was greeted with loud cheers by the Bryan men, and a chorus of "no, no," from the Johnson men.

C. Vasaley of Little Falls made the first speech on the motion of Mr. Knox and urged the convention to declare in favor of Bryan as "second choice." He asserted that such action would in no manner stultify and declaration in favor of Johnson, and said that the Democracy cannot in any degree afford to abrogate the principles upheld by Mr. Bryan.

In concluding his speech Mr. Vasaley urged the Johnson men to be "fair and just and kind," and vote in favor of adding the minority report to that of the majority. His speeech throughout was more of an appeal than a demand, and his manner more beseeching than insistent.

Before the conclusion of his remarks, the speaker was interrupted by cries of "sit down," "shut up," and once, when he addressed the delegates as "My friends," a restless delegate shouted, "You've lost all your friends."

T. D. O'Brien, chairman of the resolutions committee, replied to Mr. Vasaley in favor of the report as read.

"This isn't a question between Governor Johnson and W. J. Bryan," he declared, "but the Democracy wants to put forward a man who will be the strongest candidate for the president of the United States. No man asks a girl to marry him and tells her that if she won't have him he will ask her sister next day. If Bryan is nominated at Denver, we will give him honest support, but Minnesota is for Johnson, and we should let the country know it."

Mr. O'Brien spoke only a few minutes and was greeted with cheers as he closed.

McKeon Talks.

T. J. McKeon of Duluth and D. J. Knox made short speeches in favor of the minority report, and R. G. Farrington of Wheaton and Martin O'Brien of Crookston urged the report of the majority.

The speakers in favor of naming Mr. Bryan as a second choice declared that such action could not by any possibility injure the chances of Johnston. The orators speaking for the majority report declared that the naming of Bryan was equivalent to giving notice to the Democratic party that the nomination of Johnson is an impossibility.

No Second Choice.

Chairman Works announced that he would hold that the minority report submitted by Mr. Knox was in the nature of an amendment, and a roll call was ordered on the question of its substitution for the majority report.

The convention refused to name Bryan as second choice to Johnson.

The platform, as reported by the majority of the committee, was then adopted.

TWO MEN CLAIM THE SAME WOMAN

Husband, Thought Dead, Returns to Find Her Wed Again.

Melbourne, May 15.—An extraordinary marriage tangle has occurred at Geelong, the upshot being the return of a prodigal husband, believed to be dead and the dispossession of his unhappy successor in his wife's affections. In 1892 a Mr. and Mrs. Marigold married, and for the next two years lived together most happily. Then a quarrel occurred and the husband left home. Years passed, but no trace of him could be found. Then Mrs. Marigold heard from the police, who had a warrant from her for her husband's arrest for desertion, that they had learned that he was dead. Feeling that she was free, she married a Mr. Sawyer, and in due time two children were born to them.

Mr. Marigold, on leaving Geelong over fourteen years ago, went abroad. In time he came to repent what he had done, but was too ashamed to go back. Finally resolved to claim his wife again, he returned to Geelong last week, only to find that his wife was married again, had a family, and was a temporary inmate of the Geelong hospital for the mentally deranged.

He called at this institution on Thursday last. His wife recognized him instantly, and from that moment her condition has improved amazingly. She forgives all, and her husband assures her that he will not part from her again, but will take her and her two children to a home of his own and treat the past as if it had never been.

Mr. Sawyer, however, is terribly distressed at the denouement. He protests that Mr. Marigold has wilfully forfeited all claim to his wife, and swears that he will move all the powers of the law to assert his rights as the father of Mrs. Marigold's two children.

AMERICANS GET CHOICE BOXES AT COVENT GARDEN.

London, May 15.—Smart Americans will again occupy about one-third of the choice boxes at Covent Garden opera house this season. Instead of putting the boxes up at auction, the management's policy is to allow all subscribers of the previous year the refusal of their places. So that in the majority of cases well known Americans will be found in the same old positions. There are some exceptions, however. The American ambassador has altered his address from boxes 52 to 53 for Mondays and Fridays, has taken 26 on the pit tier and Mrs. Newhouse Lily, duchess of Marlborough and Mrs. Almeric Paget are among other Americans who have also secured boxes. Mrs. Adair, Mrs. Burns and Mrs. Harry Higgins all retain their old places.

I hear that one immensely rich American, who, socially speaking, is never apt to "arrive," recently offered a fabulous sum for one of the royal boxes, but was curtly told that these were exclusively reserved for their original occupants.

When your food seems to nauseate take Kodol. There isn't any doubt about what it will do and you will find the truth of this statement verified after a few weeks' use. Sold here by all druggists.

An Open Letter to Dyspeptics.

"Do any of your readers suffer from dyspepsia or acute indigestion? No doubt many of them do, and I wish this space to tell of a very effective home-made medicine. I was a sufferer for nearly five years and obtained immediate and lasting benefits which I consider worth more than a thousand times the cost of these simple but powerful ingredients. Get at most any drug store one ounce compound essence Cardiol, two ounces essence of Pepsin and two ounces Syrup of Ginger. Mix together thoroughly and take one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal. It is pleasant to the taste and gives such prompt relief. Because I suffered so much and had doctored in vain for so long, I want to make this valuable formula known to all. Some drug stores may not keep all the ingredients, but can easily get them from wholesale firms who supply doctors and druggists. Ask for them and the trouble will repay any one.

"Sincerely,
"MRS. S. A. J."

P. S.—I am told this prescription cured Mr. Rockefeller three years ago.

THE STATE CONVENTION.

The Democratic state convention held in St. Paul yesterday was a splendid tribute to Governor John A. Johnson, and a credit to the state and to the Democratic party. Minnesota has now launched a candidate for president, and it has launched him as though it meant it, as it does. Opposition to this indorsement, which was entirely out of place in this state and was properly repudiated by the voters, dissolved into impalpable vapor, and the emphatic and enthusiastic declaration of the convention was made with practical unanimity. Nor did this interfere with a graceful recognition of the services and worth of William J. Bryan.

Not only in its results, but in its make-up and the character of its proceedings, the convention was one of the most pleasant, most harmonious and most creditable ever held in the state. It was remarkable for the high character of its membership, the delegates being worthily representative of the citizenship of Minnesota.

The platform is in keeping with the convention and its candidate. It is progressive, and it embodies the spirit of an awakened and alert people. After commending Governor Johnson's administration of the affairs of this state, giving due credit to the co-operation of the legislature and other public officers, it plunges aggressively into the discussion of live topics, all of which it treats with a truly democratic and American fearlessness and breadth. Finding that the abuse of the tariff has given birth to oppressive trusts and monopolies, it advocates tariff revision "by the friends of the people rather than by the friends of the tariff;" a very pertinent and timely suggestion. The principle that the rights of the people demand a rigid supervision of corporations, including their capitalization, their methods and their profits, is emphatically affirmed. It is declared that labor has the right to organize for its own protection, and that it is entitled to reasonable hours of work, to fair pay, to safe and wholesome working conditions, and to the assumption of the risks of employment by the employer. The danger of a centralization of power in the federal government at the expense of the states and in violation of the principles upon which this government was founded is clearly pointed out, and the bitter opposition of the Democratic party to such tendencies is sharply reaffirmed. The direct election of United States senators, to make them responsive to the people's wishes; the taxation of incomes, to reduce the dangers of plutocracy; the establishment of postal savings banks, to draw out of hiding money needed to furnish a basis for credit and for the business whose life is credit; and the safeguarding of bank deposits along the lines suggested by Mr. Bryan, to avert the perils and evil results of panic: these excellent ideas are all emphatically approved.

Last but not least, the convention, with a mighty cheer, presented to the nation as its candidate for president Governor John A. Johnson as "a constructive statesman of ability, integrity and honor, who holds no brief from any class, who has from early youth been a wage earner, and whose private life has been of such purity, vigor and earnestness as to win him the love, respect and confidence of all who know him."

ARBITRATING LABOR DISPUTES.

There has probably never been a labor difficulty, either strike or lockout, which has not taught the three sides to it—there are always three sides, the employer, the employes and the public—that labor troubles, like war, are wasteful and expensive to all concerned.

There is interest and value, therefore, in every experiment in the creation and preservation of industrial peace. Arbitration is the dream of all concerned in labor difficulties, and that means everybody.

Canada has been trying, for more than a year now, a new "industrial investigation law," which is described by Consul-General Bradley of Montreal in a report to the state department. First it should be stated, as evidence that the plan has worked out well, that from March 22, 1907, the date of the passage of the act, to Feb. 15, 1908, thirty applications for proceedings under the act have been made, and strikes were either averted or ended in twenty-eight cases. In most of these cases, without the operation of this law, disastrous, wasteful and expensive strikes would have followed.

Under this law, before a strike or lockout can be declared in a dispute between employer and employes in connection with a mine or any industry associated with a public utility, it must be submitted to a board of conciliation and investgation, established under the law, with a view to working out a settlement. This makes it necessary that the parties to the dispute shall get together, getting together means talking it over, and talking it over, with reasonable men, means the possibility of amicable settlement.

The law also requires that employers and employes must give at least thirty days' notice of any intended change affecting conditions of employment with respect to hours or wages, and that pending investigation by the board of conciliation, relations shall remain as before. Neither party is permitted to do anything tending to bring about a lockout or strike, and suitable penalties are provided for violation of this provision.

Another important feature of the act is a provision that it may be made applicable to disputes other than those in industries in which its use is made compulsory, when the parties concerned desire it. Another essential feature is that the award of the board is obligatory and binding.

The board consists of three members, two appointed by the minister of labor upon the recommendation of the respective parties to the dispute, and the third appointed upon the recommendation of the two first appointed. If these fail to agree, the third member is appointed by the minister himself. The board has power to summon and compel the attendance of witnesses, and to do all that is necessary to secure a full investigation.

Justice, it would seem, would be more often attained in this manner than by the resort to strike or lockout both of which are tests of strength and endurance, without any necessary relationship with justice.

AN UNJUST PRACTICE.

New York has taken action against a practice of the police that has prevailed all over the country, and that ought to be stopped everywhere. That is the business of photographing and taking the Bertillon measurements of every person arrested.

The New York legislature passed a law prohibiting this except after conviction of a crime. That is time enough to begin this rogues' gallery business, and the police have absolutely no right to subject every accused person to the humiliation involved in the practice of "mugging" regardless of whether conviction has been had or not.

The Herald has said something about this practice before, and has urged the passage of laws similar to that which New York has adopted. Similar laws should be passed in every other state, including Minnesota. A start having been made in New York, no doubt the prohibition will promptly spread to other states.

The police everywhere have an unpleasant habit of overturning the legal presumption of innocence that attaches to an accused person until he is proven guilty. To them, too often, the presumption is that of guilt. This works out many injustices, because police officers have been known to bolster up their beliefs by tortured and distorted evidence. Believing a suspect to be guilty—and their not unnatural habit is to believe all suspects to be guilty and to seek to fix proof upon them—they too often treat him or her as they would a convicted person.

Thus, whenever a person is arrested charged with an offense, the habit of police departments is to have him photographed and "Bertilloned" immediately. The photograph and the Bertillon record are placed in the police department collection known as the "rogues' gallery," which is open to public inspection.

This is a rank injustice, unless it be postponed until a jury has found the accused person guilty. Many an innocent man has been falsely charged with crime, and one of the finest things in the English and American system of law is the doctrine that every accused person is to be considered innocent until he is proven guilty. The burden of proof is upon the state, and it is not necessary for the accused, as it is in some countries, to assume the burden and prove his innocence. The practice of "mugging" a suspect is a presumption of guilt, and not only tends to prejudice the case of the accused, but if he is acquitted and freed it compels him to live under the shame of having his picture in the rogues' gallery of some police office.

The practice is not invariable, and in many police departments it is not followed at all. In general, however, the practice properly prohibited by the New York legislature is the one followed by the police, and it ought to be stopped everywhere.

A TESTIMONIAL.

There are people who speak slightingly of the work of the federal department of agriculture and the various state departments which seek to make definite the science of getting the utmost results out of the soil without impoverishing it, but it would be hard to find a department of government activity that is doing a more valuable work for society.

This use of government activities for the benefit of the people is in sharp violation of the principles of those who protest that the best government is that which governs least, that each individual should be left to work out his salvation without government interference, and that the government should content itself with collecting and spending taxes, punishing crime—including the crime that results from society's failure to protect its members from the greed of the powerful—and protecting "property." It is paternalistic—even Socialistic—but so is the protective tariff, only that helps a few at the expense of the many, and public experimental work in agriculture helps everybody and costs nobody.

A concrete example of what the federal department of agriculture does is furnished by an incident related in The World Today magazine. An Ohio farmer wrote to the department of agriculture that he had struggled for twenty years on an eighty-acre farm, heavily mortgaged, but had been unable to reduce his debt or to rise above poverty that made the bringing up of his family a humiliation. Clearly, he was in despair, and it seemed to him that the efforts of the best part of a lifetime had been thrown away in a useless struggle to accomplish the impossible. As a last resort, and apparently without much faith, he had appealed to the department, and he asked if there was any hope for him.

The department requested that he make a detailed report of his farm and its soils, and upon this report it based a plan of farming which he was commended to follow to the letter.

The first year's work under this plan netted him a profit of $2,000, and the department believes that within a short time this man's farm can be made to yield $5,000 a year.

This story sounds like a testimonial, and that is exactly what it is. The department of agriculture maintains a staff of experts and scientists for just such purposes. It makes soil surveys, and then finds out what can be grown upon the various soils to the best advantage, and how it can be cultivated with the best results. All that it gave the Ohio farmer was the result of its experiments along these lines, and by availing himself of this knowledge he was able to turn defeat into victory.

In the face of such results it is silly to say that the functions of the department of agriculture are paternalistic. What does that Ohio farmer care about what you call it, in view of what it has done for him?

"On to Denver!"

We needed rain, all right, but not quite so much of it, Mr. Weatherman.

But some people don't need to have brick houses fall upon them to awaken realization.

The facts from La Porte put the fiction of all the Indiana novelists into the darkest shade.

There is no chance for a mistake about it; Minnesota wants Governor Johnson to be nominated for president.

Andrew Carnegie speaks optimistically of the business outlook. There is no occasion for anybody to speak otherwise about it.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

It is not so very pleasant to be broken to the ways of the road. To this an auburn haired youth at the Lenox hotel, who is making his first trip as a knight of the grip can testify. He has been the mark for the rest of the bunch for the past week, but he has probably learned some things that will stand him in good stead when he moves on to the next town.

The young man sells postal cards. That is he has them to sell. Last night the telephone bell rang and the youth was called to the telephone. The voice that came over the wire informed the youth that the chief of police was talking, and also informed the youth that he was violating the law by selling postal cards without a license.

The auburn hair took on a more rigid attitude, a startled look came over the face of the young man, as he explained to the man at the other end of the telephone that his calling was perfectly harmless.

"You come down to my office tomorrow morning and see me," concluded the voice as a partin shot.

If there was a traveling man at the Lenox who didn't hear the tale of woe of the youth he hasn't been found yet. Of course they were all on and they told the young man with the limited experience that he probably would be arrested and heavily fined.

No arrest has occured as yet, but the novice is still wearing a nervous look. Every time a telephone bell rings in his presence he starts and looks wildly around for an avenue of escape. He is laboring under a nervous strain that will continue until he leaves Duluth and the fancied possibility of arrest. There is hardly a commercial man on the road who has not gone through precisely the same experience, so the youth can hardly expect sympathy from the U. C. T. members.

W. H. Saunders, at the Lenox hotel, states that the American cowboy is now practically extinct. That once picturesque figure that blazoned the way for Western settlement can be found in only one or two sections of the country. And even in those places he will have undergone many changes from the original, daring, reckless chap that was once ready to pull his gun upon the least provocation. In what is known as the sweet milk country of Montana, they have some of the original cow punchers left. In this country the cattle rouin about unhindered by the fence, that more than anything else has driven the cowboy from Western life, and if you should happen to come face to face with some of the boys who round up the cattle in the sweet milk country you would almost be inclined to believe that frontier history had turned back a chapter or two.

"The Western cow puncher was a reckless and fearless fellow," says Mr. Saunders. "He was extremely fond of gaudy colors and decorations. In most instances, though, the pictures and the representations of the cow puncher are decidedly overdrawn.

"Now, for instance, every article worn by the cowboy has some use. The hat they wear, which is on the order of the modern Merry Widow title, is for protection from the sun that beats down with straight and piercing rays, and from the rain that hits the cowboy while on the trail. They all invariably wear a silk handerkerchief around their necks. These, too, have their uses. In a round up or in a stampede, when a thousand steers are kicking the dust like smoke into your mouth and nostrils, it would be impossible for the cowboy to live were it not that he wound the silk handkerchief around his face and breathed through the fine meshes of the cloth.

"In many pictures of the cowboy, he is represented with his sleeves rolled up. I went to see a well-known play the other night, and was amused to see all the stage cowboys strutting around with their sleeves rolled up to the elbows and their arms well tanned with stage grease.

"Now the only man in a frontier camp that rolls up his sleeves is the cook of the outfit. If a cowboy were to roll up his sleeve while on duty he would be liable to lose part of his arm by having it sawed off by his lasso. They all wear wrist guards, which prevent the rope from catching on their arms, and they never, under any circumstances, roll up their sleeves and expose their brawny arms to the sun of heavens."

Mr. Saunders says the genuine cowboy was probably the most whole-hearted and generous person on earth.

But those rough and ready characters, typical of the times in which they have lived, have nearly all passed away. Today in the West there are few of the old guard left. The new order of things has changed the life of the plains. The coming of the fence and the sheep men to the West presaged the extinction of the cowboy.

The Better Part.

Puck: Three old men having met by chance, it was but natural that they should fall into some comparison of their several achievements.

"In seventy years," said the first, "I have amassed a hundred willions of dollars."

"But I, during an equal span," said the second, "have written 100 novels, each of which sold more than a hundred thousand copies."

A slight smile, as of disdain, curled the lip of the third old man. "During seventy years," said he, "I have digested my food."

The others were too overcome to speak. They could only wring his hand, in silent acknowledgment that the palm was his.

THE WEATHER.

We have plenty of rain, thank you. And then some. After the new northeaster got a good start, with a boisterous wind and lowering clouds, it rained steadily, with frequent downpours, most of the night and this morning. The weather man expects it to remain showery tonight, followed tomorrow by cloudy and warm weather. The wind got up to 44 miles an hour yesterday. Last night's lowest temperature was 35 degs. and yesterday's highest was 41 degs.

A year ago today, after snow in the night, it was cloudy and warmer.

The sun rose this morning at 4:31 and sets tonight at 7:35, making 15 hours and 3 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Rainy weather continued Thursday or last night in most northern districts and in West Gulf states due to barometric depressions central this morning over Minnesota and the Plateau region. The Lake Superior storm is confined to the western portion of the lake and will gradually diminish today and tonight. Moderate temperatures are the rule except that cool weather prevails near Lake Superior and in the Rocky mountains. The barometer is highest over New England states and off the California coast. Indications favor some showers in this locality tonight followed by partly cloudy weather Saturday."

"That is merely a sign that he used to have af lot of money."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "I see that a Pittsburg woman claims that her husband has been lazy for thirty-five years. Now she wants a divorce."

"Well, she certainly has given him a fair try-out."

Philadelphia Press: Crabbe—Who don't you cut that out? Tone your talk down a bit.

Crabbe—Instead of calling it you might whisper it occasionally.

Washington Star: "Mr. Rubinjay is a very timid young man."

"Timid. I should say so. He's afraid to begin a letter 'Dear Miss Smith' because it's leap year."

Philadelphia Ledger: "And do you know this man's reputation for veracity?" asked the lawyer.

"Voracity?" replied the witness. "I should say I did. He used to board with me, and I lost money on him right along."

Chicago Tribune: "Johnny came mighty near choking the other day," said Mrs. Lapsling. "He was eating popcorn and he got a grain of it fast in his windpipe. At least that's where I thought it was, but when the doctor came he said it wasn't his windpipe, at all. The popcorn had lodged in his sarcophagus."

Baltimore American: "I don't believe Miss Vassar understands what she means herself by those long learned words she uses. It is all parrot talk."

"She certainly does talk in Polysyllables."

Washington Star: "How are you getting on with your great reform?"

"I can't say yet," answered the agitator.

"But I heard the law you wanted was sure to be enacted."

"Yes. But that's the A. B. C. of the proposition. We've got to get it enforced."

Johnson as a Leader.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: This wonderful popularity of a Democrat in a Republican state has broken down party lines in Minnesota. The qualities which have made John A. Johnson strong in Minnesota appeal to the whole Northwest and to the nation—character, ability, common sense, and a statesmanlike attitude on public affairs.

Johnson is described as both a radical and as a conservative. He is for reform, for curbing corporation abuses, and for several programs which would be called advanced in the East, but he is never hysterical and never a demagogue. He has been put to the test. When the Western Federation of Miners began to menace towns in his state by stirring up lawlessness and crime, he laid down the law to them with promises of the use of the state militia. Stop work, he said; strike as you will, but not a hand shall you raise against property or any rights of any other man in this commonwealth. They desisted.

What a campaigner he would make! Could there be a more striking appeal to the popular imagination than is afforded by the career of Johnson, which is suggestive of "Old Abe, the rail splitter," "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too," Andy Johnson's rise from the tailor's bench to the presidency, Garfield's advance "from the towpath to the White House," and U. S. Grant's progress from the tannery to the highest honors in the gift of the nation? And mere sentiment is not all. Johnson's hold on his own state is undoubted, and the Democrats, with Johnson for their leader, would start with the prospect of winning at least one Republican state, and with the possibility of sweeping the Northwest.

The Democrats have two strong candidates, Gray and Johnson. All Republicans are hoping that they may nominate William J. Bryan, because the Republicans want to win.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

The premises at 102 First avenue east, occupied by Mrs. Fiske as a lodging house, were entered by burglars last night and money and valuables belonging to lodgers were stolen.

It is rumored that Supt. George H. White of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad has resigned his position with the road. He has large cattle interests in Texas and will probably in the future devote all his time to his ranch.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has given notice that Peter Harvey has been appointed traveling passenger agent in charge of the passenger business of the company at Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis and the territory west thereof.

Rev. G. F. Walters, pastor of the Congregational church at Hancock, and Mrs. Walters are spending two weeks in Duluth.

T. R. Rainey of the firm of Rainey & French, is going East to select the furniture for the Hotel St. Louis, for which the firm has the contract.

The friends of Sam and Gus Lundberg, who have been Duluth citizens so long that they seemed fixtures here, attended a farewell reception last night at Ingalls' hall. There were many present and a pleasant evening was spent. The two brothers leave in a few days for Sweden to remain, leaving one brother in Duluth.

At a meeting of the chamber of commerce this morning, a strong protest was made against the project of removing the charge of rivers and harbors from engineer officers of the regular army to a board of civilians and urging that the present satisfactory method be not tampered with.

Murnane & Spencer of this city are to back Pat Killen in his coming fight with Mike Conkley. They will demand that the fight take place either in Duluth, Milwaukee, Omaha, St. Paul or Minneapolis.

Maj. Ruffee of Gull River, Cass county, is to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for representative from this district.

Charles Strader's little girl had a narrow escape from drowning last evening while playing ball near the corner of Twentieth avenue west and Third street. While in pursuit of the ball she tripped and fell into a hole containing about four feet of water. The little one was fished out by Mrs. Strader and was badly exhausted.

Alonzo Ransom of Niles, Mich., father of Mrs. J. R. Randall, died at that place on May 11.

1904--ECHOES OF HARMONY--1908

Mille Lacs Pioneer: Who dares say that Bob Dunn is dead? Why he's kicking up more vitrolized "harmony" in the Republican party of this state than all the "hirelings," "renegades," "judases" and "ingrates" that smoked at his wake in 1904 can hope to allay for many years to come.

Cannon Falls Beacon: We fear the friends of Messrs. Young and Jacobson are quite unwittingly perhaps, challenging party loyalty in the heat of their zeal for their respective candidates. The two state elections last past demonstrated we think that Republican party loyalty as it concerns the head of the ticket, is a most intangible and illusory thing and will bear neither balting nor trifling. In the opinion of the Beacon these rival factions have already gone too far to leave either of these worthy gentlemen in condition to command the party vote, should either be able to land the nomination.

Appleton Press: If any one still doubts that the brewers are supporting Jacobson he need only read the Minnesota Record, an organ which was established for the sole purpose of combating temperance reform. Nearly 25 per cent of its editorial space is devoted to booming Jacobson.

Warren Register: A general complaint has been voiced by the country press that the recent Republican state convention was a cut and dried affair for which the city gangs arranged the program, which they carried out just as it had been planned without so much as "By your leave!" to the country delegates, although they allowed the latter to accept and indorse it.

Warroad Plaindealer: The Republicans of the state hope that Bryan will be successful at the Denver convention. —Interlake Tribune. Of course they do —for the same reason that the Democrats of the state hoped that Dunn would be successful in the St. Paul convention four years ago. Dunn was successful.

Ortonville Herald-Star: Now watch the St. Cloud Journal-Press. Editor Eastman has resigned his job as a member of the state normal school board, tendered him by Governor Johnson in recognition of services rendered, and seems to be preparing to get back into the Republican party. It would be fun to see Alvah cut loose and rip up a few Democrats instead of Republicans. We would all be willing to see him "take care" of them as usual.

Hibbing Tribune: Newspapers whose idea of harmony is to damn Bob Dunn may be picturesque, but they are not helping anybody.

Virginia Enterprise: The full and undivided support of the Hon. Robert C. Dunn is one drawback to the Jacobson boom, and would cost him hundreds of Republican votes throughout the state in case of nomination.

The Coquette.

"You're clever at drawing, I own,"
Said my beautiful cousin Lisette,
As we sat by the window alone,
"But, say, can you paint a Coquette?"

"She's painted already," quoth I;
"Nay, nay!" said the laughing Lisette,
"Now none of your joking—but try
And paint me a thorough Coquette."

"Well, cousin," at once I began,
In the ear of the eager Lisette,
"I'll paint you as well as I can,
That wonderful thing, a Coquette.

"She wears a most beautiful face"
("Of course," said the pretty Lisette),
"And isn't deficient in grace,
Or else she were not a Coquette.

"And then she is daintily made"
(A smile from the dainty Lisette)
"By people expert in the trade
Of forming a proper Coquette.

"She's the winningest ways with the beaux"
("Go on," said the winning Lisette),
"But there isn't a man of them knows
The mind of the fickle Coquette.

"She knows how to weep and to sigh"
(A sigh from the tender Lisette),
"But her weeping is all in my eye—
Not that of the cunning Coquette!

"In short, she's a creature of art"
("Oh, hush!" said the frowning Lisette),
"With merely a ghost of a heart—
Enough for a thorough Coquette.

"And yet I could easily prove"
("Now, don't!" said the angry Lisette),
"The lady is always in love—
In love with herself—the Coquette!

"There—do not be angry—you know,
My dear little cousin Lisette,
You told me a moment ago
To paint you—a thorough Coquette!"
—JOHN GODFREY SAXE.

The Old Farm Home.

When my daily work is done,
With the setting of the sun
And my thankful prayer I say—
Thankful for the live-long day,
Then I fondly homeward look
And again recross the brook,
To my only happy dome,
To my pleasant little home.

There where neither need nor want
Ever trouble, crave or haunt,
There where joy and peace abound
With love and truth in every sound;
'Tis where all the blessed hours
Are perfumed with fragrant flowers
And the songbirds from the trees,
Mingle with the buzzing bees.

There I never meditate,
Never worry o'er my fate,
Only wish that when I die
My bones beneath these sods will lie.
Oh, how dear it is to me,
'Tis where I so long to be
When my daily work is done
With the setting of the sun.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Madison Western Guard: On the eve of another great election it is good to reflect that the American people have never yet chosen for their leader a man of evil life nor of empty head and it is a remarkable testimony to their good sense and decent morals. From Washington down, the list averages in dignity and ability above that of any of the rulers of other countries.

Madison Independent Press: Joel P. Heatwole of Northfield, is out for the nomination for governor on the Republican ticket and no mistake. Further than that he is making a better showing than any one thought he would when he was first mentioned.

Brainerd Dispatch: Jacobson seems to be leading the other gubernatorial aspirants a merry chase.

Milaca Times: State Senator Ripley Brower of St. Cloud is being favorably spoken of as gubernatorial timber, although he is not a candidate. Senator Brower is a statesman and has an enviable political record.

Morris Sun: Judging by the large number of letters E. T. Young is writing for publication these days, he is in grave danger of being accused of fighting with a typewriter, as were the British generals during the Boer war.

Little Falls Transcript: Bryan should have followed Taft's example, and let the few favorite son candidates have their own states. It is not a fair test to make a fight against a home man.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: What kind of an explosion do you think would result from a session of the state legislature and the lid on at St. Paul at the same time? Something awful to contemplate.

Fairmont Sentinel: The occasional batting of Joe Cannon's left eye is still more significant than the loud scratching of President Roosevelt's pen.

St. Hilaire Spectator: The contest for the Republican nomination for governor is a badly mixed up affair with Jacobson apparently in the lead at present.

Cass Lake Times: Isn't it about time for the political bosses of Wall street to begin to shout "A full dinner-pail?" There's nothing left them now but this ancient cry and it is doubtful if the feeling against tariff and trusts can be overcome by this or any other cry of the autocrats.

Big Falls Compass: As long as the Almighty Dollar holds sway over the metaphysical world, just that long will humanity bow before the shrine of opulence, and do homage to its dream of gold.

STUBBORN STOMACH TROUBLES

The symptoms of stomach trouble vary. Some victims have a ravenous appetite, some loathe the sight of food. Often there is a feeling as of weight on the chest, a full feeling in the throat. Sometimes the gas presses on the heart and leads the sufferer to think he has heart disease. Sick headache is a frequent and distressing symptom.

Mrs. Emma M. Mayne of 635 Second avenue, Clinton, Iowa, was cured of stomach trouble by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills after suffering for a long time and having given up all hope of getting well. Mr. and Mrs. Mayne have lived in Clinton for over twenty-five years and are both prominent in fraternal society circles. Mr. Mayne is an Odd Fellow and is employed on the C. & N. W. R. R.

"I had brought up a family of five children," says Mrs. Mayne, "and had just worked myself out. While in this run-down condition I began to have stomach trouble. I could not eat with any relish and had deathly sick, vomiting spells, when my stomach would get rid of a dark, greenish fluid. I had terrible headaches, could not sleep well and became very thin.

"I took medicine from doctors here and consulted a specialist in Chicago, but did not get much benefit. I had been sick for about two years, when a niece, who had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with benefit, urged me to try them. A few boxes entirely cured me and I have since had the greatest faith in them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are guaranteed to be safe and harmless to the most delicate constitution. They contain no morphine, opiate, narcotic, nor anything to cause a drug habit. They do not act on the bowels, but they actually make new blood and strengthen the nerves. If you want good health you must have good blood. Bad blood is the root of all common disease, like anaemia, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, nervousness, indigestion, debility, general weakness, paralysis, locomotor ataxia and the special ailments that only women-folk know. The only way to cure these diseases is to strike straight at their cause in the blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y.

KILLS LOVER AND HERSELF.

"We Shall be United in Death," Writes Woman.

Venice, May 15.—The whole of Venice was much excited the other morning by news of a remarkable double tragedy, involving the death of a well-known lawyer and the suicide of a woman of his acquaintance. A few evenings ago, Signor Munari was approached by a widow, named Teresa Vanin, 40 years of age, whose lover he had been, but with whom he had recently broken off relations. They had a long conversation, and finally the lawyer accepted an invitation to Mme Vanin's house for a farewell supper.

The young advocate kept the appointment, and since that day nothing more was seen of him. At length, Munari's friends, suspecting that something in the nature of a drama of jealousy had occurred, reported his disappearance to the police. The door of the widow's residence was broken open and a terrible spectacle was presented to those who entered. The young lawyer was lying dead on the floor, with a large kitchen knife thrust in his heart. All about the room were empty champagne bottles, and it was apparent that the widow had made her victim senseless with drink before killing him. On the floor above the corpse of Vanin was found. She had suffocated herself by placing the end of a gas pipe in her mouth. She had left a letter saying: "We could not be united in life; we shall be united in death."

BULL FIGHTS TRAIN.

Animal Was Killed, But Succeeded in Derailing Engine.

Madrid, May 15.—A large and savage bull tried to wreck the Andalusian express recently by butting the engine with its head. The result was most unfortunate for the bull. While the express was traveling at the rate of twenty miles an hour the bull suddenly appeared on the line near the village of Rabonales. Before the driver could pull up, the bull rushed at the express with lowered head, and the impact was so terrific that the engine was derailed. The driver applied the brakes just in time to prevent the entire train from falling over an embankment. After the remains of the bull had been swept away, and a fresh engine secured, the express proceeded to Cordova, arriving two hours late. Senor Morot, the ex-premier, was a passenger on the express.

VICTORY OF PRESIDENT

Foraker Capitulates Completely and Rayner Also Quits Fight.

Washington, May 15.—This has been a great week for the president. Senator Joseph B. Foraker of Ohio, the most active and belligerent antagonist of the administration, has capitulated completely on his Brownsville fight and agreed to have the whole matter go over until next December.

Senator Rayner of Maryland, who has been fighting the president on the case of Col. Stewart, receded from his position and declared that if the committee on military affairs would hear him that was all he would ask; abandoning his resolution instructing the president to convene an army court to try the case of Col. Stewart.

In the meantime in the White House conference called to consider conservation of the country's natural resources, the president declared in ringing tones that if congress did not take steps to perpetuate the inland waterways commission he would. Cheers greeted the utterance and so significant was the applause that leaders in congress are planning to carry out the president's program on this matter.

Wins on All Points.

"He who runs may read," and from the developments of the week no one can further dispute the fact that the president has won practically all he asked for. His opponents have been bowled over all along the line, his policies have been sustained, and he stands the great central figure dominating congress; dominating the states through their executive representatives and dominating the country.

The capitulation of Foraker came like a bolt out of the blue. He had declared that he would fight the Brownsville matter out if it took all summer; but on Wednesday, Foraker not only failed to make good his various assertions of the past, but took the lead in postponing all consideration of the Brownsville affair and the bills for the re-enlistment of the discharged negro soldiers until the next session of congress in the fall. The Democratic members of the senate unanimously supported a proposition finally to dispose of the matter Saturday.

Senator Foraker's action, supported as it was by the Republican majority first and later when it became evident that there would be no vote in this session by the Democrats means that all reports of the ending of the present session of congress in the midst of the sparks of conrtoversy, involving the harmony of the Republican party will come to naught. It means that the remaining business will be quickly wound up and congress will also certainly adjourn quietly and prosaically on May 23, one week from Saturday.

The Foraker resolution to take a vote on the Brownsville affair Dec. 16 was passed by a vote of 62 to 8. Immediately following the vote Senator Bacon of Georgia congratulated the Republicans on getting together on the eve of the presidential election which, he said, was the way they usually did things.

RIOTING SHOWS UNREST IN INDIA

Mobs Vent Rage on Europeans in Tuticorin and Tinnevelly.

Calcutta, May 15.—Tuticorin and Tinnevelly have been the scene of an acute outbreak of disorder. The trouble began with a strike in a concern called the Coral mills at Tuticorin, which is the Liverpool of the Tinnevelly Manchester. Upon this the direction of a certain Swadeshi Steamer company gave orders to their agent at Tuticorin, one Chidambaram Pillay, to refrain from taking any part in the agitation, which by this time seems to have assumed a political complexion, and to have become mixed up with celebrations over the release of Bepin Chandra Pal, the home rule agitator. Mr. Pillay apparently took his own course, for he was arrested at Tuticorin along with several agitators and taken to the jail at Tinnevelly. On this the malcontents of Tuticorin flocked to the other town, and the usual storm signal was given by the traders shutting their shops.

Records Burned in Street.

The mob marched to the Hindu college and called on the students to join them. On the English principal remonstrating he was pelted with stones, and had to take refuge in some neighboring European premises. The mob, having stoned these, invaded the Church Missionary society's college, where they wrecked the interior. They then marchel to the municipal office, which they treated in the same fashion, the records being all carefully removed, drenched with kerosene, and burned on the spot. Next they went to the police station, beat the one constable on duty, released the few prisoners in the lock-up, and did what damage they could to the belongings. The Mustiff's court was the next object of their attention, and that officer was compelled to abandon his judicial duties and seek safety in flight. Here, too, the records were fired.

By this time the authorities had mustered what force they could command, and the mob found themselves confronted with a cordon of police under the collector, the superintendent of police and the deputy collector. As they would not give way the police eventually had to fire, with the result that they killed four rioters. Even then the mob seems only to have been checked; there was no dispersal and no arresting. The force at the disposal of the authorities was far too small for any attempt of that kind, and the local officers must have passed an anxious night, knowing how slender their resources were if the disturbance should be renewed. With the arrival of troops next morning from Trichinopoly this fear was removed, and a number of arrests were made.

Afridis Lost in Peshawar.

Immediately after the close of the Zakka Khel expedition, a large gathering of Afridis, numbering 1,000 men, assembled in Peshawar, at the residence of Sahibzada Adbul Quayum, assistant to the political officer of the Khyber, in order to learn the terms of the recent settlement with the Zakka Khels. According to the usual custom subsistence money was paid to the heads of the tribes to meet the cost of their food while in Peshawar. It seems that a dispute arose between the tribesmen and their maliks about the division of their subsistence allowance, and many of them, getting enraged, rushed off and began looting shops near the Dubdari gate, where the jirga had assembled.

A number of them then foundtheir way to a portion of the city where the money changers sit with trays of money and coins in front of them. The money changers, with their seats and trays, were quickly upset, and a wild scrimmage ensued for the scattered coins. The police closed many of the city gates, re-enforcements sent down from the cantonment surrounded the city, and a detachment of the Nineteenth lancers was hurried down to assist in scouring the country and bringing in the men who were making off with the loot. Some sixty of the jirga men were captured and locked up. One of them was shot by the police and two others were wounded.

Old People Must Give the Bowels Help

The muscles of the bowels become less active with age. They must have help.

That help should be regular. Don't wait till you need something violent.

It should be gentle and natural. One can't take harsh physic persistently without infinite harm.

People who must take laxatives regularly should take nothing but Cascarets.

Salts and pill cathartics irritate the bowels until the lining grows calloused. Then one needs larger doses.

Take one tablet as often as necessary to insure one free movement daily. Learn how much help you need.

Then be persistent and regular. Never give the poison a chance to accumulate. Keep yourself well.

You would wreck the bowels if you did that with harsh cathartics.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

Cascarets

ANARCHIST GANG ROUTED.

Rapallo, Italy, May 15.—A characteristic and violent demonstration against anarchists has been witnessed in this town on the Ligurian Riviera. The anarchists, coming mostly from Genoa and Spezia, had called a meeting at Rapallo to protest against the hospitality extended by her to Joao Franco, the dictator of Portugal, and the dowager empress of Russia. Thea uthorities prohibited the meeting and their decision was suported by the population, who determined that there should be no gathering.

The anarchists, however, arrived from Genoa and, after holding an assembly in private, decided to have a public meeting. When they proceeded to the spot selected for the gathering, a crowd which increased at every moment followed them. The anarchists were easily recognized, because they all wore big, black neckties.

Scarcely had their leader, one Zavatterf, who was surrounded by his comrades, attempted to deliver a speech than a police officer approached and ordered him to desist. Moreover, the first word that fell from his lips was the signal for a noisy demonstration on the part of the citizens against the anarchists. Stones flew through the air and sticks were freely used. One of the anarchists was seriously injured and had to be taken to the hospital. Zavatterf was surrounded, and but for the intervention of the carabineers, would have been thrown into the sea. Eventually the anarchists were escorted to the station, whence, to the accompaniment of hisses and shouts, they returned to Genoa and Speczla.

RECKLESS MOTORING INCREASES IN ENGLAND.

London, May 15.—Lionel Barnes, secretary to the Highways Protection league, has compiled the fatality and casualty statistics of motoring in England during the past year. In that period there were forty-two people killed by motors, as against thirty-two in the preceding year. In the same time there were 145 people injured, as against seventy-three in the preceding year. The increase shown is greatly out of proportion to the increase in the number of motors on the road. There were 403 motors summoned and 365 convicted, as against 145 and 138 in 1907. It is apparent, therefore, that reckless driving has increased at an alarming rate, and as a natural consequence, deaths and accidents have also grown.

Mr. Barnes points out as a particularly bad feature of motor accidents the increasing number of cases in which motorists make off without rendering help to their victims. The increase in the number of fatal accidents is a matter which gives considerable force to the demand of those who urge that the penalties for exceeding the speed limit and driving to the common danger, should be substantially increased.

BERLIN TO ALLOW CREMATION

Berlin, May 15.—It is understood that the Prussian government is preparing a bill to allow cremation. An agitation in favor of "fire burial" has been going on for twenty years, but has hitherto failed to overcome clerical opposition. At present the bodies of Berliners, who wish to be cremated, must be sent to Hamburg or Welmar for the purpose.

SMOKE NUISANCE DONE AWAY WITH

Virginia, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday afternoon for the first time steam was turned into the pipe leading from the new mill of the Virginia Lumber company to the power plant of the Virginia Light & Water company, and the latter concern is now using steam from that source to drive its plant. This does away with the soft coal smoke and soot that formerly belched forth from the power company's smokestacks, and residents in the locality of the powerhouse will be greatly pleased thereat.

The new mill of the Virginia Lumber company has been sawing steadily during the week and making fairly large cuts, notwithstanding the several delays caused by adjustments to the machinery. The band resaws operate much more satisfactorily than they did last fall. A night shift will be put on as soon as all the machinery is running smoothly, probably at the beginning of next week. The night shift at the old mill has been discontinued.

NEW COMPANY IS NOW IN SERVICE

Hibbing Young Men Join Militia, Electing George Sullivan Captain.

Hibbing, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. Resche of Duluth last night mustered in what will be known as the Hibbing Militia company, fifty of Hibbing's prominent young men. George Sullivan, who has had a great deal of experience in this line of work was duly elected captain, John Haley was elected first lieutenant and William Fitch, second lieutenant. The annual encampment will be held at Lake Pepin on June 15th. The company will use one of the local halls until more suitable quarters can be found. The drills for the time being will be held in the ball park.

OGNONOVITCH BURIED.

Many Lodge Brethren Attend Funeral of Victim of Injury.

Chisholm, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of George Ognonovitch took place Tuesday afternoon from the Austrian church. Interment was made at Hibbing. The deceased was a member of an Austrian lodge, which furnished music to precede the members who marched to Hibbing. The deceased leaves a wife and two children, who reside in Austria. He was seriously injured at the Monroe mine and died of his injuries.

VIRGINIA ELKS' SOCIAL.

Many Visitors From Other Points Are Expected.

Virginia, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Hrald.)—The Elks will come pretty near owning this town this evening if the expectations of the members of the local lodge the way of attendance at the social to be given this evening are realized. Large delegations from Duluth and other points are expected. An elegant program has been arranged for this evening.

ON ACCREDITED LIST.

Ely High School Has Been Advanced in Standing.

Ely, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ely high school has been advanced to the list of accredited high schools in the North Central association of colleges and secondary schools. This places the school in the same rank as the best in the country, and makes its graduates eligible to such colleges without examination except in English.

In addition to these, the high school is on the accredited list of the Michigan School of Mines at Houghton. The Ely high school was admitted to the association at the meeting of the inspectors on March 27.

JUMPS OFF TRESTLE.

Would-be Suicide Does Not Succeed in Killing Himself.

Hibbing, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock a man giving the name of George Goddin attempted suicide by leaping head foremost off the water and light coal trestle. He was taken to the Rood hospital, where an examination was made. Aside from an ugly wound over the left eye and being badly jarred he was not injured. He was afterward confined in the village lockup.

GRAND JURORS DRAWN FOR ITASCA COUNTY.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following names were drawn from the jury box to serve as grand jurors at the June term of district court, which will be convened here June 3: W. W. Fletcher, Charles Anderson, Nels Felsted, Philip Hauck, Arthur Brown, Owen S. Kelly, Malcolm Campbell, A. McAlpine, William Smith, A. C. Bossard, George Shook, Frank Voigt, Jr., Gus Gustafson, Charles Ohlia, Lyman Seaman, John O'Brien, George F. Kremer, Frank Webb, Gust Anderson, John Schultz, James Taylor, Hugh McDonald and Edison Bierman.

GRAND RAPIDS FIRE.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—About 1:30 o'clock Tuesday morning the fire whistle at the power house awoke the slumbering citizens and in a short time the fire apparatus was lined up in front of the McAlpine block at the corner of Leland and Third streets. Fire was discovered in room No. 4 over the Chinese restaurant. The room had been occupied by a stranger who left on the 1 o'clock train going West. The room and hall were filled with smoke, but the fire had not gained sufficient headway to prevent entrance to the room. The mattress and other bed clothing was seized and carried into the street. It was not necessary to turn water on and in a short time the fire whistle announced "Fire out."

PREDICT FAST GAME.

Chisholm, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Chisholm baseball team will play the Superior City baseball team Sunday, May 17, on the Chisholm grounds. A fast game is predicted as both teams are strong.

FIRE ESCAPES MUST BE FIXED

Two Harbors City Council Red Hot After School Board.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 15.—At the regular meeting of the city council this week ditches for the drainage of water on Tenth avenue and on Maple street were recommended. Bids for concrete septic tank at outlet of North side sewer were as follows: N. Freeberg, $4,981; Pastoret & Lunz, $4,311. The contract was awarded to the latter firm.

Plans for sewer on Tenth avenue, 1,670 feet were adopted.

The committee appointed to confer with the school board as to the installation of fire escapes on the Third avenue school building reported they had repeatedly endeavored to have a meeting with school board but were unable to do so, or do anything with the matter.

A resolution was adopted requiring members of the school board to appear before the council at the next regular meeting, the 18th inst., and show cause why the necessary fire escapes should not be put on the building.

A resolution authorizing the construction by the city of an addition to the sewer on Second and Third avenue, the letting of contract for Ninth avenue sewer to Haugstein & Johnson; for construction of cement and wood walks about the city; providing for additional firemen at the city power station and allowing bills for $434.46 were returned approved by the mayor.

NEW POLICE CHIEF.

L. R. Root is to Preserve Order in Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council at its regular meeting this week elected L. R. Root chief of police to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Chief of Police Harry. J. F. McCormick has been serving since Mr. Harry's resignation and it was expected he would be elected Harry's successor but the unexpected happened. General Manager Mausseau of Mesaba Telephone company and Supt. French appeared before the council and promised some telephone improvements. They propose to replace the present system with an entire new system known as the "full metallic," two wires to each telephone installed with aerial cable. The charge of this would be $1.50 per month for private residences and $2.75 for business houses. Another, and still more desirable according to the Mesaba representative, is that known as the "battery system." The proposed charge for this service would be $2.00 per month for residences and $3.53 for business houses. The rate charged at present is $1.00 per month for residences and $2.00 for business houses. The councilmen listened to the gentlemen representing the telephone company, but concluded that there was nothing to be done in the premises so far as they were concerned. If the people desired an improved telephone service and were willing to pay a higher price for the same there would probably be no way to prevent them from doing so. Should the work of putting in a new system be decided upon by the Mesaba company the gentlemen present say that it will be in working order not latter than August 1.

The matter of the extension of water works and sewer system, for which several petitions had previously been presented, were referred to the proper committee for investigation. The putting in of cement crossings where needed throughout the village was not acted upon, but it is likely that this subject will be considered at another meeting, as the work should be done without any unnecessary delay.

AURORA TO CELEBRATE FOURTH IN FINE SHAPE.

Aurora, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aurora citizens have already taken up the matter of a rousing celebration for this village on the Fourth of July. The matter was discussed thoroughly at the business men's meeting Wednesday. It is estimated that over $500 can be raised by subscription. Some of the features will be a gun shoot, baseball game and possibly a balloon ascension. Aurora has its own band of seventeen pieces and it will be engaged to furnish music. The firemen are already making preparations to give a grand dance.

ERICKSON'S FUNERAL AT TWO HARBORS SATURDAY.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Gustaf Erickson, proprietor of the Northern hotel, who died Wednesday from catarrh of the stomach, will be held this afternoon from the Swedish Methodist church. Deceased was 49 years of age and leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss.

MORE ACTIONS FILED AGAINST TWO HARBORS.

Two Harbors Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Additional damage cases have been filed against the city by the following account of the damage along Sixth avenue by the heavy rain and floods, September last, as follows: Gustaf Sandeen and Herman Anderson, $160; L. J. and M. J. Beckman, $90; Anna Strom, $170; D. Hjelmgren, $15; M. O. Waage, $160; Peter Larson, trustee I. O. G. T., $1,080. At the last term of district court judgments amounting to $1,220 were secured against the city by other parties.

PLAY COLUMBIAS.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Weather permitting, the first league ball game of the season will be played on the local grounds tomorrow afternoon between the locals and the Columbia team of Duluth.

MODERN SAMARITANS DANCE.

Hibbing, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A small but thoroughly satisfied number attended the dancing party given by the Modern Samaritans last evening at Close's hall. Punch was served during the evening.

from the east side to the west side of the foundation and partially back again during the search for the bodies, and the subsequent cursory examination of the ruins for evidence. As a consequence, some finds of considerable value to the prosecution may yet be turned up. And when the screening is finished the sheriff has the sluicing and panning method to fall back upon. This novel method of unearthing evidence has given several results already, although the amount of ashes gone over has been inconsiderable.

Lack of Water Supply.

The lack of an adequate water supply is the chief obstacle to this branch of the work, but a force pump installed recently has partially remedied this defect. The one well on the farm is depended upon for the water and the sheriff may yet decide to add a gasoline engine to his equipment with the idea of obtaining steadier work from the force pump than results from the wind-mill power used at present.

The bits of shining metal found by the miner among the piles of nails, bolts and other relics of the farm house will be evidence of one fact even if they do not prove to be gold fillings or crowns from Mrs. Gunness' teeth. Each globule is fused in the cinders with which it came in contact and molded into all sorts of irregular shapes. No better testimony is had as to the fierceness of the fire which consumed the farm house, and it is upon the alleged tremendous heat engendered in the flaming ruins that the state must depend for support of its contention that the head of Mrs. Gunness was incinerated on the morning of April 28.

Lamphere's Case.

The case against Ray Lamphere probably will be brought before the grand jury Monday, according to the first revision of the schedule in this regard. The time of his trial is less certain. Until Sheriff Smultzer has exhausted the possibilities of the farm house it is scarcely likely that the case will be docketed for trial. According to the present rate of progress this will mean a delay for months.

The prosecution is in fact almost ready to switch over from its former attitude, which contemplated an immediate trial. Discussion of the baffling aspects of the affair has been so negeral, and the prevalence of opinion hostile to the state's side so unexpectedly strong, that the chance of having to submit the case to a jury influenced by the circumstances is more than a remote possibility.

Much of this condition is due to the failure of the curbstone debaters to consider the salient facts already brought to light. It is the hope of the prosecution that opinions formed as a result of these discussions will change, or at least grow vague with time. In that case a postponement of the trial to the next term of court would be an advantageous move.

The defense shows no anxiety to push the matter forward. Lamphere's attorneys have complained that they have not been given free enough access to their client, and have threatened court proceedings to force a change in this regard. But otherwise they seem willing enough to have plenty of time in which to investigate the tactics of the state and to round up their own witnesses.

Description of White's Rooms.

The doctor repeated a description which Thaw gave him of the house alleged to have been maintained by Stanford White and others. He said that these men plotted to put him in an aslum to prevent him from exposing their alleged misdeeds.

"He told me that he appealed to Miss Helen Gould and was referred by her to Anthony Comstock," said Dr. Baker. "Thaw said that detectives employed by him to watch White and the latter's house informed him that he was in danger." When the witness asked him to give the substance of the detective's reports he refused to answer "by advice of counsel." He said that his physicians and lawyers had advised him not to discuss what had occurred on the Madison Square roof the night he shot White. He volunteered, however, this much:

"He compared his situation at that moment to that of a man standing on the brink of a precipice, seized with an irresistible impulse to jump."

Dr. Baker, who has been on the medical staff of the state hospital at Dannemora and Matteawan for eight years, was asked by Mr. Jerome:

"Have you encountered many insane persons who were able by cunning to conceal the facts of their insanity?"

Dr. Baker—"I have; such cases are not uncommon."

Mr. Jerome—"You have seen the letters written by Mr. Thaw and the codicil to his will?"

Dr. Baker—"I have."

Mr. Jerome—"From your reading of those documents, together with your conversations with and observations of Mr. Thaw, is he, in your opinion, sane or insane?"

Dr. Baker—"He is insane."

Mr. Jerome—"In your opinion would it be dangerous to public safety for him to go at large?"

Dr. Baker—"It would."

This testimony apparently qualified Dr. Baker as an expert, but it was learned that District Attorney Jerome would later ask the court to rule that Dr. Baker was not to be classed as an expert, since he is named as respondent to the proceedings. The court has limited the expert witnesses to five on each side. The relator, Thaw, has Drs. Jacoby, Grame Hammond, Pilgrim, Evans and Jelliffe. By an inadvertent question by Mr. Graham yesterday Dr. McGuire, the Tombs prison physician, was qualified as an expert. If the court insists upon this ruling one of Thaw's experts will be kept off the stand. The respondent had examined but one expert, Dr. Flint, prior to Dr. Baker's examination.

ration of principles, GoGvernor Glenn suggested that the governors meet in conference with the president whenever one-third of the governors requested it.

That there was nothing in the declarations which prevented the governors from forming an independent organization was the view of Governor Davidson of Wisconsin, who spoke briefly to that point. It was much better, he said, to have the president left independent of any organization of the governors and to have a governor's organization independent of the executive.

Governor Folk of Missouri in supporting the suggestion of Governor Glenn said that he did so because of his objection to taking any action which might hereafter form a precedent. He expressed the highest regard for the office of president of the United States and a high personal regard for its present occupant. However, he said, the present occupant "cannot always be president." (Laughter.) "Suppose," continued Governor Folk, "that some time in the future there should be some man in that office who should want to use such power or prestige as might be obtained from a gathering of the governors to coerce congress, for instance, into adopting some law. (Laughter.) Now, while we all think that the 'big stick' once in a while is a mighty good thing, (Applause and laughter) I do not know what man hereafter may have that instrument in his hand and so I for one am unwilling to commit not myself but the man who may follow me as the governor of Missouri, to something which may hereafter be used merely as an instrument to accomplish the will of the president."

Furture Conferences.

Governor Noel interrupted Governor Folk as he was about to conclude, by asking him if he thought it was not the proper courtesy for the governors to indicate that future conferences should be held.

"The governor is from Mississippi," responded Governor Folk, "and knows of Southern hospitality. Does he think it proper for a guest to indicate to his host that he receive another invitation for a visit?" (Laughter).

"I can express my joy at coming," retorted Governor Noel, who was applauded vociferously, and the incident was greatly amusing to the president.

Governor Folk took occasion to express the benefit he had received from the conference, and the good he believed it had accomplished. At this point Governor Glenn arose and, acting, as he said, upon the suggestion of the governor of Kentucky, whom he had found to be a very wise man, wanted to withdraw his motion amending the declaration. "Probably we will never have a little mon for president.' This created delight among the governors.

President Roosevelt, before putting the declaration to a vote, said he believed that any president needed only the information that a conference of governors would be agreeable to the governors as an inspiration to call one. The report was then adopted, no dissenting voices being heard.

Declaration of Principles.

The full text of this declaration of principles is as follows:

"We, the governors of the states and territories of the United States of America, in conference assembled, do hereby declare the conviction that the great prosperity of our country rests upon the abundant resources of the land chosen by our forefathers for their homes and where they laid the foundation of this great nation.

"We look upon these resources as a heritage, to be made use of in establishing and promoting the comfort, prosperity and happiness of the American people, but not to be wasted, deteriorated or needlessly destroyed.

"We agree that our country's future is involved in this; that the great natural resources supply the material basis upon which our civilization must continue to depend, and upon which the perpetuity of the nation rests.

"We agree, in the light of facts brought to our knowledge and from information received from sources which we cannot doubt, that this material basis is threatened with exhaustion. Even as each succeeding generation from the birth of the nation has performed its part in promoting the progress and development of the republic, so do we in this beneration recognize it as a high duty to perform our part, and this duty in a large degree in the adoption of measures for the conservation of the natural wealth of the country."

The conference of governors, after arranging that the papers prepared to be read today should be printed in the record without reading, adjourned sine die at 12:45 o'clock.

SOCIALISTS NAME TICKET

Debs and Hanford Nominated for President and Vice President.

Chicago, May 15.—Eugene V. Debs of Indiana this morning was nominated for president on the first ballot by the Socialist party's national convention.

The convention late last night adopted a platform after a long debate that grew acrimonious at times. As soon as the platform was adopted the convention proceeded after midnight to select a candidate for president. The names of Eugene V. Debs of Indiana and of A. M. Simons of Chicago were placed before the delegates. Phil Calgary of Missouri presented the name of Debs in a speech assailing President Roosevelt for his "undesirable citizen" remarks and declared the president to be the most "despicable coward the world had ever known." He denounced Secretary of War Taft for having drunk the health of the czar of Russia. He also cast aspersions at W. J. Bryan.

Seymour Stedman of Chicago presented the name of Simons, declaring Debs physically unfit to make the race. This remark caused the supporters of Debs to burst forth in a pandemonium of shouts and hisses. Much clamorous debate and many recriminations followed. The first ballot resulted in the nomination of Debs.

Debs received 152 votes. The poll of the votes had proceeded until 194 had been counted and upon the showing it was moved by Victor Berger of Milwaukee that the nomination be made unanimous. The motion went through with a deafening shout.

Benjamin Hanford of New York was nominated for vice president

THREE MEN HAVE VERY CLOSE CALL

Aitkin, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work on the Rogers-Brown shaft at Rabbit lake on the new Cuyuna iron range has received a discouraging setback for the time, being by a rush of quicksand and water from the lower part of the shaft that has filled nearly fifty feet of it. Such a rush of sand is said to be almost unheard of.

A number of men were working in the bottom of the shaft at the time and three narrowly escaped being buried, prompt action on the part of their companions in pulling them out and letting the bucket down for them to get hold of was all that saved them. The whole thing happened in about two minutes' time. The shaft timber work seems to be intact and it will be the matter of some days in getting the work back to the place it was before the accident. No one is blamed for the occurrence.

PAPERMAKER APPEARS BEFORE COMMITTEE.

Washington, May 15.—George C. Sherman, treasurer of the St. Regis & Taggarts Paper mills, and president of the Brownsville Paper company, was the first maker of paper to be examined by the select committee of the house that is investigating the wood pulp and paper question. Mr. Sherman stated that in recent years the price of pulp wood had increased about $7.50 a cord. The net profits of the St. Regis company for March of this year, he said, were $6,75, or about $7 per ton of paper. During this month, he said, his company operated but four days a week, owing to the lack of orders.

John Norris, the representative of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, was on the stand part of the day and presented documents to show that the price paid skilled labor in the Candaian mills was as high as that paid in American mills.

Kodol completely digests all classes of food. It will set right at the trouble and do the very work itself for the stomach. It is pleasant to take. All druggists.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

The Great Restorative

Non-Alcoholic Tonic

of the day, made entirely of native medicinal roots and without a drop of alcohol in its composition.

There are no secrets---all its ingredients being printed on the bottle-wrappers.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" not only builds up the strength of the feeble, debilitated, languid, nervous and easily fatigued, whether young or aged, but it enriches and purifies the blood, thus making the improvement lasting.

In Chronic Nasal Catarrh, it is well to cleanse the nasal passages out freely with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" as a constitutional treatment. Old obstinate cases of catarrh yield to this thorough course of treatment.

Through enriching and purifying the blood, the "Discovery" cures scrofulous affections, also blotches, pimples, eruptions, and other ugly affections of the skin. Old, open, running sores, or ulcers, are healed by taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" internally and applying Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve as a local dressing. The Salve can be had of druggists, or will be sent by return mail on receipt of 50 cents in stamps. Address Doctor Pierce as below for it.

In short "Golden Medical Discovery" regulates, purifies and invigorates the whole system and thus cures a very large range of diseases. The reason Why it cures such a varied list of diseases is made clear in a little booklet of extracts from the leading medical authorities, compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and which he will be pleased to send post-paid and entirely free to any who send him their names and addresses.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good." They are the original Little Liver Pills first put up by old Dr. Pierce over 40 years ago. Much imitated, but never equaled. They are tiny sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

STAGE WEDDING WAS REAL.

Vienna, May 15.—A remarkable story of a "surprise" marriage comes from Castelmoro, Dalmatia, where a young couple were wedded in the presence of their friends and relatives, although the latter objected strenuously to the match. The bridegroom was Anton Iron, a young and penniless lawyer, and his sweetheart, an 18-year-old girl named Estelle Berger, the daughter of a local merchant. As her parents refused to sanction the match, and the girl refused to take part in a clandestine marriage, the lovers were in despair until Herr Iron thought of an ingenious way out of the difficulty.

Both he and his sweetheart were enthusiastic members of an amateur dramatic club. He arranged a theatrical performance, in which both of them took part, and which included a two-act comedy. In the last act of the comedy the hero and heroine were married on the stage in full view of the audience.

The theater was crowded, the proceeds of the entertainment being devoted to charity. Fraulein Berger's parents were astounded, when they waited for their daughter after the performance, to be informed that she had been really married, and that the actor who impersonated a clergy was really a minister.

The bride's father was so delighted at the clever way in which he had been outwitted that he gave the couple $250 for their honeymoon, and has promised to furnish a home for them.

Better Than Medicine.
Pills and pepsin are for those who don't know how to eat. A man is all right when his stomach is all right. Stomach comfort and satisfaction come from "food sense."
Shredded Wheat
contains more muscle-making material than beefsteak and is more easily digested. Better than medicine—cheaper than doctors.
For breakfast heat the Biscuit in oven, pour milk over it (hot milk in winter) and a little cream. If you like the Biscuit for breakfast you will like toasted TRISCUIT (the Shredded Wheat wafer) for luncheon or any meal with butter, cheese or marmalade. At your grocers.

TO PURGE THEATERS

Abolition of Censorship Brings Expected Results in Paris.

Language and Scenes on Many Stages Severely Criticised.

Paris, May 15.—The abolition of the censorship of the stage in France has produced its logical result. License of language has invaded the theater until the public itself has begun to protest. A few weeks ago a woman well known in society and letters, wrote to a leading Paris newspaper, proposing to her sex to boycott those playhouses and cafes chantants where indecency is rampant. And again this week the academician, M. Etienno Lamy, publishes in the Echo de Paris a strong article entitled "Assez" against the public immorality promoters who are pandering to a lower empire taste. The situation he describes with eloquence, and anyone who has observed the evolution of Montmartre during the last six months can corroborate every word of his diatribe against those whom he calls "les exploiteurs des curiosities malsaines."

At all events, the Paris police have undertaken to purge the stables of so much indecency. They are now prosecuting theater and music hall managers where nude women are to be seen, as as well as the women themselves. It is a noteworthy fact that nothing was done until the public raised objections, an interesting confirmation, by the way, of the opinion already given on the authority of M. Jules Claretie, that "the public is entirely capable of exercising its own censorship." M. Hervieu remarked wittily when the censorship was abolished. "The caged animal does not always issue forth just at the moment the doors are opened." The beast is now well out in the open, but the police are on its track bent on caging it.

A magistrate this week summoned a number of the offenders before him. There were handsome girls from the "Folie this and Folie that," Montmartre cabarets and Latin Quarter theaters, who came tripping in, laughing or smiling, and feeling that they were objects of sympathy to the crowd of spectators gathered in the corridor of the court room. When brought before the magistrate they one and all assumed a serious tone, and wanted to know what harm they had done. Their intention never was and never could be to offend public morality. They simply acted the part assigned to them, and their only crime was that they were the slaves of beauty. The girls thought that they had cornered the magistrate with this powerful argument, but he was not convinced by it, and inflicted severe fines.

The criminal court of Bar de Duc has given judgment in the case of the butcher Levy, charged with supplying unsound meat to the army. He was condemned to one year's imprisonment and to pay a fine of $100 and $600 damages, as well as all costs. Levy is the first of several contractors who are being prosecuted for supplying the troops with diseased and putrid meats. The revelations which have attended the preliminary inquiries into these charges have aroused widespread indignation, and a general demand for exemplary punishment. The metropolitan cattle market at La Villette appears to have been the center of this abominable traffic. The police found that the usual system of inspection was being evaded and that a regular business was being done in old, lean, tuberculosis cattle, many of which were in a dying condition and were so near their end on reaching their destination they had to be carted from the railway truck to the slaughter house. The corner of the market where these wretched beasts were sold to the army contractors was appropriately nicknamed "the eastern cemetery." The police and veterinary evidence against Levy showed that the price paid for the diseased and moribund animals that he cut up and supplied for "soldiers' meat" was from $20 to $40, or about half the wholesale price of sound beef, and that he could not fail to be aware of their tuberculosis condition, since the organs affected were systematically removed and buried.

The oldest ticketholder of the Paris opera house, Charles Bocher, who for over half a century has sat in the same stall at the opera at least three evenings a week, died a few days ago at his rooms in Paris at the age of 91. Mr. Bocher was the author of several interesting books, one of which was crowned by the French academy, but he was, perhaps, best known in Paris as a friend of the ballet. Every afternoon from 1 o'clock till 6 his door was left open, and his little flat besieged by all who wanted help of any kind. One amusing thing that he did for the ballet girls during the last twelve years of his life was to have their teeth seen to and pay the dentist bills of every woman in an opera ballet. Mr. Bocher was the son of a page of the chamber of Charles X. He himself served as a captain of artillery in the Crimean war, and was aid-de-camp to Marshal Canrobert and orderly officer to the duke of Orleans.

Some days ago a French savant, Gustave le Bon, who is convinced that most of the phenomena of spiritualism and of the so-called occult sciences are ocular illusions, offered the small sum of $100 as a prize to anyone who would, in his presence and that of a certain number of unprejudiced and scientific men, demonstrate a case of real levitation, that is, lifting by an occult power a cup or vase from one table to another, the object to be photographed in the actual transfer, showing without a doubt that there was no ocular illusion. Prince Roland Bonaparte, who is of the same opinion as the scientist, has in a letter just published offered to add $200 to the prize. No medium has as yet proposed to submit to the test.

A man named Androuard of Mayenno killed his wife the other day under curious circumstances. The woman was a confirmed drunkard, and had been out all night. She returned at 6 o'clock in the morning, and, when her husband reproached her she laughed at him and told him to kill her. Androuard took up his gun, intending to frighten her, but it was discharged accidentally, and his wife fell dead.

A business man from the Vaugirard district, who had missed a $200 note from his office safe and suspected a dismissed clerk of having stolen it, came upon him in a restaurant near the Montparnasse station. The young man had just time to crush a piece of paper in his hand when he was arrested. Shortly afterwards another customer complained of finding a piece of paper in his stew. In the presence of the waiter the paper was unrolled and proved to be a damaged $200 note. This the customer eagerly claimed, but the waiter refused to part with it. They went together to the police station, and there learned that the arrested man, by virtue of his assertions of innocence and having no note on him, had been released.

IS DODGING A BLACKMAILER

Berlin, May 15.—A few months ago a blackmailer attempted to extort the sum of $25,000 from a Munich millionaire named Ludovici, and, as his demand was disregarded, retorted by attempting to pour acid over two of that gentleman's sons and raising his claim to $500,000. Since that time he has continued to bombard the unfortunate millionaire with letters, in which, among other things, he threatened to blow him and his villa into the air. The utmost efforts of the police failed either to discover or silence the miscreant. At last the importunity of his persecutor began to get on Herr Ludovici's nerves. He decided to retire with his family to some place, which he kept secret, and advertised his Munich villa for sale.

Another instance of the ineradicable romance of the house of Tuscany will be seen in the marriage which was celebrated last Saturday at the registry office of Nuremburg. The bridegroom was Prince Viktor of Isenburg-Birstein, whose mother was sister of the grand duke of Tuscany, and who is therefore first cousin to Frau Toselli and Leopold Wilfling, while the lady to whom he was united was Anna Rohrer, a damsel of unpretentious, if not actually of humble, origin. She was, in fact, the daughter of a doctor in the little Bohemian town of Schlackenwerth, which is situated on the southern slope of the Erzgebirge, not very far from Carlsbad.

During the coming summer the capacity of the Imperial shipyard at Kiel is to be widely extended in several directions. The new works will include a forge, an electric power station and a quay wall which will place a larger area of water at the disposal of the admiralty for berthing the warships that are receiving their armament. Moreover, the controversy as to the respective merits of dry and floating docks have been finally decided in favor of the latter, and a structure of his type, capable of accomodating the largest battleships, will be put in hand without delay.

Several thousand frogs have been bought from a breeder near Hildesheim and placed in the ditches, pools and small lakes at Finkenburg, a small place in the woods to the west of Berlin, to which thousands of Berliners and their families flock on Sunday. This experiment is being made in the hope of reducing the plague of the mosquito-like gnats.

It is understood that the Prussian government is preparing a bill to allow cremation. An agitation in favor of "fire burial" has been going on for twenty years, but has hitherto failed to overcome clerical opposition. At present the bodies of Berliners who wish to be cremated must be sent to Hamburg or Welmar for the purpose.

FILIPINO WOMEN MAY VOTE.

Bill Provides Husband Must Give Consent, However.

Manila, May 15.—Assemblyman Sotto has introduced a bill to give women the right to vote in the Philippines, but not to hold office. The bill has created considerable discussion. It is believed it will pass. The measure provides that a woman to vote must be 23 years old, and that a married woman must have the consent of her husband in writing before she will be allowed to cast her ballot. A woman who is under the care of her parents must have the parents' consent.

ADVICE BY THE POPE

Letter to the Catholic Members of the German Reichstag.

Priests Who Have Married Will Not be Reinstated.

Rome, May 15.—The pope is about to issue a letter of advice to the Catholic members of the German reichstag or parliament, who constitute the Center party, which has done so great service for the church in Germany. The letter will be addressed either to Cardinal Kopp, archbishop of Breslau, or to Cardinal Fischer, archbishop of Cologne. The letter will be a very important one, because it will tend to put an end to current dissension among the members of the Center party regarding the recent visit to the pope of Prince Von Buelow, the German chancellor. Since the return of the prince to Berlin many of the newspaper organs of the Center have complained of the cordiality with which he was received at the Vatican, the criticism having been aroused because since he came into power the German chancellor has done his utmost to down the Catholic element in the reichstag. Comments on this matter were so numerous that the German government felt obliged to issue an official note, in which it accuses the Center party of causing trouble by its opposition to the imperial chancellor. It is believed here that the forthcoming letter of the pope will do much to re-establish peace.

In the meantime Prince Von Buelow intends to keep in close touch with Rome and the Vatican. He has purchased here a splendid villa, which he intends to occupy for several weeks every year, until his term of office has expired. There he will spend all his winters in Rome. The new arrangement will greatly assist him in maintaining close relations with the Vatican, so long as he remains in office.

A few days ago the papal secretary of state, Cardinal Merry del Val, on being informed that a petition was being prepared by Mme. Gould and the Prince de Sagan, asking a regular dispensation, in order that they might be married in the church, stated emphatically that such a petition would neither be considered nor answered. This is held to settle the matter, for what the cardinal says is always what the pope has instructed him to say.

No Relief for Married Priests.

It is absolutely denied at the Vatican that there is any plan in view for the reinstatement of priests who have married. Efforts to obtain some concession in this matter have been repeatedly made by prominent ministers of Protestant denominations during the past few years, but the Vatican authorities have always ignored the requests. Excepting in the cases of some Greek and some Oriental priests, it is an ecclesiastical crime for a priest to contract marage, and if the ceremony should be performed in a Catholic church, the couple would suffer excommunication. This has been the rule for centuries, and it is said to be certain that it will not be changed now, not only because of traditions, but because such an act, legalizing the marriage of the clergy, would probably determine many members of the Catholic clergy to do the same.

Judging from information just received here, there is likely to be another vacancy in the French hierarchy soon. Mgr. Denescheau, bishop of Tulle, is seriously ill, and the fact greatly concerns the Vatican, because the appointment of his successor will have to be made according to the new rules established. The American system of nominating bishops has recently been discarded in France, and instead of the bishops of the ecclesiastical province sending to Rome three names of preferred candidates, the Vatican authorities will themselves choose a new bishop, relying on information in their possession, which every French bishop is now required to forward to Rome once a year. It is not generally remembered that since the separation of church and state in France more than thirty vacancies have occurred among the members of the French episcopate, and that the pope has filled all of them to his satisfaction.

The pope is soon to issue a regular encyclical letter congratulating the Canadian people on the third century of their independence. The letter will point out the great advantages enjoyed by Canadian priests and bishops, because of the absolute religious liberty prevailing in their country. The archbishop of Quebec is to be charged with the distribution of the pope's letter.

Pope Is Carefully Guarded.

The season of pilgrimage is in full swing here, because of the pope's sacerdotal jubilee. Last week a large delegation of the Catholic inhabitants of Tyrol, dressed in their characteristic costumes, arrived here and were received by the pope. They brought him a generous present as a testimonial of the faith that animated them. A few days ago a special train brought all the faculties and all the students of the Vienna university, and these also obtained a special collective audience. Such manifestations are especially gratifying to the pope, and the season has only just begun. Pilgrimages are expected from almost all countries of the world, including China and Japan.

Extraordinary precautions have recently been adopted at the Vatican for the protection of the pope's life. It has not been generally known that "black hand" letters have recently been received at the Vatican, addressed both to the pope and the cardinal secretary of state. The latter made light of the threats they contained, but the pope was alarmed, and since the receipt of the letters he has not gone alone for his usual walks or drives in the Vatican gardens.

It is now comparatively easy to safeguard the pope's life, as visitors to the museums and galleries may no longer enter by the bronze portals, but must use the new entrance in the rear of St. Peter's. This shuts them off completely from communication with the Vatican palace. Formerly one had but to mention to the Swiss guard at the bronze gate that he was a visitor to the museums to be admitted and allowed to ramble all over the palace at his will. This has now ceased and all visitors are not only closely scrutinized, but have also to show some credentials in order to obtain admission. This was found out to their cost a few days ago by a number of German pilgrims. In their innocence they thought that because they were Catholics they would be freely admitted to the Vatican. They were turned out.

PLAN BIG REGATTA WEEK.

Spanish King and Queen and Sir Thomas Lipton to Give Prizes.

Madrid, May 15.—Delegates from the Royal Sporting club of Bilbao have arrived here, and have had audience with King Alfonso on the subject of the coming summer regattas. They will have great importance this year, as the king expressed his desire to organize two big races—one on the high sea and the other a long distance race between Santander, Bilbao and San Sebastian. King Alfonso informed the delegates that several English yachts have entered for the races, including four boats belonging to Sir Thomas Lipton.

According to his majesty's statement, Sir Thomas Lipton's cutters will leave Southampton on Aug. 10, and indulge in a private race. King Alfonso and the queen will each give a cup, and a third will be presented by Sir Thomas. The municipalities and casinos of Santander, Bilbao and San Sebastian will also offer an important prize for crews and other prizes will be given by the regatta clubs. King Alfonso desires to create a grand regatta week, to be called the Biscayan week, and this year's races will constitute the first effort in this direction.

PRIESTS LOSE RANK.

Pekin, May 15.—The imperial rescript of March 15, 1898, whereby China granted official rank to the Roman Catholic hierarchy, a priest to rank as a prefect and a bishop as a viceroy or governor, has been canceled. The effect of the rescript has been that at present 1,100 Roman Catholic missionary priests rank as prefects and forty-six Roman Catholic enjoy vice regal rank, some having even adopted the insignia of a viceroy. China herself has only nine viceroys.

The rescript at the time was not received with entire favor; it has since frequently been condemned by devout Roman Catholics, has frequently been abused, and has led to frequent difficulties, for it gave higher rank to missionaries than to the consular representatives of the countries whose subjects they were, or by whom they were protected. The conditions now being regarded as different from those existing when the rescript was issued, the Wai-wu-pu memorialized the throne, recommending that the decree should be rescinded. The memorial has received the imperial sanction, and the rescript has been canceled.

OXFORDS THAT ARE REALLY STYLISH

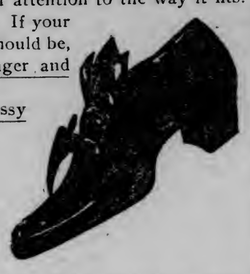
In selecting Oxfords the careful dresser will pay particular attention to the way it fits. The importance of this is patent. If your Oxfords are fitted the way they should be, they will retain their shape longer and always look dressy.



And if they look neat and dressy you may be sure they are stylish.

Anxious salesmen will squeeze some freak last on your foot—they call them "nifty"—lasts that are as foreign to your foot as they are to your hand—and they tell you "how stylish" that Oxford is. You buy, and pay the penalty "breaking in" this torturesome "footwear."

Take our advice—don't be deceived in this matter. If you would wear an Oxford with comfort, with grace—an Oxford that will give your foot the support and spring it requires—an Oxford that is REALLY STYLISH, have Suffel's shoemen fit your feet.

The dressiest and most stylish collection of Oxfords for men, women and children to be found at the Head of the Lakes from which to make selection. We do not charge more because we fit your feet—that is a part of our service. Quality is the first principle of this store.

SACRAMENTO REPORTS A FINE CASE.

A fine example of a recovery in a case of kidney disease that was supposed to be incurable is reported from Sacramento. Mr. I. T. Gibson of 521 Ninth street, Sacramento, was in October last in a local hospital in the Capital City, swollen with the dropsy that often attends the serious and supposed incurable forms. As is usual in these cases the hospital treatment got no results, when he was advised to try Fulton's Renal Compound by a friend (Charles A. Newton, the yardmaster of the S. P. R. R. Co., at Sacramento, who had himself been cured by the treatment.) Dropsy began to subside and the renal inflammation gradually abated and Gibson is now back to his employment with the S. P. R. R. Co., after recovering from a disease that is rated as incurable the world over.

In a letter he has just written, he states, "I believe it has saved my life. It is the greatest remedy for kidney disease on earth."

No matter whether called "kidney trouble," "Nephritis," or "Bright's Disease," the real difficulty is INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS. Fulton's Renal Compound is the first emollient for inflamed kidneys that the world has ever seen. Send for literature.

KINGSHIP IS IN DANGER.

Belgrade, May 15.—King Peter's tenure of office, for a long time precarious, is now to be put to the test of a general election. If his partisans win he will have a new lease of kingship. If the opposition is victorious he will have perforce to surrender his throne. Parliament has been dissolved. Conciliation of the Opposition might have been effected by the formation of a coalition cabinet, but the king has chosen to leave M. Paschics' ministry practically intact. Fair play with the ballot boxes would spell disaster for the king. Even under the adroit management of M. Paschics, the premier, and the king's most ardent supporter, the elections must result in the return of many members of the Opposition and antiregicides.

The premier will, therefore, at the best, be again confronted in the new parliament with an irreconcilable Opposition, bent on the identical obstruction policy that now forces him to the country. The commercial treaty with Austria will not be allowed to pass the Skuptchina, the budget will not be voted and the king will be subjected to still more envenomed attacks.

"What confidence can we have in a government," asked Dr. Velikovitch, the Opposition leader in the Skuptschina, "which has lowered Servia's prestige to the extent that its ruler is branded as an instigator of bomb outrages? Where are the projected visits to the courts of Italy, Austria and Russia? Our king is boycotted.

"We have fallen so low that a treaty unworthy of even a vassal state is proposed to us as a favor. If our position abroad is deplorable, it is worse at home. Here we have the nation's representatives assaulted by officers with impunity; political opponents locked up and killed; editors of Opposition journals persecuted or imprisoned on fictitious charges of debt. A murderous regime has set in in Servia."

WOULD SAVE THE BABIES

American Woman Will Open School for Mothers in London.

Infant Mortality in Somers Town Reaches High Figures.

London, May 15.—To an American woman, Hon. Mrs. Bertrand Russell, formerly Mrs. Alys Pearsall Smith of Philadelphia, is due the establishment of a school in London which, as its beneficent results become more apparent, is likely to lead to the establishment of many similar institutions in the metropolis and elsewhere. It is a "School for Mothers," and its object is to teach poor mothers how to take proper care of their babies.

One of the burning shames of England is its high infant mortality. The average death rate of infants under 1 year old in most American cities is about 55 out of every 1,000 born. In England the average is 135, and in some districts of London as many as 505 babies out of every 1,000 born die before they reach their first birthday. The chief cause of this terrible waste of child life is ignorance. Poverty alone can be held accountable for only a small portion of it. Comparatively few mothers are so poor that they can not nourish their infants if they know how. It is ignorance more than anything else which is decimating the infant population of England.

Terrible Mortality.

In no district in London, probably, is the infant mortality higher than in Somers Town, because there both ignorance and poverty abound. Through Dr. Sykes, medical officer of health for the borough of St. Pancras, of which Somers Town forms a part, Mrs. Russell was made aware of the terrible slaughter of the innocents that goes on in that squalid region, and she determined that she would do something to check it. Study and investigation convinced her that to strike at the fountain head of the evil a remedy must be found for the ignorance of the mothers. They should be taught. She decided to open a school for them in which competent instructors should teach them how to look after their babies so as to assure them a fair chance of developing into healthy men and women.

She worked hard and organized an influential committee, of which she is chairman. Money was collected and a house was taken in Chalton street. The school was placed in charge of Mrs. Barnes, an experienced woman superintendent, and invitations were sent round to all the tenement houses in the neighborhood asking the mothers of young babies to come to the school and be taught how to take care of them. Great placards, explaining the nature of the school, were exhibited in front of the building, and the school started a year ago with three pupils. It has now 150.

Made Fun Of.

Chalton street is what is known in London as a "coster's market." That is to say that Chalton street is lined from end to end with hucksters selling goods of every description from barrows and handcarts, and is crowded with poor women who draw most of their household supplies from these barrows. It is also well supplied with public houses, each with its attendant staff of loafers. At first the School for Mothers afforded huge amusement to the costers and loafers, and the "wit" which the women who conducted it had to encounter was not of the most refined character. Today the school has won the respect and gratitude of the neighborhood. There is hardly a coster or a laborer in the district who does not know and appreciate the work it is doing. Any one who attempted to molest any of the women connected with the school today would meet with a very rough reception in Chalton street.

The school began with nightly classes for the mothers, who were invited to attend and bring their babies. Dr. Dora Bunting talked to the mothers on the importance of natural feeding, and warned them that to give the babies a drop of gin or tea and a little of everything they ate themselves meant certain death to the babies. Then she undressed the babies and explained to the mothers the evils of tight binding and the importance of keeping baby warm. If it had any little ailment, she advised the mother what to do, and, if necessary, sent her to a hospital or infirmary. In the meantime Mrs. Barnes, the superintendent, visited the mothers at their homes and pressed home the lessons taught by the woman doctor.

Natural Feeding.

A difficulty soon presented itself. The first principle taught by the school was the importance of natural feeding, for artificial feeding is frightfully prevalent among the poor mothers of England. Many of them, in fact, think it is better than natural feeding, and many adopt it because they prefer, even when harsh necessity does not compel them, to work in the factories.

Hon. Mrs. Bertrand Russell, Dr. Bunting and Mrs. Barnes soon found that if the mothers of Somers Town were to feed their infants they must be fed themselves. If there is one thing that the lower class Englishwoman is careless about, it is her own food. She realizes the importance of feeding her husband, for he has to do heavy work, but for herself she is usually content with tea and bread, and perhaps a salt herring now and again. In fact, it is not unusual for the man to buy his own meat, hand it to his wife to cook and eat it while his wife and children look on, perhaps famished.

The importance of feeding the mother was emphasized in the lectures, but talking had little effect. As a matter of fact many of the mothers could not afford to feed themselves, so the school determined to feed them. Now a substantial dinner is provided every day for the pupils of the school at a charge of 3 cents, while those who can not afford even this receive the dinner free.

Don't Want Charity.

It is a mistake to suppose that this pauperizes the mothers. Mrs. Barnes told me that the chief difficulty was to induce the poor mothers who could not pay to accept the free meals. "The food I don't pay for sticks in my throat," one of them told her.

Other mothers have to be watched to prevent them from carrying the food to the elder children at home. "How can I eat when I know they are hungry?" the women say. "The food chokes me." Mrs. Barnes has to explain that the school is particularly concerned only with the latest baby, but she often manages to supply a little extra food for the hungry mouths at home.

Every fortnight the babies whose mothers attend the school are weighed, and apart from its scientific value, this weighing has proved one of the most valuable features of the school.

In addition to the health lectures there are sewing and cutting classes, at which the mothers are taught to make babies' clothes and to cut down their own and their husbands' old clothes for the elder children.

Give Babies Jin.

The walls of the school are decorated with pictures and drawing showing the right and the wrong way to care for babies. One of the most striking features which meet the eye on entering the general room is a huge placard bearing the words, "Bring your baby up to be a teetotaler." This may sound rather ridiculous to American ears, but it is a very serious injunction in England for it is the custom among Englishwomen of the poorest class to give their babies a little sip of beer, gin or whatever else they drink themselves. One of the commonest sights in the public houses in the poorest quarters of London is the bar lined with women, each carrying a baby, and when the public houses close at midnight these women can be seen leaving them, still carrying the babies.

Then there are charts and diagrams showing the food value of different articles and proving that some foods that are much despised are more nourishing than others that are much more expensive. When the daily dinner is being cooked the mothers are instructed in the preparation of cheap and nourishing articles of diet.

The most recent development of the school is the class for fathers, which has just been started. This is the idea of Mrs. Barnes, the lady superintendent, who found in her visits to the homes that many of the fathers were anxious to help their wives if only they only knew how. Others were entirely careless of their most elementary responsibilities. "We found," she says, "that the fathers of Somers Town can be divided into three classes—the attached, the semi-detached and the detached. The last class lives in the public houses and goes home only to sleep."

Men Invited to Come.

The men were invited to come to the school once a week. They are allowed to smoke and have a "sing song," which is the chief delight of the British working man. Then a man doctor who has worked among them and can talk their language drops in, and, apparently in the most casual manner gives them a talk on general hygiene, including the care of their own health, and that of their families. Sometimes the talk is pretty personal.

"I saw your old woman today, Bill," he will say to a burly navvy. "She's looking a bit clemmed (starved). Better see that she gets more to eat," or, "Jim, that last kid of yours is a regular little waster. Why doesn't the wife take better care of it? Better buy more milk and less beer."

The men take these admonitions in good part because they are couched in language that they can understand and because they know that the doctor is "all right" and "not off." They usually act on his advice. One to whom the doctor said that his wife was spending too much time in the public house and too little looking after her children, announced his intention of going home and "bashing her face." The doctor persuaded him to try gentler treatment.

The cost of running the school as it is working at present is about $2,000 a year, but its expansion is checked by lack of funds. The experiment has been such a success that other districts have asked for the establishment of similar institutions, and a series of drawing room meetings is now being held in London to interest society women in this fight to save the babies.

Beauty and Brains.

The Hon. Mrs. Bertrand Russell, to whom the movement owes its inception, is a woman to whom the fates have been unusually generous. She has beauty, sheh as brains and, best of all, she has an uncommonly kind heart. It is that latter which has led her to devote her talents and energies so unstintedly to movements for the betterment of humanity. And she does not spare herself to obtain a knowledge of conditions at first hand. A few years ago she disguised herself as a factory hand, and as such obtained employment. The result was the publication in a leading review of an article exposing the conditions under which women workers labored in certain industries which caused a great sensation and a stricter enforcement of the factories act. She is one of the most eloquent speakers on temperance in the kingdom. She is a suffragette, but not one of the shrieking variety that goes about seeking martyrdom by imprisonment. Her husband is a brother of Earl Russell and heir presumptive to the title. That means that she may become a peeress some day. But if she should it will make little difference in her devotion to social reforms.

GYPSY KING IS ARRESTED.

Geneva, May 15.—Emile Haussman, "the king of the gypsies," who is wanted for many crimes, has been arrested at Zulrich under dramatic circumstances.

The police had surrounded his tent in a forest near Bulach, and were on the point of entering when he bounded past them half dressed. The police fired in the air, but the fugitive continued until he was overtaken by one of the men named Schaufelberger.

The gypsy attacked Schaufelberger furiously, and would have strangled him but for the arrival of his comrades, one of whom shot Haussman in the leg. Even then he hobbled away to a rock, against which he placed his back and defied the police to seize him.

He was handcuffed after a struggle, whereupon he remarked: "You ought to thank your stars that I left my revolver in the tent, or some of you would have joined me in a long journey. I congratulate you on capturing 'the king of the gypsies' for the first time."

The gypsy bands in Central Europe paid tribute to Haussman, whom they regarded with awe and superstition.

VANDERBILT IS FINED.

Paris, May 15.—Some time ago W. K. Vanderbilt, Sr., who has a fine racing stable and is the owner of a trainer's ground at Les Grosillons, in the Poissy district, entered into negotiations with the local mayor, as he wished to include some public paths in his property, for its improvement. Time wore on, and tired of all the dilatory formalities which had been keeping him in suspense, Mr. Vanderbilt had walls built according to his plan, the consequence being that the objectionable lanes were included in his estate.

Horrified at this bold action, the mayor protested, but in vain, and a forester, who was sent to make a formal demand for the restoration of the paths, met with no more success. Mr. Vanderbilt explained that he was weary of waiting, and was prepared to pay any reasonable sum for the ground, but the mayor was firm, and the case was taken before the Poissy police court.

Vainly it was argued on Mr. Vanderbilt's behalf that the sale of the bits of road had been promised, and that he only wanted to put down the money. Counsel for the municipality maintained that its ground must be left intact, and the judge, adopting his view, condemned Mr. Vanderbilt to a fine of $3, while he has to restore the paths which he had rather prematurely annexed.

TO UTILIZE MOLTEN LAVA.

Scheme to Save Vesuvius's Overflow and Prevent Explosion.

Naples, May 15.—Signor Coartino has written a pamphlet pointing out the danger of an explosion of Vesuvius should the volcano vent, or chimney, become blocked, and proposes to afford an outlet for the incandescent mass contained in the crater by boring a tunnel at the mase of the mountain and leading the molten rock into the sea.

It might even be possible to lead the lava into molds that would give it the shape and size of blocks of cement, such as are used for building quays, breakwaters, etc., and, of course, smaller paving sines for the streets of Naples, such as are now quarried in the very old and cooled lava.

BRIGANDS AT PALERMO.

Palermo, May 15.—This gay metropolis of Sicily has been deeply impressed by an incident which occurred this week at the gates of the city. It was a case of brigandage, to which Palermo has not been accustomed for a very long time.

A certain Vincenzo Mancuso was proceeding on foot toward Villagrazia, a few miles from Palermo, when he was met by three malefactors, of whom two were masked, all armed with rifles and revolvers. More violently than courteously they offered him the embarrassing alternative of handing over all his money or parting with his life. At this moment two carts drove up, the occupants of which were ordered to jump out. This they did without offering any resistance, whereupon they were searched by the brigands, who deprived them of everything they possessed, even of small articles of no value, but which could easily be identified.

Then firing a few shots as a signal to their companions hidden in the vicinity that the "coup" had been effected, the brigands hurried away. People in Palermo are now thinking of the classical period of Cicilian brigandage and hoping that it will not return.

PREFERS FAITH TO LEGACY.

Terms of Will Required Canton Minister to Change Religion.

Canton, Ill., May 15.—Rev. Henry S. Dawson, pastor of St. Peter's Episcopal church, will not be enriched as a legatee of the estate of a relative, Miss Alice T. Booth of New York city, a settlement worker. To become a beneficiary under the will the rector would be required to become a Catholic, but the minister has anounced he will not change his religion, and the legacy goes to Miss Booth's aunt.

Rev. Dawson, in discussing the matter, said:

"To me religion is the most sacred thing in the world. To comply with the alleged condition of this will, I should have to turn my back on my bishop, my brethren in the Anglican priesthood and the sacraments by which I have been hitherto nourished. Honest men have made this change, though not many. No one desires more earnestly than myself the reunion of Christendom, especially Catholic Christendom; but it is to be brought about in God's way, not man's way."

Rev. Dawson is married and has one child. He is an earnest preacher, indefatigable worker and highly regarded.

WEST END

MERCHANT MARINE WAR

West End Grocers Going After the Vessel Business.

Four Retailers Will Have Gasoline Launches This Year.

There promises to be a lively merchant marine war on the bay this summer between the different grocers and butchers of the West end. All of them are to be supplied with boats and they are going after the business of furnishing the big boats with food supplies, with a vengeance.

Two concerns which last season did not boast of craft of their own have just purchased gasoline launches and are having them fitted up for active service. One of the boats is owned jointly by a grocer and a butcher, and both will get a chance at the business.

Last season, only two West end stores made any effort to get the marine supply business but this year, two more have entered the lists.

The tradesmen say that the season may be short but that it is going to be a merry one.

Summer Underwear!

SCHOOL BANQUET.

Eighth Grade Pupils at Lincoln School Will Dine.

Members of the eighth grade graduating class at the Lincoln school will sit down to an elaborate banquet at the school this evening. Covers will be laid for about sixty and the affair promises to be one of the most brilliant ever held in the history of the school.

The eighth grade's annual banquet is always an event of the school. The school orchestra will be on hand to dispense music between courses. Parents of the pupils are furnishing the spread and it is given under the supervision of the teachers. There will be half a dozen responses to toasts by members of the class and the teachers.

Following the banquet and the speeches, the company will repair to the upper halls of the school where a short dancing program will be given. The Lincoln school orchestra, comprising fourteen students, will furnish the music.

ST. PAUL GIRL WAS ABDUCTED

Rose Sheerard of St. Paul, 14 years of age, who, it is claimed, was lured away from her home some weeks ago, has been discovered in a "stockade" resort not far north of Duluth.

Patrolman Pat Smith of the St. Paul police department, specially detailed to find the girl and the man who abducted her, has reported that both the abducter and his victim are in custody. They passed through Duluth today, it is understood, on their way to the Sainty City.

The "stockade" is a disorderly resort, run in violation of law, outside the city limits. Its location has not been specified, and the matter has not been reported to the Duluth police.

MEET WITH THE MAYOR

Fire Commissioners and Aldermen Get Together in Conference.

Mayor Thinks Improvements Have Been Delayed Too Long.

The council committee on city finance, fire department and the members of the fire board held a conference with Mayor Haven yesterday afternoon for the purpose of discussing needed improvements in some of the fire halls, and to give the men most directly concerned a thorough understanding of the situation in this respect as it exists at present.

Changes and additions to several of the halls are badly needed, but there is a lack of funds to provide for the desired improvements. An addition to house No. 3, corner of First avenue east and Third street, came in for particular attention, but no decision was reached in regard to the matter. Last fall the council made an appropriation of $2,500 for improvements to No. 3, but when the plans for the addition were completed it was found that it would take about $5,000 to cover the cost of construction and repair. Consequently no action was taken on the bids opened.

In a communication which will be read at the meeting of the council next Monday evening the fire board will recommend that entirely new bids be called for on this improvement. Some changes will be made in the plans. The Lakeside and West end departments are very badly in need of appropriations, but it is hardly likely that anything can be done in regard to them for some little time.

The mayor said this morning that hereafter council committees and men in charge of different departments of the city will meet more often than they have in the past. Heretofore it has not been the practice of the fire commissioners to meet and confer with council committees, for example, and consequently they have not been in as close touch with them and the needs of the department, as might have been desired. These conferences have a tendency to establish everybody concerned on a more friendly basis, and puts the council in a position to act more intelligently on recommendations and suggestions, by making the aldermen more friendly with the subject in hand.

"In the past there has been too much of a tendency on the part of the city to postpone needed improvements until the very last minute," said Mayor Haven this morning. "In future we will try to make needed improvements when their real need is first felt, and thus we will be able to prevent them all coming in a bunch. If everything is put off until the last minute, the city finds itself in a position where it cannot possibly finance all the improvement projects that seem absolutely necessary, and temporary repairs, that must be replaced two or three years later, have to be made. This is false economy. In the matter of bridges, for example, if the city had begun years ago to build, say one or two or three bridges every year, to replace the old and decaying structures, instead of temporarily repairing them, we would not be in a condition now where an expenditure of $40,000 in repairs will be entirely inadequate to meet the need of such work, and we would have been so placed that structures in the most dangerous condition this year could be replaced by more substantial structures of steel and concrete."

BEATING IN PLACE OF RENT

Mrs. Babcock Says Her Tenant Shook and Assaulted Her.

Mrs. Minnie Babcock, has sworn out a warrant of arrest against E. Gammon, charging the latter with having assaulted and beaten her. She said he struck her when she tried to collect money due her as rent.

Mrs. Babcock occupies the lower story of a building at 708 East Third street, and Gammon and his wife rent the upper rooms from her. She complains to the police that the rent is long overdue. Yesterday, she says, she went up stairs and asked Gammon for some money. According to her story, he used unpleasant language and, grabbing her, administered a shaking and beating.

When the woman appeared at the police station she was accompanied by her little daughter, and both were weeping bitterly, the girl in sympathy with her mother. It is alleged that Gammon was drunk at the time of the trouble.

"He was on a toot," explained Mrs. Babcock, between her sobs.

It so happens that Gammon works for a man by the name of Toot.

CLEANING DAY POSTPONED.

Wet Weather Causes Mayor to Put It Off One Week.

On account of the bad weather and general wetness of the ground, Mayor Haven announced this afternoon that the official spring cleaning day has been postponed for one week, until next Saturday, May 23. It is believed that not much can be accomplished under present weather conditions, and therefore it is thought best to postpone the event one week.

STRAW HATS FOR THE BOYS

There are better days a-coming, at least the Ad-man is in hopes, because the Children's Man just telephoned from the second floor that his stock of Straw Hats for the boys is ready for business. A fine day to talk straw hats, isn't it?

We had a good notion to tell the Children's Man "Dry Up!" while he continues to tell us of his summer goods. Khaki Suits, says he, in Norfolk style with Knickers for the boys 8 to 16 years old. Washable, and rain won't spoil them. Very satisfactory for summer wear.

And while the wintry wind blows the big rain drops against the window, he is talking about light colored and light weight Wash Suits, in Russian and in Sailor styles. For boys 2½ to 10 years, and at all prices from 75 cents to $5.00.

JUDGE TARBOX DIES SUDDENLY

Well Known Minneapolis Jurist Expires of Apoplexy.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge James C. Tarbox, for many years a prominent Minnesota jurist and politician, was stricken with apoplexy at the Minneapolis Union depot, last night, while waiting for his train to Monticello, Minn., and died almost immediately. The body was taken to the county morgue and the relatives were at once notified. They arrived in Minneapolis today to take charge of the body.

For many years Judge Tarbox was associated with the Minnesota judiciary. When the Eighteenth judicial district was formed he was appointed judge and he held the position for a number of years. For some time past he has been troubled with heart disease, and at first it was thought this had caused his death.

Judge Tarbox was born in Maine, April 10, 1857. He graduated from Bowdoin college in 1879 and came to Minnesota two years later, settling at Monticello.

EAU CLAIRE DOCTOR IS CHARGED WITH CRIME.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. C. E. Phillips, a well-known local physician, has been arrested on a charge of performing an illegal operation and released on $5,000 bail, pending an examination next Wednesday. Edward Hanson, a young man of this city, is also under arrest charged with abetting in the crime. Borgena Oien of Summit street is the complaining witness. Dr. Phillips and his friends are indignant over the affair, claiming that the case will result in his complete exoneration.

THOUGHT SHE WAS IN WAY

Minneapolis, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Feeling that she was a burden upon her daughter's family, Mrs. L. E. Carr put herself out of the way yesterday at 115 Central avenue, by committing suicide.

The mother came from New York about three months ago and began living with her daughter, Mrs. Anna Sadenwater. The aged woman wanted to earn her own living, but it was difficult to secure employment, for nobody seemed to want the services of an old woman. She became despondent.

The daughter was away from home yesterday and when she returned at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, she found her mother in the pantry dead, where she had gone, closed the door and turned on the gas.

OLD ENGINEER DEAD.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Ackerly, for twenty-five years an engineer for the Omaha railroad, died Tuesday at Helena, Mont., from erysipelas. He was 54 years of age and had moved to Montana to reside only six months ago. He lived in St. Paul for a number of years at 735 Edgerton street. The body will be brought to St. Paul and the funeral will be held from the residence of his nephew, E. V. Goff, 901 Burr street.

TO SACRAMENTO.

Torpedo Boat Flotilla Will Sail 125 Miles Up River.

San Francisco, May 15.—The torpedo boat flotilla under command of Capt. E. N. Freeman left early today for Sacramento and will arrive there tonight. Five days of solid entertainment has been provided for the reception committee of the capitol city.

This will be the first time any of the vessels of the navy have gone so far inland in California, and, although the navigation of the river is expected to be accomplished without difficulty, the unusual event is attracting considerable attention. Sacramento is 125 miles from this harbor.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Clay Clement in "The New Dominion."

"THE NEW DOMINION."

Simplicity is the keynote of the play, and its charm lies in the natural manner in which the pretty little love story is unfolded, the refined nature of its comedy, and the absence of any of the ordinary stage "business" or reaching after effects.

Mr. Clement, during his student days at Heidelberg, had an opportunity to study the life of the high class German families, and his Baron Hohenstauffen is a gentle, mild mannered, nobleman, cultured and educated.

Mr. Clement is of a different school from the majority of actors of the present day. He reaches his end by a different course. There is a subdued note to all of his work, that is a refreshing change from the ranting of many of the modern dramatic stars.

"The New Dominion" is a one man play, largely. The action centers around the charming scion of German nobility, but the company contains, nevertheless, many finished actors. Miss Kerrigan, the leading women, possesses a very charming stage presence, and no small measure of dramatic ability. Her interpretation of the charming Southern girl, is full of life and fire.

Martin Rutledge has a splendid character role as the Southern planter, and he handles it most capably.

"The New Dominion" will be repeated tonight. Tomorrow afternoon Mr. Clement will be seen in the role of Hamlet and tomorrow night, "The Bells" will be the attraction. This will close the engagement of the company in Duluth.

NEW POSTMASTERS.

Washington, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following postmasters have been appointed for Minnesota: Randall, Morrison county, Ethel M. Ehr; Vermillion, Dakota county, John Kasel.

WINNIPEG MAN ARRESTED.

Santa Monica, Cal., May 15.—Calvin H. Bell of Winnipeg, Man., was arrested here yesterday upon telegraphic advices from the provincial chief of police. He is charged with obtaining $2,000 under false pretenses. Bell will make an effort t osecure his release through habeas corpus proceedings.

WITNESSES WOULD SKIP

Three Montenegrin Witnesses in Murder Case Are Jailed.

Claimed They Were Going to Canada to Work.

Because they threatened to pull up stakes and start for Canada to go to work on a railroad job, three of the men wanted by the state as witnesses in the trial of the murder case against Eli Matich have been placed in the county jail to await the further order of the court.

The three men, Mike and Dako Domjanovich and Gaber Radmlovich, with two other Montenegrins, were brought here from the range to testify before the grand jury in the case of the state against Matich, who has been indicted for murder in the first degree.

Yesterday the three witnesses above named demanded their witness' fees of the county attorney, and made open threats that they would not stay in Duluth longer, but would leave today or tomorrow for Canada.

Mr. Norton immediately petitioned the court to put them under bond for their appearance, and Judge Ensign granted the request, fixing a $500 bond in each case. As none of the three men could give a bond, they were committed to the county jail to be held for the trial.

The other two witnesses have gone back to their work on the range. They promised to be on hand when the case is called for trial.

LOSES $30,000 IN SWINDLE.

Evanston Grain Magnate's Wife is Victim of Canvasser.

Chicago, May 15.—Residents of Evanston were startled yesterday when it became known that Mrs. James A. Patten, wife of the grain magnate, and herself a leader in club and society life in the suburb, had been swindled out of several thousands of dollars by an oily-tongued canvasser. Whether it was a book agent or an art salesman who got the money is not quite clear, but he was an agent of some kind, and, according to reports, he, as the head of a syndicate of sharpers, succeeded in getting about $30,000 from Mrs. Patten.

NEW "COTTON KING" RISES.

J. L. Livermore Makes Profit of $500,000 in Two Weeks.

New York, May 15.—In the senational rise in July cotton in the last few days to 190 points, or $9.50 a bale, it has become known that a new "cotton king" has arisen in the financial world, one whose operations have played havoc with the bears in the cotton pit, and have assisted in cornering the July option.

J. L. Livermore's name was on the lips of every one in the cotton market yesterday, and a new Napoleon of the cotton market is already beginning to dictate terms. Since April 28, when July cotton was the lowest in five years, Mr. Livermore has been steadily accumulating contracts to be delivered next July. It is now estimated that he has made a profit of $500,000 in the last two weeks.

The following officers were elected and installed: Past grand chief of honor, Mae Ruhberg, Devils Lake; grand chief of honor, Kate Cameron, Erie; grand lady of honor, Frankie Lyman, Cando; grand recorder, Kate Blewett, Jamestown; grand receiver, Mary Ridley, Fargo; grand chief of ceremonies, Mary Kelly, Grafton; grand usher, Gertrude Boyd, Langdon; grand inside watch, Augusta Swenson, Grand Forks; grand outside watch, Emma Cummings, Minot; representative to superior lodge, Mae Rehberg, Devils Lake; grand legal adviser, Francis Bergendale, Ellendale.

HICKS HAS NOT QUIT.

State Department Denies Reported Resignation of Minister to Chile.

Washington, May 15.—Flat denial is made at the state department of a story telegraphed from Washington to Milwaukee papers, last night, that Col. John Hicks, United States minister to Chile, has notified the state department that he is to return to this country, and has virtually resigned.

CLOQUET PLAY SUCCESS.

Amateur Production of "The Bigamist" Makes Hit.

Cloquet, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The Bigamist," a three-act comedy, presented by local talent under the auspices of St. Andrew's guild of the Episcopal church, last evening drew a packed house, regardless of the disagreeable weather prevailing. The production rivaled any previous attempts in this line by local talent, and the entire cast winning well earned praise for their good showing.

The cast of characters was as follows:
"Dick Comfort," married yet single.... ..... F. E. Coolbaugh
"George Merrigale," an unfriendly friend ..... L. A. Kennedy
"Alexander Meander," Dick's uncle, blamed, but blameless .....F. D. Vibert
"Harris," Comfort's man servant ..... C. M. Kutzner
"Mrs. Clementina Meander," Dick's aunt, blameless, but blamed..... .....Mary Regan
"Edith Comfort," Dick's wife, unknown, unhonored and unsung..... ..... Olivia Grant
"Sally," Mrs. Meander's maid..... ..... Edna Winter

Synopsis—Dick Comfort lives on an allowance given him by his Uncle Meander, upon condition he shall not marry. He, however, falls in love and is married, keeping the fact secret. While living mostly at their country home the young man receives a letter that his uncle will arrive the same morning for a short visit. How is he to keep his uncle from seeing his wife and so discover he married afforded some amusing incidents.

Miss Laura Frankenfield of Duluth, who had the play under direction, is being congratulated on the success of the affair.

DIES AT STILLWATER.

Stillwater, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sophie, wife of Frederick Woif of the town of Grant, died Thursday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. August Iserman, 1322 North Martha street, where she was taken three weeks ago to receive medical attention and nursing. Mrs. Wolf was born in Germany Sept. 20, 1848, and came to this country forty-two years ago, and has resided on the farm thirty-eight years. Surviving are the husband and seven children.

NOTABLE MINOT GATHERING.

Minot, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the finest gatherings that will ever be held in Minot from the standpoint of helpfulness to the home and children, will be the state Sunday school convention which convenes here next week, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Scores of delegates from all over the state will be in attendance. The very best Sunday school workers from all over the state will be present, as well as men of national reputation from the East.

HILL AT GRAND FORKS.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—President Louis W. Hill of the Great Northern railway spent Wednesday in Grand Forks. His visit here was in the nature of a pleasure jaunt. He arrived in the morning with Dr. Quinn and Dr. Charles Mayo of Rochester. They came in President Hill's private car. The car was attached to train No. 36 that evening, and the return trip was made to St. Paul.

RECOVER SOME LOOT.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police of Grand Forks and East Grand Forks have recovered a portion of the $300 worth of silk stolen from Taugbol Sisters' store in a burglary a couple of weeks ago. Twenty yards of it was found in East Grand Forks, where a bartender had given it to his best girl. He purchased it from a third party and claimed that he did not know it was stolen. A small quantity was located in another place on the East side.

IRON MINE PAY DAYS.

Ishpeming, Mich., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The employes of the Lake Angeline mine will be paid Saturday. The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company's pay-days started Thursday, when the workmen at the Cliffs shafts and Lake mines received their checks. The men at the Salisbury and Hard Ore properties will be paid today. The Oliver company's men will be paid next Wednesday.

POLICEMAN UPHELD.

Ashland, Wis., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police and fire commission, by a vote of 3 to 2, sustained Policeman Harvey Stinson and dismissed the charges against him. The charges were: His alleged connection with the occurrence in Mahoney's saloon last Christmas; alleged cowardice in the arrest of Tim Leland; neglect of duty in allowing a prisoner to escape, or in turning him loose, after he had been turned over to him by the chief; neglect of duty in staying for an hour or so off his beat Feb. 28.

ONTARIO BANKER COMMITS SUICIDE.

Forest, Ont., May 15.—Montague Smith of the private banking firm of L. H. Smith & Co., and the Liberal candidate for Tampton in the coming provincial elections, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself through the head. Mr. Smith's business and private affairs were in the best of shape. No cause for the suicide is known.

FUNERAL MARCH CAUSED A MURDERER TO WEEP.

Manila, May 15.—The military authorities will surrender Beacham, the Stotsenberg murderer, to the civil authorities, who will put him on trial for murder. It is alleged that he is insane, but inquiries show that the murder was premeditated and carefully planned.

The prisoner showed no remorse until he heard the regimental band playing the funeral march at Private Clark's funeral, when he broke down and wept.

HE'S A NICE MAN.

Chicago News: "He's perfectly to her," said the man's wife.

"Humph!" said the man.

"Fine."

"She's certainly lucky—a great deal more than most women are. He doesn't belong to a single club, Ellen says. He did, but he gave them all up when he got married. He said he was going to make his home his club."

"How noble of him!" said the man.

"You may sneer," said his wife, "but I think it was sweet of him. I know some men who make their clubs their homes."

"Some clubs are pretty comfortable."

"Yours must be."

"It is. If you were only there I'd never leave it."

"I suppose not," said the man's wife, smiling a little nevertheless. "But he must be splendid. Ellen says he doesn't smoke or drink or anything and she was there a week and she never saw so much as an irritated look on his face, and there were times when the meals were simply awful. She remarked it to Grace and Grace said he was always that way."

"Marvelous!" said the man.

"Well, it really is, because I know how exasperating Grace can be at times. Whatever she does he thinks is exactly right. He never finds fault with her. If she wants him to do anything for her he does it without a murmur, and he's awfully handy. Once when they were without help he scrubbed all the floors and did the sweeping all the time. He would have cooked, too, if Grace had let him; but he did all the rough, hard work. And he'll sew a button on his clothes any time."

"Does he take care of the baby?"

"There is no baby, but if there was he would. Why shouldn't he?"

"That's the question. Why not?"

"And no matter what she wants he'll always let her have it. Ellen says she had the loveliest fur set that he gave her. She didn't even ask for it. Just hinted that she would like to have it and the next thing she knew it was delivered there at the house."

"Am I to understand by that that you want a fur set?"

"You know perfectly well that I don't. If I did it wouldn't be much use hinting. If I got it when I asked for it I should be lucky."

"You certainly would," admitted the man.

"Well, I've got one, anyway, and I suppose I'll have to make it do. But don't you think Grace is a fortunate girl?"

"I'm sure I don't know," said the man. "Don't they ever quarrel?"

"Quarrel!" exclaimed his wife. "Didn't I tell you just now that he never uttered a cross or impatient word?"

"You didn't say anything about Grace."

"It takes two to make a quarrel, doesn't it?"

"Not when you're married. It takes only one then. I don't suppose it's quite as satisfactory to a woman if she can't get her husband to lose his temper. You say he doesn't. Then I should say that Grace was rather unfortunate in her choice. It must be horribly monotonous for her. You wouldn't like it if you couldn't make me mad. You'd miss half the fun, and you know it. Own up, now! Would you want me hanging around the house all the time and doing the family ironing? Wouldn't you want to get rid of me one or two evenings in the week, and how would you know whether the meal was good if I didn't kick when it was bad?"

"Well," said the man's wife, "I don't know that I should want to have you too good, because you might die young, and I don't want you to die just yet. But—"

"What is it?" asked the man.

"Of course, darling, if you want to get me that set of furs it would be just as cheap in the end, because I'll have to have them next winter, anyway."

REPUBLICAN TARIFF TWADDLE.

H. E. Miles in Success Magazine: The Republican light vaudeville politician will bring out his campaign puppet of free trade and make believe that it is an issue, though it is "deader than Hecuba." It never was an issue, except upon his insistence in his political addresses. Whenever our political artist hears the word "tariff," he will strike his puppet. And so used and skilled is he in this Punch and Judy act, that he will insist on demonstrating with it, whether the onlookers are willing or not. He knows that the country is absolutely and entirely committed to protection, and that it would be as easy to tear from the Bible the ten commandments as the principles of protection to American industries from the hearts of the people. He will claim for protection whatever of good the Almighty has vouchsafed us as a people, leaving to Beelzebub whatever blessings we have failed to acquire. The equability of the rainfall and the fortunate birthrate are due not to providence, but to the Dingley bill. The public will be told that the panic of 1893 was due to the fact that the Wilson bill was a free-trade measure, which it was not, and that the trials of the present day must not be called a panic, because they come under the Dingley bill, which will be called protective, as it is not. And so the politicians will take care that the people do not think, but, in Ingalls' phrase, only "think that they think."

HE WAS STILL COUNTING.

Success Magazine: A doctor, now eminent, was at one time serving as interne in one of the Philadelphia hospitals, as well as holding his own with a coterie of rather gay friends. On a certain morning the physician awoke to find that he had sadly overslept. Sleepily donning his attire he hastened to the hospital, and soon a stalwart young Irishman claimed his attention.

"Well, my man, what seems to be your trouble this morning?" inquired the doctor, concealing a yawn and taking the patient by the hand to examine his pulse.

"Faith, sor, it's all in me breathin', doctor. I can't git me breath at all, at all."

"The pulse is normal, Pat, but let me examine the lung action a moment," replied the doctor, kneeling beside the cot and lying his head on the Irishman's chest. "Now let me hear you talk," he continued, closing his eyes and listening attentively for sounds of pulmonary congestion.

A moment of silence.

"What will I be sayin', doctor?" finally asked the patient.

"Oh, say anything. Count. Count one, two, three and up, that way," murmered the physician, drowsily.

"Wan, two, three, fure, five, six."

When the young doctor, with a start, opened his eyes, Pat was continuing weakly, "tin hundred an' sixty-nine, tin hundred an' sivinty, tin hundred an' sivinty-wan——."

THE WOMAN AND THE FELINE.

Isabel Gordon Curtis, in Success Magazine: A Western judge—let us hope he had been singularly unfortunate in his female relatives—recently remarked that all women were cats. Women read that press dispatch everywhere, one morning, and for a few hours at least the ears of that judge must have burned. Still, there are women who indorsed his judgment, although they feel that he might have qualified his remarks and said "some women are cats." One can't help wondering why poor pussy, from time immemorial, should have been picked out as the prototype of a mean, treacherous, back-biting woman, for a cat which is well-fed and kindly treated is a lovable animal, and, queerly enough, it is the animal on which most women lavish their love. A man who studies the traits of dumb creatures tells us, however, that the female cat treats the species of her own sex in a peculiarly mean and vicious manner. It bites insteads of back-biting, and, at the first throb of jealousy, will scratch like a good fellow. If that is so, we have to confess that there are cat-like women everywhere, in the lowest rank of life and in the highest, for we have had cat-like queens; clever old Queen Bess had many a pussy cat trait.

You can sell your real estate—and anybody else's—anywhere—any time—most any price (if honest)—if you can write or procure a convincing ad.

LOWER COURT UPHELD IN THE CLARK MINE CASE

Title to Clark and Leonard Mines Now Clear.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court handed down an opinion today in the case of David M. Rogers and others against the Clark Iron company, affecting title to two iron mines in St. Louis county, known as the Clark & Leonard mines, said to be worth upwards of $1,000,000. The decision leaves title to the property in the iron company.

The plaintiffs are heirs-at-law of James M. Rogers of Arkansas, who died in 1896, and the action was brought to quiet title to the property on which the mine is located. Their claim was that the elder Rogers entered the lands as a soldiers' homestead.

At the trial it was brought out that Rogers was a Confederate soldier and therefore was not entitled to benefit upon the soldiers' homestead law and that he had in fact sold the scrip. The plaintiffs then set up the claim that because the government had winked at the fraud in the first instance, the iron company could not plead it. They also claimed that the sale of the scrip was not an actual sale and that Rogers' signatures were forgeries.

The lower court held that Rogers and his heirs could not play both fast and loose, and this ruling is sustained by the supreme court.

The Findings.

The whole decision is based on the sale of the scrip. The syllabus first gives a general history, and then holds as follows:

"1. The introduction of the patent by the plaintiffs made out prima facie title to plaintiffs, although it remained in the Duluth land office.

"2. It was competent for defendants who were in adverse possession by adequate pleading to defeat plaintiffs' action by showing a title outstanding in a third person without connecting themselves with that title.

"3. Under the general denial plaintiffs were entitled to show an outstanding title in Baker by proving the fact on which it was based, and by invoking the rule that an interest which subsequently accrued may be an estopped and other legal or equitable principles applicable to such facts.

"4. The burden of proof rested on the defendants to sustain such outstanding title by competent, strong and satisfactory evidence.

"5. The Rogers additional soldiers homestead scrip, was personal property and assignable notwithstanding the opposed practice of the federal land office.

"6. Four principles of evidence in particular apply to the testimony adduced to show the existence and contents of the missing powers through which title was transferred from Rogers to Baker, namely:

"(a) The acts of federal officials in allowing the location, executing final receipt and issuing the patent constitute evidence that all preliminary steps necessary thereto have been properly taken.

"(b) The existence and contents of a lost or destroyed instrument of great age may be shown by the best evidence obtainable under the circumstances.

"(c) Proof of business habits or custom is properly admitted in evidence in corroboration of the defective memory of a witness with respect to the existence and contents of a missing instrument.

"(d). Proof of actual use of a definite and conventional form of a power of attorney justifies a satisfactory inference as to the condition of such power.

"7. The finding of the trial court as a genuineness of Rogers' signature to the fraudulent application and entry, the existence and contents of the lost power of attorney, the location by Baker, the delivery to him of final receipt were sustained by competent evidences consisting in part of oral testimony of documentary evidence, and of testimony to the course of business and the use of conventional forms, and by the presumption of the performance of official duty.

"8. These powers were beneficial and revocable, and did not terminate with Rogers' death.

"9. They were adequate in the terms to form and convey to Baker the interest of Rogers.

"10. After the location Baker had a vested and substantial interest in the land.

"11. Upon the issuance of the patent to Rogers his heirs and assigns beneficial ownership of the land passed to Baker by the doctrine of relation or of enforced estoppel.

"12. That defendants were not in proviity with Rogers did not prevent an application of those doctrines to vest title in Baker in furtherance of the patent. Gibson vs. Chateau distinguished.

"13. Plaintiffs were estopped to use Baker's vesting title in their fraudulent ancestor and to repudiate it as conferring any interest in him as against a bona fide purchaser for value. Holding to the doctrine: 'Qui approbat non reprobat.'

"14. The finding of the trial court that defendants have established an outstanding title in a third person should not be disturbed."

TWO FINES POSSIBLE

Prosecution Under Both Law and Ordinance, Legal.

If indictments are returned against saloonkeepers of the county who are charged with violating the state liquor laws the grand jury will establish a new precedent and raise an interesting point of law.

The grand jury will take the position that the liquor dealers in question have by their one alleged act been guilty of two distinct offenses, one being a violation of the city or village ordinances and the other being a violation of the state law.

According to this construction, any liquor dealer who has already been arrested and fined for violating the city or village ordinances governing the sale of liquor is still liable under the state law and will be prosecuted for violation of the same, although he has been punished once for the act.

Under such a precedent, saloonkeepers who sell liquor after hours or on Sundays would be liable to two prosecutions for the act, one under the city ordinance and the other under the state law. The aggregate penalty, in case of conviction in both instances would be made very severe.

Local attorneys claim that the supreme court has already passed on the constitutionality of the double prosecution, holding that prosecution for the offense under the city ordinances does not bar the state from prosecuting for the same offense under the state law.

Moorhead, site $5,000.

COPPER STOCKS HAVE A RALLY

After a Decline During Middle of the Session.

North Butte opened at $65, advanced to $66.25, declined to $63.37½ and closed at $64.25 bid and $64.75 asked. Amalgamated opened at $68.75, declined to $66.62½, rallied to $68.37½ and closed at $67.87½ bid.

Greene-Cananea opened at $9.50, declined to $9.25, reacted to $9.50 and closed at $9.25 bid and $9.37½ asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $110, advanced to $112.50 and closed at $111 bid and $112 asked. Butte Coalition opened at $25.12½, declined to $24.12½, rallied to $25 and closed at $24.87½ bid and $25 asked. Anaconda opened at $45.12½, declined to $43.75, rallied to $45.50 and closed at $45.50 bid.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $13.50, declined to $13 and closed at $13.12½ bid and $13.25 asked. Calumet & Sonora was a feature of the local curb again today. It sold as high as $8.75, declined to $8.37½ and closed at $8.37½ bid.

Globe sold at $6.50 and $6.25 and closed at $6.25 bid and $6.37½ asked; Butte & Superior at $1.25 and closed at $1.12½ bid and $1.25 asked and Copper Queen of Idaho at $1 and closed at $1 bid and $1.12½ asked. Denn-Arizona sold at $2.87½.

Black Mountain sold at $4.50 and closed at $4.50 bid and $4.75 asked.

EARTHQUAKE RECORDED.

Washington, May 15.—An earthquake of considerable intensity that lasted an hour was recorded on the weather bureau's seismograph here early today. The origin, according to a statement of Chief Willis L. Moore of the bureau, is approximately 3,200 miles from Washington.

PROTEST AGAINST INCREASED RATES.

Chicago, May 15.—Delegates from fifty commercial and shippers associations of the East and Middle West met in conference here today to discuss means of preventing Eastern railroads from carrying into effect a proposed increase in freight rates. The conference was held under the auspices of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. It is expected by the promoters of the meeting that the result will be the starting of a movement to further pending national legislation which will make it impossible for the railroads to increase rates without the consent of the interstate commerce commission.

UNDERPRICED OVERCOATS

Everybody in Duluth now knows the difference between a straight Columbia Sale and the kind of the Old-Timers. No need of our printing figures as big as a house. We told you that our buyers were too optimistic in placing their orders for Spring Overcoats and that the Winter Overcoat weather of March and April helped to turn them into pessimists. Just to reduce the stock to where we think it ought to be, by the middle of May, we reduce the Spring Overcoat prices by allowing a general

Rebate of 20 Per Cent

$40 dark greystriped and silk lined, three-quarter length box coats, at $32

$35 fancy grey mixed and diagonal or dark grey herringbone three-quarter length Spring Coats, silk lined, at..... $28

$25 oxford grey silk lined coats, and fancy greys and Tan mixtures, all three-quarter lengths, at..... $20

$22.50 Fancy grey mixtures, three-quarter length and tan striped top coat, at $18

$20 plain and diagonal oxford greys and fancy grey mixtures, also tan covert top coat, at $16

$18 fancy mixtures in three-quarter length coats, at $14.40

$15 three-quarter length coats in plain oxford greys and herringbone greys, also black, grey and tan top coat, at.... $12

$12.50 three-quarter length coats in plain oxford greys, at $10

$10 Tan striped Covert Coats, in the short top coat style, at $8

And a number of R. & W. Rain Coats, made in the Automobile style, and worth $25.00, $30.00 and $35.00, to be closed out, at $15

And don't forget that this sale is for one week only—it ends on Wednesday next.

RAILROADS

MAY CAUSE MORE LAWS

Higher Freight Rates May Cause Renewed Railroad Legislation.

Shippers Are Preparing to Resist Increase in Rates.

In the opinion of a prominent local railroad man the placing in effect of increased freight rates at the present time would have the result of fostering anti-railway legislation, with the possible passage of more darstic laws than are upon the statute books of the state at the present time.

This official states that shippers have combined with the roads to terminate the hue and cry against the railroads. The fierce wave of anti-railway sentiment that swept the country has almost ceased, but with the talk of increasing freight rates the first mutterings of protest have indicated what action may be sure to follow the increase of rates at a time when many manufacturers are finding it extremely difficult to show a profit on the right side of the ledger.

The increasing of freight rates will have a tendency to decrease the territory of shippers and jobbers. In other words it will have the effect of restraining trade. The increase under consideration by the Eastern and Western roads is 13.3 per cent for first class freight, 13.9 per cent for second class freight, 14 per cent for third class freight, 14.3 per cent for fourth class freight, 10 per cent for fifth class freight and 8 per cent for sixth class freight.

This will include an increase on iron, lumber and other products for which the demand at the present time is at the lowest possible figure. In the present state of the business conditions of the country, as a whole, the placing in effect of the contemplated increases in freight rates would work an untold injury to many lines of business.

Another Duluth railway official is of the opinion that there are too many commodity rates. He is of the opinion that certain lines of manufactured goods could well afford to have the commodity rates removed. The removal of commodity rates on a good many lines of freight would result in the increasing of freight rates on certain lines which are receiving a very low rate and would obviate in a great measure the necessity—which railroad men claim—of raising the freight tariff on general class freight.

The shippers, through their various associations, are preparing to resist any attempt to increase the rates on general freight, is apparent from the reports that have reached this city. That is one reason why it is pointed out that the attempt to increase rates at the present time will undoubtedly result in a revival of the sentiment against railway methods.

Under the present administration the railways of this state would run their heads against a solid wall of opposition. Minnesota shippers are pretty well organized, too, and they are prepared to combat any increase in general rates. Taken as a whole, it would seem that the time is not propitious for the rate increase that is contemplated, and that certain shrewd railway men are aware of this and are opposed to any line of action thaat would result in the possible enacting of drastic anti-railway legislation.

Reduce Fare.

The Wisconsin Central railway has officially served notice upon the roads composing the Western Passenger association that it has made a rate of a fare and a half from points where the one way fare from points on its line to St. Paul is over $5. This is a special convention rate for the Shriner's convention, to be held in St. Paul next month, and is made over the protest of certain lines that are members of the Western Passenger association.

Just what effect the action of the Wisconsin Central will have it is difficult to say. Some railroad men believe that a small ruction may result from the special rate. Others state that the other roads in the association will fall in line and that no trouble among the roads will follow.

Convention Rates.

Some of the Western railroads have a plan for the establishment of the certificate plan for conventions where the attendance is over 1,000. Delegates to the convention under the plan would pay the full fare one way, and if is found that those utilizing the railroads number a thousand they would be given a half fare for the return trip.

The making of special fares for conventions of any size seems to have been established, and consequently the roads have set about making plans to meet the conditions imposed upon them by the action of the Western and Eastern roads in making special rates for the Republican national convention.

Ship Lumber Here.

Arkansas and Louisiana yellow pine is being shipped to Minnesota, said a railway official this morning, for the simple reason that certain lumber dealers in the South, by reason of the stringency, have found it expedient to sell their lumber at a sacrifice. Some pine of those sections has found its way to Duluth in search of a market. The shipments are not heavy, but it shows that some of the Southern dealers are forced to sell at prices low enough to compete with local lumber dealers in order to afford a market for a surplus of stock.

EX-MAYOR'S APPEAL HEARD.

Bismarck, N. D., May 15.—In the state supreme court the case of the appeal of ex-Mayor Denny of Williston from the district court, where he was convicted of complicity in horse stealing a year or so ago, was argued and taken under advisement.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

A small maiden of demure appearance and so fashionable looking that she might have stepped forth from the Frenchy fashion pages of Vogue, tripped down the street, her short skirt bobbing in a pert and most saucy way. Her hair was bobbed and thick and shining. Her complexion was smooth and pink and beautiful. Her eyes were soft and blue and innocent of guile. She was aboue 7 years old and small for her age. She carried a library book under her arm, showing that she was awake to the advantages offered youth in the metropolis of Duluth.

She tripped along all the time it has taken to tell how she looked. Then she entered the library and walked with precise steps to the door of the children's deparament. It was closed. The immaculate and cherubic looking child placed her hand on the knob and turned it and pushed. Nothing happened.

"Stung," she said in a nicely moderated tone of voice while she turned to climb the stairs to inquire if Kant's "Critique of Pure Reason" was available.

Losing puffs is coming to be so common an occurrence that the popular young man who is experienced in the ways of woman no longer feels shocked and embarrassed if the maiden with whom he is enjoying life suddenly clutches the back of her head and with agitated violet eyes turned imploringly to him, announces, "I've lost my puffs." Time was when woman would as soon have admitted to teeth purchased by the set as to hair which could be romoved and placed in a top bureau drawer. Not so any longer. She will unpin the puffs and rearrange her hair and repin the puffs with the same nonchalance with which she removes her gloves. The shy young man who is keen on keeping his illusion or delusions concerning woman is likely to be agitated by the almost appalling frankness of the girl of today.

These spring winds are hard on puffs. It is bad enough to keep the hair which nature has fastened in more or less securely, but with the additional troubles of pinning on the kind that is bought at so much a puff the wonder is that more are not picked up along the street.

The loss of a row of puffs is a loss like unto no other. No matter how frank one may be in acknowledging that they did not grow there, one rather hates to advertise for their return. They are total loss all around for the finder can utilize them only by dyeing her own crop or hair to their shade.

CHILDREN'S MATINEE

As the matinee concert of the Festival series, on Tuesday afternoon next, has a special interest for children, on account of the children's chorus, singing Benoit's cantata, "Into the World," the directors of the Oratorio society decided, some weeks ago, to allow all school children to attend the matinee at a nominal charge of 25 cents. By this action it is anticipated that hundreds will avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing their schoolmates sing this charming little cantata, and at the same time listen to the Minneapolis orchestra in orchestral numbers and solos by Miss Sammis and Mr. Towne.

CONSTANT SMOKERS.

Royal Ladies Said to Be Fond of Cigarettes.

It is not to be supposed that the class of women who ape the doings of the great should do otherwise than smoke cigarettes, when it is well known that nearly all the queens of Europe are constant smokers. How is it possible to do better than to follow their example? It is said the dowager empress of Russia smokes an enormous number of cigarettes every day. Her happier sister, Queen Alexandra, has never been known to smoke even one, but then, she grew up under the eye of Queen Victoria, who was the last woman in the world to countenance such a habit. The unfortunate czarina, previous to her marriage, had never smoked, but it's not surprising that she took up the habit, for if anyone needs something soothing to the nerves it must be she. The mother of the queen of Portugal, the countess of Paris, is said to have preferred a mild cigar to a cigarette, but her daughter chooses a Russian cigarette, while ex-Queen Natalie of Servia selects Balkan cigarettes, which are privately manufactured for her. The queen of Roumania is credited with smoking continually and the queen mother of Spain allows herself cigarettes as her one luxury, and smokes both Russian and Egyptian. All these are ever-so-much-more-than-too awfully interesting facts; that is, they are said to be facts, but some details that should have been given are withheld.

When a royal lady is said to smoke cigarettes continually does it mean that she smokes sixty or one hundred, or more, a day? Does she make her own? Many cigarette smokers—that is, real "conoshers"—do and would rather go without than smoke the manufactured article. Does she inhale the smoke or doesn't she? All these questions are of interest.

A SQUARE DEAL.

"Carlyle once said that his wife's relation to him was the same as his relation to his Creator. Carlyle lived a good many years ago. He was a genius. Geniuses say and do strange things. You look upon your wife quite diffently. You have the enlightened views of the twentieth centry American. Are you sure, however, that you are giving your wife a square deal?" asks a writer in the May Appleton's Magazine. "Perhaps she, with all her charm and brains, doesn't happen to have either great energy or executive ability. She may not want any occupation outside your home. She may not be strong enough for anything else. In that case she must get her experience of life second hand. She can perhaps, get much from her reading, from her friends. She must, however, depend mainly upon you. You must be her point of contact with the larger life outside your home. You must be the window through which she looks out upon the world and learns the lessons the world alone can teach. If you surround your doings with an air of mystery—make the patronizing assumption that she can't understand the affairs which interest and occupy you, you deliberately narrow her life, you deliberately lessen her chances for efficiency and happiness. No matter how good a provider you may be, no matter how kind and considerate, you are not giving her a square deal. This does not mean that you should heap your business cares and troubles upon your wife's head. That would be as wrong as for her to shift her domestic troubles to your shoulders.

"Perhaps you are so unfortunate as to be discontented with your wife. She is frivolous, extravagant, unpractical. You feel that her beauty does not counteract these deficiencies? Probably that is true, but who is to blame? Did you marry her because she was economical, practical, a good housekeeper, a good prospective mother? You were fascinated by her because she was pretty, irresponsible, illogical and whimsical. You are now discontented with her because she is irresponsible, illogical and whimsical. Did you thing that a wedding ring and a husband would change her nature? Would you buy a horse because he could travel in 2:10, and then become disgusted with him because he couldn't haul bricks? Strange as it may seem, the wife with whom you are discontented was once the pretty girl whom you were wild to marry. Nobody made you marry her! She didn't tell you she was a good cook or an experienced housekeeper. Your mother wanted you to marry another girl who was both. You laughed at the thought. You got what you wanted. If you don't want what you got that is your fault and yours alone. Why not give up expecting the impossible? If you thus give her an honest chance she may yet achieve what now seems impossible. If she does not, take your medicine!"

Springtime Desserts.

After a winter of plum puddings, rich custards and heavy mince pies, all the members of the household will welcome the sight and taste of early fruits. In large cities strawberries have been in market for some time, pineapples are plentiful and cheap and pieplant always makes a tasty dessert after a sweet salad. Here are a few recipes which the housewife will welcome:

Pieplant Pie—This pie should have only the lower crust of fairly rich pastry. Cover a deep pie dish with a crust and fill with the following: Stew the pieplant in as little water as possible until very tender. Beat the yolks of two eggs, two tablespoons of cornstarch and half a cup of sugar all together. Put this in the pieplant and let it boil until thick, then add the juice of one small lemon. Fill the crust with this. Make a meringue of the whites of the eggs and two tablespoons of sugar, and brown in medium oven.

Pineapple Tipsy—Cut the top from a large, very ripe pineapple. Also cut sufficient from the stalk end to make it stand firmly on a platter. Now remove all the inside portion of the pineapple, tearing it away with a fork and leaving nothing but the hollow case. Remove the hard pieces of the fruit and cut into small dice. Put these into a deep dish with an equal amount of fresh strawberries, cut in halves. Sprinkle liberally with granulated sugar and cover with a wineglass of sherry, place on the ice for an hour, occasionally basting the fruit with the syrup which forms. Put the pineapple case in the ice box. When ready to serve, add half a cupful of nut meats to the fruit mixture, fill the pineapple case and serve on a platter garnished with geranium leaves.

Rhubarb Tartlets—Make a puff paste as follows and fill tart shells with it: One pound of butter, one of flour and the white of one egg. Wash the salt out of the butter, or use fresh butter, if you have it. It is likewise better to use what is known as pastry flour, not patent. Take a little of the butter with the flour and white of an egg and mix into dough with a small quantity of ice water. Roll out rather thin, spread on a layer of butter, fold over and roll again. Repeat this process until the butter is all used. Now put this away on the ice until the next day, when it will be ready for use. Fill the tart shells with rather a thick layer of this, brown in quick oven and fill with rhubarb, prepared as follows: Neatly trim one pound of fresh rhubarb, remove all the fibers, wash in cold water, drain and cut into pieces not over an inch long. Place in saucepan with four ounces of sugar (preferably brown) and half a teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Mix well with a wooden spoon, cover the pan and let it cook slowly for about twenty minutes, stirring frequently. Fill shells with this, edge with powdered sugar and serve.

Wedding Gaieties.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Smith will be hosts at dinner this evening at the Spalding hotel in compliment to Miss Mille McKee and Rollo N. Chaffee, whose wedding will take place next week. Covers will be laid for ten. Tomorroy evening Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Ingalls will entertain at dinner in their honor, and Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mirick will entertain at luncheon at their home on 1426 East Third street. Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. John Miller will entertain at dinner in honor of their niece and her fiancee.

DANCING PARTY.

Dy-Wyk Club Members Entertain at Club Rooms.

The members of the Dy-Wyk club entertained last evening at an informal dancing party at the clubrooms in the Winthrop block. The rooms were prettily decorated in violet and white and during the evening Miss Ethel Chellew of St. Paul sang several numbers. Di Marco's orchestra played the program of dancing music. The chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mather, and those present were:

Misses—

In Honor of Bride.

Miss F. Newcomb entertained yesterday afternoon at an informal card party in honor of Miss Millie McKee, whose wedding to Rollo N. Chaffee will take place next Wednesday. The rooms were prettily decorated in red and white hearts and cupids. Five hundred was played at two tables. The favor was won by Miss Edna Cargill. A shower of kitchen utensils was presented the bride.

Return From Convention.

Mesdames Bessie Owen, Alta Dillon, Mae Cutliff, Bertha Kruschke and Mary Tidball have returned from the grand temple of the Pythian Sisters, at Minneapolis, which they attended as delegates from the Duluth lodge. Mrs. Cutliffe was elected as grand protector at the meeting, and the Duluth delegates also were awarded the banner for the best ritualistic work done throughout the state. Much credit is due the chief, Mrs. Bessie Owen. The next grand temple will convene at St. Paul.

Devotional Meeting.

The speaker at the devotional meeting at the Young Women's Christian association, Sunday afternoon, will be Rev. J. R. Davies. The special music will be in charge of Misses Margaret Tidball and Mabel Anderson.

LOCAL OPTION PIANK.

Spokane, Wash., May 15.—A dramatic and unexpected feature of the Washington Republican state convention yesterday, was the adoption of a local option plank by a vote of 506 to 258. The convention unanimously instructed for Taft.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Carrots, 10 cents a bunch.
New potatoes, 4 pounds for 25 cents.
Pie plant, 5 cents a pound.
Veal stew, 12 cents a pound.
Pork tenderloin, 30 cents a pound.
Spring lamb, $2.50 a hind quarter.

Veal stew or roast lamb is the choice that is offered and even though most people will say "lamb stew" it won't be because they really like it better, either. If ever there is an excuse for stew, such a day as has been provided during the last twelve hours is it. When one's marrow, a portion of one's anatomy, of which one is never conscious until one is frozen to that imaginary point, has become like a thin thread of very cold ice buried so deep within one that woollens and blankets cannot penetrate to warm it, then, if ever, one can view with kindly toleration a stew of tender lamb punctuated at intervals with bits of sweet and tender carrots, and adorned at still other intervals with light finely cooked dumplings and the whole thing so hot that war and its synonym seem like a flat which is heated by the landlord before the steam is turned on before 6 in the morning.

Your stomach can digest "FORCE"

when it can't digest any other food. That's because the crisp flakes of whole wheat are thoroughly mixed with the saliva and other digestive fluids, and because the starch in the wheat is converted into dextrine by barley-malt, thereby relieving your intestines of the hardest part of their work.

"FORCE" is made of the best white wheat, steam-cooked, rolled into thin flakes, combined with the purest barley-malt and baked. Always "crisp" it before serving it by pouring into a pan and warming it in oven. Then serve in large dish with cream, piling the flakes in one side of the dish and pouring the cream in the other side, dipping the flakes as eaten.

Your Grocer sells it. No other Flaked Food is "Just as Good."

PRESIDENT HAS RIGHT TO DISMISS SOLDIERS.

New York, May 15.—The right of President Roosevelt summarily to dismiss a negro soldier of the Twenty-fifth Infantry for alleged participation in the riot at Brownsville, Texas, was sustained today by Judge Hough in the United States district court. Oscar W. Reed, the soldier sued the government to recover $122 as wages from the date of his dismissal to the expiration of his enlistment. District Attorney Stinson contended that the president had a right to dismiss the soldier. Judge Hough sustained this contention and directed a judgment in favor of the government.

JAPS NEVER TAKE COLD.

Chicago Tribune: With the approach of chilly weather people are becoming fearful lest they should take cold after a hot bath, but this opinion is unable to reconcile itself with the immunity of the Japanese from colds.

The ordinary bath consists of a large wooden tub, oval in shape and fitted with a cover. Before he enters the tub the bather thoroughly lathers himself from head to foot, and washes the suds off by means of a wooden ladle or dipper. He then sits in the tub, immersed up to his chin, for several minutes, enduring a degree of heat by which a European would be well nigh parboiled.

When Japan first began to study the methods of Western nations, the excessive heat of the baths was strongly condemned and a law was made that the water in the public baths should be only moderately heated. This caused great discontent, so a committee, composed of European and Japanese medical men was appointed to decide the question. The verdict was in favor of the national custom, which was pronounced to be not only harmless, but beneficial.

The high temperature of the water was said to open the pores of the skin thoroughly, even without the use of soap, and a healthy action of the skin and cleanliness were secured, which it was impossible to get with any amount of washing in cold, or so-called hot baths.

TWAIN ON PROHIBITION.

Crossing the Atlantic with Mark Twain last summer," said a W. C. T. U. woman, "I asked his opinion of the prohibition law. His reply was very characteristic, very humorous.

"'I am a friend of temperance, and want it to succeed,' he said, 'but I don't think prohibition is practical. The Germans, you see, prevent it. Look at them. I am sorry to learn that they have just invented a method of making brandy out of sawdust. Now, what chance will prohibition have when a man can take a ripsaw and go out and get drunk with a fence rail? What is the good of prohibition if a man is able to make brandy mashes out of the shingles on his roof, or if he can get delirium tremens by drinking the legs off the kitchen chairs?'"

SECOND MURDER INDICTMENT

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the grand jury was still in session and just when the final report will be made is not yet known. It is expected the final report will embrace indictments against liquor dealers and there may also be a reprimand of the city council on account of its attitude toward violators of the liquor laws.

It is expected that this afternoon an indictment charging murder in the first degree will be returned against Eli Matich. Matich is accused of shooting and killing a Montenegren named Mike Rodonovich near the Croxton mine at Chisholm. There will be two trials for murder in the first degree at the May term of court, an indictment also having been returned against Henry Wilson, who killed his wife at West Duluth March 23.

WOULD MAKE CHICAGO "DRY"

C. D. Woodward Says the Scheme is Not Altogether Visionary.

C. D. Woodward of Chicago, at the St. Louis, is an enthusiastic member of the Chicago Temperance league. He took an active part in the recent campaign in Illinois for Prohibition, which, he says, was successful beyond the hopes of the more conservative members of the league.

The next move on the part of the members of the league, says Mr. Woodward, is a campaign for the closing of the saloons of Chicago. This may seem a very big proposition to tackle, and Mr. Woodward says that the members of the league realize what a project they will undertake. But they are determined to close the saloon, if such a thing is possible, and propose putting the question to the suffrage of the people.

They have already begun a campaign of education in Chicago. They are working up sentiment in favor of the abolition of the saloon, and in view of the success that has attended the anti-saloon fight all over the country, Mr. Woodward states that he has the highest hope in the ultimate success of the anti-saloon fight in Chicago. He says that it may require years to abolish the saloon, but in time it must come, and that the efforts of the members of the temperance and anti-saloon leagues are bound to bear fruit.

LIGHTHOUSE BEING BUILT

Rock of Ages Light Will be Completed in October.

Walter L. Beyer of Detroit, Mich., the engineer in charge of the construction work of the Rock of Ages lighthouse, which is in process of construction three miles southeast of Isle Royal, is at the Lenox today.

According to the plans of Mr. Beyer the work will be completed about the first of October. Part of the work on the new lighthouse was accomplished last year, so that the engineers believe that it can be carried on to completion early in the fall.

The new lighthouse, says Mr. Beyer, will have a most important bearing on navigation. Vessels in the fall months encounter severe gales in that part of the lake and are obliged to beat up under the lee of the island. The completion of the lighthouse will be a blessing to sailing masters, as it will afford a mark as to the dangers to be encountered by vessels at that point.

Mr. Beyer was entertained at lunch today at the Kitchi Gammi club.

A REAL TOM SAWYER.

Gets Four Carpet-Cleaning Companies Into Competition.

Because the United States department is short of funds, the heads of the various departments of the Brooklyn navy yards have been compelled to tax their ingenuity to the utmost in their efforts to make both ends meet. This is especially true of the department of yards and docks, the head of which asked for largely increased appropriations this year, but who was granted even less than he had had the year before, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

The house cleaning and spring renovating time is fast approaching, and it is up to the civil engineer who has charge of all the construction and repair work on land and the general care of the plant in the navy yard to effect this renovating and cleaning in the most economical manner. In former years he has employed a gang of several men to beat all the carpets in the yard. This is no mean task, for there are upwards of 20,000 yards of carpets and rugs in the various buildings and quarters. It took several weeks last spring to beat all of them, and occasioned no end of discomfort.

When the civil engineer looked over his accounts this year he discovered that no funds would be available for carpet cleaning, and he knitted his brow and thought. While thus engaged, his eyes happened to rest upon a certain letter head that bore the name of a certain pneumatic house cleaning company. Then he remembered that he had been frequently circularized by several such companies that were anxious to introduce their machines into the navy department.

A bright idea struck him. Why not conduct a competitive test of all these machines? The very thing. So he had one of his assistants invite the manufacturers of dust-lifting machinery to enter such a test. Of course, each of them was more than anxious to demonstrate the superiority of his machine over all of the others, and this morning four of them appeared, pursuant to agreement, with their machines ready to take part in the test.

Engineer Gregory showed his superior acumen by designating his offices as the first to be experimented upon. There are three rugs in these apartments, all of which are in sore need of being separated from a year long accumulation of dust. His assistant, Bellinger, therefore, set to work to mark off squares in the rugs and to provide for fairness in the competition. Then all four of the competitors were set to work cleaning the rugs. They were given all the latitude they desired this morning. Each was allowed to clean his portion of the rugs in his own peculiar manner. The dust that each machine extracted from the rug was collected in a proper receptacle and weighed. The machine that extracted the most dust, of course, was conceded to be the winner of the test.

But other tests are in store for the competitors. The machines are to be tried on various kinds of carpets and under varying conditions. It is thought that practically the entire 20,000 yards of carpet will have to be utilized for these tests, and then, when all of the carpets are cleaned, a known quantity of dirt will be rubbed into one particular carpet ad a test held to find out which machine extracts the greatest percentage of that known quantity. That will be quite the most important test, and the one that will determine the superiority of any one of the four machines. But in the meantime the civil engineer will have accomplished his spring house cleaning free of charge.

When congress hears of this it is probable that it will reward the civl engineer by elevating him to the rank of official house cleaner of the navy department, for it seems that that department is in sore need of a house cleaning.

MUSIC AND HEALTH.

Orison Swett Marden, in Success Magazine: Music has a decided influence upon the blood pressure in the arteries, and upon the respiration. We all know how it soothes, refreshes and rests us when jaded and worried. When its sweet harmonies fill the soul, all cares, worries and anxieties fly away.

Many nervous diseases have been cured by music, while others have been greatly retarded in their development by it. Anything which keeps the mind off our troubles tends to restore harmony throughout the body.

All the uplifting, encouraging, cheer-producing emotions, the emotions which create hope and buoyancy of spirits, expectancy of better things—all optimistic emotions—have a decidedly beneficial influence upon the health.

A feeling of uplift, of happiness, and well-being, quickens the heart's action, increases the circulation of the blood, and tends to open up all the avenues to health. Worry, fear, anxiety, jealousy—all the destructive emotions—tend to give a sense of restriction and repression. They inhibit the heart's action rather than accelerate it.

Where these emotions predominate there is a sense of construction through the whole arterial system; even the nerve centers feel the suppression and construction.

Whatever makes us happy, whether it is a good or useful story, a good joke, or the tonic which comes from success or any unusual achievement, tends to produce health and mental well-being.

ARE PLURAL WIVES JEALOUS?

In the American Magazine, Madeleine Zabriskie Doty writes very entertainingly on "Mormon Women and What They Think of Polygamy."

"I began to wonder what feeling this little woman had for the other wife. 'Did you and sister Sara D. ever live together?' I asked.

"'Oh, yes, indeed, for several years after I was married we lived in the same house. My two oldest children were born while sister Sara and I were under the same roof, and I think the children care almost as much for their Aunt Sara as they do for me, and I believe she thinks as much of them as if they were her own.'

"'Why didn't you continue to live together then?'

"'Well, her children were older than mine and they spoiled my children and interfered with my discipline, so both sister Sara and I begged Mr. D. for separate houses. The man, of course, always likes to have all his family together. It makes it easier for him. But John finally consented to let us each have a home of our own. When he lost his business and his money we had to economize. He had enough to buy one house, and he gave it to sister Sara because she was the oldest and first wife. I am glad he did. Even if he had consulted me I should have told him to give it to her. My father gave me the house we are in.'

"'I should think,' I said, 'that it would be the little every-day things of life, the little jealousies that must arise, that would make it so difficult to live in polygamy. They would be much harder to endure than the agreeing to polygamy in the beginning. Why, you know how it is with any one you care very much for. It hurts if that person seems to be caring as much or more for some one else; yet, if a man is human he must have preferences—one wife must be more congenial than another.'

"'Of course that is all true,' she said thoughtfully, 'and it really is hard to live the faith right. It takes a fine man to live it, as well as the right kind of women. I suppose the man must like each wife for different qualities. Mr. D. has always been equally good to us both, and I think he cared about each of us for different reasons. At first I did find it a little hard—not exactly hard, because I am fond of sister Sara—but I guess I was a little conscious. I know I never wanted him to show me any affection when Sara was with us. It is only a little thing, but I remember one day he came into the pantry when Sara and I were both working there, and he kissed Sara and turned to kiss me, but I ran away quick before he could. Sara only laughed; she said she didn't mind. She used to let him kiss her just to tease me.'"

INVENTOR OF PANTOMIME.

London Evening Standard: The credit of producing the pantomime in England belongs to John Rich. This performance was on Dec. 26, 1717, at the theater in Lincoln's Inn Fields.

Rich bethought himself of the comic masques, occasionally performed in Edinburgh and he combined with their scenic and mechanical effects the attractions of the pantomime ballet. The result was "Harlequin Executed," which the advertisement of that day described as "A New Italian Mimic Scene, between a Scaramouch, a Harlequin, a Country Farmer, His Wife, and Others."

Of course the "earnest student of the drama" protested against this innovation, but Harlequin, Columbine & Co. have maintained their hold on public favor until the present year of grace.

Even a timid, or "scared', advertiser' is not in much harder plight than an indifferent one. No store will thrive in the hands of either!

A BACHELOR ON MARRIAGE.

Peter Y. Haines, a rich bachelor of Duluth gave a New Year's dinner to seventeen bachelor friends, whereat each guest had to give a good reason against marriage.

"My own reason against marriage," the host said, "is embodied in a remark that I overheard this morning at the railway station.

"A strong, masterful-looking woman was bidding farewell to a small, slender man. The man's manner was meek, but it changed slightly as the woman got safely ensconced in her seat in the train, and before he hurried away, he shouted through the car window at her in quite a vindictive way:

"'And be sure, my love, to send me a nice long curtain lecture from time to time. I shall hardly manage to get to sleep without one, you know.'"

No one is apt to think more highly of a store than its owner does—hence his advertising should be so big that it will reflect his belief in his store's importance—and so continuous that it will have the force of iteration.

SENATE SUBSTITUTES THE ALDRICH BILL.

Washington, May 15.—The senate committee on finance met today and voted unanimously to amend the Vreeland currency bill, passed by the house yesterday, by striking out everything but the enacting clause, and inserting the provision of the Aldrich bill, as passed by the senate, and it was immediately reported to the senate by Mr. Aldrich. The Aldrich bill was amended, however, by the elimination of Section eight and eleven, the former being the Johnson reserve feature, and the other the La Follette provision, prohibiting a national bank from loaning money to a corporation, or investing money in stock of a corporation, the officers or directors of which are officers or directors of the bank making the investment or loan. Sections were added providing for the appointment of a commission of nine senators and nine members of the house, to be called the "National monetary commission."

The senate today passed the Aldrich currency bill as a substitute for the Vreeland bill, after considering it for about half an hour. The vote was 47 to 20.

LEFT FOR CANADA.

Young Man Passed Forged Check for $75 and Fled.

Officers are now searching for a Duluth young man, who last evening passed a forged check for $75 on a Fourth street saloon keeper. The youth wrote the man a letter saying that this morning he would be in Canada, and that it would be useless to present the check for payment, as it was worthless.

Later another check for $14.75 turned up.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Commissioner McInnis:

Whereas, the Appraisers heretofore appointed by the District Court in the condemnation proceedings now pending for the purpose of acquiring a site for a County Court House in the City of Duluth have filed their award, as by law provided;

Therefore be it resolved that the sum of Two Hundred and Eighty-Five Thousand Three Hundred and Sixty-seven Dollars and Five Cents ($285,367.05) be, and hereby is, set aside from the general revenue fund of this county, as the sum equal to the total amount assessed as damages by said Appraisers, and said sum is hereby made payable on demand to the persons entitled thereto, according to said award.

Provided, however, that if the purchase heretofore made by the County of lots seventy-seven (77) and seventy-nine (79), in block twenty-nine (29), Duluth Proper, Third Division, is otherwise closed, according to the terms of said purchase, for Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000), and the purchase of lots eighty-eight (88) and eighty-six (86), in block twenty (20), Duluth Proper, Third Division, is otherwise closed according to the terms of said purchase, for Forty-three Thousand Seven Hundred and Eighty-nine Dollars and Sixty-six Cents ($43,789.66), then said two amounts, the payment for which is otherwise provided for, shall be deducted from said total amount of $285,376.05 herein set aside.

Commissioner McInnis moved the adoption of the resolution, and it was declared adopted by a unanimous vote.

On motion of Commissioner McMahan, the Board adjourned to 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, same date.

MAIL ORDERS
Are given our most particular attention. Out-of-town buyers find they can do best at this store. Their orders are promptly filled and shipped, and on every item they save money. Send in your order.

You pay less for the best quality goods here than you pay for inferior grades at the credit stores, as hundreds of our customers will testify. Some people may suppose, from our low prices, that we sacrifice quality—not so—only the leading credit stores carry the same high grade of groceries and meats that this store does, and they are compelled to get from 25 to 30 per cent more for them. If you are not a buyer at the DULUTH PUBLIC MARKET begin tomorrow. The ranks are swelling every day with converts from the extravagant credit system. These money-saving prices are for Saturday:

RENTS IN CITY OF MEXICO.

Baltimore American: "The prices that are asked for rental of houses in the City of Mexico are something appalling to Americans," said George T. Lessing of St. Louis.

"I expected to remain there the better part of the year and thought I'd get a house and send for my family. With this idea I went forth in search of a domicile, but was staggered at the cost. For the commonest kind of a two-story dwelling the agents wanted from $150 to $200 a month, and from that up to $2,400 a month for those of more pretentious architecture. It is true that these figures are in Mexican money, which is just one-half the value of our own currency, but even with this allowance the rents are far in excess of those charged in the cities of the United States. In many other respects living in Mexico is very reasonable."

ZUYDERZ RYE FLOUR

ABSOLUTELY PURE

There is no Rye Flour that can compare with ZUYDERZ for Purity, Healthfulness, Taste

Because it is milled from the best rye and is unmixed with any other flour, Zuyder Z Rye Flour makes better tasting, more nutritious and more easily digested bread than can be made from any other flour.

Rye bread is easier to make than wheat bread. As a change from the steady wheat bread diet, Zuyder Z Rye bread is delightful. Children thrive on it while grown folks appreciate it.

Zuyder Z Rye Flour makes bread that creates red blood and muscle-building tissues.

Made in a Brand New Factory, They are Pure and Wholesome

CLEANLINESS is the point that you want to make sure about in your food. Schwalbe's Conserves are made in a new factory, sterilized, and come to you in hermetically sealed cartons—not in tins.

Schwalbe's Conserves will make pea or bean soup in one minute at a cent a bowl; or numerous vegetable dishes like croquettes, patties, fritters, baked beans and others.

Scientific experiment shows that a pound of Schwalbe's Conserves contains eight times the nourishment of a pound of beef.

Schwalbe's Conserves are recommended by physicians. Tasty and appetizing, they have found ready reception in the leading hotels, restaurants, and thousands of homes, wherever introduced.

Schwalbe's Conserves are made in Milwaukee by the National Conserve Company.

Ask your grocer for a copy of "Schwalbe's Conserve Recipes" or send direct to us for it—it is free

SCHWALBE'S CONSERVES

WHEAT HAS WEAK TONE

American Markets Are Soft, Despite Bullish Southwestern News.

Flax is More Active and Higher at the Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 15.—Weaker cables at the opening caused wheat to start out weaker in the American markets today. For a time the demand was better and prices showed some improvement on a bullish bearish report on the Southwest by the Modern Miller and a general feeling that the condition of the Southwestern crop is not as good as it was some time ago. The market fell off again later.

There was some little foreign demand during the day, five loads of Duluth No. 1 northern being worked by local exporters.

Minneapolis stocks are expected to decrease 300,000 bushels this week. The world's shipments are estimated at 4,000,000 bushels, exclusive of North America.

Cables were soft. Liverpool closed ⅝@⅞d lower, Berlin ⅝c lower, Antwerp unchanged and Budapest ⅝c higher. The strength in Budapest was due to hot, unfavorable weather in Hungary.

The Modern Miller says:

"Telegrams from fly-infested districts in Kansas and Northern Oklahoma report that the damage done there runs from 15 to 50 per cent. The fly is now reported in Central Kansas, but no extensive damage done yet. Chinch bugs are also in the wheat. Warm weather following recent rains developing rust in Illinois and Missouri. Drying winds are badly needed."

The May option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, 1½c lower in Chicago, 1c lower in Minneapolis, unchanged in New York and 1¾c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth and Winnipeg, ⅞-1c lower in Chicago and 1c lower in Minneapolis and New York.

July corn closed ⅛-¼c higher in Chicago and unchanged in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅛c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—The strength displayed in the American markets yesterday was offset here by the fact of larger Argentine shipments than expected and the favorable weather there, which prompted increased offerings and some liquidation, especially in the nearby options. The market opened quiet and from ⅜d to ½d lower and further declined ¼d to ½d during the early trading. The distant months showed some recovery during the morning on the less favorable weather in the United Kingdom and continued unfavorable climatic conditions in Roumania. At midday the market was irregular, but generally steady, with prices ⅜d to ⅝d lower than Thursday.

"Corn was quiet, unchanged and wholly neglected."

Primary receipts of wheat were 331,000 bus., last year 666,000 bus. Shipments 567,000 bus., last year, 326,600 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 215,000 bus.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 3,224,000 bus., against 2,616,000 bus., last week and 5,066,000 bus., a year ago.

Primary receipts of corn were 325,000 bus., last year 366,000 bus. Shipments 864,000 bus., last year 686,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 5,692 bus.

Argentine shipments of 2,755,000 bus., against 1,825,000 bus., last week and 285,000 bus., a year ago.

Wheat was quiet in the Duluth market. May wheat opened and closed ⅝c lower than yesterday at $1.04 nominal. July wheat opened ⅞c lower at $1.04⅛, advanced to $1.04⅜-½, declined to $1.04 and closed at $1.04⅛. September wheat was inactive and closed unchanged from yesterday at 91½c.

Durum wheat closed ¾¾c higher and cash spring wheat on a basis of 1c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet, except at the close. May flax sold at $1.23½ and closed there, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. July flax opened unchanged at $1.24, advanced to $1.25 and closed at $1.24½, a gain of ½c over yesterday. September flax was inactive and closed ⅛c higher than yesterday at $1.23⅛. October flax sold at $1.24⅛, advanced to $1.24¼ and closed at $1.24, a gain of ½c over yesterday.

Oats closed 1c higher and other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard on track, $1.07. To arrive—No. 1 northern, $1.05; No. 2 northern, $1.02½. On track—No. 1 northern, $1.06; No. 2 northern, $1.02½; May, $1.04; July, $1.04⅜; September, 91½c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Chicago, May 15.—A sharp decline in the price of wheat at Liverpool due to liberal shipments from Argentina, caused weakness today in the local market, there being quite general selling by commission houses. The principal demand came from shorts. July opened ⅜@½c to ⅝@⅞c lower at 85½c to 86c, sold at 85c and then rallied to 85⅞c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 183 cars against 223 cars last week and 372 cars a year ago.

The market was inclined to be weak the greater part of the day. World's shipments were larger than had been expected and this had a depressing effect late in the session. The close was weak with July off ⅞@1c at 85½c.

The corn market was also weak, owing chiefly to improved weather conditions over the greater part of the corn belt. The slump in wheat was also a depressing influence. July opened ⅜c to ⅝c lower at 64¾c to 65c and for a time held within the opening range. Local receipts were 137 cars with 20 of contract grade.

The market became strong during the last half of the day on an active general demand. July advanced to 65¾c. The close was firm with July up ⅛@¾c at 65½@65¾c.

Oats were heavily affected by the weakness of wheat and corn at the opening, but the market soon rallied considerably on covering by shorts. July opened 5⅝@¾c lower at 46¾@46⅞c, and sold up to 47⅛@47¼c. Local receipts were 140 cars.

Provisions were easy on renewed profit-taking, based on the slump in corn and on liberal receipts of live hogs. July pork was 2½@5c to 5c lower at $13.35 to $13.35@13.37½. Lard was unchanged to 2½c lower at $8.35 to $8.37½. Ribs were 2½c to 5c lower at $7.20 to $7.22½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.05⅝; July, 89½c; September, 86¾@⅞c; December, 87¼c. Corn—May, 74¼c; July, 65⅝c to 65⅛@⅝c; September, 63⅝@¾c; December, 58⅜c. Oats—May, old, 54¾c; May, 53½c; July, old, 47¼c; July, 45⅝c; September, 37⅝c. Pork—May, $13.35; July, $13.40@13.42½; September, $13.65. Lard—May, $8.32½; July, $8.40; September, $8.57½. Ribs—May, $7.10; July, $7.25; September, $7.47½.

65@74c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.06¾@1.08; No. 3 red, 99c@$1.02; No. 2 hard, $1.00@1.05; No. 1 hard, 99c@$1.03; No. 3 spring, 99@$1.09; others, nothing doing.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, May 15.—Rains were a local influence for strength in wheat, as there was a little too much for best results, but a prediction for fair and warmer weather tonight and Saturday more than offset the cool drizzly weather and left the crop outlook unimpaired. Argentina shipments, estimated yesterday at 2,440,000 bushels, were found instead to be 3,224,000 bushels, which was disappointing to the bulls. On the other hand, the spring wheat supply figures were bullish. Minneapolis elevator stocks indicate a decrease of 400,000 bushels for the week and receipts today were only 145 cars against 316, and in Duluth 19 against 77. Less favorable news came from Kansas and Oklahoma where Hessian fly is said to have done damage. The market closed dull and lower. July wheat opened at $1.04⅞ higher $1.05; low, $1.04⅝; close, $1.04½. September wheat closed at 91¼c; May $1.05½.

In the cash market the local millers bought, and they found competition from outside millers, with the result that they paid 3c over July for No. 1 northern and 1c over for No. 2, and the market was strong at these premiums. No. 1 northern closed at $1.06¾@1.07¼ spot, $1.06¾ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.04¾@1.05¼ spot, $1.04⅜ to arrive; No. 3 wheat, 98½c@$1.02½; No. 3 yellow corn, 69¾@70¼c; No. 3 white oats, 50½@¾c; No. 2 rye, 76¾@78¼c.

The barley market showed business in low grade stuff only, but prices quoted for malting were about the same as yesterday. Close, 57@68c.

Cash flax was quotable ½c over Duluth July and strong. Crushers quoted it only ½c over, but there were holdings at 1c over that found sale readily enough. Close, $1.25.

Millers' quotation for bran was $21.75@22.00 in bulk and they reported a satisfactory demand.

The flour mills will keep on running at least in greater part despite recent rumors that they would close. Some of the more important country mills that find Minneapolis a raw material supply source when country stocks are light, may close down. Flour dealers throughout the United States are following the hand to mouth policy as persistently, perhaps more persistently than ever. There is business enough however, to keep sixteen mills operating out of twenty-one here. Shipments 45,445 barrels. First patents, $5.45@6.00; second patents, $5.30@5.45; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.55@3.65.

THE GREENHORN COOK.

Col. George Harvey, the famous New York journalist, discussed at a recent dinner his views about the dieting of fat husbands.

"There are too many fat husbands; I maintain it stoutly," he said. "If the weight of these men were brought down to the right standard they and their wives would be happier. Diet's the thing."

Col. Harvey smiled.

"The diet need not be unsavory," he resumed; "and speaking of unsavory things, I recall a certain greenhorn cook. This greenhorn cook lived with one of the leading families of my native Peacham. On Christmas day, as soon as the burning Christmas pudding had been portioned out, a general cry of horror rose from the Christmas feasters, and the cook was summoned from the kitchen.

"'Martha,' said the mistress sternly, 'what on earth have you done to this pudding?'

"Martha shook her head in bewildered and hurt innocence.

"'Why nothin', mum,' said she, 'only I spilt the brandy ye give me, an' so I poured kerosene over it instead. Won't it burn right?'"

WHERE WOMEN WEAR TROUSERS

Chulalongkorn 1., King of Siam, is a fine, old fashioned monarch of the absolute type who does just as he chooses, and chooses to do a great many spectacular things, says The Delineator. He is the most absolute ruler in the world, perhaps, and he spends a fortune or two whenever the fancy takes him.

Since Chulalongkorn 1. reached Europe a few months ago none can calculate how many million dollars he has spent, but it has been certainly a good many. When one begins by buying a thimble for sixty-thousand dollars one may well end by buying a good many. It would seem as if, in the face of such royal expenditure, there could be little left for subjects in Siam.

It does not appear, however, that there is any more misery in the kingdom of Siam than in most other places. The king, perhaps, feels that he deserves a little merry-making, for he has been playing for many years a pretty trying game of politics. The countries of Europe have all established some claim on Siam, and the ruler of that desirable land (which is about the size of Texas), has sewed very cleverly and really should not be begrudged his holiday.

It is interesting to note that Chulalongkorn is far from unfavorable to the education of women. The most fashionable Korean ladies have adopted European dress, so far as the upper part of the body is concerned, but they finish off a French waist, all lace and frills, with the old style of trousers always worn in Siam. The effect is, to say the least of it, astonishing. All women wear their hair short.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

New York, May 15.—The active dealings in stocks at the opening were at mixed price changes from last night, but the gains largely predominated over the losses.

Secondary prices were lower, the market giving way under pressure on the Hill and Harriman stocks. Business was active and widely distributed, the demand embracing a great number of usually obscure stocks.

Trading became quieter and the profit-taking sales gave the market an irregular tone. Individual stocks made sharp advances. Bonds were irregular.

Prices declined sharply on large offerings of the speculative favorites. The Hill stocks were the leaders in the decline.

The market closed steady to firm. A rise in Chesapeake & Ohio and Baltimore & Ohio of 2 started a recovery. Prices began to waver again, but when Union Pacific was bid up briskly to a new high level at 1⅝ over last night, the general level was restored to the neighborhood of last night.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 15.—The cotton market opened firm at unchanged prices to an advance of nine points on better cables than expected and the continued big spot business in the Liverpool market. Trading was active with sentiment very nervous and unsettled. Wall street brokers were short of the market, but offerings were absorbed by strong trade people, and during the middle of the morning the market ruled feverish and about 11 to 19 points net higher.

Spot closed quiet, thirty points lower; middling uplands, 11.00; middling gulf 11.25; sales, 1,765 bales. OHIO CONGRESSMAN ASSAILS COLLEAGUE.

Washington, May 15.—Gen. Sherwood, Democrat, of Ohio, today bitterly attacked his colleague, Gen. Keifer, Republican, of the same state, in reply to a speech by the latter. He declared that Mr. Keifer's speech had been inspired by jealousy and charged that twenty-five years ago Keifer had left the house of representatives under a cloud.

FIRE IN NEW YORK.

New York, May 15.—Fire, which started late this afternoon in a big four-story brick warehouse and office building in Platt street occupied by Read, Holliday & Son, dealers in dye stuffs and chemicals, seriously menaced surrounding property. Several explosions scattered blazing embers.

SEVERAL KILLED IN AN ACCIDENT ON KATY ROAD.

Muskogee, Okla., May 15.—Southbound Missouri, Kansas & Texas passenger train No. 5, which left St. Louis last night for Texas points, collided head-on with a freight near here today. Several cars were wrecked and caught fire. Six or seven persons are reported killed and several others injured.

BAD FIRE RAGING IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Minneapolis, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire is raging in the four-story building of the Minneapolis Storage company this afternoon and property valued at upwards of $100,000 has been destroyed. The firemen have abandoned efforts to save the building and are trying to save adjoining property.

STUFFED TOMATO SALAD.

"A stuffed tomato salad is one of my new recipes," writes Fannie Merritt Farmer, the great cooking authority, in her monthly page in the Women's Home Companion. "Peel six small tomatoes, cut a slice from the stem end of each, remove the soft inside, sprinkle the insides with salt, and let stand, inverted, thirty minutes. Mash half a 10-cent cream cheese, add six chopped pimolas, one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, one tablespoonful of tomato pulp, one fourth of a teaspoonful of dry mustard and enough French dressing to moisten. Fill the tomato cases with the mixture, and serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing, which may be successfully made if one will but follow directions. Mix one teaspoonful of mustard, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of powdered sugar and a few grains of cayenne. Add the yolks of two eggs, and stir until thoroughly blended; then add one half teaspoonful of vinegar. Add olive oil gradually at first, drop by drip, and stir constantly. As the mixture thickens, thin with vinegar or lemon juice. Add oil and vinegar or lemon juice alternately, stirring or beating constantly, until two tablespoonfuls each of vinegar and lemon juice, and one and one-half cupfuls of olive oil have been used. If the oil is added too rapidly the dressing will have a curdled appearance. A smooth consistency may be restored by taking the yolk of another egg and adding the curdled mixture slowly to it. Olive oil for the making of mayonnaise should always be thoroughly chilled. The utensil used in the making of mayonnaise may be a silver fork, wire whisk, small wooden spoon or Dover egg beater."

A ZOOLOGICAL PARTY.

Woman Home Companion: A pencil together with a card numbered according to the guests present, is given each one. A slip, containing a number and the name of the animal, is also given each guest. One at a time they go to a blackboard hanging on the wall, and draw the animal for which the card calls. The others write on their cards, opposite the number, the name of the animal they think represented. At the close each marks his neighbor's card as the host reads the correct answers. A book may be given the one having the nearest correct list.

At the supper following a miniature Noah's Ark might form the centerpiece, around which toy and candy animals should be grouped in profusion. Ribbons should run from the ark to each cover, where a tiny teddy bear should mark the ladies' places, and a candy horse the gentlemen's.

ORDER FOR HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADMINISTRATION.
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. In Probate Court.
THE PETITION of Othella Lundstrom having been filed in this court, representing, among other things, that Nils Lundstrom, then being a resident of Oakland, State of California, died intestate, in Oakland, State of California, on the 30th day of April, 1907, leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said petitioner is the widow of said decedent, and praying that letters of administration of the estate of said decedent be granted to her.
IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth, in said County, on Monday, the 25th day of May, 1908, at ten o'clock, A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.
ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in the Duluth Evening Herald, according to law, and that a copy of this order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.
Dated at Duluth, Minn., April 30, 1908.
By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.
(Seal, Probate Court, St. Louis County, Minn.)

ALL READY FOR FIELD MEET

Fourteen School Teams Will Take Part This Year.

The Interscholastic field meet committee will meet at the boys' department Friday evening at 5 o'clock. Fourteen schools are taking part this year and as all the schools are pretty evenly matched the contest promises to be keen. The captains have been trying their men out and the entry list will be handed in at the meeting tonight. The boys selected to represent their school will work hard during the week so as to be in the best of condition for the big event, which will take place at the Driving Park, West Third street, Saturday, May 23, at 2:30. Additional interest has been added by the offer of the Northern Hardware company to give three extra prizes for the boys winning fourth, fifth and sixth places. The prize list to date is:
School winning the largest number of points, The Herald silver trophy and the boys' department silk banner made in the school colors.
The boy winning the largest number of points, solid gold medal.
The boy winning second largest number of points, the Kelley Hardware silver medal.
Third place a pair of spiked running shoes.
Fourth place, a pair of baseball shoes, donated by Northern Hardware company.
Fifth place, a Reach baseball bat, donated by Northern Hardware company.
Sixth place, a baseball mitt, donated by Northern Hardware company.
The winners of first and second places receive a silk badge.

DYNAMITE FOUND.
Pensacola, Fla., May 15.—Fifty-seven sticks of dynamite, each of from one-half to two pounds in weight, were found last night at a point about 500 yards from what is known as Big Bayou trestle, west of the city, and the entire quantity is now in possession of the officers of the navy yard.

SMALL HOPE OF SUCCESS

Carbide Workers Arrive to Test American Company's Plant.

Results of a Month's Run to be Submitted to Stockholders.

The men who are to conduct the trial run at the American Carbolite company plant arrived this morning from Chicago. Six are from Constantine, Mich., all carbide workers from the Constantine plant, except W. H. Cornelius, a Michigan stockholder, who, assisted by Expert Schop, will conduct the experiments.

The tests will start this afternoon or tomorrow morning and will probably be continued for four weeks. Three of the furnaces will be employed. The tests are to be run to establish for the benefit of outside stockholders whether carbide can be made at a profit at the plant. The Duluth stockholders are confident that it can not, but to satisfy the outside stockholders, the court authorized W. W. McMillan, assignee, to have the tests made.

Some time ago there was a meeting of a committee of stockholders to consider the feasibility of reorganization, and at that time it was decided to run the tests for the benefit of the stockholders not in the city. Letters were written to the different stockholders, and as a result, this delegation of carbide men have come to Duluth. Several of them were employed by the American Carbolite company before it closed down. If the tests warrant it, which in the minds of the Duluth investors seems very doubtful, the plant will be started up again.

PERSONAL POPULARITY OF GOVERNOR JOHNSON SHOWN BY CONVENTION

Gathering at St. Paul Evidenced Confidence of the People.

County Option Agitating Minds of Republican Politicians.

The Opposition to Jacobson is Still Lacking a Leader.

St. Paul, Min., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democratic state convention, which met here Thursday, and instructed the twenty-two delegates it elected to go to Denver to vote for John A. Johnson for president, was in many respects the most magnificent gathering of its kind ever held in the state. Never has there been held a Democratic state convention when the state was so fully represented. Practically every one of the 938 delegates was present, every single county in the state being there with a delegation, and some counties having a full set of alternatives also. Never was there a convention when there was such enthusiasm and interest taken in every proceeding, nor a time when a fight, which had engrossed the attention of the people of the state for so long a time ended in such a unanimous and harmonious convention. In a majority of the counties there had been no expression of sentiment for anyone except Johnson.

There is but one answer to it all, the

DEFICIENCY BILL IS IN

Last of Regular Government Supply Bills Before House.

As Reported by Committee, It Carries Sum of $17,342,572.

Washington, May 16.—The general deficiency appropriation bill, the last of the regular government supply bills, was reported to the house today by the committee of appropriations. The bill carries $17,342,572. Of this amount, $10,000,000 is for pensions, made necessary by the widows pension act passed at this session, and also by the old-age pension act of February 6, 1907.

For the naval establishment there is an allowance of $3,156,289, partly necessitated by the recent increase in the pay of our enlisted men and officers of the navy and partly by the increased amount of coal that will be consumed by the battleship fleet in going from San Francisco around the world to New York. The total cost of coal and its transportation for this purpose aggregates $5,000,000.

Of the total amount, $1,310,901 is for the military establishment, and covers, among other expenses, the increased pay of the enlisted men and officers on the active and retired lists of the army for the remainder of the fiscal year.

These three items aggregate almost $15,000,000. The chief other items are: Printing and binding, $732,000; judgments certified to congress by the court of claims, $894,000; judgments for Indian depredations, $114,000; accounts audited by the various departments and certified to congress, $299,000.

Annapolis Cadets.

In accordance with an order from the navy department the Annapolis cadets of the class of 1907 were given an opportunity of graduating in September of 1906, or February of 1907. A number of the cadets took advantage of this opportunity and remained at the academy during the vacation period studying, and succeeded in passing the examinations in September and February. They are now serving their two years at sea. But recently a decision was rendered by the adjutant general of the navy department that this order was illegal and that the graduated midshipmen could not serve their commissions as ensigns until two years from June, 1907. The effect of this decision would be further to prevent them from obtaining a pensionable status if they should sustain injuries in the service between the date of their earlier graduation and the date of the graduation in June. To correct this condition the general deficiency bill carries a provision authorizing the graduates to be commissioned ensigns, subject to the usual examinations, at the expiration of two years of sea service.

starts there will be an almost continuance

Beginning at 1:30 when the parade performance till 11 this evening. The parade this afternoon was a more pretentious affair than is usually attempted.

The afternoon program provided for speeches in English and Norweglan.

TOOK EIGHTY DOLLARS FROM EIGHTY HATS.

Pittsburg, May 16.—Smashing a large plate glass window with a brick, two unknown men, about 6 o'clock this morning, took eighty one-dollar bills off eighty hats that were on show in the window of a $1 hat store. Several persons saw the daring robbery, but the men escaped before the police could be summoned.

ELECTION OF BISHOPS

To be Taken Up by the Methodist Conference Next Wednesday.

Delegate Says He Will Vote for Rev. M. S. Rice.

Baltimore, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—It has been decided that the episcopacy committee of the Methodist conference shall report next Tuesday on the number of bishops to be selected, and that the election of bishops shall take place on Wednesday.

Two Minnesota men are yet in the race, Rev. Dr. Jennings of the Minnesota conference, book agent at Cincinnati, and Rev. J. B. Hingeley of Minneapolis, the general secretary. Dr. Jennings is in the lead at present.

Rev. E. C. Clemans, D. D., of Duluth is one of the busiest men as assistant secretary of the conference. He receives all resolutions from the numerous delegations. Rev. W. E. J. Gratz of Two Harbors is busy as copyist of resolutions. Rev. C. R. Oaten of Litchfield is official stenographer for the Daily Christian Advocate, a very responsible position.

Rev. Dr. Robert Forbes, secretary of the board of home missions and church extension, has introduced a resolution, which, if accepted, will change the whole constitution of Methodism, as regards home missions and church extension. Dr. Forbes has been on the floor of the conference several times and has proved a witty and forciful speaker. In references to Minnesota and its brave soldiers at Gettysburg and its magnificent monument at the National cemetery were loudly applauded by nearly 2,000 people in mass meetings at Lyric hall The Minnesota delegates were intensely and greatly pleased with Minnesota's monument at Gettysburg. It is a credit to the state, and is in excellent condition and in good position in the National cemetery. Hundreds stop before it and listen to the guide's story of the heroism of the Minnesotans, and there is no better story told by the guides than the one of Minnesota's loyalty even unto death.

Delegates are telling a story about one Methodist preacher, who does not wish to be a bishop. He is Rev. M. S. Rice of the First church at Duluth, and one prominent delegate says he shall vote for Mr. Rice just because of that assertion made by the pastor at Duluth.

The question of changing the title of presiding elder to that of district superintendent, occupied attention at the opening of the conference today, an effort to take it from the committee having it under consideration and to give it to another committee being negatived.

Union Proposed.

A resolution was offered by Rev. Dr. John F. Goucher and adopted, "affectionately inviting the Methodist Protestant church to unite in organic fellowship and to appoint a commission to confer with a

HARRY THAW IS ANXIOUS TO MATCH HIS WITS WITH JEROME ON WITNESS STAND

Believes That He Can Convince Court That He is All Right.

Tomb Guards Testify That He Acted in Rational Manner.

Dr. Britton D. Evans Says He Thinks Thaw is Now Sane.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 16.—Harry K. Thaw, the slayer of Stanford White, may match his wits with District Attorney Jerome today in his effort to gain his freedom from the madhouse to which he was committed after being acquitted by a jury. Expert alienists called by the district attorney in his opposition to Thaw's movement to obtain his discharge from the asylum, have already testified that they believe the prisoner to be suffering from an incurable form of insanity and that, in their opinion, he would be a menace to any community in which he might choose to live. Thaw has been quoted as saying that he is not only ready, but anxious to meet the district attorney and that he is confident he will be able to acquit himself in such a manner as to leave no room for doubt that he is sane and fully entitled to liberty.

Several alienists and other witnesses called by both the petitioner and the district attorney have not yet been examined, and it is not likely that the hearing will be completed today.

When the hearing was resumed today, James G. Graham, who has assumed charge of the case for the peti-

Hill Says Crop Conditions of Northwest, Best in Years.

Suggestions of Governors Should be Carried Out by People.

New York, May 16.—James J. Hill, chairman of the Great Northern board of directors, who delivered an address Thursday before the conference of governors in Washington, returned to this city yesterday. He referred hopefully to the crop outlook in the Northwest, saying:

"Everyone is looking forward hopefully to the time when business conditions will resume normal aspects. The crop outlook is good. In some parts of the West the conditions are the most promising in years. In the Northwest the seeding is just being finished, but the conditions under which it has been done are the best in ten years."

Mr. Hill did not care to discuss the general business situation nor the proposed advance in freight rates.

"The governors," said Mr. Hill, referring to the recent conference, "do not till the soil, nor work the mines, nor cut down the forests; all they can do is to suggest means for improvement in agricultural methods and for conserving the natural resources of their states. The carrying out of these suggestions rests with the people and the important thing to do now is to force home to the people the facts of the situation. This is why I say spread the campaign of education that has been started broadcast."

WISCONSIN ENCAMPMENT.

Orders Issued for Exercises at Fort Douglas This Summer.

Madison, Wis., May 16.—Adjt. Gen. C. R. Boardman has issued orders for the schedule of exercises during the annual encampments of the Wisconsin National Guard at Camp Douglas, June 27 to July 24, and also for the annual state rifle competition, to be held at the same reservation, Aug. 3 to 8, inclusive. The schedule of exercises for the encampments does not vary materially from that of previous years. The parade and review by the governor will be held each Wednesday afternoon. The fifteen best shots at the rifle competition in August will be selected to compose the team of twelve principals and three alternates to represent the state at the national match, to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, commencing Aug 21.

GOULD WINS THE CHAMPIONSHIP

Defeats Miles in World's Amateur Tennis Event at London.

London, May 16.—Jay Gould won the first and second sets in his match today with Eustace Miles, the English player, for the world's amateur court tennis championship. The scores were 6-2 and 6-0.

The match was held on the court of the Queen's club, which was crowded to its utmost capacity with spectators.

Miles won the third set, 6-1. Gould won the fourth set and the championship. Score, 6-1.

THE STREET CAR SYSTEM OF CLEVELAND IS TIED UP BY STRIKE OF EMPLOYES

Strike Order Given at 3 A. M. and Promptly Obeyed.

Many Disturbances Mark Efforts to Run the Cars.

Men Claim Promise of Advanced Wages Has Not Been Kept.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 16.—Rioting and violence, although not serious, marked the early hours of the strike of the conductors and motormen on the lines of the Municipal Traction company here today.

The strike order was given at 3 o'clock this morning, following a stormy all-night meeting of the carmen. The order went into effect at 5 o'clock. From the beginning there was trouble in getting the cars out.

One of the first disturbances of any consequence took place at the Lakeview car barns, where Chief of Police Kohler was struck by a stone, hurled at the police by strike sympathizers.

Cars are being stopped in all sections of the city by the strikers and their friends. A Payne avenue car was derailed by a rail thrown across the tracks. The crew on a St. Clair avenue car was dragged from the car and assaulted. The motorman's scalp was laid open. On East Ninetieth street a mob of fifty men tore up the car tracks and traffic was stopped.

During the early hours stones were freely hurled at many cars and windows were broken in numerous instances. Rotten eggs were thrown at the motormen and conductors. The non-union men also were hooted and jeered. In many instances riding upon the cars by regular patrons was fraught with danger. For the most part people walked to their places of business this morning.

Employes Nearly Unanimous.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 16.—Cleveland's street car system was tied up at 5 o'clock today by an almost unanimous vote of the local union of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway employes.

To reach this conclusion, meetings

ASHLAND TRAGEDY

Bert Erni, Proprietor of Roadhouse, Killed in Shooting Affray.

His Wife "Shot Up" the Place and is Under Suspicion.

Ashland, Wis., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bert Erni, proprietor of a roadhouse near Ashland, was shot through the head last night, dying six hours later. His wife, who is under arrest, claimed he shot himself.

Two other women, Hattie Ferry and Lou Conley, held at witnesses, claim that Mrs. Erni began shooting up the house, driving them upstairs, and that when they returned they found Erni mortally wounded and unconscious. The women and a musician, named W. H. Martin, have been locked up pending an investigation.

HANGS HIMSELF IN BARN LOFT

Aurora Man Tells Friends They Would Hear of Something.

Aurora, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. A. Carlson, aged 48, was found hanging by the neck in the loft of his barn, early this morning. Deputy Coroner C. F. Nelson was called and examined the body. In his judgment, the body had been hanging ten or twelve hours, as it was stiff and cold. In order to hang himself, Carlson had to draw up his feet, as the loft was only five feet high. Carlson was last seen alive at the Aurora Mercantile company's store at 4:30 p. m., yesterday, and laughingly stated while there that they would soon hear some news. He had been acting strangely for two months past, and it was thought his mind was unbalanced. Carlson leaves a wife and five children. The body will be buried this afternoon. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen of America.

SEVEN NOT IDENTIFIED

Doubtful if Victims of Mrs. Gunness Are Ever Known.

Much Will Depend on the Trial of Ray Lamphere.

Laporte, Ind., May 16.—The burial last night of Andrew Helgelein marks the beginning of the final stage of the Gunness farm mystery so far as human knowledge is concerned. Two more corpses, supposed to have been those of Jennie Olsen and Ole O. Budsberg, have been partially identified, but to the identity of the remaining cadavers no clew exists that gives promise of fulfillment. The relics taken from the death farm, such as watches and rings, may ultimately lead to the determination that some certain missing individual was caught in the Gunness trap, but this will give almost no aid in identifying any particular body. The potters field is most likely to be the ultimate resting place of these seven bodies.

Yesterday witnessed two conclusive findings regarding the bodies unearthed in the barnyard or taken from the smoldering ruins of the farmhouse. One, by the dentist who bridged Mrs. Gunness' lower jaw with artificial teeth, establishes that the piece of jawbone found in the ruins was from her skull. The other, subscribed to by three experts, showed that the first body taken from the barnyard of the farm was that of Andrew Helgelein.

The finality of these conclusions leaves few major matters which are capable of solution to be brought to light. The methods by which the victims of the farm were put to death probably will never be known; to date there is a total lack of evidence on this point. The identity of the seven corpses remaining unknown is another puzzle and the extent to which Ray Lamphere shared in the secrets of Mrs. Gunness is a third.

Much Depends on Lamphere.

Only the last of these may be determined, and until the man is brought

HALF SISTER OF W. A. PITCHER

Said to Have Entrusted All Her Savings to Him.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—The Journal says: Through the death of William A. Pitcher, formerly of Duluth, in the Hotel Aveline fire in Fort Wayne, Ind., a Minneapolis girl is likely to lose her entire savings, amounting to several thousand dollars.

Although it was not generally known, Mr. Pitcher, who traveled for S. F. Bowser & Co. of Fort Wayne, spent much of his time in Minneapolis with his half sister, Miss Inez Russell, 510 East Fourteenth street, and lived here on First avenue south for some time last summer.

Miss Russell entrusted him with her savings, amounting to about $7,000, without the usual acknowledgements which would protect her in case of accident to him, and as a result of his accidental death in the Fort Wayne fire she is likely to have a fight to regain her money.

Following Pitcher's death, several women have appeared, claiming to have been married to him, and should they press their claims to his estate, Miss Russell may have difficulty in proving her rights unless there is some recognition of them in Pitcher's will.

U. S. PENSIONERS IN FOUR STATES

Over 48,000 in Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Two Dakotas.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the end of last month there were 48,240 persons on the rolls of the United States pension agent for this district comprising the states of Wisconsin, Minnesota and North and South Dakota, according to a report made public today by F. H. Madgeburg, the United States pension agent.

The 48,240 pensioners by wars are as follows: War of 1812, widows, 10; Indian wars, survivors, 5; Indian wars, widows, 21; War with Mexico, survivors, 64; War with Mexico, widows, 116; regular army, invalids, 340; regular army, widows, 52; regular army, minors, dependents and helpless children, 31.

Civil War—General law, invalids, 7,270; general law, widows, 3,661; general law, minors, dependents and helpless children, 443. Act of June 27, 1890—Invalids, 7,426; widows, 7,979; minors and helpless children, 199.

Act of Feb. 6, 1907—Age 62 to 70, $12; 70 to 75, $15; over 75, $20; 19,330; total Civil war pensioners, 46,308.

TO SEGREGATE DOUKHOBORS

Police at Yorkton, Sask., Ordered to Put Them in Tents.

Winnipeg, Man., May 16.—Instructions have been forwarded to the mounted police at Yorkton, Sask., to take a farm outside the town and place the Doukhobors in tents, thereby guarding them and taking all necessary precautions. The children are to be sent to Peter Veregein, out at the Doukhobor village, where they will be taken care of. In dealing with the remaining adults the sexes will, so far as possible, be kept apart. Small babies with the band will remain with their mothers.

CROOKSTON WOMAN DEAD.

Crookston, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. O. Halvorson, for twenty-seven years a resident of Crookston, died Friday evening in Bethesda hospital where she had been for six months, and had been an invalid for eight years. She was 72 years of age. Her husband died 11 years ago but she leaves four children.

BAD YEAR FOR FOREST FIRES

"This has been the worst season for forest fires since 1896," said Gen. C. C. Andrews of St. Paul, the state forestry commissioner, who was in Duluth today.

"Most forest fires are due to carelessness. We have arrested and fined several this year for setting forest fires, but the fines are usually small, and it is difficult to secure evidence."

Gen. Andrews is the father of a plan to levy annually three-tenths of a mill for the purpose of buying land for forestation. The plan is in accordance with ideas suggested at the conference of governors now in session at Washington.

BLUE WOMEN

Women should understand that melancholia, commonly called "the blues," is in nine times out of ten a sure symptom of some serious female organic derangement and should have immediate attention.

Women whose spirits are depressed, and who are ailing and miserable, should rely upon as is evidenced by following letters.

Mrs. F. Ellsworth, of Mayville, N. Y., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"For three years I was in an awful despondent and nervous condition caused by female troubles. I was not contented anywhere, and was in such constant fear that something terrible was going to happen that it seemed as though I should lose my mind. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored my health, and I cannot say enough for it."

Mrs. Mary J. Williams, of Bridgeport, Ill., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I have been suffering from a female trouble, backache and headaches, and was so blue that I was simply in despair. I feel it my duty as well as my pleasure to tell you that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me. The change in my appearance is wonderful, and I wish every suffering woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache. Why don't you try it?

GOOD NEWS FROM GLOBE

Large Ore Body is Encountered in Boston Shaft.

Copper Stocks Were in Good Demand During the Day.

News came from Globe today to the effect that on the drift going in from the Boston shaft at Globe was encountered an ore body four feet wide, running 6 per cent copper, 19 per cent iron and 55 per cent sulphur. This is at a depth of 287 feet.

The crosscut from the Gem vein is in a mineralized zone fifty feet wide. In from fifteen to twenty feet there has been found 2 per cent copper, also sulphides, carbonite and oxide ore. There is a good deal of hemidte as well. This part of the Globe workings has been dry heretofore, but now the water is coming in at the rate of about 250 gallons a mnute.

The officials look upon this favorably, as they feel that the water shows there is another vein on the other side.

NO ABATEMENT

Will be Allowed Mining Companies on Their Assessed Valuation.

St. Paul, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state tax commission has declined to abate the excess valuation alleged by the United States Steel corporation and a number of independent companies operating on the iron range. The companies making the petition for abatements have been so notified.

The Steel corporation asked for a cut aggregating $30,000,000 and the independent concerns reductions amounting to $15,000,000. The tax commission advanced the opinion that the valuations were proper and just.

ANOTHER SIDE TO THE STORY

The story E. Gammon tells of his trouble with Mrs. Minnie Babcock, who swore out a warrant for his arrest, charging him with abusing her, does not agree with the one told by the woman.

His account of the affair differs materially from that of Mrs. Babcock He denies that the rent is long overdue, and says it was paid up to last Sunday. He had made arrangements to move then, but, finding that his new quarters were not ready, he was forced to remain where he was for a few days. He says he expects to pay the rent as soon as he moves.

Gammon says Mrs. Babcock came to the room during the night and insisted on the payment of room rent for a month in advance. He asserts that he was asleep at the time and that when his wife refused to give her the money, Mrs. Babcock became violent and threatened to hit her with a chair. His son took the chair away from her, and Gammon says when he was awakened by the fray, he gently, but firmly, removed the irate landlady from the room.

The New Style W

KNABE UPRIGHT PIANO

AN UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS.

From the first we contended that this instrument would meet with extraordinary success, and its present sale indicates that our prediction was well founded, for everything seems to be in its favor.

The size is not tall, conforming to the requirements of fashion, yet having a keyboard of seven and one-third octaves, as in larger pianos; the case of satin-finish mahogany is so beautiful as to suggest the classic; and the tone is so full, round, and powerful as to approximate the tone of a grand piano.

What more could one ask, except, perhaps, the matter of terms, and these you can make to suit yourself.

The Beer Question Settled

The public has shown its decision by demanding each year of MILLER HIGH LIFE BEER an increase in production greater than that of any other beer in America.

This decision has been based on:

The QUALITY—secured from the high grade of its ingredients. The PURITY—secured by unremitting care in every detail. The FLAVOR—secured by using the best quality of Bohemian hops, and selected rich barley malt. A single bottle will convince you of its SUPERIORITY.

IMPORTANT ELECTIONS

Lengthening of School Year to be Voted on in July.

Terms of Three Members of Board Will Expire.

The annual school elections for the independent district of Duluth promises to be very interesting this year, for the reason that the voters will be called upon to decide whether they want the school year lengthened to ten months or not.

The elections will be held on the third Saturday in July. Ordinarily they are rather tame affairs, because a vast majority of the voters do not have enough energy or inclination to get out to the polls.

This year, however, the educational powers that be are going to make every effort to have a large vote cast, as they feel that this question of lengthening the school year is an important one and one that should be decided by the general public.

Had they not so considered it the board of education would have disposed of the matter itself by voting either to make the year ten months or leave it as it has been—nine months.

There is quite a strong feeling in favor of the long year. R. E. Denfeld, superintendent of schools, is enthusiastically in favor of ten months. He is confident that the results would be most beneficial. Both he and the members of the school board are not in favor of compromising on nine months and a half. They say it should be either nine or ten months.

This summer the terms of J. J. Le Tourneau, Edwin R. Cobb and L. D. Campbell expire and it is very probable that, if they will consent, their names will be urged by their friends for re-election.

NOT GETTING MONEY'S WORTH

George H. Crosby Says City Pays Too Much for Paving.

According to George H. Crosby, Duluth is paying an exorbitant price for paving and other street improvements. He says Duluth is not getting its money's worth, and that there is something radically wrong with the whole system.

His statements to this effect were made yesterday afternoon before the council committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks, at a meeting in the council chambers called to give property owners along Twentieth avenue east an opportunity to express their views in regard to the proposed improvement of the avenue. As a result of the meeting, the improvement of the avenue and the construction of a storm sewer along it will doubtless be postponed one year.

About twenty men appeared before the council committee, and they received Mr. Crosby's remarks with applause. City Engineer McGilvray defended the improvements, maintaining that they were as good here, and secured as cheaply, as in other cities similarly located.

Mr. Crosby mentioned Minneapolis and St. Paul as cities where paving is done cheaper than here. He asserted that local pavements could not compare with those of St. Paul and Minneapolis, either in cost or efficiency. West Superior street, he said, was a monument of mistakes, and he branded East Superior street as a makeshift for a pavement.

Mr. McGilvray explained that the cause of the poor condition of West Superior street was the swampy nature of the ground there, which causes the paving to break up in places. He said the contracting company had taken the work on a five-year guarantee, and that it would have to resurface the street this summer, putting it in a permanently good condition. East Superior street, he said, was as good as could be expected from the material used and the general expense.

Property owners present unanimously agreed that the improvement of Twentieth avenue east should be put over for a period of one year, and Alderman Moore of the council committee declared it as being his intention to recommend to the council that the job be postponed a year.

LA FOLLETTE TO SPEAK.

Houghton, Mich., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. K. Cox, manager of the Grace M. E. church lyceum course, received a letter from Charles L. Wagner of the Slayton Lyceum bureau bearing the information that the chances for securing Senator La Follette of Wisconsin for a lecture some time during the latter part of the present month looked very good.

Restful Sleep Restored

MRS. R. P. SOUTHARD.

Mrs. P. R. Southard, of Woodmere, L. I., who was a nervous wreck, and could neither eat nor sleep, was completely restored to health by Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

In a recent interview Mrs. Southard said: "I can certainly say your tonic-stimulant, Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, has been a great benefit to me. I was weak, nervous, could not sleep and was troubled with loss of appetite.

"Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey was recommended to me by friends. I took it, and the result is that I am stronger and better in every way, can sleep and my appetite is much improved.

"I write you this, as I thought it was my duty to let you know what your great medicinal Malt Whiskey has done for me.

Thousands of cases like that of Mrs. Southard have been cured during the past fifty years, since Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey was discovered.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It cures nervousness, typhoid, malaria, every form of stomach trouble, diseases of the throat and lungs, and all run-down and weakened conditions of the body, brain and nerves. It is prescribed by doctors and is recognized as the world's greatest family medicine everywhere.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only—never in bulk. Price $1.00. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Write Dr. R. Curran, Consulting Physician, for an illustrated medical booklet and free advice. TWO BROTHERS ARE INDICTED

Must Stand Trial on the Charge of Murder in First Degree.

Eli Matich and David Matich, brothers, residing at a boarding house near the Croxton mine at Chisholm, were indicted yesterday for murder in the first degree. If convicted on this charge their punishment will be death by hanging.

The Matich brothers are accused of killing Rodi Donjonovich, another Montenegrin miner, in a boarding house row, April 20 last. Eli Matich is supposed to have handled the revolver with which the shooting was done.

Joe Schimick was indicted for assault in the second degree. It is alleged that he attacked Koe Kalan with a sharp weapon, at Ely, April 12, and inflicted a number of serious wounds.

The grand jury adjourned from last evening until 2 o'clock this afternoon. It is not expected that the work will be completed and the final report made until next Wednesday.

HIGHER WAGES PAID IN CANADA

Skilled Paper Makers Get More There Than in United States.

Washington, May 16.—The house special committee, which is conducting an investigation of the so-called paper trust, sat until a late hour last night in an effort to complete the hearings and report its findings to congress before the session closes. From the point of view of the newspaper publishers the most significant development of yesterday's session was the introduction of a telegram from the J. R. Booth Paper company of Ottawa, Can., stating that the company pays some of its skilled laborers higher wages than are paid in this country. Publishers says that this information goes far to bear out their claim that the statement of the wood pulp men that an increased price of paper was owing chiefly to concessions to labor is not in accordance with the facts.

John Norris' statement that American and Canadian manufacturers have entered into an arrangement whereby Canadian manufacturers keep out of the Eastern field was denied by David S. Cowles, president of the American Paper & Pulp association and several others prominently identified with the paper making industry. Mr. Cowles informed the committee that the association of which he is the head really exists in name only.

The Courthouse Contract.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In reply to the article in the News Tribune regarding the contract of the new courthouse, we, the women of the Label league, No. 230, would like to express our opinion of the attitude of the local contractors. The law distinctly states that the work should be given to the lowest reliable bidder. It seems that an outside firm finds it profitable to do the work $50,000 less than any local firm, which is causing considerable agitation among the local firms for fear that the work will go to the outsider. These same contractors will see our men lay here idle while they go to other towns to look for help. Now, isn't it just as fair to have the courthouse contract let to an outsider as to have the contractors go outside for help, bringing them here under unfair conditions, which they are trying to do? Two of them are in Minneapolis at the present time looking for men to come here under conditions of which they know nothing, which will be low wages and high rents to real estate sharks.

When a contractor comes from outside and bids $50,000 less than the Duluth contractors, it shows up the enormous profits and also the consistency of our local employers.

They preach home industry, but they never practice it. If an outsider gets the job, it will be giving the local firms a dose of their own medicine. When things don't come their way they make a great howl about it. The men have been so easy and left most of the contention to the women of the family, that we cannot resist the temptation to express our opinion on every subject pertaining to the laboring man. We think it our duty to express ourselves as very unfavorable to the stand taken by the contractors and Builders' exchange. We don't intend this as appiying to all contractors, as there are some very fair to organized labor.

Very truly,
W. I. U. L. L. No. 230.
Duluth, May 15.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The old plant of the Omaha Packing company, South Omaha, was destroyed by fire Thursday night, together with 3,000,000 pounds of meat, involving a loss estimated at $500,000. There was stored in the burned building, 2,200 pounds of pork, and 800,000 pounds of beef, most of which belonged to the Omaha company. The ice plant was also destroyed.

The police have discovered that the registered mail in the Winnipeg postoffice has been systematically robbed during the last few weeks. Twelve thousand dollars, or its equivalent has disappeared. A number of clerks have been dismissed or suspended but the robberies continue.

The final count of the persons who met death in Wednesday's tornado in Caddo and Bossier parishes, Louisiana, will probably total fifty. The number at present known to have been killed is forty-four.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

The Seasonable Weather Brings Distinct Improvement to Retail Trade.

New York, May 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Trade conditions are most responsive to the weather this time of year and more seasonable temperature brought distinct improvement during the past week. Little net change is noted in the manufacturing, some plants resuming, while idleness was increased elsewhere by strikes. Buyers are assembling at primary markets to attend special sales and stocks of staple goods are running low in retail stores because of conservative purchases. Mercantile collections are more prompt, but the prevailing conditions are at the least satisfactory point of the year thus far. Lower prices for pig iron have been named, with good results, a fair tonnage of new contracts being secured, although many concerns delay in the hope of still better terms.

While the textile situation is still complicated by the very conflicting influences, prices of cotton goods are in most cases as low as possible under the present conditions and curtailed production has attained dimensions that will render quick delivery unobtainable when depleted stocks finally force buyers to replenish. As this fact becomes more evident daily, producers insist on full quotations and the outlook for activity brightens. As to woolens, there is a fair duplicate business in men's wear and some sections of the market have already done much better than seemed possible earlier in the season. Worsteds are in better demand than wool goods and the better qualities sell more freely than cheaper products.

Developments are slow in footwear and leather. New England shoe manufacturers are increasing their output and shipments are substantial. A fair volume of duplicate orders for quick delivery of summer goods is received from jobbers who are carrying light stocks. Trade in leather continues unsatisfactory, recent large sales to St. Louis manufacturers failing to encourage other buyers.

The best business of the week was in Union Sole. There is a better inquiry for belting butts at bottom prices, but any effort to strengthen the market causes belt manufacturers to withdraw.

personal popularity of Governor Johnson. The convention's action, the interest taken and the fading away of the opposition, means but one thing, an expression of confidence of the people of the state in Governor Johnson, an evidence that the people like the governor personally, that they believe in his ability and integrity, that they believe he will be nominated and elected.

The convention will go down in history because it was notable in many respects. Not only was it notable because of the sentiments expressed, and because it was the first official step towards the probable election of Minnesota's first president, but it was notable for the representation in the convention and the brilliant debates. Seldom have there assembled in a convention more brilliant speakers than T. D. O'Brien, Daniel W. Lawler, John Dwan, Senator R. G. Farrington, Harry Lund, T. J. Knox or C. E. Vasaly, not forgetting the pointed address with which Frank Day opened the convention. Anyone of these speeches would have done honor to a national gathering.

It was a convention which the Democrats would gladly compare with any of the Republican gatherings held in the state, not only as to the enthusiasm in the convention, and thee loquence that was shown, but also as to the delegations elected. The delegation elected to go to Denver is an exceptional one considering points of ability, reputation and political, intellectual and moral strength.

The Republican situation presents some remarkable conditions. The problem of what to do with county option is agitating the minds of the politicians. Two candidates have already announced platforms with county option planks, while a third candidate, who was formerly an author of a county option bill in the legislature, points to his past record as evidence of what he will do, although he does not reiterate his stand on the question. There is no doubt but that if the question were submitted to the voters it would carry in a large number of counties. One prominent politician says it would carry in 80 per cent of the counties. Yet the conditions, as the leaders of the party see them, are such that if they do adopt such a platform it would mean certain defeat. And if they turn down this plank or turn down the candidates who stand on it, defeat will be almost as certain. It is "a condition, not a theory," that confronts the party, and the leaders are aware of the dilemma and are undecided as to what course to take. The question of county option is going to be a more ticklish question for the Republican convention than is the question of the personality of the candidates. They are trying to avoid discussion of the question as much as possible, but some way or other the question will not down.

What the Republican convention will do is as yet uncertain. Although there has been a gradual drift towards Jacobson and, on the surface perhaps, a majority of the people and politicians are for him, there are still a great number that, down in their hearts, do not care to have Jacobson nominated, and in their sober sense a great majority of the people probably do not care to have Jacobson for governor and do not think that he is a fit man to occupy the highest position in the marble palace. But the opposition is lacking a leader and no one comes out to say his say. What may turn up during the next forty days remains to be seen.

Outside of governor, apparently the contest at the Republican convention will be over the nominations for railroad and warehouse commission. Charles Elmquist of Rush City has been making an active campaign, and it would not be surprising if he would supplant W. E. Young on the commission. J. H. Grass of Fergus Falls is also making an active campaign, but his efforts are directed mostly against Judge J. B. Mills. There has been much criticism of Judge Mills in the country press, and frequent suggestion that he is not as active in the people's interest as he might be. Yet Judge Mills has innumerable friends, and many who believe these charges unfounded, and who look upon him as the brains of the commission. So it should not surprise anyone to see him renominated.

* * *

For the other offices apparently there are no contests, unless some new idea strikes the minds of the Republicans. Lieutenant Governor Eberhart, Secretary of State Julius Schmahl and State Treasurer C. C. Dinehart are all candidates for renomination, and none of them has any opposition. George Simpson is keeping up his activities towards capturing the nomination for attorney general and no one has yet come out against him. There was a conference here some ten days ago, when Archie Gray of Preston was agreed upon as a suitable candidate, and his name given out. This was done without his consent, however, at least without his public consent, and nothing has ben heard of it since. No doubt there are those who do not take kindly to seeing Simpson nominated for attorney general, but so far they have not found the man who would go after the nomination against him.

WORK WEAKENS THE KIDNEYS

Doan's Kidney Pills Have Done Great Service for People Who Work in Duluth.

Most Duluth people work every day in some strained, unnatural position—bending constantly over a desk—riding on jolting wagons or cars—doing laborious housework; lifting, reaching or pulling, or trying the back in a hundred and one other ways. All these strains tend to wear, weaken and injure the kidneys until they fall behind in their work of filtering the poisons from the blood. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, put new strength in bad backs. Duluth cures prove it.

W. W. Scott, operator on the St. Paul & Duluth railroad, and living at 126 Sixty-sixth Ave., west, Duluth, Minn., says: "I have already recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. I told in the statement made in 1898 how I had suffered with dull aching pains through the loins and kidneys. From the constant sitting position required in my work my back became so lame and sore that I could scarcely straighten. The kidney secretions were irregular and annoying. At times severe headaches would strike me and I was feeling worse than ever when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice. I began using them, and as I have stated, in my previous testimonial, they so thoroughly regulated the kidneys, removed the backaches, headaches, pains and weakness that I have felt like a different man. I have never had a return of any of these symptoms and have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills again and again."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

BODY OF GUNNESS VICTIM IS BURIED.

Laporte, Ind., May 16.—The first of the Gunness victims to be interred with Christian rites was buried last night in Patton's cemetery on the outskirts of Laporte. The corpse was that of Andrew K. Helgelein of Cansfield, S. D. The body was released for burial last evening, after Coroner Mack had received the reports of the Bertillon experts, who have examined it and compared their findings with figures taken from the records of the Minnesota penitentiary at Stillwater.

The burial rites of the Swedish Lutheran church were read at the morgue by the Rev. August Johnson, then the coffin was placed in an undertaker's wagon and taken to the cemetery. No services were held at the grave.

The swinging pendulum of fashion has again brought the bicycle into vogue, although questions of style and popularity do not greatly concern the younger generation of cyclers. While more wheels for little folks have been sold lately than was the case in years, the market for juvenile bicycles has never flattened out; rather, to use a commercial term, it has always been quoted "strong to firm."

The fact is, a bicycle is an essential part of a youngster's belongings, and cannot be ignored in the process of properly "bringing him up." There is one very good reason for the sustained sale of juvenile bicycles, which is illustrated in the story of a captious mother in a toy shop.

"Don't you ever have any new kinds of toys?" she asked.

"No," was the polite reply, "there's no great novelty in the toy line, but the babies, they are always new."

New Wheels for New Riders.

And so the bicycle manufacturers, in providing for the never ceasing army of youthful bicycle recruits, have been busy every year, and this year seem busier than ever. Bicycles are in good form as Christmas gifts, they are delights when vacation time turns loose a myriad of young scholars, and in every season of the year a healthy, hearty boy or girl finds plenty of reasons for keeping a bicycle in commission.

And in all seriousness, the youngster who does not own a wheel, misses a lot out of life. Without this companion, the boy is barred from many forms of sport which wheel owners enjoy, and the girl, who should have every incentive to indulge in sane and healthful exercise, is really under a handicap which the thoughtful parent will avoid if he can.

Good Doctrine for Grownups.

There is not much chance for argument on this subject, whether the parents can recall their own wheeling days or not. They certainly know that cycling increases the lung power, works wonders for those having poor circulation, and by the rational use of muscles that are not ordinarily brought into action, develops a sturdiness of body, and reserve fund of strength that is worth more to a growing child than any other possession.

When you come to think of it, everything that has been said concerning the value of cycling for juveniles, can be said just as strongly in talking of wheeling for adults. And it's because of the absolute truth of this statement, no doubt, that the return of the wheel is so much in evidence.

The bicycle, and its vogue today, is really on a better foundation than ever before. It is not put forward as a fad, or a fashionable diversion, but is accepted as the finest means of exercise in the world, and the most marvelous time and money saver that has ever blessed mankind.

A Doctor Awheel Again.

A leading physician of one of the large western cities, who owns an electric phaeton and a gasoline runabout, surprised his friends this spring by appearing on a new bicycle.

"I'm just learning sense," he said to a friend who rallied him on his new mount. "I expect to use one of my automobiles when I have to, but I am not going to miss the fun and advantage of cycling any longer. My electric made me fat and lazy—I was getting loggy in mind and body. Ten years ago I was using a wheel every day, and I never felt better, ate better, or really felt better in my life. I know the bicycle was entitled to full credit, and I am going back to those days again. Better show a little sense yourself, and join me these fine spring mornings."

The best thing about this wise physician's prescription is that it's easy and pleasant to take. Bicycles cost less and are actually better than they were a year ago, and the witchery of wheeling is as potent as it ever was.

NO MORE INDIGESTION IF YOU WILL TRY DIAPEPSIN

Tells Why There is Nothing So Good as Diapepsin to Cure Indigestion and Sour Disordered Stomach.

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer of Indigestion and Stomach trouble is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking Diapepsin.

If your stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the stomach to do its work, not with drastic drugs, but a re-enforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

Scientific analysis shows that digestion of food requires Pepsin, Nitrogenous ferments and the secretion of hydrochloric acid.

When your food fails to digest it is proof positive that some of these agents are woefully lacking in your digestive apparatus.

Each 22-grain triangule of Diapepsin, which is harmless and tastes like candy, contains pure Aseptic Pepsin, Diastase, Papain, Calcium Carbonate, Tasteless Cascara, Ginger and other natural elements necessary to digestion, and when placed at work in a weak stomach and small intestines, supply just what these organs are calling for. These Triangules of Diapepsin promptly stimulate the Gastric glands, increasing the digestive juices, overcoming even the worst case of Indigestion in a little while. Only one grain of the pure pepsin used has proven by test to digest 3,000 grains of steak, eggs and other foods. Diapepsin will give your stomach rest; it will digest and prepare your food for assimilation into the blood the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents at any good pharmacy, and is sufficient to give relief to old chronic sufferers, and leave some for others of the family who occasionally eat something which does not agree with them.

People with weak Stomachs should eat one Triangule after meals, and there will be no more Indigestion, no feelink like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, Sour risings; Gas on Stomach or Belching of undigested food, Headaches, Dizziness or Vomiting, and, besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after eating one Triangule of Diapepsin.

Go to your druggist and get a 50-cent case, and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there is not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

LABOR

WILL ENTER POLITICS

Minnesota Labor Unions May Try to Elect Congressmen.

George B. Howley Comments on Inactivity of Legislators.

George B. Howley, president of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor, who arrived in the city last night, is here on business connected with the federation's annual state convention to be held at Winona June 8, 9 and 10.

Mr. Howley stated this morning that the rumors to the effect that W. E. McEwen will have a fight on his hands for re-election to the secretaryship of the state at the convention, are all false. "The sentiment all over the state is for Mr. McEwen. He did not want to accept the office for another term, but the pressure brought to bear by his friends made it almost impossible for him to refuse. Mr. McEwen, as oil inspector, has every opportunity to visit every part of the state often, and in this way he is able to keep in touch with labor conditions better than any other man I know of in the state.

"As regards the general condition of the federation's affairs throughout the state, I have never seen them in better shape than at present. There is a little trouble in three different places, but it does not amount to a great deal.

"We are becoming very tired of the way in which congress has been treating our bills, adjourning before having settled with them. They may intend to take them up at the next session, but we do not like this way they have of postponing them. Why don't they come out like men and deal with them when they come up, instead of putting them off? It looks as if they are afraid.

"I don't know how this district stands on the congressman question. That is one of the things I am here for, for my trip to Duluth has somewhat of a political purpose. But we are going to try to make some changes in congress and run some of our own men from the different states."

Mr. Howley's visit to the city is to be a short one and he will probably leave this evening for the Twin Cities.

The campaign that is being waged for union label goods in Duluth shops is progressing well. The Women's Independent Label league met last evening in Kalamazoo hall to hear the reports of the different committees who are out agitating union made goods with the shop keepers.

It has been decided by the league that they will open their union store next fall, in connection with which they will have a millinery department, which will make possible the most modish hat to those of small means. They declare that the prices now charged are beyond all reason.

In the report from one of the committees it was discovered that no store dealt in any fine grades of union made dress gloves for men. There will be no trouble in obtaining such gloves soon, according to the label workers, for several dealers have given their word that they will carry a line of union label dress gloves.

On May 27, the ladies will hold their first entertainment at Steinway hall.

The different unions of the city will hold a festival at their pavilion at Fairmount Park on the afternoon and evening of Memorial Day, May 30.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Philadelphia Press: The effect of the Open Pulpit in the Protestant Episcopal church seems to be that several clergymen have dropped out of it.

Springfield Republican: No sooner does one critic complain that the schools are excessively feminized than another critic utters the same lament regarding the churches. Rev. Dr. Gladden comes forward again with a plea for more man power in religion. The women might solve the question by withdrawing entirely, and then there would be a situation for lordly man to consider.

Kansas City Star: The opinion of Cardinal Logue that "Socialism can be remedied by Christianity, charity and civilization, relieving the distress of the extreme poor," suggests and justifies at least the converse proposition that Socialism is encouraged and stimulated by selfish cruelty, by odious greed and by the sort of infamous oppression that depletes the poor to create criminal gains and profits for the insatiate rich.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Dr. Morgan Dix was one of the oldest clergymen in the service, and was believed to have the richest parish in the world. This was not on account of any acquisitive qualities he may have had, but because circumstances early threw him into a thrifty association in the management of the parish work and parish property interests. The parish owns much of the valuable real estate in many parts of the metropolis. It may be safely said that it is all managed well and with propriety. In the hands of such investors the great wealth of the jurisdiction has doubtless done a tremendous work for humanity, and built many smooth and shady highways to eternity and salvation.

THE STREET CAR SYSTEM OF CLEVELAND IS TIED UP

were held last night, beginning at 8 o'clock and lasting until 3 o'clock this morning. At the conclusion of the sessions, International Vice President Behner of the street car men's union said:

"The vote stands as an evidence of the feeling of the body politic of our organization. Officially I could not declare a strike. I put it up to the men in meeting assembled and they agreed that the time to cease quibbling had arrived. Therefore the strike is on. Cars will cease to run just as soon as we shall be able to get word to the various barns. The men feel that they have been discriminated against and take this means of emphasizing the fact."

Enthusiasm marked the sessions of the night. Approximately 1,650 voted, according to official statement. Only at rare intervals was a negative registered.

Variously estimated, between three and four hundred thousand patrons of the urban lines began this morning to seek a means of transportation. City officials, it was stated, had not made preparation to combat the situation. Union men, however, asserted that two weeks ago President Dupont of the Municipal railway had begun negotiations for additional help. They claimed this assistance would be inefficient.

Involves 2,000 Men.

Nominally the strike of the street car men declared today involves 2,000 men. The division is made as follows: Cleveland Electric Railway company, 1,700 men; Forest City Railway company, 300 men.

The strike had its origin in the institution of 3-cent fares, a subject of political contention in Cleveland during seven years past. Following the municipal election last November, when the principal issue was the question of municipal control of traction companies and an ultimate rate of fare of 3 cents within the city limits, a consolidation of the street car lines came about.

At that moment it developed that the Cleveland Electric Railway company, the major traction corporation, had signed a contract with the Amalgamated Association of Street & Electirc Railway employes, whereby it was agreed that, in the event of a "continuation" of their franchise, or its equivalent, the conductors and motormen would receive a specified increase of 2 cents an hour and an adjustment of other minor alleged grievances.

Claim Contract Not Binding.

The merged properties having been leased to the Municipal Traction company, the traction "infant" took the position that the contract was not binding upon them. The new company did, however, offer an increase of 1 cent an hour in the pay of the men, to take effect April 26, upon which day 3-cent fares was put into operation. The new company also ordered that all employes should pay car fare when riding upon the company's cars, while not at work. The company also proposed to supply the men with uniforms, free of charge.

The propositions of the new company, in lieu of the previous arrangements with the old company, were not satisfactory to the employes.

President Dupont of the traction company would arbitrate only the legal effect of the old contract, and insisted that all or none of the points be thus submitted to a peaceful settlement. Both sides strove for strategic positions.

It is anticipated that there will be trouble at the barns if new men attempt to operate the cars. Whether regular barn men and power house employes will join in a sympathetic strike is not known.

About 300 motormen and conductors, formerly employed by the Forest City company, the original 3-cent fare line, did not join in the strike. There were also quite a large number of men employed on other lines who did not quit work. The latter were largely made up of men who have been broken in since the strike was first threatened, ten days ago.

But Few Cars Run.

On many lines there was no attempt made to run cars early today, although later an occasional car was manned and sent out from the barns. These cars were generally greeted by hoots and yells from the throngs of working people who were walking to their places of employment.

At the corner of Superior avenue and East One Hundred and Fifth street a large crowd collected early this morning when a car bound downtown appeared. The non-union motormen and conductors were pulled off and about half of the car windows smashed. The police rescued the motorman and conductor and prevented further trouble.

Leaders of the Street Car Men's union claim that while negotiations have been under way looking to arbitration of the differences between the employes and the company, the company has systematically laid off the old union men, reduced them to the extra list, supplanted them with Forest City men, and had given every indication that it was the purpose of the Municipal Traction company to force the union men out of the service and use arbitration only as a cloak for delay.

Pleased With Outlook.

Vice President Behner of the union, in commenting on the strike situation today, said: "I am pleased with the outlook. All the men are loyal to the union, and we expect them to stick by the union until we win. There is no doubt that we will win in the end.

"I believe the public is on our side and realize that our men have been treated unfairly by the traction company.

"We have stationed pickets at every car barn. These men will try to persuade anyone who shall attempt to run cars out of the barns to quit work. They will do this by persuasion, by peaceful methods, and not by violence."

"Rioting will not be tolerated," declared Chief of Police Kohler today. "Any outbreaks on the part of the street railway men or any attempt to interfere with cars running will not be permitted and shall be dealt with severely."

An attempt to run cars on the Payne avenue line early today was frustrated by a crowd of striker sympathizers. They took away the controller lever of a car, pulled down the trolley and cut off the trolley rope. The motorman and conductor left the car standing in the street. Later it was hauled back to the barns.

At the junction of the Collinwood and Euclid Beach lines in the Eastern suburb, a switch point was broken off and a telephone pole was thrown across the tracks, effectually tying up the progress of the cars in that section for the time being.

to trial and either acquitted or convicted nothing approaching certainty will be known on this point. The state insists that it has positive evidence against Lamphere, and the defense as positively states that the prisoner cannot be proven guilty of having set fire to the house or of having assisted in the murder of Helgelein. The circumstances which have become known are almost equally balanced so far as Lamphere's part in the tragedies is concerned and judicial process only can make clear their relative values.

The case has, in short, reached a stage where only the courts, through grand jury and upon trial proceedings, can be relied upon to settle the questions which are to be brought before them. The grand jury, it is announced, will begin to investigate the evidence gathered by Sheriff Smutzer and Prosecutor Smith on Monday. Its findings, however, will shed little light on the subject and the details of its deliberations are not likely to become known.

Of late the developments have been negative in their nature. The identifications of yesterday were exceptions only to a rule which bids fair to become more general each day. The investigations of Sheriff Smutzer at the farm are being undertaken in a manner that almost assures positiveness of results, but the very thoroughness of the work means that it must be slow and tedious.

Laporte, in fact, is settling back to its wonted calm. Fewer curbstone debates regarding Mrs. Gunness and her affairs are held and the excitement incident to the sensational discoveries of last week is decreasing.

The widespread interest which the whole affair has created is evidenced by the amount of press matter that has been handled. Over a score of special writers have been here and investigation shows that they have sent out close to one million words of reading matter in the last eleven days.

HARRY THAW IS ANXIOUS TO MATCH IS WITS WITH JEROME ON WITNESS STAND

tioner, continued the presentation of evidence in support of the contention that Thaw is sane.

Michael Cummings and Lawrence J. Creery, keepers in the Tombs prison, testified to conversations with Thaw and said that his actions always impressed them as being rational.

Expert For Thaw.

Dr. Britton D. Evans, superintendent of the New Jersey State Hospital for the Insane at Morris Plains, N. J., was then put on the stand as an expert in Thaw's behalf.

Dr. Evans was prepared to testify that Thaw is now sane, but it was not until after a lively tilt with Mr. Jerome that Mr. Graham was able to get this opinion of Dr. Evans in the minutes. The doctor said that he based his conclusion wholly upon the actual conditions of the man as he saw him during his last trial and in several visits to him at Matteawan.

Mr. Jerome brought out the fact that Dr. Evans excluded from this consideration the letters and codicil of Thaw; everything, in fact, pertaining to Thaw prior to the first trial, so far as he was able to divorce the impression of those facts from his mind.

Over objection by Mr. Jerome the court admitted the doctor's opinion.

"I regard Mr. Thaw as now perfectly sane, free from delusions and in possession of no hallucinations which would indicate a diseased mental state," said Dr. Evans.

While Dr. Evans was on the stand, Dr. Charles W. Pilgrim entered the court and took a seat with Thaw and his counsel. Dr. Pilgrim is superintendent of the Hudson River State Hospital for the Insane at Poughkeepsie and former president of the state lunacy commission. He has been retained as one of Thaw's experts and he visited him in the Tombs, at Matteawan and in Poughkeepsie.

Dr. Evans recounted his conversations with Thaw during four visits to Matteawan. "I advised him to go on the stand in open court," said the witness.

MASONS AT BIG SPREAD

Members of Palestine Celebrate Anniversary of Organization.

Five Hundred People Enjoy Evening at the Temple.

Members of Palestine lodge, No. 79, A. F. & A. M. and their friends celebrated the thirty-eighth anniversary of the organization of the lodge, at an elaborate banquet at the Masonic Temple last evening.

The anniversary of the lodge came on Jan. 29, but it was decided to postpone the observance until the weather was more favorable. Despite the delay, the evening finally selected proved to be quite wet, but it did not dampen the enthusiam of the Masons, nor keep very many of them home.

The banquet room at the temple was crowded with the Palestine members, their wives, women friends and officers of the other blue lodges. About five hundred persons were present.

Preceded by a reception, the banquet was served at 6:30. E. K. Coe, worshipful master, presided as toast master and a number of apt and clever responses were made.

T. W. Hugo spoke on "A Mason's Duty to Himself," Rev. C. W. Ramshaw of Proctor on "A Mason's Duty to his Neighbor," R. E. Denfeld, on "Our Honored Guests, the Ladies," Elmer A. Kling of Little Falls, grand junior warden, on "A Mason's Duty to God."

The musical program, given under the direction of A. F. M. Custance, made a distinct hit. There were songs by Miss Florence Hyland, Miss Maude Matteson and Miss Frances Burris. Miss Hyland, for an encore sang a topical hit written by Mr. Custance, directed toward the bachelors present. This was much appreciated.

An informal social hour followed the program.

When Palestine lodge was organized in 1870, the membership was 29. Now it is 630

ON THE IRON RANGES

MINING ON THE MESABA

Stripping Operations Begun on the Virginia Sliver Property.

Three Mines Adjacent to Buhl Not in Active Operation.

Virginia, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Butler Bros. commenced stripping operations on the Virginia Sliver property the first of the week for the Consumers' Ore company. The work has been started with one shovel, but another will be added as soon as room is made in the cut. Supt. C. E. Hendrick of the Consumers' Ore company will shortly remove his family from Buhl to this city, in order that he may be closer to the company's operations on the Sliver.

A considerable betterment of surface improvements has recently been made by Supt. McNeil at the Commodore mine. The roundhouse has been moved to a more convenient location and an addition erected thereto for a machine shop. The company's horse barn was also moved from the residence location to the mine, so that all the mine buildings are now in a compact body, with greatly improved surroundings. The Commodore has not yet commenced operations for the season, but the machinery has been placed in good condition and the order to begin operations is now awaited. Considerable stripping remains to be done, but sufficient ore is already uncovered so that one shovel can proceed loading for shipment.

The Iroquois mine at Mountain Iron began shipping from both stockpile and shaft the latter part of last week. The Great Northern handles the output.

Not one of the three mines directly adjacent to the village of Buhl is at present in active operation and the only one where there is any steam in the boilers is at the Grant shaft. Here the pumps are at work keeping the property free from water, but all other work is suspended. If the big grab and carrier system that has been employed there in stripping for three years past is not "an expensive failure," as has been claimed, it is at least an idle success. The big clam shell dipper rests midway between the two great towers astride a platform constructed there for with its huge jaws wide open. Adjacent lie a pair of new jaws ready to replace the old ones, which have been badly worn away by the impact with the earth and boulders in the pit. Quite a large amount of overburden has been removed. The Inter-State Iron company, which operates the mine, asked for bids for stripping the property with steam shovels after the suspension of the grab last fall, but was evidently induced to reconsider. Although there were several bidders the contract was not let and it is the evident purpose to give Mason & Hoover another opportunity to do the work with the grab. It is the expectation in Buhl that operations will be resumed in the near future.

The Frantz mine of the Consumers' Ore company remains idle, as it has been for nearly three years past. The Sharon, a large property which was stripped some years ago by the Drake & Stratton company for the steel corporation and which contains a large amount of high-grade ore, has been idle for four years and there is no knowing when it will be operated, as it is a fee property of the corporation.

Jeannings Bros. are getting ready to sink a shaft on a new property adjoining the Kinney, about two miles northeast of Buhl. They have the timber all on the ground and are now awaiting the arrival of a hoisting plant. The property is said to contain about 100,000 tons of ore of high grade, much of it running 66 per cent iron. They expect to mine it out in about two seasons.

A small crew of men was started to work last week at the Yates mine of the Consumers' Ore company near the Kinney, getting ready for the season's output. The operations this year will consist entirely of schomming in the open pit, and it is expected to have it fully completed in August or September. The season's output will be in the neighborhood of 50,000 tons, and after it has been shipped the Yates will be abandoned.

Stripping operations at the Kinney were discontinued late last fall and since that time several drill crews have been at work proving up the extent of the ore body. It is expected that stripping will be resumed soon. The company has kept many of its skilled men employed all winter, so that they could be had when wanted this spring.

Much drilling has been done during the past year and the prospects are good that other properties will be opened, as it is known that considerable quantities of ore have been located.

BUSINESS MEN WON.

Defeat Professional Men of Chisholm in Interesting Game.

Chisholm, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was much fun and enthusiasm at the ball game Thursday afternoon betwen the business men and the professional men. The business men won out by the score of 18 to 9. Although the score was large, and by it it would seem the game was full of errors. That was not the case, it being an errorless game. The score was close till the fifth inning, when the business men made a rally and cinched the game. Many of those who participated in the game have not played for a few years, but showed good form. A large crowd witnessed the game.

OPERA HOUSE IS PUT UNDER BAN

Tower City Council Has Ordered Playhouse Closed.

Tower, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the regular meeting of the city council, Tuesday evening, it was decided that the City opera house should be condemned. The building has for some time been declared unsafe for public gatherings, for the reason that it is an old building, having scarcely a solid timber in the foundation, and with the frost going out of the ground, it becomes very shaky and, with a crowd dancing, sways to its very foundation. Besides, it did not meet the requirements regarding fire escapes, there being but one narrow exit in the rear of the building.

The city pavilion will be used instead of the opera house for the present. It is hoped that ere long a new dance hall may be provided for.

"DOC" McINTOSH JAILED.

Gets Eighty Days for Defrauding Grand Rapids Hotel.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. G. MacIntosh who has been representing himself as a veterinary surgeon in this section, and who has been operating moving picture shows at this place and also at Deer River and Bovey during the winter, had his trial this wek on the charge of attempting to defraud an innkeeper. After being out a few minutes the jury returned a verdict of guilty, and the "doctor" was given eighty days in jail. At the trial the fact was also developed that he is not registered as a veterinarian in this state.

LEASE MALLALY FARM.

Sparta Men to Drill on Forbes Property.

Forbes, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Messrs. Mouser and Hanke of Sparta have leased the Malally farm near here and will drill for ore. The lease was signed Thursday and provides that six months will be allowed in which to begin drilling, with the agreement that on the ore produced the lessees must pay a royalty of 25 cents per ton for one year. It is understood that the owners of the land offered to lease the property for $5,000, but the royalty proposition was considered more satisfactory.

MEDALS FOR VIRGINIANS.

Debating Team Considered Winners and Will be Rewarded.

Virginia, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. of Schools L. Bliss of this city announces that medals are to be presented to the debating team from the Roosevelt high school despite the adverse action of the state debating board. "The Virginia high school debating team claims the state championship for 1908 on the grounds of having met and defeated the strongest teams in the Debating league, including the teams of St. Paul and Minneapolis, and also on the recent challenge issued to meet any team in the league or out of the league against whom they have not already a decision of the judges, putting up a forfeit of $50," said Mr. Bliss. "No takers have yet been heard from. The debate put up by the Virginians throughout the season, on both sides of the question, has been pronounced by the judges as touching the high water mark in standard, during the six years of the history of the league, being both scholarly and convincing. Gold medals are being struck for the members of the team and in spite of the attempted theft of the North high, aided and abetted by a biased debating board, the championship of the state will be awarded to the Virginia team by the common consent of the school men of the state. These medals will be awarded at the commencement to Edward Berg, Axel B. Dahl and Lambert S. Gill of Virginia."

Capt. James Trezona visited with relatives in Ely over Sunday.

GRADUATES FROM VIRGINIA HIGH

Those Who Will Receive Honors During Next Month.

Virginia, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. L. Bliss has announced that the following class will be graduated from the high school in June: Edward Berg, Minnie G. Cohen, Axel B. Dahl, Edward M. Deering, Mary G. Gowan, Hulda A. Hanna, William J. Hooper, Elodie B. Johnson, Herbert S. King, Agnes H. Lundmark, Daniel L. Mahoney, Lester N. McDonald, Ethel C. Morell, Genevieve A. Murphy, Grace A. Owens.

A class of over fifty will be graduated from the eighth grade.

About 300 pupils are enrolled in the manual training and domestic science courses.

Memorial day, May 30, will be observed in Virginia by appropriate exercises, in which the mayor, city council, Commercial club, fire department, public schools and citizens generally will join. The ceremonies will include the decoration of the soldiers' graves by a committee of teachers and pupils, music and speaking by the school, and an address in the Roosevelt auditorium by Rev. John W. Powell of Duluth. If the day is fine, a parade will be a feature of the exercises. It is hoped that in remembrance of the deeds of valor and patriotism done by the American soldiers and sailors all through our history, and particularly by the Civil war veterans, our citizens generally will refrain from their usual labors on that day and unite with the schools in displaying the flag in all parts of the city. Memorial day, in honor of the brave, should become the festival of flags and flowers.

The seniors have selected for their play this year "Through to China," a farce, having a cast of about sixty characters, the seniors playing the leading parts. The play will be put on early in June, probably during the first week. New scenery is being painted for the play, and every actor will be clad in unique costume, all of which is being made in the school. The funds raised by the class will be spent in the purchase of a memorial to be left in the school. Former classes have left some valuable statues, the class of 1907 leaving a bronze bust of Lincoln.

The seniors took the state examination in English Saturday, May 16.

Weakness in the Spring

Is overcome when the blood is made rich and red by Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills.

Weakness is the word which best describes the condition of most people in the spring.

It may be bodily weakness, tired, draggy feeling and lack of energy and vigor.

Or it may be weakness of the heart, the nerves, the stomach, liver kidneys, bowels or other vital organs.

Wherever the trouble may be located, the cause is the same—failure of the blood to supply proper nourishment for the maintenance and restoration of the cells and tissues of the body and its organs.

Stimulants only give temporary relief. What is absolutely necessary is rich, red blood such as is formed by the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills, to nourish the organs back to health and vigor so that they can derive nourishment from the food.

Because of their blood-building qualities Dr. A. W Chase's Nerve Pills are marvelously successful as a spring restorative. 50c. a box, at all dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., on every box of the genuine.

STOCK OVERSUBSCRIBED.

Popularity of New Gilbert Bank is Proven.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The stockholders of the First National bank of Gilbert held a meeting here this week and elected seven directors, as follows: J. Smith, C. E. Bailey, D. W. Freeman, James A. Robb, F. B. Myers, Biwabik; J. C. Poole and Dr. C. W. More. The officers will be elected in about two weeks. At the meeting, the stock was found to be oversubscribed, so that some of the stockholders' allowances will be cut down.

DINKEY ENGINE WRECKED.

Accident at Crosby Mine, But No One Hurt.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the Crosby Mining company's dinkey engines slid off a soft dump with four loaded cars Tuesday night. The engine was completely wrecked. Fortunately none of the crew was hurt.

The Crosby mine will finish stripping on or about June 15h and will then put the shovel at work removing the stockpiles. The stripping has been in operation all winter giving employment to quite a number of men.

DIES OF INJURIES.

Victim of Monroe Mine Accident Succumbs in Hospital.

Chisholm, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Renodith, who was injured recently at the Monroe mine, when he was badly crushed by the skip, died Friday in a Hibbing hospital.

The body was brought here and the funeral will be held from this city today.

ORE SHIPPING HAS BEGUN AT EVELETH.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The shipping season began yesterday morning at the Fayal Spruce and Adams mines. The local mining officer received orders Thursday to start shipping the better grade of ore. This will necessitate the employment of a number of men, who have been idle for several months.

WANT BETTER ROAD.

Present Highway Between Eveleth and Virginia Not Satisfactory.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is considerable talk here of a new road to Virginia. The present one is almost a steep drive up from Virginia, making it hard travel for the horses and pedestrians. The plan is to get the Mesaba Mountain townships to build about a mile and a half of the proposed road, and the city of Virginia a mile of road. The proposed road, it is claimed, will avoid the hills that now have to be passed over.

Two yearling steers, weighing together 3,200 pounds, were brought in from the farm of Charles Morrison in the Mud Hen district and were immediately bought by a firm of local butchers.

Through the carelessness of an employe, Simon & Forncrook lost about $35 from a small fire in the rear of the shop. The man was making sausages, and in some manner started a small fire, resulting in the loss of the sausages.

EVELETH'S NEW SCHOOL.

Work on the Building is Progressing Quite Satisfactorily.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new public school building now under construction in Eveleth was begun last fall, when the foundation was put in. The work is being done by contract by J. A. Robert of Duluth. The estimated cost of the building is in the neighborhood of $40,000. The building when completed will contain six rooms, for a kindergarten and the first five school grades, and will be able to seat comfortably 250 pupils. About 200 children will enroll in the new school next fall. N. F. Marion is inspecting the work for the school district.

ORE SHIPPING STARTS.

Some of Big Producers Send Output to Two Harbors.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Fayal, Miller, Pioneer and Zenith mines have started ore shipments, and the first ore crews will be put on commencing Monday. Only a few crews will be required at the first

The ore weighing office at Highland has been opened for the season with William Pegelow in charge, and the block offices between Brimson and Two Harbors will probably be opened in the near future.

The Iron Range has commenced breaking in the big ore locomotives needed for the ore hauling season, just opening, three of them being sent out this morning.

NASHWAUK IN BRIEF.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Butler Bros.' work at the La Rue mine is progressing rapidly, and they intend putting on another shovel later in the season.

The Crosby mine received its first train of ore cars Thursday. The mine has completed stockpiling and has now begun filling cars from the pockets.

The No. 1 shaft at the La Rue mine is again in operation, the boilers have been steamed up and work has begun, getting things ready for shipping.

George Goddin, who attempted to commit suicide Thursday by diving off the coal trestle at the light and water plant is fast recovering. It is thought at the time he was suffering from temporary insanity. When interviewed he could remember nothing of the affair of Thursday.

It is expected that the arms and uniforms for the new militia company Company M, will arrive within the next fortnight. Capt. Sullivan is much pleased with the progress so far made.

CAUGHT IN CALIFORNIA.

Former Iron Range Conductor is Under Arrest.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—George L. Patterson, formerly an Iron Range conductor and newsboy, who recently disappeared with several hundred dollars belonging to A. G. Nordstrom, a saloonkeeper at Beaver Crossing, with which he was intrusted, has been arrested in California. He will be brought here as soon as the necessary requisition papers can be secured and an officer dispatched to the coast.

IS GIVEN STIFF FINE FOR ILLEGAL FISHING.

Hibbing, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial clubs agitation against the illegal fishing and shooting in this vicinity is already beginning to tell. Thomas Vivar charged by Game Warden Miller with illegal fishing pleaded guilty and was handed a stiff fine together with the costs.

TWO HARBORS FIRE.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fire department was called out yesterday afternoon by a small fire on Ninth avenue, which damaged the home of W. J. Bossanko to the extent of $100. The blaze caught from the chimney and was quickly extinguished, much of the damage being from the water.

LISTER PROMOTED.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. E. Lister of the Mesaba Telephone company has been promoted to the general superintendency for the company in St. Louis and Itasca counties. He is very well known here, through his work with the company around Eveleth.

BOY DRINKS LAUDANUM

West Duluth Youth Tries to End His Life.

Was Despondent Over an Unsuccessful Love Affair.

Throwing back his head to drain the contents from a bottle of laudanum, John Ottley, a 19-year-old West Duluth boy, yesterday afternoon cried to his companions, "Good-bye, boys. She does not love me. Life is not worth living."

But only a few drops passed the intended suicide's lips, for before he had finished uttering his farewell, his two friends, Arthur McKleave and Charles Vivian, snatched the poison from his grasp, saving his life.

It happened in the rear of Charles Korth's saloon at about 4 o'clock. Ottley had been depressed for some time over the fact that his love for Agnes McKeller, a girl 19 years old living at 8 Merrill and Ring Row, had not been reciprocated. He had threatened on several occasions to end his life, and yesterday afternoon had been drinking some. His friends, seeing that he was more gloomy than usual and remembering his threats, had followed him into the saloon and searched him, but could find no poison about his clothes. Suddenly he drew the little bottle from his sox, where he had hidden it, and tried to pour the liquid down his throat. The prompt action of his friends frustrating his attempt to end his life, Ottley ran from the saloon and was later taken in charge by Sergeant Wilcox. Dr. Shannon was summoned, but the boy had managed to swallow so little of the laudanum that no antidote was used. Ottley seemed to feel in no way the effects of the few drops he had taken.

Ottley lives at 8 Munger Row. Miss McKeller is employed by the Union Match company.

FIRST GAME OF YEAR.

West Duluth Ball Team Will Play Marshall-Wells Nine.

The Oak Halls of West Duluth will open their baseball season tomorrow afternoon with the Marshall-Wells hardware team. The game will be played at the ball grounds at Fifty-seventh avenue west and Wadena street.

Though the Oak Hall team is only a new organization, and has been in the field for practice for less than three weeks, they feel that they have a good bunch of players and ought to do things before the season is over. This past week has handicapped them some in their practice, but Capt. Ernest Coghlin says that he is confident that his team is a good match for the Marshall-Wells nine. The Oak Halls are out after the Fitwells, the Columbias and the Kelley-Howe-Thomson aggregations.

Bert Halburt will pitch and Tony Nelson catch for the Oak Hall team tomorrow. The game will be called at 2:30 oclock.

West Duluth Churches.

At the Immanuel Lutheran church, corner of Fifty-seventh avenue west and Roosevelt street, there will be Norwegian services in the morning at 10:30 o'clock. Sunday school will meet at 9:30 o'clock.

At the Plymouth Congregational church, Fifty-fourth avenue west and Bristol street, there will be services Sunday morning and evening at the usual hours. J. A. Lumley's morning subject will be "Soul Value." In the evening he will deliver the eighth lecture in the course on present day problems on the the subject, "The Modern Church, Its Creed, Purpose, Place and Work." Sabbath school will be held at 12 o'clock and the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor will meet at 7 o'clock.

At the Holy Apostle's Episcopal church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Ellnor street, there will be Sunday school at noon and evening service with sermon at 7:45 o'clock. The subject of the sermon will be "A Message From St. Paul." The Jewell Adams trio constitute the choir and Prof. Riele is the organist.

At the Westminster Presbyterian church, Rev. W. J. Lowrie will preach at both morning and evening services. At 10:30 o'clock his subject will be "Naaman." In the evening at 7:45 o'clock he will preach on the subject, "How to Work." Christian Endeavor will meet at 6:30 o'clock and Sunday school at noon.

At the Asbury M. E. church, the pastor, Rev. Thomas Grice, will preach on the subject, "Conflict and Victory" at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. In the evening at 8 o'clock his subject will be, "Told of a Bankrupt." Sunday school will meet at 11:45, and the Epworth League with Albert Meldahl as leader, at 7 o'clock.

West Duluth Briefs.

Frank Hickey of Rhinelander, Wis., is visiting friends and relatives in West Duluth.

The B. Y. P. U. society of the West Duluth Baptist church will give a New England supper at Gilleys hall this evening, the proceeds to go to the building fund.

There will be a special meeting of the ladies of the Asbury M. E. church, Monday afternoon, at 3 oclock, at the home of Mrs. E. D. Abbott, to make arrangements for serving the Irving alumni banquet.

For rent—Rooms in Kreidler block suitable for living or dressmaking parlors. Inquire at building.

Traffic was delayed this morning for the street car company for about twenty minutes by the breaking of a feed wire at Thirtieth avenue west. The wire was connected temporarily by the motormen and conductors of the cars.

Miss Jeannette Pond of Cloquet is the guest of her cousin, Miss Leola Markus, at 24 North Fifty-seventh avenue west.

R. E. Brown of Moorhead is the guest of his sister, Mrs. E. T. Caulkins, of Fifty-fourth avenue west and Elinor street.

Miss Bertha Waldron, who has been visitinig her sister, Mrs. H. K. Anderson, of 616 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, has returned to her home in Minneapolis.

RAILROADS

LOAD ORE AT THE MINES

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway is loading ore cars at the mines. Many of these cars will not be sent down to the ore docks for some time, but the stock piles at the mines in some instances have been getting so far from the mines that the mining officials have found it more expedient to place the ore directly in the cars, where it will be ready when the general ore movement to the docks begins.

Inquiry at the offices of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern as to when the general ore shipping will begin, brought the reply that the officials have not the least idea when the heavy movement will begin.

The officials state that aside from a few cars that have been brought down from the range, no appreciable amount of ore has left the mines so far. The officials of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern are not expecting a heavy ore movement for at least two weeks. There has been no demand on the part of the trade for ore, nor have the mines received any orders for shipping as yet. Aside from a few isolated orders, the real shipment of ore cannot be said to have begun as yet.

BACK FROM CONVENTION.

C. A. Pond Returns From National Gathering of Railroad Detectives.

C. A. Pond, special agent for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, returned today from the national convention of special railway agents, held at Lexington, Ky., May 12, 13 and 14.

Methods for the prevention of crime against the property of the railroads were the principal topic of discussion at the convention.

"That crime has been greatly reduced by effective methods of policing the railroads, can not be doubted," said Mr. Pond.

"The figures given at the convention by men who have made a life study of the railroad criminal, prove conclusively that theft of railroad property has decreased during the past five years, while many states are passing laws that have a different effect upon the operations of such criminals."

There were about eighty special agents present at the Lexington convention. Almost every road in the United States was represented. Some special agents from the Dominion of Canada were also present. The meetings of the association are for the purpose of devising means to suppress the crime against the property of the railroads. Papers are read and plans are submitted to the convention having to do with the suppression of the railway criminal.

The delegates were royally entertained by the citizens of Lexington. The chief of police of that city cooperated with the citizens to prevent any of the agents leaving before the convention was over. The entertainment provided by the good citizens of Lexington was of the strenuous kind and all of the delegates were thoroughly tired when the proceedings were over.

The next annual convention will be held in Peoria, Ill., on the second Tuesday in May.

MEETING IN CHICAGO.

Concerted Action Against Higher Freight Rates Will be Taken.

Minnesota has some representative shippers in Chicago who are adding their protests to those of Western shippers against the proposed increase of freight rates on the Eastern and Western lines.

Yesterday and today representatives from almost every large shipping association in the West met in Chicago to adopt some action in the matter of stopping the contemplated increase of general freight rates. It is proposed that the facts in the matter be submitted to the Interstate Commerce commission. Another suggestion is that the shippers, acting as a whole, take the matter to the courts and secure an injunction against the roads to prevent their carrying out the proposed increase.

The enacting of the proposed freight rate increase would mean that $140,000,000 additional revenue would be paid into the railroads by the shippers of the country.

The protest is coming from every important shipping center in the Middle West and the great southwestern cattle shipping points. The men who are representing the shipping association and the great manufacturing and jobbing firms are determined to find some means to combat the proposed increase, and present indications are that one of the greatest fights in the history of anti-railway action will ensue should the officials of Eastern and Western lines attempt to carry out the rate increase program they have mapped out.

MOVEMENT IS LAUNCHED

An organization to be known as the Duluth Playground association was formed this morning, at a meeting held in the mayor's office at the city hall. Mayor Roland D. Haven was elected president, L. A. Barnes, secretary, and B. Silberstein treasurer. Mrs. H. C. Marshall, Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge, Bishop James McGolrick and Hon. John Miller were elected vice presidents.

Everybody interested in the playground movement will be eligible to membership, and will become a member upon the payment of $1 a year or more in support of the association. The bylaws recommended by the National Playground association were adopted temporarily, and a committee was appointed to go over them and revise them to suit conditions as they exist in Duluth.

It was not a mass meeting, so the attendance was not very large. Twelve or fifteen leaders in the movement were present, however, and they entered enthusiastically into the work of organization, and manifested much interest in laying plans for the future. A committee consisting of Mrs. H. C. Marshall, Phil Bevis, Rev. A. H. Wurtele, Bishop James McGolrick and Luther Mendenhall was appointed to see about the revision of the constitution and bylaws, and also to prepare a concise statement of the purpose of the organization.

Another committee, consisting of Mrs. W. Feetham, Mrs. H. C. Marshall, Rev. A. H. Wurtele and Phil Bevis was appointed to consider the matter of instructors for the playgrounds proposed, the location of the grounds, the apparatus necessary, etc. The association will not start in on a very big scale to begin with, but plans on about two playgrounds this year. Their location has not been determined as yet, and it has not been definitely decided that two shall be started this season. One location in view is on Eighteenth avenue west, very close to the Adams school.

Mr. Mendenhall told of what the park board has been doing in the way of parks and playgrounds, and said that while certain locations had been set aside for the use of children in the neighborhood, no instructors or supervisors had been employed. He said the park commissioners desired to do what they could to help the playground movement along, but looked to an organization of the kind formed this morning to supervise matters in regard to them.

Rev. Wurtele spoke of the necessity of teachers or supervisors for each playground, saying it was very important that there should be two in each case, one man and one woman. Otherwise order could not be maintained, there would be no system, and without some direction, brute force would govern the grounds, the older and stronger boys and girls usurping them to the disadvantage of the younger and weaker.

The next meeting of the association will be held next Saturday morning at the same time and place.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Save Money by Settlement.

The city expects to save about $1,800 on the proposed settlement with the owners of the Olmstead-Masslich charter street improvement bonds of 1891. There is about $4,000 interest due on the 11,000 worth of bonds, and the bondholders have agreed to abate their claim $1,000 and cut off some of the interest.

Superior Girl Wins Contest.

Miss Olga Megordon, representing the Superior Normal school won first honors at Minneapolis last evening in the annual declamatory contest held at Stanley Hall. Miss Megordon recited "Hagar," and her rendition is said to be the finest ever heard at the hall. Miss Florence Moore of Stanley Hall won second honors. There were five contestants. These represented the Eau Claire, Wis., high school; Pillsbury Academy at Owatonna, Minn., Sycamore high school of Sycamore, Ill.; Stanley Hall of Minneapolis; and Superior Normal school. The judges were Rev. Mr. Wilson of St. Paul, Judge Waite of Minneapolis, and Mrs. Carlo Fisher of Minneapolis.

Sauter Must Pay Bill.

A judgment for $438.93 in favor of Pederson Bros. against Martin Sauter was docketed in the municipal court yesterday. The judgment is the outcome of a suit started by Pederson Bros. to recover from Sauter on a bill of goods sold Robert McIntosh, former proprietor of the Great Northern Hotel cafe. The plaintiff concern claimed that Sauter went good for the goods that McIntosh bought. Sauter claimed that he did not assume responsibility for the payment of the bill.

A "Star Boarder.."

Jacob S. McCrary, a drayman, was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging a statutory offense, which was sworn out by Robert Rickell, an employe of a brewing company and the husband of the woman in the case. Rickell claims that McCrary has been a boarder at the Rickell home for over a year and that the relations between the boarder and Mrs. Rickell became too familiar. Rickell alleges that he chastised his wife a few months ago and told her that McCrary would have to find another place. Mrs. Rickell is said to have threatened to go with McCrary if he was put out.

The Most Common Cause of Suffering
Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50-cent sizes. For sale by all druggists.

Whooping Cough.

"In February our daughter had the whooping cough. Mr. Lane of Hartland, recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and said it gave his customers the best of satisfaction. MARINE NEWS

TO CHRISTEN DURSTON

Mrs. Ward Ames, Jr. Accepts Invitation of the Owner.

Mr. Durston May Come From Syracuse to Attend Launching.

Mrs. Ward Ames, Jr., of Duluth has accepted the invitation of E. Frank Durston of Syracuse, N. Y., principal owner of the new steamer E. F. Durston, which will be launched at the Superior shipyards next Saturday, to christen the boat. The Durston will be launched at noon next Saturday and will be the last boat to go into the water at the shipyards this year.

The launching will be quite a social event. Mr. Durston, who has for years manufactured the Lefever gun at Syracuse, is making his first venture as a ship owner, he being the principal stockholder in the new Wilkinson Transportation company. He is expected to come to the Head of the Lakes to attend the launching of his first boat and he will be entertained by local people interested in marine developments. The launching party will include a number of prominent marine men.

The Durston is a steel bulk freighter 420 feet long. Its keel was laid last fall and only a few weeks' work will be necessary after the launching for its completion.

DECKHAND OVERBOARD.

Barge Teutonia Loses a Man in Waters of Lake Erie.

Detroit, May 16.—The steamer George King, which passed up yesterday with the barges Teutonia and Gawn in tow, reports the disappearance of a deck hand from the barge Teutonia Thursday night in Lake Erie. It is believed he has fallen overboard.

SUIT IS UNDER WAY.

Boat is Pumped Out and is Able to Proceed.

Milwaukee, May 16.—The steamer Sult, which was sighted in distress by the W. H. Gratwick Thursday night and was towed into port with eight feet of water in her hold, was pumped out yesterday and left for Kenosha last night. The Sult was chartered by the Barry line to carry freight to Milwaukee, while the steamer Kansas was in dry dock. No damage was done to the cargo. The steamer Kansas will be out of dry dock Monday and resume her run.

LAUNCHING OF CORRIGAN.

Miss Ruth Robinsen of Buffalo to Christen New Steamer.

Buffalo, May 16.—A large party of Buffalo and Tonawanda vessel men, including Miss Ruth Robinson, who will be sponsor for the new boat, left here for Ecorse to be present at the launching of the James Corrigan. The new craft is being built for the Frontier Steamship company of Tonawanda.

DOCK WORKERS SIGN.

Agreement Reached at Cleveland With Individual Contracts.

Cleveland, May 16.—The managers of the C. & P. ore docks at this port and the dock workers have reported an agreement. The men have signed individual contracts for two years, with wages and general conditions the same as last year. Some of the men on the New York dock have also signed individual contracts.

HANNA BOATS SAIL.

Friday Hoodoo Fails to Stop the Steamer Fitch.

Cleveland, May 16.—Friday hoodoo did not stop the steamer Fitch of the Hanna fleet. She sailed yesterday afternoon and a number of other boats of the same line left yesterday. The Castalia which will take coal to Lake Superior, however waited until after midnight to make the start.

Named After McKinney.

Cleveland, May 16.—The steamer building at the Lorain yards of the American Shipbuilding company for J. J. Hardon of Chicago, will be named for Price McKinney of Corrigan, McKinney & Co., ore shippers of this city. The new boat will be launched Saturday, May 23.

Urge Owners to Start.

Cleveland, May 16.—Coal shippers at Buffalo are urging owners to start boats that have taken on cargoes, and a number of steel steamers will sail from that port next week.

Passed Detroit.

Detroit, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Up: Sicken and consort, 9:40 Friday night; Marden and barges, 10; Binghamton, J. J. H. Brown, 10:20; Boyce and consort, Keefe, 11; Kendall, Troy, 11:28; Berlin, Saturday morning, 4:40; Westmount, 5; Republic, 7:40; E. L. Wallace, 8; Turret Cape, 10; Stone and oil barges, 11. Down: Monteagle, 9 Friday night; Hopkins and barge, 10; McGean, 12:20 Saturday morning; Bickerdike, 10:15.

Up: Ogdensburg, 10 Thursday night; Ionia, Corunna, 11; Chemung, 11:40; Fairmount, 12:20; King, barges, Northern Wave, 1; Imperial, 2:30 Uganda, 3; Midland King, Alaska, Tuscarora, 3:30; Wiehe and barge, 4; Lumberman and barge, 5:40; Saginaw, 7:20; Butter, 8.

Down: Glen Ellah, 2 Friday morning; Crerar, 9:20; Fitzgerald, St. Paul, 11:20; Flower, Corunna, 11:40; Muney, 1; Tampa, 2; Charles Neff, Langdon, 2:20; America, 2:40; Rees, 3; Reynolds, 3:30; Vail, barge, Three Brothers, 4; Argo, 4:20; Rend, 5:40; Beatty, 6:15; Collingwood, 6:30.

Marine Notes.

The steamer M. C. Neff, which was engaged at the lighthouse at Isle Royale last season, is still in the local harbor.

The steamer Lambert, which arrived in Duluth last night light for grain, was the first boat into Ashland this year. The Lambert unloaded coal at an Ashland dock.

The engineers of the Hoover & Mason and the Davidson of the Tomlinson fleet are fitting out their boats for inspection and sailing within a few weeks.

The C. W. Moore of the Booth line, which was windbound in the harbor, left yesterday for Port Arthur with a load of package freight and passengers.

MOVEMENT ABOUT OVER

Little Grain Will be Shipped From Duluth This Month.

Steel Company Boats Coming to Wait for Shipment of Ore.

The spring grain movement from the Head of the Lakes is practically over. For the next few weeks, there will be an occasional cargo, but the line boats are able to take care of a large part of the grain trade from now on, and some of the big boats will be laid up in lower lake ports to await the opening of the ore movement.

Boats with coal cargoes are waiting in lower lake ports, and only in cases of actual necessity are sailing. Most of the Lake Superior ports are well supplied with coal and there is no occasion, for shipments, when the vessels would be forced to either wait for down cargoes or go down light, at a loss to the owners.

The shipping of ore from the mines to the Missabe ore docks is not taken as an indication of an early start. It is not believed there will be a cargo of ore shipped from the Missabe dock before June 1, although there will be a few shipments from the Great Northern docks at Allouez. Several cargoes have already been taken down the lakes from there, but the entire shipments during May will not go over 50,000 tons.

The Pittsburg Steamship company is preparing for the season. The five boats in the local harbor are being prepared by their engineers for inspection and in South Chicago and Lake Erie ports, the engineers have been working on the larger boats for some weeks. The steamers J. P. Morgan, W. E. Corey and J. F. Baker left South Chicago yesterday for Duluth and they will probably lie in the local harbor until the company is ready to begin shipping.

From the close of navigation last season up to May 1 only 252,137 tons of ore were shipped from Cleveland docks to the furnaces. Stocks of ore on May 1 at that port were larger than at any of the other lake receiving ports with the exception of Ashtabula. The latter port only shipped 257,366 tons from Dec. 1 to May 1.

Conneaut was far ahead of all the other ports in winter shipments. That port sent forward 628,382 tons of ore to the furnaces, which is greater than the movement from Cleveland and Ashtabula combined. Shipments during the winter months were light all around compared with the previous year.

Statistics gathered by the Marine Review from the various dock managers at Lake Erie ports show that the amount of ore on Lake Erie docks May 1 of the present year was 5,480,300 gross tons, as against 1,576,588 tons in 1907, an increase of 3,563,312 tons. The largest tonnage ever before on docks on May 1 was in 1904, when there were 4,534,103 tons.

No risk of life, no pain attached to this treatment. Also neuralgia, nervous prostration, heart, stomach, liver, kidney, sexual weakness, female troubles, deafness, paralysis, lumbago. All diseases yield readily to his electro magnetic treatment, because the treatment goes directly to the diseased organs and restores perfect harmony throughout the entire system.

Mr. A. P. Anderson of Osage City, Kansas, says: "I went to Dr. Mitchell in a hopeless, helpless conditon. My relatives and friends thought I was beyond help, suffering with stomach and heart trouble. After taking a course of his treatment I most highly recommend it to others. Will be pleased to answer any inquiries."

Miss H. Anderson of Grand Marais, Minn., says: "I went to Dr. Mitchell a nervous wreck, after having doctored for three years, without receiving any benefit. I took a course of Dr. Mitchell's treatment and recommend it for nervousness and all other diseases.

RECENT EVENTS FROM PROCTOR

Missabe Freight House Moved and Some Personal Notes.

Proctor, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Paul Greeve returned to Proctor, Wednesday from his home in Michigan, where he has been visiting all winter.

James Rich has returned to Proctor from Hibbing, where he has been firing an engine for Butler Bros. for the past month.

The announcement of the coming marriage of M. J. Dixon and Miss Mayme Crowley was made public last Sunday. Mr. Dixon is an engineer on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway. Miss Crowley is a Duluth girl. Both are well known here in Proctor.

Max Beauchamp left Monday evening for Mandell, Labrador, where he was called by the death of his brother.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Bridges and son, Charley, arrived here Wednesday from Peoria, Ill. They intend to spend the summer here.

The Oh, My club will give another of its popular dances at the village hall, Monday, May 18. The usual good time that always accompanies their dances is guaranteed. Dancing will be from 9 to 2, with an intermission for ice cream and cake, which will be served by "Curley." Blewett's orchestra will furnish the music.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pease and children of Park Point, spent Sunday with George Hatch and family.

W. J. Ryan returned this week from Grand Rapids, Mich., where he had been visiting relatives for some time.

The Five Hundred Card club met at the home of Mrs. H. I. Schell, last Tuesday afternoon. Pink carnations were the decorations. Mrs. H. H. Peyton carried away the head prize, and Mrs. P. C. Mitchell, the foot prize. The club will next be entertained on Friday, May 22, at the home of Mrs. Charles Connors.

Miss Marjorie Grierson leaves Friday night with Miss Clare Sullivan, the school teacher, to spend a few days in Two Harbors.

Harry Franklin of Shell Lake, and brother George of Superior, Wis., spent last Sunday at Proctor.

Pat J. Conway spent last Monday in Superior.

The freight house was moved last Friday and is now in its new location on the Duluth, Misabe & Northern property across from the Quackenbush corner. This change will greatly facilitate the handling of freight, as the old location was very inconvenient, owing to the tracks and poor road that had to be crossed to get to it.

The boys' class at the Y. M. C. A. will play a basketball game next Wednesday evening, May 20. The proceeds will go toward paying for the piano which has been in use at the east side school for the past three months. Prof. Holbrook saw at once the necessity of a piano and purchased one and had it installed on his own responsibility.

The ladies' class at the Y. M. C. A. will play a game of basketball in the gymnasium next Tuesday evening. Ladies only admitted. Proceeds will go to the school piano fund.

Freddie Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Anderson, is reported convalescing after a severe case of typhoid fever.

A meeting will be held at the village hall on Wednesday evening, June 3, for the purpose of organizing a brass band. All those who are desirous of joining an organization of this kind are urged to be present at this meeting. T. J. Collins is the principal promoter and any information desired may be obtained from him.

T. J. Collins was in Eveleth between trains Wednesday of this week on business.

Rev. C. W. Ramshaw and family will leave next Monday for Chicago, where they will visit for about three weeks with parents and friends.

The regular services will be conducted Sunday in the Methodist church by Rev. C. W. Ramshaw. During the pastor's absence E. S. Davis, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will conduct the morning services on May 24 and 31 in the church. In the evenings of the above mentioned dates appropriate stereopticon lectures will be given at the Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. William Carrs and daughter, Elizabeth, will leave about May 23 for a visit with relatives in Des Moines, Iowa.

Lamp of 1,500,000 Candle Power.

The problem of better lighting of large spaces has been solved by Ralph Scott, who has invented an arc lamp of 1,500,000 candle power. The light cast by this lamp will be extremely brilliant and will radiate over an area of more than two miles. The problem of better health is easily solved if you will keep on hand and serve regularly at mealtime, a god malt tonic, such as golden grain belt beer. This is a favorite table beverage, owing to the delicacy of its flavor and value as a food tonic. Order of your nearest dealer, or be supplied by Duluth Branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

BOY KILLS GIRL WITH SHOTGUN

Tragedy and Accident Occurs Near City of Eau Claire.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gertrude Kopp, the 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ormal Kopp, living in the town of Brunswick, near here, was shot accidentally, yesterday, by the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Droge, neighbors, and instantly killed. The dead girl, with her 11-year-old brother and young Droege, who was carrying a shotgun to shoot gophers, were herding cows along the road near the Kopp farm, when the shotgun in some unknown manner went off in the hands of young Droege, instantly killing the girl. The entire charge entered her side, inflicting a ghastly and mortal wound. The two boys, frantic with grief, attempted to carry the dead body to the Kopp home, but becoming frightened, dropped it and ran to the house, telling of the tragedy. The girl's parents were driven nearly crazy over the affair. Young Droege is also in a frenzy over the result of his carelessness. District Attorney Arnold and Coroner Stokes are investigating, and if the facts are as reported, there will probably be no prosecution.

Miss Julia Donovan,

With the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury, will give a song recital at the Lyceum, next Thursday evening. Seats now on sale.

HOUSE SENDS VREELAND BILL TO CONFERENCE.

Washington, May 16.—The Vreeland currency bill, as amended by the senate, went to the house at 5:10 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and immediately was called up by Mr. Burton, Ohio, who moved to suspend the rules, disagree to the amendments, and ask a conference.

After a sharp colloquy between Mr. Burton and Mr. Fowler, in which the latter characterized as false a statement that he had opposed his own bill, a vote was taken on the motion to ask for a conference.

The vote resulted—Yeas, 150; nays, 103; "present" 6, and the bill was sent to conference.

The speaker announced the names of Messrs. Vreeland, New York; Burton, Ohio; Weeks, Massachusetts, (Republicans); and Glass, Virginia, and Pujo, Louisiana as the conferees on the part of the house.

FRESHMAN SPREAD.

Under Classmen at High School Hold Annual Banquet.

The Freshman class was the center of attraction at the Central high school last evening, the occasion being the class spread. All of the first year students were on hand, and teachers, some upper classmen and other bidden guests joined them in the fun.

The banquet was served in the school room. Robert Mars, president of the class, was toastmaster and he was most happy in introductions of the following speakers: Wendell Moore, who spoke on "D. C. H. S;" Stanley Lamb, whose topic was "The Girls;" Palmer Bevis who spoke on "The Faculty;" Philip Poirier, president of the senior class; George Ostergren of the juniors; Russel Mather of the sophomores, and Mr. Smith, Miss Moulton and Miss McEwen of the faculty.

After the speeches, the Freshmen and their guests repaired to the main hall, where a dancing program was given. The hall was very prettily decorated.

MUD SLIDE COVERS TRACKS.

Winnipeg, Man., May 16.—An extensive mud slide occurred yesterday morning, four miles south of Fernie, B. C., on the Great Northern railway track, covering the rails for a distance of 150 feet.

like committee of the Methodist Episcopal church to consummate such result. In introducing the resolution, Dr. Goucher said that "reasons for a division no longer exist and much is to be gained by union."

Dr. J. M. Buckley, advocating the adoption of the resolution said: "Our fathers laid down truths for which they fought. The church has since repudiated them. Members of the general conference at that time thought there could be no legislation to admit laymen to the general conference. This will be changed and the Methodist Protestant church, which was founded as a result of this decision, has done splendid work. I believe all Methodists should unite. I do not want to connect with the Protestant Episcopal church because I do no want men belonging to a third order to rule me. I have great admiration for the Presbyterian, Baptist and Congregational churches, but cannot be a member of any of them, because I do not believe all they think."

The Amusement Question.

Rev. Dr. L. W. Munhall of Germantown, Pa., is circulating a pamphlet among the delegates, which has aroused keen interest in the amusement question. Dr. Munhall is the great and stalwart defender of the Bible against the higher critics, and he now enters the arena against those who would weaken Paragraph 248, making certain amusements, such as dancing and card playing a matter of the individual conscience and not a law of the church, as at present. In the bishops' address, they suggest leaving out the words, "dancing, card playing, theater going," and leaving in "worldly amusements." The bishops attitude in not taking the ban off dancing, but leaving it to the individual conscience of the members. The bishops think this will have a greater effect on the membership than the present Paragraph 248, which is practically a dead letter in the Methodist churches in certain towns and cities. There will be a strong opposition to any change in the discipline. The colored delegations are solid against it, and the Scandinavians and Germans are unalterably opposed to any change at this time which would give an impression that the church's ban is off amusements.

Rev. G. E. Cooke of New York, who has preferred charges against Bishops McDowell, Hamilton, Moore and Berry, was for some time a member of the Minnesota conference and stationed at Albert Lea, Dodge Center and other towns. His brother, Rev. E. A. Cooke of Renville, who is the statistical secretary of the Northern Minnesota conference, is here visiting. Dr. Moore is known as a militant pastor and as a fighting parson. "He has been a fighter from his youth, and the whole Cooke family is ready for a likely time when they are roused up," was the comment of Rev. E. A. Cooke on his brother's attack on the bishops. The pamphlet preferring the charges of maladministration of the bishops was circulated among the delegates and given freely to the press. It is a bitter document. The whole affair grows out of the bishops not sustaining Dr. Cooke in his charges against Rev. Dr. James Buckley, who defended Dr. Browne of Boston university from heresy charges preferred by Dr. Cooke, and also of Dr. Buckley's defense of Chancellor Day of Syracuse. The bishops sustained Dr. Buckley against the charges made by Dr. Cooke, and so the latter accuses the bishops of maladministration. Though the charges go out to the public, the episcopacy committee thinks lightly about the whole matter. Dr. Buckley is the chairman of the committee.

Judge Charles A. Pollock of Fargo has been appointed on several of the most prominent of the committees and was one of a committee to visit congress and the speaker of the house on temperance matters. Governor Hanley was the chairman of the committee. This committee was not at all pleased at its reception by Speaker Cannon, and some straight talk resulted between the delegation and the speaker of the house.

Rev. J. G. Moore of Grand Forks has been selected as committeeman for the Twelfth district, of which there are fifteen members, representing sixty delegates.

Rev. S. M. Trousdale of La Crosse is perhaps the most forceful member of the two Wisconsin delegations. He has introduced several resolutions and made able speeches upon them in the general conference and has introduced memorials on several important matters. His resolution to consolidate the two missionary papers, The World Wide Missions and the Christian Republic, brought him in conflict with two of the ablest debaters in the whole conference, Dr. Leonard of Cincinnati and Dr. Robert Forbes. After a long speech by Dr. Trousdale, the previous question was called and Dr. Trousdale's motion was given its death blow. But the matter will be discussed in the executive committee.

Thomas H. Martin of Duluth is busy at work on the committees on revision, boundaries and temperance. He has made an indefatigable committeeman and is doing splendid work. He visited Washington and saw Senator Nelson on Monday.

Rev. Dr. Clemans of Duluth preached in the Waugh Methodist Episcopal church in Washington, D. C., on Sunday last. This church is situated next the executive offices, and the doctor had a good hearing. A great many words of praise were heard of his acceptable services. Already he has been requested to give them a lecture some time in the near future.

AT THE LYCEUM

May Robson Coming in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary"---Revival of the Old Favorite, "The Burgomaster," Friday and Saturday.

"The Rejunevation of Aunt Mary," a new American comedy by Anne Warner, will be seen at the Lyceum on Monday and Tuesday.

May Robson, the well-known character actress, has the title role in this delightful comedy, and comes direct from the Studebaker theater, Chicago, where it has been indorsed by all the critics as one of the best comedies ever pdesented on the stage, and where it has played to crowded houses nightly for the past three months.

The story of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" concerns a maiden aunt who lives in the country and who hates the city. Her nephew Jack is attending college in the city and between times manages to get into all kinds of scrapes, the last one bing with a cabman, whom he beats up pretty badly. To get out of this it is necessary to get $500 from his Aunt Mary, or, according to a published report in a morning paper, the cabman's wife will sue him for $5,000.

While Jack is explaining all this to his aunt, her lawyer arrives and informs her a girl whom Jack met while in Chicago, and who comes from Kalamazoo, has sued Jack for $25,000 breach of promise. This is too much for Aunt Mary who sends Jack away and will have nothing to do with him. Jack goes back to New York to live with his chum Bob, who has a very pretty sister, Betty, with whom Jack is desperately in love, but who will have nothing to do with him until he will mend his ways. It being Betty's birthday the boys have decided to give her a dinner, and while everything is being prepared, a telegram comes to the house announcing that Aunt Mary is on her way to the city. The boys rush madly off to meet her. Betty sends her maid away and takes her place so she can look after Aunt Mary. In some way or other the boys miss the train and Aunt Mary arrives alone. While waiting in the parlor she picks up a copy of the evening paper and on the front page sees the picture of the girl from Kalamazoo, and her own nephew. Betty then comes in and shows Aunt Mary to her room.

In the meantime the boys arrive. They, too, have seen the evening paper, and tell the footman not to allow a copy to come into the house. Aunt Mary comes in and is introduced to the boys. Then Jack, for the first time, finds out that one of them had written his aunt telling her he had the measles. After dinner an automobile ride is suggested. This Aunt Mary thoroughly enjoys, even to the cigarettes and drinks, and a 4 o'clock in the morning, when the boys are tired out, she still wants to go.

After spending a week or so in New York, Aunt Mary returns to the country, only to find life there too slow. She sends for Betty, and on her arrival, the first thing she asks for is a cigarette as she is dying to smell one. She also wants to play poker. Jack, not knowing Betty is at his aunt's, comes down to see her and explains all. In the meantime, Aunt Mary has fixed everything with the girl from Kalamazoo. Jack tells Aunt Mary of his love for Betty, and all is forgiven. Aunt Mary calls in her two old servants, gives them the house, and tells them to get married. She goes back to New York and buys a house for Jack and Betty.

In selecting a company to support Miss Robson, Mr. Sire has surrounded her with a strong cast. The production is complete in every detail, having been produced under the personal direction of E. F. Bostwick.

"THE BURGOMASTER."

Old Favorite Musical Comedy Will Return to the Lyceum.

Effeveresecing with musical gems of genuine merit, in fact Pixley & Luder's best effort, that old favorite "The Burgomaster," will come to the Lyceum Friday and Saturday, matinee and night.

All the old favorites, "Goodbye New Amsterdam," "Keep Cool," "We're Civilized Now," "The Dutch Cadets," "I Drink From My Heart to You," "We Always Work the Public," "Little Soubrette," "Dear Old College Days," "Rainy Daisies," "Tales of the Kangaroo," "I Love You Dear and Only You," "Cupid Does Not Marry," "Modern Gladiator" and "Haven't Discovered Him Yet" will again be heard, as well as several entirely new and original interpolated numbers, including one entitled, "How Many Have You Told That To?" Gus Weinburg and Ruth White are still with the company.

"TOODLES IN HOLLAND."

T. P. Getz Will Put on Musical Comedy for Modern Samaritans.

Under the direction of T. P. Getz, who has put on more local shows than any man in America, the rehearsals for the two-act musical comedy, "Toodles in Holland," are being held nightly, and under the auspices of Alpha council of the Modern Samaritans it will be given at the Lyceum May 29 and 30. About seventy-five local people will be in the cast, which includes dainty Clara Collier as Lady Bountiful, Flora McDonald as Toodles, Don M. Clark as J. Irving Mansfield, Joseph Schwartz as Isidore Macolovitch, D. R. Elick as Foxy Grandpa, Walter Smith as Van Dyke Brown, Jack McLaughlin as Harrigan, Margarot Nordell as Sis Hopkins and the Misses Estelle Quinchy, Clara O'Donnell, Edith Dahl, Louise Burthurck, Lillie Larson, Ollie Capron, Goody Anderson, Mina Clark, Anna Hoffman, May Teska, Miss Bruhe, Cora Ryning, Hattie Plaunt and Messrs. Arthur Meagher, Elmer Lindsay, Walter Robinson, Walter Richardson, John Trecise, John Clark, Harry Baker, Ray Nelson, Ed Monoghan and a pony ballet of twenty young school girls in big singing and dancing numbers. Prof. Walter Smith is in charge of the vocal music and is arranging some beautiful choruses.

Summer Stock Company.

The Mack-Leone players will open their summer stock season at the Lyceum theater on June 1 and continue throughout the entire summer. Mr. Mack has secured, by special arrangement with Selwyn & Co., what will, without a doubt, prove to be the strongest bills that have ever been played by any stock company in the country, among which will be James K. Hackett's two greatest successes, "John Glady's Honor" and "The Walls of Jericho," the latter probably the greatest drama of modern times; "The Man on the Box," the vehicle which has made Max Figman a star; "Mrs. Dane's Defense," which was played for several years by Miss Rose Coghlan; "Strongheart," the play that has brought Robert Edeson, Ralph Stuart and Edgar Selwyn into prominence; "Heartsease," Henry Miller's delightful romance, and "The Wolf," Eugene Walter's latest play. Mr. Walters is the author of "Paid in Full," which is the phenomenal success of the present New York and Chicago seasons, and it is said by those who have read his latest play that it is fully the equal of "Paid in Full."

Miss Helen Holmes, who is quite a favorite here in Duluth, having been seen here as leading lady for W. H. Stoddart in "The Bonnie Brier Bush," Dustin Farnum in "The Virginian," Max Figman in "The Man on the Box," and who has just closed with Augustus Thomas' sensational success, "The Witching Hour," will play the leading roles in support of Mr. Mack and his company. Miss Agnes Bllal, who was seen here last summer in the ingenue roles, will again be with the company. Percy Leonard, late of "The Shepherd King" company, will play the juvenile roles. In addition to the new members all the former favorites will remain with the company, and Duluth can be congratulated on having with them this summer such a splendid organization.

AT THE BIJOU

Famous Family of Gymnasts, the Big Feature for Next Week---The Apollo Quartet Will be Another Expensive Feature.

The patrons of the Bijou will not want for variety next week.

The program is headed by the most famous of all gymnastic troupes, the Eddy Family, who is claimed to be the leader of all gymnastic and wire performers. They have been engaged to play the United Theater company's vadeville circuit at heavy expense, and are now making their first tour in vaudeville. The past several seasons they have been appearing for long runs at the Winter Garden, Berlin, the New York Hippodrome and the larger circuses and amphitheaters in both Europe and America. The feats performed by this noted family are said to be very sensational and daring. One of the most difficult feats done by one of the male members is that of turning a complete flip upon a single wire. They will appear at each performance next week.

A fine attraction will be Stine and Evans, who present a sketch written by James Gorman entitled "Wanted, a Divorce." Mr. Stine has been starred in many well known road shows, while Miss Evans is one of the best character actresses in vaudeville. The sketch is full of comedy and dramatic situations that offer these capable entertainers an opportunity to be seen at their best.

Nellie Burt, a comedienne of considerable note, will present her vaudeville offering of character changes, portraying several different types that are well known to the general public. With each impersonation she introduces songs, dances and comedy sayings.

A good novelty will be Fred W. Morton, who is a musician, comedian, and who tears beautiful designs and patterns in paper.

As an extra feature attraction, the Apollo quartet will be seen in their original act entitled "The Man Outside." A complete set of scenery is carried for the act and as a musical offering it stands ahead of anything ever seen at the Bijou in the quartet line.

The motion pictures will be "The Scullion's Dream" and "What a Razor Will Do." Matinees are given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either telephone. A school children's matinee will be given Saturday afternoon and performances Sunday afternoon and night.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Some Wonderful Receipts in a Dull Season—Enormous Sum Paid by New York for Its Theatrical Entertainment.

New York, May 16.—An interesting estimate is placed on the gross receipts of a number of the most successful attractions that have been offered in New York during the current season. These figures are interesting as a side light to a season that had barely opened ere the commercial conditions of the country were badly upset by heavy bank failures and general disturbances in business circles, normally presaging disaster to all forms of public amusement enterprises. This forecast, however, has not been borne out by the results. The gross receipts of forty-five theaters, not counting tthe minor playhouses devoted to motion pictures and similar entertainments, are roughly estimated at $10,000,000, or $222,225 for each.

Long runs have been the rule above previous seasons, probably due to the superior quality of the plays offered.

The best money maker of the New York season, "The Merry Widow," is credited with a gross of nearly $750,000. The Empire is believed to have taken in $35,0000 with John Drew, Maud Adams and W. H. Crane.' At the Lyceum, where "The Thief" began the season and has maintained its popularity to the present, the total receipts amounted to something like $300,000. The receipts of "Paid in Full," at the Astor, have averaged $1,000 a day. David Warfield's takings in "A Grand Army Man" and "The Music Master," at the Stuyvesant, amounted to upward of $250,000 for the season, and "The Warrens of Virginia," at the Belasco, now at the Stuyvesant, is numbered among the steady money makers of the season.

"The Witching Hour" will total above $175,000 on the season at the Hackett, and Mabel Taliafero, in "Polly of the Circus," at the Liberty, with about the same gross. The nine weeks that Otis Skinner has played "The Honor of the Family" at the Hudson have brought about $50,000 to that playhouse. Harry Lauder and Adelina Genee must have swelled the receipts of the New York theater to $250,000 or more.

Victor Moore in "The Talk of New York" played to about $7,000 a week at the Knickerbocker, and for five months Lew Fields and "The Girl Behind the Counter" enriched the treasury of the Herald Square by about $10,000 a week, with a general average of $7,000. At Wallack's "A Knight For a Day" proved a popular card, and in twenty-six weeks "The Top of the World" did $8,000 a week at the Majestic, and "The Round Up" at the Broadway took in $11,000 weekly for sixteen weeks before it made way for "A Waltz Dream," which further kept the receipts well above $10,000 a week for some time.

Joe Weber started the season at his playhouse with a loss, but recouped himself handsomely with a burlesque on "The Merry Widow," breaking the house record in the third week. It will close to a gross of more than $150,000. At the Casino Sam Bernard has played to an average of $5,000 a week; and another Shubert attraction, "Girls," is a $7,000 a week magnet at Daly's "Miss Hook of Holland" played to good business for some time at the Criterion, and E. H. Sothern kept the receipts at a high average during an unusually long run for a legitimate star in repertoire at the Lyric. Among the money-makers of the season, also, were Williams and Walker at the Majestic.

An important gathering of the magnates who control the popular-price play circuit, now in session at West Baden, Ind., portends a change in the policy of producing cheap melodramas at the ministock playhouses all over the country, and is significant in connection with the steady decline in this form of amusement, denoted by the falling off of receipts during the present season. The better class of managers openly rejoice in the latter condition, while the men who have so long profited by the production of plays like "The Queen of the Opium Ring," "The Gambler's Bride," "The Fatal Wedding," etc., frankly admit that the public has outlived that class of plays. They have lost heavily this season, and sometime ago E. D. Stair, head of the well-known firm which controls the minor theaters in the United States, sent word to his New York representative to stop booking dramatic nightmares over the Stair & Havlin circuit. As a result of the conference in Indiana it is hoped that a better line of plays will be encouraging.

Beyond all doubt the lively competition between the two big opera companies has had a benevolent and far-reaching influence on the development of popular appreciation of music in this city. It requires no gift of prophecy to forsee that New York is destined within a comparatively short time to become musically as advanced as London and Milan. That this is no extravagant prediction is evidenced by a remarkable revival of interest in opera among the plain people, for just now no less than three grand opera companies are established here or about to begin work. At the West end theater the Helen Noldi Opera company is playing grand opera at popular prices. Monday night the Italian Grand Opera company move up from the Academy of Music to begin an engagement at the American theater, where the blood-and-thunder drama has held sway all season. Now S. Kronberg, an ambitious impressario, announces that he has formed an opera ccmpany to compete with these. It is to be known as the Knickerbocker Grand Opera company, and will open its season with a week in Boston, after which it will be brought to the Lyric theater in New York, the latter part of the month. The company will be headed by Adelina Padovani, a coloratura soprano from South America, and Laura Rethy, a dramatic soprano, who has been singing at the Royal Opera in Budapest. At the American theater a very creditable performance of "Aida" was witnessed on Monday evening, and the manager announced that if the support so far accorded him should continue he would give grand opera at popular prices all of next season in opposition to the Manhattan and Metropolitan companies. At the West end "Traviata" was the bill, with "Aida" in preparation.

David Warfield closed his eight months' engagement at the Stuyvesant theater a week ago in "A Grand Army Man," and Charlotte Walker and Frank Keenan, in "The Warrens of Virginia," were moved from the Belasco to the Stuyvesant, opening in William De Mille's play. Warfield sailed for Naples on the steamship Hamburg, May 14, to enjoy a well-earned vacation and to meet Belasco in the south of France in June.

They will go to London from there after a conference regarding Warfield's engagement in the English metropolis. Belasco is scheduled to sail the latter part of May for France, to put the finishing touches to the new play on which he has been engaged all winter. Warfield hails with a feeling of genuine relief his prospect of a rest, for he has been working almost incessantly for two years. When his tour closed in "The Music Master" last June he hastened home to begin the study of his role in "A Grand Army Man," and after four weeks began rehearsals, from which there was no escape until the new play was produced in October.

Olga Nethersole has returned to the city and opened at the Grand Opera House in "Sapho," to be followed by "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" and another of her old repertoire. The new French plays that she brought over this season are not included in this list, and I hear from a good source that the actress has at last made up her mind to try a play by an American author if she can be suitably fitted with a role. She has fought as heroically for the recognition of the new French school of playwrights as Duse did for the recognition of D'Annunzio, and with about the same unfortunate result. The outre nature of these harrowing plays has failed signally in appealing to American audiences. For three years she persisted in her attempt to transplant these Gallic products to the American stage. It cost her money and anxiety, but her friends advised her in vain to undertake the production of an American play. Her experience this season, however, has altered her plans, and her summer will be devoted to efforts of discovering a drama by a native author suited to her capacities, failing in which she will turn to the English playwrights for new material.

The Shuberts are ready to make a practical test of the phonograph as an accessory to the legitimate drama. They have chosen "The Wolf" for the initial experiment, and whatever the result may be, it makes interesting reading how they are calling upon the talking machine to secure realistic atmosphere in the action of at least one of their productions. The effect aimed at was to produce the howling of a pack of wolves in the last act of the drama. This is the scene in which the fight to death between Baublen, the young Canadian hero, and MacDonald, the villian of the play, takes place in the darkness of the wilderness. This effect is to be heightened in the manner indicated, on the theory that the howling of wolves in the distance gives color and substance to the horror of the suspense engendered by the problem who has been killed in the darkness. The enterprising author arranged for a phonographic record to be made of the howling of the wolves at the Zoo. At the proper moment the property man turns the crank, and if everything goes according to schedule, the audience at the Lyric will experience the novel satisfaction of knowing that the atmosphere of the Canadian backwoods is really something more than mechanical, and that the blood-curdling howls emanate from the throats of real wolves.

Henry Miller and Frank McKee formed a partnership by which the former occupies the stage of the Savoy Theater in New York for the next three years and will there make all of his productions of new plays. He has some under consideration now by William Vaughn Moody and Charles Rand Kennedy, authors of the successful Miller offerings, "The Great Divide" and "The servant in the House." The latter play in book form has just been published and is creating something of a sensation in the literary world.

Two American acts now running in the London Music Halls are the specialty of the Rooney Sisters and the sketch of William Gould and Valeska Suratt. The latter, in her Gibson Girl types, has made a hit in London. They opened there at the Alhambra last week.

"The Merry Widow," easily the one distinct hit of the season in New York and Chicago, will remain in the East all summer, as it is planned to keep the company now playing at the New Amsterdam intact and hold them there as long as the public interest warrants the run. The Chicago company will run well up to June, making a new mark for attractions of that sort in the Windy City.

Ada Reeve, who is a prime favorite of the musical stage in London, is more than likely to be seen in this country next season, as an American tour is contemplated. Miss Reeve is now appearing in a new musical piece, the book of which was written by W. J. Locke, the popular novelist. Miss Reeve's newest offering is called "Butterflies." It is well spoken of in London, and will likely be the vehicle used by her in the event she comes to America. She created half a dozen striking parts in as many London hits the past ten seasons or more, and was the original Lady Hollyrood in "Floredora" during its London run.

It seems that the Americans have not all the monopoly on ligitation growing out of the Merry Widow presentations. In Paris recently the management of a new revue utilized four songs in the Lehar piece, and an effort was made to prevent the use of the same. Maitre Cremieux, for the defense, set up that the Lustige Witwe was taken from Meilhac's "Attaché," and that the heirs of Meilhac had never shared in the profits of the new piece, and therefore the work had been wrongfully set to music. No final adjustment of the legal quarrel has yet been reached.

The members of the Gaities Company to present "His Honor, the Mayor" in Chicago all summer arrived there last week and are now rehearsing in the Auditorium, where they will play. Harry Kelly, Trixie Friganza, and Rena Davies are prominent members of the cast.

Billy B. Van and Rose Beaumont have finished their spring vaudeville engagements and will retire in a small New Hampshire town, where the Patsy comedian owns a sawmill and will put in next season sawing wood and saying nothing. He will also rest up and wait for a better time to cut into the show game.

Edmund Breeze, who has played "The Lion and the Mouse" since its first great hit, will tour in that play again in the early half of next season, by which time Manager Henry B. Harris announces he will have a new play for his debut as a star. The new effort will be called "The Nebraskan," and is a play by Edith Ellis, of which much is expected.

Miss Marie George, who dropped out of the musical comedy field in this country several seasons back, after a quarrel with Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger, has been engaged by Joseph Brooks to return to the country next season and star in a new musical piece. Miss George, since her departure from America, has been making a big hit in the pantomimes and musical offering in London.

The decision of Judge Lacombe in the United States circuit court for New York, holding that moving picture representations of current plays were regarded under the law as theatrical exhibitions, and thereby an infringement of the copyright of the said play will put many a moving picture enterprise out of the running. The action was that brought by the joint interests in the book and play of "Ben-Hur," and an injunction was granted them restraining all moving picture machine managers from using the films of these plays in the future without the consent of the parties holding the original copyrights. This law as interpreted by Judge Lacombe will work to the benefit of the managers who have been affected by the wholesale use of their productions without warrant, and it sounds the death knell of a developing enterprise which was reaching stupendous proportions. It will affect thousands of 5 and 10-cent moving picture shows throughout the country.

A story illustrative of George M. Cohan's generosity is being told in theatrical circles. The object of the charity is George Fuller Golden, the monologue artist and original president of the White Rats of America. Golden has been in failing health for several seasons, and has been compelled to live in the mountains the greater part of the year. His small fortune was long since exhausted, and in order to get enough money together to spend his days in a climate where he may regain his health the comedian was been getting up a book called the "History of the White Rats." Last week he approached Cohan and asked him to take an ad in the book. Cohan in turn wrote out a check for $10,000 and handed it to Golden. When asked by the beneficiary what he could do in return, Cohan replied:

"Give me a half page in the book and go and get well if you can."

There is a rumor that Stair and Havlin are contemplating turning over a number of their houses to a new circuit of high-class burlesque. It is said that this scheme will be outlined to fill the place of the melodramas that have been going by the wayside for the past two seasons. It is evident that the latter style of amusement is very much on the wane, and the managers are endeavoring to find a suitable line of shows to take up the place. It is said that if the Stair & Havlin houses are so adjusted that they can throw some of them into a burlesque circuit, then these will be operated independent of the two existing burlesque wheels, which will make three houses given over to that sort of shows in a number of cities.

Says Margaret Anglin: "I am eager to win recognition as a comedienne. Only once in my footlight career did I ever essay comedy, and that was seasons ago with E. H. Sothern, when Virginia Harned was suddenly taken ill, and in the emergency I acted the role of Lady Ursula in Anthony Hope's dainty comedy of that name. Now that I have been appearing in emotional parts for so long, until I have become virtually identified with such characters as Mrs. Dane, or Zira, or Ruth Jordan in "The Great Divide," I have a keen yearning to try my Thespian fortune at lighter characterization."

Montgomery and Stone, in Charles Dillingham's production, "The Red Mill," which played in Chicago for eleven weeks early this season, closed their tour at the Princess theater, Toronto, Can., last Saturday night. In the season of thirty-eight weeks the receipts are said to have averaged over $16,000 a week. David Montgomery, his bank account fattened by the earnings of the play, sailed on Wednesday from New York on a trip around the world, and expects to be back in this country late in August. Fred Stone, the agile comedian of the firm, goes to Alaska on a bear-hunting expedition. He is accompanied by Gilbert H. Hoxie of Chicago, with whom he is interested in business, and by his brother-in-law, Rex Beach, author of "The Spoilers" and "The Barrier."

Eddie Foy, late of "The Orchid" and he who is said to have promised to appear as Hamlet—this self-same actor was seen in vaudeville this week at the Alhambra. His "act" is described as being "unquestionably one of the most amusing that vaudeville has yet known." This is possible for Mr. Foy is always amusing, even despite his alleged aspirations to play in "Hamlet."

The play in which James J. Corbett is to assail the first-class theaters next season is "Facing the Music," a farce in which Henry E. Dixey appeared with slme success several years ago at the Garrick theater.

Anyone who has seen Henri Bernstein's powerful play, "Samson," in Paris, or who has had the opportunity of reading it in published form, must have realized that the task of adapting such a piece into English was one of no easy order. The work has been committed by Mr. Charles Frohman to William Gillette, who on Sept. 25 will himself appear in New York in the part originally created by M. Guitry. Mr. Gillette has been in Biarritz putting the finishing touches to his piece, but is now in London.

Bernstein's next play, now really ready, which is to be Mme. Rejane's first autumn production, has also been acquired by Mr. Frohman for England and America. It is described by him as a compact drama of "The Thief" category; that is to say, it is a remorseless exposition of the foibles and weaknesses of human nature, the culminating point being reached in the penultimate act in a scene of extraordinary force.

MAY ROBSON,
As "Aunt Mary" at the Lyceum Monday and Tuesday.

KICKED ON LEG PAINTING

It May Have Been All Right With the Medieval Knights But Not for Champs of Merry Widow Hat.

Boston, Mass., May 16.—"My goodness gush, say, isn't it awful, Mildred? But no one is going to paint stripes on me just because they can't find enough—what's that? Didn't you hear about it?

"Take off your ear muffs; where you been, diggin' after sooveners over to Chelsa? Why, I'll bet ever dramatic editor in New England has heard of it before this. Harry Luther, the endless chain press agent, handed it to me as a freak because it is a straight, honest to goodness and actu-ally true yarn.

Ballast All Out.

"Stop talking and tell you? Say, ain't you the Kippy thing, though. The ballast is all out of your airship. How can I tell you about it if I stop talking? Hurry? Well, ain't I hurrying?

"Harry says Boston is sadly shy on the chorus girls' friends——

"You got forty close friends and a couple steadies? Who said anything about the Willies or John Golds? How long have you been a footlight favorite, fifteen minutes? Say, where did you come from, East Walpole? I'm talking about tights, t-i-g-h-t-s, not mitts or puff sleeves or ruching.

Famine of Tights.

"Well, did a lump of understanding hit you between the eyes at last? Yes, that's what I am telling you. Harry says there ain't enough tights in Boston to fit us out for "The Rounders" when it is put on at the Globe next week.

"Yes, a tight famine of tights in Boston, now is the time to make a crack about wearing blue stockings, but what's the use, you wouldn't appreciate it, would you? Harry says that Mr. Mayer and Mr. Sweeney, who are making the Globe Boston's only musical comedy house in their order for 200 pairs of tights to the biggest dealers in Boston, and they couldn't do anything except cotton. Well, it's a mighty good thing that Mayer and Sweeney are wise to the fact that we may be poor, but we're mighty proud and no cotton for us. Me in cotton tights? Silk lisle for us, and there ain't enough of 'em in town just now to fit out a one-act vaudeville bunch.

Nix on the Stripes.

"What are we goin' to do? Say, if I knew I'd be running this outfit, wouldn't I? And if I was, do you think I'd be talking here with you? All I know is that Mayer and Sweeney have wired to New York and they say nothin' doin' for ten days. Fierce, ain't it?

"What did I say about paintin' stripes on me? I said nix on the stripes, that's what I said. Who, me? Well, I should say not, k-n-o double t. Nobody asked to paint stripes on me. I just said that to cheer you up, if there ain't no tights there ain't no show, that's all. I know I read once about a swell guy with a title and a debt that would make Jawn D. forget his religion, who lived when the yaps all wore tights and long hair and horse collars, who was too poor to go to some swell junket at the queen's ball because he had no tights and he got an artist to paint his legs.

Got Enough Coming.

"Do I think—well, if you ain't the limit and eight hand 'round. Of course, I don't think. But if we can't borrow some tights pretty soon I give it up. But ain't is a screech, s'pose they was to paint our—what's that? Yet, I was just thinking of her, wouldn't she look like a legless wonder—why, hello Mary, we were just talking about you, about waht a lovely—. We— heard what news?

"No! Is that so? Well, then, Mildred, it's all right, did you hear that? Mary says Mr. Mayer and Mr. Sweeney have got enough tights coming for the bunch from New York so it's all the saccharine, but say, there's still a famine of tights in Boston all right, all right."

PATHETIC PARADE.

Drunken "Jack," His Pal, and Policeman March Along Bowery.

A pathos parade was the leading amusement of the Bowery yesterday afternoon. An officer of the law, a thoroughly intoxicated lumberjack, and a pal who was not quite so far to the covers, were the participants in the amble that extended from between Sixth and Seventh avenues west to the patrol box on Michigan street.

The officer was required to assume a slow and methodical galt, as he was forced to drag the form of the thoroughly drunken "Jack." The other man walked unsteadily at the side of the arm of the law, expostulating against the arrest of his companion, begging for his release and telling the officers of his many good qualities.

All pleading was in vain, however, and when the patrol wagon had received its human cargo and the closing of the door of the wagon had shut off the view of the friend, he sat down on the wet curb and indulged in hot tears, that offered liquid contrast to the cold rain that drizzled down the dirty face of the weeping "jack."

Disturbed the Congregation.

The person who disturbed the congregation last Sunday by continually coughing is requested to buy a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar. At all druggists.

ODD WAYS OF MAKING MONEY

Schemes Evolved Under Stress of Necessity---No Country Where It is so Easy to Make Money as in United States.

In the whole history of the world there has never been a country where it is so easy to make money as in the United States, and this is the most prosperous time the people of our nation have ever known. That there are many ways of making a living besides being a life insurance president, a prizefighter or a hodcarrier is shown by the following collection of unusual occupations.

Of the whole list of unique callings that have come to my attention none is more peculiar than the business of "Dr. Cockroach" of Louisville. For a stipulated annual consideration the "Doctor" contracts to keep one's premises rid of cockroaches. He does not whistle them away like the Pied Piper of Hamlin, but at regular intervals he comes around with queer looking tools and mysterious powders, by means of which he persuades the cockroaches to go.

"Bird Doctor and Specialist" is the sign on the shingle which hangs in front of an establishment on Broadway in New York. The proprietor is a young woman who takes mamma's pet canary to board while the family is away at the seashore or absent from home at other times. She also has a hospital for sick birds and teaches backward songsters their mission in the world. While it might seem that this young woman is making small use of her time, she really knows all about birds and their troubles and is able to make a competence from her work.

An Englishman possessed of a small annuity and in bad health went to El Paso, Tex. The expenses of living were so great in the Southwestern city that he soon found his income indequate. He invested all the ready money he had in eight gilt and gaudy popcorn stands, with little engines to run the poppers. The idea worked and before long he branched out to San Antonio. He soon worked up a baby trust which brought him a income of $8,000 a year.

A woman in Boston makes a business of taking inventories of houses which are rented furnished. She comes to the house and makes complete lists in triplicate of every article, with a description of its condition. When the house is given up she comes again and checks over the household goods and appraises the loss or damage. She has been so successful in this kind of work that her services are much in demand.

An Italian in New York takes over the rubbish from the garbage collections of the great Eastern metropolis at a stated annual price and makes from $20,000 to $30,000 a year from the business. He employs hundreds of sorters and pickers, who go over the rubbish to get out old bottles, rags, rubber, leather and other junk. It is said that he realizes from $2,000 to $3,000 a year on old rubber shoes alone.

A Memphis newspaper woman bodly advertised in the newspapers that for a consideration she would prepare papers to be read at women's clubs, write speeches for banquets or trace pedigrees back to forgotten grandmothers to the colonial dames. Her advertising was persistent until commissions began to come in, and many a woman leader of club life in this or that particular town has shone in the reflected glory of this Southern girl's hard working genius.

Several years ago a shoe buyer for one of the Chicago department stores conceived the idea of buying up slightly damaged or blemished shoes from the manufacturers and retailing the same at a sacrifice price. He opened up with one clerk in a single room near the roof of a skyscraping office building. To get a good pair of $3 shoes with nothing more than a little scratch on them for $2 was such a bargain that customers came fast. The business increased so rapidly that the original store has been enlarged to fifteen rooms and forty clerks are employed instead of one. The capital earned from the original store has been reinvested until now the concern owns eight large stores in other places.

A New Jersey girl, broken down by teaching and office work, was ordered by her doctor to get some occupation which would keep her out of doors. She followed the physician's advice by acquiring a boggy farm in New Jersey, where she began the culture of bullfrogs. Persons who heard of the new venture smiled until they learned that she was making a lot of money selling frog's legs at big prices to New York hotels and restaurants. In order to get the fresh air she does her own killing. Attired in rubber boots, she tramps about the marshes and shoots the frogs with a small rifle.

An enterprising New Yorker makes a business of matching buttons. But this man is no relation to the famous Bim, the Button Man, who makes campaign buttons and badges. Bim makes a specialty of forecasting the action of political conventions. Time and again this enterprising man has successfully defied all the political prophets. In 1900 he staked his reputation on the belief that Roosevelt would be nominated vice president and made a big cleanup from the sale of the buttons at the doors of the convention hall.

The United States consumes millions of olives every year, but they are nearly all unripe. About eight years ago a California woman while traveling abroad learned the secret of pickling a ripe olive in a peculiar fashion. The year after she came home she marketed twenty gallons of ripe olives. Three years later she could not begin to fill the orders which came to her and now she is annually marketing over 100,000 gallons of ripe olive oil and pickled olives.

A novel way of making a living is to do other people's reading for them. In the old days when a learned man desired to write a scientific book it was a labor of years. Not so nowadays in the United States. Suppose a physician who has attained great prominence as a specialist in the treatment of a peculiar disease desires to perpetuate his fame by writing a book on that subject. What does he do? Merely makes a contract with a professional reader to provide the history of cases of the peculiar disease recorded in the medical journals of all lands. The busy man then goes hastily over his collection, selecting the instances fit for his own use, and thus completes the work of ten years in one year. Not long ago one of our great physicians paid a professional reader $5,000 for compiling certain information for him.

The business of looking up family records to qualify a man or woman for admission to the Sons or Daughters of the American Revolution or other historical societies is as well recognized in Washington as that of the attorney who looks up the war record of a claimant for a pension.

And there are other information bureaus willing and qualified to write a good speech for a budding statesman or make a splendid argument on any side of any question. Or, if the budding statesman desires to write his own speech, and is not familiar with the bypaths of history, the bureau will look up the history of any bit of legislation, seek out the precedents, cite decisions of the courts and otherwise assist and instruct.

Then, if some one out in the "deestrick" desires to oppose the re-election of the same statesman, the versatile bureau people will be willing to provide his enemies with an exact account of everything the gentleman has done, while serving his country as a member of congress.

A woman in Emporia, Kan.—that remarkable small town which no more requires Kansas after it than New York needs the name of its state affixed—has made a lot of money by breeding cats. A St. Louis man, 90 years old and married, yet who is almost a midget, gets a big salary from a shoe company for going about with its traveling men in a Buster Brown costume, hair bobbed and all, and accompanied by a big dog who looks like Tige.

For fourteen years a Kansas City woman made her living and laid by a competence by designing the costumes worn in the annual Priests of Pallas parade. Another woman in Columbia, S. C., is known as "official painter of heraldry to the Daughters of the American Revolution." She makes a snug living by designing and painting coats-of-arms and heraldic designs for those who are vain of their ancestry.

A young woman in Louisville, Ky., began baking cakes for ladies who were giving parties and was so successful that she now owns the largest restaurant in Louisville and conducts a catering business with customers in five states. Every city now has dozens of shopping brokers who advertise to buy things and match samples for people living in the country.

THEY FIGHT OVER LOBSTERS

Government Wardens and Union Lobstermen on the Coast of Maine, Seeking to Stop the Traffic in "Short" Crustaceans.

Will the visitors to the Maine seacoast resorts this summer be able to purchase for a nominal sum the succulent little lobster of illegal size, or must they pay the prevailing high prices for the full grown crustacean?

Not such a terribly vital matter, perhaps, but more important than it appears on its face.

For years and years seven-eights of the Maine lobster fishermen have done a thriving business during the summer months by supplying short lobsters to the cottagers on the hundreds of islands and along the coast. The price has varied from 50 cents to $1 a dozen. While these lobsters are small the meat is deliciously tender and sweet.

And some of these so-called "shorts" are very nearly of legal size to 8, 9 and even 10 inches in length. Although the wardens now have a new way of measuring the bodies of the lobsters, it is practically the same as the old law, which required that the lobster must measure not less than ten and one-half inches from tip to tip.

So, while some of these illegal length lobsters contain nearly as much meat as the lobster of legal length, it is apparent that the only market for them is through some such channel as the summer visitor, who is not "fussy" about the law.

When the vacationist goes to the Maine coast the first thing he wants is lobster, and he wants his fill of it. If he is obliged to buy the legal length crustacean at the current quotation per pound, two fairly good-sized ones will probably spoil a dollar bill for him. Therefore, it is going to make quite a difference to him whether he is to do this, or whether he is to "stand in" with some native lobsterman and get a dozen nearly as large for 75 cents.

The lobster wardens have fought the short lobster men almost from time immemorial with but indifferent success. The Maine fisherman is crafty when it comes to handing short lobsters, and there is a good deal of truth in the remark of one warden, who recently resigned in disgust, declaring that to successfully enforce the lobster law there would have to be an officer to every fisherman.

The Lobster Fisherman's Honor.

But this spring the situation assumed a new phase. Last fall it was decided to adopt different tactics with the fishermen. Emissaries were sent along the coast appealing to the fishermen's sense of honor. So successful were these workers that the Lobster Fishermen's union was formed, and has grown until today it numbers in the neighborhood of 1,500 members. These men have agreed to obey the law and to use every effort in aiding the wardens to bring to justice those who persist in handling short lobsters.

Gratifying as this showing is to the wardens the movement is by no means general. Beginning at Eastport and working westward along the cost the union grew rapidly. When it struck Casco bay it ran against a snag. There are a good many hundred men located west of Cape Small point who make a good living during the summer months in handling lobsters legally, and—well, they can generally furnish whatever size one prefers to pay for. Casco bay is the tourists' mecca, and there is a market for every lobster and as many again as can be caught in its blue waters.

Therefore, while a few small branches of the union have been established at different points in the bay, the average fisherman shrugs his shoulders in disdain and sarcastically remarks that what God put into the sea was for man to take out regardless of its size, color or family history.

And this means war. Perhaps not just the same kind that Gen. Sherman referred to in his notable remark, but a bitter struggle is surely ahead between the wardens and the fishermen that is likely to end in bloodshed, as feeling is very bitter among the non-union men.

James Donohue, commissioner of sea and shore fisheries, against the non-union lobster fishermen. That's what it will be. With the aid of the union members the commissioner believes he can stamp out the short lobster traffic. The non-union fishermen, on the other hand, say that cottagers will be supplied as usual with the coveted undersized crustaceans.

Lobster Dinners to Cost More.

One of the biggest resorts on the New Meadows river, which has always made a specialty of its shore dinners with broiled live or boiled lobsters, using an immense number each week of the summer, hereafter will handle only legal length lobsters. But it raises the price of the dinner.

Already the fishermen are being compelled to use their ingenuity in conducting the traffic. As every union man is to all intents and purposes a warden, it is, as one fisherman put it, "hard to tell who's with ye or agin ye."

In some sections of the bay the wardens and fishermen go about armed, and while law enforcers and law breakers have threatened to blow each others' heads off, so far there has been no bloodshed. But the feeling is growing.

The "pots" or traps of union men have been cut loose, skiffs have been mysteriously smashed, motor boats used by the fishermen sunk at their moorings and other unpleasantries perpetrated that grow more and more serious in character as the fight progresses.

The fishermen invent all sorts of schemes for getting the short lobsters to their customers. A favorite way is to place a bag containing a dozen or so lobsters in some cool crevice between big rocks along the shore known only to fisherman and customer. The latter can happen along a little later, put the lobsters into an old valise or some such receptacle and carry them away without attracting attention.

A MEETING WITH A METEOR

Ship's Remarkable Escape From Fiery Monster That Fell From the Heavens.

The Cambrian, the steamship of which I have the honor to be second officer, is a large cargo vessel of 6,000 tons, and has been engaged for many years in the North Atlantic trade, sailing between London, Boston and New York, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine. We left London on Aug. 7, 1907, on the eventful voyage I am about to describe, and made an ordinary summer's passage across the ocean until within about three days of our destination. The night of Friday, Aug. 16, was one of calm and peaceful beauty—an ideal summer's night. The sky was cloudless and the ocean smooth, save for a slight swell from the northwest, to which the vessel heaved gently as she hastened on her course. Overhead the stars looked bigger and brighter than ordinary, owing to the absence of haze, their light giving an unusual range of observation, while low down on the northern horizon a comet was plainly visible in its wonderful flight across the sky. At midnight the ship was in latitude 42 deg. 5 min. N. and longitude 51 deg. 10 min. W., and was steaming her best to make a good passage.

Eight bells were struck, and Thomas Hughes, the first officer, mounted the ladder to the bridge to relieve me, my watch on deck being over. After some minutes conversation with him, I was about to leave the bridge and go below, when our attention was attracted to an unusual number of stars which were falling from the heavens away over the starboard quarter.

"Hello!" said Hughes, "there's something strange going on up there."

The stars continued falling for about two minutes, and we remarked that they all traveled in very nearly the same direction across the sky, from northeast to southwest. Some of them left trails as they soared over our heads, and the ship's rigging dropped a tracery of shadows along the deck, the effect being the same as a big fireworks display was in progress. Indeed, the stars looked for all the world like the rockets which are used at sea as signals of distress to attract the attention of passing vessels. By and by, however, they grew fainter and less numerous, and presently ceased altogether.

While Hughes and I were standing talking and wondering at the meaning of this unusual stellar activity, another shower took place, even more striking than the first, and soon the display got quite alarming, passing, as nearly all the stars did, directly over the ship. I suggested calling the captain from his berth, which was just under the bridge, as it was a sight well worth turning out to see, but the commander had been on deck a good deal during the passage, and we decided to wait and see what was going to happen before routing him. All the time the stars were becoming more an more luminous.

"I wonder what we are going to get next?" said Hughes, and the words were hardly out of his mouth when, from the sky to the northeast, there flared up something that looked like a rocket, save that it was much larger, and the train of fire that followed its glowing head trailed away behind like a horse's tail, while fragments of fiery matter fell away from it like a shower of spray, and now and then a larger piece dropped off into the sea. We had no time to ponder on the glowing apparation before it had reached the zenith of its bow-like flight, and the light from the incandescent mass fell like the break of day on the deck of the Cambrian, flooding her wake, and apparently heading directly for the ship. By this time, I admit, I was getting a little uneasy, for there was no telling where the thing was going to drop. Mr. Hughes was also speculating on the Cambrian's chances, should this aerial bomb—comet, meteor, or whatever it was—take it into its head to alight on our deck. We both knew well enough it would be all up with our ship; still another vessel would be reported mysteriously missing.

In less time than it takes to tell we were confident that a meteor of enormous size was after us. The suspense was awful. The great luminous shape seemed to pause awhile in its flight, and then drop toward the sea, heading directly for us as it came. Its light transformed the night into day, and the bright stars that had been whizzing and zigzagging here and there were lost sight of in the brilliancy of this newer light. The phenomenon was taking place so quickly that it would have been useless to alter our course in an effort to avoid the onrushing meteor; there was nothing to be done but stand on and take our chances.

As the meteor began to plunge downward in its flight through the atmosphere we heard a strange roaring sound—faint at first, but growing louder and louder as the glowing sphere came nearer. The whole sea and sky were now bathed in a blinding bluish-white light, such as is produced by a calcium burner, and the electric bulbs on the ship became dimmed and turned a sickly yellow.

Nearer and nearer rushed that strange visitor from space, and I caught hold of the bridge rails and held my breath in an agony of suspense. The meteor was now quite close, and such was its brilliance that it was almost impossible to turn our eyes toward it. The hissing and roaring noise which accompanied its progress was sufficient to strike terror into the heart of the most hardened of seamen. In the fraction of a second, as it seemed, its glowing head had expanded to the size of a balloon, against which the funnel and after-masts were sharply silhouetted.

"Good heavens! It's going to drop on the fore-deck!" yelled Hughes. And I, with my ear close to his lips, could scarcely make out his words above the din of the approaching peril.

It was awful to stand there and feel there was no escape from this fiery monster which had dropped upon us from the skies. I felt that the ship was doomed, and I turned my head and waited for the end. Nothing could shut out the dazzling glare of the meteor which pierced through our closed fingers, clasped tight over our faces to protect our eyes. The air was filled with a deafening din, such as a dozen railway trains in a tunnel might create, while the hiss of the fiery fragments as they struck the water gave me the impression of a ship's boilers leaking in every plate. Then, with a crash that shook the ship, the meteor struck the sea—not fifty feet away. The upheaval was terrific, but we paid little attention to it, for the peril was past.

The Cambrian had escaped, but by an exceedingly narrow margin. Not a rope or a spar was touched when the meteor, literally as big as a house, passed close over our mastheads and fell into the sea. The vessel soon ran out of the commotion caused by the aerial monster, though not before she had shipped some water along the after-deck, caused by the first wave which rushed from the spot where the monster had disappeared.

The sky now seemed overcast, as though some vapor emitted by the flying meteor had enveloped everything near its path, but it soon cleared away again and the stars shone as brightly as before.

The remainder of our passage to port was uneventful, but we who saw that meteor are firmly convinced that such appalling visitations must be reckoned with in considering the fate of well-found, well-mannered ships which mysteriously disappear at sea.

Duluth at Winnipeg.
Fargo at Brandon.

Winnipeg, Man., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Consumed with generosity, the Maroons handed the Duluth White Sox the second game of the series, yesterday, by bunching all four of their errors with a base on balls in the seventh inning and letting the Duluthians get away with a 5 to 3 victory.

With the exception of the seventh inning, when the loose fielding marred the play, the game was a good one. Brandt and Sawyer were both working nicely and, although the Duluth man was hit a little harder than the big Maroon, he kept the hits well scattered and didn't give Herr's men much chance with men on the sacks. His team backed him up beautifully in the tight places.

Duluth drew first blood in the fourth inning, when an inside ball scored two runs. A base on balls, two hits and a sacrifice sent the men around. Winnipeg evened it up on two hits, an error and a sacrifice hit. The Maroons started a rally in the ninth, but it fell short, only one run being scored.

TO POP AT BLUE ROCKS

Central Gun Club to Hold First Regular Shoot of Year.

Semi-Monthly Meets to be Held During Summer.

The Duluth Central Gun club will get very busy tomorrow. The first regular semi-monthly shoot will be held at the new grounds at the foot of Sixty-third avenue wast, and all of the members will get out, providing the afternoon is suitable.

All of the traps have now been installed, and the three will pop the rocks in the air for the benefit of the crack shots of the club. Two of the traps were moved from the old grounds on Duluth Heights, and the third is a trap formerly owned by the old West Duluth Gun club, now defunct.

Interest in shooting is running high in the ranks of the Central club. Competitive clubs have sprung up in all parts of the city and the older organization is anxious to maintain its place at the head of all. Its membership is on the increase and it is believed that the regular shoots this year will see more entries than ever before.

The new location secured by the club will result in better scores this year, it is believed. The wind, which troubled the members in former years on Duluth Heights, will not get a sweep at the new grounds, and the scores will be on the merits of the shots. The different trophies, for which there is always keen competition, will go up again this year, and a good season of sport is expected.

FARGO WEAK WITH STICK

Dahlgren Lets McNeil's Bowns Down With Three Hits.

Brandon Bunches on Cooke in Two Innings and Wins.

Brandon, Man., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Fargo Browns were woefully weak at the bat again yesterday in the face of Cy Dahlgren's great pitching and lost the second game of the series by a score of 4 to 2.

Dahlgren was all to the good in eight of the nine innings. In the sixth, three Fargo men found him for hits in succession and they threatened to break the clean sheet, but Dahlgren settled after two runs had been scored and the three hits stand alone in Fargo's bingling column.

Cooke was pretty easy for O'Dea's sluggers. They fell on him in the third, and again in the eighth, scoring two runs each time, all on clean hitting. Louie Livingston was the great swatter of the squad, drawing three clean ones out of four times at bat. Artie O'Dea and Custer each rapped out two safe ones, and Wagner was the only other man to hit.

Though the Fargoans were weak at the bat, they played a beautiful game in the field. Cooke was hit pretty severely at times, but all of the hits do not show in the score. Fast fielding saved him several times with men on bases, and great catches cut down the Infants' hit column.

MANY ENTRIES FOR FIELD MEET

Schoolboys Take Great Interest in Events for Next Week.

The number of entries for the interscholastic field meet to be held next Saturday will be larger than any year since the events were started according to the showing and expressions among the boys thus far. Eight of the twelve schools have filed their lists with the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., and the entrants now number forty-one. When the other four schools send in their entries, it is expected that the number will be fully sixty.

The boys have been training under the direction of Physicial Director Al Olson of the boys' department and they are in fine condition. Some records will go at the meet, as boys have repeatedly broken the former marks in practice and they expect to do even better in competition. On account of the inclement weather, they have been unable to work out of doors during the past week, but have ocntinued their gymnasium work and expect to have a number of opportunities to work during the next week.

Following is the list of entries to date:

Lincoln—Ed Belanger, W. Hutchinson, A. Olson, F. Bates, H. Peterson, H. Nybro, R. Dice and G. Wallean.

Franklin—H. Hansen, C. Landahl, F. Baker, C. Bennewies.

Lakeside—J. Ritchie, H. Knapp, O. Erickson, W. Miller, R. Jones, L. Wright.

Lowell—W. Merritt, R. Johnson, E. Braden, E. Schwartz, W. Donaldson, A. Franklin.

Washington—W. Lawrence, R. Miller, M. Brown, P. Landfald.

Endion—G. Merritt, C. Duffy, H. Bradbury, C. McMartin, B. Pillsbury.

Jefferson—C. Perril, A. Walters, H. Helmer, D. McLeod.

Adams—J. Wagner, S. Peterson, R. Latture, J. Olson.

The list of events follow: Fifty-yard dash, potato race, sack race, 75-yard dash, 100-yard dash, quarter mile, half mile, three-legged race, half mile relay, running high jump, three standing jumps, running hop-step jump, running broad jump, standing broad jump.

The White Sox have broken into the win column, and now they are off for fair in the big race, with Brandon slightly in the lead and Duluth and Winnipeg running neck and neck. As was expected, Fargo is trailing and will continue to trail until they get some men on the team who can hit the ball, and hit it hard and often.

The fans, who pulled their caps over their eyes in dejection when the Sox had that goose egg rammed down their throats Thursday, can look a little up and be cheerful for a time. There's no occasion for drawing conclusions for a week or two yet. When the Sox complete their series with both Winnipeg and Brandon and are headed for home after playing twelve games, the records will show whether they have broken even with the Canadians, and if they are not at or above the charmed .500 line, something may be wrong.

Brandt's showing yesterday wasn't at all bad. The Maroon sluggers didn't get away with any big plums, and his support certainly was joyful. Give the team a chance. Reserve knocks and hand out boosts until they get home and get to work on their own lot, and then everybody will have a chance to play the critic from personal observation.

One more fight town has gone wrong because promoters didn't know enough to see that the men were in condition before they were allowed to enter the ring. When Kid Farmer went against Jack Morgan at Peoria he was tempting fate. He had been advised by physicians never to fight again, and the worst of the whole affair was that the promoter had been advised of Farmer's condition a few days before the fight, but thought that he had gone too far to stop.

This practice of taking chances with poorly conditioned fighters has ruined the game in many a good fight town. Every time a man is hurt in the ring, the active and passive opponents of the sport hold up their hands in horror and shout for the entire thing to be suppressed. The statements that the men weren't in condition do not help the case any. Mike Ward's death at Grand Rapids, Mich., a few years ago killed the sport in a good town forever, just because the promoters didn't take the trouble to get a certificate of good condition from a physician before they allowed the men to go in the ring.

There's no danger in properly conducted prize fights. That has been proved time and again, because the top-notchers rarely are injured. It's the dubs, without any conception of methods of training or proper physical condition, who take chances of injury in the ring and get their bulfts called. They and the promoters who handle them are a menace to the sport, and the sooner they are weeded out the better it will be.

Artie O'Dea's constituents must feel good over the showing of the Duke and his squad since they blew into Brandon town and established themselves as summer residents. The Fargo Browns, from all reports that can be had of them, aren't much to beat, but there must be some satisfaction in trimming them, at any rate.

Brandon will be a good, live member of the Northern league. The town is fairly baseball crazy. The one paper it supports has devoted column after column, under scare heads, to booming the game and O'Dea's team, and Tuesday night, when the players landed, there were about 400 people at the depot to greet them. It's some satisfaction to have a town like that in the league, and if Fargo does its part, Duluth and Winnipeg will hold up their end and make the Northern league a big success this season.

New Tennis Club.

The Longview Tennis club was organized last evening, with the following officers: President, A. L. Agatin; vice president, W. B. Bailey; secretary, C. F. Sheldon; treasurer, W. H. Kiehli. The meeting was held at the Commercial club and was attended by a crowd of enthusiasts. Grounds have been secured at Twenty-fifth avenue east and Fourth street, and the courts will be laid out within the next few weeks. The club will replace the Endion club, which disbanded on account of its grounds being taken for building purposes.

Semi-Pros to Range.

The semi-pros of Duluth will be busy with games on the range tomorrow. This afternoon and tomorrow the Kelleys will play at Virginia, and tomorrow the Fitzwells go to Hibbing and the Columbias to Two Harbors.

Last year the Columbias had a warm game at Two Harbors and lost. They are after revenge and will take a strong lineup to the ore shipping town. The men will lineup as follows: Catchers, Whitehead and Berg; pitchers, Talbot, Duffy and McKoski; first base, Ness; second base, H. Foster; third base, Caulkins; shortstop, C. Foster; outfielders, Burke, Bowen, Guith and Mueller.

Streams High.

Frank Miller and a party of friends have returned from a fishing trip in the Northern woods. They report good success, though the streams were slightly swollen from the rains.

Board of Trade and Wolvin Building Meet Next Saturday.

The Commercial league, organized at a meeting held last week, will open its season this afternoon, with a game between the F. A. Patrick and First National bank teams, if the grounds are in condition. Neither team has had very much practice, so they will be on even terms for the first game. Both have a number of good players in their lineup and they will put up a good class of ball. The teams will line up as follows:

Bankers—	Position.	Patrick—
Wiltse	c	Bondy
Ashley	p	Schultz
McLean	1b	Dinham
Fregeau	2b	Bruen
Watterworth	3b	Coulter
Baldwin	ss	King
Becker	rf	Berini
Lonegren	lf	Oertli
Cox	cf	Hickerson

A meeting of the league was held last night at the First National bank with R. H. Pearce of the First National bank, W. A. MacMullen of F. A. Patrick & Co., H. W. Kiehli of the Board of Trade and W. M. Staudt of the Wolvin building in attendance. The rules of play and government of the league were adopted and the schedule, adopted at a meeting earlier in the week, confirmed.

Next Saturday, the Wolvin Building and Board of Trade teams will play. Both have been organized for some weeks and have played several practice games among themselves. This afternoon, the Wolvin team will play a practice game with the Spaldings at Thirty-second avenue west and Superior street and the men selected for the nine will be given their final try-out.

The employes of the different companies in the Wolvin building have shown enthusiasm and a desire to support the team. A subscription list circulated among them brought $200 for the purchase of equipment. Suits of Yale grey and brown have been ordered and will be here in time for the game next Saturday. The team is going right out for the championship of the league and it will have the backing of every employe in the building.

GOOD LIST OF EVENTS

Weight Throwers Have Been Practicing Throwing the Javelin.

The program for the Olympic tryouts at Philadelphia, June 6, should be very interesting because it will bring together the very best athletes east of the Mississippi river. The list of events will include: The 400 meters hurdle, 3,200 meters steeplechase, the five mile mile run, standing broad and high jumps, the running hop, step and jump and throwing the javelin. These events will bring into competition a number of athletes of fame, who have never before competed in Philadelphia.

Ewry, the great standing jumper, will be the star in this event. His record is really marvelous. He has jumped 5 feet 5¼ inches high, 11 feet 4⅞ inches broad and 35 feet 8¾ inches in three standing jumps. These records are all made without weights, and they are really marvlous prformaances. Ewry is getting into shape, and hopes to be up to his best form this summer.

The five mile run will bring the great distance runner Bellaire of the New York Athletic club into action. Bellaire is the best distance runner we have had in America for many years. In order to be chosen in the Olympic team, he will not only have to win, but to do so in such good time as will convince the Olympic selection committee that he has some show against the great English distance runners. He will make an attempt to beat the twenty year old record of R. C. Carter, of 25 minutes 6 3-5 seconds.

Hurling the javlin will be a unique event, and will lend a real Olympic flavor to the meet. Sheridan, the great all round jumper; Mc Grath of the New York Athletic club, the great hammer thrower, and Flanagan, the great weight thrower have all been practicing for this event, and should give a good exhibition of how the javelin should be thrown.

The entries close on May 25, except for the college men, who will have until May 30, the evening of the intercollegiate championships. The proceeds of the meet will be added to the Olympic fund.

Announcement is also made by the Olympic American games committee of the dates of the final swimming and fancy driving, the swimmers will compete some time during the first week in June in New York at 100 meters, 400 meters, 1,500 meters, 100 meter back stroke and 200 breast stroke.

For the wrestlers, May 25 and 26 have been selected, but no place has been determined upon as yet. There are five events scheduled, 119 pounds, 133 pounds, 147 pounds, 161 pounds and over 161 pounds. These bouts are limited to 15 minutes.

Oneotas Want Games.

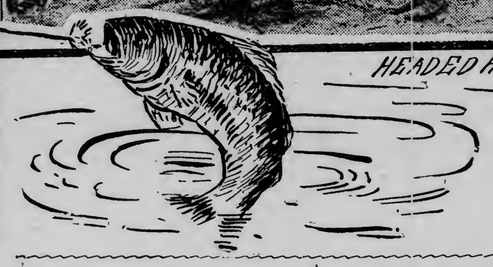
The Oneota school baseball team wants games with other teams in the city, the members averaging 15 years of age. They have played four games this season and won three. Edward Norsted, 3196-D, new 'phone, is the manager.

Good Old Fishing Days Are Here Again

A LIKELY LOOKING RAPID.

AN OLD TIMER

A GOOD POOL FOR A FLY



HEADED HOME

Just when the streams had begun to subside, after having been swollen by the melting snows, and the fishermen were rejoicing, the rains came along and the streams are swollen again.

There is hope in the hearts of the ardent anglers, however, and providing the weather becomes more clement, there will be a rush to the woods this afternoon and tomorrow. Hundreds of devotees of the sport have been holding off on account of the conditions in the woods. April 15 is too early a date for the opening of the season, and the majority prefer to wait for about a month before casting their hooks for the beauties of the streams. For the next month, before the mosquitoes become too thick and troublesome, the streams will be well fished.

Last Sunday was an ideal day in the woods. The streams were at their proper level, the ground was dry and the air warm. The trains to the range were crowded Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning and there were hundreds of fishermen on every popular stream. Good catches were reported by a number of returning parties.

A number of the parties will probably not meet with such success tomorrow, but the fish are about due to be hooked and there'll be bait in plenty dangled before them.

WAGNER IS BIG CARD

Strange Argument Used to Induce Big Fellow to Reconsider.

Battered in body, but enriched in purse, Hans Wagner, shortstop of the Pittsburg National league team, decided to take a rest for one season.

He felt it had been earned by his ten years of hard service. Five years the greatest hitter in his league, member of Pittsburg during three championship seasons, the phenomenal German was willing to stand aside and give some of the younger men a chance.

Perhaps he expected some protest when he announced his decision, for good ball players do not come so easily that an incomparable star can be passed up without a struggle.

But in his wildest flight of vanity the German never could have foreseen the protest that met his determination to take a vacation during the baseball season.

Not only the press and public of his own town, but the baseball public and newspapers of the entire National league circuit announced a determined objection against the disappearance of one of the greatest drawing cards in the history of baseball.

Hans remained fixed in his resolve as long as he could. He held to it past the time for the men to report to go away on their spring training trip. He was still firm when the championship season opened, and Pittsburg minus Wagner was beginning the battle for the pennant.

It was not a question of money that stood between Wagner and Pittsburg. Barney Dreyfus, owner of the club, always appreciated the value of his players, and has never been accused of treating them grudgingly in the matter of salary. Especially did he know the value of Wagner.

The big German had been one of the first great finds of the little magnate when ten years ago he had the Louisville club in the National league at a time when there were twelve clubs in that circuit.

Wagner, a Homestead boy, was playing in Paterson, N. J., when some one tipped off Dreyfus that he was a player well worth seeing.

Dreyfus made the journey. He liked the looks of Wagner, he signed him and put him at third base.

The fans laughed when the big fellow went on the field to play his first game. Not often has such a physique been seen on a battlefield. Hans is the very antithesis of the fleet, athletic build usually exacted of a diamond star. Below the waist he is all right. His abnormality is in the upper works, and consists of an amazingly large and powerful chest, with a pair of shoulders broader than the back of a Pullman seat.

The build is that of a gorilla, the arms being long and muscled beyond belief.

But while Hans looked peculiar, it developed in very short order that he was a phenomenal ball player. The big arms and mighty chest enabled him to hit the ball to the remotest parts of the lot, and what was more surprising still, considering the lines of the big fellow, he was most amazingly fast, a fine fielder in any position and a fleet base runner.

His skill at handling ground balls became the wonder of the league. It was said of him humorously that his long arms enabled him to run faster with one hand on the ground than most men could go in an erect position.

Wagner proved a sensation, and when the twelve-club National league circuit was reduced to eight clubs, and Louisville's men and franchise were transferred to Pittsburg, Wagner immediately took his proper place as one of the great stars of the National league, and all over the circuit he ranked as a drawing card of unequal power.

The baseball public wanted to see the heavy weight giant, who could play any position, bat the ball a mile and run the bases like a deer.

On the work of Wagner and half a dozen other good men three championships went to the Smoky City, and in his dreams of winning back the pennant again Manager Fred Clarke has always counted largely on the help of Wagner.

The argument by which President Pulliam turned Wagner was one hardly to be resisted by any diamond star, since it put Wagner in the position of being essential not only to the financial prosperity of his club, but to the league itself.

"You are foolish to miss the big salary offered you," the conversation began.

"Oh, I don't know," responded the ball player. "I am comfortable. I own a big farm, and have money enough for my needs as long as I live. Besides, I need a rest. Baseball has become a hardship to me, for my body is so bruised up that it is actually painful for me to play."

"Well, no matter what are your own inclinations you owe something to Mr. Dreyfus, who has been a generous employer to you for ten years, and put you in the way of your present comfortable condition," continued President Pulliam.

"Yes, I know that," said Hans, "and it is the one thing that makes me sorry that I must take a lay-off. But I know he can get along. He's got other good men, and I am sure the team will finish near the top."

"The finish near the top part is all right," argued Mr. Pulliam, preparing to drive home his hardest thrust. "I'm sure Fred Clarke will bring the club home somewhere, with the leaders. But when I speak of your duty to Mr. Dreyfus, I mean in a financial, not a baseball sense. I say that if you decline to play this year you will be taking money out of the pocket of the man who gave you your start, and has proved your good friend at every chance since. You are his chief drawing card. All over the circuit they want to see you. With you out of the game the Pittsburg club will be a good deal less of a drawing card, and to just that extent your friend, Mr. Dreyfus, will be money out. Moreover, the National league needs you. Every town in the circuit relies on you to draw money to its till whenever the Pirates come. If you throw us down, you give our season a black eye right from the start."

Hans couldn't withstand the argument. The player wouldn't have been human who could. Pulliam rushed out to announce his success to Mr. Dreyfus, who had been waiting the outcome of the decision. Then Barney bundled the big ball player into a train and hustled him off to Cincinnati to take part in his first game. Immediately delighted Pittsburg began to have visions of landing the pennant.

With the increase of the number of automobels in Duluth the question of good roads over which the enthusiasts can tour in their machines is becoming one of much interest. Good automobile runs about Duluth are not numerous, though there are some that are very attractive, both on account of the well-kept roads and the woodland scenery through which they pass.

The Miller Trunk road to the range towns has been the object of much agitation for some time, mostly on account of the farming districts this highway passes through. For the improving of this route $11,000 has been appropriated by the county commissioners. When this money has been put into the road it ought to be in such shape as to afford automobiles an opening for long tours. All the ore surfaced roads of the range will then be open to them to Grand Rapids and the West. When the weather has been d y for some time the Miller Trunk road is said not to be impassible, even without improving. The roads to the White Face river are not bad at all, but beyond on the Miller Trunk to Eveleth they become more difficult. J. S. Lutes of Biwabik ran his touring car to Duluth last Saturday without any trouble. He started from the range at 8:30 in the morning and arrived in Duluth at 1:30 in the afternoon. But since the rains such a feat would be almost impossible, for the roads are of red clay and are affected by the least rainfall.

Charles W. Fitzgerald, who, last week, drove his Pope Toledo roadster to the Twin Cities, described the roads as "frightful." Many Duluthians made that run last summer, and though the roads at this end of the run are not of the best under the most favorable weather conditions, yet they are said to be passable. One of the best short rides about Duluth is from Duluth to Thomson, through Carlton and Scanlon, across the St. Louis river, then to Adolph on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad, around Grand lake and on to Pike lake, where dinner can be had. The return is from Grand lake to the boulevard and into Duluth, making a seventy-two-mile ride, which can be done easily in an afternoon, as the roads are generally in very good condition.

"SILK" WAS AWAY OFF

Chicago May 16.—When Manager Fielder Jones objected to the decision of Umpire "Silk" O'Loughlin in a recent Chicago-Detroit game in Detroit, calling a White Sox runner out when the Tiger catcher stepped in front of the plate, caught the ball delivered from the pitcher and tagged a base runner attempting to steal home, the manager of the ball club was correct and the umpire wrong, according to nearly every student of baseball rules in the country. O'Loughlin, it is said, claimed that he made his ruling on an order of Ban Johnson, president of the American league, who had issued instructions to his umpires on just such a play, but the question is asked, What right has a league executive or any one else to order rulings directly opposite to the established rules of the game?

According to competent authorities the play at Detroit should have been judged a balk on the part of the pitcher, the runner allowed to score and the batsman sent to first base. The reason for this interpretation of the play is that the rules say a ball delivered to the catcher when he is out of his position is a balk, and on this play the catcher ran in front of the plate—out of the established lines provided for the catcher—caught the ball and prevented the batsman from making a play.

Rule 34, section 9, says:

"A balk shall be delivery of the ball to the bat when the catcher is standing outside the lines of the catcher's position as defined in Rule 3."

Rule 3, which is a portion of the rules describing the construction of the playing field, provides a triangular space behind the plate, ten feet in depth, within which the catcher must stand to receive the ball from the pitcher. Any time the backstop steps over any of the lines of this prescribed position to receive a delivered ball he is imposing the penalty of a balk on the pitcher.

This, of course, is effective only when the pitcher is on the rubber. If he is not in position to pitch, or standing on the rubber, then he can toss the ball home and the catcher can get it anywhere he wants to. In the Detroit play the White Sox contended that the Tiger pitcher was standing on the rubber in position to pitch.

"As long as the pitcher is on the rubber there is no chance for him to get away with any such play," remarked Manager Chance of the Cubs the other day. "Any runner on third has the pitcher directly in front of him and knows enough to stick close to the bag until he puts up his hands in the usual preliminary position for pitching. Then the base runner can lend off. The moment the pitcher begins to wind up the base runner can dash for the plate, and the catcher must wait for the ball to cross the pan before catching it, for if he steps forward ahead of the batsman, he is inflicting a balk upon the pitcher, permitting the runner to score and sending the batsman to first. The rule is plain and positive on that very point and no one has any authority to change it or deviate from it in the slightest degree except the rules committee. If the pitcher is not on the rubber no one will know it better than the base runner at third, for he can see the pitcher as well as any other man on the field.

"To steal any base the runner must get the jump on the pitcher or catcher. He must start with the swing of the pitcher, and this is more necessary stealing home than any other base on the diamond. It can only be done where the pitcher winds up a good bit. If the catcher were permitted to run in front of the plate to get the ball a steal from third home would be a physical impossibility; neither the base runner nor the batsman would have a fair show on the play—it would all be in favor of the catcher, and baseball is built up on fair play, not prejudice."

SMOKER AT YACHT CLUB

First Social Affair at Club Abounds in Enthusiasm.

Three Hours of Punch, Pipes, Song and Story for Guests.

About 200 members and friends of the Duluth Yacht club gathered last night at the club house on Park Point for the first social affair of the year. It took the form of a "Round Robin" and three enjoyable hours were filled with songs, stories, punch and smokes.

The affair was held in the big dancing pavilion of the club, which was fitted out to suit. At one end, a temporary stage had been constructed with an improvised curtain, vigorously operated by boy power. A tarpaulin covered the dancing floor, and, during the numbers, the guests sat around, puffed corncobs and clays in perfect contentment and were not tight with their applause. During the intermissions, which were frequent, they made onslaughts on "the crock," from which punch flowed in bounteous measure.

Popular songs formed the greater part of the program and the entire assemblage joined in the chorus, with volume, if not melody. August J. Pearson opened with the Heidelberg stein song from "The Prince of Pilsen," and everybody sang. Harry Hall held the center of the stage for fully fifteen minutes with dialect stories and the crowd didn't get enough of him then. Louis Dworshak sang "The Dear Little Girl," and the anvil song from Robin Hood.

Commodore Horace Johnson said much in a short time. He complimented the members on the showing, announced that the "Round Robin" was the first of a series of social affairs, to some of which the ladies would be invited, and threw out some tips of the general program for the year. He said some of the members are rustling for candidates with good success, and the ranks of the club promise to be well filled by June 1, when the hustlers will be called off. May 30 the cafe will be open and June 15 the regular dances in the pavilion will begin. The weekly races will start about the same time.

The commodore was about to step from the spotlight, when somebody demanded information on the yacht Duluth. The commodore beamed. The "Duluth" is his pet and he doesn't care who knows it. He said the plans are nearly ready and the builders will go ahead and make a boat that will carry the cup back from Chicago. He urged the members to go to Chicago in force and assist in the lifting process. He said the Chicago people are anxious to entertain Duluthians and the Zenith City should show its interest in yachting and, especially, the Nutting cup races.

Milton Spencer, with rich, full baritone, sang "I Love a Lassie," and everybody joined in the chorus of the pretty little Scotch ditty. For an encore, Mr. Spencer sang "It's Mighty Strange," and everybody joined in the substituted chorus: "It's mighty strange; it's mighty strange, We'll go down to Windy Town, that cup needs the change; Our crew will do, What we tell them to, And we'll all get absinthe-minded when the big race is through; Pitch in and try, Lift it or die! Show them we've got the boat no other boats get by! We've got the crew, We'll have the boat, too, We'll take the cup, say, 'Much obliged to you,' "

W. S. Kelly, a theatrical man, who glorifies in the sobriquet, "The Whistling Kid," gave several whistling solos and sang "Take Me With You in Your Dreams." Miss Harriet Nobles sang several solos and the program proper ended with a wrestling match between Plotniski and Bodi. Plotniski won the first fall and, while in the second bout, Bodi injured his wrist and could not go on. The affair broke up with the sailing song, in which everybody joined with enthusiasm.

McKay Buys Horses.

Dr. John McKay returned last night from Chicago, where he attended the spring horse sale and secured a number of speedy horses. Among them are Declamation, 2:13¾, a 5-year-old, by Orator; McRae Fallnot, a 5-year-old pacing mare, by Fallnot, and Pilot Chief, 2:16, a 3-year-old trotting gielding by Electrification. McRae Fallnot has been sold to W. C. Colbrath.

PRESIDENTIAL lightning rods that never were struck are stored in the attics of quite a few men of the present who loom large in the public eye from time to time.

A complete list of the ambitious who once had such rods up and all ready for business would assume rather formidable proportions. It would include the names of such well known figures as Senator Shelby M. Cullom, for several Republican national conventions the "favorite son" of Illinois; Adlai E. Stevenson of the same state, once vice president of the United States, and eight years later an unsuccessful candidate for the same position; Former Secretary of State Richard Olney, who ran up his lightning attractor while he held that portfolio and who polled thirty-nine votes at the last Democratic national convention; the present secretary of state, who began tempting the lightning while he was President Roosevelt's secretary of war; Senator Henry M. Teller of Colorado, who longed for a nomination from two parties; John G. Carlisle and Leslie M. Shaw, both former heads of the national treasury; the venerable William B. Allison of Iowa; Horace Boies, the only Democratic governor of that state since the Republican party was organized, and various other former state executives, among them David Bennett Hill.

Governors Who Have Tempted the Lightning.

David Bennett Hill became governor of New York when Mr. Cleveland was inaugurated president for the first time. He had not been very long in the executive chair of the Empire state before he ran up his own presidential lightning rod. Officially, it was not taken down until in August of last presidential year, when its owner, to put a quietus on the campaign tale that Parker, if elected, would name Hill as his secretary of state, announced his purpose to retire from politics until Jan. 1st following.

Well posted Democratic politicians have said that Mr. Hill, as late as 1902, still had hopes of being nominated by his party, and in the Democratic gubernatorial conventions and campaign of that year, which he directed, laid his lines accordingly. But between that date and some time before the assembling of the 1904 convention in St. Louis, Mr. Hill became convinced that he would never be called on to head a presidential ticket, and so gave his support to Parker, whom he had placed on the bench of the state's highest court.

Former United States Senator Edward Murphy, Jr., of New York, one of Hill's closest friends for many years, said shortly after the ex-governor made announcement of his impending political retirement:

"Mr. Hill is a greatly changed man. Some people have told me that Mr. Hill at 61 could not change the mentality of a lifetime. I disagree with them entirely. Mr. Hill has changed from the moment that he became convinced that he could never be nominated for president by his party."

Hill's hopes of being his party's standard-bearer were strongest, perhaps, when the party was getting ready to select such a one in 1892. It has been charged against him time and again by his party enemies that at that time, by his "snap" state convention, he tried to force his candidacy on the party. The New York delegation went to Chicago pledged to him; Tammany was there, shouting for him under the personal direction of Richard Croker; Governor Flower of New York, Mr. Hill's successor as head of the state, was among his cohort of supporters. Until just a few days before the balloting began the Hill movement gave the Cleveland boomers much concern. Then the drift to Cleveland set in, and Hill, instead of receiving the 320 votes accredited to him by his boomers, mustered only 114 on the only ballot taken. At that time he received the second largest number of votes, Governor Horace Boles of Iowa coming third, with 103. Cleveland got 617 1-3 votes. The great cry of the Hill boomers at this convention was that Cleveland could not carry his own state. How falsely they prophesied the ballot cast in November showed.

It was at this convention that the name of Horace Boles, who got only one vote less than Hill, first came before a Democratic national convention for consideration.

Two years before he had been elected governor in the rock-ribbed Republican state of Iowa—the only Democrat who has held this post since the Republican party was organized. Naturally this remarkable victory gave Boles national prominence. Democratic papers and politicians began to mention him as probable presidential timber, and it was not long after that before the governor ran up his own presidential rod. William J. Bryan, then a congressman from Nebraska, both before and at the convention was an ardent supporter of the Iowan, whose strength surprised many of the political wiseacres.

Boles did not give up hope of being his party's candidate until after Bryan was nominated for the first time. At that dramatic convention Boles at one time stood second in the balloting. He was in his sixty-ninth year when he was an avowed candidate for the last time; and he took down his rod shortly after, not because he had been weaned of his ambition to be president, but because he realized that his age was against him.

The presidential aspirations of the late Robert E. Pattison, twice Democratic governor of another Republican stronghold, Pennsylvania, also reached their climax at his party's convention of 1896. On the first ballot Pattison, the favorite son of the Keystone delegation, stood next to Bland and Bryan. On the fifth and deciding ballot Pattison still had his ninety-five votes, while Boles' eighty-five had shrunk to a puny twenty-six. It was around Pattison that the stanch "gold" delegates rallied.

When Pattison was elected governor of Pennsylvania in 1882, by a plurality of 40,000, he became the first Democrat to hold that office in thirty years. At the time he was only 32, an age which kept him from running up a presidential rod just then, with the assistance of his friends. But after his second gubernatorial victory, which came in 1891, Pattison's presidential lightning attractor was put up and only lowered when his death occurred four years ago.

David R. Francis of St. Louis, who started his career toward millionairedom as a clerk in a commission house, of which he afterwards became part owner, is another Democratic ex-governor who has owned a presidential rod, but in his case, as in that of Judge George Gray of Delaware, it was presented to and erected for him by his friends. His career as mayor of St. Louis and governor of Missouri has made the name of David R. Francis fairly well known throughout the country when its owner was called to President Cleveland's cabinet as successor to Hoke Smith in the department of the interior. His next nationally important job was that of bossing the building of the record-breaking Louisiana Purchase exposition, and it was while he was up to his ears in the details of this stupendous task in 1903 that a big Eastern paper announced his candidacy for the presidency the following year. Before Mr. Francis put a damper on the enthusiasm of political friends by declaring that he felt he had pledged his time and energy to the exposition, his availability had been pretty widely discussed by politicians of both great parties.

Joseph Benton Foraker, senior senator from Ohio, has numbered a presidential lightning rod among his possessions since the middle eighties, when he was serving his second term as Republican executive of the Buckeye state. His Ohio enemies have never grown weary of charging that he secretly nourished high hopes that the convention of 1888 would swing to him from John Sherman, as the conventiln, held eight years before, had sensationally stampeded from Sherman, Grant and Blaine to Garfield. However that may be, Governor Foraker, after the fifth ballot had been taken and the convention had adjourned, with Sherman still in the lead, announced that Sherman was "no longer a presidential possibility so far as this convention is concerned." From that day to this Foraker has been credited with being a presidential aspirant.

Following his re-election in 1900 as governor of Iowa, Leslie M. Shaw frankly let his friends know that he would be a presidential candidate four years hence. But early in 1902 he became secretary of the treasury in President Roosevelt's cabinet, and as Mr. Roosevelt was an open candidate for the office, Mr. Shaw gracefully retired for the time being.

He was in the field again, however, in November of 1904, immediately following President Roosevelt's statement that he would not be a presidential candidate again; and in the field he remained until a few months ago. Then Mr. Shaw, who has always been credited with sight sufficiently keen to see a stone wall dead ahead of himself, once more retired. Today he is simply a passive candidate.

As an active candidate he was refreshingly frank regarding his ambition. Last year, when he resigned the treasury portfolio in order to head a New York trust company, he told the newspaper men that as candidate he would be as easy to locate in the metropolis as in the national capitol. "Neither Lincoln, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Blaine, Roosevelt nor Bryan was nominated because of the state he represented," said Mr. Shaw, when asked what effect his going to the city of "the money power" would have on his candidacy, "and some of them have secured the prize notwithstanding location."

Next November Mr. Shaw will be 60 years old, not too old, according to numerous precedents, to be an active candidate, for president four or eight years hence. Whether he has put away his lightning rod for good remains to be seen, though some of his Iowa friends are of the opinion that he will never again be an avowed candidate for the great honor.

As presidential candidates go, Mr. Shaw's career in politics has been exceedingly brief. He did not make a campaign speech or take an active interest in politics until the third Cleveland campaign, when he was moved to answer the next day a Democratic argument he had listened to the day before. His advocacy of sound money in the first McKinley campaign brought him wide prominence in his state and resulted in his nomination for governor in 1898.

Senatorial Possessors of Lightning Rods.

Through most of the eighties, and even as late as 1896, when he received thirty-five and a half votes in the Republican convention of that year, another Iowa man, the now venerable Senator William B. Allison, was a receptive presidential candidate. Only when age put him out of the running did he cease to have his name mentioned both before and at his party's conventions.

Allison's candidacy reached its apogee at the Chicago convention of 1888, when he stood fifth in the balloting up to the eighth and deciding ballot. His friends say that the keenest disappointment of his life has been the refusal of his party to make him standard bearer, which he thought he had excellent chances of becoming in 1888. But unlike David B. Hill, the distinguished Iowan has not changed noticeably to his intimates because of this disappointment, and he has been heard to refer jokingly to the years when he prayed fervently that the presidential lightning would strike him.

Senator Allison's vigorous young colleague from Wisconsin, Robert M. La Follette, of course has a good sized presidential rod up; presidential ambitions have been known to be his since his second election as governor of Wisconsin in 1903. Senator Shelby M. Cullom was for years Illinois' "favorite son." Senator Henry M. Teller of Colorado, after he walked out of the 1896 Republican convention, when that body declared in favor of the gold standard, expected to secure the Silver Republican presidential nomination, and it was a bitter disappointment to him when Bryan got the coveted honor. Though he was still a Republican of the silver variety when the Democratic national convention of 1896 met in July, Mr. Teller, on the first ballot taken by it, received eight votes, a curious sort of political distinction due to his advocacy of the cause of silver, which as every American knows, was enthusiastically championed by the Democratic convention.

Years before the silver question became paramount, Mr. Teller, when he was President Arthur's secretary of interior, ran up a presidential rod for the first time. Until he walked out of the Republican convention in 1896 he did not cease to hope that some day that party would call him as leader.

Among members of the upper branch of congress who now have or have had presidential rods up, Senator John W. Daniel of Virginia is rather a recent comer. Thomas F. Ryan of New York and Virginia has been charged with instigating the Daniel talk with the ulterior motive of succeeding to Mr. Daniel's seat in the senate. However that may be, the senator doubtless would not duck should he spy the lightning descending his way.

He is recognized by both parties in the senate as one of the most astute Southern statesmen in harness today. He has been one of Virginia's senators since 1887; three years before he was sent to congress for the first time as a representative. With the features and looks of an oldtime tragedian, a cigar always held in his mouth, and a slight limp, due to the loss of a leg at the Battle of the Wilderness, his is a familiar figure about Washington. At home, when he is campaigning, he adds to his picturesqueness by moving about with the assistance of crutches, a strong reminder to his constituents that he was one of the stalwart defenders of the Confederacy. He will be 66 next September, but his appearance suggests a much younger age to the ordinary onlooker.

Though his life has been a busy one, what with looking after his legal and political interests, the senator has found time to write two standard law textbooks, "Daniel on Attachments" and "Daniel on Negotiable Instruments." The latter work resulted from a query put to him by a client as to whether sight drafts carried three days of grace. The senator had to go to a bank and find out.

Some years later the senator told this incident to a law class before which he was lecturing. When he had finished, one of the students, who had observed that the senator was absent-minded, asked:

"Senator, do sight drafts carry three days of grace?"

The senator looked the embarrassment he felt as he replied: "Upon my soul, young man, I believe I have forgotten."

When John G. Carlisle went to the senate from Kentucky in 1890 he took with him his presidential rod, which

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

April's Production Estimated at $19,895,055 Pounds of Copper---Work at the Franklin Largely Confined to the Junior Branch.

Houghton, Mich., May 16.—The estimated production of the Lake Superior mines in April was 19,895,055 pounds of copper, an increase of 1,208,621 pounds over the March output, and the largest month's yield this year. Monthly figures of production since the first of the year we compare as follows with the 1907 results:

	1906.	1907.
January	19,196,850	19,315,907
February	18,025,770	17,907,753
March	18,686,434	19,009,135
April	19,895,055	19,718,592
Total	75,804,109	76,251,417

Work at the Franklin mine is confined largely to the junior branch. Production has been curtailed considerably since a year ago and as little development work as possible is being done on the conglomerate. The explorations on the Pewabic lode are being continued, and it is thought that the future of the property is in this formation.

The Mass Consolidated mine produced 145 tons of copper last month, which is a very creditable performance for that property. Exploratory work on the Riddle portion of the company's lands is still under way, but nothing of importance has been found as yet. Superintendent Wilcox is establishing a record for economical mining operations. With only twelve drills in service he is obtaining upwards of 650 to 700 tons of rock daily, or nearly twice the amount secured per drill at other Lake mines.

Rock shipments from the Ahmeek mine were increased approximately 33 per cent beginning May 1. Forty cars are now going to the mills instead of thirty, as formerly. The increased production is being cared for at the Tamarack and Osceola mills, but it is likely that the Ahmeek will be compelled to make other arrangements for stamping its rock, if the production of the Osceola Consolidated and Tamarack mines continue to increase. There are several idle heads at the mills in this district, and the Ahmeek should experience no difficulty in securing some of these.

The mining developments on Isle Royale so far this year have been watched with

STRIKE AT THE NEVADA-UTAH

Ore Proved by Assays to be High Grade---Thirteen Feet of Rich Ore Opened Up in Goldfield Consolidated.

Pioche, Nev., May 16.—The recent strike of rich ore in the Day mine of the Nevada-Utah Mines & Smelters corporation has been proved by assays at the American Smelting & Refining company's works and by Crimson & Nichols of this city to be high grade. While the assays vary slightly the approximate yield is 217 ounces of silver, .06 gold and nearly 2½ per cent copper. The gross value per ton will probably reach $118. These facts recall the bonanza days of Pioche and indicate that good times are coming again to this Nevada town.

The strike in the Prince Consolidated made a couple of weeks ago is growing in importance. The ledge is several feet wide on the 300 level, where it was by accident discovered. It carries a yellow chloride ore which runs from a few hundred up to 2,000 ounces in silver to the ton. The management is now crosscutting to cut the rich vein on the 200 and 400 levels. The main ledge of the Prince upon which the company has been depending is 150 feet wide and is opened and developed to a depth of 400 feet. This ore is low grade, but owing to its fluxing qualities and the fact that it can be mined with steam shovels will show a profit for every ton, the management asserts.

Goldfield, Nev., May 16.—In the 600-foot level of the Mohawk mine, belonging to the Goldfield Consolidated Mines company, there has been opened up thirteen feet of ore that averages, from twenty-one samples taken by General Manager Mackenzie, $74.50 a ton. The find was made in a cross-cut, and the width of the vein is not known yet, as the foot-wall has not been reached.

This is the same vein that was opened up on the 450-foot level. A winze was sunk on the vein from that level for 125 feet, and an incline from the 600-foot level has connected with the winze. There have been far richer discoveries in Goldfield, but the size of this vein at 600 feet, the deepest workings in the camp make it the most important.

"In the vein eight feet and the hanging wall not yet reached" is the latest word

RESUMPTION THE WORD NOW

Properties in the Boundary and Couer d'Alene Districts to Start Again, Say Managers--- Many Men to Resume Work.

Spokane, Wash., May 16.—Several thousand miners will begin employment at once in the districts north and east of Spokane by the resumption of operations in the Coeur d'Alenes and Boundary country. Announcement is made by Clayton W. Miller, manager of the Federal Mining & Smelting company, that the Last Chance mine at Wardner, Idaho, will open in a few days, giving employment to 300 men. Mr. McAllister, manager of the British Columbia Copper company, says 700 men will be employed in the mines and smelting at wages ranging from $2.50 to $4 a day. Miners, machine-men, muckers, carpenters, smelter men and laborers are needed. This means the end of the tie-up of the big mines in Southern British Columbia, which began Nov. 12. Reports have also been received from Boston that the financing of the Stewart Mining company is assured and that operations in the Coeur d'Alenes will begin in a short time. This will give employment to many men. Reports are current that the Morning mine, owned by the Federal company, will start in a short time. Working tests have been completed on the Hecla mine, a Federal property, and everything is in readiness to start the mill. J. F. McCarthy, manager, says there is nothing definite about the opening of the property, but, he added, the reports from New York are of an encouraging nature.

Work has been resumed on the property of the Eldorado Mining company. The driving of the long crosscut tunnel is now in 275 feet, and it is expected that the main ledge on the property will be cut when the tunnel is driven in 500 feet. M. A. Curran, manager of the property, says there are three ledges running through the group and that the main ledge is

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Increasing Activity at Green Mountain---Mill of American Eagle Company Will Soon Start---Tin is Again Attracting Attention.

Deadwood, S. D., May 16.—Green Mountain, near this city, is presenting an ever increasing activity and continues to be about the most productive section in this part of the Black Hills. The Portland Clinton company is making regular shipments of high grade ore to Denver. As the exploration of the ore bodies is carried on there is a gradual increase in the size of the veins. The average value of the ore being taken out by this company is $150 a ton.

The Reliance company, at the head of Annie creek, is doing some extensive development work and at the same time supplying the mill daily with 150 tons of fair grade ore.

The American Eagle Gold Mining company will soon be ready to start operations in its new mill at the head of False Bottom, and for the time being will treat daily 100 tons of ore that comes from the Green Mountain refractory ore belt. This ore body is now being put in shape to supply the mill in which the machinery is being installed.

The fact that some of the Mogul ore bodies extend through Terry's Peak into the Dutch Flat section may have an important bearing on that district. A number of individuals for some years have carried on indifferent development, which will likely be stimulated by the known presence of the larger and more permanent ore bodies.

With the resumption of work by the Tinton company in the district north of here and the shaping up of the affairs of the old Harney Peak ground by the Gertie Tin Mining company at Hill City, tin is again attracting attention in the hills. Over in the Bear Gulch district plans are making for a resumption of work on the property of the Bear Gulch Gold Mining company. The company owns more than 500 acres of patented ground well situated, and included in this are several of the best tin ledges to be found in the hills. Any number of tunnels and prospect shafts have been run and the ground pretty thoroughly opened up. It is now in such shape that it will require little work to get the ore bodies in a producing state. Besides the gold and tin ledges the company has also a number of rich placer deposits.

It is not unlikely that Two Bit may experience revival before the summer is over. Two Bit is one of the older camps near Deadwood. It has produced some of the richest properties in the hills and has yielded many thousands of dollars before the mining fever struck off to other sections in the hills. Just at present the recent rich strike of the Hercules Mining company and the interest in the section shown by a number of Chicago capitalists has led to talk of some extensive work in that district.

BIG ORE BODY IS OPENED UP

Black Rock Vein Intersected at Distance of Ninety Feet From Shaft of Butte & Superior—Percentage High in Zinc— Young Lake Superior Miner Makes Good Find.

Butte, Mont., May 16.—More encouraging, perhaps, especially to those interested in the newer properties, than anything that has developed in Butte during the past six months, is the opening up of an extensive ore body on the 1,000-foot level of the Butte & Superior property, across the gulch from the North Butte mines.

A crosscut south from the station on the 1,000-foot level, a distance of ninety feet, has intersected the Black Rock vein, the width of which has not yet been determined. The crosscut has thus far penetrated a distance of about twelve feet through solid ore, but it is believed that when the hanging wall is reached it will show a width of more than 100 feet, as this was the width which the same vein showed at a depth of 500 feet.

While the percentage of copper is not great, being less than 3 per cent, the silver values are between thirty and forty ounces ot the ton, and the gold between $1.60 and $3, according to average assays. The assays show 41 per cent zinc. The ore is commercial, however, for its silver and zinc values, and the company has practically completed arrangements for its treatment at some point in Colorado.

According to Mr. Rakowsky, consulting engineer of the company, who is now in the city, there is an immense tonnage in sight, and it is estimated that the ore shoot is 1,200 feet in length, 300 feet in depth and its width is not yet determined. The property, which a few months ago was only a prospect, has developed into a mine, and will give the company handsome returns for its silver, zinc and gold values, without taking into consideration the copper percentage. It is probable that shipments of ore will commence at once.

Ore bins already have been constructed close to the shaft, and while it will be necessary for a time to haul the ore by wagon to the railroad, arrangements are under way for the construction of a spur from the Northern Pacific tracks to the mine. The shaft is of three compartments and operated by one of the best surface plants in the camp.

The shaft is now down 1,080 feet, and sinking will be continued at the same time that development work goes on on the 1,000-foot level, and the next crosscutting will be done on the 1,200-foot level, where it is anticipated that the copper values will be found in greater percentage.

An important mineral find is reported from a new district ten miles south of Butter in the Summit mountains, about two miles from the station of Buxton on the Oregon Short Line railway. A rancher named Erick Rehen has been doing some representation work on some claims for eighteen years, but never knew the value of the ground. Three months ago Peter Lackner, a young miner from the Lake Superior country, heard of the Rehen property and visited it.

He worked for the old man a week and then bought him out. Since then he has been engaged in locating the entire surrounding ground and now has 600 acres under control. There are fourteen different leads in the gound. On one of them Rehen has been running an adit drift which is in a distance of 700 feet. The lead is from 60 to 100 feet wide and the drift is on an ore body three to four feet wide, assays from which give 3 to 4 per cent copper, 20 to 25 per cent lead, twenty to thirty ounces of silver to the ton and 50 cents to $4 in gold. The lead of the original location is treaceable a distance of 6,000 feet, and has been exposed on the surface 40 feet.

John Mulligan of Boulder, who is interested in mining operations in the district near Boulder, is in Butte. He reports that the Boulder district is unusually quiet at the present time, and that one of the properties in that district has been shut down. That property is the Surprise mine, and it is situated near the stage road which leads from the Boulder railway station to the town. It has been extensively developed during the past year, and the backers of the company are said to be, for the greater part, men who are interested in the Calumet & Hecla mines of Michigan. The shaft on the Surprise has been driven to a depth of 365 feet, and for the greater part it has been through loose country rock. The hope has been that a paying vein would be opened up, but apparently the hope has been a futile one.

In the foothills near Boulder is the group of forty-six claims of which the Surprise is one. Nearly 120 acres of quartz properties are embraced within the grounds of the company, and in places the ledges are 100 feet wide on the surface. Since the organization of the company about $90,000 has been spent upon the claims in repre-

RESUMPTION NOT IN SIGHT

Enough People on the Payrolls at Present to Fill Greene-Cananea Company's Wants When the Mines Are Started—Conditions at Cananea as They Really Exist.

Cananea, Mex., May 16.—While the press at large has been publishing rumors regarding the resumption of operations on the Greene-Cananea company, the most important company in the copper world located in the Southwest, it is also a fact that much uncertainty prevailed in each article published. The resumption of operations on a scale equal to that of a year ago is still in the distant future, nothing definite covering this point yet being known, even to the directors themselves. Hundreds of miners and skilled mechanics have been flocking to this camp for the past few months, only to return to the states disappointed in their efforts to secure employment. This impetuous arrival of workingmen is of no benifit to the camp and also a burden upon themselves. The incomin of laborers is responsible for the reports current in the states regarding the inanimate conditions here. In truth the conditions here are much better than reported, about 1,300 men are being employed in the camp, 1,100 of whom are employed by the Greene-Cananea company. No more help is needed by the companies at present, and workingmen should keep away from Canaea for some time, eight or ten months at least.

At the present time the Greene-Cananea company has enough men on its pay rolls to fill its wants when it does resume operations, even on the scale as when it closed down some months ago. This fact is due to the labor-saving devices installed and the labor-saving improvements made in the various departments of the company's plant, including the smelter, mines, concentrator, etc. This can also be said of the Democrata Mining company, which is located in the heart of the camp, near the Veta Grande mine of the Greene-Cananea. This company is at present employing about fifty men, and the company will not resume smelting its product until copper has reached a price which would warrant the manufacture of the red metal at a profit.

The Democrata has done no new work at its surface equipment, its attention being directed to underground development and exploration work. The smelter was installed last year, and had been running but a short time when it was forced to discontinue operations on account of the depreciation in the price of copper.

Will Reduce Costs.

The Greene-Cananea company has been actively engaged in altering almost its entire surface equipment, although quite a little labor has been devoted to exploration and development work at the various mines in its possession. Repair work on an extensive scale has been pursued, and when it does resume, the company will be able to manufacture copper at a price several cents cheaper than before the shutdown. This condition is also the result of the installation of much labor-saving devices and the complete rebuilding of the ore-handling apparatus and also the smelter equipment.

At the smelter before the shut-down there were eight furnaces, seven of which were of different patterns, and nearly all of which had been in active service since their installation, varying from one to seven years in time. These have been replaced by eight new furnaces which are the outcome of the experimental work done with the old types, and embody all the good points contained in the various different types in use previously. The new furnaces have been installed in the old smelter building and the structure remains intact, no alterations being made whatever. The furnaces are the result of the efforts of the superintendent of the reduction plant, C. A. Shelby, and the corps of engineers employed by the company, embodying the good points of the various designs of the old furnaces. A careful study was made of the seven different types of furnaces rom July, 1906, to the end of that year, and since which time much labor has been expended in the planning of the new furnaces.

The capacity of the reduction plant now doubles that of the former equipment, with the same floor space. The former capacity was 50,000 tons of ore per month, and the new plant will be able to handle 100,000 when running in full force. The economy displayed in the new plant is shown by the fact that the smelter will be able to treat 3,000 tons of ore per day with one-half the number of men it took two years ago when the plant was treating 1,700 tons or 2,200 tons at the time of the shutdown. This will save the company in labor alone between $300 and $350 (gold) per day, quite an item in the pay roll.

The Greatest Saving.

But where the greatest saving will be displayed will be in the system of handling the ore. All the ore will be brought by train from the various mines and the concentrator, and delivered into steel and wooden bins, where it will be segregated and weighed, the weights being made known, as will also be done with the fluxes. From the bottom of these bins the ore will be drawn out onto a belt conveyor and delivered to the mixing bed system, of which there are three beds of from 8,000 to 10,000 tons capacity each. In each bed perfect self-fluxing mixtures will be made, all ready for the furnaces, in charges of the above mentioned weights (8,000 to 10,000 tons). When one charge is complete the reclaiming machine will gather it up in a continuous stream as a self-fluxing mixture and deliver it to a conveyor belt, which will carry it to the steel bins directly above the different furnaces, from which it will be delivered to the furnaces as required. This system will save approximately fourteen men a shift in each furnace.

The six old converters have been rele-

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Depression Continues in the Ore Trade—Light Shipments by Cambria Company From Penn Group to Escanaba Docks—Steel Corporation Has Prospective Mine in Leandus Property.

With the season of navigation now fairly in progress, depression continues the ruling factor in the ore trade of the Lake Superior iron region. Compared with the heavy movement under way at this time a year ago, the product of the mines is going forward in driblets. It is usual at this period to be operating pretty well up to the maximum, yet during the past week still further retrenchment has been recorded. Both the Chapin and Aragon mines of the Steel corporation, the two biggest producers on the Menominee range, are now being wrought on half-time; that is, the employes have been divided into two shifts, each of which works alternate weeks. With conditions normal, the two properties give steady employment to a total of 1,600 men; at the present time scarcely a thousand names are on the combined payrolls. Forces were cut 25 per cent some months ago.

As far as the independent producing interests are concerned, there is fear that unless the furnace men soon begin placing their requisitions for ore it will become necessary to make still further drastic cuts in output. While a large number of mines are closed now, there are active properties at which stockpile room is meagre and which will be forced into the idle column unless the product can be moved at an early date. Besides, it requires considerable capital to carry ore in stock, and with the iron market in its present gloomy state there is disinclination to assume this burden. There is apprehension that the demand for ore will perhaps set in during the latter part of the season. In the meantime mines would have closed, and doubtless some needs could not be met. It would be gratifying, indeed, even if the ore is not wanted now, were the furnacemen to put in their orders at this time. This would enable the mine operators to make their plans for the season, whereas all are now at sea and things generally are in chaotic state. Usually requisitions are placed in the fall of the year. This was not the case during the closing months of 1907, nor have any sales of particular moment yet been recorded this season.

Cambric Company Shipping.

The Cambria company is shipping ore from its Penn group of Menominee range properties to the docks at Escanaba, but the movement is light. It is understood that the product from these mines at Norway and Vulcan will not run much over 300,000 tons this season, compared with nearly 400,000 tons last year. The Saginaw property at Norway, which was forwarding ore to the Canadian Soo, has suspended shipments, the Algoma Steel Works having gone out of commission, but the mine conditions active, the product now going into stock. The Saginaw is employing a force of seventy men. The property was formerly known as the Perkins and was one of a number opened by the late Capt. Samuel Mitchell of Negaunee, a prominent and wealthy Lake Superior mining man, whose death, at the age of 62, occurred during the present week. In the Iron River district of the Menominee, the Chicago & Northwestern railroad is building a spur track for the purpose of supplying transportation facilities to the property which the Zimmerman interests are opening near the Baltic mine in Spring Valley. A number of other tracts now in course of development are to be served in similar manner. Because of the contour of the country it will be impossible to extend the railroad to the site of the Zimmerman shaft, for which reason it is intended to convey the ore of the loading pocket by means of a long chute. This will be somewhat of a novelty.

In the Leandus property, in 58-17, and the development of which is now in progress, the Steel corporation has a prospective mine, the size of whose ore body assures that it will be one of the very biggest producers on the Mesaba range. Of considerable depth, the deposit is something like three-quarters of a mile long and almost half a mile in width. All of this area will be stripped. The property adjoins the old Vega, or Cloquet, mine, opened in the early days by George A. St. Clair of Duluth, subsequently operated by Joseph Sellwood and now part of the Steel corporation's Adams-Spruce. The fee is owned by the state, and thus with the mine eventually on the shipping list, a handsome annual royalty will be netted by the commonwealth. The property will be in the million-ton class. It is of interest in the connection to note that there are now in effect upwards of 250 leases granted by the state. The lands involved lie principally on the Mesaba range. More than 100 of these leases are returning an annual royalty of $100 each, and a number of the others—those covering developed mines—are yielding a great deal more, or at the rate of 25 cents a ton for all ore produced.

BONANZA CIRCLE DOES WELL

Calumet & Arizona About Up to Its Normal Production---New Level at Hoatson Shaft is Going to be a Winner.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 16.—The Bonanza circle group, is coming along splendidly at present. Calumet & Arizona is about up to its normal production, is making copper cheaper than ever, and it will do even better when the new No. 6 stack is placed in commission. The Oliver shaft of the company is showing very strong new deposits of ore which will supply the furnaces many years, and there never was a time in the history of the mine when so much of permanent character was shown.

At the Hoatson shaft of the Superior & Pittsburg the new level is surely going to be a winner, everything pointing to this conclusion. Ores are very rich, being oxide of wonderfully high grade and exactly similar to the richest of Calumet & Arizona where dividends are earned very rapidly when the market is anywhere near right. Junction is reporting good things, its newest station cutting copper and making all its friends feel glad.

The shaft of the Warren Realty & Development company, located below the Warren townsite, has reached a depth of over 700 feet. Last month a bonus of $250 was distributed among the employes on account of the great amount of labor done in sinking. The formation continues to be lime, with some iron.

After a perceptible lull in the Dragoons, following on the trail of the late financial disquietitude, the low hum of interest and activity is again resuming in the shadow of the Cochise Stronghold. The Calumet & Arizona people are still holding on to most of their options on the Leadville and in the meantime they have acquired an option on the Cowan properties and are preparing to explore that property vigorously.

The mining companies have filed

FIFTY FEET OF ORE IN GLOBE

Character of Formation Identical With That of the Old Dominion at That Level---Miners Working in Crosscut Enthusiastic.

Globe, Ariz., May 16.—The Globe Consolidated Copper company are not exploring their property as usual, but have reached the ore bodies from the Gem shaft crosscut and are now providing the ore zone. When this report was made the cross cut from the Gem shaft to the Future Copper vein was completed to 885 feet. The vein was cut in hematite iron at 832 feet and up to the present there is fifty feet of the ledge assaying 18 per cent iron and 14 per cent sulphur, with 2 per cent sulphide copper.

The progress of the developments in the future copper vein thus far proves the character of the formation to be identical with that of the Old Dominion at that level and the ore zone of equal extent.

Miners who are working in the crosscut say that the recent discoveries warrant the assertion that the Globe Consolidated will surpass most of the producing mines of the district.

Work was begun in the Gem shaft crosscut January 7, and since that time 885 feet of work has been done in the 120 days' time, through solid diorite. Sixty-five men are now employed at the property.

A correspondent who has been through the Black Hawk mine says that Mr. Amster has been very conservative in what he has said as to the size of the ore body and the amount that is being shipped, namely, from forty to fifty tons per day. The drifts are opening up the ore body and it looks very encouraging for a larger property than is generally thought. The vein is headed toward the Iron Cap property of the National Exploration, which is undoubtedly on the same lode in its present development work at the west end of the Iron Cap. All the general characteristics of the vein formation and the country rock are the same, with the exception that the vein is not so wide on the Iron Cap as it is at the Black Hawk. The lead might be narrowed where it was struck by the hills being thrown up so close together; about 150 feet in front of the Iron Cap east drift the country opens out and the vein should widen.

The Superior & Boston is shipping about one car per day from the Great Eastern shaft and is sinking the new, three compartment shaft. There have been numerous reports of gold strikes in the district within the past thirty days, but as far as can be learned all of the gold is being found in seams in the stratified rocks and in no place is there any evidence of a gold bearing quartz ledge which would indicate depth and continuety.

RICH COPPER VEIN STRUCK

Miners Break Into High Grade Ore at Williams-Luman Mine at Copper Mountain---Thick Vein of Virgin Copper.

Birdseye, Wyo., May 16.—The men at work in the 300-foot level of the Williams-Luman mine in the Copper Mountain district have cut into a large vein of virgin copper. A. D. McQueen, who has been watching developments, left Depass for Butte as soon as he saw that the vein was at least eight feet thick. He was very enthusiastic and said that it was the best copper vein and mine in the world and that he had seen them all. Thomas G. Smith, urestdent and general manager, says that it is extremely high grade ore and that there is lots of it. Local assays gave 80 to 88 per cent copper, $8 in gold and some silver. There is just enough quartz in it to make it break good. This strike establishes the fact that Wyoming is a mineral state and that Copper Mountain is its best camp.

Walter Swanson of Thermopolis and his associates of Colorado, have begun the sinking of a 200-foot shaft on their copper property on the head of Mud creek in the Willow Creek district. This is the property on which the Boysen company's diamond drill was blown up by dynamite before the opening of the Shoshone Indian reservation.

Five men have been put to work sinking a shaft on the gold lead on the north side of the dyke on the Boysen section. This work for the present will be hand drilling, until the dam is finished when electricity will be used. Within the next week a 40-horsepower boiler will be installed below the crosscut tunnel and the driving of that tunnel pushed as fast as men and steam can do it with a full crew.

Capt. J. L. Bieler of Indianapolis, accompanied by T. Roch of the same city, arrived in Shoshoni last week and is now busy at the Big Bend Placers. He is also accompanied by R. H. B. Little of the La Point Sluice Box company of Denver, who is installing one of his company's patents, and Wayne D. Ludwick of Seattle, who is installing a magnetic separator to take the gold out of the black sand. A test was made and it was found that the sand will probably average 75 cents to $1 per yard. The Big Bend people are more than satisfied with their prospects and active work will be prosecuted with the ground sluicing this season.

Sheridan, Wyo., May 16.—It is now about eight years since reports began to circulate concerning the immense gold values along the Little Big Horn river in Northern Wyoming. During this time the facts have been under careful investigation by Engineer F. E. Griffith and others who at length made a selection of about 40 acres of the richest placer lands in the district. The preliminary work of proving up the values is now practically completed, and hydraulic operations are to be pushed forward actively during the coming season. A good-sized machinery equipment has been hauled to the property and is about to be installed by the owners, who recently organized the Gold Standard company for the purpose of developing their claims on an extensive scale.

COBALT MINES ARE ACTIVE

Weekly Shipments Are Now Regarded as Very Satisfactory---Strike in the Silver Leaf---Trethewey May Declare Dividend Soon.

Boston, Mass., May 16.—The two most active Cobalt stocks on the local outside market have been Silver Leaf and Nipissing. The former has had an especially good rise and is one of the most active stocks on the list.

The recovery in the price of silver from the lowest point reached in many years has stimulated interest in these Cobalt stocks for the mines are now recording very satisfactory weekly shipments. The annual production of silver is about 100,000,000 ounces and it is now reported that the German government proposes to buy 10,000,000 ounces a year for the next five years. In addition it is expected that China will again become a heavy purchaser to make good its exchange sales.

Concerning the recent strike in the Silver Leaf, latest advices are that in the draining of Kerr lake, in the Cobalt camp in order to permit operations by the Crown Reserve company, a ditch was cut through the Silver Leaf Mining company's ground on the north and the water turned into the low ground beyond. When the flow of water had ceased, a vein of silver, the existence of which had not been suspected, was found at the bottom of the ditch. This is an offshoot, it is believed, of the rich Crown Reserve vein, which has now been traced for over 1,000 feet across the Silver Leaf property into "Lot 38" of the Cobalt Central, the management of which is now sinking a double compartment shaft for the purpose of drifting on to this vein. It is believed that a very rich body of ore will be encountered at about the 100-foot level.

In the diabese formation, which is the geological characteristic of the Kerr lake and Glen lake section of the camp, values invariably increase as greater depth is attained. This has been the experience on the Big Pete, the Silver Leaf, the Crown Reserve, and other mines in this vicinity. Some veins which show only a trace of silver on the surface runs as high as from 6,000 to 12,000 ounces at the 100-foot level. A number of new strikes have been reported during the week on the Buffalo, Temiskaming and Big Pete. On the Temiskaming a body of ore has been discovered which at the 200-foot level shows eight inches of solid silver.

Trethewey shipped three cars of ore last week, weighing 192,800 pounds. The output from this mine since the beginning of the year is 679,916 pounds. It is said that the company may declare a dividend before the end of May.

REPUBLICAN "HARI-KARI."

Duluth News Tribune: Mr. Johnson could not have been elected in the state as a Democrat. But the Republicans were lulled by his siren song to commit political hari-kari.

In these two sentences there is one half truth and one whole falsehood.

The half truth is that Governor Johnson could not have been elected in this state as a Democrat. He was elected in this state as a Democrat; he ran upon the Democratic ticket as the nominee of a Democratic convention, and he won—twice.

Nevertheless it is true that solely as a Democrat, and solely because he is a Democrat, he could not have been elected. The whole truth is that this state has come to the pass where no man can be elected governor wholly for partisan reasons, whether he is a Republican or a Democrat. The Republican party has been trying to elect men governor solely because they were Republicans, and it hasn't been able to succeed for some time, and it will not succeed for some time to come.

In short, the time has passed, in Minnesota, when men can be elected to an office so important as that of governor upon the bare fact of their affiliation with this party or that. Governor Johnson was not elected because he is a Democrat, but because he is a good citizen, a thorough, alert and capable public servant, and a real man who appealed to the real manhood in the plain people. His opponents did not fail because they were Republicans, but because they did not measure up to the demands of the people.

Now as to the statement that "the Republicans were lulled by his siren song to commit political hari-kari." People are not "lulled" to commit anything, except sleep, but we may well let that pass. In the first place, the Republican party did not commit hari-kari; it is alive and well today—better, if it can take advantage of its previous mistakes, for the defeats that it has suffered. What it did do was to invite defeat by the manner of its nominations and by the character of its nominees. Governor Johnson did not make the Republican party do these things: he did not compel it to produce the nomination of Robert C. Dunn by high-handed and unfair tactics that alienated thousands of justice-loving Republicans; he did not compel it to defeat J. F. Jacobson for the nomination in 1906 by a sudden combination of delegates controlled by the "interests;" nor did he compel the representatives of the "interests" to celebrate their victory by an orgy after the convention. Nor did the Democratic party compel the Republican party to do these silly things.

What the Democratic party did was to nominate a better man than the Republicans nominated; what Governor Johnson did was to give the state the best administration it had had in many years, and to earn his re-election by "making good" as the servant of the plain people of Minnesota.

Such "political hari-kari" as the Republicans perpetrated upon themselves they did through the pure asininity of leaders who were working for the "interests," and whose blunders were rebuked by the voters of Minnesota. The fact that many of these citizens are Republicans means simply that they were citizens first and Republicans afterward; that they placed loyalty to their state higher than loyalty to their party.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

President Roosevelt has stirred up nothing in his entire administration more worthy of public attention than the wanton waste of the natural resources of the country that has been going on. The discussions that have been held at Washington cannot fail to produce great good. It is time that something were being done about it. At the rate at which this country has been going, it is only a question of a very short time before all the most valuable resources of the country will be exhausted.

Yet the mistake was made a long time ago, when the nation adopted the policy of letting these natural resources go into the hands of individuals and corporations, instead of keeping them under the control of the government for the common benefit of the people.

Turn a natural resource over to a corporation—whether it be coal, oil, iron or pine—and you invite just what has happened.

What does the corporation care about future generations? Its aim is dividends, to be gotten as quickly as possible and in as great a volume as possible. That is its sole interest. It professes no guardianship of the interests of the people, of this or of any future generation. It has been given a great natural source of wealth that should have belonged to the people—that did belong to the people at one time—and it is going to get out of it as much as it can and get it as quickly as it can.

That is why there has been a wicked and wanton waste of natural wealth; that is why no thought has been taken for the future; that is why the wealth of the few beneficiaries of this thoughtless generosity of the people has grown so enormously; that is why this growth of congested wealth has made us believe this to be the richest nation on earth when ten millions of our people live in poverty in the best of good times. The heedlessness of the people's servants has disinherited the plain people for the benefit of a plutocracy which is wasting the people's wealth in riotous living and in the purchase of degenerate dukes for its daughters and vampire women for its sons.

All the people get back out of it is poorly paid employment for the workers, charity for the paupers, and libraries which we would have had just the same, and could have accepted with better conscience, if they had come out of the wealth remaining in the hands of the people.

"We are coming to realize the right of the nation to guard its future in the essential matter of natural resources," said President Roosevelt the other day. We are coming to realize that right a little late. How different it would have been had we realized it before we gave away our sources of natural wealth to persons and corporations that have repaid our generosity by plundering us!

HARRY ORCHARD'S REPRIEVE.

Says the Chicago Evening Journal: "The reprieve that Governor Gooding of Idaho has given to Harry Orchard will be received by different people with widely carrying emotions. But to the majority it will seem a mistake."

How it can seem otherwise than a mistake to anybody passes understanding.

Harry Orchard stands on one of two horns of a very bad dilemma.

His confession, made upon the trial of Haywood, Pettibone and other officers of the Western Federation of Miners, was one of the most appalling revelations of wholesale crime in the history of civilization. Unblushingly, even with horrid avidity, he related the details of crime after crime which he said he perpetrated at the instance of the defendants.

Either this story is true or it is not true.

If it were true, Orchard confessed to crimes enough, and crimes horrible enough, to warrant the most severe punishment that modern ideas of punishment permit. Even the many who do not believe in capital punishment as an abstract proposition, and who think that society has no more right to take a life than a murderer has, will find it possible to condone the violation of their principles involved in the judicial execution of Orchard, if his confession is true.

On the other hand, if his story is not true—and it was almost incredible—he swore to a series of lies with the object of bringing about the judicial murder of innocent men.

If a man should be hanged for murder, whether it is of one person or of a hundred, what should be done with a man who will swear to a lie to cause the unjust punishment of guiltless men? This is not only murder, but it is worse: it is muddying the stream of justice at its source; it is prostituting the machinery of justice to the cause of fiendish injustice.

Wholly aside from the merits of the Moyer-Haywood-Pettibone case—which most people have dismissed with a more or less vague belief that it was a bad mess anyway, with evil on both sides—Orchard is in a bad way. He is either a wholesale murderer or a wholesale perjurer, and since his perjury—if it was perjury—was aimed at the destruction of innocent men, he deserves swift and merciless punishment whichever is true.

Besides, the crimes that were committed in the Western mining regions were so flagrant that it is a mockery of justice to let them pass without punishing somebody. The officers of the Western Federation of Miners have been acquitted, yet there is in many quarters a lingering belief in their guilt, coupled with an irrepressible sentiment that if full justice were done some of the mine-owners would also be at the bar of justice. But here is a man who has either admitted his guilt, or has shown himself to be more guilty than the men whose hands are stained with blood by swearing falsely in the hope of bringing about the hanging of innocent men. It would be shocking indeed if he were to escape full punishment.

THE PROPHYLACTICIAN.

Why would it not work out for the betterment of the race if we should reverse the system of medical practice, and pay our doctors where they keep us well, and stop their pay while we are sick?

It is said that that is the habit in China, and if it is there are many things about it that commend themselves to common sense.

Under that system it is to the doctor's interest to have his patient in good health. Under the system prevailing in this country it is to the doctor's interest to have much sickness. The more sickness, the more fees; the less sickness, the less income. To the credit of the medical profession it is to be said, however, that doctors do not work upon the basis that is logical with the prevailing system. They devote their lives and learning to the improvement of health, and it is to the medical profession that we owe the discoveries that have reduced sickness everywhere: the agency of the mosquito in spreading yellow fever and malaria, the potency of vaccination and anti-toxin as preventives of disease, the contagiousness and curability of tuberculosis, and the efficacy of sanitation.

But the trouble with the prevailing system is that we live at haphazard, acquiring errors of diet and other errors that inevitably tend to our injury, until we get sick, and only then does the doctor get acquainted with us. Only then does he get his fees, and then for the first time, when perhaps it is too late, we are told how we should have lived to avoid the condition in which he finds us.

Suppose, on the other hand, we tried the Chinese system. We would go to our doctor and put ourselves in his hands. He would ask us about our living habits, about the sanitation of our home, he would look us over carefully to find out if we had tendencies toward any particular kinds of ailment, and having found out all about our body and our habits he would tell us how we should live to keep healthy. Then we should pay him so much a year or so much a month so long as we continued in good health, and when sickness came we would stop paying until he got us well again. The only trouble with that would be that we should probably not do what he told us to do, and in that event it would be unfair to burden him with the consequences of our disobedience. On the whole, however, it seems that we should get along better, live longer and be happier, if all of us were carefully instructed in how we ought to live to make the most of our strength.

In a recent issue of the new York Medical Journal Dr. J. M. Taylor, with something like this in mind, says that there is an opening for a new form of specialist, which he calls the "prophylactician." His business would be to tell people how to live to overcome hereditary disabilities and to make the most of hereditary abilities. There are few people who could not increase their vital energy and capacity for work by changing their modes of living. The average man handles his body recklessly and carelessly, and it breaks down prematurely. If an engineer used an engine as the average man uses his body he could not hold a job anywhere. The prophylactician would make a specialty of teaching people how to live, and beyond any question there is a fearful pall of dense ignorance into which his specialty could flash the light of intelligence and science.

THE ALDRICH BILL AGAIN.

When the Vreeland emergency currency bill, as accepted by the house, reached the senate yesterday, that body amended it and passed it. The actuality is a great deal more serious than that sounds, however, for the amendment consisted of striking out all of the bill except the enacting clause, and substituting for it the infamous Aldrich bill, which is still a very bad bill though some of its most objectionable features have been eliminated. After passing the amended monstrosity, the bill was returned to the house, which refused to concur in the amendment. This threw it into conference, and what will come out of it all is a mystery the solution of which will be watched with interest.

The Vreeland bill isn't very much of a bill, but if we must have any emergency currency bill at all, it is as innocuous as any. The Aldrich bill, however, is unthinkable, and the senate can scarcely expect that the house will accept it after it has once emphatically rejected it. However, the house does queer things occasionally, and it may be that the senate does expect that Aldrich will triumph in the end.

As it stands now, the Aldrich bill is really worse than it was when it passed the senate before. Several of the amendments that improved it—or rather that made it less menacing—have been stricken out. The requirement that national banks outside of the reserve centers shall keep in their own vaults four-fifths of their legal reserves, instead of sending them to New York to supply the gambling market with money, was a good one; it is gone. The provision that national banks should not loan money to or buy the stock of a corporation in which its officers are interested was another good one; that is gone, too.

As congress evidently intends to pass some sort of currency legislation, as Speaker Cannon appoints the house conferees, and as he is supposed to be friendly to the Aldrich bill, it may be that that measure, in some form or other, may yet be forced upon the people. If this is done, it will be in defiance of public sentiment. The Aldrich bill has no friends outside of Wall street, and its friends are not friends of the people.

If congress really wanted to do something worth while, it would pass the postal savings bank bill to tempt out of hiding and into circulation the savings of the people that never get into the banks at all; and it would pass a bill providing for government guaranty of bank deposits to prevent the unsettling of conditions by quick withdrawals of deposits every time the country gets scared.

"IT'S WRONG, BUT IT'S BUSINESS."

Recently a New York firm of stock brokers, which had not been contented with accepting the business that came to it and making its money out of commissions, but had been playing the market on the "short" side, failed. It was discovered, then, that the firm had been using the securities of its customers as collateral for its own loans. In short, as the head of the firm admitted, he had been taking stock certificates left in trust with him by customers, borrowing money upon them, and gambling upon his own account.

This was bad enough, but what this stock broker said about it gave it a still more sinister look. "They all do it," he said; "it's wrong, but it's business."

"It's wrong, but it's business!" Business never had a more scathing criticism than this, if it is true. Let us hope, for the sake of the country, that it isn't true.

It is a natural result, however, of the policy that is summed up in the motto: "Get money; get it honestly if you can, but get money." That motto has been the business code of altogether too many Americans. It has turned good men into bad; it has hardened the conscience of many a good citizen and led him on from one shady transaction to another until, wholly abandoning the path of honesty, he has accomplished his ruin by some desperate enterprise which, failing, exposed the stain upon his character, the canker that had eaten away his integrity.

This pitiful excuse for a breach of trust that adds horror to the criminality of the act epitomizes the civilization which makes money its god and money-getting its creed. The most sordid and least lovely of all ambitions, avarice is the prolific mother of a horde of such false codes as this. A nation is in a bad way when its people throw to the winds all considerations of honor, self-respect and honest fame in the eager pursuit of wealth for wealth's sake. It is to be expected, in that event, that "business" will often reveal such centers of decay. It has often been said that business in this country, upon the whole, is honestly conducted, and marked with strict integrity. In the face of such declarations as "it's wrong but it's business," we have need of frequent and fervid repetitions of this belief in the staunchness of our business honor. It is unfair to judge general business by an incident in what is really a great gambling operation, of course, and to suspect that because a gambling stock broker will betray a customer that it isn't safe to trust one's property with a grocer, a banker or a real estate man.

But the incident shows the logical result of making money the sole object of one's efforts. Such things happen when men disregard such tests as "is it right?" or "is it fair?" in favor of the flat test of "will it pay?"

It didn't pay this man, and it never paid anybody, to be dishonest. It may have made temporary profits, but these came at the bitter cost of sacrificed honor, self-respect and public trust.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"I find Duluth one of the best towns in the Northwest," said M. A. Beckman, a well-known traveling man who has just returned from the Pacific coast. "Times are not the best in Seattle and Tacoma," continued Mr. Beckman, "despite all reports to the contrary. The lumber mills and other big plants have been silent a long time, and are only just starting up, while the Alaskan trade is not what is usually is. The coming of the fleet to Puget sound will be the great event in that section this year. Special trains are to be run from as far east as Helena and Billings, Mont., in order to accommodate the crowds anxious to see the fighting machines. I expect that many people will also come from Minnesota. As I was saying, I consider Duluth one of the best towns in the Northwest, and if the people here could guage conditions in other places, they would have no complaint to make."

The soul kiss seems to have come to stay.

Many instances of the widespread popularity of the soul kiss have been told in the current news items of the daily press, but it remains for E. A. Foltz of little old New York, who is registered at the St. Louis, to tell of the attempt of a soul-kissist to impede progress between two great continents.

As Mr. Foltz tells the story, the big boat Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse was about to start on a fast hike across the bounding billows. The cables had been cast off, the last signal given and the gangway about to be drawn up, when a figure, that must have beat it from the battery precincts, bounded on to the gangway and clutched in his arms a woman who looked like the pictures of a New England school ma'am.

There was the masculine devotee of the soul-kiss game standing on the end of the gang plank while his feminine affinity was leaning over the steamer, returning with radiant enthusiasm the initiatory formula of the soul kiss lodge. If the gang plank was pulled in, the man would be precipitated into the deep blue sea. Perhaps, too, the lady in the case would follow him to a drenching, for they were locked in an embrace that would make Cleopatra's love coddlings look like the degree of welcome at a Boston old maid's convention.

It required rude and uncouth sailors and deck hands to untangle the participants in the soul kiss. They were obliged to untwine their fingers and pry the pair apart. When they had run the man far enough down the gang plank they found that they could start the boat, which had been delayed fully a quarter of an hour by the impetuosity of the affinities.

"If our trains and steamers are to be delayed by the soul kissers," says Mr. Foltz, "it is time that captains of industry sought means of insuring immunity from the impulsive actions of the soul mates. An injunction might prove effective in preventing our ships from being held at the pier.

"It is full of menace, is the soul-kiss habit. These members of the cult are liable to cause delays in almost any old place. They have already, as a matter of current record, held up trains and steamboats, and their activities may be extended to other fields. Captains and conductors might be armed with legal authority and secure a change of venue, when threatened with serious delays. Some means must be adopted to avoid losing valuable time through the delays of the soul kissers."

The Girls.

Hear the laughter of the girls—
Pretty girls!
What a fund of merryment each ruby lip unfurls!
How they chatter, chatter, chatter,
In the balmy air of night
While the stars that over-spatter
All the heavens hear their clatter
In a soft and mild delight;
In a sorter-kinder rhyme,
Keeping time, time, time,
To the tintinabulation that, unceasing, ever purls
From the girls, girls, girls,
Girls, girls, girls,
From the wild, capricious, saucy, jaunty girls.

See the flirting of the girls,
Radiant girls!
How the softened brain of lover wildly whirls!
Through the mazes of the ball,
Up and down the stately hall!
How he skippeth to and fro,
And perspires!
Would that we could tell the idiot all we know
Of the fires
Into which the false one hurls
Each new victim—see the flame how it swirls!
How it curls!
How it curls!
Better far that they were churls,
Than fall victims to the girls,
To the prattle and the rattle
Of the girls, girls, girls,
Girls, girls, girls—
To the sacking and heart-racking of the girls!

THE WEATHER.

The wind had got out of the northeast this morning, and though it was cloudy and damp, it was warmer. The weather man expects it to be cloudy tonight and tomorrow, with probable showers, and he indicates that the wind will shift back to easterly again. Last night's lowest temperature was 38 degs., and yesterday's highest was 45 degs.

A year ago today fine spring weather prevailed.

The sun rose this morning at 4:30 and sets tonight at 7:35, making 15 hours and 7 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Light rains fell during Friday or last night in the lake region, Ohio valley and Atlantic states attending the disturbance central Friday morning over Minnesota and which has moved to Northeastern Canada. Low pressures central this morning over the Rocky mountains and Alberta are causing rains in the extreme Northwest and higher temperatures over the eastern slopes and Northwest. The barometer remains high over Pacific and Atlantic states. Occasional showers may be expected in this locality tonight and Sunday."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

SMILING LINES.

Baltimore American: Oldschool (pompously)—Oratory, sir, particularly in the political field, is a great engine of progress and power.

Youngblood (irreverently)—Yes, especially if it is a hot-air engine.

Houston Post: "Burroughs has a happy faculty of making new friends wherever he goes."

"He has to. He owes all the old ones."

Philadelphia Press: Coakley—There's nothing like plenty of exercise to reduce one's weight.

Joakley—But there's Skorcher; the more exercise he takes the more he runs into flesh.

Coakley—What exercise does he take?

Joakley—Motoring.

Chicago Tribune: "Speaking of tornadoes," observed the boarder with the high forehead, "if the one that visited Oklahoma the other day had happened along a few months sooner there would have been a provision in the state constitution abolishing tornadoes. That's about the only thing they overlooked."

Baltimore American: "I beg pardon," said the new arrival, "but it seems to me it's excessively warm here."

"Eh! what?" snorted Satan, "evidently you forgot where you are. This place is meant to be warm."

"Quite so, but there's such a thing as overdoing it."

Washington Star: "I tell you," said the promoter, "that mine can be made to give up money."

"I suppose it can," said the small stockholder. "How about the officers of the company?"

Economical Wife.

Bernard, Kan., Bee: A New York paper asks: "Can a woman dress on $20,000 a year?" Our wife does, and she is a large woman, too.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Ourselves and Public Sentiment.

Who makes that important and powerful commodity known as public sentiment? The press, the pulpit, the colleges, the lecture platforms? Certainly. But these institutions are not impersonal agencies but the channel through which individuals express themselves. The preacher, the editor, the teacher, the educator are single units subject to the influences which control the rest of mankind, some times mere echoes of others as they put their ears to the ground, some times thoroughly independent and yet not even then, able always to conform public opinion to their own ideals.

For what, after all, is public sentiment? It is one man's thought of life and duty, of responsibility and of service plus another man's and another's and so on to the end of the street or of the world. The sentiment of any home is the combination of what mother and father and grandpa and grandma and the children think or feel on any one matter. The public sentiment of any community is the aggregate of many purely personal views and ideas. College sentiment is what the mass of the fellows feel about athletics or the professors on anything else.

Every one of us is a maker of public opinion to the extent that he has honest convictions on any subject and the courage and wisdom wherewith to express them. In a season of business depression one may either contribute to its continuation or to its disappearance as speedily as possible simply by talking despondently or cheerfully. Or take any unfortunate situation that arises, how much the individual attitude has to do with the bettering or prolongation of it. If the clatter of tongues is to this general effect "Oh, isn't it awful," "What a pitiable plight we are in," "Who would have thought that So and So would have acted this way," then it will be only a little while before a general atmosphere of pessimism and inaction settles over the community.

If on the other hand individuals say "Yes, things are pretty bad but if we will take hold together heartily, we can better them," then a spirit of expectancy and good cheer is created.

When tongues begin to talk about the character of this or that person, how much one can do to stay the tide of gossip and slander, to secure a suspension of judgment and the interpretation of certain actions as charitably as the circumstances permit. I admire the man who will stand up in the crowd and say, "Gentlemen, are you sure you are doing justice to this man whom you are so vehemently condeming? Have you heard his side of the case? Are you sure you have gotten to the bottom facts?"

May I venture a special word to women on this point? You are the ultimate source of a great deal of public sentiment. Your talk with one another helps powerfully to make or mar the reputation of many another. Will you not use your special talent and your special opportunity to create the kind of sentiment that ennobles a community and dignifies human life?

We all need to realize that by our words and attitude day after day we are adding something to the influence of public opinion. We are helping either to defeat or enforce the laws for which we vote, all too much inclined to shift entirely upon others the duty of their enforcement.

What have we done this past week to make the sentiment of our home, our street, our neighborhood, our country, purer and higher? What will we do next week?

THE PARSON.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: What makes the season of real enjoyment is it isn't opera.

The reason a man objects to buttoning a woman up the back is she's his wife.

The reason people like to talk is it requires no thought on the subject they talk about.

Marse Henry's Good Excuse.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Henry Watterson's fondness for dizzy Spanish blondes must not be taken to mean that he is averse to dizzy brunettes. It's the condition, not the type."—Houston, Tex., Post.

Get out! It is old Anno Domini, and neither the type nor the girl!

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

The city council last night confirmed the appointments of M. Fink, John Rossiter, M. Filiatrault and Jaseph Swelger as health inspectors, and George D. W. Manderville as clerk of the board of public works. The building of a $10,000 fire and police hall at Rice's Point was ordered.

The Terminal Railroad company has formally accepted the ordinance passed by the council. It has eighty acres of terminal yard room secured; it also obtained all the property needed for tracks between Grassy Point and Rice's Point, along the bay front, and has, by city ordinance, the use of certain streets on Rice's Point and Railroad alley, which will bring it to the heart of the city.

The Consolidated Vermilion Mining company held a meeting yesterday afternoon and elected Walter Van Brunt a director in place of G. W. Kimberley, removed to California. Several locations of the company are to be developed with the diamond drill, and a crew is now at work in 62-13. It is expected that the big deal with English capitalists will be completed in a few days.

All work at the Hinsdale quarries has been suspended, the difficulties of the company allowing no further prosecution of its contracts. Nearly all the stone for the Chicago Auditorium has been already shipped to that city.

Charles R. Haines is on his way to England for a two-months' visit.

The high water and swift current of the St. Louis river is causing considerable delay to the Fond duLac stone quarries and Duluth builders. A scowboat of brownstone, from Chambers' quarry, while on the way to the city, a few days ago, sank to the bottom, causing a loss of over $1,000.

The Crookston convention yesterday indorsed the candidacy of G. G. Hartley of Duluth for delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention, and elected Haivor Steenerson of Crookston and C. L. Lewis of Fergus Falls as district delegates.

The president has signed the bill appropriating $150,000 for a public building at Duluth, and the structure will be erected. Now the fight will commence in Duluth for its location.

C. W. Swanstrom is building a handsome residence for himself in Oneota.

Cashier Siverts has received the preliminary plans for the new Norwegian Lutheran church, which is proposed to erect at the corner of Twenty-first avenue west and Fourth street.

The village board at West Superior has elected the following officers: Attorney, H. H. Grace; superintendent of police, William J. McRae; street commissioners, J. T. Wenger and H. D. Messingham; engineer, E. B. Banks; fire warden, W. H. Cruickshank.

John W. Johnson's house at 121 West Fourth street was entered by burglars last night and a gold watch and chain and an overcoat were stolen.

THE SIXTIETH CONGRESS

By SAVOYARD.

(Copyrighted, 1908, by E. W. Newman.)

THE best government yet invented by man is the representative republic, the parliamentary system, evolved out of the progress liberty has made since the barbarians of the earlier Christian era overran and destroyed

The glory that was Greece,
And the grandeur that was Rome.

Representative government is bad enough, but it is the best there is—a sort of mean between the despotism of Darius and the democracy of Cleon—between the tyrant and the demagogue. Athens was what is called a pure democracy. It was a small town, and a few people. The combined wealth of the entire state and citizenship was less than the cost of the New Willard hotel in this town. Yet Athens fills and illumines one of the greatest pages in history. Had it been a representative republic, such as the present limited monarchy of England, it is quite likely that the splendor of Athens would have been undimmed when Marius and Scylla were cutting throats in Rome. But just as Persia rotted under the sway of the successors of Cyrus, so Athens fell a prey to her demagogues, who ostracized Themistocles, envied Aristides and murdered Socrates. Perhaps the worst of all the governments was that "of the people" in Athens.

It is atrociously treasonable and disgustingly unpatriotic to say so, but parliamentary government has attained to its highest excellence in the united kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. It was the hope of the fathers to establish a nearly perfect parliamentary national government here, but their timidity exceeded their faith. The result is that we have in this country executive government. Indeed, the American house of representatives has earned the contempt of all intelligent students of government. Sycophantic, at the White House, it is truculent in the committee on rules, a braggart, a bully and a coward.

In its councils deliberation is abolished, though garrulity is augmented. The very soul of parliamentary government is the right in the minority to offer and debate amendments to legislation proposed by the majority. That privilege is now denied. John Quincy Adams, one of the greatest names in the sovereign commonwealth of Massachusetts had intrusted him with a vote in the national house of representatives, which he might employ as a shield or a sword, as he saw ber is allowed to use his vote as a shield. John Randolph of Roanoke, no doubt, thwarted more vicious legislation than an other statesman of our history. In the Sixtieth congress such a man, if of the minority, would be perfectly helpless.

Charles II was a man of brilliant mind and rather generous impulses, but he was one of the most worthless of all the worthless kings with Bourbon blood in their veins. His government was abominable, composed of five men—Clifford, Arlington, Buckingham, Ashley and Lauderdale. The initial letters of these names made the word cabal, a term forever infamous when used in a political sense among Anglo-Saxon people.

The American house of representatives is ruled by a cabal, a junta of junto, composed of three men—Joseph G. Cannon, John Dalzell and James S. Sherman. These men hold the house in a grip that is as resistless as it is remorseless. Whatever they are for the house must enact. Whatever they oppose the house is not allowed to consider. For instance, a large majority of the house is in favor of measures putting on the free list wood pulp and print paper. That majority is not allowed voice. And that is why I say the American house of representatives is become an object of contempt. It is bound and gagged and not allowed to think counter to what its masters order.

If Clay, Calhoun and Webster were members of the Sixtieth congress, as they were of the Thirteenth, they would have to get permission of the cabal of three, who compose the majority of the committee on rules, before they would be allowed to serve their country in their legislative capacity. Never was a despotism more autocratic or more insolent—never one so imbued with cant.

What is the pretext? Why, that the majority must be allowed to transact the public business without impertinent suggestion and ill-mannered criticism on the part of the minority, when everybody knows that it is the sole endeavor of the majority to neglect the public business as urged by a Republican president. That sort of hypocrisy, I make small doubt, will prosper, for the reason that of the 90,000,000 American citizens, most of them are fools and many of them are knaves. It is a standpat congress, and that is exactly what the Sixty-first congress will be if it shall turn up with a Republican majority. Its one ambition is to pass the general appropriation bills and then go home and mend fences.

We have the spectacle of a Democratic minority resorting to a filibuster to force a Republican majority to legislate on lines advised by a Republican president. The junta was infuriated, and Mr. Dalzell in effect, told Mr. Williams that he was a fool to do things that would defeat the Democratic party next fall. I have never, in thirty years of observation at this capital, seen a statesman so enraged because his adversary was making a political mistake as John Dalzell is because John Sharp Williams is doing things that will cost the Democratic party a score or so of seats in the next house—if John Dalzell's tongue utters what John Dalzell's judgment forges.

It was at Austerlitz, when the glorious son of that first anniversary of Napoleon's imperial purple was bursting for him on the Eastern horizon, that the mighty Corsican was observing through a glass, the movements of the enemy. Around and about him were his marshals, eager and impatient for the battle—petulent for the delay. But Napoleon muttered. "Never disturb the enemy when he is making a mistake." The event vindicated his wisdom. Austerlitz was his most famous battle, his most glorious victory.

But Mr. Dalzell is not a statesman of the Napoleonic order. Not only does he interrupt the adversary when he is making a mistake, but he interferes to prevent it—lays an embargo on mistakes, sues out a writ of injunction to inhibit John Sharp Williams from committing mistakes. It reminds of Fontenoy, where the household troops of King Louis marched up to the British grenadiers, and asked, "Gentlemen, will you be so good as to fire first?" The chivalry that was supposed to have died with Bayard yet swells in exuberant abundance in the emulous heart of John Dalzell of the Pittsburg iron works.

What an ingrate John Sharp is! Even great Caesar allowed Jean Casslus to save him; but Williams with base thanklessness, rejects the gift of the Pittsburg Greek and persists in ruining himself and his party by insisting that the Sixtieth congress shall be responsive to public opinion. He is a holy terror, for it will be recalled that even Uncle Joe had to come to the aid of his lieutenant and assist in mending Democratic fences. And for that John Sharp was also callously thankless.

It seems that John Sharp was insisting that the Republican house should have an opportunity to vote on the wood pulp and print paper bill. Now, according to the majority of the ways and means committee, the tariff on those articles is not protective. According to the figures of the treasury it is not for revenue. Thus the thing is not flesh, nor fowl, nor good red herring. But it is in the Dingley bill, and therefore sacred. Every newspaper in the land is for the removal of those duties, but the Republican congress tells the newspapers what Dalzell told Williams, that they do not know what they want, or what is good for them, and to go home and mind their own knitting.

But the impertinent literary fellows persisted, and Uncle Joe gives them what he hopes is a soothing powder. He introduced a resolution and raises a committee of inquiry. For what? To find out, at enormous public expense, what everybody already knows.

The consumption of print paper in our country is many thousands of tons daily. The extortion of the paper trust is $10 a ton. There is a fat porker that will be in the hands of the scullions and turnspits in the kitchen of the fat fryer next fall.

That there is the nigger in this here wood-pile.

"Retz," by Van Zo Post—"The Postscript," by Eleanor Stuart—"The Red Skull," by Fergus Hume—"By Wild Waves Tossed," by Capt. Jack Brand—"The Under Groove," by Arthur Stringer.

RETZ. By Van Zo Post. New York: The McClure Company. $1.50.

Here is a romance with a real hero in it; a truly gallant and commanding figure, rich in the love of women because of his dash and assurance, rich in the fear and respect of men because of his manly prowess, and rich in this world's goods because of his friendship for the downtrodden Jews and because of business instincts that would do credit to the canniest of them all. It is a tale of the days before feudalism, dying, gave birth to French empire, and tells the crushing of the power of Burgundy by the iron hand of the bearer of the lilies; though the author has apparently taken liberties with history by making Retz, his hero, the real factor in putting a King Charles of France upon the throne of the united nation. However, this is romance, not history, and the story loses none of its savor because of the dubiousness of its history. The hero is irrepressibly resourceful, as a hero of romance ought to be; a master of men and an idol of women. There are many stirring descriptions of good, staunch fighting, and good red blood runs freely. The tale is dedicated by the author "to the spirit of adventure, which I have ever followed," and it is worthily dedicated. Even though the hero sometimes shows a most unromantic eye to the main chance, and even if his abundant affections seem at times to be rather wantonly spread out over much ground, it is a lively tale and cannot fail to grip the interest of the reader and keep it to the last page.

THE POSTSCRIPT. By Eleanor Stuart. New York: The McClure Company.

A young woman, who says of herself: "I am every lonely thing; I am an orphan, an only child and a childless widow," rescues from drowning a pretty boy who comes into the aching void of her heart, clutching it with irresistible ties. Even though she is led to believe that the boy is the illegitimate child of the husband whose recent death she is still mourning, the tie becomes so strong that she clings to him in spite of this terrible shock to her faith. Discovering the mother, she is irresistibly attracted to her, also, again in spite of the horror that comes of her belief in the story about her dead husband. The struggle of mind that goes on within her makes a keenly interesting psychological story.

THE RED SKULL. By Fergus Hume. New York: Dodge Publishing Company. $1.50.

It is almost a generation since Fergus Hume, a New Zealand writer, produced, in "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," one of the first "best sellers." The book attained an enormous circulation because of its spirit of mystery and adventure and is still to be found in circulating libraries. The publication of this new book by the same author will be the first intimation to many that he still lives and writes, though he has published other works in the meantime. There is in this new book every element of the old-fashioned mystery story that bordered on the "blood and thunder" type, but was none the less alluring to readers therefor. There is a mysterious murder, with which are associated a red skull adorned with a silver band, a prediction of the tragedy by a chiromancer, some queer doings in the previous history of the murdered man and of the baronet who is suspected of his murder, an idiot son, etc. Some of the chapter headings will give an idea of the nature of the story: The Tent of Mystery; The Will; An Amateur Detective; A Strange Disappearance; Under the Earth; A Terrible Night; The Red Skull; Disaster; The Deluge. Plenty happens—enough in every chapter to satisfy the most exacting demand for excitement. And, withal, it is told by a practiced writer, skilled in the creation of pleasing thrills.

BY WILD WAVES TOSSED. An Ocean Love Story. By Capt. Jack Brand, late U. S. N. New York: The McClure Company. $1.50.

Here is pure romance, of a type that is ever welcome to red-blooded youth. Its scenes are laid in England and upon the ocean at a time just before the outbreak of hostilities between the United States and Great Britain in the war of 1812, when hectored American spirits revolted against the annoyances and injustices of the "press," in which British war vessels took from American ships such sailors as they needed for the king's navy. The heroine, an English girl of good family, is abducted by the British naval officer to whom she has been engaged, but who, when her father died and left her nothing, broke the engagement and substituted for his former proposal of marriage an infamous suggestion that brought the red badge of shame and anger to her cheek. She is rescued by an American, who, though making himself out to be a common sailor, appears very obviously to be something else, and who essays to take her to Virginia, where she has kin that will welcome her. How the ship on which they sail is overtaken by the baffled British captain, how they are retaken and escape again, how they are finally brought to Virginia and into each other's arms, makes the story, and a very diverting and absorbing story it is. Improbable? Some of its more desperate adventures may seem so, but really they are no more improbable than romance demands to lift itself safely above the level of the commonplace.

THE UNDER GROOVE. By Arthur Stringer. New York: The McClure Company. $1.50.

In these eight adventures Mr. Stringer returns to the field of "The Wire Tappers," and finds again all the alluring romance, the breathless peril and the absorbing interest that he developed in his former work. They deal with the career of a cracksman who introduces himself, apparently for sheer love of it, into desperately perilous situations and gets himself out again with a resourcefulness and skill that is little short of miraculous. A love story blends the eight separate tales into a novel. The hero is in a very exciting business, and the relation of his adventures makes a book very good to read. He is a wire tapper, an associate of yeggmen and something of a yeggman himself; he is also a forger, a confidence man, a burglar and a pickpocket, and yet, withal, a good deal of a gentleman, too, as it turns out in the end, the revelation being accomplished by the use of a well-known development of surgery and pathology. While we profess no intimate acquaintanceship with the technics of burglary, those described here look plausible enough to be the real thing.

THREE WEEKS IN HOLLAND AND BELGIUM. By John V. Higinbotham. Chicago: The Reilly & Britton Co. $1.50.

Mr. Higinbotham is pointing out to those who can afford the expense, that they can also afford the time, for a vacation abroad. Four years ago Mr. Higinbotham, who is a business man, also an optimist and a man of energy, wrote a book, entitled "Three Weeks in Europe, or the Vacation of a Busy Man," based upon his own experiences while traveling abroad. In all particulars, unlike the professional guide book, it is a narrative full of incident and humor—just the things one wants to know and full of pertinent suggestions. The volume made a "hit," and it is now selling in its fifth edition, with a boost coming from everybody who has read it. Out of this first success came the idea that there was a field for a series of travel books, showing what a busy man could do by taking a week to go and a week to come, with two to three weeks on the other side—just about the time the average man could spare for a vacation trip. The second book of the series has just been published—"Three Weeks in Holland and Belgium"—and is on the same style, crisp and breezy. The new volume is illustrated with fifty-two half-tone pictures, all taken by the author and entirely out of the usual.

THE LOVE SONNETS OF A CAR CONDUCTOR. By Wallace Irwin. New York: Paul Elder & Co. 50 cents.

Do you remember that cluster of real refined music, "The Love Sonnets of a Hoodlum?" Do you remember how it batted such a line of yellow language into the family circle of higher literature that professors of pugilism rubbered at the hole in the sky till their lamps began to smoke? And do you remember how, when Wallace Irwin, the boy author, saw the sales sky-hooting upward to the extent of about 100,000 copies he got scared and promised never to do it again? Well, that Irwin boy is sure a welcher! When he heard that barrel-organ muse tuning up in his head it was him for the inkstand and before he realized the full extent of the crime, he had finished another passionate pamphlet, and this time it was called "The Love Sonnets of a Car Conductor." It ought to make as big a hit as Irwin's first offense.

Literary Gossip.

Mrs. Humphry Ward, the great English novelist, who is now visiting in Boston, has arranged for the publication by Houghton, Mifflin & Company of the first complete and uniform edition of her writings. This is literary news of the greatest interest to Mrs. Ward's countless American readers, who will be only too glad of the opportunity to obtain her books in an adequate and permanent style.

An interesting book on Little, Brown & Company's April list is entitled "In Greece With the Classics," by William Amory Gardner. The volume consists of original translations of the legends and songs of ancient Greece immortalized by her historians and poets, connected by a brief narrative of travel to the different sites and shrines to which they refer. Mr. Gardner is a teacher at the famous Groton school.

Chatto & Windus, London, are now publishers of "The Book of Elizabethan Verse," chosen and edited by William Stanley Braithwaite the Boston poet and published in this country by Small, Maynard & Co. The literary critic of "The Queen" says of it: "This book is as essential to keep in one's reference bookcase as the Golden Treasury itself; it is a regular encyclopaedia of the Elizabethans."

Another book from the pen of Frederick A. Ray, author of "Maid of Mohawk," is announced by the C. M. Clark Publishing Co., Boston, to appear in the early summer, and is called "The Devil Worshipper."

Among the Magazines.

With the May issue Uncle Remus's Magazine apears amplified in name and size; having purchased the Home Magazine of Indianapolis, it became Uncle Remus's—the Home Magazine, and is larger and dressed in more pleasing typographical style than either of its forebears.

The May number is chock-full of good matter. Fiction by Virginia Woodward Cloud, George Randolph Chester, Reina Melcher and Will N. Harben is balanced with a wealth of special articles of varied appeal, some excellent verse, and inimitable departments conducted by Mr. Harris, Don Marquis and Mary E. Ryan. Billy Sanders discusses Tom Lawson and the people, and Uncle Remus himself has a department devoted to the children, which is of course of interest to the whole family. The old darkey tells a new story in the old-time manner, and this is followed by many interesting letters written to him by the youngsters.

The illustrations for the number are by Lucy May Stranton, Maud Thurston, Robert Edwards, Worth Brehm, Alice Beach Winter and R. J. Dean.

The North American Review for May opens with a highly interesting symposium entitled "The Claims of the Candidates." The claims for the presidential nomination possessed by Speaker Cannon, Secretary Cortelyou, Vice President Fairbanks, Senator Foraker, Governor Hughes, Senator Knox, Senator La Follette and Secretary Taft. Among the writers of these articles are Congressman Henry Sherman Boutell, Congressman Theodore E. Burton, Prof. John R. Commons, Addison C. Harris, Senator Dick and Governor Stuart. President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton university contributes an unusually important article on "The States and the Federal Government." "How to Give New York the Best Police Force in the World" is the title of an interesting article by Police Commissioner Theodore A. Bingham. Sydney Brooks contributes an interesting article upon "The New Ireland."

The National Magazine for May has the fresh, spring-time liveliness that harbinges the season of flowers and the green. Crisp from the pen the editor, Joe Mitchell Chappie, are "The Affairs at Washington." They have that suppressed anticipation that forerunns a great political contest when factions and wide interests have not coalesced into strenuous actions. The political fever pervades Washington. In these short, spicy articles, there is that personal touch and inspiration from the contact of great men and political forces; it is all told with marvelous intuitive skill that draws the reader into the presence of these men and women and the legislative world with surprising reality.

Few people realize the enormous service which has been rendered to this country by its railroads. In the current issue of Leslie's Weekly, Gilson Willets, in the second of a series of forcible articles on the subject, shows the wonderful impetus given to growth and prosperity in the East and South by the railroad lines traversing those sections. It is an illuminating and stirring story, and it will inevitably create a now much-needed favorable sentiment in behalf of our great transportation system. The number is richly illustrated, among its noteworthy pictorial features being a cover drawing by Sydney Adamson representing Alfred G. Vanderbilt of New York, coaching in London, where he has created a sensation; curious tent scenes in connection with a famous circus, glimpses of the methods of training little ones in New York's kindergartens, views of Coney Island just before the opening of the season, thrilling Southern tornado pictures.

The second of the remarkable series of articles in which Frederick Boyd Stevenson is considering impartially the claims of the candidates for the presidential nominations is contained in the current Harper's Weekly. Last week Mr. Stevenson discussed the personalities and the tactical strength of the principal Republican candidates; this week he writes of the Democrats—of Bryan, Johnson, Wilson, Hearst, and others—in the same vivid and authoritative manner which made the first article notable. Another article of striking character in this issue of the Weekly is a brilliant paper by Charles Johnston on the recent Catholic centenary in New York, an article which reads like romance and history combined. It is fully illustrated.

SUMMER SCHOOL FOR DULUTH BOYS

Y. M. C. A. to Conduct Classes for Those Behind in Their Work.

The boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. has made arrangements to conduct a summer school for seven weeks during the vacation. Similar schools have been conducted by the boys' departments of Chicago, New York, Buffalo and many other cities, and they have all proved to be a success and have the indorsement of school teachers, principals, fathers and mothers. The object of the school is to help those boys, who, because of sickness or other unavoidable causes, have fallen behind in their grade, to help those who have failed in their grade examinations and cannot make their grade unless they do extra summer work, and to help boys who have not fully mastered a given subject and wish to become more proficient. The work of the sixth, seventh and eight grades will be taken up, as well as the first and second-year high school work. The plan of the school will be largely individual and suited to the need of the students. The committee has been very fortunate in securing as principal of the summer school Miss Mary L. Olds, principal of the Washington school. She will be ably assisted by Miss Margaret Taylor of the Central high school faculty. Other teachers will be added if needed. The school will open Friday, June 12. Regular recitation work will commence Monday, June 15. Five sessions will be held each week from 9 to 12 o'clock. The term will last until July 31. Summer school students will have all the privileges of the boys' department during the term. There will be two special gymnasium periods each week, swimming trips and outings of various kinds. Following the closing of the summer school the big summer camp at Deerwood will be held for two weeks. Students may, if they desire, attend the camp. This plan for the vacation period will solve the problem that confronts many parents as to what they shall do with their boys during the holidays.

The boys' department manual training shop will open its second summer term Wednesday, June 17, under the direction of George M. Brace of the high schol faculty. The term will last until July 31, and will include twenty lessons of two and one-half hours on Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week, the new electric lathes added to the equipment will enable the students to make an endless variety of useful articles. Those who are behind in school work will have an opportunity of making it up. Under Mr. Brace's supervision boys can make any article they wish. An added feature to the manual training course will be work in leather and burnished brass. This class of work will, no doubt, appeal to a lot of boys. Such things as purses, belts, book covers, and many other things can be made in leather and belt buckles, pins and a host of other things in the brass work. Boys taking the manual training course can, if they desire, spend a portion of their time in this work. All manual training students will have full privileges of the boys' department during the term, and special outings and recreative features will be planned for them. The shop will accommodate twenty students, and already applications are coming in.

TO AID CONSUMPTIVES.

Linnaea Aid Society Will Derive Income From Fancy Postcards.

The Linnaea Aid society of Duluth, which was organized a year ago for the purpose of raising funds for the benefit of consumptives in Duluth and vicinity, has issued post cards bearing the society's emblem, the forest flower "Linnaea borealis," from a painting by David Ericson. By the sale of these cards the society hopes to raise sufficient money to save the lives of many who are suffering from the disease.

The intention of the society is to send some patients to the state sanatorium at Walker, Minn., for treatment, partly or fully paying their expenses while there for a six months' period. Four trustees, together with the officers, constitute, according to the bylaws of the society, an executive board, which passes upon all questions dealing with the funds. The postal card bearing a production of a Duluth painter was their idea. The members of the society expect to use the cards themselves at every possible opportunity and will endeavor to induce their friends to do likewise, thus not alone advertising their work, but augmenting their fund considerably.

If any one has any doubt as to the virtue of Foley's Kidney Cure, they need only to refer to Mr. Alvin H. Stimpson, of Willimantic, Conn., who, after almost losing hope of recovery, on account of the failure of so many remedies, finally tried Foley's Kidney Cure, which he says was "just the thing" for him, as four bottles cured him completely. He is now entirely well and free from all the suffering incident to acute kidney trouble. At all druggists.

MR. DE KOVEN'S CRITIQUE.

A story about Reginald De Koven, the noted musician, was told the other night at a musical dinner in New York:

"An ardent young admirer of De Koven's," said the narrator, "is spending the winter with a rich aunt in Milwaukee. During his visit he has not, thus far, been idle. Last week he finished a symphony, which he sent to the maestro, along with a case of Milwaukee beer.

"De Koven wrote back laconically:

"'My Dear Boy—Many thanks for symphony and beer, the latter excellent.'"

ZENITH
AT THE HEAD OF THE LAKES IS BREWED FITGER'S BEER
¶ The proper water for brewing is one of the greatest elements in the making of good beer. Scientific tests have proven that the water of the Great Lakes, and particularly of Lake Superior, is the best in the world for the purpose. For this reason A. Fitger & Co. built their brewery at Duluth twenty-five years ago. Their expert brewers were given the best equipment and best materials obtainable. Thus the high standard of Fitger's Beer was established and today it is known as the best in the land. Your home deserves a case.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

The May Festival.

The season of spring festivals which is being observed throughout the country is bringing the people a wealth of fine music and Duluth is fortunate in having an oratorio society which has prepared a festival which in all points promises to to compare favorably with any festival in the Middle West. The three concerts which are to be given Monday and Tuesday evenings and Tuesday afternoon of next week at the First Methodist church by the

H. W. REYNER,
Director of the May Festival.

Oratorio society assisted by visiting vocalists and the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra include some of the finest music available for oratorio work. At each concert will be presented a carefully planned program that no music lover can well afford to miss.

The chorus of the society has been rehearsing for months under the direction of Horace W. Reyner and a smooth and beautiful choral work is assured. The Minneapolis orchestra has completed one of the most artistically successful years of its existence and at the festival at Winnipeg this week received the most enthusiastic praise.

The church will be decorated with flags and flowers and will be brilliantly illumined. The outline of the three concerts is given again.

Cantata—"Golden Legend." (Sullivan);
"Olaf Trygvasson," (Grieg); "Wreck of the Hesperus," (Hamish MacCunn);
"Into the World," (Benoit).

Vocal Arias—"Dich theure Halle," (Tannhauser-Wagner) .....Miss Sammis

Orchestra—Eight first violins, six second violins, four violas, four cellos, two double basses, two flutes, two oboes, one Cor. Anglais, two clarinets, two bassons, four horns, two trumpets, two cornets, three trombones, one tuba, one hary, timpani, side drum, military drum, cymbals, triangle and chime of bells. (The bells are only used in "Golden Legend.")
Soloists—Sybil Sammis, Ragna Linne, E. C. Towne and Dr. Hugh Schussler.
Conductors—Emill Oberhoffer and Horace W. Reyner.

Children's Orchestra to Be Heard.

One of the interesting recitals of the spring season will be given at the Lyceum Monday evening, May 25, by pupils from the classes of the Flaaten conservatory. A special feature will be the numbers by the juvenile orchestra of the school, which is composed of sixty students. The orchestra has been heard several times during the winter, and on each appearance has made a most favorable impression. The numbers to be played by the orchestra are "Vorspell," by Giovanni and "Romance," by Morse.

Pupils' Recital.

The pupils of Miss Mabel Fulton will appear in a recital Friday evening of next week, the event to take place at the auditorium of the Flaaten conservatory. Miss Fulton will be assisted by Alex Enna, tenor, and Roy Flaaten, violinist. A feature of the evening will be the singing of Miss Marjorie McTague, a 5-year-old tot. The program is as follows:

The Mills Lectures.

It is unusual for important lectures to be announced at as early an hour as 8 o'clock in the morning, but many Duluth citizens were so interested in Mr. Mills' lectures a year ago that they were present day after day at that early hour. Mr. Mills' present lecture tour, which has been an exceedingly successful one, did not originally include Duluth, but so many of his friends here manifested their desire to have him speak again in this city, that arrangements have been completed by which he will deliver three lectures daily, on Wednesday and Thursday of the coming week.

These lectures will be given in Flaaten's hall, between Second and Third avenues west, on First street. The hours will be 8:6 a. m., 4 p. m. and 8:15 p. m. The morning lectures will close promptly at 8:50, and will be followed by discussion, but all who want to do so may retire at that hour. The general topic for the morning and evening lectures will be "The Higher Psychology." Mr. Mills has been a deep student of "The New Psychology," represented by Prof. James Frederick Myers and others, and in other cities his addresses on this fascinating topic have been attended by large members of the leading citizens.

BENJAMIN FAY MILLS.

His subjects will be as follows: Wednesday morning, "The Three Minds of Man;" Wednesday evening, "The Sub-Liminal Consciousness;" Thursday evening, "The Supreme Consciousness."

In the afternoons he will give two lectures on "The Source and Secret of Health," on Wednesday, the subject will be, "The Principles of Spiritual Healing," and on Thursday afternoon, "The Practice of Spiritual Healing."

Leo Schmeld In Recital.

One of the interesting musical events of the latter part of the month will be a piano recital by Leo L. Schmeid, who will appear at the Congregational church Friday evening, May 29. There has been much interest in the work of this young musician and many are pleased at the opportunity of hearing him in a recital program.

Piano Recital.

The piano pupils from the class of Miss Nellie Pishor will give a recital this evening at her home on 521 West Fourth street, at 8 o'clock, assisted by Misses Mabel Fulton, Regina Miller and Marion Higgins. The following pupils will take part: Mildred Spearin, Helen Dunlap, Gertrude Alder, Marion Hall, Ward Hall, Eva Larson, Mary Fitzgerald, Arline Higgins, Ruth Blackwood, Willie Fitzgerald, Annie Furlong, Esther Rudberg, Esther Tagien and Raymond Dunlap.

Circle to Meet.

Circle No. 2 of the Endion Methodist church will meet Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Mrs. Theodore Nauffts of 1610 East Second street.

The Mills' Lectures.

Benjamin Fay Mills will deliver six lectures on "The New Psychology," at Flaaten's hall Wednesday and Thursday.

Miss Donovan in Concert.

There is great interest shown in the concert to be given Thursday evening of next week at the Lyceum by Miss Julia Donovan assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Bradbury. Many of Miss Donovan's friends in the city are eager to hear her again after her years of work and study and a large audience is assured. The program is as follows:

Prelude ..... Ronald Gaelic Lullaby ..... Barnham
"Im Lenz" ..... Hildah
Miss Donovan.
Scene de Czards ..... Hubay
Mr. Bradbury.
Ave Maria, with violin obligato.....
..... Bach-Gounod

"Good Night Sweet Dreams"....Bischoff
Mrs. Bradbury at the Piano.

CLEVELAND APPRECIATES ACTION OF CONFERENCE.

Lakewood, N. J., May 16.—Former President Grover Cleveland, through Mrs. Cleveland, was advised by the Associated Press of the adoption by the conference of governors, held at the White House, of a resolution moved by William J. Bryan, expressing regret at Mr. Cleveland's inability to attend the conference, and hoping for his speedy recovery. Mrs. Cleveland said that Mr. Cleveland was deeply appreciative of the action of the conference. Until the resolution is officially in hand nothing can be said as to a reply.

Speaking of Mr. Cleveland's health, Mrs. Cleveland said:

"Mr. Cleveland has shown much improvement during the past week and is now resting very comfortably. We have as yet made no arrangements about going back to Princeton, and will not do so until the weather becomes more settled."

MRS. SEYMOUR VISITS DULUTH

Is Meeting With Success in Work in Twin Cities.

Mrs. Robert Morris Seymour is in the city for a few days from Minneapolis. Mrs. Seymour has been engaged with classes in applied psychology and Bible study at the Twin Cities during the winter and her work has been received with the greatest enthusiasm by the leading society and club women of the cities. It was a great regret to many Duluth women during the year that Mrs. Seymour would be unable to conduct her classes in this city, but the enthusiasm and support which were awaiting her in Minneapolis and St. Paul made it wise to accept the offer from those cities. A page article in the Minneapolis Tribune of recent date, devoted to the study conducted by Mrs. Seymour, says:

"An occasional dilettante can be found in any fashionable circle, but it is unusual to find earnest study generally among so-called society people. So it is interesting to know that several groups of the ultra-society women of Minneapolis and many individual students are making a thorough study of two vital subjects—the Bible and applied psychology."

The article states further: "Mrs. Seymour is particularly fitted for her work. By inheritance and education she is a deep thinker. Combined with her thinking and training she is a natural teacher. One of the social leaders who is a member of her class informed me 'She always inspires her hearers with a desire to work, and there is a touch of originality and charm about everything she does. Then she is thoroughly interested in whatever she is doing and throws herself into it with such entusiasm and self-forgetfulness she carries every one with her—whether it be literature, art or life. Surely the influence of such a teacher is to be eminently desired and must bring about advantageous results in any community, and it reflects no little credit on the society women of Minneapolis and local social conditions that they are able to participate in and enjoy the work of this class.'"

Aside from her classes, Mrs. Seymour has been working arduously in the interest of the Minnesota State Art society, and through her efforts as a member of the board from Duluth, the exhibit has been secured for this city. The annual exhibit of the society will open at Minneapolis next Saturday evening at a private view and reception. Mrs. Seymour will speak at that time on "The Handicraft Work in Minnesota and Its Possibilities."

The exhibit will be shown in Duluth from June 20 to July 7 and a series of social afternoons is being planned. Mrs. Seymour will be the speaker one afternoon, with "The Handicraft Work" as her subject. Miss McKinstrey of St. Paul will talk on "Watercolors," and Robert Koehler will speak of the pictures of the exhibit.

"The exhibit to be shown this year by the Minnesota society is the finest in its history," said Mrs. Seymour today in speaking of the society and its work. "There will be a good exhibit of paintings from the leading studies of New York, Boston and Chicago. There has been a marked improvement in the work of the Minnesota artists, and the judges are delighted with those efforts which have been submitted.

Minnesota is in a way leading America, as it has offered the support of the state in this work. It is small, but if we are to make the Art society a power for the development of the latent powers of the people in every corner of the state, it must have the support of the government. In Germany and France art education has the support of the government, and when it is realized that America is the least industriously educated of the people of any of the progressive countries, the necessity for work along this line is evident. The Minnesota Art society is endeavoring to become a power in this state for the aid of the people, and the support offered is most encouraging."

Mrs. Seymour will return Wednesday to Minneapolis. She will pass a part of the summer in the city, and will later go to New York to study with Mme. DePalkowska in a course of applied phsychology.

POSSIBILITIES OF THE KITCHEN GARDEN IN DULUTH

Duluth has not yet become so entirely a city of flats and flat dwellers but that a great part of the population turns hungrily in the spring to thoughts of a garden, be it one devoted to green onions and cabbages, or to flowers. A garden is an adjunct to a home—has a charm that is all its own, and there are few so immune from sentiment but that the label "home grown," has a market effect in making the article more desirable.

In no part of the country will potatoes and other hardy vegetables grow so rapidly, and thrive so well, as they will in Duluth. The soil all about the city is admirably adapted to the growth of garden truck, and almost any citizen with a good-sized back yard in the suburbs can raise enough garden truck to supply his table.

Some of the best examples of the back yard gardens are in Woodland and Lakeside. W. C. Sherwood has a garden at Woodland that arouses the admiration of all who see it, and there are scores of others in that suburb which are models of what a garden should be.

People living closer to the center of the city are not able to go in for gardening so extensively, but almost any man or woman can have a little plot of flowers or raise a few radishes and some lettuce.

The products of a kitchen garden are not the only things of value therefrom. The out-of-door life which tending a small garden of flowers or vegetables makes necessary can be of untold value to women and children. In the suburbs of the city, as well as in many homes nearer the central portion, charming little gardens have been laid out, and many Duluth women are themselves tending to the planting of parsley and the easily grown vegetables. The gardens may be brought to a state of splendid growth and beauty either from seeds or little plants obtained from the greenhouses.

Sweet peas are grown in Duluth in a rarer luxuriance of color and size and fragrance than the great majority of other localities can boast, and this one kind of floral culture is widely known. Several Duluth women have made a neat sum of pin money during the summer months by successfully raising this one flower.

This is the season for making the garden, and many Duluth women are busy at the present time with the spade and the rake.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Bryan and Johnson Clubs Organized by Democratic Students.

All-University Tennis Tournament is to be Held Soon.

Minneapolis, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A university Democratic club was organized Tuesday evening by followers of William Jennings Bryan. The "Peerless Leader" was indorsed as the first choice for presidential honors, while John A. Johnson was the second choice of the gathering. Officers were elected as follows: President, Lamber F. Prigge; vice president, Harman Schroeder; secretary, Rudolph Ramsland; treasurer, Theodore W. Thompson. Because the meeting was called by Bryan men and spposed by many to be a Bryan club meeting followers of the Johnson boom, finding many of their number absent, left the meeting. A committee was then appointed from their number to organize a "John A. Johnson Democratic club." Walter Dacey was chosen chairman.

Wednesday afternoon the Johnson committee issued the following statement: "We believe that a university Democratic club should have the interests of Minnesota Democracy at heart; should support the nominee of the Democratic convention, but should not be hostile to the choice of the Democratic majority in this state, as expressed by the recent primaries and county conventions, and above all we should support our able leader, Governor John A. Johnson."

An all-university tennis tournament is to be held in a week or so, the entries to include any faculty member, conditioned student or otherwise rendered ineligible individual, as well as the eligibles. Consolations will be run off. Prizes will be awarded to the winners and runners-up in the single and double events and to the consolation winner. There will be no match contests with Wisconsin or Chicago this year. The board of control Tuesday voted to send two men to the intercollegiate tournament at Chicago May 29 and 30. These two will be the players who win in the "eligibles tournament," which began yesterday.

The annual election of the Magazine board occurred Thursday morning. This was a noteworthy occasion, in that it is the first time since the organization of the Magazine twelve years ago that women have been admitted to the list of candidates for the staff. There will be nine editors on the board next year, three women and six men.

At the suggestion of the retiring staff it was decided Friday evening to make the year book of the Engineers' society a quarterly, instead of an annual publication. The new staff for next year follows: Editor-in-chief, G. M. Sheppard; medical editor, Fred Buck; electrical editor, O. B. Poore; civil editor, Fred Paul, and business manager, B. T. Cobban.

Tuesday afternoon a mass meeting of all the sorority girls was held in the chapel to talk over the Pan-Hellenic rules. The meeting was one of general discussion only. Details are to be arranged and all final decisions made by the Pan-Hellenic association, which consists of one representative from each sorority. The regulations regarding rushing, which were put in effect this year, came in for lively discussion pro and con.

Prof. Charles A. Savage of the Greek department has just received the first copies of his new book, "The Athenian Family." It is a sociological and legal study, based on the work of the Attic orators and was first conceived in the author's dissertation presented to the authorities of Johns Hopkins university, in accordance with the requirements for his degree of doctor of philosophy. He has greatly enlarged and revised it, making a handy book of reference on subjects connected with Greek private life.

Plans are being made by the school of education for a new building for the university elementary school. The building will be situated on the new campus and will be constructed perhaps during the summer vacation. The school of education plans to have classes in the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth grades, and all prospective teachers will be able to gain practical knowledge of teaching before starting their regular work.

The Orpheum has been engaged for an afternoon and evening performance by the Dramatic club when they put on "The Doctor of Alcantara." The rehearsals are taking place regularly and the directors say that even greater progress is being made than was the case in the production of "Pinafore" last year. Miss Malcolm has charge of the dances and Mr. Scott of the chorus work.

STRANGE MYSTERY OF MUMMY

Is This Priestess Still Alive at the Age of 3,500 Years and Capable of Exercising Her Wierd Powers?

Can a mummy be recalled to life? Or it might be better to ask, in view of the shivery tales they tell about the mummy of the priestess of Amen-Ra in the British Museum, does a mummy ever really die?

The priestess of Amen-Ra is 3,500 years old, says the New York World. She was brought to England nearly fifty years ago. They thought then that she was a princess of Egypt, but afterward they found out that she was a priestess. Her sarcophagus and mummy were deposited in the British museum and nobody paid any particular attention to her.

The fact that death and misfortune overtook the men who discovered her and those who were instrumental in having her brought to Great Britain were regarded as mere coincidences. Death and misfortune are the too common lot of man anyway.

The priestess of Amen-Ra lay grimly in her wrappings and paid no heed to the laughing, curious crowd that gathered around her day after day and cracked jokes about her age. She seemed to be as dead as the deadest—and it was hard to imagine that the faintest personality or life could linger about the form of a priestess who had been dead for 3,500 years.

But now and then psychic, sensitive souls came along and gazed at the mummied priestess and turned away to shudder. A vague presentiment of danger came to them. The long dead priestess did not stir, she did not move an eyelash or raise a finger, and yet the psychic sensitive souls were afraid. They were afraid of the priestess of Amen-Ra.

They went away and whispered their fears and people began to notice that bad luck came to those who had anything to do with the priestess. She began to get a reputation as a hoodoo. Officials of the museum were questioned and they just smiled in a superior scientific sort of way, but said nothing.

But the occult manifestations—the hoodoo that hovered about the priestess of Amen-Ra—got to be so firmly believed in by many educated men and women in London that the Society for Psychic Research took the matter up and began to investigate. The sane and scientific people who do not believe in hoodoos hoped the investigation would quiet all the alarming rumors about the priestess.

But the first thing that happened tended to confirm the rumors rather than dissipate them, it is declared.

A well known West end photographer was commissioned to take a photograph of the mummy.

"If there is anything peculiar about the priestess the camera will show it," said the psychic researchers, "for the delicate photographic film can see farther and more clearly than the human eye. The man who looks at the priestess of Amen-Ra and thinks he sees something uncanny about her may be subject to delusions. He may hypnotize himself through fear. But the camera has no illusions and no fear. It will tell the truth about this mummy."

So the photographer went, as he was told, and took a careful photograph of the priestess. He felt a little panic stricken at taking such a liberty with a woman who had been dead so long, but he could see nothing there except the mummy. There was no sign of life.

But when he came to develop his negative that photographer was the most astonished and terrified man in all London. He could hardly believe his eyes—in fact, he could not believe what he saw. With trembling fingers he made a hasty print from the negative and rushed off to the investigators who had employed him to take the photograph.

The photograph of the sarcophagus and the woman had undergone a mysterious transformation. The sacrophagus was the same, but the priestess of Amen-Ra had come to life. She was staring straight before her, with wide open eyes, and an expression of singular and extreme malevolence. She looked as if she was calling down a thousand curses upon a world that would not let her sleep till the end of time in her Egyptian tomb.

Whether he simply was frightened to death at the mysterious picture, whether the malevolent priestess really had put a spell upon him, or whether for him the tale of life was told in any event—no one could pretend to explain. But they say in London that the photographer died in a mysterious manner within a few days. He had smashed his camera and the fateful negative and taken leave of life.

Now, nobody else cares to experiment with the priestess of Amen-Ra. The museum officials do not admit that they believe the story, but they are careful not to disturb the mummy. They smile at the idea of a hoodoo, but it is noticed that they are not taking any chances. It is absurd, they suggest by their manner, for men and women of the twentieth century to fear that harm can come from a woman who has been dead for 3,500 years.

The Psychical Research society seems to be convinced that there is something peculiar about this strange mummy. The evidence is not yet complete, and it may never be conclusive, because it is hard to persuade photographers or others to get near enough the priestess of Amen-Ra to discover her secret. Her reputation has become such that even men who laugh at superstition are afraid of her. The disasters that follow in her footsteps may be coincidences only, but they have been frequent enough and serious enough to put men upon guard.

It is said that even the museum officials would be secretly glad if the uncanny priestess of Amen-Ra were back in her tomb beside the Nile once more.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The "freshies" have been very mysterious and busy during the week preparing for the hop of the year. The blustering Northeaster bid fair to frighten the youngsters at first, but the crowd that turned out for the dance was such an enthusiastic and happy one that it required a greater effort on the part of nature to put even the smallest damper on its spirits.

* * *

Principal Smith called the seniors together the first of the week and discussed with them the advisability of purchasing a farewell gift for the building, as has been the custom in previous years. The members were unanimous in their desire to keep a place in the "records" and a committee was appointed to consult with the art teacher and present subjects for approval. The general sentiment in the class seemed to be in favor of the "Samothrace Victory," and if possible a reproduction of this beautiful piece will be secured as a memorial of "the finest class ever."

The closing exercises of the musical society followed closely upon those of the Public Speaking club. Both held their final programs for the year during the week, and the pupils in each section feel that the year has been specially profitable and successful.

The recent sophomore victory over the junior debating team has matured the budding artistic genius of some of its members. One of the members applied his talent to a large pen and ink sketch which now holds the place of honor on the school bulletin board. In it the "infant prodigies," the sophomores, are portrayed perched on the pinnacle of a very shaky, desolate mountain peak, which is labeled "Mt. School Championship." All the other classes are shown in small, insignificant groups, thousands of miles away. Much comment has been aroused by the drawing.

Members of the "400" all appeared in crepe on Thursday, when it was announced that the treasurer of the "Scream" had absconded, leaving the paper in the hands of heartless creditors. But it may have been for the best, for the editor is a senior and he is now putting his best efforts into a new paper—his diploma.

The senior baseball team has recovered from the attack of spring fever and on Thursday afternoon they met the Sophomores at Hunter's Park, and proceeded to put them out of the race for all time. After defeating the Hopefuls so decisively the '08 nine are anxiously awaiting the coming game, when the faculty will don their togs and take their medicine—or their credits—with becoming enthusiasm.

The gentle May showers and breezes have succeeded in postponing the interclass meet for a week. The continuous rains of the past few days have made outdoor sports of any kind an impossibility and have turned the cinder path into a red clay circuit. If the weather clears up next week it is planned to hold the meet on Friday—but if unfavorable conditions prevail Coach Heston will trot out his men on any possible day, without formal announcements.

The committee on arrangements for the Junior-Senior party has had an exciting week making plans for the annual event, which will be held June 4 in the Old Masonic temple hall. It promises to be a delightful affair and members of the two classes are looking forward with eagerness to the event.

About twenty seniors struggled with the state examinations in English on Friday, as special credits in English are necessary for those entering the scientific or art courses at the university. Many of the students hope to enter in the fall, and an extra amount of study is being devoted to that most essential of all courses.

KITCHENS BECOMING USELESS.

Coincident with the transfer of household industries outside the home, our methods of living are undergoing a slow but steady revolution. The housewife of today is not so busy a personage as was her grandmother, says The Delineator. The food and the clothing that the housemother once made herself are now largely produced in the factories. Every article of wearing apparel may be had from a department store bargain counter. Bakeries turn out bread at 30,000 loaves to the baking. Soups that our mothers spent a day in the making, now arrive all ready to add hot water and serve. Our bacon is sliced and our cereals steam-cooked before they reach the kitchen. Pudding and desserts are minute-made, and pickles and preserves come in fifty-seven varieties, bottled and beautiful.

Drunkenness Curable.

Drunkenness is no longer considered a crime; eminent scientists and physicians have agreed that it is a disease and must be treated as such.

The home treatment that has been used for a number of years, and is highly successful, is Orrine. It is sold under a positive guarantee that if it does not effect a cure your money will be refunded. When desiring to give secretly, purchase Orrine No. 1, and if patient will take treatment, Orrine No. 2, should be given. Orrine costs but $1 per box. Mailed on receipt of price. Write for free treatise on "Drunkenness." The Orrine Co., Washington, D. C. Sold in this city by F. W. Kugler & Co., 108 West Superior street, Duluth, Minn.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bedwetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, South Bend, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

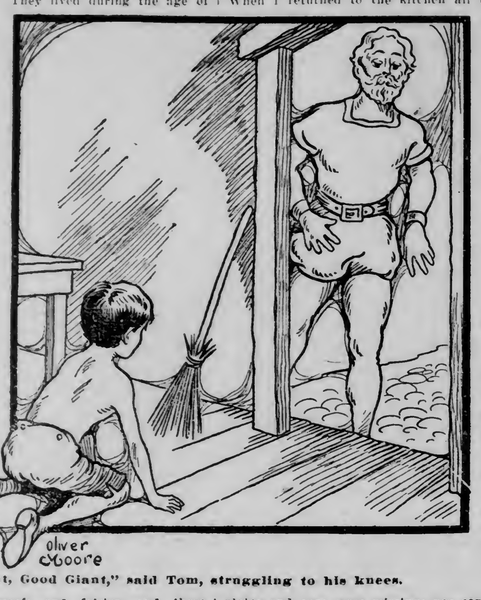
OUR YOUNG FOLKS' PAGE

Tom, the Giant and the Fairy.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

Tom was a poor orphan boy who lived with his uncle and aunt and cousin. The uncle's name was Andrew, the aunt's name was Jane, and the cousin's name was August. The uncle was a cross, domineering man without affection for any save his wife and son. The aunt was a lazy, selfish, envious woman, hating the little orphan boy who was left to her charge by a dying sister. The cousin was a boy after his doting mother's own heart, an egotistical, bold-faced lad some two years the senior of his cousin Tom.

These folks lived in the country at the base of a great mountain, and the time of their existence was a very, very long time ago. They lived during the age of giants, dwarfs and fairies, and there were many strange happenings then.



"But, Good Giant," said Tom, struggling to his knees.

Every morning Tom's Uncle Andrew went into the fields to work; his Aunt Jane went out on the great vine-covered porch to sit in idleness, while Tom was put to perform the household duties. And August passed the hours between breakfast and dinner lying on his back on the mountainside singing songs or talking to himself, or perchance visiting some shepherd on the mountainside, but always idle.

The morning on which this story opens was a glorious May day, the sun shining with a genial smile on garden and field. Tom was busy in the kitchen washing the breakfast dishes. He had placed the plates and cups on a tray to drip while he ran to the spring near by for some water. On his return he found to his amazement that every dish had disappeared from the tray. At first he supposed his aunt had come in and wiped them dry and put them in the cupboard. But when he went to the cupboard to see if such were the case he was dumbfounded to see no plates nor cups there. With many misgivings he went to his aunt, who was napping like a great cat on the porch, and roused her by saying: "Come, listen to me, Aunt Jane."

His aunt awoke, glared at him in wonder, for she had forbidden Tom's coming on the porch when she was taking her sleep. "How dare you, you miserable, thankless one, to disturb me during my morning nap? Haven't I told you I am not well, and that I must have my rest after meals? Now, what's the matter that you stand there looking as though you had stolen a sheep and been caught in the act? Speak up."

"Why, Aunt Jane, I washed the plates and cups and put them to drain on the tray while I ran to the spring for water. When I returned to the kitchen all the plates and cups were missing; nor can I find them anywhere."

The aunt was on her feet in a moment, and striding with a very healthy stride into the kitchen. "If you've broken a single dish, young beggar, I'll give you 30 lashes with the strap for each dish," she said. "Ah, the dishes could take unto themselves legs and walk away, could they? Well, we'll see about that." And the irate woman began searching everywhere for the missing plates and cups, but all in vain. During her search Tom stood trembling in every limb, for he knew what punishment at his aunt's hands meant. Her arm seemed to hold the strength of a giant when she wielded the lash.

"Ah, ha, just as I thought," cried the aunt, turning on Tom. "You've broken the dishes that you may not have them to wash. Go and fetch the strap from the cellarway and remove your jacket and shirt. You'll not be in a humor to break any more dishes for sometime after I'm through with you."

Tom could do nothing but obey, and brought to the angry and cruel woman the heavy leather strap that was kept merely to be used on his back. Then he drew from his quivering little body his cotton jacket and old cast-off shirt of August's, which had fallen to his lot.

When the hard-hearted, lazy aunt had tired herself out she dropped the strap and returned to finish her nap on the porch in the sun. And poor Tom, worn out by the terrible flogging he had received, and suffering the acutest agony of both body and mind, fell upon the floor in a limp mass. As he lay there he heard a heavy tread upon the path outside the kitchen door, and glancing up beheld a giant approaching. Being in that state of mind where fear cannot enter Tom lay quite still, watching through tears the approaching giant. When he reached the door he stood looking at Tom, pity in his big, dull eyes. "Poor lad," he said, "I've heard about you and I braved the danger of coming here to tell you how you may escape this place and these wicked people. Go into the mountain—away up the southern side, and walk straight towards the clouds till you come to a turn in the path. Then you must stop and put your fingers in your mouth and give three long whistles, after which you must say: 'Hail, Fairy Queen. I am come to you for succor.' And then your fortunes will change."

"But, good giant," said Tom, struggling to his knees, "how am I to get permission to leave this house? My aunt will never consent for me to go away from here." And Tom, in guarded whispers, lest his aunt might be awakened by the sound of voices, related the incident of the disappearance of the dishes and his subsequent punishment, ending by solemnly declaring that he was innocent of the charge that his aunt had made against him and that he had no idea of where the dishes were.

"Ah, I think I smell the mystery," said the giant. "The other day as I lay hid behind a long-fallen tree I overheard your good-for-nothing cousin bargaining with a shepherd for a flute that he coveted. The shepherd told him that he was going to be married and wanted more than anything else some dishes and kitchen utensils. I fancy the young son of this house is the guilty person."

At this instant Tom heard a rustle on the front porch and held up a finger of warning to the giant, whispering quickly: "Hide behind the hedge there; my aunt is waking and will be here to give me orders for dinner."

"And after she has returned to her lazy pastime I'll come back and we'll finish our conversation," whispered the giant. Then he betook himself quickly behind a high, thick hedge which grew round the garden. No sooner had he disappeared than Tom's aunt came stalking heavily into the kitchen, kicking Tom, who still sat upon the floor, the weakness from his beating not yet having passed off. "Come, you beggar, and start the dinner," commanded the aunt. "Go into the garden and gather some garlic and beans. Make a nice pot of soup for your uncle and cousin. And don't forget to put my name in the pot. And I want a nice piece of mutton, broiled to a turn before a brisk fire. See that the drippings are not wasted. And put the freshest loaf on the table and keep the stale one for yourself. It ought to keep you supplied for a week if you are not gluttonous."

Tom dragged himself to the garden where the giant, seeing him, came also. "You rest and I'll gather the vegetables," said the giant to Tom. "You look ill, and should not have to work as you do."

"Say, look through the hedge," whispered Tom, pointing in the direction of the house. The giant did as bidden and saw August, the adored son of the house, creeping stealthily toward the kitchen, keeping an eye turned towards the garden where he no doubt knew Tom would be at this time of day. He entered the kitchen and came forth again, carrying in his arms a great pot (the soup pot in which Tom was to make the dinner broth), a pewter pitcher and a dough bowl. He made off towards the mountain side with all possible speed, looking cautiously behind him at every few steps. "Ah, ha, didn't I smell right?" asked the giant, who had stretched himself full length on the ground that he might peep under the hedge without being seen by August.

"And be it was that got the dishes," said Tom. "I shall go this instant and tell Aunt Jane about Cousin August. She must know that it was not I who broke or threw away the dishes. And now when she misses the pot she'll beat me again. So, I shall run and tell her about having seen August going off with the cooking utensils."

"And get a harder beating for your news," said the great giant. "Ah, lad, don't you know that the eyes of most parents are blinded to the faults of their own, but sharper than the sun's rays in seeing the shortcomings of others? Ah, it is selfishness, my lad. Your aunt knows you are a superior lad to her own son; that's why she hates you so dearly. And never will she consent to listen to a word of complaint against her own adored and good-for-nothing son. He is the apple of her eye—just because he belongs to her. Do you understand, lad?"

"But the pot—the pitcher, the bowl!" cried Tom. "How can I get the dinner without them? And when I tell her they are missing from the kitchen she'll beat me and swear I threw them away that I might not be able to get the meals. No, I must go and tell her."

Then, promising the giant to see him on the morrow Tom ran to the house, going straight to the porch, where he for a second time that morning roused his aunt from a catnap. "Aunt Jane, the pot, the pitcher and the dough bowl have been stolen from the kitchen," he cried in her ear. The angered woman sat up and stared at him, saying: "What's all this stuff you're saying, you fool? And how dared you to wake me before the dinner is ready?"

Then Tom, stammering and trembling with fear, related what he had seen from the garden, declaring that it was August who had taken the dishes in the morning also, and that he was trading them off to a shepherd in the mountain.

"You dare to accuse my darling child of this theft?" cried the aunt, leaping from her chair, her eyes ablaze with rage. "Why, the beating I gave you awhile ago was only a scratch to what I'll give you for this lie, you young beggar!" And then she raised her arm to give Tom a blow in the face, when of a sudden a huge form appeared at the corner, a long and mighty arm reached out and gathered Tom up before her very nose. With a cry of horror and fright the wicked woman sank helpless into her chair, for she had heard of this giant, but had not believed that he existed. Before she could open her mouth to say a word the giant had gone off up the mountainside with Tom sitting on his arm. He covered about 10 rods at every step, and at such a rate was soon lost to the frightened woman's gaze.

And Tom was happy in the protecting embrace of the good giant who carried him to the spot where the fairies were to be called from their wood. Giving the signal the giant put Tom down and said: "Now, lad, you'll be cared for without my services; the fairies will be here soon. I shall go back to my home in the mountains—beyond this mountain on which we stand—and continue to hunt for the unhappy boys and girls whom I may succor. I found you through a little dwarf's help. He goes about like a bird and peeps into all the homes. Then he comes to me and I rescue the unhappy one, turning him or her over to my friends, the fairies."

At this instant the fairies arrived, and before Tom could thank the good giant for his kindness the great fellow had stalked far away. And the fairies took Tom into a beautiful land, where they gave him a nice home and plenty to live on till he should be old enough to work and earn money for himself. And there was a fine school there where Tom went to live, and he attended it regularly, learning many, many things. And he became a learned man and a good one, always remembering his own wretched childhood from which the good giant and the fairies had rescued him. And he was always good to the poor, especially to the poor children.

Biographical Sketch of Elizabeth Browning.

Elizabeth Barrett Browning, poetess, was born at Coxhue Hall, Durham, England, in the year 1806.

Little but the merest facts of her childhood can be obtained save from her own letters to friends and to Mr. Browning, who became her adored and adoring husband and with whom she spent the happiest years of her life. Her father was a stern—almost despotic—man, insisting upon the strictest obedience from all in his household, and even after his several children were grown to manhood and womanhood they felt the restraining hand of the too-domineering father, whose word remained law in all things. If one of the children dared to assert the least independence of action a strained feeling at once existed between the offender and Mr. Barrett, who would not tolerate opposition in one of his own. Owing to this trait of character on the part of the head of the Barrett household, the members of the family must have spent many and many an unhappy and discontented hour, and it has been said by an autobiographer of Elizabeth Browning that her mother, Mary Clarke Graham, "soon faded gently out of life."

When but five or six years of age Elizabeth—so she tells us in her letters—began writing rhymes. When about 13 she had "scribbled some things not at all bad," to quote another biographer of her. Indeed, she was a most precocious child and heard the whisperings of the Muse of Poesy while still in tender years. She was always of frail body, spending much of her time in the sick chamber, but always busy with her brilliant and active mind. Several times her life was despaired of before she had reached her twenty-fifth year, and few of her friends expected to see her reach the age she did. She was in her fifty-eighth year at the time of her death. Most of her married life was spent in Italy, where her devoted husband took her for the benefit of her health.

Elizabeth Barrett Browning (When a young woman.)

One son was born to the Brownings, and he is now a famous painter in Italy, making the country of his parents' adoption and his own birth his home.

Robert Browning died in 1889, having survived his wife 28 years.

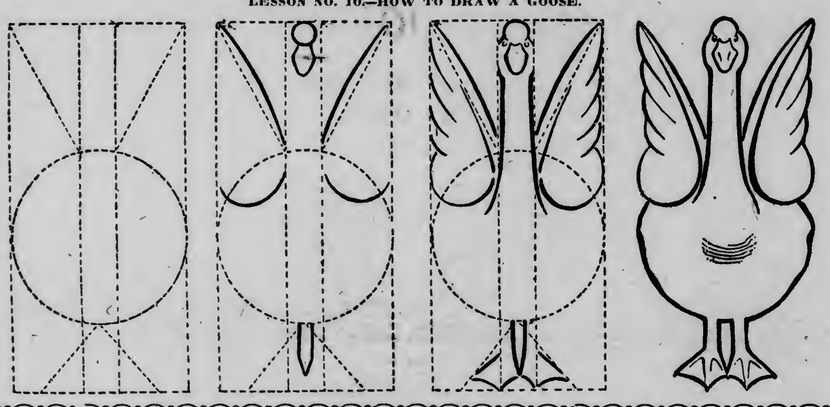
LESSON NO. 10.—HOW TO DRAW A GOOSE.



HURRAH!

Summer time is almost here;
Hurrah, hurrah!
It is the swimming time o' year;
Hurrah, hurrah!

The fish are biting, too, they say;
Hurrah, hurrah!
And there is fun the live-long day;
Hurrah, hurrah!

Oh, it is grand to be a boy;
Hurrah, hurrah!
There couldn't be a greater joy;
Hurrah, hurrah!

When for the summer school is out;
Hurrah, hurrah!
From morn till night we'll romp and shout;
Hurrah, hurrah!

Flossie's Unique Picnic.

BY MAUD WALKER.

Flossie Wade sat on the porch in a deep study, her brows knitted and her lips pursed up into a severe pucker. "I'm going to do it," she said emphatically, speaking to herself. "I'm going to do it."

"Who are you talking to, Sis?" asked a jolly boyish voice, and Flossie looked up to see Fred Brown standing beside her. "Are you chatting to the porch post?" Fred continued jokingly.

"No, I'm talking to good company," laughed Flossie, her brow smoothing out and her lips losing their pucker. "But how did you creep in here without my seeing you, Mister?"

"I came as thin air and then materialized," said Fred in a light vein. "Don't you believe in materialization?"

"Oh, Fred, stop joking and be serious. I'm thinking."

"Don't do anything so rash," protested Fred with assumed gravity. "Don't you know that thinking is a dangerous experiment in hot weather?"

"Come, stop fooling," commanded Flossie, rising and standing on the porch steps close to Fred. "Now, if you'll be serious for once in your life, Mister Frederick, I'll let you into a little secret I have found it impossible to keep without sharing with someone else."

"A thousand thanks for the promised confidence," said Fred with a low bow. "And I'll promise you that you will not regret having chosen me as the happy fellow to own the half of your secret. Is it about a party—or a new frock?"

"Then you think me so silly as all that?" And Flossie's brows drew into a straight line and a suggestion of a pucker came on her lips again.

"No, no," protested Fred. "I was merely guessing. But, come, I'll be serious and listen with all my ears."

"Well, I want you to promise to help me out in a scheme," said Flossie. "Don't look frightened, it won't mean very much work on your part; but it will mean some money."

"At your service," said Fred, jingling some small coins in his pocket. "But, Sis, let me warn you to use caution on—ahem, on the money question. I've got to get——"

"Never mind what you've got to get for Mister Fred Brown," said Flossie coolly. "Now, you know how much has been done these last few years for open-air excursions for the poor children of our town. You and I both strained every nerve and nearly broke our banks last summer to raise money for the children of the Cripple's Hospital that they might have a week extra in the country. Well, I've been thinking of some other poor—children that need a little outing occasionally, and they seem to have been overlooked entirely by those interested in such matters. I want you to help me and—and—ask no questions. Will you, Fred?"

"Sure, Sis." And Fred put out his hand and clasped that of his little friend in a solemn promise. "And I'll chain my curiosity—I'll ask never a question till the time for questions arrives."

Then Flossie unfolded a part of her plan, giving Fred instructions as to what he was to do. At the end of half an hour Fred bade her adieu and hurried off, declaring that since he had to manage somehow to raise money enough to pay for the use of four large picnic wagons for a whole day, and drivers to boot, it behooved him to be getting a move on himself."

The Flossie went into the house and telephoned to several of her young friends asking them to call that evening after supper as she wanted to talk over a plan for a picnic.

That evening Flossie explained to her girl friends who had assembled that she was arranging for a picnic in the big grove near the lake two miles from town, and that if everything went through as planned they would have the outing one week from that day. The girls applauded her plan, thinking it was to be a picnic for young folks, with a few of the mothers as chaperons.

And each girl promised a big basket of luncheon, becoming excited and talking over the many dainty viands that would be most appetizing in the woods.

The week passed very quickly for Flossie and Fred, for both had so much to attend to in completing their picnic arrangements.

"Well, Sis," said Bert the evening before the day set for the picnic. "I've got the money together to hire the picnic wagons. And I had enough left to get a dozen flags to adorn the wagons. Gee, we'll swing through town as gay as you please with colors flying and—Listen! a band playing. Yep, (to Flossie's look of surprise) a real live band of six pieces!"

"Why, Fred, how did you manage to do all that? You are a hustler when it comes to raising picnic funds!" And Flossie looked pleased. "Well, Sis, it's this way: I went to Dad first and told him you had some sort of a picnic scheme afoot—something for some poor children who had been forgotten by everybody else—and hinted that I'd like for him to give us a little contribution as a starter. Well, Dad likes you immensely, Sis, and he just pulled out a ten-spot and gave me, saying I was to tell you that it was for you he had been so liberal. Now, wasn't he all O. K., Sis?"

"That was just splendid, Fred," declared Flossie. "And now how about the rest of the money?"

"Well, you see, I didn't want your little plan to fail through, Sis, so I—I—Well, I put what I had in bank into the fund. No, no, not a word! I won't hear a word about it. It's half my picnic; so I have a right to put in what I please. It was only—Well, it was only seven dollars, you see. Hardly enough to count. The wagons—each with a driver—are five dollars apiece for the day. You see Dad and I paid for three wagons and a trifle over. So I hustled enough from the other boys for the fourth wagon and got that old skinflint, my uncle Powers, to contribute a five. Of course, I'm not paying the band full for their services. I asked them if they wanted to enjoy a nice day in the woods, and have a fine luncheon handed in, for a little music. I explained that it was to be some sort of a charity picnic. Well, they were glad enough to go for the outing; and I hope their hearts dictated a little toward the charity end of it. But anyway I've got them, which is sufficient. Well, you see, I had a little cash to spare for the flags and the dealer—Mr. Jukes, gave me a great bargain in them, seeing that some of them were a bit soiled. But that'll never show on the wagons."

"Fred, you're a brick!" declared Flossie. "If I had an own brother he couldn't do more for me than you do."

"I hope he wouldn't do so much," stammered Fred, his fine, manly face reddening a bit. He was very fond of Flossie Wade, and wanted to prove himself her very best friend in every way possible.

The next morning at 9 o'clock a strange-looking procession was to be seen going through the Wade gate, and Flossie stood on the porch to welcome those who comprised it. First came two old men, stooped and feeble, supporting themselves on their heavy walking sticks. Next were an old white-haired woman and a pale-faced younger one, the latter very frail and ill in appearance. Then came an old cripple, a poor Italian street-organ grinder; and following him the shoe-cobbler and his wife, a nice, jolly-faced old German couple who lived in a menger shanty down by the railroad tracks. And ending the procession were six poor stragglers, seemingly not one of them acquainted with the other. Two of the six were women, one a poor seamstress who had just been released from the hospital, where she had suffered quite a severe illness, and the other a dear old woman who lived in a tenement with her grandsons whose small earnings could hardly keep the wolf from the door. The other four were men of poverty, age and ill health, three out of the four being past 60.

Flossie's mother, who was to go with the party as chaperon, looked on the gathering crowd with some surprise, tears of sympathy in her eyes. She had not questioned her daughter regarding the invited, knowing that whatever Flossie did would be perfectly right. But some of Flossie's girl comrades were a bit displeased when they beheld the old, the crippled, the sick and poor, for they had had no notion of anything of the sort.

"Say, Stella," whispered Grace Evans, two of the girls whom Flossie had invited to be of the party, "what do you think of going on a picnic with this job-lot of humanity? I think it anything but agreeable. Now, I fully approve of charity—but not of mixing, you know."

But before Stella could answer her companion's question a merry sound of music came floating on the air; then the toot, toot, toot, of a horn, and in another minute the four picnic wagons dashed up before the gate, flags flying and the band-boys with faces as bright as the noonday sun.

"Now, where's Fred?" asked Flossie, wondering why her assistant and right-hand man had delayed his coming. But at the moment he came dashing through the gate, carrying a box half as large as himself. "Am I late?" he cried in his enthusiasm, wiping the perspiration from his flushed face. "See here, Sis, this box is full of—explosives! I've brought some fireworks. No use having a dull day, I say. Now, everybody in the wagons and let's be off. Where're the baskets? Oh, there they are. Here, boys (to the other boys of his own age), just load in the grub—not into your faces, understand, but into the wagons. Gee, we're going to have a great day!"

Then all was merry hustle, and the old organgrinder laughed so heartily over the proceeding of being "loaded" into the wagon that Stella and Grace caught the spirit of fun and laughed, too, feeling glad after all that they were to assist in making so many poor old folk happy for a day.

And how much the "guests of honor" (as the old and poor were) did enjoy that picnic in the great green woods, with the band playing old-fashioned airs, the bright young boys and girls waiting on them, serving them with cooling drinks and feasting them on all the dainties, which might tempt less sharp appetites, and the fresh air and glorious sunshine and shade all about them! And they felt that into their lives had crept a guiding spirit in the form of sweet Flossie Wade, who was happier on that day than she had ever been before at a picnic.

"Isn't it splendid, Fred, to make these dear old souls so happy, if it is only for a day?" Flossie asked, her face radiant with pleasure. "Why, this is the first picnic that the poor old organ grinder ever attended, and the others have not had outings or pleasures for so many years that this is to them a taste of heaven. Let's repeat this picnic several times during the summer—if we can get folks interested enough in the matter to contribute a mite towards it."

"Yes, it's a real success," declared Fred, fully as happy over the result as Flossie. "And count me in on helping you in any of your undertakings, Sis. I'll do more for you than any brother you might have had."

"But, Fred, it isn't for me—this picnic," said Flossie. "You must do these things for the poor, whose lives are so dull and full of care. I don't need it; our guests of honor do."

"All the samey, you are the guiding—the guiding—oh, what is it I want to call you?" And Fred floundered for the right word.

"The angel," said a faint voice behind them, and looking round Fred and Flossie saw the old white-haired woman whose daughter had been so ill in the hospital. "An angel—that's what this dear little girl is," she declared, tears filling her grateful eyes.

HIDDEN ADAGE.

A well-known adage is hidden in the following five sentences, one word of the adage being contained in each sentence and all appearing in their rightful order:

A pretty girl wastes much time before the mirror.

All is well that ends well.

To be known as a good man does not always signify goodness.

It's a pretty kettle of fish when two fast friends fall out and quarrel.

There are many days of darkness, though the sun does shine.

LETTER ENIGMA.

My first is in bread, but not in dough;
My second is in meadow, but not in low;
My third is in sun, but not in moon;
My fourth is in badger, but not in coon;
My fifth is the same as my first, you knew;
My sixth appears in my second also;
My seventh is in lily, but not in grew;
My eighth is the same as my seventh, too;
My whole is the name
Of a game most dear
To the hearts of schoolboys
At this time of year.

Beheadings and Curtailings.

(1) Behead that which a cruel driver is often seen doing to his horse and leave an act much enjoyed by people three times a day.

(2) Behead a racecourse and leave a small piece of furniture that is hung upon the wall.

(3) Behead a verb meaning to pull, and leave the state of uncooked food.

(4) Behead a hot vapor and leave a pair of horses that go hitched together.

(5) Doubly curtail a pretty bird and leave a busy market place.

(6) Doubly curtail a longing for food and leave a verb applied to a disagreeing jury.

(7) Doubly curtail a sum of money and leave a toy much enjoyed by little girls.

CONUNDRUMS.

When are thoughts like valuables?
When both are expressed.

What heavenly thing and what earthly thing does a rainy day most affect?
The sun and your shoes, for it takes the shine away from both.

Why is the city milkman like the fish that swallowed Jonah?
Because he finds a profit (prophet) in the water.

MONEY SAVING IS PANIC PREVENTIVE

Lesson of Massachusetts Bank Commissioner's Report on Savings Institutions—Effects of Late Depression Least Severe Where People Are Most Thrifty.

Boston, Mass., May 16.—Saving money as well as earning it has long been a New England specialty. Such documents on the growth of the savings habit as the 1907 report of the bank commissioner of Massachusetts, now issued, show why the six North Atlantic states have been less hard hit during the months succeeding the panic than perhaps any other group of American commonwealths.

New England Yankees have had money in the bank to tide them over. In spite of national and international financial troubles during 1907 deposits in Bay State savings banks in that year passed the $700,000,000 mark, reaching the huge total of $709,940,589.01—representing an increase of nearly $13,000,000 in a period when every kind of inducement was offered to depositors to withdraw their savings accounts and invest their money in gilt edge securities which were, of course, remarkably low in price just before the panic.

Shrewd observers have not been wanting to maintain that the world wide financial distress, now showing signs of mending, has been due mainly to individuals living beyond their means. A distinguished French banker has shown recently that whereas for some years past the total saving capacity of the civilized nations of the earth has been about $2,-500,000,000 annually, great industrial enterprises have been calling for nearly $4,000,000,000 each twelve months.

In other words the money which people have put by, the wealth they have created by abstaining from the pleasures of spending, has not been sufficient to meet the demand for improvements. The French, it is notorious, have for many years been the best savers and most careful investors of Europe. Consequently the money markets, where large enterprises for the benefit of civilization are forecasted, have come more and more to lean upon the French banking institutions, and prudent people in other nations have more and more followed the lead of the French in their investments.

The American analogue of the thrifty Frenchman is the New Englander. If as much money were saved per capita throughout the United States as is saved in the state of Massachusetts, experts admit that the likelihood of such financial stringencies as the one just passing would be greatly lessened.

The savings accumulations have grown rapidly in Massachusetts. The first savings bank to be legally empowered to do business in the United States was the Provident Institution for Savings in Boston. A number of philanthropically inclined gentlemen in 1817 felt that the plan, which was already in successful operation in England, was a good one. None of them, of course, had any conception of the part which the habit of saving, thus fostered among the descendants of the Puritans, was destined to play in building railroads across the continent, in developing water powers and in projecting the telephone, the most important of modern time saving facilities, into every part of the world.

The success of American savings banks themselves has often been described. Many of them failed during the panic of 1837, but since then, in Massachusetts, New York and other states, they have served as model repositories for the safe investment of the savings of persons in moderate means.

Examination of the schedules of almost any characteristic savings institution shows how the stability of the whole financial and investment system of New England has been maintained by the presence of these carefully managed savings institutions. The thrifty workers who line up each Saturday night to deposit a portion of the contents of the pay envelope in the savings bank are not only protecting themselves and their families, but are assisting materially in the progress of civilization. Their money goes out to work in places where they have never been. There are always to be found in the savings vaults, apparently inactive but in reality busy, the bonds of progressive American cities, some East, some West—a concrete illustration of the fact that many of the best built municipalities of the country owe their existence to the saving traits of New Englanders. Many shares of the stock of national banks, owned by the savings banks, prove the point that however little he may realize it the everyday citizen who has saved a few hundred dollars is vitally interested in the maintenance of the prosperity of the country's banking system. Railroad bonds are an evidence of the continued devotion of New England to the securities of the great highways of commerce, the construction of which was made possible in the first instance through the accumulations of small investors.

Because of the necessity of rigid conservatism in guarding the savings of workers and because this field was determined before the advent of many of the more stable of modern enterprises, the field of investment for these institutions is very limited in Massachusetts. Their deposits represent, however, only a small percentage of the entire wealth of the community that is annually laid aside for investment in constructive and stable enterprises. The latest annual report, for example, of President Theodore N. Vail of the American Telephone & Telegraph company discloses that more than three-quarters of the entire share capital of the parent company of the Bell system is held in New England. Stock issue after issue, for needed extensions, has found the readiest takers in the original home of the telephone. Large proportions of the securities of the subordinate companies are also owned by New England people, although there has been a marked tendency among the well to do in other parts of the country of late years to buy telephone stocks and bonds.

Telephone ownership, in other words, is being gradually nationalized.

As part of the vast savings fund which New England has collected, largely during the past fifty years—though the Yankee was always thrifty—should be considered not only the steam railroads but many electrical properties besides the telephone. It is customary to speak of the loss of management of some of the steam railroads from New England as a sign of decadence. As a matter of fact the money that has been released from the sale of the railroads has gone into other enterprises, such as electric traction, lighting and power, which seem destined for a long time to come to be more profitable than the railroads. A single Boston management, for example, under the denomination of Stone and Webster, have acquired in the past fifteen or eighteen years and put into good physical condtion electrical properties of a very great aggragate capitalization in every part of the United States, in Canada and in the West Indies.

Although it would be difficult to estimate the total amount set aside by the workers of Massachusetts each year out of their earnings, it is certain that in a general way the total savings fund of the Bay state follows the upward curve of the savings bank deposits. The figures of the actual growth of the savings bank deposits. The figures of the actual growth of the deposits in the savings banks in the past five years are as follows: 1903, $608,415,409; 1904, $631,312,800; 1905, $662,508,312; 1906, $694,081,141; 1908, $706,-940,936.

There is, of course a seamy side to New England investment. While most people in the thrifty states have the saving habit a certain proportion of these always have been and doubtless a certain proportion always will be easy for crooks and swindlers, some of whose most remarkable exploits have been directed from Boston. If New England has been the center from which the railroads, the telephone and various other electrical enterprises of great worth have been financed, it has also been the scene of Jernegan's scheme for extracting gold from sea water, of the Ubero rubber plantation swindle, and the operations in oil of C. F. King, now a fugitive. It is pretty well understood, however, that only a small proportion of New Englanders ever fall into the schemes of these harpies, and that practically all the great enterprises which have been backed by New England money have been markedly successful.

SOCIALISM AND THE WORKER

We, the members of the working class, have in a small measure at least been forced to study the conditions in which we have our being and which also make us what we are. We can no longer accept a thing simply because some one who seems to be more learned than we has said it, but we must think it out for ourselves and learn from our own thoughts whether it is the best for us, the workingmen, or whether it is said in the interests of our employers. As we follow our labor, and observe its relation to capital, and also capital's relations to labor, we are led to believe that labor is in a true sense a superior factor to the welfare of all concerned, but we recognize that capital in the past has had a mission to perform, and having performed the same, it cannot longer be claimed to be the dominant factor in the program of humanity.

William Pelty said, "Labor is the father, and the earth the mother of wealth." We also recognize, and the productive force in our so-called civilizaton has been the productive power of human labor, and is still, despite what is said to the contrary the one dominant factor in the social program of today. Labor is the producer of all wealth and this can only be denied by distorting the true facts of past history. Our friend, the capitalist, will and does miscolor the real truths, and sets up their place a role of benevolence, which he maintains has given him a superior right over the workers. But as fast as capital usurps the right of the workers, in other words they have become class conscious, and when this comes to pass, and only then, will labor gain its rights, as against the rights of oppression of a ruling class.

For thousands of years the ruling classes have ridden upon the backs of the workers, have driven the workers to the point of desperation, and have driven the spurs of the master into the side of the worker, and have used as a leash and whip, hunger and love. We do not curse them for their cruelty, their greed and their disregard of human feeling, and their murderous assaults on the women and children. We begin to understand that there has been going on a struggle of the survival of the fittest, and that the unseen law has lashed them forward, the same as it has our class.

We know that the ruling class has done much to increase the productivity of labor. We also realize that science and art have received much encouragement if not inspiration from them, but we do not lose sight of the fact that what good the ruling classes have done was not done because it would benefit humanity, but because it would enhance their own power and position, and what was done, was done because the historical forces were compelling them to do so. We do not blame them, neither do we praise them for their virtues. Natural and social conditions compelled them to be what they are.

But we, the workers, are nothing more or less than the product of those same laws, of natural and social development. We, too, can act and think, which we must do in order that we may gain our rights. We cannot feel or think in any other way than a revolutionary one. I mean the peaceful one, not that the revolution of society should be one of blood and thunder. There is little or no need of such thoughts in our days at least; the conditions in our country are far different from those of the old countries. We understand that the forces at work are causing a clash between the deeds and the words of our masters, and that it is at bottom only the recognition of the social interests that should exist between them and us.

Behind all their faults and abuses lie the natural and social forces, which they have tried to control, but have only exposed to view the impossibility of their doing so. We calmly and coolly proclaim the doctrine of capitalism and the extinction of class rule. Firmly and bravely we herald the coming of the co-operative commonwealth of economically equal workers. Our voice is the conscious protest and cry of the workers, but the masters take heed and prepare themselves for the Socialist republic. Let them try to stop the wheels of progress if they can. What a monster is the working class when aroused to a point of class consciousness, where they can demand for one and all the natural right that was given them at birth.

P. G. PHILLIPS.

PRESIDENTIAL LIGHTNING RODS

he had acquired when he became speaker of the lower branch of the national legislature. His colleague, while he wore a toga, was "Joe" Blackburn. One day the two of them got to talking about the former's desire to become president.

"John," said his senior, warningly, "you live 300 yards too far south of the Ohio river ever to be president of the United States."

This was sage advice for that day and generation (as it possibly is for this, also), and if Carlisle had taken it he probably would have saved himself many nights made sleepless by his ambition. But as a senator he loomed larger as a Democratic possibility than he had while speaker, and immediately preceding the convention of 1892 his name was on the lips of Democracy as one of its best possibilities. Still, on the only ballot of the convention he got only fourteen votes, while at the 1884 convention, held while he was speaker, his votes numbered twenty-seven.

In March of 1893 Carlisle became President Cleveland's secretary of the treasury. He remained at the head of this department till his chief's retirement four years later, and all the time he nourished his presidential ambitions. Not until just before he moved to New York and establishel himself there as a lawyer did he part company with the dream that had kept him company for nearly a decade and a half.

Presidential Possibilities of Other Days.

Carlisle's successor in the speaker's chair, the late Thomas B. Reed, put up his presidential rod a short time after he had made himself famous as a parliamentarian and presiding officer, and the knowledge that it never was struck embittered the closing years of his life.

As most followers of national convention history will remember, Reed was one of the leading Republican candidates in 1896. He, in fact, was second in the convention balloting, receiving 84½ votes to McKinley's 661½; but before the only ballot of the convention was taken, it was evident to all that Reed would not secure the coveted prize, which some of his old friends who survive believe he could have carried away at the Minneapolis convention four years before had he then risen to the opportunity presented to him in a most unexpected manner.

When the Harrison cohorts and the Blaine partisans were all but at each other's throats on the floor of the convention, Reed, whose struggles with the Democrats in congress had given him world-wide fame, slipped on to the platform, at the back, to view the convention. The hundreds of excited delegates and thousands of equally excited spectators caught sight of him. The Blaine men lost all thought of the Harrison men, the latter left off shaking their fists in the faces of the former, and every mother's son of them began an ovation to the big Maine man that did not die away until many minutes had passed—an ovation that would brook no checking by chairmen or band.

Reed was so overcome by the spontaneity of the repec noti that he hardly could control himself, when he was all but pushed forward by the chairman to give the convention the address it demanded. And perhaps it was because his highly sensitive soul had been so deeply touched, say these old friends, that he signally failed to seize hold of the psychological moment and, by catching the fancy of the crowd with his speech, secure for himself the plum over which the Harrison and Blaine men were wrangling. Garfield secured his nomination by his manner of nominating John Sherman. That speech clearly riveted the attention—caught the fancy of the delegates and when they got tired of voting for Sherman and Grant and Blaine, they turned with a whoop to the man who had impressed them by his speech, and bestowed upon him the highest honor in their power to give.

Among other great presidential possibilities of other, but recent days, Blaine was the only one whose name was balloted on at five national conventions in succession. In 1876 he ran only thirty-three votes behind Hayes on the deciding ballot. Until the last ballot of the 1880 convention, when the stampede set in for Garfield, Blaine was second only to Grant. The convention of 1884 nominated him—and he went down to defeat. When that of 1888 met he withdrew his name in favor of Harrison, but four years later, when Harrison was seeking renomination, it was around Blaine's name that the president's opponent rallied.

In point of years, John Sherman had his presidential rod up as long as Blaine had his, but Sherman's name was seriously presented to only three conventions—those of 1880, 1884 and 1888. He felt reasonably sure, before the convention of 1888 met, that at last he had the long-desired nomination in his grasp. Indeed, on the first ballot his strength was 229, while Harrison's was only 80. Until the sixth ballot Sherman led; on the seventh he fell forty-seven behind Harrison, who won out on the following ballot. Thereafter, Sherman was a passive candidate. This he remained almost to the day that he entered President McKinley's cabinet as secretary of state.

His failure to secure presidential nomination has been called the saddest in the history of either party in recent times. Certain it is that John Sherman longed for a nomination above all political honors of this earth, and his failure to secure it clouded the whole of his latter life.

Russell A. Alger, who died only a year or two ago; Arthur Pue Gorman, for years senator from Maryland; Walter Q. Gresham of Indiana, who was one of the prominent Republican candidates in 1888 and later on Democratic secretary of state under Cleveland; Thomas F. Bayard, first ambassador to England, who was a close second to Hancock, the nominee, on the first ballot of the Democratic convention of 1880, and also second at the convention four years later; Richard P. ("Silver Dollar") Bland of Missouri, who led Bryan by sixteen votes on the first ballot in 1896—these, also, were dead men's bones of the great possibilities of some of the great possibilities of other but recent days who prayed more or less earnestly and long for the presidential lightning to strike them. And practically all of them went to their graves grievously disappointed that it did not.

NEVADA'S COMING ELDORADO

Stampede From Goldfield to Rockefeller, Where Enormous Values Are Reported---Deposits of the Camp Are Found in Porphyry.

Butte, Mont., May 16.—J. L. Scott, vice president and treasurer of the Goldfield Double Triangle Mining company, is in the city from Goldfield, and he is enthusiastic of the new camp of Rockefeller, located in the Cactus range, twenty-two miles of the San Pedro railroad. He says that there is a great rush into the new camp, and several properties have been opened up which promise to rival and even exceed in value the greatest producers of the Goldfield district.

A number of remarkable strikes have been reported during the past week, the one creating the greatest stir being that in the Knott & Thompson property, said Mr. Scott, where fair samples of the ore give assays of $1,000 in gold to the ton, all of the ore averaging high grade. Some of the ore has given a value of $5,400 to the ton. The deposits of the camp are found in porphyry and the formation is said to be an exact duplicate of the Goldfield sulphides.

"Quite a number of gold hunters are headed toward Rockefeller," said Mr. Scott, "the majority of them going from Goldfield. The camp gives promise of becoming one of the most important in the state, as the values are simply phenomenal. Many shafts are being sunk and nearly all of them show high values right from the surface.

"One of the distinctive features of the camp is the discovery of platinum, and government experts are now on the ground doing experimental work in locating the veins. Platinum has not yet been discovered anywhere in the district and the developments are being watched with great interest.

"While the average assays of the camp will not exceed $2 to the ton, a large body of ore gradually resembling that in the Mohawk has been struck in the tunnel being driven by Dan Clark several miles east of Cactus springs. The tunnel is now in 175 feet and drifting has been commenced on the vein which has a north and south trend. The camp will be heard from in the near future as one of permanent location, as there is every indication of the values holding out to great depth."

SMELTER CAN NOW OPERATE

Modification of the Utah Injunction Signed by Judge Marshall --- Bingham Consolidated Committee Questions Wisdom of the Directors' Plan.

Salt Lake, Utah, May 16.—Judge Marshall has signed the modification of the injunction permitting the United States smelter to operate. The terms of the modification as finally signed are as follows: (1) Not more than 1,500 tons of ore may be treated daily at the smelter. This is to be entirely lead ore, no copper being allowed. The sulphuric acid in this ore must not exceed 10 per cent. (2) All sulphuric acids must be neutralized by introducing zinc oxide gas before reaching the baghouse so that no sulphuric acid shall exist in a free state. (3) All smoke, fumes and gases shall be filtered by being passed through the gas bag apparatus to remove all solid matter. (4) All gases escaping from the smokestack shall not at any time exceed seventy-five one-hundredthes of 1 per cent in the amount of sulphuric acid contained. (5) The plaintiffs may at any time send a committee to inspect the smelter and its methods of operation. These committees shall be conducted through the plant and the every method explained thoroughly. (6) If any one of the complainants discover that the operation of the smelter is still a menace to his farms and crops he must make known the fact to the manager of the smelting company. The smelter is being put in shape for resumption and the local management believes that it will begin taking ore again some time in June.

Thomas J. Barry and the other members of the Bingham Consolidated shareholders' protective committee, have issued an address to stockholders questioning the wisdom of the company who have asked the stockholders to turn over their stock to a new company, the Bingham Mining company, together with $3.50 a share, in order to avert the loss of the entire property to the bondholders. The protective committee advise against the plan until it can be determined if the properties can be operated at a profit that will at least pay the $1,500,000 indebtedness and return the $525,000 which would be provided by the assessment.

A ledge cut in the Jeff Davis tunnel of the Bingham Central-Standard company at Bingham some time ago is developing well. It has been followed for a distance of 100 feet on the strike of the vein and averages in width from one to two feet. The ore is high grade lead ore and carries good values in silver, copper and gold. The Central-Standard has been delayed in getting its properties into shape owing to the financial depression. Its bonds, it is announced, have now been sold.

After a strugle three years themm After a struggle lasting three years the Ontario company at Park City has at last practically unwatered the mine. The drain tunnel, though owned and reopened by the Ontario and Daly companies, has drained nearly every mine of the district, with the exception of the Silver King Coalition. When the cave occurred in the tunnel every mine began to fill at greater or less depth and development in all has been stopped during the three years that the water was confined.

THE COLORADO DISTRICTS

Elaborate Exhibit of Ores and Metals Being Prepared---Monthly Production of the Vindicator Consolidated is About 3,000 Tons.

Denver, Colo., May 16.—An elaborate exhibit of ores and metals, including all of the well known products of the Colorado mines, is likely to take its place as one of the chief points of interest for the national delegates here this summer. Reports received from Summit county indicate that the mines of Montana, Argentina and Breckenridge are to be especially well represented. Committees have been appointed, and the work of getting together the material for the exhibit has already begun. Engineer J. R. Roots of Montezuma is taking an active part in this work, as he is in close touch with a number of the leading mines of the district, including the Silver Wave, Silver Princess, Sarsfield, Chatauqua and others. The Silver Wave exhibit is to include some of the finest specimens of cube galena ever gathered together from one mine, together with some high-grade silver samples running well up into the hundreds of dollars per ton. The mineral production of Summit county to date is stated at $61,000,000.

Work on the Terrible mill, Silver Plume, Colo., has been resumed after four months' idleness. At present 300 tons of concentrating ore await treatment. Abundance of ore is assured from the Mary Etta group of claims. The Wood & Co., lease on the fourteenth level is in ore yielding $100 a ton in silver and lead values. The high grade streak is ten to sixteen inches wide, while the mill grade vein is two to three feet wide. Ore from the Smuggler mine adjoining will be concentrated.

The Little Dora mill at Silverton, Colo., has resumed after sixty days' idleness. Ten stamps have been added. The mill is handling seventy-five tons daily and will soon handle 125 tons. The ore carries good values in gold, silver, lead and copper, gold and copper predominating. A car of ore concentrates is the daily average product of the mill.

Prospectors have located in the Ouray (Colo.) district some good deposits of molybdenum, which is largely used in steel manufacture. Large deposits of vanadium and urnalum have been found in the same district. The deposits will be developed at once.

The Champion Mining & Milling company has received net returns of $40 a ton from a car lot shipment of ore selected from the Champion and Lone Star claims at Rollinsville. Several carloads of mill grade ores will be sent to stamp mills to test amalgamation and concentration. An air compressor is being installed and the works will be sunk deeper.

Cripple Creek, Colo., May 16.—The monthly production of the Vindicator Consolidated is stated to be in the neighborhood of 3,000 tons, averaging $41 per ton. This company has paid two quarterly dividends since Jan. 1, aggregating $120,000. The Vindicator has done much to demonstrate the profits available by deep mining in the Bull Hill section of the camp. Another promising property in the same vicinity is the Delmonico, formerly a part of the famous Stratton estate. The Delmonico shaft is now down well below the 800-foot level, and good indications are in evidence.

At the annual meeting of the Doctor-Jack Pot Mining company it was voted to dissolve the organization at once.

Bailey & Cain, leasing on the Catherine dump of the Elkton Consolidated are treating 150 tons of $4 ore weekly. They realize $2 a ton profit. Many other dumps throughout the district are alive.

The Strong mine on Battle Mountain, has a seven to fifteen foot vein to the 1,000 foot level from which returns of $1,000 a ton have been received from sixty tons recently shipped. The vein is one of the largest ever opened in this famous producer, which has yielded 1,500 to 1,800 tons monthly for years. Adjoining the Strong are the Portland and Stratton's Independence, with their all-time record of $8,000,000 and $5,000,000 respectively. The Strong has probably paid to its five or six owners a greater dividend total than either, of these.

The British-American Leasing company shipped seven car loads of ore in April, the average value being $25 a ton. The ore came from several different veins of the Dante mine, whose ore bodies are generally large, some of them being forty-five feet wide. The Dante company itself is shipping some exceptionally rich ores.

The Hummer lease on the Damon shaft at 200 feet depth is in a twenty inch vein of ore new to Ironclad hill, and promises low grade ore territory. The new vein abounds in sylvanite and smelter grade ores are expected to result.

a great deal of interest. These developments are directed to the opening up of both the Isle Royale and the Baltic lodes by means of the diamond drill. The discovery of the Baltic lode, if it contains favorable copper indications, will excite interest, and it may possibly be followed by a resumption of activity in the exploratory shaft, where there is reason to believe, once the bearings are determined by the diamond drilling, the lode can be opened by a limited extension of one or the other of the laterals. If copper values in payable quality is opened through the shaft, even a small amount of development upon the lode will increase the value of the company's resources inestimably.

Tamarack's production is now normal. Rock shipments last month aggregated 50,000 tons, about equally divided between Nos. 2, 3 and 5 shafts. The rock coming from No. 3 shaft, known locally as the "North Tamarack," and the deepest shaft in the world, is excellent. It is probably the best grade of rock ever taken from the workings tributary to the northern part of the mine. C. A. Shelby, superintendent of reduction division; V. R. Walling, superintendent of railways; George Young, secretary and superintendent of mercantile department; J. A. Campbell, treasurer and superintendent of public service department, and T. Evans, purchasing agent and traffic manager.

At the mines of the company, or in fact, in the mines of the entire district, no ore is being raised to the surface except what is made necessary in development work, the undivided attention of the management being directed towards development and exploration work. The number of men employed includes about 20 per cent Americans. All the properties are being improved to such an extent that when the camp resumes, the ore can be mined at a cost considerable less than before. At the Democrata another compartment has been added to its main shaft and a new holst is to be installed. This company will resume when the price of copper warrants it.

gated to the scrap heap. These were pipelled hydraulically, and their places have been taken by five electrically driven machines of the latest pattern, being the first electric converters to be installed in the Southwest. These machines have already been installed on the new foundations prepared for them, and provisions have been made for the air supply, which will be double that previously used.

The system of handling the slag has been greatly enlarged upon from an economical standpoint, the same lines of economy predominating in this division as in the rest of the smelter. Previously it required four train crews to handle the slag from 50,000 tons of ore handled, and when the entire plant resumes in full force, with a consumption of 100,000 tons monthly, it will require the services of only two train crews, a saving of 400 per cent. This system is being constructed at the present time and will soon be completed ready for use.

The sams system of economy is displayed in the new system of handling the flue dust. Heretofore the dust was gathered from four different levels of the dust chambers, but in the future all the dust will be taken from one level, the lower floor.

The Power House.

A six foot blast pipe has been installed in the power house which will enable the plant to save 160 horsepower in the friction which occurred in the smaller pipes formerly in use before the shutdown. A luge condenser is at present being installed in an addition to the power house. The engines and air compressors, also the electric generators, have been completely overhauled and rebuilt and the plant is virtually a new one.

The receiving ore bins have been enlarged to such an extent that the present capacity is 3,000 tons, compared with the former capacity of 1,000. All the old wooden bins have been torn down.

Previous to the shut-down the ore from the Veta Grande ore bins was first haulod to the concentrator for treatment, and after being run through and reduced to concentrates it had to be hauled back past the bins to the smelter. Work has been commenced on a trestle which will lessen the haul by a good two miles, which connnects the railroads on either side of the canyon. The trestle will be completed in about a month. Several other long hauls will be discontinued by use of the new trestle.

Plans of Resumption.

When the time arrives to begin operations at the smelter, which will probably be in about five or six weeks, only two furnaces will be placed in commission. The force of men employed on these furnaces will be over duoble the necessary number owing to the new character of the equipment, and to allow the men an opportunity to become familiar with their mechanism. In about a month or so afterwards, a number of these men will be placed at work at the third furnace, and after this on the others, giving the help a good opportunity to become familiar with every branch in the method of operation. It is stated by several of the officials of the company that it will be some time before the smelter will resume in full force, probably six or eight months after the first two furnaces are placed in commission.

The extensive alterations and repairs which have been under may for some months are now about completed, about one and a half months more being necessary to bring the plant up to the highest standard of perfection. Too much credit cannot be given the officials of the company located at Cananea, and their persistent efforts to bring the immense plant to completeness in every detail cannot receive too much praise from the stockholders. These men are: L. D. Ricketts, general manager; D. Cole, his assistant; J. H. Kirk, superintendent of mines; C. A. Shelby, superintendent of reduction division; V. R. Walling, superintendent of railways; George Young, secretary and superintendent of mercantile department; J. A. Campbell, treasurer and superintendent of public service department, and T. Evans, purchasing agent and traffic manager.

At the mines of the company, or in fact, in the mines of the entire district, no ore is being raised to the surface except what is made necessary in development work, the undivided attention of the management being directed towards development and exploration work. The number of men employed includes about 20 per cent Americans. All the properties are being improved to such an extent that when the camp resumes, the ore can be mined at a cost considerable less than before. BIG ORE BODY IS OPENED UP sentation and development. There is considerable disappointment in Boulder over the outcome. Still, the people of the mining district are not at all discouraged. They believe that there is copper in the foothills, and they still maintain that with a little additional derth the company will encounter the solid formation and tap the well defined ledge several hundred feet below its depex, opening up one of the best bodies of medium grade copper ore in the state.

Thomas M. Burke has been the manager of the property for the past several months, and he and other mining men of the district do not seem to be much discouraged, despite the fact that the pumps have been temporarily pulled.

At a depth of 167 feet in the vein of the main crosscut tunnel, 430 feet from the portal, rich copper ore has been struck in the property of the Royal Copper mines near Belknap on the Montana side of the Idaho line. The ore is somewhat streaked with gray copper and appears to be of high grade. At the outcrop the vein is twenty-five feet wide and carries ore assaying 6.4 per cent copper and 18.5 per cent lead.

The March cleanup of the Barnes-King mine was $26,000. That for ebruary was $19,000, and it is expected that the cleanup for April will be as good as that for March. The mine is just about paying expenses now.

Drifting is still in progress easterly on the vein of the Tuolumne mine on the 1,000-foot level, and some good ore has been encountered. The shaft will be sunk to the 1,500.

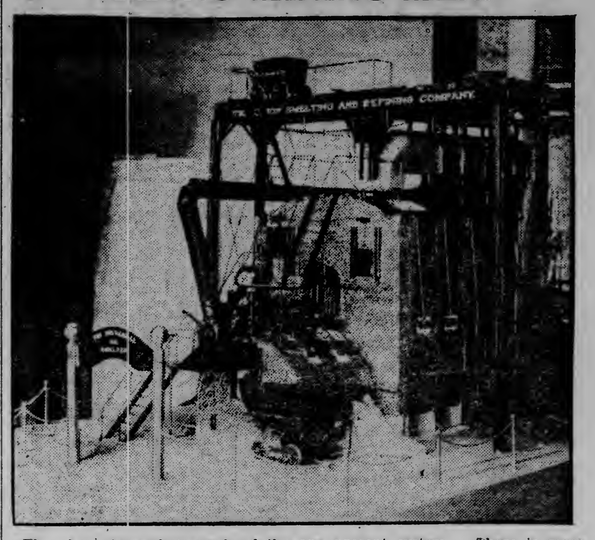
The Davis-Daly Estates Copper company has cut the Lizzie vein in a crosscut from the 500 of the Colorado shaft. The vein is 12 feet wide and contains some good ore. Crosscutting is also going on at the 1,000 foot level and the vein will be reached in a few weeks. The Hoy lessees on the Lizzie are mining ore from two veins at a depth of 200 feet. One vein, known as the Cambers, north of the shaft, is but three feet wide but the ore assays 20 per cent copper. The ore in the large vein south of the shaft runs about 3 per cent. The

IS ATTRACTING ATTENTION AMONG MINING MEN.



The above is a photograph of the model of the newest, and what is claimed to be the most economical smelter devised. It is on exhibition, and is being demonstrated by representatives of the Union Smelting & Refining company at the office of A. H. W. Eckstein, 301 Burrows building.

Many Duluth men, interested in mining properties, have inspected it within the past few days.

The Universal Oil Smelter is designed primarily for the reduction of copper ores by the use of crude oil as fuel. It can be adapted, however, to the smelting of gold and silver ores, lead, iron, zinc, etc.

The principal features of the system as set forth by the originator of the process, are briefly as follows:

1. A saving in cost of fuel amounting to from 40 to 60 per cent over coke or coal.

The cost of construction and installation is about one-half that of any blast or reverberatory system of equal capacity and efficiency.

3. The operation is easier and more simple than by the use of coke. The heat, unlike the coke plants, is under absolute control, being manipulated by a perfect valve system. The application of both heat and air effecting the required reducing and oxidizing influences, is regulated at the will of the operator and the required result obtained with an absolute degree of certainty.

4. The cost of maintainance and repairs is decidedly less than under any present system. There is more economy of operation, fewer parts requiring renewal or repairs, and fewer operatives necessary.

5. The general advantage of a system of this character are obvious. The entire operation of roasting, reducing and converting is done in one plant. The operation is essentially continuous. Fine crushing is unnecessary. No complicated machinery or delicate mechanism to get out or order. Nothing is attempted or accomplished but what applies to modern smelting by any of the approved methods. The only difference is in the manner of accomplishment.

Plans are built in units of twenty-five tons daily capacity and operated economically. This feature makes the construction in isolated localities and at developing properties possible and a boon to the small mine owner.

Mr. Frank T. Day, the originator of the system and President of the Company, owning the rights to the smelter, and Mr. W. H. Hendrickson, the Mechanical Engineer, who constructed the model, and who is manager in charge of construction work for the Company, are in Duluth for the purpose of exhibiting the model and explaining the working of the smelter, at the invitation of parties here who are interested in mining properties, the ores of which could be reduced by this system at great advantage. These gentlemen will be here for a few days and extend an invitation to those who are interested to call and inspect the model at the office of Mr. A. H. W. Eckstein, 301 Burrows building.

only work that company is doing is on the Colorado and there are no prospects of an early resumption on any of the other properties of the company.

While the Boston & Montana company was shipping its ore to the Washoe smelter at Anaconda that plant was run to its extreme limit of capacity and for a week or so it has been turning out ore at the rate of 18,000,000 to 20,000,000 pounds per month. It is reported on good authority that before it became necessary to treat Boston & Montana ore at the Washoe on account of the washout on the Great Northern railroad between Butte & Great Falls smelter, the Washoe smelter was turning out copper at the rate of 10,000,000 pounds per month, which was within 2,000,000 pounds of its highest record before the big slump.

Assays taken from the vein of the Argenta-Dillon Mining company's property in Beaverhead county show 60 ounces in silver, 10 per cent in copper and $10 in gold. The vein is a contact lying between walls of granite and porphyry. At the bottom of the shaft the vein is exposed by three crosscuts 14 feet wide and has an average of 3 per cent copper, 6 ounces in silver and $7 in gold. The ore is copper iron pyrites containing a high percentage of silver, very susceptible to concentration, and owing to a large amount of iron ore is very desirable to most smelters as a flux.

given out by the general manager of the Kansas City-Goldfield company regarding the new vein just cut on the C. O. D. lease. When it is recalled that the C. O. D. adjoins the Florence, which has ore running as high as $8,700 to the ton, the significance of the general manager's statement will be readily appreciated. The same company is also starting new cross-cuts and drifts on their Velvet lease, a choice piece of ground that adjoins the Jumbo. The veins already encountered are now showing up most promisingly. A steady increase in production and profit is reported throughout the camp.

Goldfield is much excited over the arrival of a mule team load of native sulphur from Cuprite, fourteen miles south on the Bullfrog railroad. The sulphur, $5 to 90 per cent pure, came from a deposit near the railroad. It was covered by a light volcanic ash. There are, it is said, two fissures, 300 to 350 feet wide, carrying the sulphur. The sulphur is also accompanied by dykes of cinnabar. Cuprite has a variety of minerals. In addition to the sulphur recently discovered there is a mountain of nearly pure gypsum, most of it white and of a character easily refined. The camp has also the precious metals. The Culprite Gold Mining company at a depth of 250 feet has opened a seven-foot ledge of quartz, carrying gold and copper, a mill run of which is now being made. The Twin Kings at a depth of 200 feet has sulphide ore carrying gold values besides 6 to 8 per cent copper.

Rawhide Nev., May 16.—A big strike has been made at Bovard, eighteen miles south. Prospectors discovered a quartz ledge, eighteen feet wide, carrying at the surface gold values of several hundred dollars to the ton, with samples going as high as $2,000. Jacob Evans of Provo, Utah, bought a controlling interest from the prospectors and organized a company. It is estimated that 1,500 persons have gone to the scene.

Osceola, Nev., May 16.—By June 1 three big hydraulic giants will be washing out the gold from the old Osceola placers, now the property of the Amalgamated Nevada Mines & Power company. In addition the company has signed a contract for the construction of a twenty-stamp mill on its lode mine at Black Horse and the work of getting power plant construction under way at the two sites on Baker's creek is also to be started. The Osceola placers were worked profitably years ago but a dry season stopped work and induced the building of a long ditch which broke the company and failed to carry the needed water.

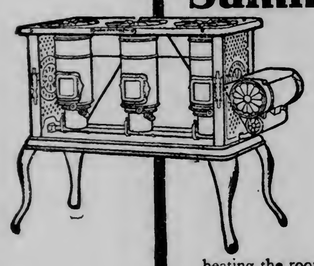
Have You a Summer Stove?



The stifling air of a close kitchen is changed to comfortable coolness by installing a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove to do the family cooking.

No kitchen furnishing is so convenient as this stove. Gives a working heat at once, and maintains it until turned out—that too, without overheating the room. If you examine the

NEW PERFECTION
Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove

you will see why this is so. The heat from the chimney of the "New Perfection" is concentrated under the kettle and not dissipated through the room by radiation. Thus it does the work of the coal range without its discomfort.

Sixteen steel carloads of ore from the Fayal mine were brought in Thursday evening by the local freight from Eveleth, Conductor George McGreevy, Engineer M. Waalleen, engine No. 73. A switch engine for ore service, has been put on at Eveleth and others will be put on at different points as needed, and it is reported that the following mines are to start regular shipments: Pioneer, Sibley, Fayal, Adams and Spruce from Eveleth; Gilbert, at Pettit, and the Miller at Aurora. Only the output of the shafts will be forwarded for the present. It will take a couple of weeks to fill up the docks, and little steam shovel work will be done before the boats begin to come. The shipments mentioned will require a number of ore crews and a force of men at the docks, who will probably be put on commencing Monday or Tuesday, and will cause general rejoicing here, as business has been very quiet the past few months, many men being idle, and will mean more money in circulation and better times for the business men and all concerned.

The Alger-Smith company continues its shipments of logs from Knife River to Duluth, at an average of ninety carloads per day.

Managers Vernberg and Christianson have about completed arrangements to put the Grand opera house into a regular vaudeville circuit and expect the service to start about June 1.

MINNESOTA.

HART GOT OFF EASY

Seems to be Opinion of Board of Law Examiners.

Petition Special Court to Make Change in Findings.

St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The application of Capt. Francis B. Hart, the Minneapolis attorney who was recommended for suspension for six months from practice because of his strictures upon the supreme court, for a rehearing before the special court selected by Governor Johnson to hear the charges, may result in a modification of the special court's findings that will not be as easy for the Minneapolis attorney. The state board of examiners in law that instigated the charges against Hart before the state bar association and demanded his disbarment following Hart's motion for a rehearing, has asked the special court to amend its findings in some particulars.

The portion of the decision to which objection is made by the law examiners is the paragraph in which the special court takes the position that after a case has been decided in court an attorney who has been connected with the case may criticise the court's action to any extent, provided he does not libel the judges; and that in case he should libel them, their only recourse is in an action triable by jury. In its petition the board says:

"This decision will lead to confusion in the jurisprudence of the state. There is danger of its being considered a license to defame and traduce all courts high and low. The decision fairly interpreted means that when a case is finally decided a court or a judge as such is without authority to preserve the dignity of the judicial office.

"No matter to what extent the attorney may publish false charges; no matter that he intended to destroy the influence of the courts, he is immune from punishment as a court officer. The judge's only redress is that given a citizen as such against a citizen; provided, however, that the attorney was careful not to address his remarks to the judge personally."

The board objects also to the portion of the decision in which the special court says that any newspaper might have published the letters written by Capt. Hart and not have been answerable for its action in so doing otherwise than in an action triable by jury.

MORE AGAINST BARNES.

Four New Indictments Are Found Against Minneapolis Man.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. U. Barnes, former president of the defunct Title Insurance company, was arraigned before Judge David F. Simpson yesterday on four new indictments. An indictment, charging the embezzlement of $10,000, was returned six months ago by the grand jury, and the four returned yesterday make a total of five indictments against Mr. Barnes.

Three of the indictments returned yesterday charge grand larceny in the first degree; one, grand larceny in the second degree. Two indictments charge him with misappropriating bank stock valued at $10,000 in one case and $3,250 in the other, deposited with his company as collateral, and the other two indictments charge him with the larceny of $2,614.96 and $109.53, respectively. The last two indictments are drawn under the Minnesota statute, which provides that no officer of a trust company shall be indebted to the company with which he is connected.

Trial on the four indictments was set for May 25. Mr. Barnes is already under $10,000 bail, and he was released on his own recognizance on the four indictments returned yesterday.

A SPECTACULAR FIRE

Completely Destroys Central Warehouse in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, May 16.—A fire completely destroyed the Central warehouse at 639-709 First street north, together with its contents, yesterday afternoon. The probable loss on the structure, a four-story brick building, and contents, will be in excess of $100,000.

The flames were discovered before 1 o'clock and in a few minutes the entire building was a mass of flames. The fire was one of the most spectacular seen here in many months.

G. N. TRACKS MENACED.

Third Street Sewer at Crookston Has Again Caved in.

Crookston, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Third street sewer caved in again under the Great Northern tracks, yesterday, and the main track is impassable. If heavy rains ensue the embankment may be entirely washed away. The situation is considered grave.

Basements in the business section would be also flooded.

Some business men have already removed their basement goods to the warehouse.

ARREST OLEO VENDER.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—Inspector Thomas Manley and G. J. Fowler of the state dairy and food department, Thursday, arrested A. J. Olson, a Minneapolis peddler, and seized forty-one packages of oleomargarine, colored with coal tar dyes which Olson was selling as butter. It is claimed that he was not only violating the law which requires oleomargarine to be labeled as such, but also the law which prohibits the use of coal tar dyes in food products.

MINNESOTA

MANY LOST BY RECENT FIRES

Southern Cass County Citizens Sustained No Little Damage.

Walker, Minn., May. 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Report has been brought in of the disastrous effect of fires in Southern Cass county.

In Poplar township, Jake Gilberg, D. Boy eand O. W. Coldwell lost their homes as well as the old Stenwily place, which was completely destroyed. At the Boye place the occupants lost everything except what tney had on at the time. In Leader township the Bergrens, Sam Shiffner, Mrs. Teagg, E. K. Dunn, the Pine Ridge schoolhouse, the Howe and Ball places, and Andy Ellis, all suffered considerably. The new house of Mr. Reese was burned. The old South Valley schoolhouse was saved by the hard work of the farmers in that vicinity. In Byron townsalp all the farm stables on the old Oliver place were consumed. All told, the spring fires cost south county settlers many thousands of dollars.

SUPERIOR GIRL WINS.

Miss Megordon Captures Honors at Declamatory Contest.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the annual declamatory contest in Stanley last night in which there were five contestants representing Eau Claire, Wis., high school; Superior, Wis., normal; Pillsbury academy, Owatonna; Sycamore high school, Sycamore, Ill., and Stanley hall of this city, Miss Olga Megordon of the Superior normal was accorded first place by her splendid rendition of "Hagar." Miss Florence Moore of Stanley Hall was accorded second place by her delivery of "Pauline Pablovna."

The names of the contestants did not appear on the program, so the judges did not know the schools they represented, and would accordingly render an unprejudiced opinion. Mrs. Carle Fisher and Judge Waite of Minneapolis, and Rev. Mr. Wilson of St. Paul, were the judges. A large audience heard the contestants, and when the judges announced their decision the applause from the spectators indicated the verdict met popular approval.

HOME IS DESTROYED; OCCUPANTS' CLOSE CALL.

Belle Plaine, Minn., May 16.—The house of Jacob Afholter, near here, burned Thursday night. Mr and Mrs. Afholter were in bed when the fire started and knew nothing about it until their son, who had been to town, came home late. The boy rescued his parents from the upper story. The property was worth about $3,500; insurance, about $600.

BRAINERD Y. M. C. A. ELECTS.

Brainerd, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. met in regular session Wednesday evening and elected the following officers: President, H. F. Michael; vice president, Dr. Joseph Nicholson; secretary, Lyman P. White; treasurer, A. T. Larson.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Minneapolis—Dr. R. O. Beard was struck and knocked down late Thursday afternoon by a carriage driven by B. Hacket, at Seventh street and Nicollet avenue. The doctor was rendered unconscious. He was removed to his home in the Virginia flats in a automobile.

Pine City—The management of Hotel Agnes has again changed hands, Mr. and Mrs. Church going back to Minneapolis and A. G. Dodds, wife and daughter, of Iowa, having assumed the management. Mr. Dodd is a hotel man of thirty years' experience.

Fertile—Next Monday night at the opera house the Viking Chorus of Crookston will appear under the auspices of the Sons of Norway lodge. The chorus will be assisted by several soloists and the Fertile orchestra, and the entertainment promises to be just a little the best ever given in Fertile.

Fisher—Ole Larson has brought slander suit against Gunder Krostue, claiming his reputation has been damaged to the extent of $25,000. Larson claims Krostue circulated stories to the effect that the recent fires at Fisher were set by him.

Brainerd—The local Socialists have arranged to have Beecher Moore, Socialist candidate for governor, deliver a series of lectures in Brainerd, May 22, 23 and 24.

Pine City—P. W. McAllen, is an automobile enthusiast as well as a launch expert. He purchased a car at Minneapolis last Friday and ran it home himself in the afternoon.

Sandstone—Cards have been received in town announcing the wedding of Miss Myrn Armstrong, one of the former popular teachers here, and Daniel C. Cowgill at Milan, Wash., on April 29.

St. Cloud—Joseph H. Schwalier, the efficient policeman of the village of St. Joseph, has received his reward of $200 for the capture of Ben Smith the man who stole a team of horses and a buggy from the Star livery on March 17, and the same day he tried to sell the outfit to the liveryman at Cold Spring.

Rush City—C. N. Hanson of Route No.2, received a generous check this week from the Northwestern Agriculturist, as first prize for an excellent article he had written on "Potato Raising."

Rochester—W. Gilbert Scott, one of the leading citizens in Olmsted county, died at his home in this city Tuesday afternoon, after an illness of less than three days. He leaves a wife and four children. He was an uncle of Wesley Britzius of the drug firm of Fuller & Britzius.

Fergus Falls—Diedrich F. Thornau, a well known resident of this city, died here Thursday night after a long illness of liver trouble. He leaves a wife and nine children. Mr. Thornau was probably the heaviest man except one in this county, weighing 375 pounds.

St. Paul—Capt. Winfield S. Overton, U. S. army, commander of the artillery troops at Fort Snelling, has been ordered by President Roosevelt to appear before a retiring board now in session with a view to his early retirement. Capt. Overton has been on sick leave for the past six months.

Staples—The Elks of Staples were invited to meet with the Elks of Brainerd last Thursday evening for a social time, and a number from here went.

Crookston—At the meeting of the county commissioners Saturday, Commissioners Rindal and Clements were appointed a committee to two to consult with the town board of Garfield with reference to a bridge over the Sandhill river near Fertile.

Thief River Falls—Rev. N. A. Gilchrist pastor at large of Adams Presbytery has resigned that office to become pastor of the Presbyterian church at Thief River Falls. His resignation has been accepted to take effect June 1.

WISCONSIN

BIG JUDGMENT IN WISCONSIN

One-Third of Million Dollars Allowed by the Court.

Oshkosh, Wis., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judgment for more than one-third of a million dollars, probably the largest ever taken in Winnebago county, has been ordered by Judge Burnell of the circuit court here in favor of the Oak Lumber company against R. B. Blanks, E. T. Lamkins and W. A. Brown of Monroe, La. The Oak Lumber company is a Wisconsin corporation composed of W. K. Rideout and R. H. Edwards, both of this city, and J. F. Conant of Milwaukee. The defendants were former officers and directors of the Monroe Lumber company and judgment was rendered by default as damages for breach of contract. The exact amount of judgment is $360,000, with costs aggregating $115.24. A considerable amount of property belonging to the defendant Blanks was sequestered by the court as partial security. This property is now in the custody of the National Union bank of this city as security for a loan of $30,500.

CANDIDATE USED POKER.

Aspirant for Mayoralty Fined $25 in Milwaukee Court.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gustav Zillgitt, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor in the recent primary election, was fined $25 and costs in district court, yesterday, for beating his wife's uncle, Bernhardt Buenning, an old soldier, with a poker.

Beunning testified he went to Zillgitt's home with Miss Clara Arnold, Zillgitt's sister-in-law, to get a trunk. She had been staying there, but had left, she said, because of ill treatment.

"Zillgitt made accusations against Miss Arnold," Buenning testified, "and when she denied them, he seized her by the throat. I remonstrated with him and he grabbed a poker and struck me several times on the head with it. I fell to the floor and he locked me in. Miss Arnold opened a window and cried for help. He then let me go."

The defense urged that Miss Arnold had tried to stab Zillgitt with a hat pin. It was said by the prosecution, however, that this had happened only after Zillgitt had attacked Miss Arnold.

BRIDE IS HIS REWARD.

Appleton Man Well Paid for Saving a Human Life.

Appleton, Wis., May 16.—A bride will be Clemens Noworatsky's reward for an act of heroism when, one night last winter, he rescued Miss Theresa Jonen from a building that threatened to collapse, as a result of a gas explosion that almost completely demolished the structure and resulted in the injury of about a dozen persons. Hearing the crash, and seeing the imminent danger to persons on the second floor of the building, Noworatsky lost no time in ascending the stairs and, groping in the darkness, found Miss Jonen, and assisted her to safety. On June 3 the romance, which found its inception as a result of the explosion, will culminate in a marriage to be solemnized at St. Joseph's church, in this city.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Ashland—The next meeting of the Men's club of the First Presbyterian church will be held in the basement of the church, Friday evening, May 22. Supper will be served at 6:30 by the ladies of the church which will be followed by a discussion of the general topic, "Capital."

Madison—Lieut. Governor W. D. Connor of Marshfield, who is acting governor during the absence of Governor Davidson at Washington, arrived here Wednesday morning and spent a busy day with official work and in receiving a large number of officials and others who called to pay their respects.

Oconomowoc—At the meeting of the Business league directors a committee was appointed to visit Kohn Brothers of Milwaukee and endeavor to have them locate their shirt factory in Oconomowoc. The offer of the Milwaukee Mollasses Feed company to locate here was referred to a special committee to further investigate.

Beloit—After living in a tent for the last two winters and making a brave fight for five years against tuberculocis, John Jacobson died. Mr. Jacobson was 23 years of age and was adopted when a child by Mr. and Mrs. Cliff after his parents died.

Madison—Wild rose is the favorite of Madison school children for state flower. Out of the total vote of 2,488, the wild rose received 633. The white water lily was second with a vote of 291, trailing arbutus third with 269, and the shooting star fourth with 249.

Appleton—Arthur R. Ehrnbeck, the army officer who is believed to have perished on the island of Mindanao, was a former Appleton boy, having graduated from Appleton high school and having lived with his parents in this city until he entered West Point. Appletons relatives have learned nothing of his whereabouts, and have heard nothing of him for upward of five weeks.

Neenah—After five days' illness during which the patient was unconscious all the time, Mrs. Mary Miller of Milwaukee died here. The nicer developed five days ago and rapidly grew worse. Brain fever set in, accompanied with paralysis of the body. Four physicians gave constant attention without avail.

BIG CORNERSTONE READY.

Huge Block of Granite for Minneapolis Pro-Cathedral.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The huge block of gray granite which is to be used as the corner stone of the Catholic pro-cathedral in Minneapolis is ready for shipment from the Rockville quarries, near here. It will be engarved with a Latin inscription, a translation of which reads:

"To God, the great and good. The cornerstone of this pro-cathedral church, to be dedicated under the title of Mary, mother of God, virgin conceived without sin, and destined to adorn the city of Minneapolis, was laid with solemn rite on the day before the Kalends of June, A. D. 1908."

UPPER MICHIGAN

CITY PROFITS BY MUNICIPAL PLANT

Marquette Derives Revenue From Electric Lighting System.

Marquette, Mich., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—At an outlay of $3,500, the earnings of Marquette's municipal light and power plant are to be increased not less than $7,000 per annum. The limit of the present capacity now having been reached, it is proposed to use more of the water of Dead river in generating electrical current. This will be done by rehabilitating the dam and water wheel formerly in use and installing an additonal flume.

Aside from this improvement, a substation is to be built on a downtown site at a cost of $20,000. This will effect a big saving in current. The loss of energy in the present transmission from the power plant is some 28 per cent. With the substation in commission, the electricity will come in at 6,600 volts, instead of 2,200, as now, and the loss will be cut down to 10 per cent. This saving, together with the additional current to be made available by the repair of the old dam, is expected to care for the steady increasing business for probably four or five years to come, by which time there will have been erected a new power plant at a cost of $100,000.

Notwithstanding rates for electrical illumination, that are said to be the lowest in the state—5 cens per kilowatt hour for business houses and 7 cents for residences—the plant is earning $53,000 per annum at the present time, and the bulk of this is net. There is a cash balance of $30,000 on hand. With outstanding bonds retired and the new plant in commission a few years hence, the city will be netting upwards of $40,000 per annum from its light and power business.

ROB RANGE HOUSE.

Thieves Carry Off Property of the Houghton Militia.

Houghton, Mich., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Houghton county authorities have been asked to make an investigation in connection with a robbery of the structure at the Hurontown rifle range. The building is used by the members of the Houghton militia company to store articles used on the range —targets, cartridges and other like equipment. Besides, it is thought that at the time the place was entered, a quantity of wearing apparel had been left there. The thieves forced one of the windows of the building. It is thought that the robbery took place last Sunday night.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—A petition has been presented to the board of governors of the Miscowaubik club, praying that tennis courts be laid out adjoining the club's premises between the club and the Calumet high school building. It is expected the matter will be taken up shortly.

Hancock—The funeral of the late Arvid Niemi whose death from typhoid pneumonia occurred Monday at the hospital, was held Wednesday afternoon. Services took place at the Finnish Lutheran church, and interment was in Lakeside cemetery.

Houghton—Considerable local interest continues to be manifested by Houghton county Knights of Pythias in the big Pythian reunion, which takes place in Escanaba, June 22, 23 and 24, under the auspices of the Upper Peninsula Pythian league and there will be an unusually large attendence of the members from this section of the peninsula.

Calumet—Word has been received of the serious illness of C. W. Koppelmann, in Globe, Ariz. Mr. Koppelmann is well known in Calumet where he formerly resided. He is a member of the Spanish-American war vets, and a prominent Elk. Mrs. Koppelmann has also been seriously ill, having undergone several operations recently.

Houghton—R. D. McKeever, general manager and vice president of the Copper Range railroad, went east Tuesday. C. S. Fales, general superintendent, Jesse Gauthier, master mechanic, and F. R. Bolles, general freight and passenger agent, went out with him, the latter to Chicago.

Hancock—The quarantine on the Carrigan home was raised at 9 o'clock Wednesday evening. James Carrigan, the sufferer from a slight attack of small pox, has been removed to the detention hospital, where he was reported to be in good condition.

Laurium—The Laurium fire department was called upon this morning to put out a fire in the residence of Frank Schulte on Willow avenue. The fire originated in the bath room and was in no way serious.

Marquette—The South Shore railroad has closed contracts to bring the Wallace-Hagenback circus and menagerie to Marquette and also to take it into the Copper country. The show's dates in South Shore territory are: Calumet, June 8, Hancock, June 9; Marquette, June 10, and Ishpeming, June 11.

Calumet—Copper country drug clerks have issued an announcement declaring that the druggists and not the clerks are responsible for the change to be made in Sunday hours. The stores are to be closed Sunday afternoons.

Marquette—Henry Routhier of Ishpeming, who went to Dayton, Ohio, some days ago to bring up the new rolling stock turned out of the works of Barney & Smith for the South Shore, arrived here Thursday afternoon in charge of two of the coaches that were brought through.

Negaunee—About thirty men are employed at the new high school building and excellent progress is being made. The masons and concrete crew lost one day this week on account of bad weather. Mitchell & Sherman will finish the concrete work on Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

Ishpeming—Patrick Malloney of South Pine street, who had been a resident of Ishpeming for thirty-five years, died Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock. He had been in poor health for some time and for two or three weeks past his condition had been precarious. The funeral was held Saturday.

STATE LAND SALE.

Little Falls, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A state land sale will be held at the courthouse in this city on the last Monday in June by State Auditor Iverson. Over ten thousand acres will be sold and the event should attract a large number of buyers.

DAKOTAS

MAYOR G. E. DUIS UPHELD BY COURT

North Dakota's Highest Tribunal Stands by Head of City.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court of the state in a decision announced yesterday upholdds Former Mayor George E. Duis of this city in vetoing the resolution of the city council awarding the contract for street paving to the Kettle River Quarries company. The Kettle River Quarries company began proceedings in the district court of this county several months ago to compel Mayor Duis to affix his signature to certain resolutions passed by the council, the resolutions having been vetoed by the mayor. In the trial court, Judge Templeton, presiding, a decision upholding the action of the city official was given, and from this decision the plaintiff appealed. The high court has now taken the same view of the case that the lower court did, knocking out the paving contract.

The resolutions passed by the city council provided that creosote blocks should be used in the pavement of the streets of the city which were included in the district. The bid of the Kettle River Quarries company was the lowest for this kind of pavement, resulting in a resolution being passed giving that firm the contract for laying the pavement. At the next council meeting Mayor Duis vetoed the resolutions, and it was because of this action that suit was commenced. It was claimed by attorneys for the plaintiff that the mayor had no power to veto the resolutions.

At the adjourned council meeting next Monday evening the matter of paving will be taken up and will be pushed along as rapidly as possible in order that the new pavement may be laid this year.

TAKEN TO WILLISTON.

Brute Who Beat Aged Man, Will Probably Gets His.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—Sheriff L. L. Lampman of Williston, left Thursday night for his home, accompanied by John Benner, accused of beating an old man named Larson, in an attempt to hold him up for his money. Benner escaped to Glasgow, Mont., where he was arrested and jailed. He broke jail and remained at large until his capture on the Northern Pacific train at Grafton. It was decided to try him in Williston and the charge of attempting robbery and assaulting the old man.

Larson was given a terrible beatting. His jaw is broken, his teeth knocked out and it was impossible for him to take nourishment for many days. Benner is a powerful man, being a wrestler and athlete.

COURT ROOM WRECKED.

Lively Time During Contest Hearing in North Dakota.

Jamestown, N. D., May 16.—At the hearing of a contest case between William Wilhauser and Mike Higgins at Medina, in western Stutsman, a free-for-all fight was waged between the witnesses of the contestant and the contestee and his friends. In a few moments the courtroom was cleared of onlookers. Attorney Ratcliffe had been thrown across a table, the attorney for the defense had been pushed into the street and one man had been thrown head foremost through the seat of a chair. The room was a wreck.

States Attorney Thorp intercepted one man who had left the building for a gun, and called in Marshals McCready and Kerner, who took charge of the rioters. Two special policemen were detailed to maintain order at the remainder of the hearing.

NORTH DAKOTA MEN OF MEDICINE ADJOURN.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—The North Dakota Medical society adjourned after electing the following officers:

President, M. A. Beaudeaux, Fargo; first vice president, Dr. J. A. Countryman of Grafton; second vice president, Dr. John D. Taylor, Grand Forks; third vice president, Dr. R. A. Beck of Lakota; secretary, Dr. Rowe, Casselton; treasurer, Dr. John Taylor, Minot; councillors, Dr. H. M. Wheeler, Grand Forks; Dr. F. R. Smyth, Bismarck; Dr. George Carpenter, Fargo.

LAST FINAL PROOF.

Fargo, N. D., May 16.—The last person to prove up on a timber culture homestead in the United States was N. Olson of Traill county, who made final proof before the local land office yesterday. The law providing for timber culture claims was repealed in 1891 and it was only because he had contested the claim before that time that Olson was allowed to finish up and make his final proof.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Doland, S. D., May 16.—During a storm in this vicinity, lightning struck a barn owned by Fred Austin, about nine miles southeast of town. Mr. Austin was stunned by the bolt and his youngest son was instantly killed, they being in the building when it was struck. The structure was burned.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—Sheriff Hunt expects Deputy Sheriff Ross, who went to San Diego, Cal., to arrive in the city Saturday with his prisoner, Clarence Cooper, who is wanted at Wheatland to answer to the charge of forgery, which he committed three years ago.

Manvel, N. D.—Thomas Miller and Joe Bayne, alleged to be implicated in the robbery at the Celesky store at this place, last Suunday, had their hearing before Justice McLaughlin and the evidence was such as to warrant the court holding the men for trial before the district court.

Bismarck, N. D.—Judge Amidon in the federal court instructed the jury, in the case of G. Klein vs. the N. P. railroad, to return a verdict for the defendent. This was a suit to recover $10,000 for alleged damages received in the railroad yards at Jamestown.

Egeland, N. D.—Irvin Deardorff, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Deardorff who reside about four miles northeast of Egeland, accidentally shot himself through the le with a 44 caliber revolver. The young man was about 21 years old and had been in the habit of carrying a gun trying to get a chance to shoot a wolf.

Devils Lake, N. D.—The new city carrier service was inaugurated in Devils Lake Thursday for the first time, and hereafter Uncle Sam will deliver all of the mail to the residents of that city to their doors.

Fargo, N. D.—Late Wednesday afternoon the North Dakota Auditors' association elected their officers for the ensuing year, returning all of the old officers to office. They are as follows: President, A. G. Lewis, Cass county; vice president, J. W. Fabrick, of Ward county; secretary and treasurer, Peter Davidson, Traill county.

T. F. COLE WAS HONORARY PALLBEARER AT FUNERAL.

Negaunee, Mich., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the funeral of the late Capt. Samuel Mitchell, well known mining man and philanthropist, held here Thursday afternoon, under the auspices of the Masons, the active pallbearers were Dr. H. W. Sheldon, I. F. Pearce, John Deacon, William Haggeton and A. P. Johnson of Negaunee, M. M. Duncan and D. T. Morgan of Ishpeming. The honorary pallbearers were: T. F. Cole of Duluth, J. W. Stone, D. H. Hall and R. W. Powell of Marquette, Dr. T. A. Felch, Dr. J. Vandeventer, F. Braastad, James Clancey, W. H. Johnston and Henry Harwood of Ishpeming, James Foley, Alexander Maitland, John Tamblyn, John Q. Adams, Louis Corbett, E. Toms and William Collins of Negaunee.

FARMING OUTLOOK GOOD THROUGH UPPER MICHIGAN.

Marquette, Mich., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The outlook for the farming industry in Upper Michigan is excellent this spring. The season is at least three weeks ahead of last year, and it is opening up in a more promising manner than in several years past. Unless there is some unforseen setback, and none is likely to occur, the crops will be heavy, in grains, fruits and vegetables. Planting, generally speaking, is well advanced. Practically all of the grain is already in the ground, and the farmers are beginning to put out their root crops.

SNAKE COMES TO LIFE GIVING CLERK A SCARE.

Menominee, Mich., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—V. I. Lundgren, a local druggist of this city, had on exhibition, several large browheads, a species of snake said to be poisonous, that attracted much attention as they are now quite rare in this vicinity. They all seemed to be dead but one, and Mr. Lundgren decided to transfer the live one to a larger glass receptacle and keep it on exhibition. Little attention was paid to the dead ones, and not until the drug clerk employed by Mr. Lundgren screamed, did any one notice the large reptile at the bottom of the jar suddenly come to life and escape from the jar. It dropped to the floor and required considerable effort to capture it. As its poisonous fangs had been extracted while it was seemingly dead, it is now harmless. Both snakes are now very much alive, although they have not eaten anything for a long time.

HEARING AT BARNUM.

Railroad Commission Looks Into Application for Railroad Spur.

Barnum, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state railroad and warehouse commissioners held a session at Barnum this week and took evidence to aid them in deciding whether or not the Northern Pacific shall be compelled to put in a spur for the brick yards. Attorney H. S. Lord of Carlton represented the brick yard company and the railway company was represented by an attorney from Duluth, Supt. Blanchard and General Agent Blanche. The railway company had refused to put in the spur on account of the element of danger. It was shown at the hearing that the Northern Pacific has many more switches and is running its trains faster than the St. Paul & Duluth did. It was also shown that the brick yards must have that spur to do business. The commissioners did not render a decision.

As various tracts are opened up, the revenue to the commonwealth from this source will steadily increase.

New Ore Carrier.

A new carrier of iron ore, possibly this season, will be the Northern Pacific railroad. This line traversing the Cuyuna district, southwest of the Mesaba, it has in sight there a prospective large traffic. Drills have been operated on the Cuyuna for a number of years now, and extensive mineral-bearing deposits have been encountered. An important proportion of this ore is of such grade as not to be in demand at the present time, when materially better material is obtainable on the older ranges, still there are some bodies that are of merchantable class and already the development of properties is under way. The Buffalo & Susquehanna interests, represented by Rogers, Brown & Co., are among the pioneers of the field, and they are sinking shafts both at Rabbit lake and near Deerwood. Surveys for spur tracks to the properties have been made by the Northern Pacific, and it is supposed that this presages ore shipments either late this year or early next season. The Cuyler Adams interests have been assiduously engaged in drilling operations in the new field for a long time past, and as a result of the exploratory work have taken over an extensive acreage. This is especially the case in the Rice River country, where ore was tapped in the majority of the holes put down. If not at this time, it is conceded that in future years the Cuyuna will become an important source of ore supply.

While little is known concerning the plans of the interests now in control, it is believed that the recent transfer of the property from the Alger estate of Detroit means an early resumption of operations at the Volunteer mine, in the Cascade district of the Marquette range. The Volunteer produces an ore high in silica and rather below the average in iron. It has been idle ever since last wrought by the Steel corporation, which was some three years ago, but it would be impossible to work the mine to advantage for many years, a number of the stopes showing deposits of very good size. Except that the "Volunteer Ore company" has taken over the property, and that James Wanless of Duluth is the secretary, the identity of the new holders of the mine appears perplexing to Marquette range people.

Unless the Volunteer is restored to the active list, the prospects indicate that very little mining will be done in the Cascade district this season. Ogle-bay, Norton & Co.'s Empire, the Steel corporation's Moore, and M. A. Hanna & Co.'s Richmond, all three of which are open-pit milling propositions, continue on the idle list, and whether any of the trio will be operated will depend altogether on the course of the ore market. It is in the same district as these mines that Longyear & Hodge are conducting extensive diamond drill work. This exploration firm is one of the leading contractors in its line in the Lake Superior region, but in this case it is operating on its own account. It has the lands of the Pittsburg & Lake Superior Iron company under option, and it is giving them a thorough test. That ore has been encountered is well understood, but whether in sufficient quantity and of adequate grade are matters not yet divulged. Altogether, the Pittsburg & Lake Superior company, which is a local corporation, controlled at Negaunee, has between 2,500 and 3,000 acres in the Cascade field.

Furnace Being Dismantled.

The remaining portions of the structures at the old Pioneer furnace, at Negaunee, are being dismantled by the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company. This plant made charcoal iron and was built many years ago; it has long been idle. The brick procured by the wreckers will be used in the construction of the company's new green houses. The Elk Rapids charcoal iron furnace of the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical company, which went out of blast a fortnight ago, had been in continuous operation for three years to a day. The average daily production of the stack was in the neighborhood of ninety tons.

Contending that water pumped from the Maas mine, at Negaunee, has flooded his land, and, because heavily impregnated with iron, has made the soil worthless to him for raising crops, Mathew Mallorey has brought suit against the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company for $3,000 damages. He asks, in addition, that the corporation be enjoined from causing further alleged havoc in the manner described. While the monetary consideration involved is small, the case is one involving novel points of law, and there is considerable interest in the outcome.

Recent visitors in the Lake Superior region have been Justice Claudius B. Grant of the Michigan supreme court and Albert J. McKay of Oshkosh, Wis., owners of the fee of the Colby mine, a Gogebic range property, operated by Corrigan, McKinney & Co. of Cleveland. The Colby was supposed to be all but worked out some years ago, but it is now developing new and extensive ore bodies below the 2,000-foot level, and it has an indefinite life before it. It will be an important producer for many years.

Col. G. W. French, representing an Eastern Steel company; Moses Dreyfus of the Ohio Metal & Steel company; Charles Stevens of the Moline Plow company, and Archibald Storms, a steel manufacturer of Chicago also have been Lake Superior visitors lately. They are interested in the furnace now building at Iron Mountain, Menominee range, and which is designed to treat low grade ores by a process, the discovery of John T. Jones of that city. Successful, this plant will work a veritable revolution in existing methods.

their statements of the output for the past year under the new bullion tax law. The Calumet & Arizona's production was: Copper, 30,039,473 pounds; silver, 154,385,500 ounces; gold, 5,647 ounces; total value, $6,226,663. The Superior & Pittsburg's production was: Copper, 9,602,553 pounds; silver, 55,464 ounces; total value $1,957,128. The Shattuck's production was 5,091,542 pounds; total value, $1,018,512.

Fifty feet of ore and leached matter has been cut in a drift which has been run to the northeast at the 235-foot level of Shaft No. 3, in the Santa Rosa mine, located eighteen miles south of Douglas. This was the announcement made by T. H. Collins, general manager of the Cabullona Development company, holding a bond on the Santa Rosa mine. No. 3 shaft has now reached a depth of 300 feet, and small pockets of ore were encountered in a leached iron formation, which was cut by the shaft above the present drift.

No. 1 shaft has not been sunk below the 350-foot level, which was reached some time ago, but two drifts are being run in this shaft, the one at the 335-foot level being pushed northeast in the direction of shaft No. 3. At the 235-foot level of the original shaft two drifts are being run in opposite directions. Shafts Nos. 1 and 3 are 700 feet apart.

The Cabullona Development company secured this property more than a year ago, and since then has been working steadily. Hoisting and other development machinery was installed last year and a great amount of work has been done The present force consists of seventy men.

The Santa Rosa property, it is believed by those who ohave made close examination of it from time to time, to be one of great promise. The development of a producing mine there would result in greatly increasing the trade of this city. During the past year Douglas has enjoyed a good business as a result of the development of this property.

RESUMPTION THE WORD NOW

twenty feet wide, and ore taken from it near the surface gave good values. The property is located near Kellogg, Idaho.

Patrick Brady, a part owner in the Pittsburg group of claims, has purchased from Archie McCallum the New York lode claim, located 1,500 feet west of the Success group. Mr. Brady also has the Star Spangled Banner lodo, which is situated adjoining the New York claim, on the west. The vein, which has been prospected extensively on the New York claim, runs through the Star Spangled Banner. Carbonate ore has been encountered in the New York. The Success Mining company, in its report for 1907, filed with the county assessor, shows a profit for the first time. This is placed at $40,803. The tons of ore extracted were 7,262, of a gross value of $211,884. The cost of the extraction, treatment and repairs at the mine were $171,081.

Announcement is made that work on the property of the Idora Mining company will be resumed early in June. John N. Nordquist is manager of the property.

Harry L. Day, one of the owners of the Hercules mine, holder of a bond on the Custer group, has made the final payment, and taken over one of the best known mining properties in the Coeur d'Alenes. The Custer was a shipping property for ten years, and more than $600,000 worth of ore was shipped from the mine. Work was discontinued four years ago, and in 1906 Mr. Day secured the bond. The mine was formally owned by Finch & Campbell, R. J. Neill and E. H. Moffitt. Mr. Day will develop the property.

Work is to be resumed soon on the property of the Eureka Mining company, located on Nine Mile creek. The development is to be confined for the present to the first lead on which drifting has already been done. Two leads have been opened on the property and the showing is said to be excellent.

WHEAT HAS SOFT TONE

American Markets Are Weak During the Short Session.

Flax Sells Off and Closes Weak in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 16.—Wheat was weaker during all of the short session in the American markets today.

Crop conditions in this country impress the trade as favorable, despite the bullish reports from the Southwest yesterday, and this sentiment, coupled with lower cables and prospects of liberal world's shipments, combined to make a soft market. The volume of trading was not large.

There was some demand from abroad, in the local market, and ten loads of Duluth No. 1 northern were worked for export.

Liverpool closed ½d to ⅝d lower, Berlin 1, lower, Budapest ⅛c higher and Antwerp 1¼c lower.

The May option closed ⅜c lower in Duluth and Minneapolis, ⅝c lower in Chicago and Winnipeg and ½c lower in New York. The July option closed ½c lower in Duluth, ½-⅝c lower in Chicago, ⅝c lower in Minneapolis and Winnipeg and ⅝c lower in New York.

July corn closed ⅝-½c lower in Chicago and 1d lower in Liverpool. July oats closed ¾c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat values were affected by the weakness in American markets yesterday, which stimulated larger offerings and although the market at the opening was ⅝d to 1½d lower, the undertone was steady. Following the opening, there was some covering by shorts on less favorable reports regarding the American winter wheat outlook and reports of damage to the Roumanian crop as a result of drought and values advanced from the opening. Toward the close, however, pressure again developed on the belief of large world's shipments this week, and the advance was lost, with values at this time ¼d to ⅝d lower than Friday, with the nearby months practically under pressure.

"Corn was quiet at the opening and unchanged. Later pressure developed on the predictions of larger American shipments and a poor demand for spot, and at the close the market was easy and 1d lower than Friday."

Car receipts of wheat were 32 against 92 last year, and at Minneapolis 176 against 259 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 208 against 318 last year. Chicago received 82 against 62 last year. Winnipeg received 54 against 336 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 370,000 bus, last year 630,000 bus. Shipments 645,000 bus, last year 290,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 375,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 402,000 bus, last year 301,000 bus. Shipments 316,000 bus, last year 483,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 3,109.

Wheat was quiet in the Duluth market. July wheat opened ⅛c lower at $1.04, declined to $1.03⅝, rallied to $1.03¾, went off to $1.03⅛ and closed at $1.03⅜, a loss of 2c from yesterday. May wheat was inactive and closed ¾c lower than yesterday at $1.03¼ and September wheat closed ⅞c lower at 91½c.

Durum wheat closed ⅜c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was active and sold off a point from yesterday's close, during the day. May flax opened ¾c lower at $1.22⅝ and declined to $1.22⅜. July flax opened ⅛c lower at $1.24, declined to $1.23¼ and closed at $1.23⅜, a loss of 1⅛c from yesterday. September flax was inactive and closed at $1.24⅛, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday. October flax was inactive and closed at $1.22½, a loss of 1½c from yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, on track, $1.07⅛. To arrive: No. 1 northern, $1.05¼; No. 2 northern, $1.02¾. On track: No. 1 northern, $1.05¾; No. 2, $1.02¾; May, $1.03¼; July, $1.03⅜; September, 91½c. Durum on track—No. 1, 91¾c; No. 2, 90¾c; May durum, 90¾c; July durum, 90¼c; September durum, 81c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Moderate Selling, Based on Various Reasons, Causes Weakness in Wheat

Chicago, May 16.—Moderate sales by a leading long caused weakness today in the local wheat market. The selling was due to some extent to the lower prices at Liverpool and to the continued favorable weather in this country for the new crop. July opened ¼c to ½c lower, at 89c to 89¼c and sold off to 88¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 239 cars against 257 cars last week and 411 cars a year ago.

The market was easy for the greater part of the day. The close was weak with July ½@⅝c lower, at 88⅞@89c.

The corn market opened weak owing to a 1d decline at Liverpool but soon became firmer on fair demand by a leading cash interest. Wet weather was again a bullish influence. July opened ..@⅝c to ½@⅝c lower, at 65¾c to 65⅝c and sold at 65½c. Local receipts were 199 cars with 33 of contract grade.

Prices held well throughout the session. The close was strong with July ⅜c higher, at 66c.

There was only a small trade in oats and the market was inclined to follow the course of corn. July opened ⅜c lower, at 46¾c and sold up to 47c. Local receipts were 274 cars.

Provisions were quiet and steady. A feature of trade was the selling of ribs by a local packer. July pork was a shade lower, at $13.40. Lard was unchanged at $8.40, and ribs were also unchanged at $7.25.

Close—Wheat: May, $1.00; July, 88¾@89c; September, 85¾@89c; December, 87c. Corn—May, 74¾c; July, 6c; September, 63¾c; December, 53⅞c. Oats—May, old, 54c; May, 53½c; July, old, 47c; July, 45¼@¾c; Sept. 37½c. Pork—May, $13.25; July, $13.42½; September, $13.65@13.67½. Lard—May, $8.32½; July, $8.40; September, $8.57½. Ribs—May, $7.15; July, $7.27½; September, $7.47½@7.50. Rye — Cash, 84c. Barley — Cash, 66@76c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 99½c@$1.00¾; No. 3 red, 98@99¼c; No. 2 hard, 99c@$1.05; No. 3 hard, 96c@$1.01; No. 3 spring, $1.00@1.08; others, nothing doing. Corn—No. 2, nothing doing; No. 3, 73@¾c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Heavy and Prices Start Downward at the Opening.

Minneapolis, May 16.—Good weather, lower cables and deliveries of wheat on May contract in Chicago made the market heavy and put prices down at the opening. The bullish supply figures had no effect. Minneapolis elevator stocks decreased 339,695 bus for the week, and are down to 4,758,000 against 11,700,000 at this time last year. There is a further decrease of 50,000 bus for one day since making up the weekly statement. Minneapolis got 176 cars today against 256, Duluth 32 against 36, and Winnipeg only 54 against 336.

The July option here was stubborn against selling, and reacted from declines, but trade was so light it did not move far either way. July wheat opened $1.03⅞@1.04; high, $1.04⅜; low, $1.03¾; close, $1.03⅝; September closed 90⅝c; May closed $1.04¾.

Cash prices were quoted 2½@3c over July for No. 1 northern and ½@1c over for No. 2, but the demand was not quite so keen as yesterday and most of the wheat sold at the inside prices. Local millers were good buyers.

Cash close: No. 1 northern, $1.06¼@⅝ spot, $1.06¼ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.04¼@⅝ spot; $1.04¼ to arrive. No. 3 wheat, 97⅝c@$1.01⅝; No. 3 yellow corn, 68¾@70¾c. No. 3 white oats, 49⅝@50⅜c; No. 2 rye, 76¾@7¾c.

A sale of 11,000 bushels malting barley at 65c to come out of elevators was the feature. It was sold to a Wisconsin malter. Close, 57@68c.

Flax was firm and in good demand at 1c over Duluth July. Close, $1.24⅛.

Bran in bulk, $21.75@22.00.

Flour closed the week quiet with Saturday's business light and prices unchanged. Shipments, 49,543 barrels. First patents, $5.45@5.60; second patents, $5.30@5.45; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second cvlears, $3.55@3.65.

REMARKS.

Showery weather prevailed over nearly all districts.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

T indicates inappreciable rainfall. * For yesterday.  For twenty-four hours ending at 8 a. m., 75th meridian time.

NOTE—The average maximum and minimum temperatures and the average rainfall are made up at each center from the actual number of reports received. The state of weather is that prevailing at time of observation.

Treasury Balances.

Washington, May 16.—Today's treasury statement: Available cash balance, $243,218,152; gold coin and bullion, $148,148,133; gold certificates, $24,583,700.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Trade light owing greatly to recent weather conditions. Delivery horses had the call today. A number of dealers from Dakota and Montana were looking through the stalls with the intention of filling out loads later. Mules are in light demand. Family drivers meet with steady demand.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

But Realizing in Some Shares Kept the Tone Irregular.

Close Was Active, But Below Day's Highest Figures.

New York, May 16.—The opening in stocks showed no very notable changes from last night, although the trading was active and interest was broadly distributed. Small gains and losses were mixed.

An increasing demand for stocks resulted in the entire list improving in an irregular fashion. The chief gains were limite dto a few of the representative stocks. Heavy realizing was in progress on the advance.

The market closed irregular and very active. New high levels were touched by various stocks, while continued realizing in others kept the tone irregular. St. Paul was conspicuous with an advance of 1½ and Reading rose over a point. Western Maryland was pushed up 3¼; General Electric, 2¾; Louisville & Nashville and Atlantic Coast Line, 3. Union Pacific was carried up 2⅜ in the final dealings.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 16.—The cotton market opened steady with an advance of 4@12 points in response to higher cables than expected, big English spot sales and bullish week end figures. Good weather caused some irregularity at first but the markt ruled higher during the middle of the morning, when prices were about 12 to 19 points above the closing figures of yesterday on covering of shorts and talk of bullish spot changes.

Futures closed very steady; closing bids: May, 9.67; June, 9.63; July, 9.69; August, 9.46; September, 9.31; October, 9.33; November, 9.29; December, 9.25; January, 9.26; February, 9.26; March, 9.28. Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.00; middling gulf, 11.25; no sales.

Bank Statement.

New York, May 16.—The statement of clearing house banks for the week shows that the banks hold $64,607,250 more than the requirements of the 25 per cent reserve rule. This is an increase of $723,775 in the proportion ate cash reserves as compared with previous account. The statement follows: Loans, $1,201,129,000; increase, $4,777,800; deposits $1,276,229,000; increase, $5,895,700; circulation, $57,206,200; decrease, $131,400; legal tenders, $69,681,900; increase, $1,521,700; Specie, $313,980,500; increase, $676,000; reserve, $383,662,400; increase, $2,197,700; reserve required, $319,055,150; increase, $1,473,925; surplus $64,607,250; increase, $723,775. Ex-United States deposits, $72,531,850, decrease, $1,148,125.

The statement of banks and trust companies of Greater New York, not members of the clearing house, shows that these institutions have aggregate deposits of $397,160,300, total cash on hand $61,061,400, and loans amounting to $361,556,200.

The loans, specles, holdings and deposits of the clearing house banks were new high records.

New York Money.

New York, May 16.—Close: Money on call nominal; time loans dull and steady; 30 days, 2½@2¾ per cent; 90 days, 3 per cent; six months, 3½@3¾ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 3¾@4 per cent. Sterling exchange fairly steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85.05@4.85.15 for 60-day bills. Commercial bills, $4.84¾@4.85. Bar silver, 52⅝c; Mexican dollars, 47c; government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, firm.

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY NEWS

The members of the faculty of the Normal school entertained the students of the Normal department at a delightful party last evening in the lower halls of the school. Decorations of pink and white were used about the hall and the same color scheme was followed in the refreshment room, where the girls of the eighth grade presided. An orchestra played a program of dance music for an informal dance, which was greatly enjoyed by the guests.

* * *

Mrs. John Galbraith entertained Thursday afternoon at a birthday party in honor of her little sons, Lloyd and Keith. The children entertained were the Misses Marie Melin, Winnie Scribner, Myrtle Newill and Gertrude Hewitt, and Masters Dalla Wakeman, Paul McCreighton, Marion Flack, Walter Lowrie and Robert Lowrie.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Norwegians Will Celebrate May 17 in an Appropriate Manner.

The Norwegian people of Duluth, Cloquet, Two Harbors and the range towns will celebrate their national holiday, Sunday afternoon, at the Armory. The festival will be given under the auspices of the local lodges of the Sons of Norway.

May 17 is the day of freedom of the Norwegian race. It corresponds to the American Fourth of July. The Norwegians of Duluth have arranged an elaborate program. In the evening there will be a banquet, with appropriate toasts made by prominent Norwegians, at the St. Louis hotel, at 9 o'clock.

WILLIAMSON LEAVES.

F. C. Williamson, superintendent for Burnham & Co. of Chicago, architects and building experts, who has been supervising the building of the addition to the Board of Trade building, has gone to Chicago to work on the plans for a new building the Burnham people are going to erect in Pittsburg.

P. A. Karns, another of Burnham & Co.s superintendents, has come from Chicago to take charge of the Board of Trade work. Under the Burnham system, they remain in charge of operations until the new building is turned over to the owners in first-class shape.

The structural iron work on the addition to the board of trade is progressing nicely. McLeod & Smith's men are now placing the iron girders on the top stories of the new part.

JOHNSON IN THE HOUSE

Washington, May 16.—Governor Johnson of Minnesota was a visitor today to the capitol and spent some time on the floor of the house, where he was the recipient of much attention. Democrats and Republicans alike extended cordial greetings. He received generous applause when, escorted by Mr. Tawney, he ascended the rostrum and was introduced to Speaker Cannon. Governor Johnson bowed his acknowledgement and for several minutes engaged in conversation with the speaker.

Governor Johnson also spent some time on the floor of the senate and met many senators on both the Republican and Democratic sides of the chamber.

FORGOT THE MIRROR.

Harry S. Wilson and Bessie Backer were united in marriage in the office of the probate judge this morning, Judge D. H. Lawrence tying the nuptial knot. The newly wed couple expected to leave for the Twin Cities this afternoon. They came up from St. Paul Thursday evening and Duluth people, who were on the train, will remember Mr. and Mrs. Wilson as the young couple whose attentions to each other attracted the interest of nearly everybody on the car. The cushioned backs to the seats in the car would have hidden the young people from the others in the car, but they forgot the mirror immediately in front of them and the other passengers thoroughly enjoyed the situation.

No fear need be felt of the indigestiblity of hot biscuit if they are made light and flaky by the use of Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder. Our extracts are the best. Try them.

Jury Still Out.

The jury in the district court, which has had under consideration the case of Frank Norton against C. J. Petruschke, has been deliberating on the case for more than twenty-four hours. At 3 o'clock this afternoon no verdict had been returned. Norton is suing for $25,000 for the loss of his hand.

MAY 16, 1908.

I can see a change coming over the Butte-Ballaklava market. News is leaking out that the deposits of high-grade ore in this mine are enormous and that shipments of high-grade ore are almost in sight. For several months I have advised the purchase of the stock for the reason that I believe in it from start to finish, and when you stop to think of the location of this mine, and when you absolutely know that they are working the very same veins as the North Butte and Boston properties, and have 3,600 feet of the richest vein matter on Butte Hill, how then can you question the mine that has already shown up big deposits of ore averaging from 7 per cent to 60 per cent copper, also carrying gold and silver values? When the shaft gets down 1,300 feet the water from this mine, which will practically drain one of the biggest parts of Butte Hill, will earn big dividends for the shareholders. If you have been to Butte you will easily understand what I mean. The water from the Amalgamated mines carries so much copper that it pays a big part of their operating expenses. Buy Butte-Ballaklava at this level, for it will sell at $40 or $50 a share later on.

Our correspondents in Butte are sending big orders in for Butte & Superior stock. This certainly looks good to me. They advised me today that today the drifting will begin, as the water is diminishing. They are now in 14 feet of rich ore, and it is believed that they have a vein of solid ore 100 feet through. The Butte & Superior mine may be as big as the Butte Coalition. It is coming, and coming fast. The management is one of the best. All you have to do is to stick and you will win big. We are still bidding $1.25 for any part of 1,000 shares. Bring the stock in and get your money.

Calumet & Sonora, one of the greatest properties in the Cananea district, which lies alongside of the Greene-Cananea mine, is attracting a whole lot of attention. Its possibilities cannot be estimated, for with six shafts in rich ore and 1,100 acres of land and only 43,000 shares issued, you will have to wander around for quite a while before you can find many to compare with it. Personally I believe in it. Many of your boys mean have seen this mine, and they all report the same. It is one of the best on the board. We can use big lots of the stock. Offer us your Calumet & Sonora.

Shattuck is another dandy buy. It is a big mine down in the Bisbee district. We only advertise mines that we believe our customers can make big money on, and if I do say it, those who have followed me for the last few months have made more money than those who have followed others. Give us your business.

ANOTHER SALE IS MADE ON WEST FIRST STREET

Hutchinson Bevier Sells 50-Foot Unimproved Lot Near Herald Building for $25,000, the Property to Have a Building Erected on It for the Zenith Telephone Company—Numerous Sales of Residence Property and of Lots for Improvement Are Reported by Local Brokers—Duluth Men Return From National Real Estate Exchange Convention at Chicago.

The real estate activity of the week shows the local market to be in a healthy condition. Inquiry is getting better right along and the volume of trades seems to be steadily increasing. Besides one important sale of First street centrally located property this week, there have been a number of sales of residences, and many lots for improvement in various parts of the city, notably Lakeside. A great deal of interest is being displayed in the matter of bids for the courthouse construction. Surprise and pleasure is expressed by the taxpayers over the low bids submitted. In some instances these were from $300,000 to $400,000 below the architects' estimates. This goes to show that the county has hit upon the right year to build. Local contractors claim that there has never been another season in the past several years, nor is there likely to be for many years to come, that the courthouse can be erected so cheaply as at the present time. It is believed that the county has saved a half million dollars by postponing building operations until this year. The scarcity of big contract work and the cheapened price of material are said to be responsible for the low bids on the courthouse work. There has never been a time in the history of the city and county when so many outside contractors have entered competition for local construction work. Some of the big contracting firms in other cities, it is claimed, who have high-priced men on their forces, have entered competition for the courthouse job here for the reason that they can take a contract at pretty near cost and keep their forces at work under less expense than to keep them on the payroll at home, doing nothing. There are other elements, probably, that enter into the situation to cause the low bidding. The taxpayers of this county will get the benefit of the conditons, whatever they may be, and for that reason they have cause to feel pleased.

As was previously announced in The Herald this week, Mrs. Electra Spalding, whose residence property at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue west and Second street, was taken by the county for courthouse site purposes, has purchased from Charles Downer, an Eastern man, the old Hawksworth place on the lower side of London road at Fiftieth avenue east. The consideration was $5,000. The property is one of the best known in Lakeside. The house now standing on the land was built many years ago and was in its time considered quite a mansion. Built of the best material that could be had, the building is still in a good state of preservation—so much so that Mrs. Spalding will simply remodel it a little, put on a brick veneer and, by other improvements which she has planned, will make a beautiful home of the old place. The property is described as lot 6 and the west half of lot 7, block "D," London addition. It has 150 feet frontage on London road and runs back several hundred feet to the lake. The property includes one-half of the ravine, which is one of the most picturesque localities in that part of Lakeside. The sale was handled through the office of J. B. Greenfield.

The most important transaction in centrally located real estate that was reported this week was the sale of lot 72, West First street, Third division, from Hutchinson Bevier of this city to the Onegemezing company, for $25,000. The lot has a frontage of fifty feet on the lower side of First street, adjoining the Barrett & Zimmerman property on the west, within fifty feet of The Herald building, and runs back 140 feet to First alley. The larger part of the stock of the Onegemezing company is owned by the Zenith Telephone company. The property just purchased will be improved with a telephone exchange building for the telephone company. The sale of the property was made through the office of Stryker, Manley & Buck.

The sale above referred to is another indication of the increasing demand for West First street property for business locations. Conservative real estate men of the city claim that within the next year there will be a number of sales of West First street property between Third and Sixth avenues west, for permanent improvement.

N. J. Upham, T. W. Wahl, A. C. Volk and Henry Nolte, well-known real estate men of this city, were in Chicago this week attending the National Real Estate Exchange convention. Representatives of real estate exchanges from twenty-two of the largest American cities were present and the meeting was a very interesting one. The sessions were held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and the discussion covered a general review of the real estate situation in various cities of the country, also their resources. In speaking of the meeting, Mr. Wahl says:

"We were exceedingly well pleased at the surprise expressed by the delegates to the national convention over the wonderful real estate conditions now existing at the Head of the Lakes in the way of immense improvements now under way, and the very low values of realty here. In fact, the delegates were so much interested in the reports about Duluth that a great many of them are coming here in the near future with a view of investigating the conditions for themselves, and, perhaps, to make investments.

"It seemed to be the conscensus of opinion from men residing in all parts of the country that real estate is the next commodity in which the public will wish to invest. 'Real Estate,' a little booklet issued by the Wahl Realty company, was in great demand and the contents seemed to attract interest.

"The next convention will be held in Detroit in 1909. E. B. Frederick of St. Louis was elected president; W. W. Hannan of Detroit, Mich., vice president, and E. A. Birkhoff of Chicago, treasurer.

"Some of the exchanges represented were Los Angeles, Tacoma, Bellingham, Seattle, Omaha, Detroit, Cleveland, Kansas City, St. Louis, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Gary, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Portland, Chicago and Milwaukee."

J. B. Greenfield reports the sale of a residence property at the corner of Oneida street and Fifty-first avenue east, Lakeside, to John Roberts, for $2,100. Mr. Greenfield has also sold several lots in Lakeside within the past

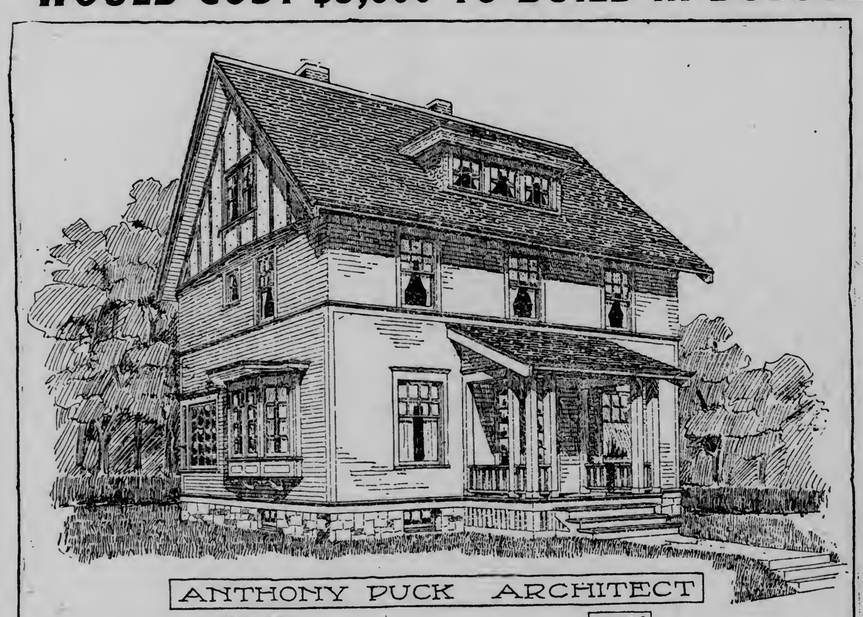
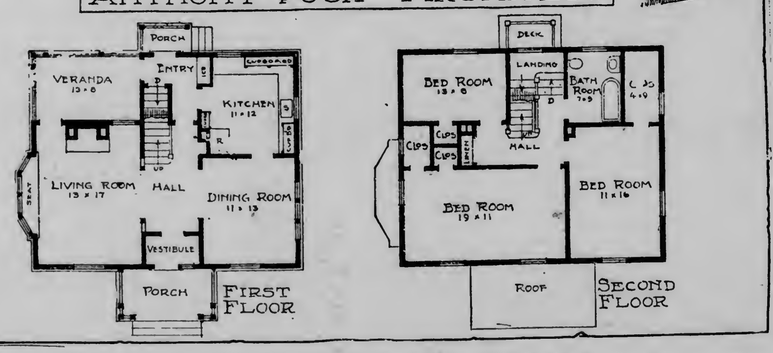
SIMPLE AND ROOMY HOME WHICH WOULD COST $3,600 TO BUILD IN DULUTH



ANTHONY PUCK ARCHITECT



The above illustration calls for a home plain, but attarctive in design, convenient and roomy in arrangement, and economical to construct. The simple detail and good proportions are the feature of the exterior. The plans utilize every foot of floor space to good advantage. The simplicity of design and construction makes this home inexpensive to build.

In the first story a reception hall, with stairway and kitchen connection, and entry at the rear, take up the center of the plan, with a large pleasant living room and glass-inclosed veranda on the left, or the sunny side, and the dining room and kitchen on the right.

The second story has a convenient hallway, two unusually large bedrooms, a smaller bedroom, a bath room and several closets. In the attic is ample space for two additional bedrooms and a store room.

The basement has a heater room, fuel room, laundry and cellar with cement floor throughout.

The outside dimensions are 22 feet front and 26 feet depth. The ceiling height are 7 feet 9 feet and 8½ feet.

The finish of the first story is oak, and second story pine, with floors of maple.

With furnace heat, plumbing and electric wiring the cost to erect would be $3,600.

CITY HOMES, LOTS AND FARM LANDS

If looking for a home, whether expensive or not, be sure and let us show you our large list. It covers all sections of Duluth.
As for building lots, we have some good ones from $400 to $10,000.
We are furnishing money to build in some localities.
Farm lands near Duluth at great bargains.

L. A. LARSEN CO.
Both 'Phones, 1920. 214-15 PROVIDENCE BUILDING.

We Can Build for You

We are going to build three brick houses in the East end on the upper side of Fourth street, and sell on easy terms. Houses to contain 7 rooms each, hot water heat, strictly modern; can change plans to suit purchasers before buildings are commenced.

We represent exclusively most of the lots in the Normal School district, between Second street and the lower side of Fifth street, and between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-seventh avenue east; also many lots between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth avenues east. This locality, we believe, is the most desirable for residences in the city because only single residences with large lots can be built there. Prices are low, but will surely advance. Secure a handsome residence site now.

Glen Avon and Hunter's Park.

We have some very choice lots on Woodland avenue. Prices from $400 up.

Also several houses for sale.

$2000 This is the most desirable locality in the city in which to live. Bargain in a house, 811 Lake avenue north; 50-foot corner lot, 8 rooms, mantel and grate; good repair.—(4337.)

For rent, 1416 East First street, 8 rooms, $40 per month.

We want loans. Money on hand for mortgage loans, large or small. Lowest rates.

Stryker, Manley & Buck.

Bargains In Lands

120-acre improved farm, near Mille Lacs Lake; a large portion of the land is under cultivation, and fenced in; balance easily cleared; good buildings; price, $1,500.

160 acres near Alborn, n½ of ne¼ and n½ of nw¼, section 32-52-18. This land is all level and free from stones. Price $8.00 per acre.

10 acres on the county road at Lakewood pumping station, suitable for truck gardening, or chicken farm. Will sell at a bargain, and on easy terms.

400 acres of good farming land on the Rice Lake road, only a short distance from the poor farm. Will sell in 40-acre tracts at $12.50 per acre.

1,300 acres in Town of Gnesen. This land is all located in a settled country, convenient to roads; a large part of the land is very easy to clear. Will sell in 40 or 80-acre tracts at $6.00 per acre, on easy terms.

1,080 acres near Sucker River and French River. This land is all choice farming land, and on some forties is timber enough to pay for land. Will sell in 40 or 80-acre tracts at very low price, and on easy terms.

Four 10-acre tracts near Arnold, on county road, price, $25.00 per acre.

G. A. RYDBERG,
411 Torrey Building.

$2800 22½ Pittsburg avenue, 11-room flat, for two families; stone foundation; new modern plumbing; hardwood floors. Rent $35.

$3500 1121 East Fourth street; good 7-room house in nice condition; very anxious to sell.

$4000 410 Sixth avenue west; very good 8-room brick house, for one or two families; hot water heat; oak finish; easy terms; splendid buy.

N. J. UPHAM & CO.,
20 Third Avenue West.

MINISTER GOES INSANE, CUTS HIS WIFE'S THROAT, THEN RECOVERS REASON

Rev S. A. Coffman of Fairmont, W. Va., Commits Murder.

Seized With Insane Fit After Conducting Revival Services.

Look at Lifeless Body Brought Him to His Senses.

Fairmont, W. Va., May 18.—Temporarily insane, according to his own statement, the Rev. S. A. Coffman, aged 50 years, a prominent Methodist Episcopal clergyman, killed his wife early today by cutting her throat from ear to ear. A moment after the crime, he says, he regained his senses and realized what he had done. He immediately surrendered and was locked up.

Coffman resides at Rosstown, about three miles from here, and is in charge of two or three churches. His wife was a member of a prominent family and was 33 years old. During the past week or two he has been conducting a series of revival services and has been adding to the membership of the churches under his care. Yesterday he finished his revival and appeared to be well pleased with the result. About midnight he and his wife were discussing the services, when he suddenly seized a poker and began striking her over the head.

There was a struggle, during which Mrs. Coffman succeeded in escaping from the house to a garden in the rear. She was followed closely, however, by her husband, and when he caught up with her another battle for her life took place, when she was overpowered. Coffman had taken a knife with him when he followed his wife to the garden, and when he had her powerless in his grasp he cut her throat from ear to ear, causing instant death. According to a statement made by Minister Coffman, when he looked upon the lifeless body of his wife his sanity was immediately restored and he realized what he had done. He then surrendered. He says it had been his intention to kill not only his wife, but also his family and himself.

ALABAMA PRIMARIES

Johnson's Campaign Believed to Have Started Too Late.

North Carolina and Virginia Senators Reported for Johnson.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The opinion is widespread among Democratic politicians in Washington that Governor John A. Johnson's visit to the capital, last week, gave added impetus to his boom for the presidential nomination. It is predicted that the Minnesota governor will gain more strong friends in the party when he returns this week. He is due to reach St. Paul today, and will leave there tonight to keep speaking engagements in Virginia and Alabama, stopping over in Washington on his way South. The most decided advance made by Governor Johnson, was in gaining the support of the North Carolina senators, Simmons and Overman. Neither of them has announced openly that he is for Johnson, but as a result of Johnson's visit both have declared that they are in favor of sending uninstructed delegations to the Denver convention. The significance of the action of the North Carolina senators lies in the fact that their state is supposed to be wildly enthusiastic for Bryan, and the understanding was that Simmons and Overman were restrained from declaring against him only by the knowledge that it might have an unhappy effect upon their political futures.

The Johnson boomers are not alone in active work to prevent Bryan from capturing the nomination. The George Gray political bureau, here, gave out a statement last night, in which it is said that Gray headquarters will be opened today in the Commonwealth hotel in Harrisburg, Pa., in preparation for the Democratic state convention on Wednesday. It is asserted by the Gray boomers that this convention will have much to do with deciding the Democratic nomination for the presidency.

Washington, May 18.—The Democratic primaries in Alabama, to determine the state's choice for the presidential delegation to Washington, are being held today. There is a direct primary law in effect in that state, and all the delegates to Denver will be chosen by the people without any conventions. Two tickets are in the field, one headed by Bryan

PRODIGIOUS AGGREGATE

Appropriations of This Session of Congress Will Exceed a Billion.

Surplus in Treasury Will be Wiped Out by July, 1909.

Washington, May 18.—The sixtieth congress will have earned the title of a "billion dollar congress," at its first session before adjournment is taken at the end of this week. It is estimated that the total appropriations will reach the enormous sum of $1,026,000,000, which is said to be the largest amount ever appropriated at a single session.

The various items contributing to make up this prodigious aggregate are as follows: Sundry civil, $120,000,000; legislative, executive and judicial, $33,000,000; army, $95,382,000; postoffice, $221,765,000; pensions, $163,000; fortifications, $11,500,000; agriculture, $11,642,000; District of Columbia, $11,500,000; diplomatic and consular, $4,000,000; naval, $122,652,000; Indian, $9,000,000; urgent deficiency, $26,000,000; public buildings, $25,000,000; general deficiency, $17,000,000; military academy, new immigrant station at Philadelphia, relief of tornado sufferers in the South, etc., $1,500,000; permanent annual appropriations, $154,000,000.

These appropriations are for the fiscal year which begins July 1, 1908. It is too early to give anything like an accurate estimate of the revenues of the government during that period of twelve months, but members of the appropriation committees think they will run somewhere between $850,000,000 and $900,000,000. This would mean a deficit of between $125,000,000 and $175,000,000. Chairman Tawney of the house committee warned the house last week that the deficit would reach $150,000,000, and if this prediction is fulfilled, the surplus now in the treasury will be wiped out by June 30, 1909, inasmuch as at the end of this fiscal year there will be a deficit of between $60,0000,000 and $65,000,000.

HONORED BY KING HAAKON

Three Leading Norwegian Americans Decorated by Norse Ruler.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—"This is a man!"

With these words, Bishop Anton Christian Bang turned and pointed to the veiled statue of Henrik Wergeland, with outstretched arms and the Norwegian colors, in which it was wrapped, fell, revealing to the thousands present at the Auditorium Sunday afternoon the heroic bronze figure of Norway's most beloved poet.

The occasion was one which has been looked forward to by every Norwegian in the Northwest—the presentation and unveiling of the Wergeland statue, a gift from Normands-Forbunded to the Norsemen on this side of the Atlantic.

After Bishop Bang had delivered the greetings of King Haakon to Norwegians he sprang a surprise by stating that the Norwegian ruler had commissioned him to decorate three leading Norwegian-Americans with the Order of St. Olaf, the highest order in the gift of the king, and which is given only to men who have distinguished themselves in some line of human endeavor. The men honored were Lauritz Larsen, Rev. T. H. Fahl and Prof. Emeritus Sven Oftedal of Augsburg seminary.

BODY FOUND IN CANAL.

Princeton, N. J., May 18.—The body of Miss Bertha Vanderbilt, assistant in the Princeton university library, was found floating in the Raritan canal about a half mile from the Carnegie lake aqueduct this morning.

WIN WITH A LEAKY BOAT

Cruisers Go From Isle Royale to Mainland in Rowboat.

Beat Out Their Rivals for Stone and Timber Claim.

Stewart Edward White would find good material for one of his thrilling stories of the woods in the energy and daring of Bert Marquette and A. Rogers, two Cheboygan, Mich., timber cruisers, who, to beat out rivals for a piece of land, used a leaky rowboat to carry them across the thirty miles of stormy water separating Isle Royale from the north shore of Lake Superior.

Marquette and Rogers were in Duluth waiting for navigation to open, so that they might be the first on the ground. They were passengers on the first steamer out of Duluth for Isle Royale, and had not been on the boat long before they learned that two other men on the same vessel were bound on the same mission. All four had as their object the looking over of a piece of timbered land on Isle Royale, as a preliminary to filing on it as a stone and timber claim.

Isle Royale is in the Marquette, Mich.,

PEARY ASKS FOR $50,000

To Enable Him to Make Another Dash for the Pole.

New York, May 18.—Commander Robert E. Peary, who has been in Washington and has had a special conference with the president, arrived here yesterday. He comes to get, if possible, the $50,000 which will be necessary to take him on his ninth expedition in search of the north pole this summer.

Commander Peary said that he needed $50,000 to make the trip to the pole and while he had assurances that he would get at least a third of that amount he was not at all certain that the remainder would be forthcoming.

"The same financial condition has always existed before my expeditions," he said, "but I have always been hopeful, and shortly before the time came for my departure the necessary funds have come in. I have more confidence now than ever of reaching the north pole. I have given twenty years to the work and have the advantage of that period of experience, and now when success is within reach I hardly think those persons interested in the work will fail to respond."

STRIKERS AT CLEVELAND CUT TROLLEY WIRES AND ATTACK NON-UNION MEN

Many Acts of Lawlessness at Cleveland During the Night.

No Further Attempt to Run Cars to Lakewood Suburb.

Company to be Asked to Arbitrate Difficulties With Men.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 18.—Many acts of lawlessness were committed in connection with the street car strike between midnight and dawn today. Trolley wires were cut, crews were driven from their cars and, in some instances, non-union men were attacked by strike sympathizers. Trolley wires in Lakewood, a western suburb, were cut in several places, with the result that the Municipal Traction company announced this morning that no further attempt would be made to operate cars in that section until the Lakewood authorities guaranteed protection for its men and cars. Because of alleged discrimination against Lakewood by

FARM HAND CONFESSES

That He Killed Shepherds and Servants, According to Rumor.

Authorities Reticent and Will Not Admit Truth of Story.

Matawan, N. J., May 18.—Although the county authorities deny it, there is good reason to believe that Frank Zastera, the Polish farm hand, has made a confession that he killed Mr. and Mrs. William B. Shepherd and their servant, Miss Jennie Bendy who were found murdered in Mr. Shepherd's farm house Saturday morning. Zastera's statement is reported to be to the effect that he killed Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd in order to get the money which he knew Mr. Shepherd had in his possession. According to the story that Zastera is alleged to have told, he waited in the parlor of the house Saturday morning until Mrs. Shepherd came down stairs to warm a bottle of milk for her baby and as she was returning up stairs with the milk shot her in the side and head with her husband's shotgun. At the sound of the shot Shepherd came running down stairs. Zastera was standing in the hall with the gun in his hands, and when Shepherd

TWO KILLED AT CANADIAN SOO

Paper Mill and Power House Are Destroyed by Fire.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 18.—Two men lost their lives and property valued at $350,000 was destroyed by fire today in the plant of the Lake Superior corporation in the Canadian Soo, across the river from this city. The paper mill and powerhouse of the plant were destroyed. Albert E. Walsh, superintendent of the dynamo room, aged 24 years, was shocked to death while trying to extinguish the flames, which were started by a short circuit. Edward Gray, his assistant, aged 24 years, jumped into the canal after his clothing had caught fire while he was fighting the flames, and was drowned. As a result of the destruction of the powerhouse there were no electric cars running today nor electric lights in the city. Loss fully covered by insurance.

BAD FLOODS IN WISCONSIN

Dam Washed Away at Mellen and People Driven From Homes.

Ashland, Wis., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A violent rainstorm swept over Northern Wisconsin last night, the rain falling in floods. Considerable damage will doubtlessly be reported. At Mellen, Ashland county, the dam went out at 4 o'clock this morning. Hundreds of residences in the Italian quarter and near the Foster-Latimer mill were driven from their houses in the darkness by the advancing floods, and cows and other stock were drowned in the barns. Three bridges were swept out, the power house was flooded and the dynamo destroyed. Communication between the two parts of Mellen are cut off. The public schools and mills are shut down and the city will be in darkness several days on account of damage to the lighting plant. The water has receded three feet since 9 o'clock. Families are encamped on the surrounding hills.

ROMAN CATHOLICS OF CITY WARNED TO TAKE NO PART IN POLISH SERVICES

ROBERT E. PEARY,
Famous Arctic Explorer, Who Is Ready to Make Another Dash for the North Pole as Soon as the Sum of $50,000 Can Be Raised for the Expenses of the Trip.

Threatened With Excommunication If They Neglect Order.

St. Josephat Members Pay No Heed to Bishop's Fiat.

Will Dedicate and Occupy New Church Next Sunday.

"May 12th, 1908.

"We hereby notify all Catholics that they are warned under pain of excommunication against taking any part with the excommunicated Poles, who in the face of the rules of the Holy Catholic church, pretend to bless a false church, who employ a pretended bishop to deceive the unfortunate people, who are blindly led by an excommunicated priest.

"JAMES McGOLRICK,
"Bishop of Duluth."

—Notice read in Catholic churches of Duluth yesterday.

Members of St. Josephat Polish Catholic church, the parish which broke away from the supervision of the regularly appointed bishop of the diocese and has maintained an independent stand since its organization in 1907, will dedicate and occupy for the first time their new church at Fifth street and Third avenue east next Sunday, no matter what attitude is taken by the authorities of the Church of Rome.

The communication from Bishop McGolrick, issued yesterday to the communicants of the regular Catholic churches of the diocese, has had no effect on the sentiment of the members or the plans of the independent Polish congregation, according to a statement made today by Joseph Koziarak, a member of the executive committee of St. Josephat parish.

"We are not paying any attention to what Bishop McGolrick says," said Mr. Koziarak. "What he may say counts for no more than what any man may say about us or about our church. The bishop did not give us a square deal and we have established a parish of our own.

"We are not against Rome or the church proper. Some day we hope to be officially recognized by the pope.

SERIOUSLY CRIPPLED

Pittsburg Bank Forced to Close Through Cashier's Misdeeds.

Bank's Shortage Will be in Neighborhood of $2,000,000.

Pittsburg, May 18.—Following meetings lasting all day Sunday, at which a thorough discussion of Cashier William Montgomery's peculations was held, the Allegheny National bank suspended today. The following notice was posted on the door shortly after 9 o'clock by National Bank Examiner William L. Folds:

"Closed by order of the comptroller of the currency, and placed in charge of William L. Folds."

That the bank would not open today was generally stated in the morning papers. For days it has been apparent that the cashier's alleged misdeeds had seriously crippled the institution, and the actual suspension this morning caused little or no excitement. Quite a number of depositors were gathered on Fifth avenue opposite the bank, and when the order of suspension was posted, all read it and then quickly disappeared.

Cashier Montgomery, who is in jail accused of embezzling $400,000 and the abstraction of securities valued at $125,000, will be arraigned in the United States court this afternoon on the first charge.

While Montgomery's peculations are officially placed at $684,000, it is said the bank's shortage is close to $2,000,000. Montgomery is held in $125,000 bail.

COURT CANNOT FORCE MAYOR

Of Chicago to Close Saloons on Sunday, Says Decision.

Chicago, May 18.—The appellate court today affirmed the decision of the lower court in declaring that the mayor of Chicago cannot be forced to close the saloons on Sunday in conformity with the statute. The court, in its decision, says:

"To hold that such power and duty existed would be in effect to turn over the supervision of executive functions to the court, and to confuse all the distinctions and balance of powers supposed to be an admirable characteristic of our system of government."

CASHIER LOST HALF A MILLION IN STOCKS.

Charlton, Iowa, May 18.—It was disclosed today that, in the three or four years preceding his suicide, the late Cashier F. R. Crocker of the defunct First National bank, paid more than half a million dollars to one firm, of Chicago and New York, in his stock trading operations. The greater part of this was during the last few days of his life, when he poured money into the stock market for speculation at the rate of $30,000 to $40,000 daily, in the hope of saving himself.

TO CELEBRATE MASS.

TAFT BACK IN WASHINGTON

Secretary Returns From His Trip to the Isthmus.

Washington, May 18.—Secretary of War Taft returned to Washington from Panama today. The secretary reached Charleston yesterday on the cruiser Prairie and made a brief stop in that city.

Soon after his arrival the secretary went to the White House and talked with the president for half an hour, but did not discuss the results of his trip to the isthmus because of the presence in the executive offices of a large number of visitors who insisted on shaking hands with the secretary and congratulating him on the outlook for his nomination for the presidency. The secretary stated that he would confer with the president tonight and also talk with Secretary Root during the day about the boundary dispute between Columbia and Panama. He declined to discuss this phase of his visit to Panama, but expressed the hope that a solution was in sight.

The secretary has an engagement to speak before the Tennessee Bar association on the 22nd of this month.

MOOSE LAKE HAS BAD FIRE

The Electric Light Plant, Feed and Sawmill Are Destroyed.

Moose Lake, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ehr Bros.' feed and saw mill and the village electric light plant was completely destroyed by fire about 9 o'clock Saturday night. The fire company was on the spot in less than five minutes after the alarm was given, but there was no possible show of saving either the mill or the dynamo. Thousands of feet of lumber, logs, boxwood and ties were piled from the mill to the town and a fresh wind was blowing towards town. A space had to be cleared at once to lessen the danger of the fire, and hundreds of men and boys immediately set to work and a large space was cleared in a short time. Ehr Bros.' loss is estimated at $10,000, with no insurance, and the village losses $1,000. The town will be in darkness until a new dynamo can be installed. The origin of the fire has not yet been determined.

HUNDLEY NOT CONFIRMED.

Washington, May 18.—The announcement of the confirmation of the nomination of United States Judge Hundley for the northern district of Alabama, made on Saturday last, was an error of the executive clerk of the senate. Judge Hundley's nomination has not been confirmed.

D. E. H., 5-18-'08.

Our artist had one of the girls in our store pose for this picture to give you an idea of the

which are sold at The Columbia. The ladies who have seen them are very enthusiastic about these fine Skolny coats. They say that we sell them quite a bit cheaper than the dry goods stores.

We heard one lady telephone from our store, asking her husband to come down and see a coat for their daughter. "I've been all around and these are the best coats," she said. "Prices?" she continued, "why the only difference I can see is that qualties selling here for $10, cost $15 at the other places."

This is a true story. The lady bought two girls' coats from us.

A QUESTION OF THE COST

Council to Consider Matter of Reducing Piedmont Avenue Grade.

Revocation of Korth's Saloon License May Come Up.

The question of who shall stand the expense of reducing the grade on Piedmont avenue, to permit of a street car line extension being built, will probably come up at the meeting of the council this evening. It will be decided whether the city or the property owners in the district affected will stand the cost.

City Engineer McGilvray estimates the cost of the improvement at about $6,000. There is a plan on foot to have the appropriation of $5,000 made for doing away with the point of rocks, or part of it, applied to the Piedmont avenue work. It looks as if the point of rocks appropriation would not be used for the purpose originally intended this year and, as that improvement is in practically the same district as the other, it is thought that everybody interested will be satisfied if the money is spent on Piedmont avenue instead of on the point of rocks.

At present the grade is much too steep to allow the running of street cars along the avenue, but the street railway company has agreed to build an extension as soon as the grade is reduced to a maximum of 7½ per cent, with a smaller percentage than this at the street crossings. The board of public works, in looking up the matter of damages to abutting property from the improvement, has found that there will be no damages assessed against the city because of such damages, the property owners evidently feeling that they can afford to overlook any encroachment upon their lots as long as they get a street car line. They have been trying for years to get the extension, but this spring is the first time they have received any encouragement.

The question of the revocation of the saloon license of Charles Korth, corner of Fifty-first avenue west and Roosevelt street, on the charge of selling liquor to minors, may come up at the meeting tonight. Korth's saloon is where John Ottley, 19 years old, tried to commit suicide last week by drinking poison. Other minors are said to have been drinking with him at the time. The matter of the St. James' bar license will not come up until application for renewal is made next week. It was shown in municipal court Friday that the St. James bar kept open after hours.

City Engineer McGilvray will have a communication read at the council recommending an additional appropriation of $351 to strengthen the new Ramsey street dock against wave action. The approach to the dock is only twelve feet in width, and as it is exposed on the northeast side to the full sweep of waves from off St. Louis bay it is feared that it will suffer considerable damage unless some protection is afforded. The contract price of the dock was $3,035, while the appropriation was $3,200. This leaves $165, and Mr. McGilvray says that this amount, together with an additional appropriation of $351, will be sufficient to place a row of piling from the shore line to the end of the dock on the northeast side as a protection against the waves. He recommends that the piling be allowed to project four feet above the water and that proper capping be provided to hold it together; also that the space between the piling and dock be filled in with slabs obtained from the West Duluth sawmills. It is further recommended that carefully selected refuse from West Duluth be dumped on the west side of the dock, until there is enough of it to form a solid foundation for widening the structure.

The license committee will report against the renewal of the Majestic theater license, it is understood.

CASS LAKE BILL PASSES SENATE

Now Goes to the President for His Signature.

Washington, May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Cass Lake forest bill passed the senate today with the house amendements. It now goes to the president for his signature. The most important feature of the bill is that it provides for opening to homestead entry upwards of 70,000 acres of agricultural land, near Cass Lake. It is provided that Indians having allotments within the reservation may exchange them for lands elsewhere.

CIVIL CASES NOW ON TRIAL

Jury is Drawn on Another Personal Injury Case.

Trial of the personal injury case of John Blume against the Dumas-Backus Lumber company was begun in Judge Ensign's room this morning, after the court had imposed sentences on several persons who had been indicted by the grand jury.

The damage case of Henry Peterson against the Lantry Construction company is still on trial in Courtroom No. 2, and the civil case of Charles Elg against the Duluth Grain & Produce company is being tried in Room No. 3. The latter case embodies an alleged breach of contract relative to some potatoes that the produce company is said to have sold for Elg.

WORK OR GO TO THE "PEN"

Paroled Convict Unable to Keep Requirements of Pardon.

Makes an Appeal to the Herald To Aid Him.

Paroled from the state penitentiary after serving a sentence of twelve years, James Rowe faces the possibility of being forced to return there because he cannot get work.

Rowe was sentenced to the state penitentiary for assault in the first degree, from Duluth, nearly thirteen years ago. He was released last August, and for a time had steady employment. Weakened by his long confinement, however, he is unable to perform heavy manual labor. Under the terms of his parole he is called upon to work steadily and live a sober and industrious life. The first requirements he is unable to fulfill for the reason that he can secure no work which he is able to perform.

He visited the Herald office this morning and asked that assistance be given him in securing employment.

"I don't want to go back there," he said. "I am afraid that if I don't find work soon I will be arrested and sent back. I am supposed to work and I want to work, but I have been unable to find anything I can do."

Rowe's claim that he was unable to stand hard manual labor was plainly the truth. The man is broken down by his long confinement. He is weak and haggard looking, and hard manual labor would undoubtedly prove too much for him.

He showed his parole papers properly made out.

"Several Duluth people have tried to help me," he said, "but they have been unable to do anything for me. Perhaps some of The Herald readers might have work they could give me. I have no money to pay for an advertisement."

Bloomington, Ill., May 18.—A second effort to break the will of the eccentric Col. Tom Snell, a millionaire, who cut off his only son with $50 a year, began today in the DeWitt county circuit court, with a new jurist, Judge Solon Philbrick on the bench. The presence of a new judge is an important feature of the case. The former judge, W. D. RAILROADS

ONE RIFT IN THE CLOUDS

Passenger Business Fairly Good on the Northwestern Railroads.

Freight Conditions at Head of Lakes at Standstill.

While the Duluth freight officials are sitting in the rear of their respective offices with a deep look of gloom overspreading their clear cut countenances, the chipper passenger officials are standing attention in the front precincts of the same offices, congratulating themselves upon what a good business is being done despite the slump in general traffic receipts.

Right at the present time the freight business at the Head of the Lakes is at a standstill. A prominent Great Northern official said this morning, "nothing doing," which in two words sums up the local freight situation.

None of the commodities that bring large freight revenues, are moving just at the present time. Coal is not moving, and there is not sufficient ore being hauled at the present time to boost the freight receipts materially. There is practically no lumber traffic in sight and it will be some time before the movement of wheat begins to swell the revenues of the roads.

The Great Northern is hauling about 150 cars of ore a day, which figure is far below what that road was doing a year ago at this time. The Duluth, Missabe & Northern is in the same class as far as the hauling of ore is concerned. There is a light traffic of ore on the latter road at the present time, but it cannot be compared to the movement that was on at a similar period a year ago.

But the passenger business is the silver lining. Both the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific are doing a rushing passenger business. People are not waiting until after the presidential nominations to travel.

The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic is also doing a good passenger business. Attractive rates to the East have been the means of boosting the business of that road, which has remained uniformly steady during the winter and spring months.

The Northwestern officials are not complaining of the passenger business, but they will tell you, like the officials of other roads, that the freight business is very poor.

But it is in the freight department that the money is made, so that taken as a whole the railroad men are far from satisfied with the general railroad situation.

ONE BRIDGE LEFT.

Great Care Taken to Avoid Accident to Grassy Point Structure.

Northern Pacific passenger officials have ordered that a close watch be kept on the Grassy Point bridge, as they are apprehensive at least some boats should bump into the bridge and put it out of commission. Since the Rice's Point structure was put out of commission by being struck by a steamer, the Northern Pacific has been handling about forty trains a day between Duluth and Superior over the Grassy Point bridge If the bridge should be impaired, traffic would be tied up and the passenger officials are consequently nervous as to any possible damage that may result to the structure.

Rates to Solon Springs.

A rate of $12.50 for a book of twenty-five rides, covering the points between Solon Springs, Wis., and Superior, has been made by the Northwestern road. It is probable that a rate from Duluth to Solon Springs will be made within a month. The probable fare between Duluth and Solon Springs for a twenty-five ride book will be $16.50.

The notice of the Wisconsin rate was posted by the Northwestern Saturday. State business requires that only a notice of three days shall be given before a rate can become effective, while interstate business is required to have a notice of thirty days before the posted rate can go into effect.

MINING IS RESUMED

Mining Man Reports Activity in Butte and Idaho.

Association Formed to Protect the Small Copper Investors.

J. C. McLean of Spokane, a prominent mining man of the Coeur d'Alene districts of Idaho, is at the St. Louis today. Mr. McLean is in Duluth on business in connection with his holdings in the Northern Idaho mining district.

In speaking about the Butte copper situation, Mr. McLean says that the copper mines of Butte are again working at almost full capacity. The small surplus of copper on the market, which Mr. McLean states is 54,000,000 pounds, he says, is reponsible for the resumption of activity on the part of the Butte mines as well as of the mines of the Coeur d'Alene districts.

"As a consequence of the opening of the mines, Butte has taken on an appearance of prosperity," says Mr. McLean. "The demand for copper is again resuming a normal tone, which will result in more brisk and healthy operations."

In speaking of the copper slump, Mr. McLean lays the blame to the exploitation and the stock jobbing of the Wall street operators. He says they have by their methods begotten a feeling of distrust on the part of the small buyer, which was mainly responsible for the slump in stock prices.

As a result of some of the exposures, Mr. McLean says an association has been formed in Spokane whose function is to investigate claims thoroughly with a view of giving the result of its acquired information. If, on the other hand, the claims are shown to be fair, the investor is told of the legitimacy of the claim.

The Coeur d'Alene mines are in healthy operation, according to Mr. McLean, and operations in the Idaho group are proceeding on a heavy scale of development.

Mr. McLean is most enthusiastic over the prospects of fruit raising in the section of country contiguous to Spokane. Here he says men have cleared a profit of 20 per cent on an investment of $2,000. Many German farmers from the fruit growing section of Michigan have gone to Washington and are delighted by the results achieved.

While Seattle, Tacoma and Portland in a lesser degree, have felt the evil results of the money stringency, Mr. McLean states that Spokane is in a most healthy financial condition, owing to the prosperity of the farmers of that section of country.

Mr. McLean was one of the men who was instrumental in building the old Montana Central to Butte. He has been engaged in railroad and mining operations in the Western country for the past twenty years. This is his first visit to Duluth, which he says is widely known as a great industrial center in the mining camps of the West. He says that many former Duluth men are in the Couer d'Alene district and most of them are doing well. Mr. McLean will be in Duluth for two or three days.

In Honor of Bishops Held by Methodist Conference.

Ways for Church Advancing Peace Cause Pointed Out.

Baltimore, Md., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Memorial services in honor of the bishops and officers of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church who have died during the past quadrennium, occupied the greater portion of today's sitting of the general conference.

A report from the committee on the state of the church on international peace was read and adopted unanimously. It reviewed briefly the things accomplished by the two international conferences held at The Hague and pointed out ways in which the church could advance the cause of peace.

Presiding elders will be required to visit each charge at least two Sundays in each year and preach twice at least on Sunday in every church, if a resolution submitted by Dr. R. J. Cooke becomes a law of the church. The resolution is likely to pass and will help the small churches, which scarcely ever have the presiding elder on Sunday to preach.

Speaking at the Woman's Foreign Missionary society anniversary in Lyric hall, Mrs. C. W. Barnes, secretary of the executive committee, gave a high tribute to the late Mrs. Carrie W. Joyce, wife of the late Bishop Isaac W. Joyce of Minneapolis. There were about 1500 persons present, including Bishops Warne, Oliham, Hartzell, Scott, Thoburn, Basford and others. Mrs Barnes said:

"Mrs. Carrie W. Joyce was called to her reward September 27, 1907. The missionary work ever claimed her support, and in her various homes as an itinerant's wife, she aroused enthusiasm for this, which seemed to her 'the greatest work of the ages.' She became familiar with the needs of our mission stations while accompanying her husband on his episcopal tours. She served the Minneapolis branch as its president, and at the time of her translation had been its corresponding secretary for six years. She found and placed fifteen missionaries, and was wont to say 'I have done what I could and now I leave it with Him.' Her associates will never forget her intense interest in Malaysia. 'The center of her work was her Christian character.' 'Her very presence was a benediction to all who were with her.'"

Methodists in Minnesota all knew Mrs. Joyce of Minneapolis, and this eulogy at the general conference is befitting the woman who did great work for foreign missions.

In regard to Miss Anna Stone, sent out and educated by the Minneapolis branch, Mrs. Barnes also spoke, saying: "Anna Stone, a young Chinese student, spent several years in America, in preparation for her life work. In 1904, under the care of the Minneapolis branch, she returned to her native land and began her work in Kiu Kiang. Her loving Christian character and her beautiful voice opened all hearts to her message. Her service was but a short one, for on March 14, 1906, she realized the truth of the hymn she had so often sung, 'I shall see Him face to face.'"

The Duluth branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society is part of this branch, which shared in the sending out of Miss Stone, who was well known throughout Minnesota.

AMERICANS INTERESTED.

Resources of Peru Being Developed by Outside Capital.

R. A. Harrington of Los Angeles, who was at the McKay Sunday, states that American capital is being employed to open up the resources of Peru, South America. The mining interests are largely controlled by American capital, for the simple reason that the natives have not the money with which to develop the resources of their country.

Mr. Harrison states that only a beginning has been made in developing the immense mineral resources of the country. The development has been retarded by lack of capital in the country, but now that American promoters and financiers have become interested in the mineral deposits, a speedy development of the great natural resources of the country may be looked for.

THE DOCTOR says "drink beer" to the weak and the convalescent. To those who need strength—need a food and a tonic. If it is good for them, isn't it good for you?

The virtue of beer does not lie in the alcohol. There is only 3½ per cent. of that.

It lies in the malted barley—a digested food. And in the hops—a tonic and an aid to sleep.

It lies, too, in the fact that the drinking of beer flushes the system of waste. So would water, of course, if one drank enough of it. But you don't drink water like beer.

When beer is pure there is nothing more healthful. And Schlitz beer is pure. It brings no after-effects, no biliousness.

But better go without beer than to drink the wrong beer. That is why the Doctor generally says "Drink Schlitz."

Ask for the Brewery Bottling.
Common beer is sometimes substituted for Schlitz.
To avoid being imposed upon, see that the cork or crown is branded Schlitz.

COPPERS IN GOOD BULGE

Share Market Has a Good Advance During the Day.

Important Concessions Are Made to the Greene-Consolidated.

Copper stocks had a good bulge today. The market opened firm and on a good demand for all the leaders, advanced steadily until the close, which was about a point over Saturday's. The strength of the New York market helped the coppers.

North Butte opened at $65, declined to $64.87½, reacted to $66.25 and closed at $65.75 bid and $66 asked. Amalgamated opened at $67.87½, advanced to $69.50 and closed at $69.37½ bid.

Greene-Cananea opened at $9.37½, advanced to $10.12½ and closed at $9.87½ bid and $10 asked. Butte Coalition opened at $25, declined to $24.62½ and closed at $24.75 bid and $25 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $111.50, advanced to $112 and closed at $112 bid and $112.25 asked. Anaconda opened at $45.25, declined to $44.75, rallied to $46.12½ and closed at $45.75 bid.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $13 and closed at $13 bid and $13.12½ asked. Globe sold at $6.87½, advanced to $7.25 and closed at $7 bid and $7.12½ asked; Calumet & Sonora at $8.12½ and $8 and closed at $8 bid and $8.12½ asked; Butte & Superior at $1.25 and closed at $1.12½ bid and $1.25 asked, and Copper Queen of Idaho at $1 and closed at $1 bid and $1.12½ asked.

Denn-Arizona was inactive and closed $2.87½ bid and $3 asked.

Black Mountain sold at $4.50 and closed at $4.25 bid and $4.50 asked.

According to an agreement filed in the county recorder's office at Bisbee, Ariz., Martin Costello has granted an extension of time on the option held by the Calumet & Arizona Mining company, in the name of L. W. Powell, on the Casey group of mining claims in the Turquoise mining district, and which group adjoins the Leadville group, which was recently under bond to the company and was allowed to expire. According to the agreement the original bond called for the payment of $150,000, on which the sum of $15,000 has already been paid. The time has been extended from September until March 30 of next year, but provides that the sum of $35,000 shall be paid on or before the 30th of September of this year, and the balance, $100,000, to be paid on or before the 30th of March, 1909.

According to the instruments placed on file in the county recorder's office at Tombstone, Ariz., the Denn Mining company has made the final payments on the mining properties that they have had tied up in escrow agreement since 1905. The deeds placed on file show that Maurice Denn and wife have conveyed to the company all of their interest in the following mining claims: Admiral Dewey, Buzzard, Cottontail, Xenia, Ducky O'Neil No. 2, Orleans, Examiner, Robert E. Lee, Triangle and William. The consideration is placed at the sum of $228,189. As administrator of the estate of Mary E. Denn, Mr. Denn states he has sold the York State. The consideration is given at $40,440. Joseph Muheim and wife conveyed the Ophir, the consideration being placed at $24,012.

W. D. Thornton, president of the Greene Consolidated Copper company, has just returned from Mexico, where he has made an extended examination of the properties.

It is learned from officials of the company that two important concessions have been secured from the Mexican government. The first is that the company has been relieved from the payment of an export tax on copper metal and copper ore and can for the next twenty years export these products free of duty. Heretofore this tax has amounted to a very considerable sum. The other concession is that the company is given the right to import fuel oil free of duty. The tax now is $2 a barrel. With this burden removed the company can use oil in place of lignite coal for generating power and operating its reverberatory furnaces.

The work on the new mill plant is being pushed energetically and it is expected that it will be completed within the next month or six weeks. The new plant will have a capacity of 3,000 tons of ore a day, whereas the old plant could handle only about 2,000 tons. Moreover, the new plant is modern in all respects and can be operated very much cheaper than the old one, and while its output is fully one-third larger, its pay roll will be considerably less.

Walker's Copper Letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial said:

"Copper is a trifle stronger, but no considerable improvement is reported yet. Lake is 13 to 13¼ cents and electrolytic 12⅞ to 13 cents. The sharp advance in the stock market has stimulated a little new buying. Notwithstanding easy money and the improving outlook for a larger volume of business later on, American consumers are not buying copper in large quantities. There is every reason to expect that they will come into the market all together a little later on, and pay one or two cents per pound more than current prices.

"There is a decided revival of interest in electrical equipment in steam railroad circles. It may be said that there is a quite general movement in favor of equipping large railroad terminals with electric traction. It is estimated that the real estate of the New York Central in New York city will be worth $50,000,000 more after the soft coal smoke is eliminated through the introduction of electricity, as it will permit of the erection of large office buildings close to the tracks. The same is true in a measure of the terminal properties of the several trunk lines in the various big cities of the country. There is every reason to believe that electrical advancement will strike an even more rapid pace during the coming five years than it has maintained during the past decade. The outlook for the metal market, therefore, is exceedingly bright. I expect the price of copper to reach 15 cents again this year.

Hayden, Stone & Co., in their weekly copper letter, have the following to say of North Butte:

"North Butte is again asserting itself as the favorite mining stock traded in on the Boston stock exchange. True, its decline following the break in the metal market was proportionately greater than any of the dividend payers; but, on the other hand, this now holds true of its recovery. It was not until this year that a broad distribution was witnessed of the shares of this company, a fact that heretofore operated to its disadvantage from a market standpoint.

"North Butte is strong because of its constantly improving physical condition and ability to produce and market copper at a cost of less than 7½c per pound.

"While copper ruled abnormally high, the company drew largely upon its low-grade ores in the upper levels, and pushed development work in the richer zone, notably at the 1,600 and 1,800-foot levels, where there is now available on the Edith May and Jessie veins an ore tonnage sufficient to maintain the current rate of production for about four years.

"At the 1,800-foot level the Edith May vein is developed to a length of 1,000 feet. The formation shows a width, varying from twelve to fifteen feet, while the average assay value of its copper contents is about 9 per cent. At a distance of 500 feet west of this opening the vein in question has been intercepted with favorable results by a cross-cut, extended from the Diamond workings of the Amalgamated, in consequence of which the belief obtains that it will ultimately be found to possess commercial values on the lands of the North Butte for a length of 2,000 feet. Cross-cuts are now being extended to the vein from the 2,000 and 2,200-foot levels, the developments at which will be highly important in their bearing.

"The new contract of the North Butte with the Washoe smelters becomes effective June 1, when the smelting costs will suffer a reduction of about 50c per ton, which is equal to a daily saving of approximately $600.

"It may be interesting to note that the monthly silver recovery of this company amounts to $80,000, with gold values of $4,500, making a total of $84,500, which is more than half of the entire expenditures for labor and supplies. It is not surprising therefore, that, with a copper recovery of approximately 100 pounds per ton, costs show favorably and second only to those of Utah Consolidated, the ores of which contain gold values amounting to about $6 per ton.

"The North Butte has closed its era of abnormal developments and heavy expenditures for new construction, while the drain upon its resources for recently acquired claims is at an end. Thus fortified and considering that the 1,800-foot level, likewise the territory beneath, promises to show continuous values for the entire length of its tract, it is but fair to state that in most respects this company occupies a stronger position, and one affording broader promise than at any time in its career."

"QUALITY PIONEERS"

A Dress Goods Shower

Heavy spring selling has left us with hundreds upon hundreds of "shorts," pieces averaging from 7 to 15 yards of the finest fabrics, in the most desirable shades. These have been assembled and go on our sale tables tomorrow at rare price concessions.

Three Big Special Lots

REMEMBER—We are Dress Goods headquarters, carrying the most complete assortments in this section.

The first lot contains the really choice things, beautiful spring Suitings, imported plain and fancy Serges, Taffetas, Voiles, rich Broadcloths, etc., from 42 to 54 inches wide, the finest fabrics and colors of the season, in values up to $1.50 the yard—choice 95c.

The second lot is composed of lengths of plain and fancy Suitings, Serges, Batistes and Taffetas, the choicest of the season's best weaves and shades, in regular $1.00 values—choice 69c yard.

Lot 3 is made up from regular lines selling at 50c and 60c the yard. Fancy Suitings in popular stripes, checks and plaids, all the very latest colorings—choice 39c the yard.

This sale gives thrifty buyers an early season opportunity seldom offered. There will be busy selling here tomorrow from the opening of business. Dressmakers are specially invited to inspect these values.

Fashionable Suits Underpriced

Are you letting these low price opportunities now being offered slip away from you without taking advantage of them? The rapidity with which these odd lots disappear would indicate that for intrinsic value they cannot be reproduced. Bear in mind that these suits cannot be replaced later on—that you are now sharing in price reductions at a time when you are anxious to select a suit. We are gradually diminishing these broken lines and tomorrow we make some wonderfully interesting figures on more of these special lots—a glance at the figures first—then a look at the suits tomorrow.

$17.50 FOR SUIT VALUES THAT WERE $25.00.
$25.00 FOR SUITS THAT SOLD UP TO $40.00.
$35.00 FOR SUITS SELLING UP TO $50.00.

These values are the best we have had to offer thus early in many seasons. It's the gratifying result of the greatest spring business in our history, combined with our system of cutting out all broken lines just as soon as a regular line becomes incomplete. All are the latest fashions, distinguisht styles, that will please the most critical—your size is here—depend on that.

ABOUT YOUR FURS.
Let us care for them thru the summer. Don't risk moths, heat, burglary and fire when you can store them in our fur storage vaults at small cost, including insurance. A 'phone message will bring our wagon to your home. Call us up tomorrow.

Don't Want Theater.

A delegation of West end citizens will probably be present at the council meeting this evening to protest against a license being granted to the Majestic theater, which they claim is a menace to the morals of the young people of the community.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE TO LOUISIANA LEGISLATURE.

Baton Rouge, La., May 18.—Race track gambling to be suppressed absolutely; and local option, combined with high license, to regulate the liquor traffic, were two of the most salient recommendations of Governor J. Y. Sanders' inaugural message to the legislature today.

Miss Julia Donovan,

With the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury, will give a song recital at the Lyceum, next Thursday evening. Seats now on sale.

Ran Away From Home.

The police are on the lookout for Walter Sherman, 13 years of age, who ran away from his home at Clinton, Minn., supposedly in company with Irwin Turner. He is described as being of slender build, dark complexion, black hair, with a scar on the left cheek.

The Dog Licenses.

The police department probably will be asked to do what it can to make dog owners take out licenses for the animals. There are thought to be over 2,000 canines in the city which should be licensed, but up to the present time only 568 licenses have been issued, although the date for taking them out was May 1.

Returns From the East.

Probate Judge J. B. Middlecoff returned this morning from a ten days' pleasure and business trip in the East, during which time he visited Washington and other eastern cities. During Judge Middlecoff's absence Probate Judge Lawrence of Lake county has been looking after court matters here.

Kept Daughter From School.

John Olsen, aged 54 years, a resident of Eveleth was brought down from the range this morning to serve a twenty-day sentence for refusal to send his 13-year-old daughter to school. Olsen has six children, one of whom is married. The idea of remaining a score of days in jail did not seem to have any terrors to Olsen and he entered the jail smilingly.

Committee Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the committees in charge of the Adams school alumni banquet at the school tomorrow evening.

Question Club Meets.

The meeting of the Question club yesterday afternoon was a short one. It was not called until after the gathering of Christian Scientists at the Lyceum had adjourned. Mrs. Eddy and her methods were discussed and freely criticised.

COUNTY PAYS LARGE AWARD

The treasurer of St. Louis county today paid to Mrs. Electra Spalding a check for $51,527.10, the award of the appraisers in the condemnation proceedings against her property on the corner of Fifth avenue west and Second street. The check is the first paid under the proceedings and is the largest paid to any one individual by the county for many years.

SHARP CONTEST

Likely to Occur in State Convention of California Democrats.

Fresno, Cal., May 18.—Indications point to a sharp contest for the temporary chairmanship of the state Democratic convention which met today. Mayor A. C. Harper of Los Angeles has been put forward by the Southern delegation and has the support of the organization or McNab faction in the party, while the country delegates have centered upon State Senator J. B. Sanford of Mendocino county to preside at the convention. Sentiment among the delegates favors a delegation instructed for William J. Bryan for president.

MAY REDEEM LANDS.

Washington, May 18.—The house today under suspension of the rules passed a bill allowing the state of Idaho to reclaim 1,000,000 acres of land belonging to the public domain.

FOUGHT FOR THE PRIZE

Discarded Cot on Dock is Used for a Bed.

Duluth's Idle Men Make Rendezvous on Water Front.

Down at the foot of the Northern Pacific dock, at the foot of Sixth avenue west, beside the tug office, is an old cot that has been thrown away by some person who had no further use for it.

Last night two of Duluth's small and diminishing army of idle workmen fought for its possession. It stands under the lee of a big warehouse and a man can snooze very comfortably there with a covering of newspapers to keep off the wind, especially on a warm night like last night.

It was a prize to the man out of a job and penniless. One man spotted it Saturday night and occupied it. Last night he had a contender for his comfortable berth. The newcomer was the stronger and he slept there last night under his pile of papers. This morning he arose, shook himself, bummed a cup of coffee from the cook of one of the tugs and headed for town.

With the coming of warm weather, idle men are making the docks their headquarters. This year it is true, more so than ever, and every bright day finds the docks and lumber piles lined with idlers.

Men who work about the docks say that every morning from ten to twenty men emerge from vacant box-cars and the warehouses, where they have been sleeping all night, and besiege the cooks on the boats and tugs for breakfasts. The tugmen say that more men have tried to bum meals from their larders this spring than ever before.

Yesterday was bright and warm on the waterfront in sheltered spots from the wind, and there lay scores of men, with their hats pulled down over their eyes to keep out the sun, in apparently contented idleness. At night they seek the railroad yards for a free night's lodging in the box-cars standing there, or, if they are fortunate enough to get into a warehouse, they camp there for the night.

JUDGE HANDS OUT SENTENCES

Two Youths Go to Reformatory and One to Penitentiary.

Judge Ensign this morning handed out sentences to three prisoners, who were indicted by the grand jury, now in session.

Andrew Halgberg, who entered a plea of guilty to a burglary charge, was given two years in the state penitentiary at Stillwater. Halgberg was caught by Officers Gillen and Bradley, trying to break open the safe in Forest & LeTourneau's saloon.

John McDougall and William Devaney, two young men, each 20 years of age, were given reformatory sentences. McDougall and Devaney pleaded guilty to grand larceny charges. It is claimed that they stole a rug from the office of Dr. Park and a couch from the office of Dr. D. D. Murray, boldly entering the offices in daylight and carting the stuff away.

THEIR DAY OF FREEDOM

Norwegians Observe Independence Day With Appropriate Exercises.

Program at the Armory Enjoyed by Large Crowd.

Yesterday, the 17th of May, was Norway's independence day and it was fittingly observed and commemorated by thousands of Norwegians in Duluth and surrounding towns.

The celebrants, now patriotic citizens of the United States, retain a great love for the fatherland, which found expression in the exercises which were held at the Armory yesterday afternoon and the banquet which took place in the St. Louis cafe in the evening.

There were other private celebrations yesterday and Saturday evening, the Viking club of Duluth gave an elaborate program and dance in Columbia hall in the West end.

In the local churches where Norwegian is largely spoken, the services took on a patriotic significance. At some of them the American and Norwegian flags were draped together.

Many people came from Cloquet, Two Harbors and the range towns to attend the exercises held here under the auspices of the two local lodges of the Sons of Norway.

The program given at the Armory in the afternoon was enjoyed by fully 2,000 Norwegian-Americans and the speeches they heard made them proud of the land of their nativity. Norwegian explorers, poets, painter and politicians were extolled and Norwegian principles of patriotism and progress were praised.

B. B. Haugen Is Orator.

Congressman Halvor Steenerson of Crookston was to have been present to deliver the principal address of the day. The stress of national business at Washington, however, made it impossible for him to get here, so B. B. Haugan of this city acted as orator of the day.

Alderman John J. Moe of the Seventh

J. J. MOE,
Master of Ceremonies.

ward acted as master of ceremonies. Mr. Moe, in his address, spoke of the high quality of the patriotism which stirred Norwegian breasts, not only for the beloved Norway across the sea, but for the United States, which so many Scandinavians have adopted as their new home.

Mr. Haugan spoke of the accomplishments of Norway and her people. He told of the part they played in the earlier times; of what the sturdy Vikings, sons of Odin and Thor, did for posterity. He mentioned the important part that Norway has played in the promulgation of the Christian religion and in literature.

Mr. Haugan was chairman of the executive committee of the Sons of Norway which had all the arrangements for the program in charge, and he was to have acted as chairman, so the deliverance of the principal address was a distinction thrust upon him at the last moment, as it was confidently expected that Congressman Steenerson would be able to be here.

Rev. H. K. Madsen, pastor of the First Norwegian-Danish Methodist church in the West end, delivered an interesting history of the independence of Norway and the difficulties which beset the nation until that happy state of affairs was brought about. His topic was "Norway and Its Independence."

Mr. Madsen dealt upon the earlier struggles of the Norsemen and of their triumph today, when they are one of the foremost races of the globe. Mr. Madsen also spoke of the progress that has been made during the past centuries by the people of Norway and the part they have played in the advancement of the best type of civilization.

Flaaten's orchestra played several selections and the Normanna male chorus, which captured the Carlson trophy in a recent contest with the Svea Glee club, sang two of the selections it gave during that vocal encounter, one of them being the grand "Olaf Trygvasson." Miss Freida Wennas gave a vocal solo and Miss Laura Frankenfield, who is a student of Ibsen and has appeared in some of his plays, read one act of "Peer Gynt." M. L. Hostager of Cloquet gave a vocal solo.

A program at the Armory was concluded with the singing of "America" by the entire assemblage.

About 200 people sat down to the banquet at the St. Louis cafe at 9 o'clock. John J. Moe was toastmaster and the opening address was given by Mrs. Moe.

A number of toasts were responded to. J. Nordheim spoke on "The Sons of Norway," B. B. Haugan on "America;" Dr. Haugan of Fergus Falls, on "Duluth," and Rev. H. K. Madsen on "Norway and the Seventeenth of May." H. Bjorgen gave an impromptu talk which was much enjoyed.

J. C. Wesenberg acted as master of ceremonies at the celebration given at Columbia hall, in the West end Saturday evening by the Viking club. H. B. Knudsen was to have presided, but illness prevented him from attending the function.

Mr. Wesenberg, in his opening address, said that "by paying respects to Norway, our fatherland, we are made better citizens of the United States." A number of other talks were given, after which the floor was cleared and a dancing program enjoyed.

CLAY CLEMENT HAS HIS TROUBLES

Ghost Didn't Walk and "Hamlet" Had to be Abandoned.

Clay Clement found it expedient to change his program Saturday afternoon and repeat the production of "The New Dominion," instead of putting on the advertised production of "Hamlet."

Under the circumstances it was a pity that Mr. Clement should have been deprived of the opportunity of playing the melancholy Dane. It was the psychological moment to reach to depths of the moroseness and deep melancholy of the prince who hailed from the same country as did Battling Nelson's forebears.

Mr. Clements company was in difficulties—some of its members in open revolt—so Mr. Clement might have played the brooding one as he never had played it before.

The troubles of the Clay Clement company culminated in Duluth. It had played to two-figure houses in the Copper Country and was in difficulty there. It was expected that Duluth would furnish a large house and many shekels.

Friday night William Conklin and his better half played the first act through, sized up the house through the "look-out" hole in the curtain and decided that the time was propitious to strike for the lump of back salary that was due them. They hadn't the time right, however, for they didn't get the salary.

William Chapman, a former member of the Mack-Leone company, was pressed into service and filled the role abandoned by Conklin. Mr. Conklin's wife is a decided brunette, but this little matter of difference in looks didn't prevent the understudy, who has sun-kissed tresses and who doesn't look like Mrs. Conklin in any particular, from going on and playing the mountain maid during the remainder of the performance. Mary D. McFadden also made her debut.

The desertion of these two members of his company is the reason why Mr. Clement didn't attempt "Hamlet" Saturday afternoon. Mr. Chapman and the understudy didn't feel just as if they knew the lines of "Hamlet" letter perfect, which, in stage parlance, means well, and the opportunity for Mr. Clement to sound unexplored depths in the moody nature of the melancholy Dane was lost.

Photographing Mars.

No fewer than 7,000 photographs of the planet Mars were taken by the expedition sent out under Prof. Todd to the Andes, and this achievement is a remarkable one in the annals of astronomy. There are few people, indeed, in our modern times, who do not recognize the value of a good malt tonic such as golden grain belt beer. Have it on the home table and enjoy its benefits. GRAND JURY HAS TWO DAYS' REST

Will Consider No More Criminal Matters Until Wednesday.

The grand jury will not meet again until Wednesday morning. The jurors finished the work that was before them Friday evening and the county attorney will not have the desired evidence in the cases remaining to be considered before Wednesday.

The first of the criminal cases will be called Thursday morning. The criminal calendar is a heavy one, including two murder trials.

TO ATTEND REUNION.

Ashland, Wis., May 18.—William Chapple left today for Vicksburg, Mississippi, to attend the reunion of his regiment. His brother, Harry, will meet him at Chicago and accompany him to Vicksburg, and also to Little Rock, Arkansas, where they will visit another brother.

TAKEN TO MINNEAPOLIS.

Suspect Not Wanted in Duluth After Being Brought Here.

Fred Sands, alias Sidney Dahl, is being rushed back and forth between Duluth and the Twin Cities by the police.

Sand was arrested in Minneapolis while trying to sell some silverware bearing the mark of the Kelley-How-Thomson company. He was sent to Duluth to be tried, but it later developed that the silver had been stolen from a car at Hopkins, Minn., and he will have to be taken back there for trial.

WILL STAND TRIAL.

Matich Brothers Plead Not Guilty to Murder Charge.

Eli and David Matich will stand trial for murder.

They were arraigned in the district court this morning on the charge, and entered pleas of not guilty. Capt. C. C. Teare was appointed to defend them.

It Reached the Spot.

Mr. E. Humphrey, who owns a large general store at Omega, Ohio, and is president of the Adams County Telephone company, as well as of the Home Telephone company of Pike county, Ohio, says of Dr. King's New Discovery: "It saved my life once. At least I think it did. It seemed to reach the spot—the very seat of my cough,—when everything else failed." Dr. King's New Discovery not only reaches the cough spot; it heals the sore spots and the weak spots in throat, lungs and chest. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

WASHBURN ELECTS TEACHERS.

Washburn, Wis., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—S. A. Oscar has been re-elected superintendent of the public schools of Washburn and the following sixteen teachers have been re-elected: Mathilda Dyrud, Bessie Pettigrew, Mary Bullock, Eliza Fleth, Naomi Morrow, Olga Larson, Pearl McCarty, Mrs. Agnes Marion, Jennie Williams, Lyla Willey, Loretta McDonald, Elizabeth Yates, Bessie Black, Bertha Porter, Margaret Maloney and Cora Caruthers.

FARGO RESCUE HOME.

Fargo, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles M. Crittenden will soon be in control of the rescue home, which has been conducted in this city for some years by the W. C. T. U. The organization decided at its last state meeting to make the change, and Miss Poppin, a representative of the New York philanthropist, is here to arrange for the transfer. A local board will be selected.

COLLEGE AWARDS LARGE CONTRACT

Houghton Contractor to Build Museum and Library This Year.

Houghton, Mich., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Herman Gundlach, a Houghton contractor, has been awarded the contract to erect the new museum and library building for the Michigan College of Mines, appropriation for which was made a year ago by the Michigan legislature. Mr. Gundlach's bid came within the $50,000 allowed by the board, but it will be a few days before the exact figures are determined upon, as there are a few minor matters to arrange.

The new library and mineralogical building will be of paving brick, known as the wire-cut dark Colonial brand, being a vitrified brick, and Portage Entry sandstone will be used in the foundation and for the trimmings. There will be a considerable amount of cut stone used in the new building, in fact more than in any other building at the college, and in this respect the new structure will be somewhat different from the others that go to make up the group.

The contract entered into with Mr. Gundlach calls for the completion of the structure by January 1, 1909. The $50,000 does not include heating or electric lighting, but simply the bare completion of the building.

MAD MAN'S AWFUL ACT.

Fatally Wounds Two Relatives, Then Kills Himself.

Wausau, Wis., May 18.—In a fit of insanity Saturday night, Albert Milbauer tried to kill everybody within his view and then ended his own life. His victims are: Mrs. Hannah Milbauer, his wife, shot through the right lung, will die; Mrs. Nettie Oddette, shot in forehead, will die; Mrs. Fred Burnett, middle finger of right hand shot off, will recover. Milbauer also fired at Richard Odette, aged 20, son of Mrs. Nettie Oddette, but the bullet only grazed his neck.

PERISHES ON LOG DRIVE.

Former Grand Marais Man Loses Life in Canada.

Grand Marais, Minn., May 15.—(Special Correspondence.)—Word has just been received here of the drowning of Louis Vizena at Thessalon, Can., a few days ago. He was working on a drive at the time of the accident. While riding a log in midstream, he took out his watch to see the time of day and accidentally dropped it into the water. As he grabbed for his vanishing timepiece another log bunted the one he was riding, throwing him off into the stream, with the result stated. His body was found later covered by only six inches of water.

Deceased resided in and about Grand Marais for several years. He was a manly young man, of sober and industrious habits, and the news of his tragic death is sincerely regretted by this community, for he was highly esteemed by all.

GRAND FORKS CELEBRATING.

North Dakota City is Observing Norway's National Day.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grand Forks is thronged with visitors today to attend the celebration of Norway's natal day. Incoming trains last night and this morning from many sections of the state to join in the great celebration. The steamboat made a special trip up Red River Sunday as far as Oslo, picking up passengers and returning today. Tonight there will be a notable musical program given at the Metropolitan theater by the Bjarne chorus that has been rehearsing for the event for weeks.

WATERWAYS COMMISSION.

Stevens Pushes Through Bill Advocated by the President.

Washington, May 18.—Representative Stevens on Saturday secured the passage by the house of one of the measures the president has been advocating. It gives the inland waterways commission a legal status and provides for continuing the present commission until 1910, and appropriates $20,000 for the payment of expenses.

Mr. Stevens explained the bill in a brief speech and referred to the good work being done by the commission, composed of the chiefs of various bureaus of the government and Chairman Burton of the house rivers and harbors committee. Concluding his remarks, he defended his committee from charges that there had been any delay in action on the bill.

John Sharp Williams, minority leader, advocated the passage of the bill in one of his characteristic speeches, in which he described this measure as one of "five grains of wheat gathered by Democrats from the bushels of chaff contained in the president's message to congress."

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"Don't mind the kitten," advised May Robson from the safe harbor of the middle of the floor, to the interviewer, up whose outer garments a scraggy kitten meandered its own blissful way.

"Not at all," said the interviewer, rubbing it off. The kitten, which seemingly was also pervasive, was a black one with splotches of rainy-looking white, for adornment. Long white eyebrows, bristling out from a visage black as a moonless and starless night, makes the kitten slightly unusual. It seemed to be charged with the same electric vitality that distinguishes the star of "Aunt Mary."

"We've just got in," said Miss Robson, "and that cat is becoming acquainted with its new surroundings." Miss Robson and the cat moved about the one after the other, until the process made the onlooker rather dizzy. It was hard to tell which was after which, and when the amalgamation had taken place, it was still hard to tell. They both seemed so pleased.

Miss Robson, after a night of travel, had made herself comfortable in her apartments at the Lenox. A lavender kimona over a rather short, black silk petticoat was the means thereto, and heelless bedroom slippers of the mule variety, made the chase an even more interesting one as she shuffled about, not daring to lift her feet from the floor for fear of losing the slipper. The black and white kitten, after being caught, cuddled up under her chin and remained stationery for five seconds. During that five seconds the interview took place.

"Aunt Mary needs a cat in the first act, and so we carry this poor critter. It wasn't being fed right, nor being cared for properly, so I took it."

Miss Robson is teeming with enthusiasm over her play and the character of Aunt Mary, which has been one of the few New York successes of the year. "Aunt Mary will endure," said Miss Robson, "because of the humanity of the woman. "I can't tell you how I love her. She isn't so good that she's cloying, nor is she so bad but that almost every one in the audience can't sit back and say, 'Isn't that just like mother,' or 'I used to have an Aunt Jane that was just like that.' The love in 'Aunt Mary' is what makes the tremendous appeal. Not the love of the man for the girl he is to marry —not that at all—but the great mother love which is the love that makes the world go round. Aunt Mary has that love for her nephew. Jack, even though she is a spinster of decidedly certain age. Aunt Mary is a typical woman, constantly saying one thing and doing another. Haven't you time after time heard women say, 'I'll never speak to her again. No, sir! Not as long as I live will I speak to that woman again,' and then—'Oh, how d'ye do?' You know how it is," said Miss Robson.

One of the chief charms of Miss Robson's conversation is her quick characterizations and the energy of the snapping brown eyes and quick motions suggest the delightful spinster of Anne Warner's story.

"The play is entirely different from the story. The story was just one funny incident, and the play has been made into a story of heart interest," she continued. "The characters of Aunt Mary and her nephew has been developed until the audience is made to realize the similarity between them and that it is love for a thing which is her own that leads Aunt Mary to condone his awful escapades. There is the mother love again, the greatest thing in the world. The audiences have been tremendously interesting. We have just closed a three months' run in Chicago, and four and five rows in the parquet, at the matinees, would be dear old ladies laughing until tears stood in their eyes. The play appeals to those who see in it nothing but the laugh which follow laugh, and to those who analize it deeply to discover just why they laugh."

The play has been so successful that Miss Robson has been compelled to cancel her passage for Europe, which was engaged for early in June. The play has a tour of sixty-eight weeks booked, which will take it well into January of next year.

BIENNIAL MEETING

At Boston to be Attended by Minnesota Delegates.

Many Minnesota club women will attend the biennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's clubs, which will be held in Boston in June. Mrs. J. L. Washburn of this city will be among those in attendance and there may be other local women to attend. The Minnesota party will leave St. Paul Tuesday, June 16, and go directly to Boston. The party will include Mrs. R. R. Dorr, Mrs. M. J. Blair, Miss Fairchild, Mrs. Straight, Mrs. Fitzpatrick, Miss Obenear, Miss Gertrude Hall, Miss Evans, Northfield; Mrs. J. L. Washburn, Duluth; Mrs. G. O. Welch, Fergus Falls, and Mrs. H. A. Tomlinson, St. Peter.

The program committee of the General Federation, Mrs. Percy Pennypacker of Texas and Mrs. Mary Alden Ward of Massachusetts, have had a difficult task to arrange a biennial program that will present all the varied interests of the twelve departments of the federation in the six days of the convention and shall also provide for duplicate and overflow meetings to accommodate the many club women who will be present.

The board of directors will meet in Boston Monday morning, June 22. Members of the train committee will board the incoming trains at Springfield, Worcester and Fitchburg and go into Boston with the guests, and at the stations will be other committees to look after baggage, carriages and advise about hotels. Monday evening the Boston Symphony orchestra will give a concert and the welcome by the Massachusetts federation and the local biennial board will be given. Tuesday morning the council will meet; in the afternoon there will be a harbor excursion and in the evening the convention will formally open with addresses of welcome by the governor of the state, the mayor of Boston and others. Wednesday morning will be devoted to business, the officers will make their reports, and in the afternoon conferences will be held on pure food, art, civics and the bureau of information.

Reports of the departments of literature, art, civics and pure food will be given Thursday morning, June 25. In the afternoon there will be a reception at the state house by Governor and Mrs. Guild and receptions will also be given at several private homes.

Play day is on Friday, June 23, and it will be spent in Rhode Island. There will be a sail down Narragansett bay, a visit to Newport and a Rhode Island clam bake with the Rhode Island women as hostesses. The evening will be devoted to forestry with Enos Mills as speaker.

Household economics and education will occupy the attention Saturday morning, while in the afternoon a duplicate meeting will be held, as well as conferences on literature and forestry. Sunday, June 28, there will be an organ recital and vesper service in Symphony hall.

The nomination committee will report Monday morning, June 29, and the library extension, industrial and legislative reports will be made. A duplicate meeting has been planned for the afternoon, with conferences on education and household economics. The election of officers will take place Monday and the result announced Tuesday, when the forestry outlook, interfederation and resolutions committees will report. At the duplicate meeting in the afternoon the art and pure food committees will have charge of the program. The conferences will be on civil service reform, industrial conditions, legislative work and library extension. Tuesday evening, June 30, the convention will close.

All the morning sessions will be held in Symphony hall, and many of the afternoon gatherings as well. The local biennial board, which was appointed eighteen months ago by the Massachusetts federation, has worked diligently and harmoniously under the able leadership of the chairman, Miss Georgia Bacon, and has had 2,000 women enrolled on its committees. A series of afternoon excursions to the various points of interest in and around Boston has also been arranged so that every day will be full of pleasure as wel as profit.

FOR THE HOME.

Rummage Sale Being Conducted by Board Members.

If you need anything, from an onyx parlor clock, with a golden face, to a set of Dickens, you are likely to find it at the rummage sale which is being conducted for the benefit of the Children's Home by the members of the board of the institution. The sale is being held at 428 West First street, and weeks of preparation have been devoted to the event by the women of the committee, and bright and early this morning there were many customers at the rooms.

From books to kitchen utensils, dog collars and a sparkling evening gown, that would be lovely for the Queen of the May, are hung up about the room, and every article is such that somebody in Duluth should be found for its use. The clothes which are for sale are all good, with months of wear still remaining. There is a set of dishes, with a dainty pink border, that suggests the first housekeeping of some establishment.

The proceeds of the sale will go toward the funds of the Children's Home and the sale will continue until everything is gone. The rooms were crowded during the day and the result of the first day's sale was most satisfactory.

ADONIS OF THE "U."

Frederic W. Buck of Duluth Declared Handsomest Man.

The Minneapolis Journal says: Frederic W. Buck of Duluth is the handsomest man at the University of Minnesota. At least, this is the edict of the majority of the co-eds at the university. The editors of the 1909 Gopher, the annual funny book, which will come out this week, conducted the election and the book will contain the figures on the vote. Buck leads by a heavy majority.

Buck is a graduate of Duluth Central high school. He is a junior at the university and was president of the 1908 junior ball association. Mr. Buck's election is an example of the office seeking the man.

The Gopher board also held contests for the most unpopular and popular professors, the most beautiful girl, the worst campus nuisance and the like, and will have a tabulated vote in the book. In "the handsomest man" contest the campaigning among the students was especially pronounced, some of the girl politicians putting in strenuous work for favorites.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. T. L. Chapman of 1430 East Third street left today for a visit with her mother at Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Killirin and son are now in New York and later will leave for an automobile tour through New England.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Myers and son returned yesterday from a several months' trip through the West. During the last weeks of their trip they have been visiting in the East.

• • •

Miss Rueger of Minneapolis is the guest of Miss Margaret Ryan.

ST. PAUL WEDDINGS.

Two of Twin City Brides Well Known in Duluth.

Among the St. Paul weddings of interest to many Duluthians will be that of Miss Frances Gilbert and Lieut. Robert Merser Cheney of the United States army. Miss Gilbert is a daughter of the late Bishop and Mrs. Maglon N. Gilbert and she is well known in Duluth, where she has often visited Miss Margaret Ryan. Miss Ryan will be among the guests at the wedding, which will take place June 16.

• • •

Another St. Paul June wedding which will interest Duluth people will be that of Miss Lillian De Coster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus C. De Coster, and Wilfred Oakley Stout, also of St. Paul. Miss De Coster is well known here, where she has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Williamson. The engagement was announced last week and the wedding will take place some time in June.

ART HISTORY.

To be Studied by Class of Twentieth Century Club.

An art history class will be organized as a part of the work of the Twentieth Century club, and with the beginning of the club year in October the class will begin its meetings. The chairman of the class will be Mrs. E. A. Silberstein, with Mrs. Julius H. Barnes as secretary. The meetings will be held bi-weekly and the course of study will be decided upon later.

For Miss Campbell.

Mrs. William H. Wilson entertained at an informal tea Saturday afternoon at her home, 322 East Third street, in honor of Miss Jessie Campbell, whose wedding to Frank Eben Church will take place in June. A kitchen shower of blue and white ware was presented the guest of honor.

Fashion's Fads.

The sleeveless coat is to play a large part in the summer wardrobe of the fashionable woman. With the present fashions for clinging and even skimpy gowns, wraps are inevitable, whatever the weather, and fashion makers are wise enough to fill the want with an assortment of suitable garments. All sorts of fancy sleeveless lace and braid coats are already out in women's coat departments, and more will come as the season goes on.

• • •

Draw tapes are being introduced into ultra-fashionable skirts in Paris to draw the skirt close about the figure below the knees. In such a skirt the gait has to be studied before a mirror until no careless step is in danger of being taken, or the wearer may be tripped by her shackles at a crucial moment. In some of the skirts these tapes are arranged at one side, and the gait becomes a sort of shuffle, with one foot constantly in the lead. Should the wearer for any reason forget and lift the wrong side of her gown in getting to her carriage she would be apt to fall. Yet sartorial connoisseurs who have seen these skirts say that, worn right, they are graceful in the extreme. Surely "education dulls the senses as well as opens doors."

• • •

A smart little waistcoat semblance made by its wearer is nothing more nor less than a piece of green ribbon folded in the required double-breasted shape and edged with black and finished with two large gold buttons. The result when on is a double-breasted waistcoat. Over it falls a big lace jabot.

• • •

The linen collars embroidered in color have a pretty finish in ribbon butterfly bows of the same tone as the work.

• • •

To go with the cretonne coats there are cretonne parasols, both for use with little lingerie frocks.

A new arrangement of the tunic is the drapery that turns back from the front like a laundress' dress which she has pinned up to keep it from the suds. Plain skirts are in the minority. Most of them, if fashionable, are of double or triple style or have tunic draperies that are short or long.

• • •

The little coats, short and rounded away from the front and drooped at the back, which were seen in winter materials, are here now in taffeta, satin or pongee, covered more or less elaborately with braid.

The Immortal Life.

Have you analyzed the essence of life and found it wanting? The spiritual chemistry may offer you a finer test. Have you missed the best things? Known the bitterest? Endured the hardest? Shaken trust, broken faith, denial, poverty, hardship—are these the materials of your experience? Have you waded through the red seas of physical pain or disability? Have you drifted on the subterranean river of personal loneliness? Have you laid your dead away, till the smiling world has come to seem to you as empty as a sea-washed shell? Have you planted all the flowers of your heart on precious graves? Have you locked into your past the memory of some unconfessed sin which you would give your life to crush from your consciousness? Do you crave the chrism of recovered innocence? The treasure of love denied? The energy of gifts undeveloped? The story of physical health? The sound of a silent voice? The touch of vanished lips? Do you still believe in and clamor for the four great personal privileges of life—purity, health, work, love?

Then seek the life everlasting as you would seek the end of a sentence, the rhyme in a poem, the conclusion of an argument. Life is a proof of the power to live. Life is evidence of the qualification for life. In the long contention for existence he is the fit survivor who saves his soul alive, says Elizabeth Stuart Phelps in Harper's Bazar.

God did not create us to blast us. Nor, on the other hand, did He create us that we might secure a priceless prize for which we have not taken the trouble to compete. In the end, it rests with ourselves whether this world shall prove to be our only one.

Trust as you knew. Believe as if you could prove. Live as if you were going to live—and the habit of living will carry you on.

MARINE NEWS

TO LOAD ORE THIS WEEK

Pittsburg Steamship Company's Boats Will Go to Missabe Docks.

Independent Owners Have Poor Prospects for Some Weeks.

Though the general ore movement will not begin until June 1, or probably later, the United States Steel corporation will ship ore from the Duluth, Missabe & Northern docks within the next week.

The steamers J. F. Baker, J. P. Morgan and W. E. Corey of the Pittsburg Steamship company's fleet, which left South Chicago some days ago for the Head of the Lakes, will arrive in Duluth some time tomorrow and will proceed directly to the ore docks to receive cargoes.

There will be no rush about the loading process and just when the first boat will get away is problematical. The Steel corporation began to ship ore from the mines last week and, though the normal summer rush is not on, shipments will continue from now on. A small force of ore handlers will be put at work when the boats from South Chicago arrive and cargoes may start down the lakes the latter part of this week.

The Pittsburg company's boats in the local harbor are being fitted out and some of them will probably get to the docks the latter part of this week. The Cornell has a full crew and the engineers are at work on the others preparing them for inspection. Little is known at the local office of the Pittsburg company, though the orders to load the available boats are expected at any time.

Independent vessel owners are not optimistic on the question of the ore trade. The grain boats are being laid up in lower lake ports until there is some sign of a movement, as the shipments of grain from the Head of the Lakes have been about all made. The line boats are carrying what grain there is to go down the lakes and the independent owners will not send their boats up with coal, with no prospect of return cargoes.

Reports from Port Arthur and Fort William are that the movement of grain from those ports is approaching its end also. All tonnage has been taken care of so far, but there is little prospect for a prolongation of the movement and unless there is an opening in the ore trade within the next few weeks, the lower lake harbors will be crowded with freighters waiting for prospects of return cargoes.

HURONIC ON FIRST TRIP.

Canadian Boat Will Run Excursion From Port Arthur Monday.

The first passenger boat to arrive in Duluth this season, with the exception of the Booth line boats, was the Huronic of the Northern Navigation company, which arrived from Sarnia and Port Arthur yesterday morning and cleared last night for the same port with passengers and merchandise. The Huronic had a list of about fifty passengers.

Among the arrivals was H. H. Gildersleeve, general manager of the line with headquarters at Winnipeg. He conferred with the local representatives of the line and continued on the down trip with the boat.

The Huronic will be in port again next Monday with a crowd of excursionists from Port Arthur. The queen's birthday, which falls on next Sunday and will be celebrated Monday, is the occasion of the trip. The excursionists will arrive at noon and remain until about 10:30 at night. The trips from Port Arthur to Duluth are popular and a large crowd is expected to arrive on the Canadian boat next week.

BOOTH LINE SCHEDULE.

Easton and America Will Go on Their Regular Routes.

The Booth line steamers Easton and America, which were placed in drydock at Superior last week to have their bottoms scraped, were put back in the water today ready to go on their runs for the season. The America will make a trip to Port Arthur Wednesday morning.

The regular schedule of the line will be inaugurated next Sunday. The America will continue on the Port Arthur run. The Easton will run an excursion to Two Harbors Sunday, returning in the evening, and leaving at 10 o'clock Sunday night on her first regular trip of the season. She will go to Port Arthur and thence to Portage Lake points, returning over the same route. The following Thursday, she will run to South shore points. The Moore will be retained for extra trips on both runs.

The Moore arrived in port yesterday and officers denied the report contained in a dispatch from Port Arthur that a party of emigrants were turned back at that port on account of not having the $25 necessary to enter Canada under an old rule now being enforced.

NEGRO IN THE RIGGING.

Believed That Labor Unions Will Not be Docile All Season.

It is the impression among marine men all over the lakes that the docility with which the labor organizations are accepting the "open shop" policy of the Lake Carriers' association has something behind it. Absolutely no trouble has been experienced by the owners in any quarter, and in some cases the men have gone to work without complaint against a reduction in pay.

It is believed the seamen see that there would be no prospect of success at the present time, should they strike, as the owners would be perfectly content to allow their boats to remain in port. However, when the general movement begins and the season gets into good swing, it is said there will be trouble on the lakes. Owners and men alike are saying nothing, but going ahead with their preparations for the busy part of the season. It is believed, however, that there will be trouble before the season ends, and that there is a "Senegabmian in the brush pile."

Ranney on Trial Trip.

The new steamer Rufus P. Ranney, launched several weeks ago at the Superior shipyards, made a trial trip yesterday to Two Harbors. The machinery was found in good condition and the ship behaved to suit the master, Capt. Stone, and representatives of the owners. There are a few finishing touches to be put on the big boat, and it is expected she will make her maiden trip down the lakes within the next few weeks.

CAUTION TO MARINERS.

One Channel at Wisconsin Span of N. P. Bridge to be Closed.

Maj. Graham L. Fitch, United States engineer in charge of the local harbor, issues a caution to mariners during the progress of the work on the Northern Pacific bridge:

Work on the removal of the old draw span of the Wisconsin channel was begun yesterday by Whitney Bros. The span will be taken to pieces as it stands on the protection pier and will be loaded on scows. Two scows will be used for the purpose, and these will lie alongside the span, sometimes on one side and sometimes on the other, and will be accompanied by a tug.

The draw opening occupied by these scows and the tug will be practically closed to navigation and nothing larger than a tug will be able to pass. Vessels must therefore take the other opening. A dredge will also be at work for a short time deepening the channel of the south opening of the new Wisconsin draw span, and it may also require the work of a diver to clear out the bearing piles of the old north pier to the draw span.

While this operation is going on, the Whitney scows will be kept on the north side of the old span, so as to leave the south channel free for vessels. It will be at least a week before all of the work is completed. In the meantime, vessel masters should use caution in approaching the Wisconsin draw span and take the opening which happens to be clear at the time. During the operations, the Minnesota draw span will be in shape for vessels to use that channel, if they wish to do so.

CITY HALLS BEAT COURTHOUSE NINE

Steve Pierce's Colts Taken Into Camp by Score, 12 to 2.

The flag at the courthouse was at half mast this morning. The city hall team gave the courthouse team an awful drubbing at Hunter's Park Saturday afternoon, to the tune of 12 to 2.

It was a difficult matter to learn at the courthouse today whether any ball game was played, there being evasive replies given to all queries by those supposed to have taken part in the slaughter, but one of the young lady clerks finally tipped it off. Now the courthouse gang are promising what they intend to do next Saturday. The neutral observers, however, contend that it is all off with the courthouse team, unless they can establish a reputation. The batteries for the Saturday game were: Harwood and McLean for the city hall team, and McKenzie and Oppel for the courthouse bunch.

THE MAY FESTIVAL.

Smooth Performance is Assured for the Opening Night.

The members of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra and the soloists who are to appear in the second annual May festival have arrived in the city and the final rehearsals taken place. A smooth and delightful performance of the cantatas to be sung this evening and tomorrow at the First Methodist church is assured. The interest in the work of the chorus has been pronounced and each individual has done faithful and splendid work. There will be several parties entertained this evening and a brilliant audience will gather at the church for the opening concert of the festival.

Strawberry shortcake is the dessert of all desserts which the housewife returns to with a weakness of spirit which is entirely forgivable. "What shall we have for dessert?" she asks herself, while her worried palm clasps a puzzled brow, and the only answer that is offered from her innermost consciousness is "Strawberry shortcake! Stwaberry shortcake! Strawberry shortcake!" until the family greets again that delicacy with lack luster eye, which only a few short weeks ago was acclaimed with gurgles of joy.

"LET US ALONE."

The Herald recently spoke with approval of the aim of the National Prosperity association, which is to restore and perpetuate good times; an aim that nobody need be ashamed of.

There is one feature of its work, however, that can be very easily overdone, and that is its intention to call a halt on the attacks upon trusts and corporations. Its motto is "leave us alone!" That is also the motto of the New York Sun, of Messrs. Harriman, Ryan, Rockefeller, Rogers, Morgan and Cannon. These gentlemen would like very much to be left alone, and that is entirely natural since they regard the attempt of the people to regulate the conduct of big business in the interests of the common welfare as nothing short of impudent, impertinent and revolutionary.

It is to be hoped that the National Prosperity association is not going to heed its motto in the sense that these gentlemen take it. "Let us alone," "let well enough alone," and "down with the demagogue" are all right so long as those who utter them deserve to be let alone, so long as "well enough" really is well enough, and so long as the cry against the demagogue does not include everybody who is trying to do something for the people.

This country has no use for a prosperity whose stream is directed into the pockets of a few people, and from which the people get only what splashes out of the trough in the scramble. The cry "let us alone" is too often turned into a gurgle as it comes from the greedy throats of those whose muzzles are buried in the stream of prosperity. No cry from that source is likely to be heeded, and no movement in the interests of prosperity that comes from such sources need expect the sympathy of the people who are crowded back from the trough.

Perhaps the National Prosperity association has no such ideas, but some of its announcements sound suspiciously like it. It is announced that the association intends to get into politics, and that it "may get into the national campaign if any candidate, irrespective of party, gets to shouting calamity too strongly." It does no good to "shout calamity," but it does much good to point out real evils and to try to remedy them. "Another possibility," says a member of the executive committee of the association, "is co-operation to fight corporation attacks in a particular state. If the business organizations in a state, for instance, should decide that they wanted our assistance in work of this kind, it would doubtlessly be extended."

Now work to offset unjust attacks upon corporations and to head off senseless attacks upon wealth because it is wealth is very good work indeed; but it mustn't be extended to cover a reactionary propaganda against all forms of progress. The principle that the people are going to have a say in big business through their government is settled, and no amount of "let us alone" talk can destroy that fact.

Yet in the work of steadying reform down to a sane and balanced basis there is something for the National Prosperity association to do, though it must stop with that work or fall to the ground.

MR. TAFT'S CHANCES GOOD.

The winding up of the Republican state conventions practically wound up all hope of defeating Taft for the nomination; a hope that was eagerly embraced by those who wished to see President Roosevelt nominated and by those who hoped to see his policies wiped out and his place at the head of the Republican party taken by a Fairbanks or a Cannon.

Taking the statement of Mr. Taft's campaign managers for it, the secretary of war is assured nearly 700 votes on the first ballot out of a total of 980. This estimate is entirely too sanguine, however, and in this respect it bears a strong family resemblance to the claims of all political managers, who make it a practice to claim everything for the sake of the bandwagon sentiment which is so strong in the human breast.

According to the Taft managers, 563 delegates have been instructed to vote for him. This is seventy-two more than he needs for nomination, as 491 constitutes a majority of the convention. However, of these 563 there are contests against 126, and if by any chance all of these contested Taft delegates should be thrown out, the war secretary's forces would dwindle to 437, which is fifty-four less than he needs. However, there are 192 delegates that are uninstructed, and Taft's managers claim that fully 100 of these are friendly to him, and will vote for him on the first ballot. Here is the only really weak spot in the Taft claims. Uninstructed delegates are not likely to be for Taft, any more than such delegates in the Democratic convention are likely to be for Bryan. In both cases every effort has been made to secure instructed delegates, and where uninstructed delegations have resulted, it is to be looked upon as a failure of the efforts in behalf of these two candidates.

However, in spite of the 126 contested Taft delegates, and the 192 uninstructed delegates, and the 225 instructed for other candidates, the nomination of Taft is as great a certainty as anything can be in the uncertain field of politics. Even if you shave his 563 instructed votes to 437 by eliminating the contested delegates, he is still within reaching distance of victory, and nobody else has enough votes to be dangerous. A sudden combination of all the opposition votes upon one candidate might be disturbing, but it is impossible. While a Fairbanks or a Cannon would hardly choose delegates to support themselves that would think of rallying to the Roosevelt standard, no matter what happened, the fact is that neither Fairbanks nor Cannon is in a position to handle his support in any such way. After giving a complimentary vote or two to their favorite sons, these delegates are pretty certain to rush pell mell to Taft.

The convention will be held in Chicago June 16, less than a month from now, and by that time President Roosevelt will have achieved the most difficult task of his career—the nomination of a man of his choice in spite of the resistance of all the old-time leaders, who had hoped to bring about the nomination of a man who would be safe, sane and tame after the conventional Republican fashion—such a man, for instance, as Vice President Fairbanks, who would have been the logical Republican candidate had matters remined as they were before Roosevelt appeared upon the stage.

FOREIGN FORTUNE HUNTERS.

It is related that there is an American young woman who contemplates retiring from the world to some quiet retreat to conceal herself from the hordes of too importunate suitors that have pursued her from Europe, where she was traveling, back to her native land.

Having learned this much, though being denied the name of the young woman, it is hardly necessary to note that the story adds that she is not only desirable in every way as a young woman of brains and beauty and graces of character, but that she is very rich.

While it was necessary to tell us about the brains and beauty and graces, it was not necessary to add that she is wealthy, because the mere fact that she is haunted by a retinue of clamoring dukes and counts and things seeking her hand is evidence enough of the standing her fortune has in Bradstrects.

It seems that this auriferous young woman was left a large fortune by her father, and that when abroad some time ago she attracted the attention of a number of foreigners with very old titles and very dilapidated fortunes. We say "she attracted" from force of habit, though everybody realizes that it was not she but her fortune that was the attraction, and that it would have proved just as potent if, instead of having brains and beauty, she had been brainless and homely. Without the brains, no doubt she would not have sought to escape the attentions of these clamoring individuals who wanted her to invest her father's money in the rehabilitation of their fortunes and their castles, and in financing their pursuit of pleasure.

Becoming seriously annoyed at this pursuit, this sensible young woman shook off her train of beggars and hurried back to her native New York. No use; they followed her, after trying in vain to soften her heart to their appeals by writing letters. It is said that she has been so pestered with the attentions of these fortune-hunters that in desperation she contemplates seeking some quiet spot where dukes, counts and things cannot find her.

It does not seem to have occurred to her to have appealed to the police. Most cities have ordinances in such cases made and provided. There are rules against begging, against vagrancy, and against suspicious characters. Policemen have been known to arrest men who have no visible means of support. Possibly a careful explanation of this American custom, which can hardly prevail abroad or there would not be so many penniless but titled pursuers of American fortunes to haunt the highways of Europe and to make the travels of sensible American girls hideous with their avaricious devotions, would have diminished her train.

But there is still another way for this girl to protect herself. She need not move out of New York. Let her marry some good, promising American young man, six feet tall and possessing about 180 pounds of clean bone and muscle. There won't be many impecunious counts dogging her about after that.

THE MORTGAGE REGISTRY TAX.

Says the Virginia Virginian: "The Minnesota supreme court has decided the mortgage registry tax constitutional. A whole lot of people will be glad to hear that. But the next legislature should see to it that the mortgage registry tax is made illegal by repealing the law. This registry tax law was made with the idea of catching those people outside the state who lend money on mortgages. In 99 cases out of 100 it is the borrower who gets caught. The lender simply exacts the amount of the registry tax as a bonus from the borrower. So it is a tax on industry and enterprise."

The case against the much-vaunted mortgage registry tax law could hardly have been put more compactly, more clearly or more damningly than it is in this quotation. The only criticism to be made of this criticism lies in the percentage assigned to the cases wherein the man that lends the money makes the man that borrows it pay the tax. The Virginia paper assumes that one in a hundred lenders of money assumes the tax. Experience here would indicate that instead of this being true in 1 per cent of the cases, it isn't true in any; that in every case the lender shoulders off upon the borrower the burden that the law intended for the lender.

If the only way to secure the taxation of mortgages is to make the borrower pay the tax, then mortgages had better not be taxed.

Before the mortgage registry tax came in, mortgages pretty generally escaped taxation, but if they were taxed, the lender paid the tax. The machinery for taxing mortgages before was very unsatisfactory and unjust. Properly speaking, under the provision that all property should be assessed at its cash value a mortgage should have been returned at its face amount. Thus if you had loaned $1,000 to your friend, and had taken a mortgage on his house for it, and he were paying you 5 per cent or $50 a year upon the loan, a strict observance of the law required that you list that mortgage with your personal property at $1,000, and at a tax rate of 3½ per cent, you would pay $35 in taxes on it, reserving only $15 for yourself. In the case of a bond at 4 per cent, you would pay in taxes $35 out of the $40 your bond earned you. This wasn't right, of course, and not only did nobody return their mortgages at their face value, but very few people returned their mortgages at all.

The registry tax is a fair tax, but the borrower shouldn't pay it. Under the present law as it works out, every borrower pays the tax, and no lender pays anything, though by rights the lenders should always pay. As the Virginia newspaper says, this is a tax on industry and enterprise, and any such tax is unthinkable because it penalizes progress. The man who borrows money to put it to work is a greater help to society than the man that saves his money to lend it out at interest.

If the legislature can't fix this law so the lender will pay the tax, it ought to repeal it. It is the first and only fruit of the absurd "wide-open" tax amendment to the constitution, and in its present shape it is a very bitter and wholly worthless fruit.

The North Star state is for the Star of the North—John A. Johnson.

"Love may ruin the kingdom of Portugal," says a headline referring to the young king's devotion to a Portuguese girl when his statesmen want him to marry royalty. It wouldn't be the first kingdom ruined that way.

THE WEATHER.

A fog early, clouds all the forenoon, and light showers occasionally, made up this morning. Yesterday it was clear most of the day, and warm, though a brisk northeast wind tempered the sunshine. Last night a thunderstorm approached within hearing and seeing distance, and then growled away into the distance again. The lowest temperature last night was 42 degs. and yesterday's highest was 58 degs. The weather man expects the showers to cease tonight, when the northeast winds will switch to westerly.

A year ago today fine spring weather prevailed.

The sun rose this morning at 4:23 and sets tonight at 7:40, making 15 hours and 12 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Barometric depressions overlie Eastern Iowa, Manitoba and Saskatchewan and British Columbia. These disturbances caused showers or thunderstorms over Western Canada, Oregon, Washington, North Dakota, the Mississippi and Lower Missouri and Lower Ohio valleys and South Atlandic states during the past twenty-four hours. Temperatures are generally moderate. The barometer is high over Eastern states and the Southwest. Indications favor partly cloudy weather in this locality tonight and Tuesday."

Republican sentiment still holds good in Minnesota.

Republican demoralization is to blame for many a Democratic victory.

Anxious Inquirer: It is not known whether there are any daily newspapers published in St. Paul or not.

Nine congressmen in Minnesota, and not one on the side of the people. A number of them will bite the dust in September.

SHAME!

Louisville Courier-Journal: In Saturday's debate Leader Payne was most unequally matched against Leader Williams. Not only could Mr. Williams cite ten cases of foul elections to one cited by Mr. Payne, but he could and did knock the stuffing out of the Republicans when he shook his forefinger defiantly into the blanched face of their wilted chieftain and said: "Here I stand. I stand to challenge you that every dollar that goes into a campaign fund shall be published to the world the day after it is received, so that the world may know the motive of the giver and may judge the means of corruption in the hands of the recipient."

The silence that followed could be heard three thousand miles. It could be heard from Buzzard's Bay to Crater Lake—from the dome of the capitol on the Potomac to the Lick observatory in Santa Clara valley—as Mr. Payne, tired of leading the majority, sank helplessly into the abyss of confession, daring not to accept the challenge.

That single passage tells the whole story. "Never mind the past," said Mr. Williams, "the presidential rape of 1876; the crisp, new two-dollar bills and blocks of five, of 1880; Belshazzar's feast, in 1884; the wholesale bribery and spoliation of 1896 and 1900 and 1904, when widows and orphans were plundered to make a McKinley and a Roosevelt holiday! Never mind the denials and the proof of guilt! Never mind the stealing, the lying and the hypocrisy that have been. Let bygones be bygones! What do you say to the future? What will you do now?"

And poor Payne could utter never a word. Nor, in all that house full of Republicans, was there one voice brave enough, one heart honest enough, to shout back in defiance—to call Mr. Williams' hand—"We will pass the publicity bill here and now!"

Shame upon the Republican party; shame upon its leaders; shame, shame, shame!

Birmingham Age-Herald: Base ball and the outdoor sports always prosper in a presidential year.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

•••The Zenith City Baseball league was organized last night, and Jay W. Anderson was elected president and A. M. Miller, Jr., secretary. The league is composed of four teams—the Zeniths and Athletics of Duluth, the Rice's Points and the Two Harbors. Work upon the new West end grounds will begin at once and the season will open on Decoration day.

•••At the Republican state convention at St. Paul yesterday, F. F. Davis of Minneapolis, G. G. Hartley of Duluth, Joel P. Heatwole and Col. H. P. Edwards were elected delegates to the national convention. Capt. H. A. Castle of St. Paul and W. D. Washburn of Minneapolis being defeated. W. A. Sperry, H. G. Finkle, J. E. Brown and C. D. Wright were chosen alternates. The presidential electors are Capt. Mons Gunnager of Hennepin county, H. W. Stone of Stevens, W. Y. Yates of Winona, E. R. Smith of Le Sueur, W. A. Foland of Swift, Alvah Eastman of Anoka and John Cooper of Stearns. The tariff plank of the platform demands that "the imposition of duties on imports shall be limited to the necessities of the government, economically administered."

•••Miss Charlotte Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Adams, formerly of this city, has been married at St. Paul to Samuel J. Stickney, son of A. B. Stickney, president of the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City railroad.

•••T. B. Casey and J. B. Holmes of Minneapolis, both interested in the Duluth Northwestern & Winnipeg railroad, were in the city today.

•••C. F. Johnson, following his own example of last year, has offered a fine Abbic & Imbrice trout rod, worth $35, to the catcher of the largest trout this season.

•••Mrs. Wood, wife of A. De Lacey Wood, editor of the Two Harbors Iron Port, has leased the Tourists' Resort of Grand Marais and will have the hotel ready for the reception of guests upon the arrival of the first boat.

•••The Norwegian population of Duluth put on holiday attire yesterday and indulged in a celebration of Norway's Independence day. The Svea and Dania societies, headed by a band of music, paraded the streets in the afternoon, and a grand ball at night at Ingalls' hall wound up the festivities. The flag of Norway floated to the breeze upon many buildings.

•••Judge Stearns returned yesterday from the West. He is inclined to the opinion that Barto and Comstock have combined against him for the congressional nomination.

•••Mesdames John Flynn, R. N. Marble and C. M. Parkhurst, accompanied their husbands to St. Paul, where the latter will attend the Democratic convention.

•••Capt. B. G. Yocum will probably be asked to become commodore of the West End Boat club.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Elk River Star News: Whenever the president finds things a little dull around the office, he fires a message to congress, and congress squirms and does nothing. Congress is beginning to hope that the president's days are numbered and is not as subservient as it has been. Congress may be fooled.

St. Hilaire Spectator: The county delegates to the late Republican convention are still kicking about how the gang from the cities handled the convention; but they were a wonderfully meek crowd while the work was being done.

Eveleth Star: Good roads means more farmers. More farmers means more products. More products means cheaper products. Cheaper products and more homes means more school houses. More school houses means a greater and higher civilization. Let us have more good roads.

Montevideo Leader: Is it to laugh, when we read in Republican newspapers that the tariff should be revised, and that it should be done right after the next election, and that it should be done by its friends? Well, if the American people will only do their duty, it will be revised soon after the next election, though not so much by friends of the tariff as by friends of the American people.

Cannon Falls Beacon: Amid this confusion of tongues political, that homely and simple-minded but useful servant of the common people, the Hon. Splitlog Drag, is being lost sight of.

Appleton Press (Rep.): It's a long step in the direction of a monarchy when an elective officer can name his successor.

Fairmont Sentinel: There is a noticeable falling off of political conferences at the Merchants hotel since the anti-pass law went into effect.

Le Sueur News: Minnesota is for Taft for president, and for Fairbanks on immediate tariff revision. It is a great farce—those conventions.

Hibbing Tribune: How shall Minneapolis make good, inquires the Journal. It might hire some men who can hit the ball.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Candidates for the state legislature are coming aplenty from the lower end of this district, which reaches well into the city of Duluth. The ranges will have to "stick together" this year if they get anything.

Eveleth Star: Our old friend Dan Lawler, is now mayor of St. Paul. The next news to be received will be that Dan is a candidate for governor.

The Call of Spring.

Come from the fret and the turmoil,
Come, from the house and the street,
Come from the nonsense and gossip
That greets you, whoever you meet.

Spring, Mother Nature's first-born,
Is calling from cottage and hall
All who like innocent pleasure,
And their childhood love to recall.

She takes the hand weary from toiling,
Her breezes kissing our cheek,
And shows us the trailing arbutus,
By lake and river banks sleep.

Oh, let us away to the woodland,
Where nature's beauties unfold.
Baby leaves throwing off winter jackets,
And violets and cowslips untold,

And the sweet chirp of many songsters,
Robins of the red vest,
The wren, thrush, lark and the bluebird,
Each making a cozy soft nest.

The sleepy murmurs of Spring voices,
From hillside and cope and brake;
The soft ripple of river and brooklet,
That as yet are not fully awake.

Then come to the forest today, dear,
We'll frolic with a Spring as of yore,
And throw dull care far from us,
And be happy children once more.

Virginia, Minn.

A Clear Choice.

Collier's Weekly: Jenkins of Wisconsin is the least impressive of Mr. Cannon's coterie. He is among the leaders not because of his strength, but because of his pliability. Officially, he is chairman of the committee on judiciary; colloquially, he is the keeper of Cannon's morgue, the quiet embalmer who puts progressive measures where they will not embarrass the members of congress with a vote on the public records. A few weeks since we called attention to his work on the original forestry bills. This week we are not without a sense of satisfaction in pointing the way to oblivion for him. As a candidate for renomination in his district, he is opposed by Irvine L. Lenroot. When La Follette, after years of struggle, got control of a legislature in Wisconsin, and prepared to carry into effect his program of constructive legislation, he made Lenroot speaker of the house, and his was a part second only to the governor's in crystallizing La Follette's promises into laws. Lenroot is able, courageous, and on the right side. The two candidates for the nomination represent, in their records, their experiences, their mental processes, their public service, the two conflicting types of public servant now struggling for the domination of the Republican party. In no congressional district in the country do the personalities and records of the contestants better illustrate this struggle. Wisconsin saw the light ahead of many other states. It is difficult to believe that there is a district in that state, after the years of effort for the better thing in politics that would hesitate between these two men. Some day a man like Lenroot will be speaker of the house of representatives.

"Because," answered the other, "no one makes fun of his whiskers or calls him by his first name."

Chicago Tribune: Miss Peachley—"Auntie, I find it hard to entertain Mr. Ketchley. He seems to have so little general information."

Matchmaking Aunt—"Then specialize, my dear; specialize. If Browning is too deep for him, try him on baseball."

But in the fullness of time he returned. "Show me something cheaper, if you please," quoth he, gently.

Washington Star: "Do you think the fruit crop will be a failure this year?"

"'Course it will," answered Farmer Cornstead, "if prices are high there's no fruit and if prices are low there's plenty of it. The fruit crop's always a failure."

Nashville American: "Is she popular?" "Oh very!" "What's the secret?" "Can't afford to outdress anybody."

Harper's Weekly: "What makes the office boy so blue?"

"I understand that his grandmother has gone on a strike and refuses to die during the baseball season."

Catholic Standard and Times: "This is a new shaving soap I'm using," said the barber. "How do you like it?"

"Applied externally," replied the victime, as the brush slipped into his mouth.

Feudalism, New and Old.

Kansas City Star: The passing of political feudalism in the grand duchies of Mecklenburg-Schwerin and Mecklenburg-Strelitz is attended by hardly a ripple of interest. The medieval system had been so long outgrown that its persistence in part of Germany was of no particular importance. It is improbable that any great oppression was entailed by the vestiges of a past age.

The character of the times has altered. Industrial problems have replaced political and the feudalistic qualities of the ancient lords of the soil have been transmitted to the modern captains of industry. The parallel has often been pointed out. The modern feudal baron does not require baldly the services and dues of his vassals. He can obtain the equivalent much more neatly and easily by selling watered stock or by securing valuable franchise rights without giving adequate compensation. The modern marauding expedition is carried on in the stock market, and the ancient slaughter is replaced by what Prof. E. A. Ross has called the "pale slaying" of the cheat and the adulterator.

It is because the public is learning where some of its real problems lie that it pays scant attention to a change in political forms that would have been important a century or more ago.

LARGE ORE SHIPMENTS.

Ashland Docks to Receive Largest Amount From Gogebic Range.

Ashland, Wis., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Chicago & Northwestern Railway company has begun dumping ore at the Ashland docks, the dockmen receiving the same pay they did last year. The company will use 2,000 cars this season, the greatest number that it has ever used on the Gogebic range. In addition to the 932 cars now in commission, 300 new cars have arrived, and 500 new steel cars will reach Ashland inside the next thirty days. The new ore dock will be in commission on the first of June, with a storage capacity of 90,000 tons, and this, in connection with the present "Twentieth Century" dock of the the Northwestern, at Ashland, will insure splendid service to the largest vessels on the Great Lakes this year. The Chicago & Northwestern and the Wisconsin Central docks shipped from Ashland last year 3,437,000 tons, the present estimate for 1908, being about 60 per cent of last year's shipments.

RURAL SCHOOL EXHIBIT.

Novel Feature of Fair at Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The necessary steps looking to the holding of the fair for 1908 for Red Lake county, at the city of Thief River Falls, are now being taken. A large amount of advertising material has been received by Dr. G. A. Penny, secretary of the association, and will be distributed at once. The premium list is under preparation, and shows that generous sums of money will be offered to the farmers for the various products of their lands. As has always been the custom, a series of entertainments is being secured. Among these are the horse races which, under the direction of the circuit association, will surpass those of former years.

A novel feature this season will be an extensive rural school exhibit and a series of contests among pupils for actual school work performed on the fair grounds under competent judges. This fair will be held about the middle of the month of August.

CLOTHES GO DOWN STREAM.

Why Ferryman at Riverside Had to Make a Purchase.

International Falls, Minn., May 18. A peculiar incident happened at Riverside during the recent high water. The proprietor had a strong cable strung across the river on which he manipulates a ferry, the cable being attached to a tree on both sides. A clothes line filled with John G's Sunday clothes and the week's washing was also attached to one of the trees. One night the logs caught the cable in the middle the strain being so hard that the tree to which the clothes line was fastened was uprooted and the clothes line, clothes, tree and all went down stream with the jam. This accounts for the proprietor being at the county seat recently investing in a new suit.

EARLY DAY RECORDS.

North Dakota Historical Society Captures Many Valuable Books.

Bismarck, N. D., May 18.—Curator Fish of the State Historical society has been at Washburn, N. D., lately, and with Theodore Taylor of Garrison looked over the effects of the late Joseph Taylor. Theodore Taylor was anxious that the old books and papers of his uncle should not be scattered, and so wished the things to be kept intact in the state historical library. Curator Fish brought home nearly a hundred books, many of them quite valuable historically. Mr. Taylor also gave the society a number of clippings and letters which the old hunters and scouts had sent to his uncle.

Last summer Joseph Taylor met Secretary Libby and showed him a diary of a soldier boy who was at Fort Berthold in the '70s. This diary he was anxious to have placed in the vaults of the society. It is part of the collection, and when it is published it will prove of interest to all the old settlers.

LEMON FROM HELLO GIRL.

She Jilts Devils Lake Business Man for Tonsorialist.

Devils Lake, N. D., May 18.—Gossips are discussing a recent occurrence here, in which a well known business man was handed a large lemon by a young woman, upon whom he had lavished his affections for some time and to whom it was expected he would be married. On the eve of their wedding the woman left with a local barber, taking considerable money and diamonds given to her by her fiance. The couple were arrested at Casselton, where they were living as husband and wife at a hotel. The man to whom the girl was to have been married was heartbroken over the affair, but took steps to recover some of the things which he had lavished upon her, and Sunday the sheriff secured from her one of the diamonds which was valued at $350.

Before the officer put in his appearance the barber skipped out and went to Breckenridge, where the girl followed Sunday evening and where it was reported that they were married.

The girl is about 17 years of age and was formerly an exchange girl in the Devils Lake telephone office. She had been going with the business man for two years and the wedding was to have taken place in a short time. All told, the man is loser by several thousand dollars.

CALUMET EDUCATORS.

School Board of District No. 1 Makes Engagement of Teachers.

Calumet, Mich., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of the school board of District No. 1 Thursday evening, the supervisors, principals and teachers for the Calumet public school year were appointed, with a few exceptions. The remaining vacancies will be filled within a short time. Many reappointments were made. The list of supervisors and principals:

H. E. Kratz, superintendent; Elizabeth Abernethy, supervisor of music; Lucy E. Browning, supervisor of kindergarten and primary work; Lillian Fliege, supervisor of drawing; E. E. Hector, supervisor of penmanship; Agnes I. Larsen, clerk and stenographer; Bertha E. Sincock, telephone operator; James V. Wills, truant officer.

Principals—J. M. Chapman, Mary Cuddihy, Anna Degoover, Lucie Dobbie, Ada Downing, Mrs. L. Farnham, Katherine Gillette, Elizabeth Goldsworthy, Edward J. Hall, Agnes Hutson, Mary Lorenz, Agnes MacGinnis, B. A. Mahoney, Helen McPhail, Clark U. Mottinger, Mildred Osborne, Louise Pope, Agnes Sheridan.

CAT BOUNTY IS OFF.

Marinette Youths Got a Trifle Too Industrious.

Marinette, Wis., May 18.—The city is no longer paying small boys 50 cents for the interment of dead cats, or $1 for the burial of lifeless canines. Mayor Fisher stopped the practice. If he had not there would probably not be a live feline in the city now.

During the two or three days that the rule was followed, youngsters brought in the scalps of twenty cats and ten or twelve dogs. The intention of the ordinance is to provide for the burial of cats or dogs that are found dead, but the boys didn't wait for the cats to die. They helped them, and as a result the mayor's office was inundated with kids bringing in certificates showing that they had properly laid beneath the sod one of the rat destroyers.

One of the consequences was that many people mourned the loss of household pets that for years had snuggled up to the fireplaces and the warm spots near the kitchen stoves. Liver and strychnine were used for promotion purposes.

BUILD MANY STOCK CARS.

Northern Pacific is Planning for a Heavy Shipping Season.

Brainerd, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word reaches this city from St. Paul that the Northern Pacific railroad will build 500 stock cars this summer. There will be 250 of them built in Brainerd and 250 in Tacoma. The local officials in the shops here, when asked about the matter, refused to talk, but from other reliable sources it is learned that the material has already been ordered and that work on them will commence just as soon as it commences to arrive. This, in addition to the regular repair work, will insure the car side a good season's work.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

MOOSE LAKE MAN DROWNS

Principal Anderson Loses Life in Kettle River Rapids.

Boating With Companion When Craft is Swamped.

Moose Lake, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Adolph E. Anderson, principal of the Moose Lake public schools, was drowned Saturday afternoon in the Kettle river rapids, called Hell Gate, near Sandstone. Mr. Anderson and Walfred Westholm of Moose Lake started out Saturday morning in a small boat from Moose Lake down the Moose and Kettle rivers, intending to go to Sandstone and come back by rail on the Northern Pacific. Their boat was swamped in the Hell Gate rapids and the two men battled for life for half a mile in the seething water. Anderson, who had one artificial arm, was helpless from the start, so Westholm had to keep him above water until they reached the Kettle river quarries, where their cries for help could be heard. Anderson was too exhausted to hold onto the rope that was thrown out by the quarry employes, so he could not be saved. Westholm was fortunately carried to a rock by the current, so that he was able to pull himself away and was rescued by the quarrymen. His body was terribly bruised from being dashed against rocks by the swift current. The body of Anderson has not been recovered and probably will not be until it floats up, since there have been many drowned in the same place, but not a single recovery of the body by dragging.

The deceased's parents live at Rock Creek. He was a graduate of the St. Cloud normal. He had been re-elected to his position here for next year and had two more weeks of school left this year.

NORTHERN PART MORE HEALTHFUL

Upper Section of Wisconsin Less Death Rate Than Lower.

Madison, Wis., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the months of January, February and March, 7,913 deaths were reported, according to the quarterly bulletin of the state board of health. These figures are compiled from the reports of the local registrars of the towns, villages and cities. This includes 387 delayed certificates, which are not included in the tables of classification issued by the board and corresponds to an annual death rate of 13.6 per 1,000 estimated population.

"The northern section shows a death rate of 10.8 per 1,000, while the rate for the central section is 12.9 per 1,000 and the rate for the southern section is 14.2 per 1,000," says the bulletin.

"The unusually high death rate shown for the southern counties of the state is proof that complete returns are being obtained, while the low death rate in the northern counties can be only explained in two ways. Either the northern part of the state is more healthful or else on account of the sparse population and the long distances to be traveled, the undertakers are not filing their death certificates promptly. Whenever it appears that the sub-registrar provision in the law can be utilized we have urged licensed undertakers to apply for a permit to act as sub-registrar, with the understanding, of course, that the certificates of death will be filed promptly and a burial permit issued in every case.

"The important causes of death were: Pulmonary tuberculosis, 515; other tuberculosis, 116;; typhoid fever, 91; diphtheria, 107; scarlet fever, 55; measles, 33; whooping cough, 31; pneumonia, 1,074; meningitis, 143; cancer, 260, and violence, 295.

"Of the 295 deaths caused by violence, 58 resulted from suicide, 42 were caused by railroads, 22 resulted from accidental burns, 17 were caused by drowning, 8 from gunshot wounds, 7 were caused by homicide, 6 by street cars, 5 by freezing, 2 by coal gas and 1 by hydrophobia."

GIRLS FIND CADAVER.

Grewsome Discovery of Maidens While Picking Flowers.

Washburn, Wis., May 18.—While out picking flowers near the town of Mason in the southern part of the county, two school girls came across the body of a man lying near the road way. They notified the authorities and an investigation was made. The body proved to be that of Peter Nelson, a homesteadder who has been missing since last November.

GEN. McARTHUR TO SPEAK.

Ranking Officer of U. S. Army Will Address Veterans.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lieut. Gen. MacArthur, ranking officer of the United States army, will deliver the address at the Memorial day exercises at the Soldiers' home on Memorial day. The program includes a parade at 10 o'clock in which 1200 veterans will march and the planting of flowers and flags on the 3800 soldiers' graves. The home band will furnish music.

The revenue cutter Tuscarora will be placed at the disposal of the Woman's Relief corps May 30, and the women will strew flowers on the waters in honor of the nation's dead on both sea and land. Mayor David S. Rose will deliver an address on board the Tuscarora.

Col. A. G. Weissert will make the Memorial day address at the Wisconsin Veterans home at Waupaca.

DELINQUENT SALE PROVES SURPRISE

Much Local Money Bids for Property in Becker County.

Detroit, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—As an indication of the improvement in times in general people here are pointing to the delinquent real estate tax sale here last week. All former customs and precedents were relegated to the deep, dark background and the taxpayers of the county are benefited to the extent of several hundreds of dollars.

It has always been customary heretofore to allow one or more outside syndicates to attend these sales and take their pick of the descriptions at the state rate of 12 per cent. However, a surplus of ready cash in the hands of local parties changed the complexion of matters upon this occasion and the bidding was spirited in the extreme, numerous descriptions being run down to 1 per cent.

At least a dozen bidders were present and when the first piece was put up one man said: "I'll take that at 12;" "10," said the next; "8," chimed in another. This was kept up until 1 per cent was finally reached, and there it closed. A deathly stillness pervaded the room, for it was apparent to all present that there was something doing in the bidding line. As piece after piece was put up and the rate chased to the bottom, a feeling of rivalry developed that reminded the spectators of the old-fashioned country acution before by-bidding and other sharp practices became so prevalent.

HENWOOD MINES SOLD.

Ontonagon County Mining Property Has Changed Hands.

Rockland, Mich., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The real estate of the Henwood mines has been knocked down to J. H. Rice of Houghton at a public auction which was held at the front door of the courthouse by George W. Stannard, the receiver. The consideration was $1,-650.

The Henwood mines was a private corporation and was organized in 1864. It owned 1,040 acres on the mineral belt, lying to the northeast of the Lake property and is believed to carry the same lodo as is making such a fine showing on the Lake property. The descriptions are: Northwest of southeast of Section 11, entire of section 14 and east half of northwest of Section 15-51-37, and the northeast of 36 in 52-38.

The Trevorrows of Greenland acquired several tax titles to the property and held possession of it for years. During the past few months they transferred their interest in the property to C. A. Seneeal of Lake Linden.

The interest which Mr. Rice has acquired is subject to these tax titles, and it is for this reason that the price paid is so seemingly insignificant. However, it is understood that a satisfactory plan of settlement has been effected between Messrs. Rice and Seneeal and their associates.

ELOPES WITH BOARDER.

That is Theory of Disappearance of 13-Year-Old Girl.

Houghton, Mich., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The parents of Josephine Puzzotl, the 13-year-old Hurontown girl, who disappeared from her home a few days ago, simultaneously with the vanishing of Joe Morabito, a boarder at the home of John Puzzotl, the girl's father, have as yet been unable to locate the missing girl. It is their belief, however, that the girl and Morabito are still in the Copper country, no trace having been found of anyone answering their description having left on any of the southbound trains since Wednesday night.

FUEL FROM RIVER.

Many People Gathering Wood From the Old Mississippi.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is a silent but watchful crowd that is busy all day along the river bank, all the way from near Sauk Rapids down to the packing-house, picking out the driftwood from the river. At least thirty women and children may be seen along the bank from morning till night, armed with ropes and crude spears, and many cords have been taken out every day. Most of the poor families residing near the river obtain their winter's wood in this manner, one man having piled up enough already to last him a year. The wood consists mostly of limbs and broken logs which are of no other use, and but very little of it gets beyond the limits of the city. Some of the women and children wade out into the cold water and others have constructed rude rafts, on which they paddle out to where the wood drifts by.

THIRTEEN LIGHTNING STUNT.

Neenah, Wis., May 18.—During a severe thunderstorm, lightning struck the home of Gilbert Jones near here. A peculiar feature of the incident was that thirteen bricks were knocked out of the chimney and thirteen clapboards ripped off the side of the house. The interior of the house was badly wrecked.

BOY CHOKES TO DEATH.

Walker, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Newkire lost her young son in a terrible way. She heard him cry out and rushed to his assistance, but she was too late. When she arrived upon the scene she found her son choked to death. He had one end of a rope tied to a calf's neck and the other around his own neck.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Washburn—The county board of supervisors held their first meeting at Washburn last week, and organized by re-electing A. P. Tompkins as chairman without opposition. This is the fourth year that Mr. Tompkins has been chosen to fill this important position.

Ashland—The case of Joe Osler vs. M. J. Peppard has been settled by the payment of $2,551.70. Mr. Peppard bought certain lumber used in the construction of the ore dock several years ago, turning the money into the court. The timber was cut on Indian lands, and Indian Agent Campbell instigated the suit, until the rights of the Indians could be determined.

Chippewa Falls—Most of the logs which John F. Dietz has been holding up at Cameron dam for three years will arrive here this week, through the Chippewa river. The logs were hauled from the Thornapple river to the Flambeau river by W. E. Moses of Northfield, Minn. There are still about 500,000 feet of logs belonging to the Mississippi River Logging company above Cameron dam.

Neenah—The twenty-second annual convention of the Wisconsin Sunday School association will be held at Neenah-Menasha, Wis., on May 26, 27 and 28. Milwaukee—Robert Gersch, now charged with murder as the result of the death of William Boshke, whom he shot on April 25, was a nervous wreck in district court Friday after being told of the death of Boshke and the change of the charge against him from assault with intent to kill to murder. His hearing was adjourned to May 26.

Whitewater—Dr. Frank B. Brevier, who died at the home of his son, Dr. Brevier of Fort Atkinson, taught school in Whitewater nearly fifty years ago. He was principal of the leading school for eleven years. He visited here last month. He was 77 years old.

Milwaukee—Valentine Boschke, who was shot of the afternoon of April 27, died at St. Mary's hospital Thursday from blood poisoning caused by the bullet which was lodged in th back of his neck. Robert Gersch, who is alleged to have committed the deed and also to have tried to kill Boschke's daughter-in-law and his son, is out on $3,000 bail, awaiting preliminary examination.

Hortonville—The safe in the general store of E. A. Graef was blown during Thursday night and $600 in cash, bank certificates valued at $500 and a gold watch was carried away. No one heard the blast and the robbery was discovered Friday morning when Mr. Graef opened the store for business.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Crookston—W. S. Lycan, Wylie Phillips, Dr. H. W. Smith and J. S. Cowley returned Saturday from Cass Lake with the biggest bunch of fish ever brought to the city, 275, weighing over 400 pounds as the result of less than two days angling in Cass Lake. They were all fine pike, and as the water is yet very cold they were elegant specimens.

Mankato—Ben Gerlick, a 16 year old boy who several weeks ago took some chloroform with supposed suicidal intent was found in the postoffice in a semi-conscious condition, again tried to take his own life Friday in the same manner, but was again frustrated.

St. Cloud—Frederick Dunkel, a prominent farmer of the town of Gilman, and chairman of the town board, has announced himself as a candidate for representative from this district. Mr. Dunkel was a candidate for the Democratic nomination two years ago, but was defeated by a narrow margin.

Hawley—Two stretches of cement sidewalks were laid the past week—one in front of the residence occupied by G. W. Hendrie and the other in front of the Haywood house.

Gary—A person who claimed to be a barber hailed into Waubun the first of last week and by the assistance of someone purchased some razors and Mr. Engle's old chair. The next day he disappeared with the razors and has not since been heard from.

Brainerd—A stirring sermon was preached Friday evening at the Methodist church by Evangelist Daniels on the theme of "Record Making." The audience reached a high state of enthusiasm touched upon the point of the citizen making his record for civic righteousness.

Moorhead—The annual forfeited tax sale was held at the county auditor's office at the court house last week and was attended by a large number of buyers. The sale was a most successful one, and taxes amounting to $8,000.71 were bid in and certificates issued therefor.

Shevlin—School closed Thursday after a very successful term. Mr. Boynton, who has been in charge of the higher grades left for his home at Ostrander, Minn. Appropriate exercises were held on the closing day.

International Falls—The launch Edla has a party of Iowa land seekers up the lake last week taking a second look at some stone and timber claims they will shortly make final proof on. L. H. Slocum accompanied them.

Staples—The Ladies Aid of the M. E. church will have their regular meeting in the church parlors next Wednesday afternoon, May 20. Ice cream will be served during the afternoon and evening, and they will also have plants for sale to fill orders given previously:

Pine River—J. N. Stewart left Wednesday for Howard, S. D., with a carload of lumber with which he will build a residence on one of his Dakota farms, where he also intends to spend the summer with Mrs. Stewart, who left about a month ago.

Blackduck—Father O'Dwyer of Bemidji will be in charge of the special services to be held in the Catholic church this week beginning on Wednesday and continuing for three days.

Red Lake Falls—Under orders of the district court V. M. Higinbotham, referee, will sell the northwest quarter of section 22, township 150, range 42, at public auction at the west front door of the court house in Red Lake Falls on the 23rd day of May, at 10 o'clock a. m. This is a fine farm near Brooks and should bring out some lively bidders.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Minot, N. D.—A criminal complaint is out for Herman Sheer of Minot, who is charged with carnally knowing a female child 15 years of age, under of promise of marriage. Sheer is a married man with a family living in Minot. He left the city several days ago and the sheriff is trying to locate him.

Bismarck, N. D.—The members of the local volunteer fire department are practicing for places on the running team which will be organized soon. Thursday evening 16 of the men were at an improvised track near the stock yards for practice.

Fargo, N. D.—A traffic bureau is being organized in this city and will possibly be in operation by the first of June. It will be known as the North Dakota Traffic bureau, and is being organized by J. W. Thompson of St. Paul, who will be general manager of the concern.

Ellendale, N. D.—The North Dakota Artesian Well company, which has been at work here in an effort to secure a third flow artesian well, struck a splendid flow at an early hour Saturday morning at a depth of 1,385 feet and from all appearances the new well is probably the finest one in the state.

Minot, N. D.—Alderman George Burke of the Second ward has resigned, his resignation to take effect immediately.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The Minto high school students will give a class play in the opera house on May 22. The title of the production will be "Merchant of Venice Up to Date," and faithful practice by the students for the past six weeks has undoubtly fitted them to take the respective parts in an able manner.

Amasa—Amasa is considerably depressed by the death of Gust Mangenson, one of the most respected citizens of the place. Mr. Mangenson lost his life by falling from the third level to the bottom of the Gibson shaft, a distance of 150 feet.

A Woman's Health

Is a heritage too sacred to be experimented with. For her peculiar and delicate ailments only medicines of known composition and which contain no alcohol, narcotics, or other harmful or habit-forming drugs should be employed. The one medicine which fulfills all these requirements is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—a remedy with a record of over forty years of cures to recommend it; a remedy, the makers of which print its formula on every bottle-wrapper and attest its completeness and correctness under oath; a remedy devised and adapted to woman's delicate constitution by an educated physician—an experienced specialist in woman's diseases; a remedy, every ingredient of which has received the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar diseases; a remedy which has more bona-fide cures to its credit than any other sold by druggists for woman's special requirements. It is not given away in the form of "trial bottles" to be experimented with, but is sold at a fair price by all dealers in medicines.

Delicate, weak, nervous women should especially shun the use of alcoholic medicines which, from their stimulating and exhilerating effects may seem, for a time, to do good, but which from the inevitable effects of the alcohol in shrinking up the red corpuscles of the blood are sure to do great and lasting harm in the long run. Besides they beget a craving for stimulants which is most deplorable.

Only invigorating and nerve strengthening effects can follow the use of this famous medicine for women. It can not possibly do harm in any state or condition of the system. It has been carefully adapted to woman's needs by an experienced physician—a specialist in their diseases. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

If a woman has bearing down, or dragging pains, low down in the abdomen, or pelvis, backache, frequent headaches, dizzy or fainting spells, is nervous and easily startled, has gnawing feeling in stomach, sees imaginary floating specks, or spots before her eyes, has melancholia, or "blues," or a weakening disagreeable drain from pelvic organs, she can make no mistake by resorting to the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It will invigorate and tone up the whole system and especially the pelvic organs.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Perscription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic, "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

No woman suffering from any of the above symptoms can afford to accept any secret nostrum or medicine of unknown composition, as a substitute for a medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and has a record of over forty years of cures and sells more largely to-day than ever before. Its makers withhold no secrets from their patients, believing open publicity to be the very best guaranty of merit.

Dr. Pierce invites all suffering women to consult him by letter free of charge. All letters of consultation are held as strictly private and sacredly confidential and all answers are returned in plain, sealed envelopes. Address: Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good." They are the original Little Liver Pills first put up by old Dr. Pierce over 40 years ago. Much imitated, but never equaled. They are tiny sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

Your stomach can digest "FORCE"

when it can't digest any other food. That's because the crisp flakes of whole wheat are thoroughly mixed with the saliva and other digestive fluids, and because the starch in the wheat is converted into dextrine by barley-malt, thereby relieving your intestines of the hardest part of their work.

"FORCE" is made of the best white wheat, steam-cooked, rolled into thin flakes, combined with the purest barley-malt and baked. Always "crisp" it before serving it by pouring into a pan and warming it in oven. Then serve in large dish with cream, piling the flakes in one side of the dish and pouring the cream in the other side, dipping the flakes as eaten.

Your Grocer sells it. No other Flaked Food is "Just as Good."

TO DIE TOGETHER.

Chicago May 18.—What appears to have been an agreement on the part of Henry Rudolph Amann, a German musician, 43 years old, and his 12-year-old foster son, Walter Knobel, to die together, came to light yesterday, when Amann was found staggering through the woods, near Fort Sheridan, delerious from self-inflicted wounds. The facts as gleaned from the musician's rambling statements, when partially revived at the hospital at the Fort says he led the boy into the forest last Friday and, after wandering about for nearly two days, had gained the boy's consent that Amann should kill him. The body of the child was found yesterday afternoon, pierced through the heart by a knife blade. Amann had stabbed himself twice in the heart, but his wounds had not proven fatal. A letter was found in Amann's pocket, which he declared the boy had written, and which tended to prove that the latter knew what his fate was to be, and welcomed it. The letter read:

"Please bury us together in one grave. Everything was against us. I do not want to live without my father. I go of my own free will."

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Detroit, May 18.—At the fortieth annual convention of district No. 6 of the Independent Order of the B'nai B'rith, which opened here yesterday, officers were elected as follows: President, G. M. Greenbaum, Danville, Ill.; vice president, Jonas Weil, Minneapolis; secretary, A. B. Zeelenfreund, Chicago; treasurer, H. S. Goldsmith, Chicago. District No. 6 comprises Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and North Dakota.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

TERRY IS IN GOOD FORM

Heady Marvel Blanks Sox in His First Game of Year.

Maroons Find Schmiler Easy and Score Four Times.

Winnipeg, Man., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ralph Terry, the sensation of the Northern league for two years, started out for another record by blanking the Duluth White Sox Saturday afternoon in his first game of the season. The score was 4 to 0.

Terry pitched great ball. He had everything, with control as the big asset, and Morrow's men swung ineffectively at his harmless looking benders. The five hits were so badly scattered the Duluthians never had a chance to get a man across the plate. In the field the Maroons played midseason ball, with Metzger at third starring.

Schmiler, a side-wheeler, was in the box for the White Sox, and he proved pretty easy. The Maroons hit him safely ten times and bunched for runs in the third, fourth and seventh. The Sox gathered four errors, but they couldn't have changed the result with perfect play.

Nearly 7,000 people saw the game, which was a good exhibition. Both teams pulled off numerous sensational plays, which brought the enthusiastic fans to their feet in cheers. The score: R.H.E.

Wiltse Is Hit Hard.

Cincinnati, May 18.—Wiltse held the Cincinnatis until the eighth inning, when six hits, including a triple by Hulswitt and a home run by Ganzel, the latter hit coming with the bases full, put the New Yorks out of it. A one-handed catch by Paskert was the feature of the day. Score: R. H. E.

Valued Same as Gold.

B. G. Stewart, a merchant of Cedar View, Miss., says: "I tell my customers when they buy a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills they get the worth of that much gold in weight, if afflicted with constipation, malaria or billousness." Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 25 cents.

Here they go. It's well enough for the Americans to be fighting the Canadians tooth and nail for the possession of the Northern league pennant, but when the Canadians get to tearing into each other, it's an indication that we are to have a brand of rivalry in the league this year that will produce some of the finest mixes this northern clime has ever seen. The following is a letter from V. E. Lattimaer, president of the Brandon club, to the Brandon Sun:

"In the Winnipeg Free Press of Tuesday I notice that J. M. Lamb at considerable length assures the Winnipeg fans and people generally that Winnipeg will without doubt have another pennant winning team this year. He also tells of the efforts he has been making to secure stars for Winnipeg. As president of the Brandon club, it appears to me that if Mr. Lamb, who is president and secretary of the Northern league, wishes to make a success of the league, he should leave the boosting of the Winnipeg club in the press to somebody else. Mr. Lamb in his official capacity appoints and instructs umpires and decides matters of difference between the clubs, and I think he should hesitate before showing his partisanship so strongly. I would have addressed this letter to Mr. Lamb personally had not his very strong views been made so public."

Lattimer is right in a large measure. Of course, it was to be expected that Lamb, who was secretary of the Winnipeg club for so long and probably the most active man in furthering the game in the Manitoba metropolis, would be partisan toward his home club. There is, however, no necessity for his boosting his club in public, to the detriment of the other teams and the point of the Brandon man is well taken.

Give Fargo and Duluth a chance to strike their stride. Because they have suffered defeat on the Canadian side of the border, there is no reason to suppose that they aren't as good as the clubs over there. Only three games have been played and yet the knocka-tive fan is already swinging the hammer. If Duluth and Fargo get an even break, or a little worse on the present trip, they are doing finely. Both are opening away from home. Fargo didn't have the advantage of a training trip and what Duluth had didn't amount to much. Not a team in the league has struck its proper gait and, perhaps the improvement in the Sox as the season advances will be much more marked than that in Winnipeg and Brandon, which are now playing better ball than either of the American clubs. Three games don't show anything. Neither will six or ten. When the season has advanced a month or so, the percentage column will show something of the relative strength of the clubs and not until then.

It's a wonder some beneficent person with a large healthy bludgeon wouldn't drag Terry McGovern off into a corner and ram a few self-evident facts into that portion of his dome that should be inhabited by brains. Since he was turned loose from the insane asylum he has been talking fight, but always something came up to stave him off. Saturday night, he did succeed in getting into the ring with Young Loughrey at Philadelphia and the press dispatches generously said it was a good draw.

In the days of by-gone glory, Young Loughrey would stand about as much chance in the ring with Terry McGovern as a cocker spaniel in the same pit with a fighting terrier. Poor old Terry was floored in the fourth and in the sixth he weakened. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Irresponsible Human Beings should get after the people who allow the little ex-champion to go in the ring. He was all right in his day, but his day has long passed. He hasn't sense enough to realize it and the people who accede to his crazy demands are responsible.

FARGO EASY FOR ANGELS

McNeil's Men Cannot Hit and Boot Many in Field.

Brandon Hits Brown Hard and Rolls Up Big Score.

Brandon, Man., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—It was Smith's turn to slip one over on Bill McNeil's weaklings Saturday and he "done noble." The showing of the Fargo team was pitiful. They booted and muffed until McNeil was tearing his hair in distraction and in the meanwhile, the Brandon crowd were merrily swatting the ball and chasing runs across the plate. The score at the end of the horrible matinee was 11 to 1.

Smiths' pitching was too much for the Dakotans. Sturgeon, a new infielder, who looks very good, and Cooke were the only men to connect with him at all and their puny singles hardly counted. Everybody on the Fargo club broke into the error column except McLaughlin and Brown, and Metcalf topped them all with three misplays. Metcalf's work in left saved a larger score, however, for he made a couple of marvelous catches.

The Angels played another near-perfect game in the field. The infield worked beautifully, Wagner and Livingston grabbing off some particularly hot ones. O'Dea on first had seventeen put-outs, the Fargo crowd getting only five or six balls out of the infield. Mills muffed one in the fifth and handed the Fargoans their only score.

FITWELLS LOSE TO HIBBING

Cummings is Wild and Gilligan Pitches Good Ball for Home Team.

Hibbing, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Good pitching by Gilligan, Cummings' wildness and errors by the visitors' infield were responsible for the defeat of the Fitwells of Duluth by Judge Brady's Colts yesterday afternoon by a score of 7 to 2. Cummings had all kinds of speed and slants, but he had trouble locating the plate, and his team-mates bunched errors with passes to help the Hibbing men around the bases.

The Fitwells couldn't hit Gilligan consecutively. Their five hits were pretty badly scattered, and the two misplays of the Hibbing infield didn't do much damage. The Fitwells succeeded in getting one across in the fifth and one in the ninth, saving themselves from a shutout.

BALL PLAYERS ARRESTED.

Southern Leaguers at Mobile Give Bond and Go on With Game.

Mobile, Ala., May 18.—The eighteen ball players and the umpire, who participated in yesterday's game between Mobile and Montgomery of the Southern league, were arrested on charges of playing ball on Sunday. Bonds were immediately provided and the game proceeded without interference.

WHITE SOX NOT HITTING

A. W. Kuehnow Returns From Opening Game at Winnipeg.

Pitchers Are Working Well and There Will be No Changes Yet.

Al Kuehnow returned this morning from Winnipeg, where he saw the first three games of the series. He isn't particularly hilarious over the showing of the team, but he's not kicking strenuously, either, and there isn't likely to be any big shake-up for a time, unless things go radically wrong.

"It's too early in the season to pass judgment on the team, but I think there may be a change or two," he said. "The pitchers worked all right in all three games, but the boys weren't there with the gad as well as I expected, and the squad may be bolstered up with a few clouters before the season goes very far. However, we will see how things come out on the Canadian trip, and will be able to tell more about the team when more games have been played.

"Winnipeg is baseball crazy again this spring. The opening day and Saturday we played to capacity crowds, and Friday the stands were fairly well filled. I understand that Brandon is turning out well, and there is nothing in sight but a good season for the league."

JUMPING STUMPS ON THE CORNER LOTS

Two Harbors, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Duffy's good pitching won a well-played game from the Two Harbors team for the Columbias of Duluth yesterday. The Duluth pitcher allowed but one hit, fanned thirteen men, and the Columbias won by a score of 4 to 2. Carey also pitched good ball, but the Columbias bunched hits with errors in the ninth inning for two runs and the victory. Score: R. H. E.

KELLEYS DROP TWO.

Virginia Club Bats Larsen and Kelleys Fail to Hit.

Virginia, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Virginia nine had little trouble taking two games from the Kelleys of Duluth yesterday afternoon before a good crowd. Larson pitched both games for the visitors. In the first, he was hit hard and Virginia won, 7 to 2. In the second game, he did better, but his support fell down and the home team won again 5 to 2.

Grogan and Tredway pitched fine ball for Virginia. In the first game, Grogan allowed but six hits and fanned twelve men. In the second, Tredway was hit safely seven times and fifteen men whiffed before him. Anthony's batting was a feature. Scores: R. H. E.

NEIGHBORS IS FINED.

President O'Brien Disciplines Two Kansas City Men.

Milwaukee, May 18.—President J. D. O'Brien of the American association of baseball clubs yesterday announced that he has suspended Monte Cross, manager of the Kansas City team, for three days for umpire baiting, and that he has fined Outfielder Neighbors $25 for refusing to obey the umpire's instructions and unnecessarily delaying the game. Both offenses were commite at Kansas City on May 15 against Umpire Kane.

SPORTS OF THE WEEK.

Golf Tourney, Regatta and Billiard Events Are Scheduled.

New York, May 18.—With the program filled with notable events both afield and afloat, the sport-loving community has much to look forward to during the present week.

To the golf players the metropolitan amateur championship over the links of the Baltus club grounds stands as the week's feature in the United States.

The first of the Eastern regattas will take place next Saturday when yachts of various classes, large and small, will strive for the trophies offered by the New Rochelle Yacht club. The races will be held on Long Island sound.

Frank Sherman and Alfred de Oro will play Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights at Philadelphia for the world's championship pool trophy. Two hundred points will be played at each session.

HIBBING'S SCHEDULE.

Brady's Team Will Play Best Semi-Pros in the State.

Hibbing, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The schedule of The Herald.)—The schedule of the Hibbing independent baseball team has been completed for a good part of the season, thirty games having been arranged. All of the best semi-professional teams in the state will be played. A trip to consume two weeks will be opened at Minneapolis, June 13, and several towns will be visited.

The schedule, as arranged thus far, is as follows: May 22 and 24—Kelley Hardware team at Hibbing; May 30, 31 and June 1, Colored Keystones of Minneapolis, here; June 6 at Chisholm; June 7, with Chisholm at Hibbing; June 13 and 14, Lund Land team at Minneapolis; June 15 at St. Cloud; June 16 at Staples; June 17 at Crookston; June 20 and 21 at Bemidji; June 26, 27 and 28, with Virginia at Hibbing; July 3, 4, 5 and 6, Colored Gophers at Hibbing; July 11 and 12, Lund Land team at Hibbing; July 17, 18 and 19 at Virginia.

CANFIELD WINS AGAIN.

Nolan is Fifty Balls Behind in Handicap Pool Match.

Canfield won the fifth block of 100 balls in the handicap pool match at the Brown billiard hall, Saturday night, scoring 100 while Nolan was pocketing 80. Nolan played in hard luck, scratching on several easy shots. He made some spectacular plays, which were cheered by the crowd of spectators.

Under the terms of the match, Canfield is to score 1,000 while Nolan is scoring 750. The score to date stands: Canfield, 500; Nolan, 375. Nolan is 50 balls behind the game, but he expects to make it up in the remaining five games as his play has been improving in the last few games. The match will continue every evening this week until completed.

KING STICKS TO HIS EARLY LOVE

Manuel Says He Will Marry Daughter of Waiting Maid.

Lisbon, May 18.—Mundo prints a romantic story about King Manuel's attachment for the young daughter of a lady-in-waiting to Queen Amelie, which threatens to disrupt the matrimonial plans which are being laid for him.

King Carlos and Queen Amelie were fully aware of the fondness of Manuel when a prince, for the girl, who is connected with the highest Portuguese nobility, but they considered it simply a childish fancy.

Since Prince Manuel's unexpected accession to the throne, a suitable alliance with an European royal house is regarded as a necessity of state. Queen Amelie and the duke of Oporto have been casting about to find an available princess, both favoring one of British extraction, because of the close relations between the countries.

A few days ago they were openly canvassing the matter in the king's presence, when to their great surprise he suddenly announced as his unalterable choice his early love, and proclaimed his determination either to marry her or no one.

Remonstrances on the ground of reasons of state were without effect, and as a consequence the lady-in-waiting and her daughter will be asked to go abroad in the hope that a long separation will cure the king of his boyhood love.

FLOATER WAS SUPERIOR MAN

Body Taken From Bay by Engineer of Tug.

The body of Otto Carlson, a Superior saloonkeeper, was taken from the bay Saturday evening by Bruce Pringle, engineer of the tug Jefferies. The floater was seen near the interstate bridge, and is thought to have been the same one which sank earlier in the week when a tug crew tried to draw it from the water. Coroner McCuen had the body taken to Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms.

The body remained unidentified for a time, but as soon as Carlson's friends heard of the finding of the floater, a delegation of them came to Duluth and positively identified it as the remains of the missing man. He disappeared April 13, and his friends have been much worried about him ever since.

All indications point to suicide, as there were no marks on the body that would indicate foul play, and it seems that he had removed all marks on his clothing that might lead to his identity. He met with business reverses a few months ago, losing his saloon as a result. This is said to have depressed him.

Carlson was 48 years old, and has a brother living at Two Harbors, who telephoned yesterday that he would take charge of the body. The funeral was held this morning at 11 o'clock from Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms. Interment was at Park Hill cemetery.

S.S.S. FOR RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood, brought about by the accumulation in the system of refuse matter which the natural avenues of bodily waste have failed to carry off. This waste or refuse matter ferments and sours and generates uric acid which is absorbed into the blood and distributed to all parts of the body, and Rheumatism, with its torturing pains and aches, inflammation and other disagreeable symptoms, gets possession of the system. The aches and pains may be relieved and the inflammation temporarily reduced by the application of a good plaster, penetrating liniment or some other simple home remedy, but the disease can never be cured while the blood remains saturated with the irritating, pain-producing uric acid poison. The cause should be driven from the blood before the trouble reaches the chronic or helpless stage. S. S. S., a purely vegeteble remedy, cures Rheumatism by thoroughly cleansing the blood of every particle of the uric acid poison, and making this vital fluid pure, fresh and health-sustaining. It filters out from the circulation the remotest particle of the poison, and when S. S. S. has renovated the blood, Rhe

ALL DISEASE IS MENTAL

Address by Member of Christian Science Lectureship Board.

Healing Ministry of Christian Science Discussed by Bliss Knapp.

A large audience gathered at the Lyceum yesterday afternoon to listen to a lecture by Bliss Knapp, C. S. B., on "Some Phases of Christian Science," delivered under the auspices of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Duluth.

Mr. Knapp's lecture was as follows:

Every known religion or philosophy claims to be the promulgation of revealed truth; but whatever may be the nature or quality of such truth, that which differentiates the demonstrable revelation of Jesus Christ from them all is its power to give health and life. Other religions might interest themselves in a man's death or the Adam dream, but "I am come," said Jesus, "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." His healing, resurrection and final ascension demonstrated this life-giving element in Christianity.

It is this element of healing which distinguishes Christian Science from the prevailing religions of today. If the healing sometimes overshadows the religion in its appeal to the stranger, it is because he has not looked beyond the cure to seek the cause or explanation; for that which determines the real import of Christian Science is its theology, and by way of application this theology exhibits a system of healing and reformation, necessarily mental and spiritual, which system is based on the inspired Word of the Bible. Both the sinner and the disease are healed by the same principle, which proves that the church never should have divorced the healing element from Christianity. The leading purpose of Christian Science, however, is the destruction of sin, and in this we all are united against our common enemy. Far from being an ethical philosophy for academic debate, this is a life to be lived,—a truth to be proved.

For one to relate the story of how Jesus went to Peter's mother-in-law and healed her of a fever, does not set forth in any adequate manner the explanation of how it was done. The mere recital does not delineate the power that accomplished the healing, nor does it give the process so that another might readily repeat the operation. At least we may draw this inference from the fact that these works have not been repeated for several centuries. Now that which has given to Christian Science its utilitarian value is its ability to explain satisfactorily, not only what the power is which enabled Jesus Christ to perform the miracles of Christian healing, but what the rule is for doing those works in accordance with the command, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father."

Footsteps in Spiritual Discovery.

When Jesus healed the centurion's servant and the Syrophenician's daughter without so much as going near them, it should be clear that the power must be mental. An English poet (Puttenham) has propounded the query, "For to say truly, 'what else is man but his mind?' Indeed we might ask, 'What else is God but divine Mind?" It is truly unthinkable to conceive of an all-wise, all-intelligent God apart from Mind. When the availability of God's healing power is seen to be in the ever-present Mind, then He becomes "a very present help in trouble." Indeed, how can an ever-present God be everywhere present, except that presence is Mind? The words of Saul that "to be carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace," expresses the fact that the healing power is in the spiritual or divine Mind, not in matter.

The first of the old patriarchs, peering up through the carnal to the spiritual, beheld in this ever-present Mind a supreme power, the same power which later divided the waters of the Red Sea and closed the lions' mouths. When Abraham looked above the prevailing idolatry of the age and beheld in faith one supreme power governing the universe and man, that power was to him the Almighty. Now Abraham could see only the promise of deliverance,—only the promise that "to be spiritually minded is life and peace," from what he saw afar off and by faith only was made known more clearly and distinctly. Indeed the voice of God said unto Moses, "I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, by the name of God Almighty, but by my name Jehovah was I not known to them."

Like the experience of Abraham, the first sense that Moses had of God was one of power, but this experience grew into a realization that this power of divine Mind is expressed in well defined laws. Then it became possible for this Hebrew law-giver to prove thereby that God is not only ever-present, but ever-available for man's deliverance. With the actual proofs of deliverance from the plagues, the Red Sea and the terrors of the wilderness, this law was seen to be the truth in so absolute a manner that the Scriptures have added to Abraham's definition of Almighty, the Messianic declaration that God is Truth; and David has reiterated this discovery by the declaration that "thy law is the truth." Nevertheless, when these people had the law, and lived by the law, and were delivered by the law, there was yet one thing needful they lacked. The fullness of the law was not yet understood. They were still looking for the promised "Immanuel, or God with us."

The one who supplied this lack, and who became thereby the great physician, the best healer and reformer the world has ever known, was Jesus of Nazareth. He proved by his words and works that he knew more about God and His law of life and salvation than any other man in the annals of history. By means of rites and sacrifices provided by the law, Moses healed the flesh of leprosy and serpent bites; these sacrifices, however, never made the people perfect, but continually reminded them of their sins. Knowing better how to atone for this lack through the spirit, Christ Jesus purged their conscience once for all, and once purged, they had no more consciousness of those sins. The apostle Paul has portrayed this as the true healing. Where the vision of Abraham stopped at the power of Mind, and Moses beheld the law of justice which demands penalties, the founder of Christianity with deeper perception could see in that same power the attraction of divine love which says, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Thus the Scriptures declare that what the Israelites lacked was this Christian idea of love, for "Love is the fulfilling of the law," and for that reason the beloved disciple declared that "God is love." This union of justice and affection was the proof that not the law, but love is the power that heals.

Christian Doctrine Evil.

Let us consider for a moment this evil that Jesus purged from their conscience, for it introduces another very striking point of difference between these rites and sacrifices and the perfect law of Christ. The Israelites accepted the seeming power of evil, in that their law provided penalties for it. The founder of Christianity, on the other hand, taught a perfect law, fulfilled in love, which included no imperfection or evil, and therfore provided no pelanties for it. For "when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away." Jesus, therefore, conducted himself as though evil had no right to exist anywhere, since it had no right in the perfect law, and he purged the people's conscience of it as though it were nothing, just as infinite harmony corrects, dispels or wipes out discord. It is clear that the divine intelligence cannot be inspired with ignorance, and it is equally clear that evil or error is ignorance of truth. Evil is then a negation, the unreality of which is proved only as one understands the allness of God. As Christ Jesus understood this allness of God, he could prove the nothingness of sin, disease and even death,—the last enemy to be destroyed,—and he taught others this method of purging the conscience of sins.

So long as the law provided penalties for evil, the Israelites believed the exponents of evil had to be killed to be rid of the evil. They believed, therefore, in a personal devil. The founder of Christianity, on the other hand, taught that evil is not a person, but a carnal mind; for whenever he rebuked the devil, it purged the conscience—I read the person of the carnal or perverted sense of mind and healed him, and that without being killed for the purpose of salvation. Indeed, he cast seven devils out of one person, and proved that "to be spiritually minded is life and peace." That the disciples were slow in grasping this new doctrine is proved by their request to have fire called down from heaven to destroy certain evil persons, for Jesus "rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of. For the Son of Man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them." To this end he taught that the kingdom of heaven is within you, and "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

Scientific Discovery.

The proof of Christianity was in the purging of the conscience of its sin and sickness, as manifested by the works of healing. Through the materialism of the ages this proof was early lost; but Christian Science has rediscovered primitive Christian healing, and has supplemented this work by the discovery of its Science. One of the criticisms of Christian Science has been that it is not a science, which means that it obeys no law. You well know that a science implies classified understanding—it requires a law which must be presented in its unity, order and system. This is precisely what Christian Science does. It presents this divine law in its unity, order and system with such accuracy that the proof of healing prevails. It is therefore scientific, and it is Christian, because this law is not physical but divine.

Jesus' Teaching.

It is interesting to observe the method which Jesus instituted in teaching this healing power to his disciples. Not gifted in learning, these disciples were nevertheless familiar with the Mosaic law. Indeed they were as familiar with the Old Testament writings as is the veriest man of today, but their spiritual sense of it must have been closer, for we may read in Luke's Gospel how that Jesus opened "their understanding that they might understand the Scriptures." It is possible, then, for a materialist to be familiar with the Scriptures and yet not understand them. It was their spiritual understanding, therefore, that needed to be opened. When Jesus healed the man with the withered hand, all that he said was, "Stretch forth thine hand." And it was restored whole like as the other. We are all familiar with those words, but suppose some one today repeated these same words to one suffering with a withered hand, could the mere repetition of these words heal him? It must be evident to you that it was Jesus' spiritual understanding and not the words which healed the sick. One might in time commit to memory the whole Bible, from Genesis to Revelation, and not be able to heal a single case, because it is the spirit of the Word which heals. "The letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life." For "the true worshipers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth."

To present this spiritual understanding, it was necessary for Jesus to begin on their plan of thought where they could grasp the meaning of His teachings. He began with parables, and without a parable spake He not unto them. A little later He said, "I shall no more speak unto you in proverbs, but I shall show you plainly of the Father." In this He did exactly what the mother does when she teaches her child that two and two are four. The mental problem is a pure abstraction to the child, for he has not yet become familiar with mental processes; he has not reached beyond the tangible forms. Therefore the mother begins with something as tangible as four red apples. They mean something directly, and he can understand that two red apples in one hand placed with two red apples in the other, make four red apples. We can't proceed too rapidly, however, for next there must be an intermidiary step. The child must learn by thinking red apples that two and two are four. Then he is ready to grasp the mental problem without the physical forms. In like manner Jesus taught His disciples in parables, using the things of common experience which they could understand. Gradually in this way He lifted their thought to more spiritual altitudes, until He sent them out two by two to heal in His name, and behold they returned saying, "Even devils are subject unto us in Thy name." The great mental principle which underlies all being and action was unfolding to them, and they grasped the spirt of it all, so that Jesus could say to them, "I shall no more speak unto you in poverbs, but I shall speak unto you plainly of the Father." On the walk from Emmaus the disciples said, "Did not our heart burn within us . . . while He opened to us the scriptures?"

There are many today who believe that the healing works of Jesus are not teachable, averring that the disciples gained their understanding through the personal inspiration of the great Master. If this were true, what shall we do with Paul and the early Christians? Paul was not a personal disciple of Jesus, but he understood how to heal the sick and raise the dead. He was at first a persecutor of the Christians, actively engaged in opposing their teachings. Since mathematics follows a scientific law, it matters little how much one may ignorantly oppose its principle; for the moment he understands mathematical law, he can solve the problems of mathematics. For the same reason, the moment that Paul understood this Principle, which is God, he gave to the world the proof of its understanding by the healing works. It was no longer unreasonable to him. He learned that the carnal mind was no fit standard by which to judge the spiritual facts of being. For 300 years this Christian healing continued to be exercised by the church.

"I will not leave you comfortless," said Jesus; and He promised to send us another comforter which he defined not as a man, but as the "spirit of truth," which shall abide with us forever, and testify of Him.

Disease Mental.

When one turns to God for aid or comfort, it is commonly done through prayer. Christians are taught that prayer is efficacious in the reformation of sinners, because of the mental nature of sin. They are also taught to pray for the sick, but most people have looked upon sickness as purely physical, and therefore outside the control of mental prayer. However, if disease were purely physical and could be reached only by drugs or material means, there could be no such thing as Christian healing. One of the leading points in the theology of Christian Science, and one which physicians are now admitting to be true, is the mental nature of disease.

All admit that insanity is a mental disease, but very briefly let us consider a case of surgery.

When a surgeon administers anesthetics to suspend or divert the thought during the process of an operation, he is proceeding on the assumption that if a man can't think, he can't be hurt; for during the time when the patient's thought is suspended or diverted, his flesh and bones manifest no pain, sensation, life nor intelligence. Consequently pain is all in the thinking. It is in the mortal mind and not the physical form. It follows therefore that even a surgical operation may prove indirectly the mental nature of disease.

It is not enough, however, to know that disease is mental and that mind enter into the practice of Christian Science at all, and there is no proof will cure it. We must recognize with Paul two types of mind, "For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." The body is therefore healthy or diseased according as to the mind which governs it is illumined by the healing spirit of God, or clouded by the infection of carnal thoughts and heresies. In the ratio that one approximates the thought and mind of God and of Christ Jesus, he can understand the law of truth and love which regenerates the thought, casts out his fear, and heals the sick.

Healing Methods.

There are many who charge God with visiting sickness and death upon His children. It would startle many to learn the large number of excellent people who are driven annually into infidelity by the cold and cruel assertion that God takes our loved ones away from us; and Christian Science wins these good people back to Him by proving that God never made a man suffer with disease. The devil does that, according to the teachings of Jesus. The gospel of love has done away with this belief of an angry, jealous and cruel God. The founder of Christianity knew that divine love never made a man sick, and never even permitted it; for when he healed the lunatic child he did not rebuke the angels of God, but "he rebuked the devil, and he departed out of him; and the child was cured from that very hour." At another time he rebuked the devil of dumbness, and when the devil was gone out, the disease went with it, and the dumb spake. Even a poor crippled woman he referred to as "a daughter of Abraham, who Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years," and he healed her by first casting out the sinful cause.

Jesus would have it understood, therefore, that sickness and disease are the procurement, not of God, but of the devil, or evil which "changed the truth of God into a lie." It is clear that his sense of devil was not a something with hoofs and horns, but that it is the evil thought which proceeds from the heart and defiles the man. The sick man, however, by reason of his sickness, may not be more sinful than the well man, as you will perceive by the following words of the Master: "those eighteen, upon whom the tower of Siloam fell, and slew them, think ye that they were sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem? I tell you, nay; but except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

If the good and pure seem to suffer more than do others, it is from a too feeble understanding of God's protecting power. It is because they fail to understand how the law of God applies to their need. So good a man as Job regarded his sickness as the buffeting of satan and not of God; but he sought a cure through a better understanding, not of his disease, but of the power of God which overcomes disease. When the cure came, he cried out to God, "I have heard of Thee by the hearing of the ear; but now mine eye seeth Thee." He was healed because he had perceived the truth which unites reason and revelation in man's freedom.

Christian Science Not Hypnotism.

The influence of the mind over the body in health and in disease is receiving considerable attention from intelligent physicians, and there are many in all walks of life who believe that the human will is the mental agency employed. When one has explored this action of the human will in influencing disease, he is apt to believe that he has explored the whole range of mental conditions with which Christian Science has to do. For this reason it has been charged that Christian Science sprang from the teachings of a certain hypnotist. As a matter of fact, not that a single sentence in Science and Health was ever written by any human being other than Mrs. Eddy herself.

Let us investigate a little and see if this be true. Human will is the carnal mind and "to be carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." "By their fruits ye shall know them." Some of the fruits of this carnal mind are evil thoughts, murders, fornications, anger, jealousy, hatred, revenge, which produce sickness and disease and defile the man. They are absolutely opposed to the fruits of the Spirit, for these are honesty, justice, mercy, goodness and so on, which produce life and peace.

As human will is mostly clearly marked in the animal instincts, the seeking after food and pleasure, and the effort to exploit itself as something and frequently the only thing, so the educated and more hidden use of this animal will is exploited in hypnotism and mesmerism, and these are known as animal magnetism. It was this philosophy of the serpent which "changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator." It is not of God, but of the serpent who said, "ye shall be as gods knowing good and evil."

Spiritual things must be spiritually discerned. No one can learn mathematics by the rules of biology, neither can one learn astronomy by the rules of physiology. It follows just as truly that the rules of physics can never interpret divine metaphysics. Even as one has to think mathematically to learn mathematics, so does one have to think spiritually to gain the interpretation and understanding of Christian healing.

Mrs. Eddy's Discovery.

Before Mrs. Eddy discovered Christian Science, she had been searching for years along the line that all causation is mental. She had been studying homeopathy and learned that pain is all in the thinking, and that the higher attenuations of medicine which contained the least of the drug and the most mind were the most powerful. When she arrived at the conclusion that disease is mental and that mind does the healing, she desired to learn which mind, whether the human or the mind of Christ.

Her next quest was to make a careful investigation of such mental influences as spiritualism, mesmerism and hypnotism; but she didn't find God there. This she did discover, however, that this carnal will expressed in spiritualism, mesmerism and hypnotism, is the cause of disease instead of its cure, and thus she escaped the many wiles and foibles that all before her had stumbled into. It was therefore impossible for her to build her system on these products of the human will, and she turned in prayer to God, and searched the Scriptures for the divine Mind "who healeth all thy diseases."

It was at this period of her experience that the dawn of the spiritual light came and found her waiting and prepared to receive the message. The circumstances which brought it and thereby established her conclusions was her remarkable recovery in the year 1866, from an injury caused by an accident. She had touched the hem of the Christ-Truth and was instantly healed. This was the vindication of her long search, for it was the spirit that quickened, and she had made it her own.

Now that Mrs. Eddy had found the Comforter, which is the "Spirit of truth," and which heals the sick, she began to search the Scriptures for a scientific explanation of it, that she might impart it to others. She soon learned that the healing operates according to a divine law, and she began to write out her observations. These writings formed the basis of her more complete work known as Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, which was first published in 1875.

As a sermon may seek to explain or comment on the Scriptures, so the Christian Science text book is a scriptural commentary, which can never take the place of the Scriptures, but which makes them clearer to human understanding. As other commentaries have sought to elucidate the gospel preaching. Science and Health proves that the gospel healing is not an impenetrable mystery, but presents the naturalness of law and salvation. It can not, for that reason, be the human opinion of a woman, for no one can either make or change the law. Indeed Mrs. Eddy has religiously excluded any human opinion on this subject, and has confined herself to declaring an absolute principle. The facts have been presented as they exist, and for that reason, the simple study of that book heals the sick both morally and physically. Instead of separating reason and revelation, or separating the healing from the preaching, this book presents the whole truth that makes free, and permanent cures and reformation are the grand results. Nor should this be considered a strange result, for the Master said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." The last chapter in this book, known as the chapter on "Fruitage," contains 100 pages of testimonials in evidence and proof of the fact that its study has healed all manner of sin, sickness, disease and infidelity.

There are some who have found it difficult to grasp the author's meaning in their study of the Christian Science text book. Indeed there are some intelligent people who have confessed to this difficulty. On the other hand, the smallest school boy has been able to gain a sufficient understanding of its teachings to heal himself and others. The seeming obscurity to the riper intellect is occasioned by a wrong method of approach; for "spiritual things must be spiritually discerned." The Master said, "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." We discover therefore certain needful qualities in the child, as first footsteps to an understanding of spiritual things; these are humility, spiritual receptivity and teachableness—three qualities so native to the child that, if lost, they must be regained to reach the verities of Spirit.

What else may be said about her, this fact should portray the true character of the discoverer and founder of Christian Science; for those childlike qualities must have been uppermost in her thought to discover accurately this "spirit of truth" or divine comforter. Indeed she is a true friend to all lovers of truth. She has presented its true meaning of liberation and liberty, and thereby won the boundless gratitude of humanity.

How clear it is that a book is the product of the author's mind. We can know the mind of Shakespeare today by reading his books. We can discern the kind of man, whether he was good or evil, by his writings. In like manner the purity of Mrs. Eddy's thought is clearly portrayed by her writings, for she is a faithful disciple of her own teachings. To understand the works is to understand the author, and it follows that to understand the author is to understand the works. This is why Jesus said, "no man can do a miracle in my name and lightly speak evil of me," and it follows just as truly that no one can lightly speak evil of the author of Science and Health and understand its teachings. Paul had to change his thought concerning the early Christians and their teachings, and his understanding was coincident with his life afterwards. It should be a reasonable thing in a Christian land for the teachings of our Master and Wayshower to be fulfilled. Christian Science has penetrated the mystery of his words and works; and in all that we do, we are asked to observe Mrs. Eddy's enjoinment, "Follow your leader only so far as she follows Christ."

MECHANICAL ENGINEERS

Semi-Annual Meeting is to be Held Next Month.

Detroit, Mich., May 18.—The semi-annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will be held in Detroit June 23-26. An entire session will be devoted to papers on the conveying of materials, when hoisting and conveying machinery, including belt conveyors, the use of conveying machinery in cement plants, etc., will be discussed.

Among other subjects which will be taken up by professional papers are "Clutches," with special reference to automobile clutches by Henry Souther; "Some Pitot Tube Studies," by Prof. W. B. Gregory of Tulane university, New Orleans, La., and Prof. E. W. Schroder of Cornell university; "Thermal Properties of Superheated Steam," by Prof. R. C. H. Hack of Lehigh university; "Horse Power, Friction Lossess and Efficiencies of Gas and Oil Engines," by Prof. Lionel S. Marks of Harvard university; "A Journal Friction Measuring Machine," by Henry Hess of Philadelphia; "A Simple Method of Cleaning Gas Conduits," by W. D. Mount; "A Rational Method of Checking Conical Pistons for Stress," by Prof. G. H. Shepard of Syracuse university, and "The By-Product Coke Oven," by W. H. Blauvelt. A lecture on "Contributions of Photography to Our Knowledge of Stellar Evolutions" will be delivered by Prof. John A. Brashear of Allegheny, Pa. The usual receptions will be held and excursions will be made to manufacturing plants, the shipbuilding yards and various points of interest in and around Detroit. Among the excursions planned is one to the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. The gas power section of the society will hold a session, and the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education and the Society of Automobile Engineers will hold a meeting in Detroit at the same time. As far as possible sessions will be arranged so that members interested in subjects treated by the other societies may attend their sessions without missing papers on related subjects read before their own society.

REPAIRS AT BROOKSTON.

Brookston, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A crew of Great Northern carpenters are at work in the village, making numerous repairs to the company's property here. New shingle roofs are being put on the agent's and section foreman's houses, a guard rail will be placed on each side of the bridges that span Stony brook and some repairs will be made on the coal chute.

When your food seems to nauseate take Kodol. There isn't any doubt about what it will do and you will find the truth of this statement verified after a few weeks' use. Sold here by all druggists.

THAW HEARING ENDED.

Decision Expected to be Handed Down Next Monday.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 18.—Harry K. Thaw's plea for his liberty from Matteawan insane asylum, where he has been confined since his acquittal for the murder of Stanford White on the ground of insanity, will probably be decided by Judge Morschauser on Monday, May 25.

The hearing in the habeas corpus proceedings brought by counsel for Thaw ended late Saturday night, after District Attorney Jerome had made the sensational request that Thaw, whom he had called to the stand, permit his alienists to examine the Pittsburger and to judge of his mental condition because they had had no opportunity to converse with the defendant. Thaw was not permitted to respond, the court itself instructing him not to do so.

CASS LAKE BILL PASSED.

Establishes Reserve and Opens 75,000 Acres to Settlement.

Washington, May 18.—Representative Lindbergh was successful Saturday in passing through the house the bill which establishes a permanent government forest reserve in Northern Minnesota and opens for homestead entry about 75,000 acres of land in the vicinity of Cass Lake.

There was not a vote cast against the measure and several Democratic members, including John Sharp Williams, leader of the filibuster movement, supported Mr. Lindbergh.

The bill passed the house with a few minor amendments and Senator Clapp said that the senate would readily concur in them, thus insuring the final enactment into law of this measure which will be of substantial benefit to Cass county.

DROVE OF CARIBOU.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A drove of eleven caribou was seen near Roseau village last Monday, moving in a southeasterly direction, apparently journeying towards the Red Lake territory. This is not the first bunch of these animals that has been seen in this section, moving in the same direction, and it is reported here that just over the Canadian line, that there is a general movement of game of this kind into Minnesota. Not over a week previous another drove was seen near Warroad, headed southeasterly.

BROADWAY LOOKS BLUE

Empty Cafes and Hard Times Talk on White Way.

C. A. Marshall Says New Yorkers Are Cutting Out Luxuries.

"Broadway doesn't look good to me," said Charles A. Marshall, manager of the Lyceum theater, who returned Saturday after spending about a month on "The Great White Way," arranging for next season's theatrical attractions.

"There are too many empty cafes, and barber shops, and you hear more hard times talk there in a minute than you do in little old Duluth in a week.

"The curtailment of luxuries, which by long years of indulgence have come to be regarded as near-necessities by New Yorkers, is the most noticeable indication of changed business conditons in the nation's metropolis.

"The fashionable cafes, which in former years entertained gay throngs after the theaters dismissed their patrons, appear deserted in comparison. Where one was glad to find a seat of any kind formerly, he can now secure an entire table to himself, with a couple of waiters to attend to his wants. In other lines of trade the same conditions are true. Twenty-chair barber shops with but five chairs working are common sights, and a number of the fashionable places have suspended entirely on account of the dull condition.

"Taken as a whole, theatrical people have had a pretty rocky season," continued Mr. Marshall. "There have been a few brilliant successes, but, going to the other extreme, the plays which have not taken hold immediately have been miserable failures. In New York the theaters which are patronized by the wealthy people and have good attractions have enjoyed long runs and bountiful box office receipts, but only a very few, comparatively, have been successful. The little people of the theatrical world do not want to go through another winter such as that just passed. The panic of last fall frightened people in the large and small cities alike, and, except in a few cases, they have regarded the theater as a luxury to be denied themselves."

Mr. Marshall was successful in booking some big attractions for the Lyceum next season. In all, forty-five attractions have already been secured for an average run of two nights each, giving ninety dates already made. "The Merry Widow," "The Witching Hour," and several other big New York successes are on the list.

JUST MISSED BEING FORGER

Young Man's Nerve Failed Him at Last Moment.

His nerve failing him at the last moment, an unknown young man dashed wildly out of Louis Oreck's jewelry store in the Manhattan building, Saturday night, just as Oreck was about to give him good money in exchange for an $85 bogus check.

The fellow was stylishly dressed and there was nothing suspicious about him. He made a purchase and presented an $85 check in payment. The clerk did not suspect anything and walked back to the safe and started to count out the change.

When he returned with the change and the article purchased, he saw the stranger running through the front door. By the time the clerk reached the door the man was half a block distant. Police headquarters were notified, but the almost-a-criminal has not been discovered.

THOMAS SEXTON, PIONEER DULUTH RESIDENT, DIES

THOMAS SEXTON.

Thomas H. Sexton, one of Duluth's oldest residents, died at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the family residence, 616 East Fourth street. He was 84 years of age. Death, the doctors say, was primarily due to senility. Mr. Sexton had been in a comatose condition for many hours before the end came. The fact that he had lived in Duluth for a period extending over more than half a century made him a very familiar figure in the city, and he was particularly well known and well liked among the older residents.

Mr. Sexton was born in Ireland, but was a thorough American, having come to Toronto with his parents when but 10 months of age. Here he spent his boyhood, but when still a young man came West to Ontonagon, Mich., where he remained until 1854, when he came to the Head of the Lakes and established himself here. In 1881 he was married to Miss Lamke of Fond du Lac., Wis., and four children, Howard, Thomas, James and Florence, survive him.

While at Ontonagon, Mich., a happy accident secured for him a position as engineer of the Forest copper mine, at what was then a princely salary of $1,200 a year. He held this position only about a year when some friends of his, who had established themselves in Superior, wrote him of the splendid opportunities offered him there, and urged him to come to the Head of the Lakes. He did so, arriving on the last boat that came through in the fall of 1854, and the outlook was far less rosy than his friends had described it to him. Coming to Duluth Mr. Sexton took up a claim of 160 acres, including the spot where the postoffice now stands, but thinking it worthless, never proved up on it. In 1861-62 he worked on the steamer Seneca, under Capt. Whalin, plying between Duluth and the Copper country, but it was not until the early '80s that he secured a good position in the commissary department of the old Duluth & Winnipeg railroad and was married. Soon after he was placed at the head of the commissary department of the Duluth & Iron Range road, where he remained until his property interests in this city required too much of his time.

Mr. Sexton was one of the settlers in Superior during the winter when food supplies fell so low that there was practically a famine at the Head of the Lakes. It cost $50 to get a sack of flour from Stillwater by means of dogs and Indians, and meat was a luxury almost too dear to be thought of. It was during this winter that Mr. Sexton and his partner smuggled a few provisions across the bay and established themselves in Duluth in a little shack near Lester river.

A few years later when he was in the employ of the Duluth & Winnipeg, Mr. Sexton had in his employ Louis Rouchleau and P. McDonnell, who were employed in packing goods to the camps he had established.

IMPROVING BAY FRONT

Chance for Park Pointers to Obtain Filling of Sand.

Low Portions of the Land Could Also be Filled.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I wish, as a private citizen, to call the attention of Park Pointers and others who may be interested to a possible opportunity for improving the bay front along Park Point by obtaining a filling of sand from dredgings in the harbor, at little or no cost to the owners.

In case Mr. Bede's bill, which is now before congress, should be approved, authority will thereby be given to expend a considerable sum of money for the enlargement of the Duluth harbor basin by dredging to the southward in accordance with the recommendation of the board of engineers, which reported on the matter last summer.

This would mean the dredging of a large amount of material, and this being sand, in that locality, could be very readily excavated with a hydraulic dredge, and probably some cheaper than with a dipper dredge, provided a place were available for depositing the sand within a reasonable distance, like half a mile or so, to which it could be discharged through a pipe.

Maj. Fitch, in his statement to the board of engineers, printed in H. R. Document 221, Sixtieth congress, first session, page 31, gives considerable detailed information bearing upon this proposed work. He says: "Probably much of the sand could be deposited on the bay shore of Minnesota Point, and this would serve a useful purpose by widening and strengthening this strip of land which forms a protection to the harbor."

There will be enough material excavated to fill to any desired height and out to any distance inside the harbor line, and for a mile or more along the Point from the canal. As for holding the sand at the outer edge, a bulkhead or retaining wall of some kind would be a good thing, but not essential, for the sand might be allowed to take a flat slope. Bulkheads might be necessary to hold the sand away from the Yacht club, Boat club and the Life-Saving boathouse.

It would also be possible at the same time to fill with sand the low portions of the land on Minnesota Point, as has been suggested by Mr. Taylor of this office, and it probably would be a good idea to fill in that way the parts west of Lake avenue, including Minnesota avenue, up to about the present height of Lake avenue. This would enable good dry cellars to be constructed under residences, would make it possible to hurry water pipes to a depth that would avoid freezing and the higher land would add to the appearance of the point. If such filling were to be done the houses which are standing near Minnesota avenue should first be raised to correspond to the new grade. The filling of ground and the raising of buildings has been carried out on a large scale in the city of Galveston, as is well known. Plans for the filling of Park Point as far as it involves the raising of streets would properly be worked out by the city engineer, and such work would of course have to be done under the jurisdiction of the proper city authorities.

The filling of property as outlined above would, I believe, not only greatly benefit the owners and the city, but would be a convenience to the contractors and might effect some saving in cost to the government. The dredging is not yet assured, but is mentioned at this time in order that it may be properly considered, so that when the work comes up (as it is likely to) the parties concerned may decide what they wish to have done and be prepared to make suitable arrangements with the dredging contractors. Very respectfully,

JOHN H. DARLING.

THREE KILLED IN RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Flora, Ind., May 18.—Three persons met death and another was fatally injured in a crossing accident last night when a Pennsylvania railroad passenger train struck a carriage, hurling the occupants in the air. The vehicle contained the family of Township Trustee James L. Cripes, who met instant death, Mrs. Cripes, his wife, and a 2-year-old daughter, Ruth, were also killed. Another child was fatally hurt.

Hospital Nurse--- Matron Gives Valuable Recipe for Constipation.

"There is too much neglect of, or too many patent medicines used by the public for constipation. Every incoming patient recites the same story—neglected or improperly treated constipation. The great increase of operations for appendicitis, rectal diseases and womanly displacements, indicates the crying need of a mild but sure treatment for constipation. People won't consult physicians for this common ailment of old and young, which is responsible for contagious diseases taking hold of the system, owing to constipation poisons that get into the blood. Headache, stomach trouble, piles and all the fevers of children can be prevented by using this mild formula whenever any costiveness exists: Get at any well stocked drug store, 'one ounce aromatic fluid Cascara,' 'one ounce compound essence Cardiol,' and 'two ounces aromatic syrup Rhubarb.' Mix, and adults take from ½ to 2 teaspoonfuls after each meal, while children will readily take from five drops to a teaspoonful after each meal, according to age. This treatment will correct the bowels and not drug them. The longer it is used the less need of it except when some heavy meal is consumed, or when one catches cold.

"Old and young will be delighted with its mild action, and every family of intelligence will keep it always in the home to avoid the serious, expensive and death-dealing contagions, so prevalent at this season," says this kindly, motherly nurse-matron.

ROAD IS IN BAD REPAIR

W. C. Sargent Says Condition of Snively Road Is Shameful.

Beautiful Driveway Built by Private Enterprise, Going to Ruin.

"The lid question, sanitation in schools, safe theaters, playgrounds for children, the grouping plan for public buildings, the new Y. M. C. A. building and a score of other things have so engrossed the public mind of late that the 'City Beautiful' is more or less forgotten," says William C. Sargent, an old resident of Duluth.

"There lies within the city limits, and easy of access, opportunities for a magnificent park system that are not possessed by any other city in the world.

"Some fine property has already been acquired and much has been done along the line of establishing parks, but if we are going to have such a city here as most of us believe, now is the time to acquire the necessary and available property for a complete park system.

"In the early '70's the men who inaugurated the South Park boulevard in Chicago were burned in effigy. Today their names are spoken in reverence.

"Some days ago I had occasion to go over the first 'Snively road.' This road extends from the Jean Duluth road, on the west side of section 31, 51-13, easterly and southeasterly to Lester Park, a distance of about three miles.

"The road was built some years ago by S. F. Snively, almost entirely as a private enterprise. It has been permitted to go to ruin and, to my mind, it is the city's shame that such a condition exists.

"The road was never legalized by the east of the Jean DuLuth road, and to keep it up in good condition was too much of a task for private enterprise.

"For the most part the road runs through a natural forest, skirts the banks of the beautiful Lester river and crosses the river by means of rustic bridges, seventeen times. It winds around the hills and is one of the most beautiful and picturesque driveways to be found anywhere. The lover of nature, the park enthusiast and those who enjoy picnicking in the wilds will bear out my statements.

"The autoist and the pedestrian, the philanthropist, the man of wealth, in fact all who are interested in a greater, a better and a more beautiful Duluth should urge upon the proper authorities the immediate acquisition of this road and a strip of land on either side of a reasonable width at the same time by the park board. The road and the ground should be made a part of the city's park system and the driveway should be kept in good repair.

"In addition to the beauty of the scenery along this road the improvement of the highway would open a lot of country to farmers and to people who want country homes.

"Let anybody with good eyesight take a trip over the Snively road from Lester Park to the Jean DuLuth road and I will guarantee that he will return home as enthusiastic over the possibilities of the same as I have been."

M'GILVRAY IS AROUSED

Preparing Statistics to Answer Statements of George H. Crosby.

City Engineer McGilvray is preparing a table of statistics, which will show the comparative cost of street paving in Duluth, Superior, Minneapolis and St. Paul. He says he is positive that Duluth is getting her paving done more cheaply than any of these cities, and even goes so far as to state that the cost of Duluth pavements runs from 25 to 50 per cent less than the cost of similar work in the other cities named.

"The remarks of G. H. Crosby at the meeting held Friday in the city hall were entirely without justification, as will be proven by the table of figures I am preparing," said Mr. McGilvray this morning. "We are getting as good work done here as in Superior, St. Paul and Minneapolis, and at much lower cost. Mr. Crosby is the first man I ever heard of kicking against the pavement on East Superior street. Everybody else has a good word for it, and I don't see how any one who has seen it can speak otherwise. It is a very nice piece of work. The West Superior street job is still in the hands of the contractor, and is not finished."

MATICH MAY HAVE A BAD RECORD

Is Said to be Wanted in Australia and Germany.

Eli Matich, who with his brother David Matich has been indicted by the grand jury for the murder of Rodi Donjovich is said to be wanted in Germany and in Austria for alleged murders. Unofficial information has reached the county authorities that there is a reward out for Matich in both of the countries named.

County Attorney Norton and Sheriff Bates are making an investigation of the matter. They have already made inquiries of the police authorities in the districts in Germany and Austria where Matich is claimed to be wanted.

The Matich brothers are said to have shot and killed Donjovich in a boarding house quarrel, near the Croxton mine, April 20 last. Eli Matich is said to have handled the revolver that was used in the killing.

MICHIGAN MAN DIES FROM HIS WOUNDS.

Ionia, Mich., May 18.—Ben Cook, aged 21, son of a farmer living near Pewamo, died at his home yesterday as the result of a three-inch knife wound in his abdomen. The wound was sustained in a fight in Pewamo Saturday night, but the young man died without naming his assailant. He got home with some assistance and got to bed without letting his parents know that he was hurt, but some time later notified them that he had a pain in his stomach. By the time a doctor was summoned his services were too late.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Judge Lanning, in the United States court at Trenton, N. J., Saturday night, made an order for a rule for cause to be shown May 25 why the receivers of the Passaic Steel company, a $6,000,000 concern, should not cease operating the plant. The concern was run at a loss of $54,000 in the last four months.

D. A. PETRE WANTS WIFE OR BROOCH

Begins Attachment Proceedings to Recover Valuable Jewelry.

Douglas A. Petre of Minneapolis, formerly of this city, is one of the principals in a district court proceeding and his divorced wife, Ethelynn Deane Petre is the other. Petre is alleged to have implored his former wife to marry him a second time, but she refused. Angered at her refusal, Petre is alleged to have started attachments proceedings to recover from Mrs. Petre a $300 brooch which he claims belongs to him.

Although Mrs. Petre has not yet filed an answer it is understood that she claims the pin was given her as a wedding present and she intends to make a fight to retain possession of it.

The Petres were divorced last February, after a little over a year of married life.

MIDSHIPMAN DROWNED BY CAPSIZING OF CANOE.

Annapolis, Md., May 18.—Midshipman Arthur Linford Lucas of Cleveland, Ohio, one of the graduating class, was drowned yesterday and Midshipman Carl D. Hibbard of Northfield, Minn., who was with him, nearly lost his own life in an effort to save that of his friend. Immediately after dinner at the academy, the two started out in a sixteen-foot canvas canoe. They had proceeded from the boathouse around the Santee dock when the canoe was capsized by the wash of a passing schooner. Lucas lost his grip upon the overturned canoe and showed signs of distress almost immediately. Midshipman Hibbard, who went to his rescue, was almost drowned, but persisted in diving for his friend after the latter had gone down. The body was recovered within an hour after the drowning.

DENVER QUARTERS

For Delegation Turned Over to Johnson Leaders by Hudson.

St. Paul, Minn., May 18.—T. T. Hudson, national Democratic committeeman from Minnesota, has notified the state central committee of his selection at Denver of quarters for the Minnesota delegation. He asks the Johnson leaders who will be in charge to take the rooms off his hands, which will be done.

The headquarters will be at the Albany hotel and will cost $35 a day, or $175 for the five days. Mr. Hudson has also engaged five rooms for members of the delegation, which will likewise be taken off his hands.

The headquarters for the Minnesota delegation were secured by Mr. Hudson following the meeting of the committee at Washington.

Help the Bowels When They Need It—Don't Delay

Don't wait till you need a violent physic, for harsh physic always harms.

Take one Cascaret as soon as you need it. Take another later if necessary.

Carry a box always with you.

Give the bowels a little help while a little is sufficient.

Thus it is easy to keep the bowels regular. And that means keeping well.

You can't take salts or pill cathartics in that way, for they are injurious.

They irritate the stomach and bowels. When oft repeated, that is disastrous.

Nearly all dyspepsia—all constipation—is caused by that sort of physic.

It is wicked to thus abuse the stomach and bowels. Gentleness is just as effective.

Cascarets act naturally. There is no griping or pain. They are vegetable.

Take one whenever you need it. They're as harmless as food.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

and one by Governor Johnson of Minnesota. The latter is carrying a handicap because his candidacy did not become definitely known until after the various county, city, district and state organizations had been lined up for Bryan.

It should be said that Mr. Bryan is not the choice of the Alabama Democratic leaders, and that these leaders would shed no tears if Governor Johnson should walk away with the delegation. They say, however, that such a result is now highly improbable. Had Johnson entered the race down there a month ago he would undoubtedly have carried the state, say members of the Alabama delegation in congress.

The effect of the statement made by Senator Johnston that he favors the Minnesota candidate is good all over the state. Senator Johnston said:

Johnson Would Win.

"The first consideration of a patriotic Democrat is the success of his party. The fortunes of individuals who soon pass off the stage are scarcely worthy of consideration. It is vastly more important to the South, and to the country at large, that a Democrat, faithful to the principles and organizations of the party, should occupy the White House, than that we should express our esteem for and confidence in any man. Those who believe in the fundamental principles of our party constitute a majority of the voters of the United States, but questions of policy have separated and divided our ranks and many have come to believe that Republican rule mean prosperity. They have been ruthly converted.

"From a clear majority in the United States senate we have seen our members dwindle to one-third. We have seen every Democratic senator save one or two, from Northern and Northwestern states loss his seat. The South has been invaded and Kentucky and Missouri have elected a Republican senator each. If we can present a candidate on whom we can unite and who can carry some of the Northern and Western states this year we should see Democratic senators following in the wake of victory at the polls coming to hold this citadel—the last defense against sectional legislation. I want to see the man best qualified to lead us to success.

"I have been a friend and supporter of Mr. Bryan in every contest he has made. I do not feel less kindly to him now. No one has a greater admiration for his patriotism, sincerity and ability than I. I would rejoice to see him president. I think the chances of Democratic success greater now than in many years. It is no time for any attack on any great party leader; no time for dissensions, or divisions. I do not say that Mr. Bryan cannot win. I should be hopeful of success were he nominated, but I do say, that in my opinion victory is more certain with Governor Johnson as our standard bearer, and this opinion is that of three-fourths of the Democratic senators at Washington.

"Governor Johnson has not aroused the opposition of any Democrat anywhere. He has, by his unaided, ability, energy and integrity, risen from humble poverty to the highest station in his state.

"Many Democrats do not approve of some of the policies of Mr. Bryan. Not one is opposed to a single policy that Johnson stands for. Many Democrats have refused to vote for Bryan. Not one has failed to support Johnson, but thousands of Republicans have flocked to his standard.

"I could not support Judge Gray because I think he could not unite the party or command its enthusiastic support."

Two States for Governor?

The publicity bureau which is being maintained in Washington in the interest of Governor Johnson makes an announcement which, if true, is of the highest significance. Managers of the bureau report that both United States senators from North Carolina on Saturday afternoon declared that they would be opposed to an instructed delegation being sent from that state to the Denver convention. The United States senators are at the head of the party machine in North Carolina, and if the report is true, the delegation from that state, instead of being for Bryan, will be uninstructed and ultimately will vote for Johnson.

Managers of the Johnson bureau make the additional important announcement that both United States senators from Virginia on Saturday afternoon announced that they were for Johnson's nomination, and would work for a Johnson delegation from that state.

If these reports are true, they point to disintegration of the Bryan forces in the Southern states. The extent of this disintegration will be the measure of Governor Johnson's hopes at Denver.

Chicago Boom for Johnson.

Chicago, May 18.—Believing that William Jennings Bryan is not sufficiently strong to carry the Denver convention on the first ballot and that, even if nominated, he will fall of election to the presidency of the United States, a group of Chicago men have launched a boom for Governor Johnson.

A committee headed by Orva G. Williams last night sent out 25,000 return postal cards to as many voters of Chicago in an effort to create a Johnson sentiment intended to influence the Democrats in states whose delegates are not instructed.

John W. Eckhart, a delegate who is instructed for Bryan, attaches his signature to the card, and the other signatures are Frank G. Hoyne, Edward Tilden, B. M. Winston, W. O. Coleman, William Best, H. H. Latham, Henry Ford, Rivers McNeill, William S. Forrest and Adams A. Goodrich, all representative business men. It is merely a preliminary move. On the return of the cards a regular organization will be formed and officers elected. The card follows:

"Chicago, May 15, 1908.—Dear Sir: As Democrats we are all interested in having the strongest man put in nomination at the national convention to be held in Denver. We believe Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota to be that man.

"The Johnson sentiment today is many times what it was two months ago, and we foresee that our Illinois delegates will be compelled to make a second choice at Denver. Johnson is the man.

"By enrolling your name you will help. Please sign the return card and return promptly."

This card is headed "Johnson organization of the city of Chicago, 223 and 225 Washington street." On the reverse side is a place for the signer's name.

Mr. Williams has this to say about it:

"We feel confident that Mr. Bryan will be unable to win on the first ballot, and believe that Johnson can get sufficient votes on the second ballot for the nomination."

Deer Lodge for Johnson.

Butte, Mont., May 18.—The Democrats of Deer Lodge county have enthusiastically indorsed Governor Johnson of Minnesota for president. Fergus county selected an uninstructed delegation.

Thomas Bury, Postmaster at Two Harbors, Takes His Life.

Opens Postoffice, Then Returns Home and Fires Fatal Shot.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas A. Bury, postmaster here, and for years an honored and highly respected citizen, killed himself at his home this morning. His tragic end caused a sensation, as he was liked by everybody. So far as known, his affairs at the postoffice are in good shape, and his friends are at a loss to account for his action, as when last seen he appeared to be in his usual frame of mind. He was of a very nervous temperament, and some think perhaps something occurred in the last few days that so upset him that in a moment of temporary insanity he took his life.

Mr. Bury arose about the usual time this morning and went down to the postoffice. He swept out the place, then returned to his home for breakfast, as had been his habit for years. He went to his room on an upper floor, and about 8 o'clock his family were horrified to hear a shot and jarring sound, as though something heavy had fallen. They rushed upstairs and found Mr. Bury dying. A bullet hole in his right temple and a pistol beside the body told the story of self-destruction. Death soon ensued. Coroner Goldsworthy was notified, and he is expected to decide this afternoon whether an inquest will be necessary.

Mr. Bury was 54 and a native of Mausstonna, Wis. He came here a number of years ago and had a wide circle of friends. He was serving his third year as postmaster and gave general satisfaction. A few years ago he was one of the estimaters appointed to value the timber on the Leech Lake Indian reservation. He once served in the city council. A widow and two children, a son and a daughter, both grown, survive. The deceased was a member of the Elks' lodge at Duluth. The daughter was a member of the Duluth normal class last year. The funeral arrangements are not perfected.

Later in the day Coroner Goldsworthy held an inquest and the finding of the coroner's jury was that death was due to an accident. It is said that Mr. Bury was going fishing and that it is presumed he was handling the pistol carelessly preparatory to taking it along when the weapon went off, the bullet entering his head, causing instant death.

The arrangements for the funeral have been held up pending the receipt of advices from a relative at Billings, Mont.

REV. R. J. MOONEY WILL BE SPEAKER

Duluth Man Will Deliver Memorial Address at Two Harbors.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The committees having the Memorial day celebration in charge have about completed the arrangements and will have a lengthy and impressive program. Rev. R. J. Mooney of Duluth has been secured as speaker. H. K. Gillon has been appointed marshal of the day. There will be music and singing by the high school pupils, and all are requested to assist in the observance.

The funeral of Gustaf Erickson, who died Thursday last was held Friday from the Swedish M. E. church and was largely attended. Rev. A. F. Peterson conducted the services.

William Johnson was called to Evarts, Mich., today by the death of a brother there.

The social given at the Catholic parsonage was a very pleasant and successful affair.

City Attorney John Dwan has been elected district delegate to the Democratic national convention at Denver.

Four ore crews were put on this morning to bring in the ore being loaded at the mines, and more will be put on if necessary. Business, however, is expected to be very light until the boats begin to move, which will be about June 1, and but a small force of men will be needed on the road and at the ore docks.

Mesdames W. W. Scott and Dennis Dwan pleasantly entertained Saturday evening in honor of Miss Crist, who will finish her duties as teacher in the local schools this year.

W. J. Tranah and family moved to their farm at Brunson Saturday, and will reside there during the summer.

The game of ball yesterday between the locals and the Columbias of Duluth was won by the latter by a score of 4 to 2.

START WORK ON MILES BUILDING

Men Excavating for Structure to be Built at Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word was received yesterday from George Markham, who has been in St. Paul for the past week conferring with Mr. Miles, his partner, in the building enterprise, instructing his representative here to start work on the new Miles building immediately. Fifteen men weer started to work today excavating. The old basement is to be enlarged forty-five square feet.

PETER NORMAN DEAD.

Head of Large Family Taken Under Distressing Circumstances.

Virginia, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Norman, for several years a resident of this city, died yesterday morning after a year's illness from Bright's disease. He leaves a family of nine children, the eldest a daughter of 17 and the youngest about 4 years of age. His wife died nearly three years ago, since which time he has been in the saloon business. He was formerly in charge of a section on the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway.

He was formerly a member of the Odd Fellows lodge, but allowed his membership to lapse, and it is understood that he carried no insurance whatever. The case is a particularly sad one, owing to the large number of children left orphans.

Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

IRON RANGE CONDUCTOR.

Man Alleged to Have Absconded Not Connected With That Road.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—George L. Patterson, the former conductor who is alleged to have absconded with several hundred dollars belonging to A. G. Nordstrum of Beaver Crossing, was not connected with the Duluth & Iron Range, as stated in Saturday's Herald, but with the Duluth & Northern Minnesota railroad, another road entirely. This explanation is due to George A. Patterson, a well-known and highly respected conductor on the Iron Range road.

LIKE CONVENTION'S WORK.

Eveleth Men Pleased With Endorsement of Governor Johnson.

Eveleth, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—George W. Mulligan and ex-Mayor Charles Jesmore, who were delegates to the Democratic convention at St. Paul, returned Friday and were much pleased with the work of the convention, as they are both strong Johnson men. Mr. Jesmore was appointed a member of the Democratic state central committee, being one of the three so honored from St. Louis county.

GILBERT COMMERCIAL CLUB.

Organization Formed to Advance Interests of Town.

Eveleth, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The business men of Gilbert have formed a Commercial club, with M. M. Sweet as president and S. T. Bonino, secretary. The committee which had been appointed at a temporary meeting reported on by-laws and a constitution, which were adopted. To gain members within the town, a committee composed of John Siegel, Frank Vertin, A. K. Kapellar, S. T. Bonino and M. M. Sweet was appointed. For the present the dues have been set at $2 yearly, with an initiation fee of $5.

The Bailey block at the Gilbert is being fixed up with a waterworks system.

M. A. Masterson of Chisholm is commencing to fix up a much-needed restaurant and lodging house.

The various new buildings are being put up as fast as possible. Harry Silver opened up his saloon Saturday night, while Nathanson Bros. of this city expect to have their building finished in a very short time.

MINERS GOING HOME.

Many Discharged at Ely, Crossing the Ocean.

Ely, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recent order of the Oliver Mining company discharging 150 men at the Pioneer, Savoy, Zenith and Sibley mines in this section because of the uncertain mining conditions, affected mostly single men, the married men being given a preference. Many of the discharged ones are young men and they are taking advantage of the opportunity offered to visit their home in the old country. There has been quite an exodus from this section for several days past.

KILLED AT SKIDDOO.

Former Hibbing Man Slain by Gambler Who is Lynched.

Hibbing, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The press dispatches in The Herald recently telling of the lynching of a gambler named Joe Simpson at Skiddo Cal., for killing a man by the name of James Arnold, had more local interest than many who read it first thought. It develops that Arnold was a former resident of Hibbing. The enraged citizens of the California mining camp gave Arnold's slayer short shift, a rope and tree meting out summary justice.

Arnold left here about five years ago and located in Washington, where he engaged in the logging business and is reported to have made considerable money. He was very popular here and his many friends will be pained to learn of his tragic ending.

Mr. Arnold was engaged in the mercantile business at Skidoo at the time of his death.

He was a generous, big-hearted man, who made fast friends everywhere, and he left not an enemy in this country when he went West.

TO REVIVE CLUB.

Chisholm, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is some talk among the business men about reorganizing the Comercial club here. As there are a number of new business men in town, and with those that were here when they first organized, it will have a large membership.

CHISHOLM NOTES.

Chisholm, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. Dowling left for St. Paul Saturday morning. He will be gone a week.

Miss Seymor, a teacher in the Chisholm schools, was taken sick Thursday and is unable to teach.

Dr. Sheilman of Nashwauk is the guest of Dr. Sheilman of this place for a few days.

C. Olson started for Minneapolis Saturday to visit relatives.

A surprise party was tendered Miss J. Coombs Friday night at the home of her parents at the Hartley location. A very pleasant time was had by those attending.

RECITAL PLEASES.

Hibbing, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The second recital given by the pupils of Prof. Olaf N. Olson and Miss Margaret F. Wallace's school, assisted by Miss Elsie S. Smith and Miss Mae Wylie, both of Duluth, was well received by a large and responsive audience.

The Modern Yeoman of America held a party last Friday evening at Model hall.

EVELETH IN BRIEF.

Eveleth, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the Holy Family church Saturday morning Father Bilban married John Heink and Angela Berzovoch.

M. B. Cundy will leave this week for a short trip to Stevens Point.

Mrs. P. Schaeffer, until recently of Duluth, but who is to make her home in Virginia, has been visiting her mother here, Mrs. Lirette.

Gustav Nelson, a divinity student, will deliver both morning and evening sermons at the Swedish Lutheran church.

land district, and so whoever reached Marquette first and made his filing would be entitled to the land under the law. It, therefore, developed into a race to see who could get to Isle Royale and then back to Marquette the quickest. It looked very much as if the race would be a tie, or else that it would depend upon the last spurt of the four from the railroad station at Marquette to the land office, for both would have to depend on the same boats and trains to get them to the island and then back to the Michigan town.

But Rogers and Marquette were not content with this. They knew there would not be a boat back to Duluth so early in the season for some little time after their work on Isle Royale was completed, and so set about devising a way to outwit their rivals for the land. At first there seemed to be no way. Then one of them suggested using a row boat, which they found tied in a sheltered cove. The idea seemed foolhardy, for thirty miles of water intervened between the island and the mainland, and as it was the season of storms, there seemed about only one chance in ten of a rowboat being able to live through such a long journey.

The Michigan men were there to win, however, and casting all caution to the winds, they stole the rowboat, leaving $3 as rental, together with a note explaining that the craft would be returned. After they had gotten out a ways from the shore they found the boat was leaking, but by using the cups they had in their packsacks, they were able to kep it from sinking. Fortunately for them there were no serious storms during the trip, but there was enough wind to keep the rowboat in constant danger of being smamped.

The north shore was made in safety, and from there the men came by foot and stage to the Alger-Smith railroad, thence to Two Harbors by train. From there to Duluth and Marquette the journey was easy, and the cruisers won out by an easy margin. Great was the astonishment of the other men when they found how they had been beaten. The rowboat was sent back to the island by the next steamer.

STRIKERS AT CLEVELAND

the Municipal Traction company in the matter of fare, it is claimed that the authorities of the town make no effort to suppress lawless acts committed by strike sympathizers.

After a conference that continued almost throughout the night between union officers, headed by President Mahon of the Street Car Men's union and Members Bishop and Owen of the state arbitration board, it was stated unofficially that a formal proposition of arbitration would probably be made to President Dupont of the traction company by the arbitration board on behalf of the men.

There was a marked increase in the number of cars operated by the company today, a five-minute schedule being maintained on some of the lines. Each car carried a policeman in the motorman's vestibule.

The whole trouble has been that for twenty years the Poles of this part of the country have asked for a Polish bishop to preside over the Polish Catholic churches, and this has been denied us.

"We have no quarrel in particular with Bishop McGolrick but we are going ahead with our independent church. It does not make any difference to us now, what he says, because we are no longer under his direction.

"Bishop Hodor, an 'independent' Polish bishop from Pennsylvania will reach Duluth Saturday night and will conduct the dedication of the new St. Joseph's Catholic church next Sunday.

"We have one of the finest churches in the city, at Fifth street and Third avenue east and it will be all ready by Sunday. The bishop will lay the cornerstone at 9:30. The church is all complete but the corner stone has never been laid. Space was left for it, so that it can be put in place without damaging the building any. The dedication will be followed by special services in the new church. There will be special services at other hours during the day but final arrangements have not been completed yet. The committee in charge will make the complete program known later."

Since the St. Josephat parish was organized last year, despite the disapproval of Bishop McGolrick, the members have been worshipping in the old Lutheran church at Second street and Second avenue west.

Next Sunday, the new church on Fifth street will be occupied for the first time.

Rev. Kamil Sierzputowski is pastor of St. Josephat church and an effort was made to interview him on the plans of the independent congregation this morning but his inability to understand the English language led him to refer the reporter to a member of his parish.

The new St. Josephat church is a red brick and stone structure, with two spires.

FARM HAND CONFESSES

was half way down fired a shot into his side. Shepherd dropped on the stairs and his body fell upon that of his wife. Zastera, according to his reported confession, then entered the kitchen with the gun and, meeting Jennie Bendy, shot her in the breast. All three were instantly killed.

Stole Shepherd's Money.

Zastera then went in search of Shepherd's money, ransacking the farmer's clothing and the bureau drawers of the house. Zastera is said to have told the authorities that he hid the money somewhere about the house or grounds, but up to this morning they have been unable to confirm his story in that respect, although they paid several visits to the Shepherd farm yesterday and searched both the house and grounds to find the hiding place.

Relatives of Jennie Bendy have told the authorities that Miss Bendy was afraid of Zastera and told them that he had attempted to enter her room not long ago. Miss Bendy's sister said that Jennie had asked her to stay with her nights in order to keep Zastera from repeating his attempt.

The reticence of the officials in regard to Zastera's confession is unexplained, but it is surmised among the people of the village that they desire to have plenty of opportunity to confirm it, especially as it is conflicting in many details. It is suspected also that the authorities fear that if the story becomes public an attempt will be made to inflict summary punishment upon the farm hand.

THE MINISTRY OF EVIL.

Unitarian Pastor Sees in Satan a Helper of God.

"In the prologue to the dramatic poem of Job we find Satan presented as one of the sons and helpers of God," said Rev. George R. Gebauer at the First Unitarian church yesterday. "The naive conception seems to me full of deep truth. The problem of evil cannot be separated from the problem of good; both are indispensible factors in life. If we would understand the purpose of evil we must look at life as a whole. Then we may not call it either good or bad, but we shall admit that even in its deepest tragedy it is divine. This wondrous life is like a grand and beautiful cathedral. Ah, what pain it has cost to rear that pile; how many were killed and maimed in the process of building; their blood is mixed with the mortar and there is bitter sweet binding stone to stone. But it is grand; it is divine. More divine it is, than if it had come down from heaven without the effort of man, the work of angels, who never tire, never sweat, never are crushed by a stone. And so life is great just for the pain that is in it. And that pain is the suffering of God himself, for he and His creation are in the end one; His own life permeates all that is.

"But in times of depression we do not think of this. When we hear of a great calamity we say 'If there is an almighty and good God, how can He permit such evil?' At such times we have returned to the primer class of the Sunday school. We see again God, not as a part of His world, not at one with His law, not in the joy and suffering of His world, but simply a God standing outside of it and carelessly watching the struggles of His creation. If there be such a God, than indeed He deserves the censure and the curse of His creatures. But such a God is inconceivable to the widened mind of man.

"And with the wider view of God, the God in and through and at one with His world, there comes to us a deeper understanding of evil. It has its place in this picture of the world, the dark is needed as much as the light and bright. We are finally ready to say: 'Life is good, just because it is so bad.'

"Evil in its own way helps to push life upward and onward. Out of the conflict of sensations there arises the living world; it is God divided against himself that becomes a visible creation. Every particle of living matter shuns and fights against what is harmful, and in this struggle it develops. And as it rises new weapons grow in the fight, higher and higher organs appear, and at last the battle of life issues forth into the light of self consciousness and pain stimulates to still higher efforts.

"The beauty and strength may have been dearly bought from the standpoint of the individual, but if we look at life as a whole, we stand silenced. In every department of civilization, evil and pain were factors of progress. The terrible wars divided mankind, yet brought nations in closer union. Italy is overrun by Germanic barbarians, its civilization goes down but out of the ruins arises a greater culture than Italy had yet seen. The reformation teaches the same thing in regard to religion, and if we look at man's moral progress, we again cannot get on without the factor of evil. Out in the world of experience, and not in Eden, the moral man was made. Amongst thorns and thistles his sympathies grew; here his manhood unfolded, and at last one son of man could appear and say: 'Love your enemy.' Indeed evil that could help bring the crown of goodness Jesus of Nazareth must be divine in its ministry.

"But do not understand that I consider evil in itself as a good; it is only good as a factor in the life as it is. In itself evil is evil and not good. The way to make evil a good for us, is to hate it, to shun it, to resist it, to fight it. By denying the negation of good, we alone make it a good; we turn the curse into a blessing."

What We Warrant The Bohn To Do

Proved best by the Railroads

Returnable if not satisfactory

These claims are not mere paper talk. Not exaggerated advertising statements, but service we absolutely guarantee the Bohn to perform.

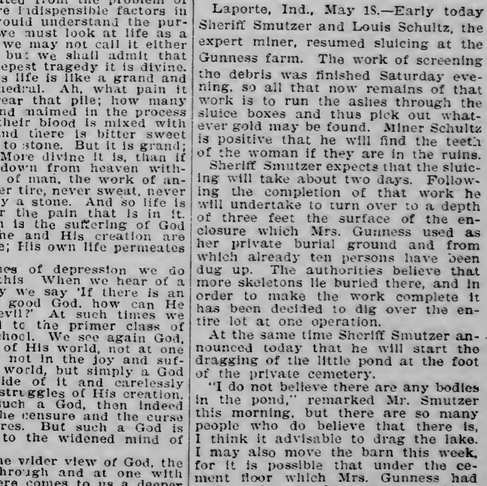
One food will not taint another. For example, celery or musk melons will not contaminate milk or butter.

Milk, the most perishable food, will remain fresh and wholesome in a Bohn seventy-two hours or more.

The food compartment is larger than in any other similar priced refrigerator, size for size.

The air circulation can be actually proved by holding a lighted match at the bottom of the food compartment where the current starts.

The interior is perfectly dry as may be proved by storing matches in the food section any length of time, after which they strike readily.



The temperature is 10 degs. lower than others and with the same or less amount of ice.

The enamel or opalite lining is as easily cleaned as a piece of china.

Will Again Dig Up Mrs. Gunness' Burial Ground.

Work of Sluicing the Debris Will Soon be Completed.

Laporte, Ind., May 18.—Early today Sheriff Smutzer and Louis Schultz, the expert miner, resumed sluicing at the Gunness farm. The work of screening the debris was finished Saturday evening, so all that now remains of that work is to run the ashes through the sluice boxes and thus pick out whatever gold may be found. Miner Schultz is positive that he will find the teeth of the woman if they are in the ruins.

Sheriff Smutzer expects that the sluicing will take about two days. Following the completion of that work he will undertake to turn over to a depth of three feet the surface of the enclosure which Mrs. Gunness used as her private burial ground and from which already ten persons have been dug up. The authorities believe that more skeletons lie buried there, and in order to make the work complete it has been decided to drag over the entire lot at one operation.

At the same time Sheriff Smutzer announced today that he will start the dragging of the little pond at the foot of the private cemetery.

"I do not believe there are any bodies in the pond," remarked Mr. Smutzer this morning, but there are so many people who do believe that there is, I think it advisable to drag the lake. I may also move the barn this week, for it is possible that under the cement floor which Mrs. Gunness had built under the barn she may have buried some of her victims.

NINTH DISTRICT BANKERS.

Annual Meeting to be Held at Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ninth District Minnesota Bankers' association is to meet in Thief River Falls on Friday, May 29. It is anticipated that at least 100 bankers and others associated with banking affairs will be in attendance from the territory extending from Cass lake on the east to the Red river, and from Fergus Falls to the Canadian line.

The program is being prepared by C. A. Baker of Ogema, formerly cashier of the First National bank of Thief River Falls. Extensive preparations are being undertaken by the local bankers and the Commercial club for the entertainment and accommodation of the visitors. A meeting and banquet will take place in the rooms of the Antlers club. The secretary is endeavoring to secure the attendance of one or two financiers of national repute.

Congressman J. Adam Bede will be in Thief River Falls on this date to deliver the commencement address for the high school and will, in all probability, attend the bankers' banquet and address the gathering. Last year the convention was held at Fergus Falls, where the visitors were royally entertained, and Thief River Falls will endeavor to do as well, if not a little better.

WHEAT HAS FIRM CLOSE

Rallies During Last Hour in the American Markets.

Flax Was Lower During Fairly Active Session in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 18.—Wheat had a rally durlng the last hour in the American markets today and closed firm in all of them except New York and Winnipeg.

A good buying demand developed after a desultory session and prices began to improve, closing firm. The buying was largely by shorts and on a bullish feeling regarding the visible supply. The visible supply of wheat was 26,477,000 bus, against 50,963,000 bus a year ago.

Cables were soft. Liverpool closed ¼d to ½d lower, Berlin ⅝c lower, Budapest ⅝c lower and Antwerp unchanged to 1⅛c lower.

The May option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth and Chicago, ¼c higher in Minneapolis and ⅛c lower in New York and Winnipeg. The July option closed unchanged in Duluth, ⅛-¼c lower in Chicago and Minneapolis, ⅛c lower in New York and ¼c lower in Winnipeg.

July corn closed ¼c lower in Chicago and unchanged in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅛-¼c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"As a result of the easiness of American markets on Saturday and the continued fine weather throughout the United Kingdom, the wheat market here was easy and from ¼d to ⅜d lower. At this decline, there was a period of steadiness owing to the firm offerings prompted by the better shipments from Russia than expected and a better spot market. Toward midday, however, the market again developed selling pressure on the reports of rains in the Danube, and more pressure to sell La Plata cargoes, and prices showed a decline of ⅝d to ¾d from the opening. At this time, the market was easy from ¾d to 1d lower than Saturday.

"Corn was quiet and unchanged. The market was wholly neglected."

World's shipments of wheat and corn last week, the week previous and the corresponding week a year ago, are shown as follows:

WHEAT.	Last Week.	Previous Week.	Last Year.
America	2,752,000	2,560,000	3,928,000

Car receipts of wheat were 16 against 80 last year, and at Minneapolis 299 against 570 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 315 against 650 last year. Chicago received 36 against 39 last year. Winnipeg received 51 against 191 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 651,000 bushels; last year, 938,000 bushels. Shipments, 1,175,000 bushels; last year, 253,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 257,000 bushels.

Primary receipts of corn were 581,000 bushels; last year, 593,000 bushels. Shipments, 665,000 bushels; last year, 506,000 bushels. There were no clearances of corn.

Wheat was fairly active in the Duluth market. May wheat was inactive and closed ⅛c higher than Saturday at $1.03⅜. July wheat opened ⅛c lower at $1.03⅛, declined to $1.03¼, rallied to $1.04 and closed at $1.03⅝, unchanged from Saturday. September wheat was inactive and closed ¼c lower than Saturday at 91c.

Durum wheat closed ⅛c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was active, but underwent a heavy depression during the day. It was a selling market from the outset. May flax opened ⅝c lower at $1.22 and closed at $1.20¾, a loss of 2⅛c from Saturday. July flax opened ¼c lower at $1.23⅛, declined to $1.21¾ and closed there, a loss of 2⅜c from Saturday. September flax was inactive and closed 2⅜c lower at $1.21⅜. October flax opened ½c lower at $1.22 and closed 2c lower than Saturday at $1.20½.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Has Fair Trade With Prices Inclined to be Weak.

Chicago, May 18.—The wheat market today opened generally quiet but with a fair trade in the July option. Prices were inclined to be weak, however, because of a decline of 1d at Liverpool and good weather for the growing crop. Later prices rallied somewhat in sympathy with corn. July wheat opened 1¼@⅜c to ½@⅝c lower at 88⅝@88⅝c and sold at 89@89⅛c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 351 cars against 312 cars last week and 689 cars one year ago.

The market became firm in the last half of the session. July selling up to 89⅝c. The close was firm with July, ½@¾c higher, at 89⅛c.

The corn market was strong because of wet weather in the corn belt. May corn sold at 76c, which is a new high record for the season. July corn opened ⅛@⅜c higher at 66⅛@66⅜c and sold at 66⅝c after touching 65¾c. Local receipts were 187 cars with 39 of contract grade.

Selling by big holders caused an easier feeling in the latter part of the session, although May corn held firm, and closed at 76c; which was the high point for the day. July corn closed easy and ¼c lower at 63¾c.

The oats market was dull and prices were steady. Good growing weather in the West was offset by the strength of corn. July oats opened ¼c lower at 46¾c and sold at 46⅞c. Local receipts were 283 cars.

The provisions market was firm because of the strength of corn and an advance of 5c in live hogs. July pork opened at 7½c higher at $13.60. Lard was up 2½c at $8.42½. Ribs were 2½@6c higher at $7.30@7.32½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.00⅛; July, 89⅛c; September, 85⅞@86c; December, 86⅞c. Corn—May, 76c; July, 65¾c; September, 63⅝@63¾c; December, 55⅞c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Lower Cables Ease Off Prices of Wheat Which Soon Rally Again.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 18.—Early Liverpool cables ¾@⅞d lower opened the week in the wheat market and caused selling. July lost ½c but rallied again. There was too much rain, the traders thought, in Missouri and Kansas, and fear of rust in case hot weather comes. Spring wheat crop news was good. Kansas City and St. Louis receipts of old wheat were larger, but in spring wheat markets this was not the case, only 299 cars coming here against 570 a year ago, Duluth getting only sixteen against 80, Winnipeg 36 against 40. Minneapolis elevator stocks decreased 100,000 bus, for two days. The market advanced a cent from the low point about noon, but sold off again closing ⅛@¼c higher than Saturday's close. July wheat opened at $1.03⅝; high, $1.04⅝; low, $1.03⅝@⅞; close, $1.04@⅛. September closed 89⅜@⅝c; May, $1.05.

The cash market was firm though not quite so strong as Saturday. No. 1 northern sold at 2½ over July and No. 2 about half over. Millers were buyers. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.06¼@⅜c; spot, $1.06¾. To arrive—No. 1 northern, $1.04¾@⅞; spot, $1.04½; No. 3 wheat, 98c@$1.01⅜. No. 3 yellow corn, 70½@⅝c; No. 3 white oats, 50½@⅝c.

No. 2 rye, 77½@78¾c.

Barley was in better demand at prices about steady with Saturday to 1c firmer. There was the best total business of any day for some time. The average quality was better. Close, 57@⅝c.

The flax market met competition from local crushers and elevator buyers and was quotably firm at 1c over Duluth July. Close, $1.22.

Bran in bulk was quoted by millers at $21.75@22.00.

The flour market looked a little better according to reports from the larger offices where sales today were larger. Buyers are still conservative buyers, stocks are very low in some consumptive centers which necessitates frequent ordering in a moderate way. Shipments, 50,855 barrels. First patents, $5.45@5.60; second patents, $5.30@5.45; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.35@3.65.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 18.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 9 to 17 points during the early session and sold up to a net gain of 18 to 26 points, July leading the advance on strength in Liverpool, big English spot sales and nervous covering by local shorts. Reports of heavy rains in the lower Mississippi valley may have had some influence on the advance but Wall street people recently credited with having taken large profits on the long side were heavy sellers of October and December.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 11; middling gulf, 11.25; sales, 302 bales. Futures closed steady. Closing bids: May, 9.86; June, 9.87; July, 9.88; August, 9.63; September, 9.45; October, 9.38; November, 9.38; December, 9.34; January, 9.34; February, 9.34; March, 9.38.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn.—May 18.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Market quiet, with few sales of consequence reported, small sale to local teamsters and transfer companies were the order of the day. Well broke family drivers and gaited saddlers were in fair demand. Several carloads of fresh consignments arrived during the day.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

List Well Sustained, Despite the Heavy Realizing Sales.

Close Strong and Active With Prices Near the Best.

New York, May 18.—Opening prices of stocks today showed strong advances in most instances and small declines only in a few of the metal stocks. Union Pacific and Louisville & Nashville rose 1¼, and St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Chicago Great Western, Western Maryland, and United States Steel preferred about a point. Northwestern sold at an advance of 4⅞. The trading showed great animation and there were large transactions in various prominent stocks.

Certain stocks were realized on heavily in the opening advance, which held the list in check until a new demand for Union Pacific brought the active leaders up a trifle higher than before. Standard stocks were the leaders of the rise, including Union Pacific and St. Paul.

Union Pacific continued to advance to 149¾, but showed growing isolation in its strength, except for wide advances in dormant issues. At slight reactions the trading became dull, until Southern Pacific began to rise at noon. Bonds were strong.

The Gould stocks became factors in the rise after mid-day, large blocks of Missouri Pacific and other southwestern stocks being taken at rapidly improving prices. Southern Pacific rose to 89 but the general list was little altered from the previous best prices.

The list was well sustained during the afternoon considering the realizations that the rise brought out. Pennsylvania loomed into prominence, but the well known stocks otherwise were not conspicuous, outside of Union Pacific which touched 150¼.

The market closed strong and active with prices only slightly below the best. After Union Pacific had touched 150⅝ there was a general reaction under the weight of profit-taking sales. Recessions reached a point or more in Union Pacific and some other leading stocks. Money on call loaned at 1 per cent. Prices hardened at the last.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Martin Roscndahl: There are unquestionably some big pecal sales hanging over this market. Copper prices will be 2c a pound higher within thirty days. The feature of the market today was the strength of North Butte. Profit-taking reactions affect it little.

New York Money.

New York, May 18.—Close: Money on call easy, 1@1½ per cent; ruling rate, 1½ per cent; closing bid, 1½ per cent; offered at 1¾ per cent. THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Boston, May 18.—Word was received in this city today of the death on board the steamship Minnesota, which arrived in Seattle last night from Japan of Rev. Dr. I. W. Cate, formerly of this city, but for ten years in charge of the Universalist Mission in Japan.

Concord, Mass., May 18.—Frederick May Holland, author of various reviews, essays and pamphlet, died yesterday at his residence here, aged 72 years. He was a member of the Wisconsin Academy of Sciences.

Chicago, May 18.—The most Rev. Peter Bourgade, archbishop of Santa Fe, died at a hospital here yesterday. Heart failure was given as the cause. He was 63 years old.

Chicago, May 18.—George Eade, jr., general Western passenger agent of the Lehigh Calley railroad, died suddenly at his home in this city last night, from heart disease.

Paris, May 18.—Eugene Francis Marie Henri, ninth duke of Harcourt, died here yesterday. He was born in 1864.

Philadelphia, May 18.—Hugo Toland, a widely-known actor, who had been playing in Lillian Russell's company, died of Bright's disease at the home of a nephew today. He was 39 years old.

RECEIVER APPOINTED.

National Bank Examiner Takes Charge of the Allegheny Bank.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 18.—Robert Lyons, a national bank examiner, has been appointed receiver of the Allegheny National bank.

Chief interest in the bank's closing now centers in the ultimate fate of the deposits of the city and state. State Treasurer John O. Sheatz and Deputy Attorney General Jesse E. B. Cunningham arrived here today from Harrisburg.

State funds of $523,477 were carried in the bank and these officials will take immediate steps to recover the money. The state fund, however, is secured by bonding companies to the extent of $4,500,000.

Shortly after the bank closed City Treasurer John F. Steel presented a check for $1,546,953, the amount of the city's deposits, but it was not honored.

Sale of School and Other State Lands

STATE OF MINNESOTA, State Auditor's Office.

St. Paul, May 1, 1908.

Notice is hereby given that on the day and date and at the time and place herein stated below in this notice, in the office of the county auditor of the county named, in the State of Minnesota, I will offer for sale the following described unsold state lands, and the following described state lands, which have reverted to the state by reason of the non-payment of interest when and as the same offered for resale. Fifteen per cent of the purchase price and interest on the unpaid balance from the date of sale to June 1st, 1909, must be paid at the time of the sale. The balance of the purchase money can be paid at any time, in whole or in part, within forty years of the time of sale; the rate of interest on the unpaid balance of the purchase money will be four per cent per annum, payable in advance on June 1st of each year, provided the principal remains unpaid for ten years; but if the principal is paid before the expiration of ten years from the date of the sale the rate of interest on the unpaid balance of the purchase money will be five per cent per annum; interest payable in advance on June 1st of each year.

Holders of certificates on which the interest payments are in default can have their certificates reinstated on payment before the sale of the interest in full to date and the penalties thereon, when the lands covered thereby will be withdrawn from sale.

Purchasers of lands on which assessments for the construction of a Drainage Ditch have been paid by the state are required to pay in addition to the 15 per cent of the appraised value the cost of drainage and interest added to date of sale, as provided by Chapter 366, General Laws of 1907.

All mineral rights are reserved by the state. All sales made will be subject to the provisions of Chapter No. 299 of the General Laws of 1905.

SAMUEL G. IVERSON,
State Auditor.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY.

SENTENCED TO PRISON.

Judge Inflicts Severe Penalty on Woman Who Wounded Lawyer.

New York, May 18.—Jennie Blunt, who shot and wounded Charles M. Sanford, a Brooklyn lawyer, in his office last February, after he had refused to give her money, was denounced by Judge Dike today as a blackmailer and perjurer, and sentenced to serve not less than three, nor more than four years, in the state prison at Auburn. In her own defense, Miss Blunt had accused Sanford of misconduct. Her counsel appealed to the judge for leniency, after her conviction, but Judge Dike, in imposing sentence, said:

"A blackmailer who, her demands being refused, substitutes lawlessness for law, and inflicts punishment upon her victim, and is shown by the evidence to have other victims yet to punish, is not a woman who should remain free. The jury is to be commended for upholding the law rather than yielding to the maudling sentiment of an unwritten law."

STEAMER BLEW UP.

Six Seamen From the Ill-Fated Cacique Reach New York.

New York, May 18.—Six seamen, who, with twenty-five others, had a narrow escape from death when the British steamer Cacique blew up and sank off the Peruvian coast last month, arrived here today on the steamer Finance from Christobal. The other members of the crew, all of whom escaped, remained in Peru. The Cacique was bound for San Francisco with a cargo of naphtha. When 150 miles off Santa Elena, Peru, she caught fire, the naphtha exploded and the thirty-one men on board rushed for the boats. They reached the Peruvian coast three days later.

LANDS BIG STURGEON

Hugo Jacoby Gets Thirty Pounder on Light Rod.

West Duluth Fishermen Have Fine Sport on the River.

As a variation from the numerous stories of big trout that have been caught this season at Lakeside, West Duluth has a fish story of its own.

The fish was a sturgeon, and, according to Hugo V. Jacoby of 5721 Huntington avenue, who fought and landed the monster, it measured sixty-one inches from the tip of its snout to the end of its caudal appendage, and tipped the scales at thirty pounds. Mr. Jacoby and a number of friends were fishing for catfish near Fond du Lac from his motor boat the Coquette, when the sturgeon took Mr. Jacoby's bait and made a dash down the river. In telling about his catch this morning, Mr. Jacoby said that he was fishing with a light casting rod, and that he did not dare to try to check the first rush of the big fish until he had taken out the greater part of the 150 feet of line he had on his reel.

"It must have been nearly half an hour before I got him in," said Mr. Jacoby. "I'd get him right along side of the boat and off he'd go making my reel sing. There was no use trying to snub him with the tackle I had, for he would have broken it sure."

It is a rather rare thing for a sturgeon to be caught with a rod. Sometimes fishermen find them on their set lines, but more often they are taken in nets. Mr. Jacoby was fishing out in the deep channel, and was using angle worms as bait. His sturgeon is the first that has been caught this year on the river and is thought to be the largest ever caught with a rod.

The bright warm sunshine brought the motor boat enthusiasts out in droves yesterday, and the river was dotted with their boats from the bay to Fond du Lac. Picnic parties along the river were much in evidence also. It was fine and warm up the river when away from the cool wind from the lake.

William Christensen and William Cochran caught a fine mess of pike, pickerel and perch on the river near New Duluth yesterday afternoon. All who took the river outing have red sunburnt faces today and are enthusiastic over yesterday's sport.

WEST DULUTH LOSES.

Hardware Men Defeat Newly Organized Team in First Game.

In a game that was in no way marked for its clean cut playing the Oak Hall team was defeated yesterday afternoon in their first game, by the Marshall-Wells team by a score of 12 to 9.

Tony Nelson who pitched for the Oak Hall team pitched a fair game allowing but five hits for the hardware nine. He had poor backing and the errors made the diamond at times appear like a merry-go-round. Bert Haburt who caught for the Oak Hall bunch did good work considering that it was the first game of the season. Kelley and Donaldson were the battery for Marshall-Wells.

The West Duluth players are not on the least discouraged, as they have had but small opportunity to play together. If the weather permits they will be out every evening this week getting ready for next Sunday's game with the Columbia team.

FAILS TO GET DAMAGES.

C. J. Petruschke Wins Personal Injury Suit Brought Against Him.

A verdict in favor of the C. J. Petruschke, proprietor of the West Duluth box factory was returned in the district court Saturday afternoon, in the personal injury case instituted by Frank Norton.

The action was started by Mr. Norton to recover $25,000 for the loss of a hand in the machinery at the factory. The case was tried by eleven jurors, on stipulation of the parties, as the twelfth juror became ill after the trial started. The jury remained out from Friday afternoon until nearly Saturday evening before reaching an agreement.

Norton was represented by S. A. Anderson and Mr. Petruschke by Howard T. Abbott.

GOES TO KANSAS CITY.

Rev. W. J. Lowrie Will Attend the General Presbyterian Convention.

Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Lowrie and children left today for Kansas City, where Mr. Lowrie will attend the general convention of the Presbyterian church, as delegate from the Duluth Presbytery. The convention is in session from May 21 to June 4. After the convention Mr. Lowrie and his family will go to Lincoln, Neb., their former home and visit their parents and friends for a month.

Rev. S. A. Jamieson, pastor at large of the Duluth Presbytery and Rev. S. A. Blaire and other local pastors, will fill the pulpit of the Westminister Presbyterian church while Mr. Lowrie is away.

West Duluth Briefs.

Henry Johnson, who has just finished serving four years in the United States navy, has returned to West Duluth.

John Bates left last night for St. Paul, where he will visit for several days.

M. L. Martin, who has been in West Duluth on business for several days, returned to his home in Minneapolis yesterday.

Mrs. S. C. Olson of 329 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, has as her guest her cousin, Harry Larusson, who is a member of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

Misses Anna and Mary Brett of Carlton, who are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Bethune, of 103 North Fifty-eighth avenue west for a few days, expect to return to their home tomorrow.

C. S. Van Luevan, formerly secretary to Mr. Kreitter, superintendent of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, but at present connected with the Soo line at Minneapolis, has been visiting in West Duluth and Proctor. He returned yesterday to Minneapolis.

The West Duluth council, No. 4, Beneficient degree of the Modern Samaritans, will hold a social session this evening. The evening will be spent at cards.

Watch repairing. Hurst, West Duluth.

Crushed by a Log.

A man whose name is either Oliver Miller or Ole Meland was crushed to death Saturday under a log at the landing of the St. Croix & Duluth logging road, on the St. Croix river, about thirty miles from Dedham, Wis. The decedent was about 35 years old and is supposed to have worked for the Johnson-Wentworth company at Harris Lake, Minn., last October. A letter from Andrew Meland, Denmark, addressed to Ole Meland, Fairbanks, Minn., was found in the dead man's clothing. He hired out at the landing, under the name of Miller. The coroner of Douglas county has taken charge of the remains.

Took Watch for Fun.

Matt Escalo, a passenger on the Great Northern train, was arrested at the union depot Friday evening on the charge of stealing a watch from a companion. At the hearing yesterday it developed that he took the watch for fun and handed it to a friend of the man to whom it belonged. The charge against Escalo was changed to that of disorderly conduct and the defendant will stand trial. It is alleged that Escalo was quite drunk and created quite a disturbance on the train, being subdued finally by one of the train crew.

Reconstructs Power Plant.

Reconstruction work of the Great Northern Railway company's elevator power house has been started. An entire new plant will take the place of that burned in the big elevator fire of last November. Since the fire the power plant has been located in a temporary shed and the company has been somewhat hampered in furnishing power for the elevators and other plants. It is expected that the new plant will be ready for operation within a few weeks.

W. W. TOMKINS PASSES AWAY

Leading Ashland Attorney Dies From Cancer of Stomach.

Ashland, Wis., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. M. Tomkins, aged 63 years, the dean of the bar of Northern Wisconsin, died in this city Saturday evening from cancer of the stomach. Mr. Tomkins was considered to be the most learned attorney in Northern Wisconsin and was one of the best equipped tax experts in the state.

Few lawyers in the state carried greater weight before the supreme court of Wisconsin than he. Last winter he argued the case of Moses White vs Campbell et al before the supreme court of the United States, involving $750,000, the supreme court upholding the practice of the LaPointe Indian agency in treating the Chippewas as wards of the government and acting as custodian of their funds due them from private parties. Mr. Tomkins was born in England in 1845.

His family moved to Shullsburg, Wis., in 1850, when Mr. Tomkins, Sr., was assigned as a Methodist minister. He received an academic education at Point Bluff, Wis., and for two years was a student at the state university. He came to Ashland in 1873, and was county treasurer, county clerk and district attorney. Six years ago he was the choice of the Ashland county bar for circuit judge, but was defeated by J. K. Parish. He was a prominent member of the Presbyterian church, the second master of the Ashland blue lodge of Masons, and was a Knight Templar. Two months ago an affection of the stomach was diagnosed by local physicians as cancer, and their diagnosis was confirmed by experts in the Twin Cities and at Chicago. He calmly talked of his approaching death, wound up his business affairs, and bravely waited for the end, which came at 6 o'clock Saturday.

MRS. JOHN MUNN DEAD.

Calumet, Mich., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. John Munn of Linwood, aged 47 years, died Saturday morning at her home from a complication of diseases. She was born at the old Cliff, Keweenaw county, the daughter of John Funkey of Hancock, was the oldest of thirteen children, and is survived by her husband and four children, besides her father and three sisters.

EMPEROR INDISPOSED.

Vienna, May 18.—Emperor Francis Joseph is again slightly indisposed and this has made necessary the postponement of the audiences arranged for today. Court officials say there is no reason for anxiety, but after the tiring duties connected with the recent visit to Vienna of Emperor William and the German princes, together with some unimportant symptoms of catarrh, it is necessary for his majesty to be careful.

Mr. John Riha of Vining, Iowa, says, "I have been selling DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills for about a year and they give better satisfaction than any pill I ever sold." Sold by all druggists.

RUSSELL REACHES NEW YORK.

New York, May 18.—W. W. Russell, American minister to Venezuela, arrived here today on the steamer Caracas. Mr. Russell was accompanied by his family. He is home on a leave absence and will go to Washington tomorrow. Mr. Russell said little information was obtainable at Caracas regarding conditions at LaGuiara, which is under close quarantine as a result of an outbreak of bubonic plague.

DULUTH WOMAN ON VISIT.

Motley, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Laura Sills of Duluth has arrived here for a short visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lawrence.

MULTI-MILLIONAIRE FROM VENEZUELA DIES THROUGH MISTAKE OF A DRUGGIST

Coffee Planter Takes Supposedly Harmless Medicine in New York.

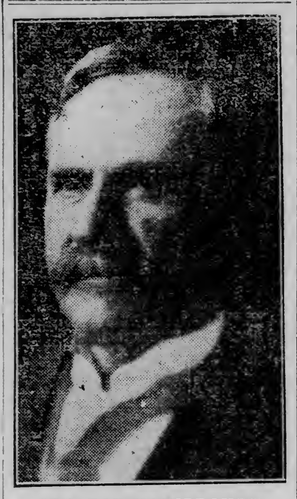
Dies in Few Minutes While Wife is Seriously Ill.

Party of Refugees Were in Metropolis En Route to Europe.

New York, May 19.—Fleeing from stricken Venezuela, Eduardo de Eraso, a coffee planter and reputed multi-millionaire, came to his death in a fashionable New York hotel early today through taking what he believed to be a harmless medicine. His wife, who also took some of the medicine, is in a serious condition at their apartments in the hotel and the remainder of the party of wealthy refugees is without a directing head. Whether they now will continue their journey to Europe where they had planned to remain until the danger period in Venezuela passed is yet to be determined. It is alleged that a drug clerk, who prepared the medicine for Mr. de Eraso, made an error in compounding the drugs.

Mr. de Eraso and his party, including his wife, their two children and a party of friends, arrived in New York a week ago. Their destination was Europe, but arriving here they decided to remain a few days in this city to do a little sightseeing. Returning from a ride late yesterday Mr. de Eraso felt ill and sent out to have a prescription for a tonic compounded at a nearby drug store. Immediately upon the return of the messenger Mr. de Eraso took a potion of the medicine and Mrs. de Eraso took about half quantity. Both became violently ill. Mr. de Eraso lived only a few minutes and for a long time the condition of Mrs. de Eraso was serious. It is believed now, however, that she will recover.

An investigation by the coroner's office showed that the prescription called for aspertelna. At the drug store where it was compounded the bottles containing aspertelna and atrophine are kept side by side. It is believed that the clerk got the wrong bottle and used astrophine instead of aspertolna in filling the prescription.



SENATOR HANSBROUGH
Of North Dakota, Who Feels Confident of Winning at June Primaries.

SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN

In North Dakota is Overshadowing All Other Contests.

Hansbrough Optimistic as to Outlook for His Re-Election.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—United States Senator H. C. Hansbrough arrived in Grand Forks Monday evening from Minot, where he attended the Republican state convention, and at once arranged for the opening of campaign headquarters in this city, to be maintained until after the primary election in June. The senatorial election in North Dakota this year has thrown into the shadow all other contests, with four candidates seeking the office—the present incumbent, Senator Hansbrough, C. B. Little, M. N. Johnson and Thomas Marshall. Senator Hansbrough returned from Washington last week to open the campaign in a vigorous manner. He is at present most optimistic as to the outlook and, in discussing his own chances for re-election and the effect of the Minot state convention, so much talked of during the past few days, said:

Opponents Were Defeated.

"I have not been in the state long enough since my return from Washington to form an accurate opinion of the political conditions affecting my candidacy. I do not see, however, but what they are better even than before the state convention. I had no fight in that convention, and except in a few counties where the fight was a personal one, made no effort to secure delegates. In my own county of Ram-

IMPROVEMENT OF WATERWAYS

Discussed at Dinner Given by Directors of Rivers Congress.

New York, May 19.—The directors of the national rivers and harbors congress, gave a dinner last night at the Hotel Astor to New York newspaper men and magazine men in puruance of the policy of that organization to awaken public sentiment to the need for a national policy with regard to the improvement of rivers and harbors.

Congressman Joseph E. Ransdell of Lake Providence, La., president of the waterways congress said that congress answering the pressure of the nation, voted $250,000,000 without hesitation to build the Panama canal although it will benefit the rest of the world more than it will benifit this country, and yet had been niggardly about outlays for our waterways. He wanted congress to give the waterways bills the consideration which the commerce of this country demanded. He knew that congress would move only when pushed by thepeople.

Congressman E. C. Ellis of Kansas City, president of the Missouri river improvement commission told how it was congress treated the waterways question so shabbily. In the past he said, there has been a good deal of mismanagement of what moneys had been appropriated and appropriations had been made in most cases to answer selfish pressure from local communities. There had been no great national plan or polley. As soon as such a national policy had been formulated and backed by the people, congress would answer the demands of the people.

Congressman Davidson of Oshkosh, Wis., said that this country had spent only a half billion dollars on its waterways, while Germany and France had each spent four times that much, and little Holland had spent three times that amount.

ABOLISHMENT OF SWEAT SHOP

French Working People Are Housed in Modern Apartments.

Paris, May 19.—The abolishment of the "sweat shop" conditions which surround the employment of many French working people is the object of a social experiment which has just been assayed in Paris in the form of the establishment of a workshop apartment building where workmen may both labor and live under the most modern and hylenic conditions at a minimum cost. The experiment is the undertaking of the Societe Philanthropique and was made possible by the bequest of Mlle. Marie Souvestra, after whom the building is named. The building contains forty-eight shops and apartments and the price per year for these "combinations" ranged from $100 to 148.

In the basement are baths and on the seventh floor arrangements for washing and drying the family linen. Electric power is supplied at a minimum cost from a central plant. Any workman using the lighter form of machinery can install themselves in the building. In fact, twelve families have already done so, finding the new, clean workroom a most agreeable and healthful substitute for their former dark and ill-ventilated shops.

FIRE AT WRAY, COLO.

Wray, Colo., May 19.—Fire, presumably of incendiary origin, last night burned every building except one for a block on the west side of Main street and caused a loss of $60,000.

BAD RIVER IS RISING

Pours Over Its Banks at Odanah, Doing Much Damage.

Families Near Danger Line Rescued, Others Fleeing.

Ashland, Wis., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Bad river at Odanah suddenly rose three feet this morning at 5 o'clock, pouring over its banks and surrounding residences with water. A number of families were rescued and others near the danger line are getting out. The White and Bad rivers form a junction at Odanah and the combined floods from both threaten the village. It is possible that a portion of this morning's flood is from the broken dam at Mellen, which gave way twenty-four hours ago. Other dams on White river are being watched carefully. Leaks were discovered yesterday and dynamite was used to stop them. The water was not rising at 9 o'clock but the height of the flood is probably not reached.

SCANDAL CAUSES PROMINENT MAN OF INDIANA TO END HIS EXISTENCE

John F. McGaughey, Former Member of County Board, Kills Himself on Account of Charge of Bribery.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 19.—John F. McGaughey, aged 55, former member of the board of county commissioners, today shot and killed himself at his home, in Irvington, because of the connection of his name with the scandal that has developed in the office of the commissioners.

At 7 o'clock this morning, Ned McGaughey, a son, was awakened by the sound of a pistol shot. He ran into his father's room, where he found his father gasping and blood gushing from the temple. In his right hand the father had a revolver.

Dr. J. L. Thompson, who lived near by, was immediately summoned, but when the doctor reached the house McGaughey was dead. The bullet had passed through the head, from the right temple to the left. Ned McGaughey told the physician that his father had been threatening to kill himself for the last month, because of despondency growing out of the allegations in connection with the commissioners court scandal.

McGaughey's term as commissioner expired Jan. 1, 1907. The only instance in which his name had been connected with the growing scandal in the commissioner's office is that of the Atlas Engine works deal.

In this the Atlas Engine works is charged with paying a bribe of $3,800 to the commissioners. Emmet Hugins, former bailiff, in his confession, told that he gave Thomas Spafford, commissioner, $500 of the $3,800 to be given by Spafford to McGaughey.

McGaughey denied receiving such a sum, or knowing anything about it, and Spafford denies having received the money to give McGaughey.

ELECTION OF TEN BISHOPS

Recommended to Methodist Conference by Committee on Episcopacy.

Committee Votes to Leave Rules on Amusements Unchanged.

Baltimore, Md., May 19.—An amendment to the church constitution providing for the dividing of the future general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church into two separate bodies, to be organized in practically the same manner as the congress of the United States, was introduced at the general conference today by Judge H. T. Ames of Williamsport, Pa., and referred to the committee on the state of the church. It is proposed that the lay and ministerial delegates shall be separated, the lay members to be presided over by one of their own number and that it shall require the concurrence of the two bodies to adopt any measure or elect bishops or any other general conference officers.

The eagerly looked for report of the committee on episcopacy which considers all matters relating to the effectiveness of bishops, was presented today. It provides for the election at this session of ten bishops. The board of bishops recommended but six. The request of Missionary Bishop James M. Thorburn for retirement was granted in a resolution expressing the appreciation of the church for the many years of missionary service performed by Bishop Thoburn. The resolution was adopted by a rising vote amid great applause. Debate on the proposition to elect ten bishops was then begun.

Second only in interest to the election of bishops, perhaps, is the final action on the paragraph of the church discipline relating to amusements, touching which the address of the bishops recommended the excision of dancing, card playing and certain other words from the paragraph. By a decisive vote the committee on the state of the church, to which the matter was referred yesterday decided to recommend to the conference that the paragraph on amusements remain as it now stands and thus negatived the recommendations of the bishops. The vote in committee was nearly three to one against making a change.

WOULD LET THE VOTERS DECIDE

Washington Democrats in Favor of Submission of Liquor Question.

Spokane, Wash., May 19.—At the end of a protracted and stormy session the Democratic state convention at midnight last night adopted a resolution declaring for the submission to the voters of a constitutional amendment forbidding the sale and manufacture of spirituous liquor. A double delegation of twenty, each with half a vote, was elected to the national convention and instructed to vote for Bryan "first, last and all the time."

The convention elected the following delegates-at-large to the national convention at Denver, with half a vote each: A. R. Titlow, L. E. Glgnold, Fred E. Baldwin, Dan Paul, George F. Christensen, A. G. Mitcham, Charles G. Heifner and F. A. MacDonald. No alternates were elected.

In addition to the eight delegates-at-large, the following were elected by congressional districts:

First district—John L. Lukes and W. H. Pemberton of Whatcom county, and Daniel Currie and W. W. Black of Snohomish.

Second district—Tal Bratton of Klickitat, W. Cannon of Lewis, Frank R. Spinning of Pierce and J. C. Conine of Thurston.

Third district—T. A. White of Whitman, H. A. Smalley of Okanogan, Jerome Brandheiler of Spokane and A. L. Simmons of Kittitas.

COURTMARTIAL CONCLUDED.

San Francisco, May 19.—The courtmartial, before which Private William Buwalda of the Twenty-second infantry, stationed at the Presidio has been on trial, concluded the case yesterday. Private Buwalda was acused of the offense of offering sympathy to anarchists while wearing the uniform of a United States soldier, the alleged offense being committed at a meeting held by Emma Goldman in this city recently.

BIG STABLE DESTROYED

Forty Horses Burned in Midnight Fire at St. Paul.

Firemen Prevent Spread of Flames After Hard Fight.

St. Paul, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire at midnight last night totally destroyed the St. Paul Transfer company's stable at 105 East Ninth street, and cremated forty truck horses, causing a total loss of at least $7,000. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

When the fire department arrived the barn was a mass of flames, so the fire must evidently have been burning for some time before it became apparent.

Patrolman Wright and several of the crowd attracted by the fire, attempted to lead out some of the horses, but the fire was so fierce they could do nothing.

One poor animal fell in the doorway, overcome by smoke, and died there.

There was a strong breeze blowing during the fire and the firemen had great difficulty in preventing the flames from spreading.

The barn, well filled with dry hay and straw, was a whirling vortex of flames.

When the fire broke out, Jake Farrell, night watchman, was asleep in the loft of the barn. Awakened he discovered the hay in the loft on fire. He ran to the stairs, but they were in flames. In his desperation he ran and jumped through a small window at the end of the barn, falling to the street, twenty feet below. His left wrist was slightly cut by glass, but otherwise he escaped injury.

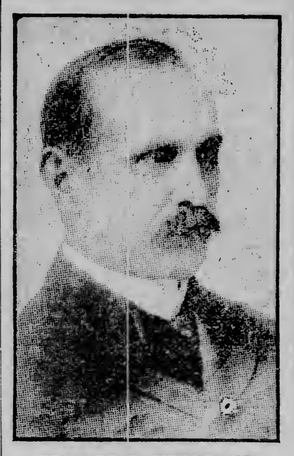
CENTRALIZATION MEANS DESTRUCTION OF NATION SAYS TENNESSEE SOLON

Maiden Speech by Senator Robert L. Taylor is Striking One.

Tariff Will Never be Reformed by Republican Congress.

Our Financial System is Siamese Twin of Tariff System.



EDWARD B. VREELAND,
Member of Congress From New York and Author of the Currency Bill Bearing His Name, Has Been Renominated From His District Without Opposition.

Washington, May 19.—Senator Robert L. Taylor of Tennessee delivered his maiden speech in the senate today, his subject being the tariff and currency legislation, which he made entertaining by many striking and humorous references to the policies of the Republican party.

Mr. Taylor drew a parallel between the solar system, regulated by the centripedal and centrifugal forces and the government, the federal power being the centripedal and the states' power the centrifugal forces. He declared that the Confederacy was an emphasis of the force seeking disintegration. The federal power, representing the other extreme, is now endangering the rights of the state.

Discussing the president, he said: "The system is as surely out of balance today as it was in 1861. And what is the difference to us whether we leave our orbit and go cavorting among the stars to freeze to death on

SKELETONS ARE BURIED

Remains of Seven Gunness Victims Laid Away Unidentified.

Coroner Turns Body of Jennie Olson Over to Relatives.

Laporte, Ind., May 19.—The issuing of a death certificate for Jennie Olsen and the turning over of the body by Coroner Mack to the relatives in Chicago, puts the official stamp of identification upon a body regarding which there has been much controversy. Although identified by the brother and sister, many refused to believe that the girl was dead, for the reason that Mrs. Gunness had made it a point to inform a number of persons that Jennie had gone to Los Angeles, to attend school and had arranged little incidents that would help to make this point strong with such people as might be a trifle inquisitive on the subject.

In the course of the investigations that were carried on with reference to the reports that the girl had actually been sent away and was not among the dead in the little graveyard, a letter was received saying that a girl answering her description had been seen in a convent near Los Angeles. This story was believed by some, but the authorities found nothing to substantiate it.

Mayor Darrow today related an interesting incident of how Mrs.

FLAYS FACULTY; WINS THE PRIZE

Student at Lafayette College Delivers a Daring Oration.

Easton, Pa., May 19.—In the presence of President Warfield and the entire faculty of Lafayette college, last night, Bartram Williams Simpson of Chicago, a member of the junior class, attacked the faculty and its manner of government and treatment of the student body and won the prize, $50, in the annual oratorical contest. Simpson chose for the subject of his speech, "Responsibility." There was nothing disturbing looking in the title, and all went well until the young man was well down toward the end of his speech, when he launched a strong argument for student recognition in the government and management of certain affairs in colleges, and criticism of the faculty of Lafayette. The speech caused a sensation and made the professors look about with surprise and amazement. The student body was in an uproar.

Rudolph Blankenburg of Philadelphia, one of the judges, was as much interested in the spirit of the oration as the speaker and the students. He commented upon the address as one of the most original he had heard, and complimented Simpson upon his courage in standing before the faculty and advancing the argument he had used.

When the judges announced that Simpson had been awarded the first prize, a mighty cheer went up and college and class yells sounded and resounded through the hall. The jollification of the students was continued well into the night.

CHILDREN TO WATCH POLICE

New York Inspector Appoints School Pupils as Sergeants.

New York, May 19.—Inspector Miles O'Reilly has appointed all the pupils of Public School No. 72, in East New York, police sergeants. He has asked them to watch the patrolmen and report any misconduct. The other day O'Reilly dropped into the school and explained his plan. "I want the cooperation of you children to insecase the discipline of my men," he said.

Whenever the children see a policeman enter or leave a saloon or store they are to take down his number and forward it, with a description of the circumstances, to the inspector.

The patrolmen are not a bit pleased over O'Reilly's latest plan for keeping tabs on them.

JOHNSON RAN WELL

Gave Bryan Close Call for Indorsement in Alabama.

Carried Three Chief Cities and Several Large Counties.

Montgomery, Ala., May 19.—The returns from the state Democratic primary came in slowly today, but the indications at noon were that William J. Bryan had carried the state, though Governor Johnson is giving him a close race. Montgomery has received the count in eleven out of her twenty-two precincts and other cities are similarly slow.

The Johnson forces piled up a large vote in Southern Alabama, and they carried perhaps half a dozen counties in the state, according to present indications, but not enough to indorse the Minnesota governor.

The returns from country districts indicate a Bryan victory.

Mobile, Ala., May 19.—The extraordinary long ticket used in the primary election in Alabama yesterday made it next to impossible to secure early today any approximate idea of the result, except that Governor Johnson polled a large vote in unexpected places.

The Minnesota governor appears to have carried Montgomery, Mobile and Birmingham, the three chief cities of the state. He polled large votes in Southern Alabama, notably in Conecuh, Baldwin and Monroe counties.

The returns counted up to 11 o'clock indicate beyond doubt that W. J. Bryan is the choice of the state Democracy for the party nomination for president.

The counting probably will not be completed before tonight.

WEATHER—Partly cloudy weather tonight and Wednesday; cooler tonight; light to fresh variable winds.

Logan, W. B.	0	3	.000

The demand for the booklet giving the system of play adopted by the American Whist league and printed for the club by F. P. Hallock, was so great that the first lot delivered did not go around. A further supply has been ordered for immediate delivery, and requests for the booklet to officers or members of the club will be met within a short time. It is printed for the club for free distribution, and any lover of whist is welcome to a copy.

TO ASK LEMIEUX TO SETTLE STRIKE.

Montreal, May 19.—The striking cotton mill workers last evening deposed President Gignac, who opposed the present strike, and Emil Ouellette of St. Hyacinthe was elected in his stead. The council also appointed a deputation to await upon Rudolph E. Lemieux, federal minister of labor, tomorrow and notify him that he was expected to settle the strike at once by seeing that the cotton industry was given a measure of protection sufficient to allow the manufactures to meet the competition of the United States mills and pay living wages to their employes.

Miss Julia Donovan,

With the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury, will give a song recital at the Lyceum, next Thursday evening. Seats now on sale.

THE PUBLIC DISGUSTED

Royal Hotel Case Bears Out Statements of Herald.

Negro and White Girl Live Together Without Hindrance.

The police and the public generally are disgusted with the disclosures which resulted in the arrest of Robert Jackson last night, and which bear out The Herald in its recent campaign against the hotels and lodging houses of the city that are run without regard to decency, or to the character and standing of the people who patronize such places.

Jackson is a negro, and was arrested on complaint of a white girl, Tillie Hendrickson, who is living with him at the Royal hotel, one of the establishments which was particularly mentioned by The Herald in an article dealing with this particular sort of hotel evil. The Royal seems to be run openly as a place where men and women may register and room together, regardless of whether they are married or not. But even those who have been strongest in their condemnation of resorts of this description did not dream that conditions had gone so far in Duluth that white girls and colored men were allowed by proprietors to live under circumstances such as were connected with the case of Jackson and Miss Hendrickson.

According to the girl, there is no pretense of marriage between the two. Seemingly she was lured away from St. Paul, which she says is her home town, by the promise of all the money she wanted to spend, and an unlimited amount of jewelry with which to adorn her person. According to her story, the promises were kept for a time and then the tables were turned and she was ordered to go out and earn a living for both the negro and herself.

That any Duluth hotel owner should allow such condition of affairs to exist, openly countenancing relations of this sort between a negro and white woman, seems hard to believe, but if Miss Hendrickson is telling a straight story, the help about the hotel could not very well get along without knowing what was going on. The Royal is only one of several places which are run on a disgustingly free and open basis. It appears to be a proposition of taking the money and asking no questions.

Affairs of the Defunct Columbus, O., Sun Are Being Wound Up.

Columbus, Ohio, May 19.—The affairs of the defunct Columbus Sun, which recently suspended publication, are being rapidly wound up. The Sun was started July 4, 1906, and was a creditable paper, but the field was so well covered by the other dailies that the proposition proved to be a losing one from the start.

YOU CAN BE CURED!

Chronic Diseases of Men Healed Successfully By Medical Specialists

That there is much of mystery and many of the problems to be solved regarding men's ailments, everyone knows, but the fact that thousands and thousands of sufferers have been rescued by the Progressive Medical experts in Duluth since 1899, alone is convincing that these specialists have solved many and most of the problems to heal these stubborn ills and ailments. Any and every doctor's knowledge is limited, and no one knows everything. We have devoted our life and labor to only one branch of human ills in which no one has ever been more successful than we. We have letters in our office which, if you would read, would open your eyes as to what can be done for human ills and suffering. If you think that Hot Springs is the only place to get cured, you are badly mistaken, for no one has cured more successfully than we have.

Come and read the many letters and photographs before and after the cure, and you will be convinced that we can cure all ailments. Bright's Disease, Stomach Trouble, all Lung Diseases and those of the nose and throat, Eczemas and all Skin Diseases, as well as Cancer, Tumors, Growths, world famous "Dissolving Process," a method by which in these most painful and dangerous operations the knife was the most important instrument. Our method has eliminated the knife entirely and your operations will be bloodless and without pain. We have found out Nature's way of healing and we can heal your trouble. Our specialty is the cure of chronic ailments of men, and if you are suffering, we can cure you. We also cure Stomach and Bladder Troubles, Varicose Veins and Ulcers, Heart Disease, Sexual Diseases, Piles, Rectal Diseases, Rupture and all chronic troubles. We cure by our famous method, and no knife nor pain is in it. Your consultation is free. Come any time from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. No. 1 West Superior street, Duluth.

Noon	78
1 p. m.	70
1:30 p. m.	81

During the night Duluth experienced a change in temperature characteristic of the Lake Superior country. People made their way home last night through a chilling fog just like those that made dear old Lunnun famous. This morning they awoke to find the sun shining brightly through air as balmy as on an ideal June day.

A jump of 40 degs. in temperature is exceptional even in this country of sudden changes. Yesterday was normally spring-like for Duluth, with low temperature and a misty atmosphere. Today is ideally summer-like and if it continues, straw hats will have their innings.

Observer Richardson of the United States weather bureau sees no clouds in the sky. He says it will be cooler tonight, but there are no storms on the horizon and Duluth may have a few days of real spring weather.

The Attorney Thinks It Strange Cashier Should Have Acted Alone.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 19.—Robert Lyons, receiver of the Allegheny National bank, today took charge of the bank and will make a complete examination of its affairs. Bank Examiner Folds said he would be relieved of any further connection with the band and would take up his regular work of examining other banks.

"It seems strange to me that all this looting of the bank could have been carried on as long as it was without some one besides the cashier knowing it," said United States Attorney John W. Dunkle today, when asked is information against others besides William Montgomery, the former cashier, were probable.

"That this large sum of money and that these securities which are missing should have been taken by Montgomery without any knowledge of anyone else is strange, to say the least. There has been no information brought to me which would result in charges against others, but that matters would be fully investigated and if there is anything to warrant prosecutions of others I will cause information to be made."

MURDER AT MARINETTE.

Saloonkeeper Kills a Bartender, Presumably Owing to Jealousy.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 19.—A Daily News special from Marinette, Wis., says: Louis Toboltz, a bartender at Amberg, Wis., was shot and killed by Dell Ovorn, a well known saloonkeeper of that town, today. Jealousy of Ovorn over Toboltz's association with his wife is said to have been the cause of the tragedy. Ovorn was arrested.

JAPANESE WOMEN SENT BACK HOME.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 19.—The first Japanese women to be deported from Los Angeles under the agreement between the United States and Japan, relating to the presence of Japanese citizens in this country, were started on their way yesterday when Chi Yone Minodo and Toshida Knyona were sent north under special orders from the secretary of commerce and labor. They were arrested a month ago and were unable to exhibit proper passes to the authorities. Numerous Japanese men laborers have already been deported for similar reason, but it is the first case of Japanese women.

FIND BODY OF SUICIDE.

La Crosse, Wis., May 19.—The police today broke into a residence in the southern part of this city to find the partly decomposed body of the owner. Frank Retzloff, hanging from the ceiling in one of the rooms. The condition of the body indicated that the man had been dead at least a week. Retzloff's wife left him some time ago, since which time he has been despondent.

IMPORTED WAITERS

English Servants in Cafe Sought by Immigrant Inspector.

Contract Labor Laws May Have Been Violated—Bellboys Quit.

Between the Japanese and the English, the management of the St. Louis hotel last week became involved in perplexing international difficulties, and for a time was threatened with a fine ranging from $20,000 to $25,000, not to speak of the loss of a bunch of valuable bell hops and an aggregation of waiters alleged to have been imported from Canada.

As it was, the bell hops, of Japanese extraction, suddenly packed up and left town, and the English waiters, said to have been born across the broad Atlantic, but more recently residents of Winnipeg, also left, but it is understood they did not get out of their own free will. Negroes have taken their places, and the patrons of the St. Louis cafes have had no grounds for complaint up to the present time.

The fines, to which the management seemed liable, came from an alleged conflict with the immigration laws. If the charge that the Englishmen were brought to Duluth from Canada as contract labor could have been proven, the St. Louis would have been liable to a fine of $1,000 for each of the men thus brought across the boundary, and in addition to this the whole lot of them could have been returned to Canada.

The hotel people heard of an investigation that was being conducted by Inspector in Charge William H. Dean of the local United States immigration office, and very shortly thereafter the "imported" waiters were no more in evidence about the hostelry. Broadly smiling black faces were to be seen in place of their expressionless white ones. It is believed Inspector Dean was convinced there had been a violation of the contract labor law, but he was unable to secure positive proof that there had been such a violation before the waiters left town.

The Japs were an entirely different proposition, and a variety of stories have gone the rounds concerning their leaving the St. Louis. The management denies that there was anything in the nature of a strike, but one story has it that the boys quit because they were compelled to eat in the servants' quarters with the other help employed about the hotel. According to this version of the affair, they thought themselves just a little above the other servants of the place and insisted on dining in the cafe upstairs. Whatever the cause, the Japs quit and were seen leaving town with their grips.

Members of the cooks' and waiters' union are said to be responsible for the leakage which resulted in the management of the hotel learning what was on foot. As none of the newly-arrived waiters belonged to the union, Inspector Dean evidently thought it would be safe to enlist their services in securing the necessary evidence against the newcomers, and so took a few of the union men into his confidence, at a meeting arranged for the purpose. At a second meeting none of the union men showed up, but a day or two afterwards one of them came around, it is understood, and asked for some money to help in getting the information. The request was refused, and it wasn't long after this that the management of the hotel "got wise."

GRAND JURY LANDS BAHR

Third Arrest Thus Far Made for Lid Tilting.

The grand jury has handed another Duluth saloonkeeper a prize package. Max Bahr was arrested this morning on a bench warrant, following his indictment for keeping his saloon at 213 West Superior street open between midnight and 5 o'clock in the morning of May 8 last. Bahr waved the reading of the indictment, before Judge Ensign, and entered a plea of not guilty. He furnished a cash bond for his appearance for trial.

Bahr is another local liquor dealer who has been up in the municipal court recently on the charge of violating the city ordinance relative to the closing of saloons at 11 p. m. He has been indicted for the same alleged offense under the state law.

The indictment against Bahr was returned by the grand jury, May 16, but was not made public until he was brought into court on a bench warrant today.

This is the third arrest that has been made, following the grand jury investigations into the "tilting of the lid" in Duluth.

It is not definitely known outside the grand jury and the district court officials whether any other of the local saloonkeepers have been indicted, but it is safe to assume that if any of them have been convicted and fined in the municipal court recently for having their places open after hours, they will be lined up with Fred Merritt of the Manhattan buffet, Alexander McQuein of Lake avenue and Max Bahr of 213 West Superior street.

It is understood that the indicted saloonkeepers intend to make a hard fight against a conviction based on the indictments mentioned, for the penalty is apt to be quite severe.

MAE C. WOOD IS STILL ON STAND

Counsel for Senator Platt Continues His Cross-Examination.

New York, May 19.—Mae C. Wood continued her testimony today in her suit for absolute divorce from United States Senator Thomas C. Platt, to whom she alleges she was married in this city in 1901.

Mr. Stanchfield, of counsel for Platt, continued his cross-examination of Miss Wood, questioning her about a release which she was to Abraham H. Hummel, the former lawyer, in 1903, in which she agreed to accept $10,000 in settlement of her claim against Senator Platt. Miss Wood declared yesterday that this release was signed under duress, but she said she accepted some of the money. Although Miss Wood had signed the release and declared in an accompanying affidavit that she gave the alleged Platt letters to Hummel as her attorney, she declared today that she retained Hummel as her counsel and declared that she could have obtained $50,000 for the letters. Miss Wood said today that she was paid $7,500 for the letters. She did not know where the money came from, she said.

BRYAN LIKES THE PRIMARY SYSTEM

Pleased With the Outcome of Its Use in Alabama.

Philadelphia, May 19.—W. J. Bryan, who last night delivered an address before the Pennsylvania peace conference in session in this city when asked today his views concerning the outcome of the primaries held in Alabama, yesterday, where he secured an apparent victory for the control of the national delegates to the Denver convention, said:

"Alabama was claimed by the opposition, and while the vote is not a surprise to me, it attracts attention because the returns answered the misrepreesntations which have been sent out. The primary system enables the voters to express themselves. In this respect our Democrats in the West have had an advantage over the Democrats of some of the Eastern states, where the method of selecting delegates does not give the rank and file of the party such complete control."

Continuing, Mr. Bryan said:

"I appreciate very much the fight that has been made by my friends in Pennsylvania and in Alabama, for in Alabama they had the steel trust to fight, and in Pennsylvania they had not only the steel trust, but several other trusts. In fact I do not know of any other state in which our people had so much to overcome as they had in Pennsylvania. The vote which I received here at the recent primaries answered the misrpessentations that the Eastern papers had made in regard to the sentiment in Pennsylvania, and the same may be said of Alabama."

Mr. Bryan left this afternoon for Baltimore, to address the Methodist general conference.

STANDARD OIL SUITS TAKEN UP IN OHIO.

Lindsay, Ohio, May 19.—The suit to oust the Standard Oil company from doing business in Ohio, the mandamus suit to compel the Buckeye Pipe Line company to act as a common carrier and an error case from the probate court, in which the Standard was fined $5,000 on the charge of operating in restraint of trade, were taken up in the circuit court here today. The suits are being prosecuted by the state and are based on the state anti-trust law.

TREATY WITH DENMARK.

Washington, May 19.—An arbitration treaty between the United States and Denmark was signed yesterday by Acting Secretary Bacon and Constantine Brun, minister for Denmark. The treaty follows the lines of the general arbitration treaties which have been negotiated between the United States and several European countries.

MAP OF STOMACH ACHE.

New York World: Jacob Kesselman, deaf, dumb and unable to read or write anything except his name, is ill in Belevue hospital. Dr. Leroy Smith, one of the receiving officers at the hospital, told a World reporter that Kesselman was the hardest man to obtain information from that he had ever encountered.

"I can talk the dumb language with both hands," said the doctor, "but this man could only understand the one-hand signs, which neither I nor anybody about here understands. Finally Kesselman drew an accurate diagram of his stomach, and by varied-sized arrows indicated the location of his pains, their course and intensity.

"This diagram proved correct, as upon examination we found him to be suffering from gastric fever. Without Kesselman's drawing it might have taken us a long time to have found just what was his trouble."

THE OVER-STRICT LIBRARIAN.

Postmaster General Meyer, at a dinner in Washington, was advocating postal banks.

"These banks," he said, "have so many good points and so few bad ones that they who find fault with them have to exaggerate and dwell on their defects like an old librarian I used to know.

"This librarian was very strict and censorious. Once, when I was a boy, I returned a volume of Scott to him. He, as usual, looked closely into the book's condition before marking it off my card.

"'Page 85,' he said, glaring at me over his spectacles, 'a hole.' Then he turned the leaf. 'Page 90,' he added, 'another hole.'"

FUN IN THE AD.

Lillian Braythwaite Hill, the very successful writer of humorous advertisements, spoke at a business men's dinner in Chicago on "Fun in the Ad." Miss Hill began in this way:

"Does it pay to advertise? Well, I should say so. A man came to an editor in the town of Shelbyville one day and asked that question.

"'Does it pay,' said the man, 'to advertise in your paper?'

"'Does it pay to advertise in my paper? You just bet it does,' the editor replied. 'Look at Sands, the cash grocer for instance. Sands advertised for a boy last week, and the very next day Mrs. Sands had twins—both boys.'"

IS CRUSHED UNDER LOGS

West Duluth Man Has Narrow Escape From Death.

Protection of Embankment All That Saved His Life.

The slope of the railroad embankment was probably all that saved Hugh McDonald from being crushed to death beneath five heavy logs which rolled from a train at the Alger-Smith mill this morning at about 8 o'clock. As it was he sustained three fractured ribs and many ugly bruises on his body and legs.

McDonald said this morning at the Duluth hospital, where he was taken after the accident occurred, that he was unfastening the chains which held the logs on the car. He had just unscrewed the nut holding the ends of the chain together, when the logs started. The first log struck him in the chest and knocked him over the embankment, where four more rolled over him in quick succession.

"If I had fallen alongside the car at the top of the embankment, where the logs first struck when they rolled from the car, I would probably have been crushed to death," he said. "As it is, I was protected by the slope of the mound, and the force of the falling logs was broken before they reached me several feet below." The first log which struck McDonald was probably the one which broke his ribs.

Though his injuries are painful, they are not serious.

WANTED HER PAY.

Piano Player Claims Theater Proprietor Swore at Her.

Charles Ellison, one of the proprietors of the Elco theater, was arrested last night at about 10 o'clock shortly after the close of the evening's performance, on the charge of being drunk and using profane language to Miss Alice Hannon of 1606 West Superior street.

Ellison's outbreak of profanity is alleged to have been caused by the fact that Miss Hannon, who plays the piano at the vaudeville house, asked that the pay due her be forthcoming. According to those who were present last evening at the Elco, Ellison refused to pay then, but promised that he would pay "tomorrow." But Miss Hannon had evidently been requested to wait until tomorrow too often, and insisted in her demand. Ellison became angry, and having indulged too freely, according to the charge against him, started to abuse her.

Ellison was let out on $10 bail to appear at the municipal court today.

Banquet Program.

The program for the banquet of the Irving school alumni which is to be held on May 29 at Wade's hall has been completed. Clarence B. Miller, who was asked to be the principal speaker, has accepted, though at first he thought it was doubtful if he could manage to arrange to be on hand at that time.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Asbury Methodist church held a special meeting yesterday afternoon and arranged to serve the spread for the alumni association's feast. The following is the program for the evening: Invocation, Rev. Thomas Grice; address of welcome, President Ray W. Abbott; instrumental solo, Maude Gilbert; toast, "The Alumni," Leila Sparks; instrumental solo, Leon Iltis; toast, "The Girls," John Quinn; toast, "The Boys," Vera Rockwell; toast, "The Teacher," E. George Kreidler; toast, "The Class of '08," Miss Gross; address, Hon. Clarence B. Miller.

West Duluth Briefs.

Word has been received from J. H. Lauermann, who is well known in West Duluth, that he is at Los Vegas, N. M.

Ralph Pond is ill at his home on Fifty-seventh avenue west.

W. H. Plhs of Buffalo and Alfred Olson of Zim, Minn., are registered at the Phillips hotel.

Ashton Mero has returned to West Duluth after visiting friends in Corinth, Mass.

James Conly, who has been visiting his son at Two Harbors has returned.

The annual election of officers will be held this evening by the Epworth league of the Asbury M. E. church at the church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street.

Miss Kate Sullivan, who has been visiting for the past three months in Chicago, has returned to West Duluth.

Mrs. A. Cummings, who has been in West Duluth since the funeral of her brother, Lieut. Arthur Briggs, has returned to her home in Ottawa, Ont.

Mrs. Roy Blakely of Chicago is visiting friends in West Duluth.

A social will be given Friday evening at the rectory, 634 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, by the Ladies' Guild of the Holy Apostle's Episcopal church. The members will meet this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Walter Evered on Fifty-sixth avenue west, and make arrangements for the social.

West Duluth division of the A. O. U. W. and the degree of honor will hold a joint meeting tomorrow evening. The meeting will be attended by the grand lodge officers from St. Paul.

The West Duluth fire department was called to Sixty-sixth avenue west yesterday afternoon to extinguish a fire that started from spontaneous combustion of a carload of coke standing on the siding there. About fifty pounds of coke was burned and the car which belonged to the Northern Pacific railroad was slightly damaged before the firemen got out blaze out.

HAS CORNER IN CORN.

Sells Up 3 Cents With James Patten Holding Most of It.

Chicago, May 19.—May corn sold up 3c today in the early hours of trading, chiefly because of the active demand by shorts for grain to deliver May contracts. The bulk of grain is in the hands of James M. Patten and not much of it was for sale. The closing price yesterday was 76 cents, and in a short time after the opening today, it had touched 79. This constitutes a new high record for the season, but is not the highest ever reached, corn having several times sold at one dollar and over at the local board of trade.

THREE YOUNG MEN DROWNED.

Sandusky, Ohio, May 19.—The finding of an overturned sailboat today indicates that three young men, Arnold Wiedemann, William Schaefer and Fred Lambrecht, were drowned in Sandusky bay last night. A severe squall came up an hour after the boys had started out.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"Goodness," sighed one of the women of the board of directors of the Children's Home, as she prepared to leave the rummage sale for her luncheon, after an arduous morning's work. "I wish I hadn't worn my coat down this morning. It's so warm, but I might as well take it home now as later."

So she set out to hunt for her coat. She went to the table where she had laid it, and it was not there. She lifted up a pile of men's wearing apparel, and it was not there. She turned around and looked once more at the spot where she was perfectly sure she had laid it, and it was not there, just as it had not been when she looked the first time. She lifted up a pile of white shirt waists and it was not there.

"How provoking!" said the lady.

She once more looked at the spot where she knew she had laid it, and it wasn't there again.

"It's too annoying," she said. "My husband will be waiting for his luncheon, but I guess I better get the coat now."

She looked on the line over which hung three or four hundred string ties. It wasn't there. "I know that I put it right down there she said in an argumentative way to herself.

"What are you looking for?" inquired a friend.

"My coat," said the first lady, who was conducting the rummage sale with assistance from many others.

A third had come forward and as she heard the words and saw the earnest looks cast at the place where the coat had been, she turned pale and staggered slightly and then decided to tell the truth.

"Was it a gray coat?" she inquired in gray tones.

"Yes," said the former owner eagerly.

"And was it lying right there on the table?" asked the saleswoman, who was becoming more pale.

"Yes. Right here," said she who was hunting for her coat.

"And did it have a velvet collar with kind of ——?" continued the other.

"Yes," said the owner. "That's it. Where is it, please?"

"I sold it," sai dthe pale young woman with the courage born of desperation.

Tableaux.

"How much for this," asked a foreign looking woman upon whose face the cares of many years had settled. A fascinator had slipped from her tightly pulled back hair down on to her neck, and she looked forth on to the world with the sorrows of ages shining in her limpid brown eyes.

"One dollar," said one of the women of the board.

"Too much," said she of the tragic brown eyes.

"Not a bit," said the thrifty soul who was selling.

A weary shrug ended the matter for the moment.

The saleswoman for charity's sake moved away. Another came into the vicinity of the foreign looking woman.

"How much?" she asked, holding out the same article.

"One dollar," said the second saleswoman.

"Too much," said she of the sweetly weary-looking face, in much the same tone that Blanch Walsh might wail "Woe is me!"

"Oh, no," said the saleswoman.

A weary shrug ended the argument—for the moment.

A third saleswoman hovered near the foreign-looking woman.

"How much?" the latter inquired again, holding forth the same article.

"One dollar," said the saleswoman.

"Too much," said the soft voice, while the beautiful brown eyes rested in anguished appeal on the face of the saleswoman.

"Oh, no," said the saleswoman cheerfully. "It's worth that easily enough."

A weary shrug ended the argument—temporarily.

Another saleswoman came by. "How much?" asked the brown-eyed one as she held forth the garment she desired.

She had not looked well, for the fourth saleswoman was also the first. "A dollar," she said firmly, "and it's not going down. The price is a dollar and it will remain here until it is sold for that price."

The soul-wearied one dug into depths of her being and drew forth a roll of paper money, and from among a cluster of fives and tens she abstracted a dollar bill and sighed heavily.

The rummage sale which has been conducted the last two days at 428 East First street by the women of the board of managers of the children's home has been most successful. As a result of yesterday's sale $175 was realized for the home. The quality of clothes and other matter which was sent to the sale was such that much wear remained and the members feel that, in making this money for the home, they have provided many with articles of attire and household furnishings, pictures or books at small cost.

SKETCHING CLASSES.

Out-of-Door Classes Will Be Organized by Art School.

Out of door sketching classes will be a feature of the summer course of the Duluth Art school, which will open about June 1. The spring term at the school has been most successful, and the majority of the students are already enrolled for the summer term. It is expected that many of the high school students, who have been much occupied with their school duties, will enroll for the summer course. Applications may be sent to Miss Poirer of the public library, or made at the office of the Art school, which is located in the third floor of the Washington school building.

Anyone interested in the classes, and especially strangers in the city, are invited to visit the school at a morning or afternoon session.

DULUTH STUDENT

At Art Institute Assists Professor in Experiments.

Louis W. Wilson of the Art institute of Chicago is investigating along the line of color in tone, and among his class, which is investigating the subject with him, is enrolled Miss Margaret Anneke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Anneke of this. Mr. Wilson and his theories was the subject of a feature story in the Chicago Inter-Ocean, and a part of which is as follows:

Do you sing in lavender or squash yellow?

Is your voice a velvety violet, or do you warble in the strain of a weather-beaten rail fence?

It's just as proper now to have a light blue talk as it is to have a dark brown taste.

It all grows out of the theory that sounds have colors and colors have sounds. What has been catalogued as the "ditonic color scale" has been added to the the collection at the Art institute. Louis W. Wilson, art instructor and lecturer on the theory of color discovered it—with a little help from Sir Isaac Newton—and "sound colors" are now the subject of interesting discussion in Chicago musical and art circles.

Mr. Wilson has discovered that the vibrational relations of colors of the rainbow are exactly proportionate to these same relations between notes of the musical scale. Red in the sepctrum corresponds with the supertonic note in the scale, yellow with subdominant, and so on until all the colors and notes are paired off.

The sound of the subdominant note suggests the submediant. The color of the subdominant note is yellow, and its complementary color—the hue of the submedient note—is blue.

Development of the idea reveals an amazing array of possibilities. Musical compositions may be visualized. Wilson is constructing a color piano, by which colors will be blended on the canvas as harmonious chords and melodies are played on the piano.

He says that the new pigmental standards will be required and that various complex tonal combinations will develop new shades.

New discoveries in connection with the tonality of color are creating an immense amount of interest among Art institute students. Members of Mr. Wilson's classes, who have aided him in experiments, are Misses Maude Huford, Effie Sammond, Margaret Anneke, Helen Chamberlain, Anna Sandberg, Olive Kramer and Alice Andrews.

Mr. Wilson was discussing the phenomena among a group of musicians and artists at the Art institute yesterday afternoon. He is to lecture on the subject before the Palette and Chisel club in the Athenaeum building tonight.

"Sing the supertonic note, Margaret," requested Mr. Wilson, addressing one of his pupils.

Miss Anneke launched a beautifully lyrical tone, clear and vibrant and with the tremolo working well.

"Red, a warm, throbbing red!" exclaimed the discoverer of color music, dashing at his palette and smearing an anarchistic dab on a canvas before him.

Then Miss Sammond took the tonic tone in the lower register of her voice. The note had a tender, sympathetic ring to it, filled with a subtle suggestion of longing, pathos, and unrest.

According to Mr. Wilson's scale the color of the tonic tone is purple—a royal purple that is satisfying to the eye and exceedingly restful.

SALLIE McNEIL

Former Duluth Girl Sends Greetings to "Aunt Mary."

"Love to Aunt Mary and my good friends in Duluth" was the telegram received last evening by May Robson early in the evening, and it was signed Satie McNeil Lockwood. Many Duluth people were interested in the stage career of Sallie McNeil, a Duluth girl, who went on the comic opera stage several years ago. Miss McNeil made her home with Miss Robson in New York when their theatrical engagements would permit. Miss McNeil was married about a year ago to Thomas Lockwood of New York city and has left the professional stage.

BEAUTIFUL PARASOLS.

Covering and Handles of Dainty Accessory are Delightful.

There is a great variety of parasols for summer use, but just now the handles, rather than the coverings, are the parts thought of most. The handles are truly wonderful, some being finely carved and set with precious or semi-precious stones. Ivory and jade are chosen as the favorites from a dozen other styles. There is nothing elaborate in the shapes—they are very simple, with ball tops, slim pear-shapes, long, slender, crooked and twisted or chased ones. The workmanship on them is to be admired, which shows flowers, fruits, the heads of birds, beasts and fish, carved in the finest manner. Some of these works of art are iris, with flowers and leaves in slender groups, and chrysanthemums are especially lovely. Bogs, carved from natural wood, are often painted in natural colors, and cluster of fruit, surrounded by leaves, are shown in perfect colorings. Copper, one of the novelties of the season, is beaten and treated with acids and is made into the most artistic forms. Jade, the valuable Japanese stone, which has been so popular in jewelry, is now extremely fashionable for parasol handles. Its beauty lies in its shading and translucency and its simple, graceful shape. Some are set with the tiniest of diamonds, with gold tips to finish the frame ribs. Handles cut from carnelian show exquisite shading and can be matched to silk coverings of solid colors. Jewels or enamel are the only decorations used, but sometimes a touch of contrasting metal is seen. There is a great variety of handles for those who are in mourning. Black wood with the French poodle carved on it is popular. Gun metal is found in many shapes—sometimes studded with pearls, and plain jet and onyx in slender sticks are quite suitable for young girls.

ARRESTED IN CHICAGO.

John Hamilton Charged With Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses

Chicago, May 19.—John Hamilton, who claims to have been a lieutenant of infantry in the United States army, was arrested here today on the charge of obtaining money by false pretenses. He is wanted by the police of Cincinnati, where he is said to have obtained money from various women by means of advertisements in the newspapers. Hamilton was traced through letters he had written to his bride of one month, who is said to be the daughter of a prominent businessman in possession.

Cincinnati, May 19.—The arrest of "Lieut." John Hamilton at Chicago today was on a warrant issued in this city on Sunday, on complaint of Mrs. Dena Schwab of McKicken avenue, the allegation being that Hamilton had robbed her of $500 in the Munro cafe. Mrs. Hamilton, who was Miss Blanch Bradley before her marriage, had been detained by the police, but was yesterday released. The identification of Hamilton was made by means of a picture in her possessin.

BISHOP HORSTMANN BURIED AT CLEVELAND.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 19.—With all the pomp and ceremony of the Roman Catholic ritual, the body of Right Rev. Ignatius F. Horstmann was placed in the tomb today. Two archbishops and twelve bishops were present to do honor to their former brother in the episcopate. More than 300 priests sang the office of the dead, and a pontifical requiem mass was celebrated by Archbishop Mueller of Cincinnati. Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia, a life long friend of Bishop Horstmann delivered the funeral sermon.

After the rites were concluded, the body of Bishop Horstmann was borne to the crypt under the main altar. Sixteen priests, in reliefs of eight, carried the casket. The body of Bishop Horstmann will rest in a brick-faced tomb beside those of Bishop Gilmour and Bishop Rappe.

MUST PAY COMMISSIONS.

Local Real Estate Brokers Not Doing Business for Health.

By stipulation of both parties, based on a settlement effected out of court, the civil action of John B. Greenfield against William D. Bradley has been dismissed from the district court. Mr. Greenfield, who is a real estate agent, sold Mr. Bradley's home in Lakeside for $2,800 and claimed the regular 5 per cent commission for the sale, amounting to $145, which amount he claimed the defendant had neglected to pay. The basis of the settlement is not stated. This is the third case of a similar character that has come up in the district court this spring. The other two cases went to trial and the real estate agents recovered the full amount of their claims.

RAILROADS

WRECK AT RUSH CITY

Northern Pacific Train Delayed Four Hours by Collision.

Freight Cars Block Track Between St. Paul and Duluth.

The collision of two freight trains near Rush City delayed the Northern Pacific passenger No. 106 this morning, and it was more than four hours late, not reaching Duluth until nearly noon.

"It was a rear-end collision between two freight trains and no one was hurt," said a brakeman of the train on its arrival at noon today.

"The two freights bumped at Rush City. The 'cow-catcher' of the engine, which struck the caboose of the first train, was somewhat damaged, but that did not amount to anything. Some empty cars, between loaded ones in the first string buckled, and that was what caused all the delay. The buckled cars tied things up so that it was necessary to send for the wrecker to clear the track. It tied up traffic for quite a while, but as far as I could learn, no one was hurt."

Most of the passengers were asleep when the passenger came upon the wrecked trains and knew nothing of it, until they awoke and found themselves near Rush City instead of at Duluth.

ORDERS NEW CARS.

Evidence of Returning Prosperity in Railroad Freight Traffic.

Pittsburg, May 19.—Evidence of returning prosperity is furnished that the announcement that the Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad has ordered the Standard Steel Car company to begin construction of 2,000 all steel cars for that road.

The new cars will be used to handle the tonnage between the coal and coke regions and the lakes. The order calls for 1,000 specially designed all steel cars and 1,000 all steel gondolas. The contract was originally awarded last summer, but held up.

Delivery will be started as soon as the cars can be completed.

WEATHER—Partly cloudy weather tonight and Wednesday; cooler tonight; light to fresh variable winds.

Out of last night's heavy fog jumped Miss Spring at early dawn, and donned her summer duds.

Do not worry about your own—they are ready for you at the big Columbia store.

We believe in our clothes, because we know our tailors are the best in the business. These clothes will fit you and wear you and give you style.

More men are finding out each season, that it is as unnecessary to go to a little tailor for their clothes as it is to go to an old-time shoemaker for their shoes.

This argument applies to our suits as well as to our overcoats.

Tomorrow, by the way, is the last day that we will allow a 20 per cent rebate on all spring overcoats, to reduce an existing overstock of them.

CHARGE IS SERIOUS ONE

Chisholm Man Claimed to Have Bribed Five Voters.

Witnesses Claim He Paid Them $1 Apiece to Vote.

Charged with inducing five Chisholm men to vote illegally at the recent municipal election there, Louis Roth of Chisholm was this afternoon arrested on a bench warrant and brought before the district court.

Roth was indicted by the grand jury on five counts. It is claimed that he paid five Austrians $1 apiece to vote at the recent election. Some of the men, it is claimed, voted two or three times, receiving $1 for each vote.

The charge is a serious one and Roth, if convicted, is liable to a fine of $500 and a term of imprisonment in each case.

Anna Plavich was arrested at Hibbing and brought to Duluth this afternoon on an indictment charging her with selling liquor without a license April 5.

Lecture on Fumigation.
State Health Inspector Sands this afternoon delivered a lecture on fumigation before the health inspectors of the city at the city hall.

Kept Boy Out of School.
John M. Steen, the painter who was fined $5 in municipal court yesterday afternoon for having kept his 13-year-old son, Philip, out of school, says there was no use sending the boy to school any more, because he was being held back in his studies, and was only in the second grade, although 13 years old. It develops that the teacher offered to teach young Steen after the regular school hours, so that he might catch up in his studies.

Struck By Train.
Louis Finkelstein, about 25 years old, was struck by a Duluth & Iron Range train yesterday afternoon, in the east end of the city, but was not badly injured. No bones were broken. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital, but will be able to leave in a day or two.

Damage Not Serious.
Wisconsin Central engineers say the caving in of the crust above the tunnel under Michigan street, between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues west, has not reached an alarming stage, but they contemplate putting in steel sets to prevent any disaster.

Gets Thirty Days.
Louis Larson drew a fine of $27 or thirty days when he appeared before Judge Cutting in municipal court this morning. He has been bothering the police for months, between vagrancy and drunkenness, and has been arrested several times.

Cars Handled the Crowds.
To take care of two crowds of its patrons, one at the May Festival of Music at the First Methodist church and the other at the Lyceum, where May Robson appeared in the "Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," the street railway company put five extra cars, all of the double-truck variety on the Lakeside, East End, Woodland and Fourth street service last evening. With the cars all lined up between Third and Fifth avenues west, Superior street had the appearance of a railroad yard for a short time. The extra car service enabled the handling of the theater and church crowds with comfort and facility.

Committee Meets.
Preliminary steps toward starting public playgrounds in Duluth were taken yesterday at a meeting of the committee appointed last week by Mayor Haven to look after the preliminary arrangements. It was decided that when the playgrounds are started they shall be open from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m. No definite action was taken, but another meeting will be held next week.

Another Big Trout Landed.
Big trout are all the fashion at Lester river this season. Early Sunday morning Lee S. Gibson, salesman for the Fitzsimmons-Palmer company on Michigan street, caught an 8½ pound rainbow trout, equalling the record established by James A. Wharton, Jr. of Lester park. The big trout caught by Mr. Gibson was on exhibition at the commission house yesterday. It is said to have been practically the only fish caught from Lester river, near its mouth, last Sunday.

Link May Change Positions.
W. K. Link is understood to have received the appointment to the superintendency of the Berwind Fuel company's dock. Mr. Link is at present the superintendent of the Northern Coal & Dock company's local dock. O. A. Winter, superintendent of the Berwind dock is said to be slated for another position. No official information is available as to the appointments. Mr. Link has been connected with the Jones & Adams interests, which own the Northern Coal & Dock property, for about fifteen years, coming to Superior from Ashland in 1902.

Results of Advertising.
The Kelley-How-Thomson company, local wholesale hardware dealers, have been widely advertising their trademark "Hickory" brand and some amusing circumstances have resulted by reason of the peculiar notions some of the country customers who seem to have been more impressed by the trademark than the firm name. The company has received several communications of late addressed to "Mr. Hickory."

SUPERIOR NEWS

WILL ELEVATE TRACKS.

Northern Pacific Will Use Large Amount of Filling in Superior.

The Northern Pacific railroad will raise its tracks in Superior about five feet. The work was started at the freight house on Winter street and will run to the Northern Pacific bridge across the St. Louis river, a distance of about twelve blocks. Between 25,000 and 30,000 cubic feet of dirt will be used in the filling. This is far more than will be used by the Wisconsin Central in their grading for three and a half miles through the city.

Soo Road Wins Case.

The Soo road is said to have won out in every contention before the state railroad commission at Madison. This is claimed to mean that the company has overcome the opposition of the other railroads to its proposed line into Superior and grade crossing with the other roads.

Hertlein Will Lose Job.

The board of public works will meet Wednesday and will consider the appointment of a ward foreman for the Allouez district. It is reported that Fred Hertlein, familiarly known as the "Mayor of Allouez," will be ousted from the foreman's job, and that Samuel Anderson, another resident of that district, has the "O. K." of the alderman of the Tenth ward on his application for the position. The board usually acts on the recommendations of the aldermen.

Drink Caused Downfall.

A. L. Oestlund, who attempted to pass a bogus $5 checks at Rydell's drug store a week ago, pleaded guilty to the charge of having a fraudulent check in his possession, and was given a three months' workhouse term by Judge Smith, yesterday afternoon. Oestlund attributes his troubles to a fondness for liquor. He is said to belong to a good family in Minneapolis.

City Will Require Bonds.

The city of Superior intends to pass an ordinance providing that contractors building cement walks shall hereafter furnish a bond, guaranteeing the work. The city charter makes no provision for the bond and the city has no way to compel the contractors to remedy defects in the walks.

Mr. Mills' subject tomorrow morning will be "The Three Minds of Man." At 4 o'clock in the afternoon, he will speak on "The Principles of Spiritual Healing," and at 8:15 p. m., on "The Subliminal Consciousness."

PROSPECTS OF PEACE

In the Street Car Strike at Cleveland Are Improving.

Strikers Continue Disturbances While Negotiations Are Pending.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 19.—There appeared today to be every possibility that the strike of the conductors and motormen on the lines of the Municipal Traction company would end within twenty-four hours. While the peace mediators were at work on a settlement the strikers and their sympathizers were not idle, however.

The first disturbance of any consequence occurred on Superior avenue, where a dynamite torpedo set a car load of passengers into a panic. No one was injured. The car was only slightly damaged and proceeded without much delay. The strikers continued to hover about the car barns, appealing to the men to stop work.

The car service was improved today. Practically all of the lines were operated with nearly normal schedules. In many of the suburbs, however, the service has not yet been resumed, owing to the inability of the suburban police to protect the cars. The city police still accompanies each car.

The board of arbitration was in conference with President Dupont of the traction company today. It is understood that the company is willing to arbitrate all points in the controversy, providing the strikers return to work and stop the violence. The only condition President Dupont is understood to insist upon is that the strikers return to work as "new" men, and not insist upon the seniority rule. This is done for the purpose of caring for the men who remained at work when the strike was called, whom the company desires to give preference.

COPPER STOCKS TAKE A SLUMP

Boston List Sells Off at the End of Session.

The copper stock market sold off during the latter part of the session today and closed weaker. North Butte, which has been the strong bullish feature for several days, showed as big a decline as any of the issues.

North Butte opened at $66.25, declined to $63.50 and closed at $64 bid and $64.75 asked. Amalgamated opened at $69.75, declined to $66.62½ and closed at $67.25 bid.

Greene-Cananea opened at $10.12½, declined to $9.75 and closed at $9.75 bid and $9.87½ asked. Butte Coalition opened at $24.75, declined to $24.25 and closed at $24 bid and $24.25 asked. Calumet & Arizona declined from $112.25 to $111.50 and closed at $111.50 bid and $112 asked. Anaconda opened at $46.12½, advanced to $46.25, declined to $42 and closed at $43.50 bid.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $13.12½, declined to $12.62½ and closed at $12.75 bid. Globe sold at $7, declined to $6.62½ and closed at $6.50 bid and $6.62½ asked. Butte & Superior sold at $1.12½ and closed at $1.12½ bid and $1.25 asked, and Copper Queen of Idaho at $1 and closed at $1 bid and $1.12½ asked.

Denn-Arizona was inactive and closed at $2.75 bid and $2.87½ asked. Calumet & Sonora at $7.75 bid and $8 asked.

Black Mountain sold at $4.50 and closed at $4.25 bid and $4.50 asked.

Boys' Natty Suits $4.95.

The kind usually sold for $6. See them at C. W. Ericson's, 219 West Superior street.

GETS FOUR OFFERS.

Duluth People Are Willing to Give an Ex-Convict a Chance.

The story in last evening's Herald regarding James Rowe, who had lately been released from the penitentiary and was unable to get work, resulted in no less than four offers of positions being received at The Herald office today.

Rowe, on leaving the office yesterday, promised to return today to find out what results The Herald's story had brought him. Until 3 o'clock this afternoon he had not appeared, but when he does he will be given the list of offers that have come in and he can take his choice.

FOUGHT IN STREET.

John Root Had Rock Wrapped in His Handkerchief.

John Root and James Mahar were arraigned in municipal court this morning on a charge of fighting in the street. Their hearing was set for this afternoon. It is charged that the two men were engaged in a fierce fistic encounter at Third avenue west and Superior street last night, and that one of them, Root, had a rock wrapped in a handkerchief in his pocket.

The presence of the rock was made known when it dropped from his pocket to the floor of the patrol wagon. The fact that it was knotted in one end of the handkerchief made it look very much as if it were intended as a weapon. Mahar claims somebody turned a hose on him, and that while he was fighting the offender Root stepped in and took his, Mahar's place. The police say the story of the hose is a myth, pure and simple.

BIG ASHLAND FUNERAL.

Ashland, Wis., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of the late W. M. Tomkins, for thirty-five years a leading attorney and prominent citizen of Ashland who died Sunday, was held this afternoon from the Presbyterian church, under the auspices of the Masons. The attendance was very large, many testifying to their high esteem for the deceased. The Knights Templar escorted the body to the church at 11 a. m., where it lay in state until 12:30 p. m., the services beginning at 3 p. m.

BEDE FEELS CONFIDENT

Of Getting $237,000 for Dredging Turning Basin in Harbor.

New Revenue Cutter to Have Its Heodqnarters at Duluth.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The present session of congress is rapidly drawing to a close, and most of the items in which Duluth is interested will be enacted into law. Representative Bede, during the closing hours of congress, has been quite busy and is confident of securing at least an appropriation of $237,000 for the dredging of a turning basin in Duluth harbor. This morning he called upon Gen. McKenzie, chief of engineers, regarding the work, and Gen. McKenzie, in advance of the passage of the bill, has instructed Maj. Fitch, stationed at Duluth, to prepare plans and specifications so that the work may be commenced almost at the moment the bill is enacted.

The bill introduced by Representative Bede carrying an appropriation of $200,000 for the construction of a revenue cutter for service on Lake Superior is on the verge of passage. It is technically understood that the headquarters of the proposed new revenue cutter will be at Duluth.

C. L. McNair of the Cloquet paper mills is in Washington to appear before the committee to investigate the alleged paper trust and kindred subjects.

Representative Bede this morning called upon Supervising Architect Taylor to put in an early request that work looking to securing a site for a postoffice building at Virginia be rushed.

Representative Bede this morning called upon Secretary Garfield, Forester Pinchot and Secretary Taft relative to the Rainy River dam project. It was the understanding of Mr. Bede that the several questions involved would be taken up in the cabinet meeting today. He is rather inclined to think that it may be possible to overcome President Roosevelt's objections by some other than an attempt to pass the bill over his veto.

MRS. GUNNESS WAS BURNED

The Finding of Her False Teeth Removes All Doubt.

Laporte, Ind., May 19.—Sheriff Smutzer and Miner Schultz, who are sluicing the ashes in the debris of the Gunness fire, found the upper and lower plates from Mrs. Gunness' mouth, both containing the false teeth which Mrs. Gunness had in her mouth. Dr. I. P. Norton, who made the lower plate, immediately identified them and also identified the upper plate, frequently having seen it, although it was made before he became her dentist.

"This proves beyond the shadow of a doubt," said Sheriff Smutzer, "that Mrs. Gunness was burned to death in the fire."

Prosecuting Attorney R. H. Smith said today that Ray Lamphere, now held in jail here on the charge of murdering Mrs. Gunness and her children, will not be tried before Sept. 1.

Prosecutor Smith admitted that inasmuch as so many people in and about Laporte believe Mrs. Gunness to be still alive he expected to experience much difficulty in proving that she was murdered by Lamphere.

TAKE CHARGE OF HORSE.

Animal Was Left Standing All Night in West Duluth.

The West Duluth police this morning took in charge a horse and buggy found tied to a pole on Ramsey street, and placed the horse in the barn of John Winness. The animal had been tied all night to the same post, and as no one appeared to claim it during the morning, the officers thought they had better put it in a barn. The animal is a brown mare, and was attached to a top buggy with a black body and red running gear.

SALOON IS CLOSED.

Proprietor Out of Business, Although Claimed to be Innocent.

The license of William McCullough to operate a saloon at 314 West Superior street, which was held up at the council meeting last evening, will probably be reported on favorably by the council committee on police and license.

The complaints against the saloon were received late yesterday, when the committee had no time to investigate them. It was claimed that Mr. McCullough was in some way connected with an alleged gambling room, which is claimed to be operated in proximity to his saloon.

McCullough disclaims any connection with the room in question and claims to be able to satisfy the aldermen that he has not even an enclosed card room in his saloon. The police have no complaint to make regarding the place, and say that it is one of the most orderly in the city.

The license has expired, however, and the saloon has been ordered closed pending the action of the council committee.

BUYS OLD MILL SITE.

Duluth-Minneapolis Concern Secures Old Commander Mill Property

McGuire & Atwood, hay and grain dealers, with offices in Duluth and Minneapolis, are reported to have purchased the site of the old Commander mill, which burned down, in Superior.

Just what purpose the new owners will put the property to has not been learned yet. None of the firm was in when a reporter called at their offices in the board of trade building this afternoon.

The Commander mill site comprises four lots on the Hughitt slip, Superior.

BURNS ACCEPTS CURLEY'S OFFER

London, May 19.—"Tommy" Burns, the heavyweight pugilist, today sent a cablegram to Jack Curley at Chicago accepting an offer to fight "Jack" Johnson, the colored heavyweight, in Nevada on Labor Day for a purse of $35,000, Burns to have $30,000 win, lose or draw. Burns' acceptance is as follows:

"I will accept $35,000 for Labor Day. You know my terms. Jeffries to referee. Neall will post the forfeit. Sign for me."

Burns is surprised at the strictures in the American newspapers because he did not reply earlier to this offer. He says he never heard of it until he received Curley's letter yesterday.

Samuel Fitzpatrick, manager for "Jack" Johnson, said today that Johnson had not heard anything direct from Curley. As soon as he does he is ready to consider the offer.

FINED FOR SPEEDING.

Charles Fitzgerald Arrested for Exceeding the Speed Limit.

Charles W. Fitzgerald was arraigned before the municipal court this afternoon on the charge of having exceeded the speed limit in his automobile. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined by Judge Cutting.

His brother was driving the machine at the time of his arrest.

CALIFORNIA DEMOCRATS INSTRUCT FOR BRYAN.

Fresno, Cal., May 19.—The Democratic state convention today adopted a platform instructing the California delegation for William J. Bryan for president, and indorsing ex-Congressman Theodore Ball for temporary chairman of the national convention to be held in Denver on July 7.

Fresno, Cal., May 19.—Theodore A. Bell, Democratic candidate for governor two years ago, heading the anti-organization wing of the party, won a decided victory in gaining control of the Democratic state convention at the last moment, yesterday, and securing the election by acclamation of his candidate, State Senator J. B. Sanford, as temporary chairman. Bell, by reason of this victory, becomes the dominant power in the Democratic party in California. He will go to Denver as delegate-at-large and will be indorsed by the state convention for temporary chairman of the Democratic national convention.

SENATE ADDS $8,000,000

To the Omnibus Public Buildings Bill Passed by the House.

Washington, May 19.—The senate committee on public buildings and grounds today completed consideration of the omnibus public buildings bill, which passed the house last week. The committee added about $8,000,000, bringing the total carried by the measure as reported to the senate to over $30,000,000.

CRIMINAL CHARGES AGAINST BROKERS.

New York, May 19.—Criminal charges against certain members of the firm of T. A. McIntyre & Co., stock brokers, who recently failed with liabilities exceeding $1,000,000, was laid before District Attorney Jerome today by C. C. Burlingham, the receiver of the failed firm. Mr. Jerome at once presented the charges before a grand jury.

The proceedings before the grand jury were as is customary, secret and were not concluded today. They will probably be continued tomorrow.

Steinway Philosophy

A Piano has a soul as well as a body. The soul is represented by that intangible quality known as tone; the body, or the material form, by the case and the interior mechanism.

The perfect piano, the piano that is a symbol of the highest artistic achievement, must have its beautiful tone to merit that distinction. It is this tone that imparts to the piano its real intrinsic worth and gives the piano its individuality, or personality, and its practical value to the musician.

The tone color cannot be realized in its richest degree unless it is based on a faultless mechanism.

In the Peerless Steinway

this alliance of the artistic and the practical has been ensured. It is the foundation stone upon which every detail of Steinway attainment has been based.

It is an impressive phase of Steinway philosophy.

The vital force of a persistent progression toward an ideal.

I AM A MOTHER

How many American women in lonely homes to-day long for this blessing to come into their lives, and to be able to utter these words, but because of some organic derangement this happiness is denied them.

Every woman interested in this subject should know that preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by the use of

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Maggie Gilmer, of West Union, S. C., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was greatly run-down in health from a weakness peculiar to my sex, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. It not only restored me to perfect health, but to my delight I am a mother."

Mrs. Josephine Hall, of Bardstown, Ky., writes:

"I was a very great sufferer from female troubles, and my physician failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only restored me to perfect health, but I am now a proud mother."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

DOCTOR ADVISED USE OF CUTICURA

After Other Treatment Failed—Eczema in Raw Spot on Baby Boy's Face Lasted for Months—Cried with Pain when Washed.

ECZEMA WAS CURED AND HAS NEVER REAPPEARED

"Our baby boy broke out with eczema on his face when one month old. One place on the side of his face the size of a nickel was raw like beefsteak for three months, and he would cry out when I bathed the parts that were sore and broken out. I gave him three months' treatment from a good doctor, but at the end of that time the child was no better. Then my doctor recommended Cuticura. After using a cake of Cuticura Soap, a third of a box of Cuticura Ointment, and half a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent he was well and his face was as smooth as any baby's. He is now two years and a half old and no eczema has reappeared. I am still using the Cuticura Soap; I think it is the finest toilet soap I ever used. I keep my little girl's hair and face cleansed with it too. I am so thankful for what Cuticura has done for us. Mrs. M. L. Harris, R. F. D. 1, Alton, Kan., May 14 and June 12, '07."

MARINE NEWS

WORK UNDER NEW POLICY

Union Men and Non-Union Men Signing Up Together.

Statement That Strike May Come Later Not Taken Seriously.

"Union men and non-union men alike are coming in looking for work and, at least as far as this port is concerned, there will be no trouble over the 'open shop' policy of the Lake Carriers' association," said Capt. Currie, the Lake Carriers' shipping master in his office in the Board of Trade building this morning.

"I have more applications for work now than I can handle, but navigation has not fully opened yet, of course. I don't think there will be any trouble when more men are needed, as nearly all who follow the lakes are willing to work under the new arrangement. There is no difference, as far as the men are concerned. The wages and conditions aboard are identical with those of last year, only the men will go on the ships as individuals, instead of as union crews."

The statements that the union men may wait until navigation is in full swing before striking is not taken seriously by representatives of ship owners about the city. All are firm in the opinion that the men will be satisfied with the new order of things and will not submit, should the officers of the unions propose such a course as that laid out.

There is no cloud in the labor situation on the lakes now. All of the big boats that have been put in commission have secured crews without trouble and in some ports there are more men than can be taken care of when navigation is in full swing. The owners are not worrying over any actions of the unions, but will treat with the men as individuals and, if union men will not work under that arrangement, they claim that there are plenty of non-union men ready to step in.

BOATS WILL LOAD ORE

Ships of Pittsburg Fleet Preparing to Receive Cargoes.

Shipments May be Made Before End of This Week.

There are signs of activity at the Duluth, Missabe & Northern ore dock at Thirty-third avenue west, and tomorrow will see a fleet moored there that will give signs of the near approach of the opening of the ore trade and consequent better times on the lakes.

This morning the tugs began to move the Pittsburg Steamship company's boats from the Pittsburg coal dock No. 1, where they have laid since they were taken from winter quarters at the shipyards, to the Missabe dock. The Lynch and Cornell are about ready and engineers are working on the Princeton, Matauta and Black. Their removal at this time is said to be merely to clear the Pittsburg dock for the arrival of coal cargoes, but it is practically certain that, as soon as the boats are ready, they will be loaded and sent down the lakes.

Five of the Pittsburg fleet are bound up the lakes and are expected to arrive some time tonight. The Baker, Morgan and Corey are coming from South Chicago and the Mariposa and Maritana from Lake Erie. All have passed through the Soo and will probably arrive about midnight. They will proceed directly to the Missabe dock and await their cargoes.

No loading orders have yet been given, as far as is known, but it is said that a start will be made before the end of the week. Ore is being moved from the range quite rapidly over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and the Duluth & Iron Range began yesterday to move ore to the docks at Two Harbors. There will be no rush in the ore trade here before the first of June, but some will certainly be shipped from the Missabe docks before that time.

FIRST ORE AT CLEVELAND.

French Arrives From Superior and Others Are Expected.

Cleveland, May 19.—The steamer French arrived here yesterday morning with the first cargo of ore that has been brought to Lake Erie this season. She is unloading at the C. & P. dock, and will be out this afternoon. Three more cargoes have been lined up for this point, but they will not be down until next week.

The men on the docks have signed individual contracts and there has been no trouble.

The Joliet sailed for Superior with coal yesterday, and other small steamers of the Pittsburg Steamship line will load coal, but will not sail for some time.

NEW TUG AT SOO.

Great Lakes Dredge & Dock Company's Sabin on First Trip.

Chicago, May 19.—The new tug Sabin, which was built here for the Great Lakes Dredge & Dock company, left yesterday for the Soo, where she will be stationed during the coming season.

FIRST TRIP OF TRUESDALE.

New Boat Coming to Duluth With Coal Cargo.

Buffalo, May 19.—There was a trifle more activity in the coal market yesterday than has been in evidence for the past few days, but it did not develop into any real rush for boats or cargoes. The following contracts were reported. W. H. Truesdale, Duluth, at 30 cents; Kenora, Fort William, 30 cents; Lewis, Chicago, 40 cents. This is the first trip of the Truesdale.

STANTON TO LORAINE.

Extent of Damage to Big Freighter is Not Known.

Houghton, Mich., May 19.—The John Stanton, which left the Copper Range coal docks Friday, will proceed at once to Loraine, Ohio, where it will go into dry dock for a general overhauling. The extent of the damage sustained in grounding on the bar while coming into Portage Lake cannot be determined until the hull is exposed.

The Stanton brought in 10,000 tons of coal for the Copper Range, and the same sized cargo was delivered by the William A. Paine. The Martin Mullin, one of the big 500 footers is next, and next week the D. D. Hanna is expected on its first visit to Portage Lake. The Hanna is one of the largest on the lakes, and it is expected to bring in 12,000 tons.

No New Charters.

Cleveland, May 19.—The freight situation is without change, and no new charters were reported.

Coal at Marquette.

Marquette, Mich, May 16.—The schooner Commodore is in port unloading a cargo of 1,100 tons of hard coal for F. B. Spear & Sons. It is the first cargo of coal that has been received in this port.

MOTOR BOAT FOR LIFE SAVERS.

Motor Boat for Life Savers.

St. Joseph, May 19.—The arrival of the new motor boat for the local life saving station makes their equipment for saving human lives modern in every respect. Heretofore the crew has been somewhat embarrassed in rendering prompt assistance owing to the great amount of work required at the station.

Rebuild Ice Cruiser.

Harbor Beach, May 19.—The steamer Sainte Marie left for Detroit dry dock yesterday where she will be thoroughly overhauled, which it is expected will practically amount to rebuilding of the ice cruiser.

TO MAKE SPECIAL TRIP.

Tionesta Coming to Take Millers to Detroit Convention.

The passenger steamer Tionesta of the Anchor line will make one trip to Duluth and return before the opening of the regular season. The Minnesota members of the National Federation of Millers, which holds its annual convention in Detroit in June, will make the trip on the Anchor line boat and there will be several hundred of them, making the special trip advisable.

The Tionesta will leave Detroit June 2, arriving in Duluth June 6. On the night of Sunday, June 7, she will leave here for Detroit.

The first regular trip of the Tionesta will be made leaving Buffalo June 16. The Juniata will leave Buffalo on her first trip June 20 and the Japan will follow later.

WORK AT SUPERIOR ENTRY.

Hydraulic Dredge and Derrick Scow Start on Contract.

The Great Lakes Dredge & Dock company, which as the contract for the trench work and the rubble mound breakwater at the Superior entry, has started on the work. The hydraulic dredge, Otis, is at work on the trench and a large crew of men will be kept on the job until completed.

The new steel derrick scow, which was brought to Duluth from Cleveland this spring has been placed at work loading stone for the rubble mound breakwater. She just started yesterday and will be kept steadily at work. The new derrick has a larger capacity for work than any that has ever been seen in the local harbor, and the company expects to get good results from the use of it.

A dredge is also at work at the new coal docks of the D. M. & N., which were constructed last year just west of the ore docks at West Duluth. The dredging and filling was not completed last year and the company is finishing the odd ends of its contract. There is also some concrete work to be done on the docks before it will be opened for this season.

MITCHELL ON MUD BOTTOM.

Steamer Aground at Houghton Point is Not Damaged.

The steamer Samuel Mitchell, down bound from Ashland with a cargo of ore, went aground about 9 o'clock last night at Houghton point in Chequamegon bay, about six miles from Washburn. The tugs Inman and Superior of the Union Towing & Wrecking company left this morning for the scene and will release her.

The Mitchell is a steel steamer of 2,300 tons and is owned by W. C. Richardson of Cleveland. According to advices received here this morning, she is resting on mud bottom, with no leakage and, although not injured, was unable to release herself. The schooner Chickamauga, which was in tow of the Mitchell, did not go aground.

SLASHING SUIT SALE!

We are again able to demonstrate to the people of Duluth the efficiency of our buying force—and to give to our patrons the benefit bargain prices at the season's commencement. One of the largest manufacturers of Ladies' Suits in the country, having stocked up too heavily upon materials, found the need of ready money pressing him. (This is where we entered the field.) Our buyer, hearing of the manufacturer's dilemma, had a large number of suits made up for us—at just about half the usual prices. (This is where you enter the field.) These Suits are made up in this season's most wanted models of excellent qualities of Panama and New Fancy Mixtures. The jackets are the long, semi-fitted models, satin lined. Skirts are full pleated, with fold of self cloth, in browns, navy, Copenhagen, blondine, tan, reseda, wine, grey, black and fancy stripes and checks. The Suits are not to be classed with the kind usually advertised as being worth up to $25.00. THEY ARE ACTUALLY $25.00 SUITS. Gladden your purse with the $10.00 saving—and get one of these suits of character and quality for $15.00.

THEIR CLAIMS DO NOT AGREE

Jury Will Settle Business Difficulties of Smith and O'Rourke.

The civil case of Roderick Smith of Carlton against Bryan O'Rourke of the Hibbing Cash Commission company is being tried before a jury in Judge Dibell's room today. Mr. Smith is suing to recover an amount claimed to be due on a bill of produce shipped the defendant, and Mr. O'Rourke claims that he has paid all obligations. He makes a counter claim of about $150 damages on account of the alleged failure of Mr. Smith to ship certain goods as ordered, on a rising market.

The personal injury case of John Blume against the Dumas-Backus Lumber company is still on trial in Judge Ensign's room, and the damage case of Henry Peterson against the Lantry Construction company is still on trial in Judge Cant's room.

POTATO SHIPPER GETS VERDICT

Jury Finds Charles Elg is Entitled to $55 Damages.

Charles Elg, a Wisconsin farmer, who sued the Duluth Grain & Produce company for $165 which he claimed was due him on a carload of potatoes sold through the local commission firm last January, was awarded $55 by a verdict reached in the district court last evening and opened this morning.

Elg claimed that the Duluth concern gave him the short end of the potato deal. The defendants claimed that they took the potatoes to sell after another local firm refused to touch them, by reason of the tubers being of poor quality; that a large portion of the potatoes were frozen and unmarketable. The commission merchants claimed that Elg got all that was due him and a little more.

A PERFECT HOTEL

The St. Regis, New York, Provides Every Known Comfort and Luxury

A LIBRARY FOR GUESTS

In the olden times when houses for public entertainment were known as inns or taverns very little attention was given by "mine host" to providing anything for his guests beyond such actual necessities as food and shelter and even there were not always of the best.

In this age of great hotels, palatial in size and magnificence, which are not merely stopping places for travelers, but more or less permanent abodes, the manager provides all the comforts of home and much in the way of luxury and convenience unobtainable in the average private residence.

Particularly is this true of Hotel St. Regis, New York's most complete living and dining establishment. Not content with giving its guests the best in the way of food, furnishings and artistic surroundings, the management also makes special provision for those who have literary tastes.

On the second floor of the St. Regis, where are located the grand ballroom and a series of reception and sitting rooms, is a large, attractive library with well stocked book shelves. Here are many thousand volumes selected with great care and covering the world's best literature. A complete and handsomely bound catalogue is provided in every room and a librarian is always in attendance. Guests have free access to this library and are permitted to draw books for perusal in their rooms.

Hotel St. Regis omits no feature which can in any way add to one's enjoyment. And yet with all that this implies, the cost of living is moderate. A large, well furnished room may be had for $4 a day, or the same with bath connected for $5 ($6 for two people), or a parlor with bedroom and bath for $12. The restaurant charges are not higher than in first class hotels generally.

SEND GOODS TO ALASKA

Duluth Wholesale House Ships Big Order to Fairbanks.

An Indication of Rapid Growth of Jobbing Trade.

Duluth jobbing houses are no longer bound by any territorial limits in trade. Yesterday F. A. Patrick & Co. of this city, wholesalers of dry goods, shipped a $4,000 consignment of goods to a customer at Fairbanks, Alaska. So far as known, this is the record long distance shipment made by any Duluth jobbing concern, with the exception of a similar shipment made recently by the Northern Shoe company, and is a good indication of the aggressiveness of the local concern in reaching a trade so far distant from the Zenith City.

All the Duluth jobbing houses have been making wonderful strides in the way of extension of territory, and shipments to and beyond the Rocky mountains are a common occurrence now. In fact, the coast trade of some of the houses is their most valued asset.

Careful housekeepers usually keep a supply of Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder and Extracts, as they know they are to be depended upon for perfect results.

WAS KEPT A PRISONER

White Girl Tells Tale of Abuse at Negro's Hands.

Claimed She Was Locked in the Royal Hotel.

A white girl giving her name as Tillie Hendrickson, and her residence as St. Paul, last night told the police a harrowing tale of the brutality of a negro with whom she came to Duluth to live. She says he threatened to kill her unless she entered the under world and made a living for both of them.

Robert Jackson, the man in the case, was arrested at the Royal hotel by Detectives Terry and Walsh. He submitted to arrest without offering resistance, but refused to talk concerning the affair. He is not at all pleasing to look at, and the police are mystified as to why the girl should have left her home with him in the first place.

Miss Hendrickson, who says she is unmarried, states that she came to Duluth from St. Paul in company with Jackson about two weeks ago, but refuses to talk concerning her parents or her past. She is rather pretty and somewhat refined looking.

Jackson, she says, told her that he had plenty of money, and that he would give her all she wanted to spend. She said he had given her money, but refused to allow her to leave the hotel. Last night, about 9 o'clock, he entered her room, where she had practically been kept a prisoner for two weeks, and, saying he had gone "broke," told her she would have to join the women of the under world to support them both, according to her story to the police. She rebelled, and claims he struck here several times, afterwards forcing her to her knees and making her promise that she would submit to his wishes.

She made her escape to the street, after promising him what he asked, ran to the police station, where her story was soon told. She was detained in the women's ward at the city jail last night, but no charge was placed against her. An effort is being made to learn something concerning her in St. Paul. She says she is 22 years old. She is of medium height and has dark hair and eyes.

The man's case will be heard at 2 o'clock.

DULUTH WOMAN IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Was One of Mysterious Party Sought by St. Paul Police.

A former Duluth woman, Mrs. John T. Condon, was one of the occupants of the automobile which last fall ran down Mrs. J. S. Johnson and daughter in St. Paul. For more than seven months the St. Paul police have been trying to find the occupants of the mysterious machine, but they have finally been discovered. The following St. Paul dispatch tells the tale:

Two St. Paul women, Mrs. Mona Condon, hairdresser, 138 East Sixth street, and Miss Kathryn M. Otto, former cashier for the New York Life Insurance company, in company with Thomas H. Davis and Harvey R. Ellsworth, two prominent citizens of Watertown, S. D., were the occupants of the machine.

"Miss Otto is at present cashier for the Minneapolis branch of the New York Life Insurance company. Both Mrs. Condon and Miss Otto boarded at the Willard hotel.

"The identity of Miss Otto was testified to by Davis in a personal injury suit now being waged by Mrs. Johnson in the courts at Watertown, S. D., against him and Ellsworth.

"But he could not remember Mrs. Condon's name. He described her as a woman of medium height and possessed of reddish hair, and said she kept a hair-dressing establishment on East Sixth street.

"This clue was followed and today Mrs. Condon admitted that she was one of the party that leaped from the machine and disappeared after striking Mrs. Johnson.

"The accident occurred in view of many pedestrians. Mrs. Johnson and daughter had just stepped from the curb when they were struck by the machine and dragged 100 feet.

"The woman was bruised about the body and her chest was crushed. Mrs. Johnson was confined in a hospital for six weeks. The child was uninjured.

"Ellsworth was driving the machine. In the front seat with him was Mrs. Condon. Davis and Miss Otto were seated in the rear. The occupants jumped from the automobile and took to their heels, leaving several articles of clothing. Among these was a woman's tan cravenette, a suit-case and a hand-grip.

"The police took possession of the auto, which was later turned over to a brother of Ellsworth on a bill of sale."

LOOK OVER DITCH WORK.

Two Members of State Drainage Board Visit Aitkin County.

Aitkin, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Engineer Ralph and Secretary of State Schmahl of the state drainage board have just visited this section for the purpose of examing the Gun Lake state ditch, nine miles northeast of here, and the proposed Waldeck-Pine Knoll cutoff canal. It was recommended by the board that the Gun Lake canal be deepened.

In regard to the Waldeck-Pine Knoll cutoff canal Engineer Ralph figures that the canal must have a carrying capacity of 7,000 cubic feet per second and to accomplish this it would have to be ninety-six feet wide at the top, sixty-eight feet wide at the bottom and eighteen feet deep on the average. The length would be about seven miles. The estimated cost would be approximately $165,000 and the estimated benefits $180,000, on the basis of there being 45,000 acres to be benefited. The engineer's estimate is believed to be low. Maj. Abbott, who made a survey of the same route ten years ago, estimated that 100,000 acres would be affected and that the increased value per acre would be $2.50, or a total of $2,750,000. Maj. Abbott's plan contemplating lining the canal with timber. Mr. Ralph does not figure that this is necessary, as the bottom would be in blue clay all the way and the danger from erosion would not be great. The report will be carefully considered by the property owners before any action is taken.

WILL AUCTION THREE BEARS

Other White City Property Also Under the Hammer.

Going! Going!

Three live brown bears offered to the highest bidder.

Also, a complete merry-go-round and a large dancing pavilion and a small dancing pavilion, and a Ferris wheel, and a "bump-the-bumps," and other various amusement devices.

If any Duluth people have a secret hankering to own three brown bears, or a Ferris wheel, or any of the other articles specified, they can secretly notify E. P. Towne and their desires will be gratified if they have the price.

The buildings and property of the Gay White City, to which thousands and thousands of Duluth people did not go last year, are under the hammer, according to an advertisement published elsewhere in The Herald tonight, and will be knocked down to the highest bidder.

Several small towns in Northern Wisconsin are said to have inclinations toward a summer amusement park, and are prospective purchasers of the property.

DECISION REVERSED.

Supreme Court Decides Injury Case in Favor of Railroad.

Washington, May 19.—The case of the Iron Mountain & Southern Railway company vs. Mary Taylor, administratrix of the estate of her husband, George W. Taylor, a suit for damages because of the death, in an accident, of Taylor, a brakeman on the road, was decided by the supreme court of the United States in favor of the railroad. The decision of the circuit court of Crawford county, Tex., by which damages amounting to $14,000 was awarded, was reversed. The case involved a charge of violating the safety appliance laws. Justice Moody announced the decision. Incidentally the court held that in empowering the American Railway association to fix the height of cars and variation allowance in draw-bars, congress had improperly delegated the power granted it by the Constitution.

EVERYTHING IS LOVELY NOW

Clement's Manager Says Reports of Trouble Were Exaggerated.

H. O. Martin, manager for Clay Clement, the dramatic star who was obliged to give a Saturday afternoon audience at the Lyceum "The New Dominion" instead of the production of "Hamlet" which was advertised, because of the defection of two members of the company, thinks that his luminary has been grossly misrepresented in the published accounts of the incident.

The trouble came about Saturday afternoon, when William Conklin and his wife declined to go on and play their parts in "Hamlet," insisting that considerable back salary was due them. They declared a considerable amount was due them for their services, whereas Mr. Clement and Mr. Martin averred that the pair had but $85 coming to them, all of which would materialize in due time.

The Conklins would not be put off, however, and they quit without notice. Mr. Martin and Mr. Clement and others of the company say they are not sorry. According to Manager Martin, Mr. Clement paid railroad fares for the Conklins from New York to Portland, and in other ways evinced a generous, fair spirit.

Mr. Martin says the company is going to fill its dates according to advertisements, and that whatever ripple was caused by the desertion of the Conklin family has been followed by a most satisfactory calm. In fact, Mr. Martin says the reports of the troubles of the Clement company, as brought out by the actions of the Conklins, were greatly exaggerated.

NELSON WILL INSERT ITEMS

Will Add $95,000 for Duluth to Public Buildings Bill.

Washington, May 19.—Senator Nelson will endeavor to secure the insertion in the public buildings bill of an appropriation of $95,000 for the Duluth federal building. As the bill was passed by the house, there was nothing in it for the Duluth building, and Congressman Bede says he depended upon the amount being inserted when it reached the senate. Senator Nelson hopes to have the item inserted, but there is a possibility he will fail, as the senate committee is usually opposed to putting in entirely new items in appropriation bills.

SAYS PARESIS CAN BE CURED

Doctor of Ohio Hospital Discovers Germ of Disease.

Massillon, Ohio, May 19.—In the laboratory of the Massillon State hospital, Dr. John D. O'Brien today reiterated a statement made by him before the American Medico-Psychological association's convention at Cincinnati that he had discovered the germ of paresis, and that the disease is curable. He summed up the result of his experiments in these two declarations:

That paresis undoubtedly is a germ disease and that the germ has been discovered; that, while in the experimental stage, sufficient tests have been made to show that paresis is curable and that he has specific cases to point to as definite results.

Dr. O'Brien does not believe it would be proper to make public the names of the patients whom he claims the treatment has cured, but he gives as specific cases a newspaper man of Washington, who was treated for the disease and is again at work, a cured man; a civil engineer of prominence in Nashville, Tenn., who is cured and at work, besides a number of people in Ohio who were brought to the hospital with serious forms of the disease and cured. Others who are now at the hospital under treatment are showing marked progress toward recovery.

Dr. O'Brien has at hand, in addition to his own statements and reports from hospital authorities in regard to the successful treatment of paresis papatients' photographs, which show the hysterical forms of attack when brought to the Massillon State hospital, and the patients when discharged from the hospital as cured.

Acting on the theory that the disease was similar to that of tuberculosis or diphtheria—that a germ might be found which would yield to serum treatment—Dr. O'Brien began his experiments by taking serum from the spinal columns of living patients. With this he treated dogs, rabbits and rats, with results which proved to him that the animals inoculated contracted well-developed forms of paresis. In turn he used the treatment on human patients.

Mrs. S. Joyce, 180 Sullivan Street, Claremont, N. H., writes: "About a year ago I bought two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It cured me of a severe case of Kidney trouble of several years' standing. It certainly is a grand, good medicine, and I heartily recommend it." At all druggists.

You couldn't discuss the events of the day in the world unless you had read your newspaper. You cannot "shop" intelligently unless you have read the store-ads.

ARCHBISHOP'S BODY TO BE TAKEN TO SANTA FE.

Chicago, May 19.—Archbishop Peter Bourgade of Santa Fe, N. Mex., who died Sunday at Mercy hospital, will be laid to rest in the Southwestern city, which was the center or his labors for a quarter of a century. Funeral services were held today at the cathedral of the Holy Name. Mass was celebrated by Archbishop Quigley with Rev. James Scanlan of St. Johns, assistant; Dr. Frank Purcell of the Cathedral college, deacon, and Chancellor E. M. Dunne, sub-deacon. The active pallbearers were six of the best known priests in Chicago, headed by Revs. E. A. Kelly and Maurice J. Dorney. The honorary pallbearers included Michael Kavanagh, Dr. John B. Murphy, William P. Brenneberry, Judge Marcus Kavanagh, John Y. Clarke and other laymen. Archbishop Bourgade's body will be taken Westward tonight.

WEST END

CHURCH READY IN JULY.

New Norwegian-Danish M.E Church is Nearing Completion.

Members of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church have decided that their new church at Third street and Twenty-fourth avenue west, will be ready for occupancy about the middle of July and they are already making plans for elaborate opening exercises at that time.

Work on the new structure has not progressed yet to that stage where it is possible to definitely settle upon a date for the opening, but from present indications it looks as if July 15 or thereabouts will see the doors of the new house of worship thrown open.

Only the interior work remains to be done. The second coats of plastering is being put on now and as soon as it dries the work of interior decorating will begin.

The pews have been ordered and will be put in place as soon as they arrive.

West End Shortrails.

William Frazee of Grand Forks is visiting Henry Fox of 107 Twenty-seventh avenue west.

Mrs. E. A. Smith of 309 Twenty-sixth avenue west will leave Thursday for Chippewa Falls, where she will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Wyley.

A daughter was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Gust Carlson of 2117 West Fourth street.

Mrs. J. A. Clayton and Miss Blanche Clayton have gone to Iron River, Wis., to visit friends for a few days.

Aubrey A. Brewer has gone to Rochester, Minn., where he will consult the Mayos. Mr. Brewer has been in poor health for some time past and may be operated upon by the eminent surgeons before returning to Duluth.

James Bent has resigned his position with the Esmond hotel and accepted one with the Northern Pacific road.

Miss Jennie St. Arnold left the last of the week for a Montana city, where she will be married.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Crawford of 2415 West Third street were pleasantly surprised Sunday evening at their home, 2415 West Third street. Ten couples enjoyed a pleasant evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wittich of Hermantown are the proud parents of a boy, born yesterday.

The Men's society of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church will hold its regular monthly meeting this evening in the church parlors. Socialism will be discussed.

Rev. F. O. Kling, pastor of the First Swedish Mission church, will leave this evening for Minneapolis, where he will attend the annual conference of the Swedish Mission churches of the Northwest. He will deliver a sermon to the conference Thursday evening and next Sunday evening, and will conduct the services in the Swedish Mission church in Northwest Minneapolis, to the pulpit of which he has been called.

SEVENTEENTH AT FLOODWOOD

The Norwegian Holiday is Celebrated by a Large Gathering.

A large throng of Norwegians gathered at Floodwood on May 17 to celebrate the birthday of Norwegian constitutional liberty. About 1:30 p. m. the Floodwood cornet band struck up the stirring tones of "Yankee Doodle," and, preceded by the Stars and Stripes flying in the breeze side by side with the Norwegian tri-color, marched from the depot square to Schussler's park on the banks of the beautiful Floodwood river.

Here the Norwegian sons and daughters mingled with their neighbors and friends under the graceful crowns of a grove of elms. The band boys had previously erected a platform surrounded by numerous seats among the trees, and from this platform enlivened the occasion during the day with numerous selections of American and Norwegian airs.

The speaker of the day was Hon. C. B. Miller of Duluth, who was introduced to the expectant audience by Dr. M. N. Triplett of Floodwood. From his very first utterance, until the cheers and applause drowned the climax of his eloquence, Mr. Miller held his audience spellbound. He traced the history of the Norseman's love of freedom and action back from the days of the piratic searovers or Vikings, down through the ages of discovery and conquest, outlining in bold relief that part of the Norse history of which the Norwegian people are most proud. He followed the darling Northmen of old across the icy waters of the Arctic sea on their voyage to Greenland. Again he boarded their Viking ships as they flung their sails over the white capped combers of the Atlantic in that long, perilous voyage resulting in the discovery of America, five centuries before Columbus. Under the same eloquent leadership, his hearers followed those gigantic canoes of the Vikings even through the Straits of Gibraltar, over the smiling bosom of the Mediterranean sea, until their keels grated the sands of sunny Italy and Greece. From these old pages of Norway's history Mr. Miller thereupon distilled those qualities of character, which make the Norwegian of today a live citizen—a loyal American. "And," the speaker concluded, pointing respectively to the Norwegian flag on his left and the American flag on his right, "the love that burns in his heart for Norway in nowise lessens his love or loyalty to the Stars and Stripes."

While the cheers and applause were still ringing through the grove, the band furnished an appropriate setting by playing "The Star Spangled Banner."

The remainder of the day was spent in games, interspersed with the singing of Norwegian and American songs. Refreshments of various kinds were abundantly indulged in by everyone. The Floodwood cornet band, under the able direction of E. B. Robinson, deserves great credit for its gratuitous assitance in making the day a huge success. Likewise is John Stokke to be congratulated on his able arrangement of everything in connection with the celebration.

QUESTION OF UNION

With Methodist Episcopal Church Considered by Methodist Protestants

Pittsburg, May 19.—The general conference of the Methodist Protestant church in session here has so far taken no definite action on the question of amalgamation with other denominations. The whole question is being considered by a committee. The overture from the Methodist Episcopal church, asking the Methodist Protestants to return to its fold, unexpectedly adopted at the Baltimore Methodist Episcopal conference last week, has considerably complicated the question of a consolidation of the Methodist Protestant, United Brethren and Congregational denominations, which was originally the chief question before the conference here. The committee from Baltimore, including Senator John T. Dolliver of Iowa, was given a most enthusiastic welcome here yesterday, and the presentation of the formal overture was followed by a scene such as is seldom witnessed in a church. The addresses of the committeemen, to all appearances, had the effect of making many of the Methodist Protestant delegates stop to consider whether it would not be better to re-unite with the parent body than with the other two denominations.

It was the first invitation from the mother church in the eighty years of separation extended to the seceders.

DECISION AGAINST COPPER COMPANY.

Washington, May 19.—The case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting company, operating in Arizona, vs. Frederick Lewisohn, executor of the estate of Leonard Lewisohn of New York, in which the company sought to procure the return of 30,000 shares of its stock, the possession of which it was claimed had been obtained by Leonard Lewisohn and others by conspiracy, was decided by the supreme court of the United States yesterday in favor of Lewisohn. The United States circuit court for the Southern district of New York, by which he was tried, held that there was no evidence of fraud and rendered a decision against the company which was affirmed by the court of appeals for the second circuit. The supreme court took the same view, holding that if there was guilt, the company was equally guilty, as it had full knowledge of the stock transaction. The opinion was by Justice Holmes.

INJURED IN ACCIDENT.

Marshalltown, Iowa, May 19.—Lottie Fouch, 14-years-old, Lee Dawson, 21-years-old; Stella Drury, 18, and Laura Specht, aged 13, living near here, were badly injured in a runaway accident yesterday. Miss Fouch and Miss Dawson are seriously, and perhaps fatally, injured. The others are not so badly hurt. The Drury girl's hat blew off and frightened the team.

SECOND MAY FESTIVAL

The Duluth Oratorio Society Scores Another Notable Triumph.

Splendid Chorus and Symphony Orchestra Give Musical Treat.

Before a brilliant and appreciative audience the Duluth Oratorio society opened its second grand May festival of music at the First Methodist church last evening under the direction of Prof. Horace W. Reyner. It was a splendid undertaking, magnificently executed and a triumph for the local musical organization and Prof. Reyner.

The Oratorio society with its chorus of 150 voices, asisted by a corps of soloists of renown, and the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra of forty-five pieces, formed a combination that has never been excelled in local musical events, and Duluth music lovers may justly be proud of an organization which has for two seasons maintained such a high standard of excellence in its entertainments.

MISS SYBIL SAMMIS,
Who Was Heard at the May Festival Last Evening.

Under Prof. Reyner's direction the chorus work was magnificent, showing a volume, quality of tone and finish in execution that astonished even the best friends of the organization.

The male voices in the chants were especially good, as were the mixed choruses, and the other parts were fully up to the standard.

The oratorio sung last evening was Sir Arthur Sullivan's beautiful cantata, "The Golden Legend," adapted from Longfellow's poem which told the story of Prince Henry of Hoheneck, who lying sick in body and mind in his castle on the Rhine, learned from the famous physicians of Salermo that he could only be cured by the blood of a maiden willing to die for his sake. The story deals with the despair of the prince at finding such a maiden, the temptation by Lucifer, the prince's fall the loss of his throne, his wanderings and the determination of Elsie, daughter of one of his vassals, to sacrifice her life that the prince might be restored. The story ends with the restoration of the prince without the sacrifice. He marries Elsie and all ends happily. The six scenes of the cantata illustrate passages in the story; the defeat of Lucifer in the prelouge and the devotion of Elsie in the epilogue.

Miss Sybil Sammis, as Elsie, has a powerful and pleasing soprano voice and won golden opinions from all who heard her last evening. Madame Ragna Linne, mezzo-coprano gave a fine interterpretation of Ursula and Dr. Hugh Schussler, baritone, handled the role of Lucifer in a most impressive manner. E. C. Towne, tenor, was heard at advantage in the part of Prince Henry. The parts were well balanced and splendidly supported by the choruses.

Mrs. W. D. McGill and Miss Isabel Pearson were the accompanists and fully equal to the demands upon them.

The portion of the entertainment afforded by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, conducted by Emil Oberhoffer, will not soon be forgotten. The organization is famed outside of state circles, and its rendition of Schubert's Unfinished Symphony in B Minor was received with enthusiastic marks of appreciation.

One of the features of the evening was the opening chorus, the national anthem, orchestrated and arranged by Sir Edward Elgar. The arrangement has just been published for use by large choral bodies in this country, and last evening it was heard for the first time in America.

This afternoon the children's chorus sang "Into the World," and the Minneapolis orchestra played Beethoven's C Minor Symphony.

This evening the Oratorio society will sing Grieg's "Olaf Trygvasson," and Hamish McCunn's "Wreck of the Hesperus."

HORACE W. REYNER,
Conductor of the Oratorio Society.

CLEARED AWAY

Proper Food Put the Troubles Away.

Our own troubles always seem more severe than any others. But when a man is unable to eat even a light breakfast, for years, without severe distress, he has trouble enough.

It is small wonder he likes to tell of food which cleared away the troubles.

"I am glad of the opportunity to tell of the good Grape-Nuts has done for me," writes a N. H. man. "For many years I was unable to eat even a light breakfast without great suffering.

"After eating I would suddenly be seized with a terrible attack of colic and vomiting. This would be followed by headache and misery that would sometimes last a week or two, leaving me so weak I could hardly sit up or walk.

"Since I began to eat Grape-Nuts I have been free from the old troubles. I usually eat Grape-Nuts food one or more times a day, taking it at the beginning of the meal. Now I weigh 30 pounds more than I ever weighed in my life, and I am glad to speak of the food that has worked the change."

TO DETERMINE YOUR SOUL MATE

English Scientist Has Wedlock Formula to Insure Happiness.

New York, May 19.—"Before marrying you should find your soul counterpart."

So says R. C. Auld, F. Z. S., a gray-haired, unromantic-looking Englishman, himself happily married, of 23 West One Hundred and Fortieth street, who is soon to publish a book, entitled "The Soul of Society," in which he explains soul affinity.

One chapter in Mr. Auld's book is entitled "How to Determine Your Soul Mate." In explaining his meaning, Mr. Auld, in an interview, said:

"Every man has within himself a certain precentage of femininity. Every woman has a certain percentage of the masculine. Now, it is not difficult to determine your soul mate after you find the way. It is the endeavor that men and women make to even up their percentages that creates the tangle of affinities. Science has solved the problem of unhappy marriages, not I.

"In other words, unhappy marriages are the result of ignorance concerning their scientific requirements. Male and female character may get so mixed up in one individual that the love germ is inconceivably lost in such a person, but soul love is the greatest thing in the world. It has controled nature and it must ever do so.'

"If the proportion of the masculine and the feminine temperament in a man finds the correct mingling of these proportions in the woman, then has he found his counter part soul," writes Mr. Auld.

On the other hand, if a man made the mistake and the proportions of masculine and feminine percentages in the man and the woman were not balanced, then must come unhappy marriages.

In order that everybody may recognize his soulmate when he sees her, the author has prepared in his volume a schedule which looks like the identification blanks on a passport. The student of scientific love who desires a soul affinity, and to avoid reference proceedings and alimony, must study the schedule and check off his parts. The table is called a "Schedule of Erogenic Values."

"The percentage of one sex in the other," further explains the author in his volume, "is the real dynamic soul love that creates mutual attraction. Erogenic values are founded upon the theory of Weininger. Your definite inheritance of masculinity and also of femininity must be computed to establish a unit.

"Let us say, for example, that a man is three-quarters masculine and one-quarter feminine, then the proper soul counterpart of such a man is a woman who is one-quarter masculine and three-quarters feminine.

"Soul is in the sex and one sex attracts the other in proportion as each soul is matched," said Mr. Auld. "It is what the chemist calls chemical affinity. This is what we call love, the affinity of like for like."

Mr. Auld prints another schedule which the man in search of a wife or the woman in search of a husband must carefully check off so that a proper choice may be made. Some of the items are character, fondness for jewelry, good clothes or accomplishments. Always mark those qualities that you yourself lack in the formula propounded. This formula is interpreted by a sketch of a heart, divided by a line in the middle. Half of this heart, being masculine, is marked 75 per cent, while the other half, feminine, is marked 25 per cent.

THE PEOPLE ON GUARD.

The recent special election in a New York senatorial district which sent William C. Wallace, a Republican, to the New York senate, is a very pleasing proof that the people are really awake, and that the power of the bosses who used to herd the voters into the corrals of the "interests" is not what it used to be.

At the regular session of the New York legislature Governor Hughes tried to put through a bill against race track gambling. The sympathies of the great majority of the people were with him, but the measure lacked one vote of passing. The senator whose place Wallace fills would have voted for the bill and passed it, but unfortunately he was taken sick and died.

While Governor Hughes had other matters in mind in calling the present special session of the legislature, one of his principal aims was another trial at the bill against race track gambling. In the meantime he had called a special election in the vacant senatorial district.

The Democratic machine put up a man friendly to the race track interests, and who would, if elected, have voted against the bill. The Republican machine, forced into it by public sentiment, put up Wallace, who will vote for the bill. Then the Republican machine, it is said, "threw" its candidate, and stealthily directed its support to the Democratic candidate in the interests of the gamblers.

In other times, when the people were content to let the machine run their politics for them, the other man would most certainly have been elected. It was feared that he would be, anyway. It was bad weather, which an old-time superstition asserts to be Democratic weather apparently on the theory that Republicans will not vote unless it is pleasant, but that Democrats vote in any kind of weather. Besides, the farmers in the district were a little disgruntled about the calling of the special election because it involved some expense, and that meant more taxes to pay, so many of them refused to participate in the election. As most of them were counted upon as favorable to the anti-gambling bill, this did not look promising.

But the people took notice of conditions. They saw the entire strength of the pro-gambling interests arrayed on the side of the Democrat. They saw the Republican and Democratic machines, the latter openly and the former with more or less attempt at concealment, aligned with these interests.

It didn't take people who were not interested in gambling, and who had never received any benefit from machine rule in politics, long to tell where they belonged. They promptly arrayed themselves on Wallace's side, and Wallace was elected.

The incident shows that the people are interested at last in their own affairs, and it also shows what happens when they are alive to their own interests.

THE SNIVELY ROAD.

William C. Sargent, in an interview in The Herald last night, called attention to the fact that the Snively road is falling into a shocking state of disrepair through lack of attention from the public authorities, and suggested that something ought to be done about it.

Anybody who has ever been over this road will agree that something certainly ought to be done about it, and that soon. The road was built by private enterprise, but it is asking too much to rely upon the same public spirited generosity to keep it up. The road should be taken over by the city or county and maintained in a proper state of repair.

For upwards of three miles, from Lester Park to a junction with the Jean Duluth road, this romantic thoroughfare winds its way through beautiful woods, crossing Lester Park seventeen times by means of picturesque rustic bridges. It is one of the most notable roads in this section for scenic properties, and for driving purposes alone, not to mention the fact that it taps a market-gardening section, it is worth keeping up.

Mr. Sargent's suggestion is that the park board of Duluth should take over the road together with a strip of land on each side. It is beautiful enough to be a fit object for the attention of the park board, and however it is done and whoever does it, certainly the public authorities should take the road over and see that it is kept in proper condition for use. It would be a splendid thing to have it a part of the city's park system, because it is not only beautiful but useful, since, as Mr. Sargent says, "it will open a lot of country to farmers and to people who want country homes."

OLD-AGE PENSIONS.

The acceptance of the doctrine of old age pensions by Great Britain is a very important step, one of the most important taken by any nation in a long time.

The provisions of the bill promulgated by the Liberal ministry are not very liberal: they provide only for people who have passed the age of 70, when many believed that 60 should have been the age; and they allow only five shillings, or $1.25, per week. But the age limit and the amount of the pension are matters of trifling import compared with the acceptance of the principle that society owes something to its worn-out members, and that instead of casting them into the scrap heap to starve or to live on charity, it should care for them in their declining years; not by any means as charity, but as a merited return to them for their service to society during their years of strength and usefulness.

Having accepted this principle—and Great Britain is certain to accept it—it will never be abandoned. Taking root in one country, it will spread to others, until it becomes as widely accepted as the principle of pensioning veteran soldiers.

There are just as many arguments in favor of old age pensions for workingmen as there are for pensions for veterans. The veteran soldier has served his country, but so has the worker; and the service of the worker is vastly more important than the service of the soldier, because the soldier has destroyed while the worker has created.

Wages, by an economic law that is a logical growth from present economic conditions, tend to settle to the basis of actual cost of living. Society thinks it worth while to educate its members so that they may become useful to it; it accepts their labors through their years of strength and returns only enough to cover the bare cost of living. Shall these servants of society, when their usefulness is ended by sickness, accident or superannuation, be thrown aside to starve? That is all there is to the old age pension principle.

From 20 to 60 a worker gives forty years to the service of society, and he produces, in that time, wealth which benefits society. He gets back only enough to cover the cost of living for himself and his family during the forty years. Opportunities for saving against old age are slender indeed. Yet he gives to society, and society owes him a proper return for his gifts. It owes him education in his youth, and it owes him protection in his helpless and dependent age—not as a charity, but as a right and just return for his service. It is merely returning to him a part of the wealth he produced during his working years, and the value of his production is enough greater than his wages to make it possible for society to do this—to make it necessary that it should, in fact.

SYSTEMATIC GARBAGE COLLECTION.

If the ordinance which had its first reading last evening before the city council will provide Duluth with an up-to-date, systematic, thorough and effective method of collecting garbage, it should certainly pass, for it will fill one of the city's most pressing needs.

The ordinance, which comes at the suggestion of Mayor Haven, is designed to give the system of garbage-collection some semblance of form and effectiveness. The present system, or rather the present lack of system, is utterly "without form and void." Almost entirely it depends upon unregulated private enterprise. Men go into the business of garbage collection, charge what they please, come when they please and go when they please, and if the citizens don't like their style they can lump it.

The proposed ordinance requires that wagons used in this business shall be made of metal and shall be air-tight, and that householders and others must furnish sheet-iron receptacles in which garbage is to be placed. Licenses to collect garbage are to be given by the board of health, but only to men who will comply with the ordinance. The board is to make out a schedule for the collection of garbage, and everybody will have to comply with the terms of that schedule. Also, the board will fix reasonable maximum charges for the service, above which no garbage-collectors may go.

Perhaps it would have been better, while the city was about it, if it had provided a means by which the city could do its own collecting. However, that would involve considerable expense, as an outfit would have to be purchased, and that may come later. In the meantime this ordinance, or one very much like it, should be adopted.

IMPORTED NUISANCES.

The English sparrows which swarm all over the country in innumerable quantities have become a nuisance that is the despair of many. They throng public buildings, depots and church steeples; they diligently harvest the farmer's seed and before it gets a chance to sprout; and by their industry and fearlessness of man have become a familiar spectacle in the most crowded streets of the cities.

It may not be generally known that it is only a little more than half a century since the time when there wasn't a single English sparrow on this continent, and that when the first ones did come, they came because somebody deliberately brought them here. In 1850, it is related, Nicholas Pike and other members of the Brooklyn Institute, New York, brought over eight pairs of the birds from England. They did not take kindly to this climate, and all of them died. Two years later some more were brought, and still others at later dates, until in 1856 it was estimated by Johnson's Universal Encyclopedia that the English sparrow had spread over the greater portion of the United States east of the Mississippi river and north of Florida, and had extended its northwestern range to Iowa, Minnesota, and points beyond the Missouri. Since then the birds have spread all over the continent. It was not until a few years ago that the first sparrows arrived on the Pacific coast, but already they promise within a short time to be as plentiful there as elsewhere.

The result of the efforts of those New York people who brought the sparrows to this country is like that of many other blundering people whose good intentions produce a harvest of regrets. It is not generally known, probably, that practically all of the vexatious weeds that infest farm, field and city street are immigrants. The dandelion, the ragweed, pigweed, plantain—all of the mischievous weeds that rear their unlovely heads where they are not wanted—were imported from other continents. It was not necessary to bring them deliberately, however, as most wild plants have ingenious methods of distributing their seeds. Some have seeds that fly in the breezes, and others have seeds that stick to the clothing and thus are carried from one place to another.

The dandelions, which are beautiful enough in themselves when there are not too many of their yellow disks twinkling on your lawn and crowding out the grass, were deliberately brought to Duluth by a good lady who saw them brightening the landscape in the East, and who, with the best intentions in the world, brought some of the seeds to Duluth, that they might brighten the landscape of this community, too.

They did brighten the landscape. For a time they made it positively gorgeous. Many lawns were solid banks of dandelion blossoms when the sun shone, and ragged masses of serrated dandelion leaves when it was cloudy. They not only brightened the landscape, but they made the air smoky and hazy with the sulphurous fumes sent off by the opinions of those who had to dig them out of their lawns year after year to give the grass a chance.

Neither the English sparrow nor the dandelion would have been imported if the importers had realized what was going to come out of their endeavors. But then lots of things are done that wouldn't be done if the doers could look into the future.

The Republican state conventions are over, and Taft wins. Nov. 3 is a long way off, however.

Having won his settlement with the street railway companies, Tom Johnson of Cleveland may have to tackle a harder job in settling the street railway strike.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"You Duluth people are allowing the appearance of your principal business street to be ruined by penny shows, moving picture shows, cheap musical instruments and all that kind of clap trap," said a well known traveling salesman, who makes Duluth about once a month, and who asked that his name be not used in connection with any statement he might make.

"Superior street, from Fifth avenue west to Second avenue east is rapidly assuming the appearance of a Bowery. There are two or three saloons in every block from which you can hear discordant music issuing at almost any hour of the day or evening. Then scattered along the street are several cheap moving picture shows, a penny arcade or two, with their flaring fronts. It gives the street a cheap appearance and is decidedly out of place on the principal business street of the city.

"Your council ought to take some steps to regulate these picture shows and cheap theaters. Half of them do not conform with the requirements of the law in regard to safety appliances in case of fire, and they are certainly no ornament."

In another two weeks the Duluth tourist rush will be well begun.

The arrival of the steamer Huronic Sunday was the formal opening of the season. Excursions will be run to Duluth on May 24 from Port Arthur and by June 1 the rush of summer visitors at the hotels will have begun.

Business has been good all winter at the local hostelries, and if the summer trade is anywhere near up to expectations, the hotels will have all the business they can handle from now until the end of September.

Capt. James Whalen, who, with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Whalen of Port Arthur, are guests at the St. Louis hotel, says that business at the Canadian port is good and especially so in his business, which is the dredging. Capt. Whalen is the president of the Great Lakes Dredge company and owns the James Whalen, which is said to be the best ice breaking tug at this end of the lakes.

Capt. Whalen says that things are not dull in either Port Arthur or Fort William, which he claims are the two best towns in Canada.

Summer Risks.

Washington Star: The time is at hand to consider the summer resort. In a very few weeks the hot weather exodus from town will begin, and tens of thousands will be transplanted from the home to temporary quarters on farm, lake, seashore and mountain. It behooves the head of the house, who finances the migration, to look carefully into the qualifications of the summer home. It should be, above all things, sanitary. There is no economy in sending a family away for the summer if illness is to be contracted during the vacation and heavy doctor bills are to be paid later. Much illness is contracted in this manner. Somewhat tardily the managers of summer resorts are looking to the sanitary surroundings and offering more reliable guarantees to their patrons against such diseases as typhoid fever. To be altogether safe the prospective boarder should require a chemist's certificate that the water supply of the establishment is free from pollution.

There are other precautions that the careful parent should take before allowing his children to go away, even under the best available chaperonage. Those who go to the seashore or near lakes are exposed to constant danger if they are not careful about their indulgence in water pleasures. The summer's record of deaths by drowning represents a shocking waste of life. In the great majority of cases these tragedies are absolutely preventable, and are therefore the more deplorable in that they can be in no way excused. The boat-rocker, the foolhardy swimmer, the too venturesome fisherman, are the chief contributors to the disaster list. Parental admonition before the outing is started may not be entirely effective, but it will help considerably.

Unanimous Contempt.

C. E. Hughes, with wise endeavor,
Will the presidency chase;
But he'll never, never, NEVER
Take with Taft the second place!

Mr. Knox will work each lever
In the White House auto race;
But he'll never, never, NEVER
Take with Taft the second place!

And C. W. Fairbanks, clever,
Has a hope to strike the pace,
But he'll never, never, NEVER
Take with Taft the second place!

Gray of Delaware—he'll have her—
Gathers delegates with grace,
But he'll never, never, NEVER
Take with Bryan second place!

Mr. Johnson strives to sever
The Northwest from Fate's embrace;
But he'll never, never, NEVER
Take with Bryan second place!

Then there's Culberson, who's ever
In the Lone Star's lonely rays;
But he'll never, never, NEVER
Take with Bryan second place!

ENVOY.

So I think each party's picket
Must drag some unknown man
For it's favorite-headed ticket,
Or a wooden Indian!

—Brooklyn Eagle.

How Simple It Seems.

New York Commercial: Adjust the tariff schedules properly and promptly, and there will be no "trust" issue at all. And if only the states exercise to its limit their sovereignty under the constitution, there will be no more demand for strengthening and stretching the federal arm!

THE WEATHER.

It was brilliant and beautiful this morning. The clouds had vanished, the early fog disappeared with the sun's rising, the temperature had mounted very noticeably, and altogether is was as fine a May day as anybody could wish. Last night's lowest temperature was 42 degs. and yesterday's highest was 66 degs. The weather man says it will be fair but partly cloudy and cooler tonight.

A year ago today it was cool and cloudy, and a little snow fell.

The sun rose this morning at 4:27 and sets tonight at 7:41, making 15 hours and 14 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Light to copious rains fell during Monday or last night in the Lake region, Mississippi and Ohio valleys, East Gulf and South Atlantic states, the Pacific coast and extreme Northwest as a result of low pressure areas central over Lake Michigan and the Rocky Mountains. Temperatures are moderate to warm as a rule. A high pressure area off the California coast is causing cooler weather in the Plateau region. The barometer is also high off the New England coast and over the Gulf of Mexico. Generally fair weather may be expected in this locality tonight and probably Wednesday."

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, May 19.—Local forecast for twenty-four hours ending at p. m. Wednesday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges—Partly cloudy weather tonight and Wednesday; cooler tonight; light to variable winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, May 19.—Forecasts until 7 p. m. Wednesday: Upper Michigan—Partly cloudy tonight with showers in east portion; Wednesday fair.

Wisconsin—Fair tonight; Wednesday probably fair with warmer in east portion.

Minnesota—Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday; cooler in northeast portion tonight.

North Dakota—Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday; cooler tonight.

Upper lakes—Light variable winds tonight and Wednesday; partly cloudy weather with possibly showers tonight.

A Pathetic Request.

Pittsburg Dispatch: There is one among the many appeals for a sight of the great battleship fleet, now under command of Rear Admiral Sperry, that should be granted. It is the plea from the leper colony of Molokai. The lepers do not ask that the fleet shall stop at their settlement, but merely that it shall pass near enough to be seen by the unfortunates, condemned to a living death on the reservation. It is a most pathetic request, and if by granting it the splendid fighting fleet shall bring temporary brightness into those desolate lives, the cruise will be not wholly in vain.

According to most recent medical opinion leprosy is probably not a communicable disease. It appears to be due to other causes than contact. Years of observation by the American medical director of Siam convinced him of the correctness of this opinion. It is, therefore, an apparent injustice to condemn the unfortunate victims of the malady in Hawaii to isolation at Molokai. Nevertheless, there they are, objects of pity and commiseration. The navy department surely cannot refuse to grant the boon they seek.

The Alternatives.

Tit-Bits: "We get some sad cases," said the attendant at the lunatic asylum to the visitor, and opened the door of the first cell.

Inside was a man sitting on a stool and gazing vacantly at the wall.

"Sad story," said attendant, "he was in love with a girl, but she married another man, and he lost his reason from grief."

They stole out softly, closing the door behind them, and proceeded to the next inmate. The cell was thickly padded, and the man within was stark, staring mad.

"Who is this?" inquired the visitor.

"This," repeated the attendant, "is the other man."

Always Cheerful.

Philadelphia Ledger: Some time ago there was a flood in Western Pennsylvania. An old fellow who had lost nearly everything he possessed was sitting on the roof of the house as it floated along, when a boat approached.

"Hello, John."

"Hello, Dave."

"Are your fowls all washed away, John?"

"Yes, but the ducks can swim," replied the old man.

"Apple trees gone?"

"Well they said the crop would be a failure, anyhow."

"I see the flood's away above your window."

"That's all right, Dave. Them windows needed washin', anyhow."

A Hope.

The umpire loudly shouts: "Play ball!"
The players step in view;
The crowd in answer to the call,
Exclaims: "We hope they do."

—Washington Star.

It Doesn't Pay.

Philadelphia Bulletin: Getting filthy lucre is not conducive to keeping a clean record.

As to Whisky.

New York Times: Hereafter the branders of distilled spirits, by direction of the commissioner of internal revenue, will marked "whisky" the article unmixed and aged by time. Whisky compounds will have burned in the barrel, not less than an inch high, the legend "blended whisky," and commercial alcohol and high wines made to resemble the genuine by artificial flavors, colorings and extracts, will be branded "imitation whisky." Of course, a highly developed industry will languish under this ruling, if enforced.

Just Theory.

The sermons of Jack-in-the-Pulpit
Put the wide petalled poppies to sleep.

Wrinkles.

Atchison Globe: Find the cause of each wrinkle on a man's face, and you will find that it was put there by worrying over something that worrying could not help.

The Real Question.

Providence Journal: It seems no longer to be a question whether it is as cheap for two to live as one, but whether it is possible.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

Dr. C. B. Pillsbury and Miss Clara Redding of Duluth, sister of Mrs. J. Adam Bede, were married on May 17, at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. H. Pottle, in Minneapolis.

Olson & Co., the new dry goods men, are busy fixing up their store room in the Leland block at the West end and will start business in a few days.

A citizens' association is being formed to prevent the complete destruction of the fish in the St. Louis river by illegal fishing. The county attorney has promised to set the law in motion. It is feared that angling for bass all along the river has been ruined for this season, at least.

The case of Owen Fargussson and others owning property on Rice's Point through which the meandered line of the point was surveyed, against the owners of the water lots beyond them, has been decided by the state supreme court. The decision is in favor of the ownership of the meandered line, carrying the entire riparian right clear to the established dock line wherever that may be and however often it may be changed.

The Duluth Musical club presented "The Pirates of Penzance" at the Grand last evening. Misses Hendricks, Mabel and Annie Holden, Rosa Burg and Susie Austin were the feature of the performance.

The Democratic state convention at St. Paul yesterday was a lively affair. Eugene Wilson, of Minneapolis was elected chairman. Michael Doran and Dr. Ames were elected delegates at large and T. T. Hudson of Duluth was chosen one of the district delegates. A complimentay resolution thanking the Democratic congressmen from this state was passed after Knute Nelson's name was added, it being given out that he was now working hand in hand with the Democracy.

Ice in Lake Superior extends from this end as far as Outer island of the Apostle group, and at the Eastern end from Whitefish point near to Stannard rock. It is still solid and looks as if it would not be all gone before another winter.

The new Zenith City band, composed of seventeen pieces, made its first public appearance yesterday. Four new men with reed instruments are to be added. Leader Walker plays a cornet like a Levy.

N. B. Solner, late of Southern California, has arrived in Duluth and expects to locate here. In company with W. E. Richardson and F. A. Day, he will visit the silver districts near Port Arthur.

Mrs. H. Davis and son of Michigan have arrived in Duluth and will locate here.

A. M. Stearns, the stone pavement maker, has returned after a long absence and will resume his old business.

The West end is to have a Belva Lockwood club, and J. Adam Bede of the Paragrapher is to be its president. The club will support Belva for president and St. John for vice president; with Cleveland as second choice.

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

Hinckley Enterprise (Rep.): Johnson carried the Democratic primaries near enough solidly for all purposes. This is as it should be. That any number of the members of the party could be found to oppose the only man who has carried them to success can only be explained by the party's record of past blunders.

Hendrum Review: Governor Johnson seems to have carried Minnesota some more.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Ore hopes that Mr. Johnson will be the nominee of the Denver convention; some state pride in that, too, but more because it believes that with Mr. Johnson as the possible leader of the Democratic forces it would be the means of compelling Mr. Rockefeller to accept the Republican nomination, which appears to be the desire of a great majority of the Republicans of the nation.

New York Sun: "Johnson carries Minnesota," as is his custom. "Bryanites disrupt Massachusetts Democracy," as is their custom. Will Denver favor carriage or smash?

Indianapolis News: After a careful count of noses the Bryanites decided that it would be indiscreet as to try to take Minnesota away from Governor Johnson.

Willmar Journal: The Minnesota state Democratic convention made good for Johnson Thursday. There was no second choice—John A. Johnson is to be the whole thing or nothing with Minnesota Democrats in the Denver national convention. The Bryan men received fair treatment and decided not to bolt the convention, but it's hard to tell what they will do to further the candidacy of Bryan after about conceding their defeat by the state convention. The delegates-at-large are the best representative Democratic timber in the state.

Little Falls Transcript (Rep.)—The nomination of Bryan by the Democrats will result in a rather uninteresting campaign. He cannot carry any Northern or Western state, and the election of Taft would be assured. Johnson is a different proposition. Eastern Democrats, who never gave Bryan hearty support, would work hard for Johnson. He has shown himself to be a good vote-getter in the West, and his supporters would conduct the fight with hope. Taft would defeat him, but the Democrats would not be waging a heartless campaign.

Moorhead Citizen: Just as we have said all along, Governor John A. Johnson swept the state at the primaries, and he secures the nomination at Denver he will sweep the country in the same manner. This is not the first time he has swept the state. He is the right man in the right place. He has been tried twice and not found wanting as governor, and is just as capable to fill the president's chair.

Hibbing Tribune: The asininity of the Bryan Democrats in forcing a fight upon the governor is astounding. They have succeeded in creating a serious breech in the Democratic ranks but nothing more. Governor Johnson is clearly entitled to the honor of Minnesota's indorsement and every person in the state, no matter what his political affiliation ought to feel ashamed that there has been any question about giving it to him.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Veneered virtues often beget solid vices.

When you meet a trouble borrower, lend him all you have.

A soldier isn't necessarily a general because he is a general favorite.

No man who lodges his earthly taxes can lay up treasures in heaven.

There are times when it is better to back down than get your back up.

Any man can get along with his wife by letting her have her own way.

Unless a woman is a first-class artist she seldom has a good complexion.

Love is a fad girls take up after they get too big to play with Teddy bears.

The girl who expects love to come after marriage places the cart before the horse.

And it sometimes happens that the carpenter does better work on the stage than the actor.

Even a whispered call to duty can be heard by a deaf man if there's an obese salary attached.

Instead of looking a gift mule in the mouth, get at a safe distance and keep your eyes on his rear hoofs.

If some married men do not lie about what keeps them out until 2 a. m., it's probably because their wives are not at home to ask them.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The one thing a man can understand about a woman is that he doesn't.

A man can quit any job he holds whenever he feels like it, except being married.

A girl calls it a romance when a man likes the way her mother has tomato soup made.

People spend all their money keeping up appearances to make the world think they have plenty more left.

A woman takes more joy out of finding a withered flower that one of the children pressed in a book than a man does in finding a ten-dollar bill in an old suit of clothes.

Another Boost For Peace.

Philadelphia Record: It may be a mere accidental coincidence, but it is a good sign that on the day when the war fleet approached San Francisco an arbitration treaty was concluded by the United States and Japan. Every such treaty lessens the danger of war in providing the means of peaceful settlement of international disputes. This treaty with Japan is of especial significance in view of the international differences that have been exaggerated into causes of war.

LAUGHING GAS.

Washington Star: "Does your husband play poker?"

"I don't thinks so," answered young Mrs. Torkins; "but some of the men he meets at the card tables do."

Chicago Tribune: Correspondent—May I ask, senator, how much your campaign cost you?

Eminent Statesman—As to that, young man, I make it a rule to follow the Scriptural injunction, not to let my left hand know what my right hand doeth. Besides, sir, it's none of your blankety blank business.

Chicago Record: "Are you raising your baby scientifically?"

"No. That would be impossible. His grandmother lives with us."

Harper's Weekly: "Does your father know I love you?"

"No. Papa isn't very well, and we've kept it from him."

Philadelphia Press: Bobbie—Say, where are the flannel cakes? We always have 'em for Sunday breakfast.

Mother—Not in warm weather. They're too heating now.

Bobbie—But couldn't we have 'em if cook would make 'em thinner?

A Menacing Possibility.

Chicago Post: "So you people put a couple of magnates in jail on heavy fines, did you?" asks the investigating reformer.

"Yes," replied the native. "We fined them the limit; they wouldn't pay, and we put them in the cells."

"That's a good example."

"Is it? Within two days they organized the prisoners, guards and jailers into the International Penalty company, issued $500,000,000 in bonds, paid the fines of all the prisoners, left us with a mortgage on the jail and the courthouse—and stuck the surplus money in their pockets."

Ballad of Phoebus Caramel.

Of all the dandies whose array
Deserved the name of swell,
Not one was quite so recherche
As Phoebus Caramel.

His coat was Fashion's masterpiece,
The pin he wore was Art's,
As for his tie and trousers crease,
They frequently broke hearts.

No other dude could raise his hat
And bow to passing belle
With elegance approaching that
Of Phoebus Caramel.

But once, when, flawlessly arrayed,
Upon his knees he flopped,
And spoke of marriage to a maid,
She laughed until she dropped.

"I'll wed" cried she, "no tailored doll,
So, pray, your ardor quell!"
Ye gods—that was a thunderbolt
For Phoebus Caramel.

He disappeared; the lady wept;
Two years elapsed; two more.
(Don't be alarmed; her age has crept
Not quite to twenty-four.)

At last one day she gave a whoop,
A happy, girlish yell,
For bodily striding up the stoop
Was—Phoebus Caramel!

His cheek was tanned, his beard unkempt,
His boots were rimmed with nails,
His coat was quite beneath contempt,
His trousers flapped like sails.

And lo! he told of toil and strife,
Of hardship—hunger—hell!
Which, he averred, had been the life
Of Phoebus Caramel.

He cried: "My ragged coat inspect;
Observe my trousers, please,
And note the gas-balloon effect
They cause around my knees.

"How do you like me now?—confess!"
She answered slowly: "Well,
If possible, I like you less,
O Phoebus Caramel!"

—New York Times.

The Proud Violinist.

Washington Star: Prince de Sagan, talking about music with one of the French correspondents in New York mentioned the violinist, Ysaye.

"The plump, pale Ysaye," he said, "with his lock that hangs down over his face to his chin, is proud.

"A millionaire bootmaker invited Ysaye to dine with him last year in Nice.

"After dinner the millionaire brought out a violin and asked Ysaye to play. The musician bit his lip, but, taking the instrument, he played several beautiful morceaux.

"Afterwards, in Paris, Ysaye invited the millionaire to dinner in his turn. There was a distinguished company present. After dinner, as they were all at coffee in the salon, a servant brought the host a pair of old boots.

"Ysaye took the boots and handed them gravely to his millionaire guest.

"'But what am I to do with these?' the guest demanded, holding the boots awkwardly in his lap beside his cup.

"Ysaye smiled vindictively and flung his long locks behind his ear.

"'In Nice,' he said, 'you asked me after dinner to play for you. Now I ask you to mend these boots for me. Each to his trade, you know.'"

IS TORRID IN GOTHAM

Straw Hats Are Out, Overcoats in and Waistcoats Off.

Keen Interest in the Fight on Race Track Gambling.

New York, May 19.—Summer heat has today wrapped Manhattan island with all the torrid haze of July. Straw hats are out, overcoats in, waistcoats off and sleeves rolled up from end to end of the town. In twenty years New Yorkers have not seen the like of this spring with its early, steady spells of growing weather. All surban Gotham is out in full leaf and bloom and the great holiday exodus of the crowd to park and woodside has already begun. This year the guardians of what feathered life still remains in the city's rustic playgrounds propose to take firm steps to ward off the inroads of the growing horde of holiday pot hunters. Careless boys and ignorant people have heretofore killed the few song birds about here by the thousands. To strengthen the arm of police and wardens, the workers of the National Association of Audubon societies are today laying plans that should stay the hand of the destructive element. The metropolis can ill afford to lose its few remnants of nature.

Allen's Aim.

That there should be strife over the last passing in of the chips of sturdy old "The" Allen seems in keeping with the whole idea of the battlesome old gambler to those who have followed his stormy career. There was "something started" with bar room fighters, gamblers and police at every turn of Allen's life and today coroner, relatives, undertaker and nurses are in the midst of a glorious mix-up over his death. Giving usually better than he had to take, the belligerent "The" fought his way from first to second childhood, and no man ever landed on the police force oftener or to more advantage. Arraigned in court over 200 times and raided behind the bolts and bars of his gambling castle almost every week of its existence of a score of years, "The" Allen worked the city's servants for thousands of dollars worth of their time and edged out scot free. For all his shady side, this gambler was chock full of the fighting blood which men must admire.

Political Push.

With every eye on Albany and many a sideglance toward Chicago, Gotham is today aroused to a keener interest in outside politics than New Yorkers remember in many a year. Only in rare campaigns of intense local interest has everyone here shown zest equal to that with which the governor has been followed in his appeal to the people. Today men of every creed, color and political faith have banded together here to let all the country know what Hughes is doing. This Hughes information bureau is rallying thousands who want to talk for the governor throughout the country, while he is busy working for them in Albany. That the country is calling for better knowledge of the man who reached the people of Orleans and Niagara is shown by the flood of inquiries, which is almost swamping these headquarters. Meanwhile the metropolis, that knows its governor, in bottling up a boom that looks like business.

St. Mary's Service.

Stripped bare to her three masts and hull, the good old school ship St. Marys lies today off the Brooklyn navy yard awaiting the highest bidder for her remains. New Yorkers of this generation and the last cannot recall a year in which the veteran sloop of war has not harbored her brood of budding sailormen in training off the East river piers. Into every sea of the globe this faithful old vessel has carried these young cadets, who now number in their alumni association served thousands. Fighter that she was in her war days, the St. Marys made her greatest record in training the boys of the state to be men of the sea. In her passing, Gotham feels it has lost an old friend.

To Experiment With Turbines.

One of our largest ocean steamship companies has decided to continue using the old style reciprocating enginos, but in addition will try the experiment of combining the two, thereby getting better results at about one-third of the cost. The time for experimenting is past when it is a question of curing ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Most everybody decides at once to get a bottle of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters because its past record of cures proves it to be the best. If you are still experimenting with this or that remedy—stop it at once, and follow the above plan which has already benefited thousands. It cures and prevents poor appetite, headache, biliousness, costiveness, insomnia, dyspepsia, indigestion, heartburn, sour risings, liver troubles, female ills and malaria, fever and ague. All druggists.

CADETS WILL HOLD SERVICE

Trinity Cadet Corps Will Make First Public Appearance Sunday.

The first public appearance of the Trinity Cadet Corps will occur next Sunday morning at a military service to be held in Trinity Pro-Cathedral at Twentieth avenue east and Superior street.

Last evening Rev. A. H. Wurtele, in behalf of J. W. Lyder, presented the cadet corps with a handsome flag. The flag was saluted by the buglers and Mr. Wurtele made a speech along patriotic lines, urging loyalty to the flag and the country it represents.

FALLS OFF A BLUFF.

Nine-Year-Old Boy Lives After Thirty-Foot Tumble.

Negaunee, Mich., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A 9-year-old lad named Niemi, whose mother is a widow, fell off the point of Teal Lake bluff, near Teal Lake avenue and Arch street, Friday evening, sustaining a bad fracture of one leg and cuts and bruises about the body. He dropped about thirty feet, and on the way down struck several sharp points. The fracture was reduced by Negaunee hospital surgeons. It is reported that the boy is getting along nicely.

SHOWS GOOD TIMES.

Highest Delinquent Tax Sale In Stearns County in Years.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual May real estate tax sale, which was held at the office of the county auditor on Monday, May 11, brought in the amount of $5,066.13. This was the highest real estate tax sale which has been held for the last eight years, though there have been such in previous years that went above $10,000. The number of delinquents this year is smaller than last, but the bidding was livelier on account of the large number of people who are looking for a chance to invest their money at the rate of 12 per cent. The above amount went to the county treasury from the actual purchasers. Only a small percentage of the delinquent list was bid in by the state. There were between 900 and 1,000 tracts on the list.

TO MAKE EAU CLAIRE GOOD.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 19.—Ministers and leading citizens of Eau Claire have organized a law enforcement league, to deal with alleged defiance of the statutes by the saloons. The organization is headed by Millionaire O. H. Ingram.

ROOSTER ATTACKS CHILD.

Little One's Eyelid Cut by One of Bird's Spurs.

Houghton, Mich., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Agnes Norma, the little daughter of Charles Norma of this city, is recovering from an injury suffered Friday, when a large Plymouth Rock rooster attacked her and drove one of its spurs into her left eye above the eyelid. It was by an exceedingly narrow margin that the optic itself escaped injury.

Just before the rooster attacked the child, Mr. Norma and the little girl were in the rear yard. The father was at work in the garden when he heard his daughter crying and he turned about in time to see her retreating with upraised hands from the rushes of the angry fowl, which was jumping and striking her in the face. Mr. Norma at once drove the rooster away and regarded the matter lightly until he saw that his daughter was painfully hurt. A physician was called at once.

McKENZIE IS MODEST.

Says Insurgents Made Him Bigger Man Than He Is.

Minot, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Probably no delegate in the recent Republican state convention here was more pleased over the action of the convention than Alexander McKenzie of Bismarck, who was elected from his precinct without a dissenting vote.

In spite of the fact that Mr. McKenzie was not a candidate for anything and had stated that he would not accept the position of national committeeman under any circumstances, the insurgents insisted on centering their fire on him and in making him an issue. This forced him into the fray and having entered, he is naturally pleased with the result.

"I did not want to be an issue in this fight," said Mr. McKenzie before leaving Minot. "I am not a big enough man to be an issue in any fight. The insurgents made me a bigger man, a good deal, than I deserved.

"But some of the Republicans insisted on making me an issue and I was absolutely forced into the fray. I would certainly be an ingrate if I did not feel pleased at the way the Republicans have stood by me, and I hope that I will merit their confidence."

UNKNOWN MAN KILLED.

Bena, Minn., May 19.—A section hand, walking along the Great Northern tracks three miles west of here yesterday, discovered the dead body of an unknown man dressed as a log driver, wearing calked shoes and bearing unmistakable evidences of having been struck by the cars and killed.

Kidney complaint kills more people than any other disease. This is due to the disease being so insidious that it gets a good hold on the system before it is recognized. Foley's Kidney Cure will prevent the development of fatal disease if taken in time. At all druggists.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The Never Sweat mine of the Anaconda group of the Amalgamated Copper company, resumed operations Monday, affording employment to 500 men. The East Mining company started work, giving work to fifty miners. The West Grey Rock will resume work Wednesday and it will employ about 100 men.

Under suspension of the rules the house Monday passed a bill making Monterey and Port Harford, California., Petoskey, Mich., Port Arthur, Texas., and St. Vincent, Minn., sub-ports of entry.

Speaker Cannon Monday introduced by request a bill making it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $20 or imprisonment for thirty days for any person to fraudulently wear in the District of Columbia the badge, insignia or button of the Order of Elks. The bill passed the house in the Fifty-ninth congress but failed in the senate.

The Arkansas legislature failed to convene Monday in pursuance to a call issued by Speaker Allen H. Hamiter, while he was acting governor and as a result there will be no extrordinary session of that body. Noon and afternoon sessions were held by members of both the senate and house, but there was not a quorum at any of the four sessions.

The senate Monday confirmed the nomination of Mr. Maddox of Montana to be solicitor of internal revenue and the nominations of a number of postmasters which have been held up several months.

At the meeting of the Yale corporation Monday formal announcement was made of the election of Prof. Jones, dean of the school of engineering at the University of Minnesota, as dean of Yale.

Nine hundred coal miners in J. J. Hills mines refused to go to work today at Michel B. C., on account of alleged discrimination in hiring men. District President Sherman of the union opposed the strike. Feeling against Sherman is strong.

The passage by the house Monday of the general deficiency appropriation bill carrying $17,368,572 marked the completion by that body of the last of the great supply measures of the government. The bill was put through under suspension of the rules with no time allowance for general debate.

SOO TRAINS IN ONAMIA BY THE FOURTH OF JULY.

Onamia, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. A. Campbell, the Soo townsite agent who was here a few days ago, was well pleased with the progress that Onamia has been making and was authority for the statement that a street grade would be established in Onamia this summer and that the townsite would be extended northward to the lake. This will make an addition of six blocks. Room along the lake shore will be reserved for a splendid boulevard along the entire lake front and will extend to the point, which will not be platted but will be reserved for park purposes. This is a beautiful rolling tract of land extending into Lake Onamia and is covered with hard wood timber. This could be made into a beautiful park where in summer the cool breeze from the lake would be wafted across and lessen the summer heat, making it an ideal place to spend a few hours of a hot summer day in the shade of huge elms growing there.

The statement was also made that trains would be running in here over the new road by July 4, which is very encouraging to all.

NORSEMEN CELEBRATED.

General Observance of Independence Day Around Bemidji.

Bemidji, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Norwegian Independence day was observed in Bemidji and other places in this vicinity with appropriate exercises on the night of the 16th and also during the following day.

Saturday evening, in the city hall, exercises were held under the auspices of the Samhold Young People's society.

Dr. Tord Nielson dellevered an eloquent address in the Scandinavian language. The speaker made an historical review of the significance of the date which was being observed and paid a glowing tribute to the sturdy Norsemen and their descendants who are among the staunchest citizens of this great republic.

There was some splendid singing by a quartet of ability. Members of the Samhold society gave the Norwegian play, "Til Saetters." The play was very well rendered, those taking part doing very well.

Sunday afternoon at the Aarlahl church, in the town of Frohm, east of Bemidji, 200 people, many of them from Bemidji, participated in the exercises, commerating the Norwegian Independence day.

Rev. Amundson of Nymore, the Norwegian Lutheran pastor, and Dr. Tord Nielson of this city made patriotic addresses and there was a musical and literary program.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Sons of Norway, accompanied by citizens and the Thief River Falls band, marched from their hall on Main street to the residence of City Clerk Lars Backe, May 17, where appropriate exercises were conducted in honor of Norway's natal day. Addresses were delivered by several speakers, all laudatory of the country from which so many of Minnesota's citizens came.

Electric Lamps for Heating.

Electric heating lamps are now utilized extensively in England for small radiators. These radiators are provided with polished copper reflectors, and may be connected to any source of electricity. It will also interest you to know that the practice of keeping a case of golden grain belt beer on hand in the home is so general that it is well nigh universal. Your home deserves a case of this pure, wholesome beverage. Order of your nearest dealer, of be supplied by the Duluth branch, Minneapolis Brewing company.

WAHKON'S FUTURE BRIGHT.

Wahkon, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. A. Campbell of Minneapolis, general townsite agent of the Soo line, arrived Friday and gave orders for the ditching and street grading that is to be done by the townsite company here this summer. He is very enthusiastic over the future of Wahkon and predicts a great future for our town.

Strange as Fiction.

In Germany there is a newspaper published in the interests of all rheumatic sufferers, and each week symptoms and treatments are discussed by both laity and medical men. One scientific contributor related that a formula originated especially to relieve kidney diseases, had almost phenomenal virtue in the treatment of all forms of rheumatism.

Its action is to favor the kidney secretions and stimulate their filtering capacity, so that the poisons and acids which cause rheumatism vanishes. No secret is made of this formula, which is composed of one-half ounce fluid extract buchu, one ounce compound fluid balmwort and two ounces compound syrup sarsaparilla, mixed in a bottle, and to be taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal and one at retiring.

A local druggist states that any honest pharmacist can fill the prescription, and expressed the opinion that many of the standard remedies had been discovered by mere accident. Doubtless every rheumatic and kidney sufferer will be grateful for this item.

OVERTAXED

Hundreds of Duluth Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed;
Have too much to do,
They tell about it in many aches and pains—
Backache, sideache, headache,
Early symptoms of kidney ills.
Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Duluth citizen tells here a certain cure.

H. G. Hibke, clerk in the Northern Pacific R. R. freight house, and living at Hunter's Park, Duluth, Minn., says: "In a testimonial given by me in 1898, which has been published often in the Duluth papers, I told how Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of a severe attack of kidney complaint, from which I had suffered for a long time. I believe that it was brought on in the first place by exposure to all kinds of weather and the jarring of driving. Backache set in and the pains and aches made stooping and lifting very painful. Whenever I took cold it settled in my back and aggravated the trouble. The kidney secretions became discolored, irregular and contained a sediment. I also had frequent attacks of headaches. However, as I have emphatically declared and will always affirm, Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of all these conditions, and today not a symptom of my former trouble remains."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

TURBULENT WATERS THAT CLAIMED ADOLPH ANDERSON OF MOOSE LAKE

HELL GATE RAPIDS, KETTLE RIVER.

Sandstone, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Drags and dynamite were used all day Sunday and yesterday in the effort to find the body of Adolph E. Anderson, principal of the public schools, who was drowned in the Hell Gate rapids of the Kettle river near here Saturday afternoon while passing through the rapids in a small boat with Walfred Westholm of Moose Lake, without results. Search for the body is still being prosecuted, but some doubt is expressed about its being recovered until it floats outside of the whirlpool.

The above picture shows the most dangerous point of the rapids, where the boat upset. The picture was taken in the rear of the tin can shown in the foreground.

WRONG ONE, HE CLAIMS

Clarence Cooper, Arrested for Forgery, Says Its Mistake.

Spirited Away From California by Some Clever Work.

Fargo, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A woman's cleverness was an important factor in securing the return to Fargo from California of Clarence S. Cooper, charged with forgery. The accused asserts it is a clear case of mistaken identity and that he will be able to demonstrate to the court that he is not the man wanted. He will have an opportunity to make his claim good at the preliminary hearing before Judge Miller.

Cooper, or his double, reached Wheatland, Cass county, four years ago, and claiming an old-time acquaintance with the family of Charles Malette, remained there for some time. Being known as the friend of the Malettes, who were prominent, he had no difficulty in getting the Wheatland bank to cash a check, which was later pronounced a forgery. The State Bankers' association had been after him since, but had failed to get a clue. The Malettes moved to San Diego, Cal., a few months ago and Mrs. Malette recently saw Cooper on the streets and caused his arrest. Deputy Sheriff Ross was sent for Cooper and found efforts were being made to institute habeas corpus proceedings so he secured an auto and drove his man 150 miles overland to catch a train, being followed by Cooper's friends in another machine. Ross got away with his prisoner before the proceedings could be started and the papers served.

Cooper is well supplied with funds, claims to be a California business man, and asserts it has been fifteen years since he was in North Dakota, that he was never in Wheatland and does not know the Malettes, at whose home he is alleged to have stopped.

BOY PERISHES IN RED RIVER

Boy is Carried Into a Whirlpool and Not Recovered.

Red Lake Falls, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Brouilette, the 8-year-old son of Mrs. Wilfred Chatel, was drowned in the Red river near Healy's mill dam late Sunday afternoon while fishing with his brothers. His body was carried into the whirlpool below the sluice and all efforts to recover it have proven futile up to date.

During the heavy storm which prevailed Sunday evening considerable hail fell, but did little damage, as the crops and gardens are not advanced far enough to be injured.

The graduating class of St. Joseph's school is practicing daily for the exercises to be given on June 2. The date for the commencement exercises of the high school has not yet been announced. The first named school will graduate a class of seventeen pupils, while fifteen have won laurels at the high school.

BUCKET SHOP CREDITORS WILL RECEIVE DIVIDEND.

St. Paul, Minn., May 19.—Ashley Coffman, receiver of the defunct Wisconsin Grain & Stock company, announced that the assets in his hands amounted to $32,750, which will soon be distributed among the creditors.

The funds will permit the payment of a dividend of about 15 per cent. Judge Morris has decided that all of the books of the receiver be turned over to Charles L. Spencer, clerk of the district court.

CALUMET WAR CONCERT.

Notable Musical Event to be Given Next Friday Evening.

Calumet, Mich., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A war concert will be given Friday night, May 22, at the Light Guard armory, under the auspices of the Spanish-American war veterans, G. A. R. and Company A, Calumet Engineers. The program is in charge of Mrs. W. S. Whisler. The soloists and large chorus will be assisted by the full Calumet & Hecla orchestra and the singers are the best that could be found in the county.

A grand ball will follow the concert and the proceeds will be used to purchase flowers for Memorial day. The complete program was printed in Thursday's Herald.

ESCANABA TO ENTERTAIN

Annual Reunion of Upper Peninsula Pythian League June 22-24.

Escanaba, Mich., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of Escanaba lodge, No. 98, Knights of Pythals, are now completing their program for the annual reunion of the Upper Peninsula Pythian league, which will be held in this city on June 22-24.

On Monday, June 22, at Peterson's hall, the first session will be held and it will be called to order by E. P. Sutherland, president of the league, who will at that time give his annual address. He will be followed by Attorney I. C. Jennings, who will deliver the address of welcome. Responses will be made by Grand Chancellor S. G. Carleton and G. K. of R. & S., W. G. Hampton. At 10 o'clock the lodge will open in Knight rank, and after a short formal session a recess will be taken until 1 o'clock p. m. The sessions Monday afternoon and evening and Tuesday forenoon and afternoon will be devoted to the team contests.

On Tuesday evening a big Pythian ball will be given at Peterson's hall.

The great public event of the reunion will be the ball game between picked nines from Zenith lodge of Ishpeming and Escanaba lodge. None but members of the respective lodges will play.

The business session of the league for the reports of officers and election of new officers will be held at the city hall, Wednesday afternoon. This will be a short session and will be out of the way in time for the ball game.

Wednesday evening the Escanaba lodge will give a banquet to their visitors, and this will be the closing event of the reunion.

FINDS HIM HANGING.

Granddaughter of Charles Lindrose Makes Awful Discovery.

St. Ignace, Mich., May 19.—After working all day around his home, Charles Lindrose, who has been employed the past two years as night watchman at Bissel & Shaver's mill, was found by his grand-daughter, when she went to call him for supper, hanging behind the door of the shed, strangled by a rope.

The deceased leaves a widow and the one daughter. No motive can be assigned for the act; he had shown no symptoms of depression, nor was he in other than his usual health.

Only that very afternoon he had bought lumber for use about his premises—improvements, rather than the end of his life, being indicated thereby to have been, up to the last moment, uppermost in his thoughts.

IN TROUBLE AGAIN.

Man Who Did Time for Theft, is Accused of Forgery.

Moorhead, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. H. Williams, alias Frank Stevens, is under arrest for passing forged checks upon several saloons in this city.

Williams was arrested four years ago at Barnesville for stealing a valuable fur coat, and Sheriff Bayer at that time had a hard fight with the authorities of Wilkin county as to who should get him. He was held in Clay county, and in district court was given an indeterminate sentence at Stillwater. He served three years and four months, and was released nearly a year ago. He went to Valley City and opened a restaurant, but recently failing in that business he came here a few days ago and started passing forged checks in order to get money with which to make Minneapolis. He presented a check at Higgins, Aske company, drawn on Brown & Co., painters of Fargo, and payable to Frank Stevens. It didn't look good to Mr. Aske and he declined to cash it. Williams left and Mr. Aske reported the matter to Chief Malvey, who quickly had Williams under arrest. He, however, passed one of his checks Friday night upon the Northern hotel, and it is understood that there are several out.

Williams makes a clean breast of the matter and says he will make the checks good.

MEETING AT MINOT.

State Sabbath School Association in Session This Week.

Minot, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Minot is entertaining another convention this week in the State Sabbath School association, which convened here today. Men prominent in Sunday school work from all over the state are present. Several prominent Sunday school workers from other states are also in evidence, notably Dr. Hammill of Tennessee, recognized as one of the greatest Sunday school specialists in the country.

WET GOODS DESTROYED.

Barrels, Bottles and Contents Are Wrecked at Bismarck.

Bismarck, N. D., May 19.—Under instruction of Justice Gilbert, Chief Wing Saturday destroyed the wet goods confiscated at the home of William Coleman a few days ago. There were two barrels of empties, twelve bottles of beer and five bottles of whisky. There was no claimant for the goods, so, under the law, the stuff had to be destroyed. The chief called to his aid, "Gloomy Gus," the odd character doing time in the county jail for vagrancy, and the artistic way in which this gentleman destroyed the wet goods excited the admiration of all beholders and did much to assuage their grief at the wanton waste.

ARE GOOD INDIANS.

Those at Standing Rock Devoted to Ways of Peace.

Bismarck, N. D., May 19.—(Special to the Herald.)—Anton B. Bullhead, a graduate of the Hampton institute of Virginia, spent yesterday in the city. He came on business connected with the allotment of the Indian lands of the Standing Rock reservation, and when these lands are selected, he says, the reservation will, in all probability, be thrown open to the public for settlement in about eighteen months. He has but lately returned from Washington, D. C., where, with four other prominent Indians, he interviewed the secretary of the interior regarding the proposed opening.

Mr. Bullhead resides in the vicinity of the old Sitting Bull Indians. He says that the red men generally, and especially in his locality, are turning their attention to stock raising, it being not at all uncommon for the Indians to own at least 200 head of horses.

THIEF WORKS BASEMENT AS MINISTER PREACHES.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—While Rev. C. M. Stocking of the Union City mission was extolling the gospel Sunday night on the first floor of the building, a thief relieved Ibrin Brunt, a transient, of his watch, 30 cents and a 2-cent postage stamp, in the lodging house in the basement. Brunt had his belongings in a woman's handgrip between a pillow and a pillowcase in the upper berth which was assigned to him. He reported the case to the police, but the goods are still missing.

Cancer Easily Cured

Mailed Free. How to Cure Yourself Privately at Home In From 10 To 20 Days.

No Trouble, No Risk, Simply Send Your Name and Address.

The Curry Sanitarium.

Furnished throughout with all the modern conveniences; hot and cold water, steam heat and electric lights in every room.

I have discovered what the medical world had been looking for, for years, a sure cure for cancer, so sure that it can be absolutely guaranteed. This I do, and I can prove it. I have cured hundreds of the most horrifying cases in from 10 to 20 days, after celebrated physicians and surgeons had given up all hope of saving them.

After you have seen the marvelous results of this treatment, you will be surprised how easily you can cure yourself at home without risk or danger.

I have one of the finest sanitariums in the country for those who wish to come and have my personal attention. However, you can cure yourself just as well at home. Any bank or business firm in Lebanon will tell you we are reliable and successful in curing cancer.

Mrs. Margaret Fullerton wants to tell readers of this paper how she cured her cancer in 8 days:

"My cancer kept growing and growing and I dragged along this way since 1892, just 15 years. The cancer was on my face and I had been almost given up as hopeless. I could almost feel the touch of death.

"Finally I tried this treatment that all my friends were urging me to get. In just eight days and no more, the cancer that had eaten its way through my face for 15 years, dropped out, leaving a hole seven and one-half inches around. Then the sore at once began to heal up and now there is but a small scar to be seen.

The doctor wants to hear from anyone afflicted with cancer, tumor, or any suspicious growth. He will give you his expert advice absolutely free.

"Some of my friends and members of my family are witnesses of this, and know that I am telling the truth. It was the Dr. Curry Cancer Cure that cured me, nothing else. They say it cures cancer in from 10 to 20 days, but I beat that record by two days, and without the use of the terrible knife.

"Will all my brothers and sisters who are suffering from cancer write to this firm? They will never regret it.

COOPER'S BODY FOUND.

Dora Lake Gives Up Body of Missing Man.

Deer River, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several days ago as a party of settlers were returning to their homes from Wirt by boat, where they had been the night before at a dance given in the new Walley store building and crossing Dora lake the body of Herbert Cooper, who was drowned with three friends last fall, was found floating in the middle of the lake. The boat in the lead of the party contained a brother of the unfortunate man, and parties in the second boat, about a half mile behind, found the body. The remains were badly decomposed and interment was made at the homestead of the dead man's father on the Big Fork river.

FIRST SWIM NEARLY LAST.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 19.—Edward Leacher, 16 years old, had a narrow escape from being drowned in the Chippewa river, but was saved by Guy Harris, as he was going down the third time. Young Leacher boasted that he was going to be the first person in Chippewa county this year to take a swim in the Chippewa river, and Sunday took the plunge. The water proved too cold and he was seized with cramps. Harris, who happened to be near, threw off his coat and succeeded in rescuing the boy.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Milwaukee—While on his way to the poor office to be taken to the county home for the poor, Hans Johnson, aged 61 years, a former tailor, but later a porter in a downtown saloon, fell dead in front of the Patton Paint company's store at 502 Market street.

Waukesha—The entire battalion of St. John's Military academy of Delafield came here Sunday and gave a dress parade and review before a crowd of 3,000 people on the Newhall farm on East avenue. The evolutions were under the direction of Maj. Roy F. Farrand, commandant of cadets.

Oshkosh—Oshkosh is to have a new manufacturing plant, the organization of which has been effected without soliciting capital stock. It is the Wisconsin Wood Working Machinery company. Work will be started in a few months.

Janesville—Reports from Evansville say several thousand acres of marshy land in the towns of Union, Porter and Center, which have formed at one time a large inland lake similar to Koshkonong, are to be drained. It is estimated that the work will take a year to complete.

Janesville—Mamie Hemmins, who disappeared Wednesday, was found at the home of friends in Beloit Sunday and brought here.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Sandstone—The excavation for the new Oddfellow building is completed and the foundation is being laid. The rain has softened the ground so that considerable trouble was experienced with the caving-in of the sides of the cellar and Peter Peterson had a narrow escape from being buried by dirt and part of the cement walk.

Pine City—P. W. McAllen is sporting a fine Mitchell 22-horse power gasoline automobile. He purchased the machine in Minneapolis last week and drove it to this place last Friday.

Akeley—At a dance given at Ed Moore, Sr.'s residence, recently, Mrs. Andrew Nelson fell upon the smooth floor and sustained a fracture of the left shoulder. The polished floor and a pair of new shoes were responsible for the accident.

Deer River—Willie Hendrickson has begun work on his three miles of county road to Weiler's spur. He has a large crew clearing and he says that when he is finished this will be one of the best pieces of clearing and grubbing in the county.

Bemidji—L. S. Orbak has commenced work on his new cottage at the head of the lake adjoining E. K. Anderson's summer home, and when the structure is completed he will have one of the finest places on the lake.

Cass Lake—Rev. Emil Ulbricht, pastor of the German Lutheran church, has accepted a call to the pastorate of a church at Lakefield, in Jackson county, in the southern part of the state, and will leave some time this week.

Crookston—The brick plant of the Crookston Brick and Tile company started up Monday and it is expected that the large plant will be kept running at From the very start at least forty-five men will be put to work.

Onamia—A club was organized Wednesday evening, to be known as the Onamia Rod and Gun club. There were fourteen gentlemen present at the first meeting who became members. The following officers were elected: Fred Burrell, president; G. C. Persons, secretary; William Klein, treasurer, and H. G. Yontz, field captain.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Houghton—The Amphidrome has made a contract with the Quincy band, whereby that organization will furnish all music for the big pleasure palace during the summer. The band will play a concert for the West End merchants every Saturday night during the summer.

Hurontown—Fred Meyer, of Meyer Bros. the Hurontown ice dealers, suffered a painful accident Saturday, the crushing of one of his legs. He fell under a heavily loaded ice wagon.

Hancock—Chief Andrew arrested five boys Friday whose ages range from 10 to 14 years on a charge of having entered F. K. Anthony's home in West Hancock several weeks ago and doing considerable damage to property and utensils found in the house. They will have a hearing Wednesday.

Escanaba—Dr. M. P. Fenelon was chosen president of the Escanaba Physicians' club for the coming year at the annual meeting of that organization. Dr. H. W. Long was chosen vice president, Dr. W. A. Lemire secretary and Dr. Ferris Summerbell treasurer.

Houghton—Houghton county's proportion of the annual disbursement of the primary school interest fund was received by County Treasurer Foley Saturday in a draft from Auditor General Bradley for $160,217.50.

Calumet—H. L. Hancock, an Australian mine owner and operator, visited Calumet recently and veiwed the mining industries carried on here. He was much impressed with the large pieces of machinery and the Copper county methods of mining.

Hancock—At a recent meeting of the local Elks it was decided that the lodge join the Michigan Association of Elks. The state organization will hold a reunion at Kalamazoo within a short time.

Marquette—The board of pardons concluded its session at the Marquette prison Saturday, and its members left for the lower peninsula. Favorable action was taken on the applications of eleven prisoners for parole, and their parole papers will be along in the course of a week or so.

Negaunee—Al Cranz and wife and Mrs. Al Bennett, who left for Bisbee, Ariz., a little less than a year ago, returned Saturday, and intend to again locate here. Mrs. Bennett has had poor health since she left, and has returned on that account. Her husband will remain at Bisbee for the present.

Ishpeming—Miss Maud Thexton and Henry Anderson, well-known Ishpeming young people, were united in marriage Thursday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Thexton, 318 Jasper street. Rev. C. L. Adams, pastor of the First Methodist church, performed the ceremony.

Marquette—Dr. Deadman, the veterinary, subjected the entire herd of cattle at the Vandenboom dairy to the tuberculin test for tuberculosis last week, and found them sound and healthy, without exception.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Minot, N. D.—The report of the public library for the month of April issued by Librarian Clara Kunst shows that 1,540 books were circulated during the month. Of this number 793 were taken by children and 747 by adults.

Bismarck, N. D.—Bismarck Odd Fellows are making elaborate preparations for the entertainment of the three linkers when they meet here during the annual sessions of the grand lodge and the grand encampment and the meeting of the Rebekah assembly, to be held June 2, 3 and 4.

Mandan, N. D.—The contract for the building of the new Catholic rectory in this city was awarded to J. A. McDougal of this city. The building when completed will cost $12,600 and will be second to none in the state. The material to be used is Menominee pressed brick.

Bismarck, N. D.—Dr. Wilson, veterinarian of the United States army, is in the city, visiting at Fort Lincoln. The doctor is making a round of inspection at the different forts and garrisons of the country, looking for glandered stock.

Minot, N. D.—With the message of the house bill appropriating $250,000 for a new federal building in Minot, this city is certain of having one of the finest structures of its kind in the country, and one that will in all probability so far out strip anything of its kind in the state as to leave no comparison.

WOMAN'S NIGHTMARE

No woman can be happy without children; it is her nature to love them as much so as it is the beautiful and pure. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass is so fraught with dread that the very thought fills her with apprehension. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either very painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend prepares the system for the coming event, and it is passed without any danger. NO LONGER VISIONARY

That the Aeroplane Can Fly Has Been Demonstrated.

War to be Taken From Land to the Sky.

Washington, May 19.—The aeroplane is no longer visionary. That a heavier-than-air machine can fly has been demonstrated. It only remains to perfect its control.

In all battles of the future the evolutions of dirigible balloons and aeroplanes will play an important part.

The Wright brothers and A. M. Herring are working along lines that promise practical success.

If within a reasonable period the Wright brothers and Herring do not produce a practical machine under the terms of the contracts now in force between them and the government, the government will itself build a number of aeroplanes from plans and specifications drawn up by army experts and which, it is believed, without infringing on any patents now held, will fly successfully.

These views are held and were today expressed by Gen. James F. Allen, chief of the United States signal corps, under which department the balloon and aeroplane corps of the army is working.

Airship's Part in Battle.

Gen. Allen declared that the use of balloons or aeroplanes to transport troops or supplies was impractical so far as the future could be peered into. He does believe, however, that it will not be long before the war departments of all countries will have balloons or airships which will be competent to do scout work, travel swiftly over an area broad enough to make them practical and carry a crew large enough to take observations or hurl devastating explosives. From dirigible balloons the firing of any gun would be impractical, as the creation of sparks would be too dangerous. As for aeroplanes, it is hardly probable that enough lifting power to sustain a gun of sufficient caliber to be effective can be adduced. Therefore the future of the air vessel must necessarily, or, at least, unless enormous strides have been made in development, be confined to air scouting and possible hurling of explosives of highest power.

To Take War to Clouds.

Gen. Allen realizes that other governments are making tremendous strides in the same line of endeavor, and he believes that an aeroplane and dirigible balloon building by the nations of the world will be carried on the most extensive scale by all governmetns from time to time on, Gen. Allen said today:

"The usual opinion appears to be that if a nation is equipped with a dirigible war balloon or aeroplane it can deal death and destruction to an opposing army or fleet, and that an actual invasion of a country could be successfully carried out by their aid.

"The pertinent question, however, is what would the other nation be doing? Would it let a balloon cross its frontier? Nations protect their frontiers by chains of fortresses, such as Germany, France, Austria and Russia maintain. Now if it be taken for granted that one nation desires to make observations of the camps or fortresses of another, the first requisition is that the balloon reach the point of observation. Would Russia be inactive if it was known that Austria or Turkey were equipped with a fleet of balloons operating along the whole frontier? It would be necessary for Russia to have an equal number of balloons or other air machines, and it is certain that what Austria or Turkey could get, Russia also could get.

Balloons to Fight in Air.

"There would be no observations unless a battle had taken place in the clouds. The object of each nation would be to prevent observation, and observation would be possible only when the enemy's balloon had been destroyed."

Gen. Allen's idea is that the dirigible balloon is now in such a state of completion that it can be used as an engine of war, not only against the camp of the enemy by day or night, but against another balloon preparing for a similar purpose on the other side.

Gen. Allen was asked about the belief that a balloon, as it must operate at a great height, could not drop missiles accurately.

Drop Explosives on Enemy.

"That might be true in the adytime," said Gen. Allen; "but I do not believe that it would be necessary to keep a balloon at a great height at night, so as to get observations. I think at night a balloon would be invisible 500 yards above the earth, and, of course, it would not be displaying a searchlight. It is, of course, true that in the daytime you must keep out of the reach of field guns, but at night, in my judgment, missiles could be projected from a balloon with unerring accuracy."

Bad Attack of Dysentery Cured.

'An honored citizen of this town was suffering from a severe attack of dysentery. He told a friend if he could obtain a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, he felt confident of being cured, he having used this remedy in the West. He was told that I kept it in stock and lost no time in obtaining it, and was promptly cured," says M. J. Leach, druggist, of Wolcott, Vt. For sale by all drugists.

REPORT WITHDRAWN.

Washington, May 19.—The senate yesterday held a short executive session, nearly half of which was consumed by Senator Heyburn in a filibustering speech against a conference report on a bill to increase homesteads on non-irrigable lands, from 160 to 320 acres, which, he declared, would apply to the richest farm land of Idaho. After proceeding for an hour, the original report was withdrawn.

MORE ROOM FOR FIGHT

Trevillion Introduces an Amendment of Benefit to Saloonkeepers.

Would Make License Renewal Easier---Garbage Ordinance Read.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Amendment to saloon ordinance, giving saloonkeepers new advantage by reading "knowingly violating the law," was introduced by Alderman Trevillion and given its first reading.

The new garbage ordinance of Mayor Haven was introduced and given its first reading.

Alexander McQueen, convicted of selling liquor after hours, was cited to appear before the council next Monday and show cause why his license should not be revoked.

The committee on police and license failed to report on the application of William McCullough for a renewal of his saloon license, so his place of business will be closed, his license having expired.

Building inspector was directed to make an examination of overhanging signs and order those in dangerous condition torn down.

Chief Black's famous automobile bill for $160 was given a final turn-down.

The board of fire commissioners was ordered to advertise for bids for an addition to No. 3 fire hall.

Alderman Trevillion of the Fourth ward last night introduced an amendment to the liquor ordinance, with the explanation that it was only to make the city ordinance comply with the state law. The liddists say the one object of the amendment, which was given its first reading, is to let the proprietors of saloons go free and still hold their license if their bartenders are convicted of violating the law.

The amendment is designed to change the reading of the clause which prohibits the issuance of a license to a saloonkeeper or his employe for one year after he has been convicted of a violation of the law. It provides that the word "knowingly" be inserted before the words "violate any law or ordinance." If adopted, the amendment would allow the saloonkeepers recently convicted to make application for renewal of license in their own name. Under the present ordinance the proprietor of any saloon cannot secure a renewal of license if a conviction for law-breaking has been secured against the saloon within a period of one year preceding date of application. A strong fight will be put up against the amendment at the next meeting of the council.

The council cited Alexander McQueen, the Lake avenue saloonkeeper convicted of selling liquor after hours and indicted by the grand jury, to appear at the next meeting and show cause why his license should not be revoked.

Mayor Haven's garbage ordinance, providing for a systematic collection of garbage in the city, was introduced last night and given its first reading. It requires that all wagons for the collection of garbage shall be air-tight and constructed of steel or other metal. Owners or tenants of dwellings, hotels, restaurants, etc., where garbage wil be collected, must furnish sheet-iron receptacles for holding garbage until collected.

The board of health is given power to grant licenses for the collection of garbage, but no license will be granted unless that part of the ordinance calling for air-tight wagons is complied with.

All garbage will be moved on a schedule arranged by the board of health. This will be compulsory. The entire work will be under the general direction of the health department. The same department will fix a schedule of maximum fees for making collections and removal, based upon the frequency of collection and the character and quantity of the material removed. It will be unlawful for any collector to charge in excess of the amount stipulated by the health department.

Mayor Haven suggested that the building inspector be directed to make an examination of all overhead signs along Superior street, and order torn down those found in bad condition. A resolution to this effect was adopted.

• • •

A resolution directing the expenditure of $1,000 for remodeling the Armory front, and providing rooms for the new militia company, was put over for one week for further investigation. The aldermen acknowledge the need of the improvement, especially from the standpoint of fire protection, but the form of improvement provided did not meet with the approval of some.

• • •

A petition was submitted for the grading of Fifty-fourth avenue east, from Superior street to Oneida.

City Engineer McGilvray recommended that a row of piling for filling purposes be driven around the incinerator, at Thirteenth avenue west, at an estimated cost of $400.

• • •

City Attorney Wilson had in a communication to the effect that the bill of Chief Black of the fire department for $160 for rental of his automobile to the city was illegal and void, though contracted innocently and honestly. He said that under the law the bill could not be allowed. Chief Black has been trying for a long time to collect the money.

The board of fire commissioners was ordered to advertise for bids for an addition to No. 3 fire hall, at First avenue east and Third street.

The attention of the council was called by the board of public works to an ordinance which was submitted to the council July 9, last year, but upon which no definite action has been taken. The measure is one designed to regulate the installation and maintenance of all outside, overhead and underground wires, poles, cables, conduits, appliances and fixtures in the city. The board said that prompt action in regard to the measure would simplify proceedings in regard to permits and would strengthen the city's position in enforcing reasonable requirements.

The Majestic theater license was not granted, and no report was made by the committee on police and license. The theater is located in the West end, and a delegation from that section of the city, asked the council, a week ago, to refuse a renewal of the license. The license expires this week.

We Pay $2.50
For the Beans Now Used in Van Camp's

We told you we paid $2.10 per bushel for beans, but the price has advanced. You are eating so many of Van Camp's that the finest beans are scarce. We now must pay $2.50 for the grade which we demand.

The tremendous demand for Van Camp's beans has had its effect on the bean market.

Some beans still sell for 30 cents per bushel.

But such beans as we use are getting so scarce that we now pay $2.50 per bushel.

That means, in the first place, Michigan beans, grown on a soil extremely rich in nitrogen.

Then those choice beans are picked over by hand, so we get only the whitest, the plumpest, the fullest-grown.

Such beans now cost us eight times what some beans cost. Yet our prices are not advanced to you.

Our tomato sauce, too, costs us five times as much as other sauce would cost ready-made.

But the cheap sauce is made from tomatoes picked green, and ripened in shipment. Or of scraps from a canning factory.

Ours is made solely from whole tomatoes, ripened on the vines. Picked when the juice fairly sparkles.

That superlative zest, which adds so much to our beans, is due to this natural flavor.

These are times to be careful.

Poor beans are so cheap, and good beans are so costly, that there is every inducement for pushing the poor ones.

Salesmen are paid high commissions for this purpose. Grocers are offered special inducements.

Some charge our prices for inferior brands. Some charge a little less, yet make a larger profit.

For this is the condition: Beans can be had for one-eighth what we pay, and tomato sauce for one-fifth.

So you may, to protect yourself, need to insist on Van Camp's.

Van Camp's PORK AND BEANS
BAKED WITH TOMATO SAUCE

We have shown you how good baked beans can be. But remember their food value, too. They are 84 per cent nutriment—as nutritious as meat. Yet cheap and delicious, and ready-prepared. Why not serve them often?

Van Camp's have attained this enormous demand, because people have learned their goodness.

You were accustomed to home-baked beans. They were hard to digest, so you served them but once a week.

You baked them in ovens not half hot enough. The particles were not separated so the digestive juices could get to them.

So the beans fermented, instead of digesting. And the fermentation formed gas.

You have now learned the difference. Van Camp's are digestible because we heat our ovens to 245 degrees.

Your home-baked beans were mushy and broken. Crisped on the top and half baked in the middle.

That was because you baked in dry heat.

You have learned that Van Camp's are nutty, mealy and whole. And that is the way you like them.

You added tomato sauce as a dressing. We bake it into the beans, and get that delicious blend.

Don't treat Van Camp's like home-baked beans.

They are hearty, yet most digestible. They are appetizing, delicious, and all people like them.

They should be a daily dish, not an occasional.

Beans are Nature's choicest food. More nutritious than meat, or eggs, or cheese. Yet see how many you get for ten cents.

The same food value in any other form costs more. So the more you serve the more you save.

Then note the saving in labor—the hottest of hot-weather labor. Every can in the pantry means a meal all cooked.

You will find that your people don't tire of Van Camp's. Let them have all they want.

Three sizes—10, 15 and 20 cents per can

RICH STRIKE OF GOLD.

Panning Runs Up to $2.50 a Pan on Dahl Creek.

Milwaukee, May 19.—G. R. Williams, manager of the Seward Peninsula Mining company, which has about 100 stockholders in Milwaukee, has left for Nome, Alaska, to look after the work of the company. He has just received word of a strike on Dahl creek claim, No. 3, which shows panning gold running from 25 cents to $2.50 a pan. Albert Carey and Charles Rosenthal of Milwaukee have been in the country for some time. Mr. Williams will leave Alaska in the latter part of October.

SHIP MEN TO ESCANABA

Ore Dock Workers Sent From Duluth to Michigan Port.

Old Hands Refuse to Sign Under Open Shop Conditions.

An order for thirty or forty ore dock workers for the docks at Escanaba, Mich., was filled yesterday afternoon at the state free employment agency in about an hour, by O. E. Pardee of Escanaba, who is in the city hiring men to fill the places left vacant on the docks by the old hands who have refused to sign or go to work under the open shop conditions that are being enforced by the employers at that port.

The work at the docks started last week, and on starting the employers declared for the open shop. Nearly all of the old men who had worked on the docks during previous years, while they were run on a closed shop basis, refused to accept the scale of wages set by the employers. The employment blank, on which the men are hired, states that there is no lockout at the Escanaba docks. This may be literally true, but when the docks started work last week the open shop policy was declared and the majority of the union men refused to accept the employer's terms. To fill these places they have sent to a number of outside cities, among which is Duluth, and this morning thirty men were shipped from this city to work on the Escanaba docks.

The wages offered were $2.10 for a ten-hour day, and $2.25 for night work, with 25 cents an hour overtime. Transportation and board for two weeks are said to have been offered to the men, and the blank states that the length of the job is indefinite. The parties employing the men refused to talk to The Herald reporter, but the above facts were learned on good authority.

No difficulty was experienced in hiring the men. The bureau and the sidewalk outside were crowded with anxious men shortly after the information became circulated that there was a chance to get a job at the state free employment agency. Only experienced ore dock men were hired, and there seemed to be any numbr of them. Whether or not any trouble is expected at Escanaba when the outsiders arrive to take the jobs is not known, but, judging from the statement on the blank that the length of the job is indefinite and from the information that board will be furnished for two weeks, it might be inferred that the employers are prepared to fight it out to a finish.

PROCTOR WORKED UP.

Outcome of Basketball Game is Absorbing Topic.

Proctor, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The all-absorbing question here today is the basket ball game to be played tonight at the Y. M. C. A. between the Teachers and the Married Women's basket ball teams, two aggregations that have been playing all winter, and there is a wide difference of opinion as to which is the better. The teams have often met during the winter, but there seemed to be doubt regarding the better team. Tonight's contest will settle this question for all time. The men have not been invited to watch their wives or sweethearts, or even their sisters, or daughters' struggle, on the Y. M. C. A. floor for local supremacy, a feature of the game which also adds to its interest. An outsider has been engaged to act as referee.

The teams are expected to line up tonight as follows:

Teachers.	Position.	Married Women.
Tlh. Talboys	guard	Mrs. H. Schell
Clair Sullivan	guard	Mrs. Tom Grimes
Tess Dolan	center	Mrs. P. C. Mitchell
C. MacBeth	forward	Mrs. J. Brown
Substitute	forward	Mrs. G. McEwen

Substitutes for women's team: Mrs. Caro, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Rappold and Mrs. Davis.

ON THE IRON RANGES

TO MAKE DRILL TESTS ON LAND

E. C. Rudd Arranges for Drilling on His Homestead.

Virginia, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—E. C. Rudd of this city, who owns a homestead in section 5, 69-19, about six miles northeast of the Kinney mine, has made arrangements with John Harrington, the drill operator, to make some preliminary tests on the land, and the work will begin at once. If encouraging results are obtained a company will probably be formed to continue the exploratory work. Mr. Rudd states that surface indications of ore are excellent and he is confident that an ore body will be found.

ATHLETIC ENTERTAINMENT.

Virginia Baseball Association to Give Another Show.

Virginia, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow evening the Virginia Baseball association will give another of its enjoyable athletic entertainment at the Fay opera house. Mike O'Keefe and Walter Griffin of Duluth, the El-Dona Kid of Eveleth and the Virginia Cyclone will take part in the athletic features, while the main event will be an attempt to settle the dispute between "Scrapp" Costello of Duluth and Kid Williams of Virginia. The net proceeds of the affair will be used to defray expenses of the ball team.

MOUNT IRON WANTS DEPOT.

Great Northern's Neglect to be Taken to State Officers.

Mount Iron, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last year the citizens of this place forwarded a largely signed petition to the Great Northern Railway company asking that corporation to build a depot at this point, but no attention whatever was given to the request, and the business men now propose to appeal to the state railroad and warehouse commission to see what can be done toward bringing about the desired improvement. Ever since the road has been constructed the passengers to and from the village have been compelled to go without any accommodations whatever. The trains are stopped at a point near the Iroquois mine and there is not even a platform convenience for patrons.

NORMAN FUNERAL TOMORROW

Relatives From Duluth and Other Points Are Expected.

Virginia, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Peter Norman, who died here on Sunday, will be held at the Swedish Lutheran church tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lusch of Two Harbors arrived here yesterday and are looking after the funeral arrangements and the family of the deceased. Mrs. Lusch is a sister of the late Mrs. Norman. Three cousins of Mrs. Norman who reside in Duluth are expected here to attend the funeral. Mr. Norman was formerly a member of the Modern Woodmen camp of this place, but dropped out when he entered the saloon business. He was not at any time a member of the Odd Fellows' lodge, as stated in a previous report.

NO SIGN OF WATER.

Drilling Work on Chisholm Village Well Has Been Stopped.

Chisholm, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Drilling at the village well has been discontinued because it was thought useless to go further for the drill had gone down 130 feet through taconite and quartzite and no signs of water had been met with. All experts agree that no water can be found in quartzite, and as it is likely to extend hundreds of feet drilling has ceased. What to do now, is the question, and is the topic of the hour among the citizens.

It is thought that the only thing left is to go out to one of the lakes, as was first proposed, but there is hardly time now before cold weather comes in again, and as the pipe line to the Monroe is laying on the ground only the water running through would be apt to freeze during the winter. The latter was only put in for the summer, for temporary purpose only, for it was expected that we would have a permanent supply later on, but it looks dubious now. The council might go to work and put this pipeline, to the Monroe, underground, but the trouble is it is not known how long the supply of water will last, and it may give out or fall off at any time and it would cost to do this $8,000 to $10,000, and it may last for several years and become a permanent supply.

COURTHOUSE LOAN.

Ranier, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The county commissioners have arranged for a loan from the state of $42,000, with which they will at once start the work of building a courthouse at International Falls. A block of ground, known as No. 32, has been contributed by the townsite company.

NOT AGREED ON FREE DELIVERY

Evelethans Divided on Question and Will Further Investigate.

Eveleth, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—At last night's meeting of the Business Men's association, the question of securing free mail delivery was thoroughly discussed. A large number of citizens are in favor of free delivery, while a considerable proportion are against it, as the trains do not come in at such times as to make the free delivery of mail a benefit to the large business class and professional people.

A committee composed of Solomon Sax, Mayor Smith and J. J. Glenson was appointed to investigate free delivery in the range towns now having it. If they find out that people in those towns are pleased with the system, they will call a mass meeting to learn the citizens' wishes.

The new road to Virginia was also discussed, many favoring a new road to the adjacent town, which will be easier to travel than the present hilly one. A committee of five composed of Messrs. Poole, Perham, Cerveny, Turrequist and Dr. More was appointed to confer with Virginia and secure a good engineer to survey the proposed road.

F. E. Dowling, F. E. Lister and Matt Doyle were appointed a committee to ascertain if it would be at all profitable to make investigations in regard to the matter of municipal lighting.

CITY HALL PLANS TO BE DISCUSSED

Hibbing Council May Reach Conclusion at Tuesdays' Meet.

Hibbing, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the meeting of the village council this evening there will be a discussion of the plans submitted by the various architects for the erection of Hibbing's new city hall.

It is not definitely known just how large a building Messrs. Miles and Markham intend erecting on the ruins of the Miles block. However, it will contain a sample room, cafe, and the new theater.

The basement and flooring of Kohrt Bros.' new building have been finished, and work will be rapidly pushed henceforth until it is completed.

TWO HARBORS IS MOURNING DEATH

General Grief Over Untimely Taking Off of Postmaster Bury.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Postmaster Thomas A. Bury, who accidentally shot himself yesterday, will be held at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday from the First Methodist church.

The deceased was one of the city's most popular citizens, always taking a leading part, and doing more than his share of the work in anything for the betterment of the city and assisting the needy. He was popular, and well liked by all who knew him, and his death has caused universal sorrow.

NEW VESTIBULED TRAIN.

Iron Range About Ready for Its Swell Service.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cafe car No. 27, the last of the new equipment purchased by the Iron Range some time ago, arrived yesterday and as soon as overhauled and made ready the new vestibuled train between Duluth and the ranges will be put in service.

Ore is now being received at the rate of about 175 carloads per day.

LITTLE BUSINESS BENEFIT.

Mount Iron Merchants Complaining of Small Amount of Trade.

Mountain Iron, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—While nearly 400 men have been employed steadily all winter and spring on the stripping operations at the Oliver Mining company's Mountain Iron mine, the merchants generally state that business is very quiet, as is the case all over the range. Asked for an explanation of this, one of the prominent merchants stated that is was due to the fact that the bulk of the employes of the company are Montenegrins, who are of no benefit to the business community.

These men, he says, buy nothing except the very coarsest and cheapest food and clothing, and dozens of them live together in one small camp and cook their own meals.

There is a general belief that as soon as shipping operations commence the old employes who went out on strike will be gradually taken back.

ORE UNDER MOUNT IRON NOT REACHING SOUTHWARD.

Mount Iron, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—While it has frequently been asserted in recent years that a large portion of the village of Mountain Iron will have to be moved to give way to mining operations, it is evident that even ore does not exist under the townsite it does not extend southward a very great distance as the recent building operations by the Oliver company would indicate. The fine club building lately erected by the company for the accommodation of its employes and citizens generally is located not far from the business center and north of the school house, where drilling operations were in progress last year.

HEAVILY FINED FOR STRIKING WITH BOTTLE.

Eveleth, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the municipal court Gust Johnson was fined $4 for inflicting wounds upon a man's head with a heavy bottle.

The second Eveleth team went over to Biwabik Sunday in a crippled condition, but at that put up a good game against the first team of that town.

FIRST ORE TRAIN.

Aurora, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first complete ore train on the Iron Range railway for this season was hauled from the Miller mine here Friday. The mine started loading from their stockpile today. It is said the Mohawk will start to ship June 1.

DRESS SUITS BARRED.

Mount, Iron, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thursday evening the employes of the Oliver Iron Mining company will give a commemoration ball to invited friends at the new clubhouse. The La Brosse orchestra of Duluth will furnish the music, and lunch will be served in the Socialist hall. The gentlemen are requested to appear in "overall" suits. The ball is given in commemoration of the opening of the new clubhouse.

NEW BOVEY LAUNDRY.

Bovey, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Canisteo building has been leased by Latham Bros., and they propose to install a $3,000 laundry to be running May 25. About eight women will be employed in the establishment.

MESABA AGAIN DEFEATED.

Mesaba, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Mesaba ball nine sustained its second defeat at the hands of the Adriatic mine nine Sunday by a score of 5 to 3. The battery for Mesaba was Teffander and Kahl and Vennice and Hecla held the points for the miners. The Adriatic team will play Aurora May 24.

sey, the opposition, planned and directed by Alex McKenzie and C. B. Little, the latter being a candidate for the senatorship, decided to defeat me if possible and elect a delegation to the Minot convention favorable to their cause. This was intended to show to the people of the state that the people of my home county had no sympathy with me politically and preferred another candidate to myself. My friends in that county accepted the challenge and, despite the use of money and railroad passes, my opponents were defeated at every turn and an anti-McKenzie delegation was sent to the Minot convention. In McLean county an attempt was made by Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Little to show that I had no following in what Mr. Little claims as his exclusive territory, and is commonly known as 'the slope.' They announced that McLean county would be used to indicate the unanimous sentiment in favor of Mr. Little's candidacy. When the caucuses were held, however, it was found that I had more than two-thirds of the delegation to the county convention.

"In Williams county Mr. McKenzie sought to belittle my work in congress on the irrigation project by putting forth the statement that he, and not I, was responsible for that work. It was an effort on his part to discredit my candidacy in Williams county. The people of that county arose in arms and at the Minot convention voted against the McKenzie program.

"These are the only three counties in which I and my friends made any attempt whatever to secure delegates to the Minot convention. I had nothing at stake at that convention, and my candidacy has been submitted to the people at the primary election rather than to the decision of the delegates in a convention which was not authorized to pass upon it.

Says People Are With Him.

"Since the adjournment of that convention I have received letters from men throughout the state, whose integrity cannot be questioned, and they assure me that so far as the people are concerned they are with me in the fight against corporation dictation more enthusiastically than ever before. Some of those who have been my lukewarm friends in the past openly declare now that the perpetuity of the Republican party depends entirely upon the elimination of the corporation representative as the party leader, and his domination of party candidates. The rank and file of the Republican party, especially in the rural districts, are for the preservation of the party, even at the expense of the elimination of its one-time boss. This sentiment, instead of being suppressed or reduced by the action of the Minot convention, at which every political intrigue and subterfuge was used to retain him in power as national committeeman, by the mere change of the name of the man holdign it, has increased; and many of those who believed before that he was sincere in his public statement that he was out of politics, are now convinced that he has simply taken a new method of deceiving the public and perpetuating his own power, and that the only way to remove him as a political factor is by making the senatorship the issue at the primary election. There will be no scattering of the votes so far as the people are concerned on this question. All have a common purpose, and the assurances that I have from every county in the state are that these votes will be cast for myself.

"If these voluntary statements from men throughout the state can be relied upon, there can be no question whatever as to my election in the primaries. I concede, however, the wily character of Mr. McKenzie, and the unlimited means and assistance of the corporations which are backing him, and if the people are lulled to sleep by the promises and political soporifics which he is dealing out, they may be defeated. My fight is for the people and in behalf of the Republican party of North Dakota."

SKELETONS ARE BURIED

Gunness endeavored to cast aside all suspicion:

"Even as late as a few days before the girl disapeared, Mrs. Gunness came to my office and told me that she was afraid the owners of the resorts in the neighborhood were trying to get Jennie away from her. She said that Jennie was good looking and 16 years old. I told her that if anything like that occurred to let me know and I would take immediate action. Mrs. Gunness said, however, that she believed she would send Jennie away to school and then there would be no further danger of the girl falling into bad company. Shortly thereafter the girl disappeared."

The grand jury resumed its sessions this morning. The seven unidentified bodies, exhumed from Mrs. Gunness' barn yard were today buried in the Potters Field, under the direction of Coroner Mack.

One Skeleton of a Woman.

The autopsy held yesterday on the remains of the seven unidentified dead exhumed from Mrs. Gunness' private burial ground was complete last evening, and revealed the astounding fact that one was a female. This has aroused new interest in the story of Emil Greening of Oklahoma City, Okla., who was employed by Mrs. Gunness in 1906. His story was to the effect that on a certain day in September a man and a woman came to the house, and that night Mrs. Gunness asked Greening to sleep in the barn, for the couple, whom she said were the professor and his wife from the Los Angeles college, which Jennie was to attend, would spend the night at the house and would require Greening's bedroom.

In the morning Greening saw nothing of Jennie nor the man and woman, and was informed by Mrs. Gunness that they had left on an early train, taking Jennie along. This body, which is now declared to be that of a woman, was taken from the same hole as was that of Jennie Olsen, and in that hole also were the bodies of Ole Budsberg of Iola, Wis., and the remains of a male person. All the bodies were dismembered, but the trunks of the four were such that it was possible to identify the bodies of Jennie Olsen and Mr. Budsberg, and it made it possible by today's autopsy to determine that one of the other two was that of a female. The theory now advanced is that Mrs. Gunness may have murdered not only Jennie Olsen, but also the man and woman. The disappearance of Jennie Olsen, as well as the couple, occurred in September, 1906, while Budsberg was disposed of in May, 1907. His body was nearer the surface than the other three.

The mystery surrounding the watch found on the person of Ray Lamphere when he was arrested was cleared today when J. G. Ramden of Manfred, N. D., who came here yesterday to investigate the disappearance of his half-brother, John Moe, of Elbow Lake, Minn., identified the timepiece as the one owned by his brother when he left home.

The number of the watch corresponds with the numbers in Mr. Ramden's possession. Lamphere said that Mrs. Gunness gave him the watch. Mr. Ramden is positive that his brother was murdered by Mrs. Gunness, but he was not able to identify any of the remaining skeletons, and so will not be able to provide proper burial for his brother.

CENTRALIZATION MEANS DESTRUCTION OF NATION

of the crimes his party has committed.

"But our peerless president reached the limit when he seized all the best reform planks of all the Democratic platforms of the past and planted himself squarely upon them. Was there ever a grander spectacle of coup d'etat than this in the history of American politics? The question for you on the other side of this chamber is: Are you going to put his reform politics in your platform at Chicago? If you are, why don't you indorse Bryan and be done with it? If you are not, you will repudiate your president.

"He demanded the reform of the tariff system in the beginning of his administration, but of late he has contented himself with storming the citadels of wealth created by the tariff. He has not laid the ax at the root of the tree, but has only thundered at the rich, ripe fruit that hangs upon the boughs of the trees.

The March of Federalism.

"The railroads," he said, "are only one string in the harp of a thousand strings, upon which our modern Orpheus is playing the triumphal march of federalism.

"We hear," he continued, "a note from the metallic string of bellowing note from the beef trust, and the ding-dong of the copper trust, and the ping-pong of the leather trust and the sing-song of a thousand other trusts, all of which are the legitimate results of an abnormal tariff system. They are compelling the small industries of the country to sell out to them or be crushed in the coils of the serpent. They are sapping out every vestige of competition in every department of manufacture and trade, which is the only safeguard of the people. No wonder we hear the burning appeals for reform in the messages of the president; no wonder we hear the mutterings of a long-suffering people.

"The tariff will never be reformed by a Republican administration. It is true that Republican candidates are falling over each other in their efforts to regale the American people with the most plausible promises of tariff revision, but none of them promises tariff reform."

He was sure, he said, the vice president is sincere as a tariff reformer, "but the substance of this declaration has been made on the eve of every political campaign for the last quarter of a century." The Republicans, he said, had never said whether they would revise the tariff up or down.

"Satan," he said, "would have been delighted with the plan of salvation if he had been allowed to write it, but there would have been little hope for poor fallen men if the terms of salvation had been dictated by that old black Republican of the nether world. Go back and read the history of broken promises and see how the friends of the tariff have reformed it."

He declared that the concentration of wealth in this country was rivalling that which destroyed Egypt, Babylon and Rome.

"Our financial system is the Siamese twin of the tariff system," said Mr. Taylor, "and while the financial system is the weak brother of the pair, yet they are bound together by the cartilage of federal protection. This is a nation of 80,000,000 ordinary mortals and 6,000 banks. The party in power sees only the 6,000. This is a nation of many millions of consumers and a few thousand corporations, but the party in power sees only the corporations. This is a nation of many millions who work for their daily bread and a few hundred millionaires, but the party in power only sees the millionaires.

"The corporations and millionaires furnish the sinews of war for the campaign, and the party in power furnishes the laws to pile up the fortunes of those who furnish the sinews.

"In the midst of this great panic, I saw the distinguished senator from Rhode Island, Mr. Aldrich, chairman of the committee on finance of the senate, stand upon the troubled waters with an emergency bill in his hand, and with a loud voice, he cried to the howling storm, 'Peace! Be still!' but there was no peace. And the tempest-tossed crew in the hold of the boat rolled their eyes toward almighty Rockefeller and Morgan, the kings of corporate power, to throw them a life line. But the two omnipotent financiers could not leave the game on Wall street to go into the life saving service."

"Have not," he asked in conclusion, "the policies of the party in power dragged the country to awful depths, when the president of the United States finds it necessary to warn both houses of congress that the republic is in danger of being overthrown by the machinations of concentrated wealth, which is the legitimate result of Republican policies? Is it not time for the country to waken when we are admonished by a Republican president to put the bit in the mouth of centralized corporate power to prevent it from trampling under its hoofs all that is left of liberty and free government?"

State's Rights Attacked.

"In the imperial days, when concentrated wealth is entrenched under the dome of the capitol and centralized power is enthroned in the White House, what can be expected but the gradual encroachment of the Federal government upon the rights of the states? How can the equilibrium be preserved under the reign of a big stick and a bag of gold? Are not concentrated wealth and centralized power drawing the policies of the party in power and controlling the legislation of congress?

"I would not reflect upon the chief executive of the nation. On the contrary, I would praise him for the noble things he has done during his incumbency, chief of which was turning on the light and revealing the enormity of the outskirts of creation, or whether we are drawn the other way to be converted into fuel for the sun? What is the difference whether we go the secession route or the centralization? They both mean destruction of the nation. I do not pretend to be a great constitutional lawyer, but if that instrument means anything, it is that all power not expressly conferred upon the federal government is reserved to the states.

What are Piles or Hemorrhoids

Itching.
Constant uneasiness.
Burning, stinging sensations.
Loss of blood and consequent weakness and feelings of misery.

Piles or hemorrhoids are small tumors and ulcers which form in the lower bowels and bring about the symptoms mentioned above. They usually cause keen distress as time advances and discouragement when remedies fail and the doctor suggests a surgical operation as the only means of relief.

That Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment is the most effective and satisfactory treatment that was ever recommended for piles is now generally conceded. This ointment promptly brings relief from the first application and is a positive cure for every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles. 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Every box of the genuine bears the portrait of the famous Receipt Book author, A. W. Chase, M. D.

Mrs. George Bertrant, of 54 D. Street, Sheboygan, Mich., states:

"I have suffered intensely in the past from piles. The irritation was at times severe and very distressing. I saw Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment recommended and procured some. I used it only a short time and the trouble was thoroughly relieved. I have since had no trouble. I can recommend it highly."

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Miss May Robson in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary."

FOR LAUGHING PURPOSES.

The Process of Rejuvenating Aunt Mary a Delightful One.

"The Lord intended everybody to have a good time, but some people didn't get started right."

So said Aunt Mary at the Lyceum last evening after she had been rejuvenated.

It ought be mentioned that if Duluth people want to get "started right" they would do well to go and watch the rejuvenation process as conducted by Miss May Robson and a very capable staff of assistants. She will rejuvenate again tonight, and as a cure-all for the blues, or indigestion, or a sour disposition, or "nerves" or any of the mental ills that afflict mankind, the performance is cheerfully recommended. Miss Robson doesn't confine the rejuvenation process to Aunt Mary, but spreads her good spirits broadcast over her audience.

"The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" is about the most thoroughly enjoyable production that has visited Duluth this season, and Miss Robson's comedy is in a class by itself.

The story is that of a good-hearted, but rather crusty maiden lady of uncertain age and very certain wealth, who has a young nephew on her hands to bring up. His college scrapes lead her to disinherit him, but his friends induce Aunt Mary to come to New York, and they set about giving her a royal good time. She returns to her country home rejuvenated, and convinced not only of the attractiveness of city life, but of the harmless nature of her nephew's escapades. There is, of course, a love interest and all ends happily.

The lines of the play are sulphitis and sparkling, and there is a laugh in every one of them. The situations are droll, and Miss Robson's humor is of a wholesome type that cannot fail to please the most exacting critic or draw a laugh from the most blase, "amuse-me-if-you-dare" theater habitue.

The rejuvenators are: Her nephew, Jack, played by Jack Storey; Robert Burnett, portrayed by Francis Herblin; Clover, by George Stevenson, and Mitchell by Paul Decker. Mr. Storey's talents are apparently not confined to the drama. He has a well trained baritone voice, and plays the piano with style and finish. His musical ability adds materially to the atmosphere of the play.

Frances Cossar as Betty, the "girl" of the show, is a tall, graceful, young woman, with a pleasing voice. She fills the role very aceptably.

Lillian Westner is "The Girl from Kalamagoo," who causes all of Jack's troubles, and is most effectively reformed by Aunt Mary. She is satisfactory in the part.

Some splendid "character" work is done by Nina Saville as Lucinde and Harry Cowley as Joshua.

AT THE BIJOU.

Diversified Program is Offered at Popular Vaudeville House.

The Bijou is offering an excellent variety of vaudeville this week. The bills sufficiently diversified to suit any of the Bijou's patrons and even with the advent of warm summer evenings, the attendance is likely to hold up well.

The featured act is the famous Eddy Family. This group does some expert wire walking, dancing and jumping that is a little bit better than anything of the sort that the East Superior street theater has offered this season.

The Apollo Quaret has taken a step in the right direction by getting some one to write a little act around its vocalists. The ordinary by-play which quartets give is abandoned and a Hough and Adams skit called "The Man Outside," is introduced. Hough and Adams wrote the books and lyrics of "The Time, the Place, and the Girl," "The Umpire," and a number of other hits. The Apollo singers have good voices and their comedy is well carried out.

Fred Morton, paper ripper, has an entertaining monologue that goes well as an opening act and others who appear to advantage are Charles J. Stine and Olive Evans in "Wanted, a Divorce;" Isadore Sliver, with a new illustrated song, and Nellie Burt, comedienne and vocalist.

The moving pictures show some splendid comedy films.

The bill as a whole is fully up to the exceptionally high standard maintained during the last few weeks, and the audiences yesterday were not backward in showing their approval.

STEAMER IRENE SINKS IN RIVER

Goes to Bottom of Mississippi While Hauling U. S. Lumber.

Aitkin, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A telephone message from Sandy Lake by way of McGregor to Capt. Viebahn of the transportation company stated that the steamer Irene went to the bottom of the Mississippi river Sunday near Verdon. She went up to Sandy Lake Friday to haul some lumber for the government dam work, and it is not known how the accident happened.

The boat was expected to arrive here Saturday night or Sunday. Capt. Viebahn has gone up the river by team to see about raising the sunken craft.

It is not presumed any lives were lost, otherwise word to that effect would have also been received here.

SOX BLANK MAROONS

Murray Pitches Good Ball and Sox Bunch Their Hits.

Ness, O'Brien and Voss Are the Best Swatters.

Winnipeg, Man., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The big moose of the Sox, Walter Murray, called a halt on the mad dash of the Maroons for the pennant yesterday and Eddie Herr's cherished pets drew the hole of a doughnut out of a fine collection of dainties. The plum went to the Sox by a score of 5 to 0.

From his position on the hill, Murray worked every inch of his six feet one, and every ounce of his 180 pounds. He sent them up at a mile a minute clip, and the best the Maroons could do was shut their eyes and trust to the gods of baseball to swing the bat against the ball. Murray appears to be a good hearted boy, but he was awfully stingy yesterday. The Maroons gathered but four batty scattered hits and one pass. When there were men on bases, Murray adopted a Russel Sage attitude toward his hits and there was nothing doing.

The hitting of the Sox was the best of the series. Ness and O'Brien were the principal swatters, each getting three and Doc Voss, who led off, hit safely twice. Bill Murray was in right field and he was the busy boy chasing flies. He didn't do anything with the stick, but sacrifices. The Maroons used two pitchers, Sawyer being derricked in the fifth, after the Sox had scored all of their runs.

Many Pitchers Used.

Philadelphia, May 18.—In a game filled with bad pitching, hard hitting and good fielding, the home team yesterday defeated the St. Louis Americans by 12 to 10. Manager Mack used five pitchers, while the Browns tried three, the last, Criss, being very wild. In the eighth inning, Philadelphia won when three men scored on a throw by Williams which bounded into the grand stand. Score:

PREPARE FOR TRACK MEET

John Quinn Elected Captain of the Junior Class Team.

The athletes of the Central high school are training hard this week for the interclass track meet to be held next Saturday at Athletic park. There are forty-two prizes offered, and every class is out to get the big end of the events.

John Quinn, distance runner and weight man, has been chosen captain of the junior team, and he has a strong list of entries. He is expected to star for the juniors, with Helmer the favorite among the sophs and Jefferson for the seniors. The freshies also have a strong team, though nothing is known of their past performances.

The class winning the relay race will be awarded a silver loving cup, and the prizes for individuals are well selected. The breakers of records will be awarded a "D." The meet will be held at the driving park, and a large crowd is expected to turn out.

AMATEURS HAVE SMALL CIRCUIT

Ishpeming, Negaunee, Marquette and Munising in League.

Marquette, Mich., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles G. Stocking, manager of the Ishpeming baseball team, and Peter Trudell, Jr., of Negaunee, who were appointed by the Marquette-Alger Amateur Baseball league at the organization meeting held last Tuesday in Marquette, have completed the schedule of games for the entire season, which will open at Marquette and Ishpeming on the afternoon of Decoration day. There will be a game every Sunday at Marquette and Munising until Sept. 20, when the final games will be played. There will be two games, participated in by by the four teams of the league, at Union park on the afternoon of the Fourth. There has been no schedule for Labor day, Sept. 7, but extra games will probably be arranged.

As there will be no paid players in any of the teams, the expense account will be very light. The Ishpeming and Negaunee teams will be able to make the trip to Munising and return for less than $20. Each team will have the receipts of the game at its own grounds, the visiting nine paying its own expenses. When the Negaunee and Ishpeming teams meet at Union park the receipts will be divided equally between them. At the end of the season the money in the treasury is to be divided among the players.

Beloit Wins Meet.

Beloit, Wis., May 19.—Beloit won the triangular meet here yesterday with Armour Institute and Lake Forest. Beloit had a total of 67 points; Armour, 27, and Lake Forest, 21.

De Oro Beats Sherman.

Philadelphia, May 19.—In a brilliant exhibition last night Albert de Oro defeated Frank Sherman in the first block of 200 points of a 600 point pool match, making 306 to Sherman's 119.

Hanover, N. H.—Notre Dame, 8; Dartmouth, 3.

MENEICE WINS GAME

Big Sam Gathers Home Run and Two Three Sackers.

O'Dea Uses Three Pitchers to Stop McNeil's Men.

Brandon, Man., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Big Sam Meneice almost broke Bill McNeil's heart yesterday. McNeil won a game—almost. If Big Sam had been laid up in bed or had been summoned away—many ifs all centered around the big outfielder—McNeil would have won. As it was, Sam was very much in the game and his home run and two triples sent so many runs across the plate that Brandon won again, with a score of 7 to 6.

It was a race between the whole Fargo team and Meneice in the hitting line. Fargo led several times, but Sam came up with a rush at the finish and nosed out with an eye-lash victory.

Nelson opened up for Brandon and Fargo got to him for a run in each of the first three innings. Meneice tied it up with a home run in the third, chasing two men in ahead of him. Powers was trotted out by O'Dea and he got away with one inning, but in the fifth, McNeil's men added three to their total. Sam came back with a three bagger. Burke contributed a base on balls and Summers a single for three more runs, tying it up again. Powers was rolled under the bench and Smith went out to save the day. He did, by holding the Browns for the remaining two innings. Meneice's three sacker and Livingston's single scored the winning run in the seventh.

The fielding was ragged at times, but the fans enjoyed the heavy hitting. The game was called in the eighth on account of darkness.

The detailed score follows:

NATIONAL MEET OF BLIND BOYS

Jacksonville, Ill., Institution is Winner of Interesting Event.

Columbus, Ohio, May 19.—The state school for the blind at Jacksonville, Ill., won the national blind meet that was held last Saturday, according to announcement made here yesterday. The teams that took part represented state institutions and the various events were run off on various home grounds.

The scores of the teams by points follow: Jacksonville, Ill., 23½; Overbrooke, 13½; Louisville, Ky., 12 1-3; Batavia, N. Y., 12½; Winston, Iowa, 12; Columbus, Ohio, 10; Pittsburg, 6.

Pittsburg, May 19.—That blind persons can take part in athletic sports enjoyed by persons having sight, was conclusively shown here yesterday at the first annual field meet of the Western Pennsylvania Institute for the Blind.

The field meet will be held yearly and the results compared with those of other institutions, which also held meets yesterday. The results were:

Fifty-yard dash won by Nickeson in 6 seconds.

Fifty-yard three-legged race, won by Gaffey and Ellerbrook in 11 4-5 seconds.

Seventy-five-yard sack race for contestants not over 12½ years of age—Ellenbrook won in 13 4-5 seconds.

Standing broad jump—Doyle, 8 feet 8½ inches.

Football throw — Doyle, 109 feet 10 inches.

Twelve-pound shot put—Doyle, 24 feet 10½ inches.

Standing high jump—Dorricott, 3 feet 6 inches.

Three standing jumps—Doyle, 25 feet 4 inches.

Running broad jump—Dorricott, 14 feet 11 inches.

BEGIN PLAY THIS MONTH

Warm Weather Welcomed by Members of Northland Club.

Grounds in Better Shape Than Ever at This Time.

The warm weather is welcomed by the golfers and, if it continues for a week or so, the regular spring series will begin at the Northland Country club.

The rains of last week put something of a damper on the golfing enthusiasts, but Saturday afternoon, there was quite a crowd out for private matches and every fine day will be eagerly taken advantage of.

Milton Lawrence, the new club professional, is at the grounds and has been caring for them for some weeks past. The grounds are now in better shape than they have ever been at this time of the year and improvements are constantly being made.

The contests for the ladies will be featured again this year every Saturday afternoon and, as soon as the weather allows, the first contest will be held and they will continue every afternoon through the season. Golfing was more popular than ever in Duluth last year and another good season is expected.

The baseball team that doesn't hit the ball will not win games. The fact has been conclusively proved time and again and the wise manager nowadays is the one, who goes out and gets a bunch of sluggers, who can field fairly well. Pitchers and hitters count more than anything in present day baseball and a crowd of fielding stars aren't worth anything against a team of sluggers.

It wouldn't be quite the proper thing to criticise the White Sox at this stage of the game. They have only played a few games, those on strange grounds and against what is undoubtedly the best pitching staff in the league. But it is very evident from the scores that the Sox haven't been hitting the ball. Mr. Kuehnow says they weren't and he saw three games. There lies the secret of their not having won. They didn't hit as well as did the Maroons.

Perhaps they haven't found their batting eyes. Perhaps the Winnipeg pitchers fooled them more than they will later in the season. Perhaps and perhaps some more, but the fact remains that the gad hasn't been working with sufficient vigor.

Mr. Kuehnow lays out a course of action that's sensible. He'll allow the team to go through the present trip as constituted. If the hitting doesn't show up better than in the first few games, there'll be a shakeup. It's up to the fans to follow the same course. Fancy fielders, who can be depended upon never to hit, aren't much good on any team. The fans will not stand for them and neither will the management. It's too early in the season to form any set opinions, so it's up to the fans to wait.

Bill Papke and Stanley Ketchell have signed up to fight at Milwaukee June 4. Packey McFarland has declared his determination not to meet Joe Gans until the black wizard is grey-haired and decrepit and Tommy Burns and Jack Johnson are still squabbling, with the possibility that public opinion will finally force the Canadian into a match with the black.

With the McFarland-Gans and Burns-Johnson bouts far in the distance, the Ketchell-Papke mix looms up as the principal absorber of interest at the present time. It will be a great affair. The Michigan boy has been whipping them regularly on the coast and his recent victory over Jack (Twin) Sullivan may be taken as a big indication of ability, for old Jack is a pretty classy man with his mits.

Papke, the "Illinois Thunderbolt" has never lost a fight and when he goes against the Michigan boy it will not be to lose one, if he can help it. Ketchell is a little different from anything Papke has met, although Hugo Kelly was a pretty tough proposition. Ketchell and Papke will furnish a good betting go and the fight world will be very much awake to acclaim a middleweight champion.

* * *

If anybody doubts the popularity of baseball, let him stroll about the city any line afternoon, particularly Saturday or Sunday, and he will be disillusioned. The American boy is brought up with a baseball in his hand. Every available inch of space is occupied by ardent devotees of the game, who study and play it with all the enthusiasm of a stock broker following the ticker. The sporting editor on Monday morning is besieged with telephone calls and notes in more or less legible scrawl imparting information on the latest game between the "Fort' Street Sluggers" and Piedmont Avenue Windjammers. From the urchin of 7 to the staid old man of business, listings of the genus homo take to baseball in their spare moments as a duck to water. They get good, wholesome recreation with annoyance to nobody.

SUPERIOR DEFEATED.

Couture Pitches Good Game and Chisholm Wins by 5 to 0.

Chisholm, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two Chisholm teams won Sunday and one lost. Couture held the Superior city team in check here and Chisholm had little trouble winning by a score of 5 to 0. The Chisholm Blues went to Buhl and defeated the Buhl Gophers by a score of 10 to 4. Humboldt and Masterson formed the battery for the Blues, and Sweeper and Grant worked for the Buhl team. The Hartley team of Chisholm lost its first game of the season Sunday at Hibbing, the Hull-Rust team winning by a score of 8 to 4. Evenson pitched for the Hartleys.

Fights on the Range.

There will be two fast fights on the range tomorrow night, when Scraps Costello of Duluth and Kid Williams of Montana, featherweights, will go fifteen rounds, and Walter Griffin and Mike O'Keefe of Superior will go a like distance. Costello won from Williams a few weeks ago in four rounds.

For the Athlete

ALL athletes know that the element in any contest, upon which success most depends, is endurance; but few realize that endurance is dependent more on a perfectly toned system than on muscle.

The use of Digesto Malt Extract means a perfectly toned system. Digesto is malt in its most highly concentrated form. It is bottled energy.

The Eagle Juniors defeated the Franklin Juniors at the Green Farm Saturday afternoon by a score of 20 to 10.

The Fairmount baseball team defeated the D. F. C. of Smithville Sunday by a score of 1 4to 3. The Fairmounts will play the New Duluth next Sunday.

* * *

The Marshall-Wells baseball team defeated the Oak Halls Sunday on the West Duluth grounds by a score of 14 to 8. The hardwarn men secured a lead in the first inning and the Oak Halls were unable to overcome it. The batteries were Streeter, Hilberg and Danielson for Marshall-Wells and Berg and Nelson for the Oak Halls.

Sutton to Meet Miller.

Otto Sutter of Cleveland has arrived in Duluth to prepare for his coming wrestling match with Young Miller. The match is billed for the welterweight championship of the world, and it should be a good one. Miller has thrown everything around St. Paul and Sutter has quite a record around Cleveland and in the East.

The Most Common Cause of Suffering

Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people, subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50-cent sizes. For sale by all druggists.

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

Wheat in Good Demand During the Session in America.

Flax Was Active and Easier During the Session Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 19.—Offerings were light and wheat was in good demand during all of the session today and closed considerably stronger than yesterday in all of the American markets.

Shorts were good buyers, but they did not find any large amounts of wheat lying around loose, so prices were bid up pretty well toward the close. Bartlett, Frazier and a number of other big Chicago houses were known to be buying heavily.

Cables showed an improvement. Liverpool closed ¼d to ½d higher, Berlin ¾c lower and Budapest 1¾c higher.

The May option closed 1c higher in Duluth, ⅝c higher in Chicago, ¾c higher in Minneapolis, ½c higher in New York and ½c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed 1c higher in Duluth, 1⅛c higher in Chicago, ⅝c higher in Minneapolis, 1⅛c higher in New York and ½c higher in Winnipeg.

July corn closed ⅛c higher in Chicago and unchanged in Liverpool. July oats closed a shade higher in Chicago.

Car receipts of wheat were 77 against 214 last year, and at Minneapolis 155 against 171 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 252 against 385 last year. Chicago received 42 against 98 last year. Winnipeg received 91 against 356 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 438,000 bus., last year 380,000 bus. Shipments 567,000 bus., last year, 351,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 184,000 bus.

Bradstreet's reported a decrease of 5,180,000 bus., in the world's visible supply of wheat. In the United States and Canada, the decrease was 2,080,000 bus., and in Europe and afloat, the decrease was 3,100,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 440,000 bus., last year 404,000 bus. Shipments 747,000 bus., last year 459,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 8,250 bus.

The world's visible supply of corn decreased 920,000 bus.

Wheat was rather quiet during the session in Duluth. May wheat was inactive and closed at $1.04⅝, a gain of 1c over yesterday. July wheat opened unchanged at $1.03⅜, advanced to $1.03⅞, declined to $1.03⅛-⅜, reacted to $1.04⅞, declined to $1.04⅛ and closed at $1.04⅝, a gain of 1c over yesterday. September wheat opened unchanged at 91c, advanced to 92c and closed there, a gain of 1c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ⅝c higher and cash spring wheat was closing on a basis of 2c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quite active and closed easier. May flax was inactive and closed ¼c lower than yesterday at $1.20 nominal. July flax opened unchanged at $1.21¼, advanced to $1.21⅝ and closed at $1.21, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. September flax opened ½c higher at $1.22, declined to $1.21¾ and closed there, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. October flax opened unchanged at $1.20½, declined to $1.19¾ and closed there, a loss of ¾c from yesterday.

Oats closed ½c lower and other coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard on track $1.03⅝. To arrive: No. 1 northern, $1.03⅝; No. 2 northern, $1.03⅜. On track: No. 1 northern, $1.03⅝; No. 2 northern, $1.03⅜; May, $1.04⅝; July, $1.04⅝; September, 92c.

Durum on track, No. 1, 92½c; No. 2, 91¼c; May durum, 91¼c; July durum, 91¼c; September durum, 86¾c. Flax to arrive, $1.20½; flax on track, $1.20½; May, $1.20; July, $1.21; September, $1.21¾; October, $1.19¾. Oats to arrive, 50c; oats on track, 50c. Rye, 72-76c. Barley, 50-70c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Dullness Characterized Wheat, But Prices Held Fairly Steady.

Chicago, May 19.—The wheat market was dull and prices were steady. A strong market at Liverpool offset the excellent growing weather in this country. July wheat opened ⅛@¼c higher at 89¼@89⅜c, sold down to 89c and then advanced to 89¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 391 cars against 210 cars last week and 483 cars one year ago.

The market held strong all day, chiefly because of the strength of corn. The high price for July was 91¾c. The close was strong with July up 1¾c at 90⅞c.

The corn market was strong, chiefly because of light offerings. The wet weather and farm cables were bullish influences. May corn opened at 76@77c, which was a new high mark for the season. July corn opened unchanged to ⅜c higher at 65¾@65¾c and sold at 66¼@67¼c. Local receipts were 380 cars with 103 of contract grade.

The high price for May corn was 79c and it closed at 78c, 2c above the close of yesterday. Sentiment in the pit was bullish all day. The high point for July was 66¾c. The close was strong with July 1⅜c higher, at 66¾c.

The oats market was dull and prices were steady. July oats opened a shade higher to 46¾c and held around that figure. Local receipts were 360 cars.

Smaller receipts of live hogs and the strength of corn held the provisions market firm at the opening. July pork opened 50@53c higher at $13.55@13.57½. Lard was 50@75c higher at $8.50@8.52½. Ribs were 5c higher at $7.35.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.02⅞; July, 90⅞c; September, 87½c; December, 87¾c. Corn—May, 78c; July, 66¾c; September, 64¾c; December, 57¼c. Oats—May old, 54¾c; May, 54½c; July old, 46¾c; July, 46¾c; September, 37⅝@37½c. Pork—May, $13.00; July, $13.75; September, $13.37½. Lard—May, $8.50; July, $8.57½; September, $8.72½@8.75. Ribs—May, $7.30; July, $7.42½; September, $7.05. Rye—Cash, 84c. Barley—Cash, 65@74c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.06⅜@1.01⅛; No. 3 red, 97c@$1.00¾; No. 2 hard, 99¾c@$1.03; No. 3 hard, 97c@$1.02; No. 3 spring, 97c@$1.07. Corn—No. 3, 77@77½c.

Liverpool Grain.

Liverpool, May 19. — Closing: Spot, steady; No. 2 red western winter, 7s 6d; No. 1 California, 7s7½d; on quays, 7s 8½d, in store; futures, quiet; May, 7s 6d; July, 7s 6d; September, 7s 2d; December, 7s 1½d. Corn—Spot, new American, kiln dried, 5s 10d, firm; old American, mixed, steady, 5s 10d.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Dull and Weak Early, But Sold Up Later.

Minneapolis, May 19.—Wheat was dull and weaker during the first part of the day, but sold up later on short covering following damage news from the winter wheat fields due to Hessian fly. The Minneapolis receipts for the first time in a long while ran over last year, but by four cars only, 175 as against 171. Duluth got only 77 against 214, and Winnipeg only 91 against 536. Minneapolis elevator stocks decreased 175,000 bus for three days. A decrease of 5,180,000 bus in the world's visible was strengthening. Liverpool closed ½@¾d higher. The market gained 1¼c from the low point, July selling to $1.05. Right near the close it sold back a little, but closed with the undertone very strong. July opened at $1.04@⅛; high, $1.05; low, $1.03¾; close, $1.04¾; September closed 91⅝c; May, $1.05¾.

Cash demand was satisfactory at 2½@3c over July for No. 1 northern and ½@1c over for No. 2 with a few choice lots at 3c and 1c over. A feature was the sale of No. 2 northern to come out of elevator at the July price. Local and country mills bought. Close, No. northern, $1.07½ spot, $1.07 to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.05 @½ spot; $1.06 to arrive; No. 3 wheat, 98½c@$1.00½.

No. 3 yellow corn, 70¾@71¾c.

No. 3 white oats, 50¾@51⅛c.

No. 2 rye, 77½@78¾c.

Barley was about the same as yesterday with a fair demand and not much on sale. Close, 57@68c.

Flax firm at 1c over Duluth July and in good demand. Close, $1.21¾.

Bran in bulk, $21.75@22.00.

Flour demand was a little better, the shipments were lighter. Big mills said they could sell more flour especially more by-product. The smaller mills said the situation was unchanged. Shipments, 39,448 barrels. First patents, $5.45@5.60; second patents, $5.30@5.45; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.55@3.65.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 19.—The cotton market opened early at a decline of 10@8 points and during the early session increased the loss to a matter of 18@25 points owing to easy cables, small English spot sales, the prospect for more favorable weather, liquidation and selling of July by strong trade interests. The market was nervous and unsettled during the middle of the morning and at practically the low prices with July selling around 9.63 and October 9.20.

Spot closed quiet, 10 points lower; middling uplands, 10.90; middling gulf, 11.15; no sales. Futures closed barely steady. Closing bids: May, 9.70; June, 9.46; July, 9.65; August, 9.49; September, 9.30; October, 9.20; November, 9.39; December, 9.18; January, 9.16; February, 9.16; March, 9.17.

BIG SLUMP IN STOCKS

Sharp Break After Many Had Reached Year's Highest Prices.

Due to Selling to Realize Profits on the Advance.

New York, May 19.—After a number of the leading issues had reached the highest price of the year, there was a sharp break in quotations on the stock exchange this afternoon, the decline becoming precipitated just before the close. American Smelting fell to 4 points below last night's close and a number of issues between 2 to 3 points. The decline was believed to be on selling to realize profits on the advance.

New York, May 19.—The opening dealings in stocks today were on a very large scale and prices were higher throughout the list. The Harriman stocks, Northwestern, Erie, General Electric and American Locomotive were up a point, Wabash preferred, 1½; Pennsylvania, 1⅝; Missouri Pacific, 1¾, and Erie first preferred, 3. Gains generally did not exceed a small fraction, but in some of the prominent active stocks ran in excess of ½.

The rush to buy stocks continued and carried prices over the opening level, after which the realizing became effective and many prominent issues yielded to below yesterday's closing. Missouri Pacific was the principal feature of the house, its jump of 4¼ to 63¼ stimulating the general demand.

One point losses were established in Northern Pacific and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, 1¾. Union Pacific offered stubborn resistance to the reaction when it fell below 150 and its recovery rallied the market. The recovery paused short of the previous high price and the trading became quieter. Western Union rose 2½. Bonds were irregular.

The market grew quite dull and fluctuations were small until a rise in St. Paul to 153¾ started renewed activity and some recovery which, however, ceased before 1 o'clock.

A late rise of two points in Brooklyn Transit sustained the general list, which was quiet and little changed.

The market closed weak and in disorder. Prices gave way with some violence in the final hour under the weight of realizing and short sales by the bears. Losses of 1 or upwards were quite general in the active speculative stocks. American Smelting broke 5¼, Northern Pacific 3⅜, Louisville & Nashville, 3⅜ and Union Pacific, the Hill stocks, Southern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Reading, Amalgamated Copper, Anaconda, National Lead, Pacific Mail, American Sugar and Manhattan between 2 and 3 points.

STREET CARS.
NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.
This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point, and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.
The fare for a continuous ride in one direction between any two points on either one of these lines is 5c.
The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passenger safely between points on the above mentioned lines.
This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has no better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines, nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and, therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.

PENNSYLVANIA DELEGATES WILL PROBABLY BE SENT TO DENVER UNINSTRUCTED

Guffey Faction Will Control the Democratic Convention.

Peter A. O'Boyle is Selected as Permanent Chairman.

Defeated the Bryan Candidate in Committee, 31 to 16.

Harrisburg, May 20.—The committee on permanent organization of the Democratic state convention, at its meeting, selected Peter A. O'Boyle of Wilkesbarre, a Guffey man, as permanent chairman. The vote was, O'Boyle, 31; William T. Creasy, 16.

This indicates that the Guffey people will organize the convention and elect their four delegates-at-large and send them to Denver without instructions. State Senator J. K. P. Hall was the chairman of the committee.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 20.—The situation with regard to the probable action of today's Democratic state convention on the question of instructing the delegates-at-large to the Denver convention had not cleared up when the delegates were called to order by State Chairman George M. Dunelling. Each side was still claiming victory and neither was inclined to yield anything to the other. The prospects are that the convention will be exceedingly interesting and lively.

Col. James M. Guffey of Pittsburg, who is the Pennsylvania member of the national committee, is leading the fight against instructing the four delegates-at-

GREAT GOOD WILL COME

From Annual Meetings of the Governors, Says J. J. Hill.

Does Not Think Washington a Good City to Meet In.

New York, May 20.—That the recent conference of governors was a good thing and should be made an annual event is the opinion of James J. Hill, president of the board of the Great Northern railway, who was one of the special guests asked by President Roosevelt to address the meeting at Washington.

"The idea behind that conference," Mr. Hill said, "is a big thing. There are persons, no doubt, who feel inclined to treat it cynically, but they are wrong. Everything has to have a beginning, and it is easy enough to be synical. In an annual convention of the governors of the states of this land I see an institution which can be nurtured and built into one of the great forces of the nation.

MANEUVERS FOR TROOPS

Will be Held for Both Regular Service and the Militia.

Washington, May 20.—Preparations have been completed by the war department for joint manuevers during the coming summer of all branches of the regular service and many state militia organizations, for which congress has appropriated $1,000,000. For these maneuvers instruction camps will be established and maneuvers held for one month at each place, as follows:

Pine Plains, New York, June 15 to July 15. Chickamauga Park, Georgia, July; Leon Springs, Tex., July; American Lake, Washington, August; Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, August; Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, September; Fort Riley, Kan., September; Atascadero Ranch, California, October.

Orders issued governing details of the maneuvers prescribe "a minimum of formal ceremonies and a total absence of merely spectacular exhibitions.' Practice marches have been ordered in which infantry will cover 200 miles and cavalry 250 miles. The exercises will be carried out in a progressive manner, beginning with small bodies of troops and ending with the entire command.

STATE HAS A NEW THEORY

Believed Lamphere Returned to Smiths After Setting Fire.

Was Seen Going and Coming From the Gunness Home.

Laporte, Ind., May 20.—That Ray Lamphere, held without bail in the Laporte county jail on the charge of murder in the first degree, may have returned to the home of Elizabeth Smith, after setting fire to the Gunness house, as believed by Prosecutor Smith, and then made a second start for the Wheatbrook farm, where he was employed, is the new theory advanced by the state.

Representatives of the prosecution profess to have discovered evidence to show that not only was Lamphere seen to go toward the Gunness house, about 3:30 o'clock in the morning of April 28, but he was also seen to retrace his steps. This was just about the time that other witnesses will testify that they saw fire shooting from the direction of the Gunness house.

State's New Theory.

This new theory is that, after returning to the Smith house, Lamphere made a fresh start for the country, about an hour after the first departure,

CALMLY AWAITS AWFUL DEATH

A Wealthy New Yorker Must Die From Hydrophobia.

New York, May 20.—William H. Marsh, an aged and wealthy man, when told, yesterday, that he undoubtedly would die within a week of hydrophobia, calmly turned away with the remark that he would be ready when the summons came. Without a tremor he walked down the steps of the Pasteur institute, stepped into his carriage and started for his home in Brooklyn.

"You waited too long," the surgeons at the institute told him, after they had made their examination. "Our treatment cannot help you. You have hydrophobia."

There was not a falter in his voice, or a change in his face, as he heard them.

"How much time do you give me?" he asked.

"Not long," said the physician. "Probably not more than four or five days."

"Well," he said, "if I have to go, I can face it. My business is in shape, and a day or two more will see it all settled. I had rather die some other way, but I am not afraid."

Mr. Marsh treated the wounds of his pet spaniel, which had been bitten by a strange dog. The spaniel licked his hand in gratitude and Mr. Marsh was infected through a small scratch on one of his fingers. The spaniel died of hydrophobia.

BOX FACTORY DAMAGED.

Cass Lake Concern Came Near to Being Destroyed.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire last night did considerable damage to the box factory here. At the outset it looked like the entire destruction of the factory, but after three hours of energetic work it was prevented from spreading. The only building destroyed was the drying shed. The loss is about $4,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

CONGRESSMAN LILLEY IS WARMLY ROASTED IN THE REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Result of Investigation of Submarine Charges Made Public.

Lilley Not Warranted in His Accusations Against Colleagues.

Members of the Press Also Exonerated by Committee.

Washington, May 20.—That Representative George L. Lilley was not warranted in bringing charges against certain of his colleagues in the house and accredited members of the press is the conclusion reached by the special committee named by Speaker Cannon to investigate methods employed by the Electric Boat company of New Jersey in connection with legislation before congress.

In an exhaustive report submitted to the house today Chairman Boutell and his colleagues review the testimony brought out before the committee in hearings extending over several weeks, and declare with entire unanimity that no member of the house and no representative of the press have been induced by officers of the Electric Boat company to act from corrupt or improper motives.

Furthermore, the committee finds that Mr. Lilley allowed himself to be used as an instrument of the Lake Boat company in questioning the integrity and fairness of the members of the investigating committee and in attacking a competing submarine company.

Mr. Lilley is charged with maintaining an attitude of bad faith, both in bringing the charges and concealing from the committee the identity of the real parties in interest behind the investigation.

The investigation grew out of a resolution introduced by Mr. Lilley in the house on Feb. 20 last asking that a committee be appointed to investigate the conduct of the Electric Boat company of New Jersey and their predecessors, the Holland company, respecting the methods employed by the companies named in connection with past and proposed legislation before congress.

The resolution was referred to the committee on rules and on March 8 the committee reported back, recommending that the speaker name a committee of five to investigate the charges, which was done. The hearing began on March 9 and closed April 30. Testimony was taken in Washington, New York and New Orleans. The conclusions reached follow:

Report of Committee.

First—That house Resolution 255, introduced by Mr. Lilley, was an impotent resolution and no evidence could have been compiled thereunder, and that this investigation required the adoption of house Resolution 288 of the committee on rules, under which the inquiry has proceeded.

Second—That Mr. Lilley's resolution was not introduced in good faith.

Third—That Mr. Lilley had no information to justify his charges, made before the committee on rules.

Fourth—That Mr. Lilley acted in bad faith in making his charges before the committee on rules.

Fifth—That Mr. Lilley acted in bad faith in stating before the committee that he had made no charge reflecting upon members of the house before the committee on rules.

Sixth—That Mr. Lilley allowed him-

MEMORIAL DAY PROCLAMATION IS ISSUED BY GOVERNOR JOHNSON

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson has issued a proclamation designating Saturday, May 30, as Memorial day. The proclamation is an eloquent tribute to the heroes of the past and reads as follows:

"Again approaches the day set apart by the people of a grateful republic to honor the memory of their soldier dead. Gratitude to them who bravely and nobly made the nation's cause their cause, inaugurated the custom and succeeding generations of patriotic, loyal and liberty loving Americans will look to its perpetuity. The approaching 30th of May will give our people another opportunity to show their appreciation of the services of the men who, on land and on sea, upheld the noblest cause for which freemen ever fought.

"Human liberty was involved in that great struggle, and in its righteous cause no man has ever died in vain.

"But it is not that old wounds should be reopened or that sectionalism should again become an issue before the American people that this day is dedicated to the soldiers of the Civil war; better that the dead should bury their dead than that a reunited country be torn by sectional strife. But of this there can be no fear. Ties of living kindred reunite the North and South.

"On Southern battlefields generous hands with strict impartiality decorate the graves of the heroes who came among them as foes a half century ago. In the North there is left no bitterness of spirit as the heritage of the struggle.

"We are in trust and in spirit one country and one flag."

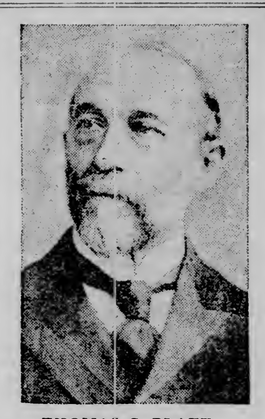
SENATOR PLATT, AGED AND FEEBLE, SWEARS HE NEVER ASKED MAE WOOD TO WED

Venerable Statesman Appears in Court to Answer Divorce Suit.

Says He Never Saw Plaintiff at the Oriental Hotel.

Denies Positively That He Asked Her to Marry Him.



THOMAS C. PLATT,
United States Senator, Who Appears in Court as Defendant in Divorce Suit Brought by Mae C. Wood.

New York, May 20.—Senator T. C. Platt went on the witness stand today to give testimony in his own behalf in the sensational suit brought against him by Mae C. Wood, the Omaha woman who is suing him for divorce, on the allegation that he entered into a marriage contract with her in 1901. The senator entered the courtroom leaning heavily on the arms of two attendants. He seemed very feeble and walked with difficulty. He was accompanied by his son, Frank H. Platt, and a stylishly attired woman.

The prospect that the senator would be in court today drew large crowds to the county building, where the hearing is in progress.

In opening his testimony, the senator said he was nearly 75 years old. His first wife died in 1901. He first met Miss Wood in 1901.

"Do you remember seeing her at the Oriental hotel?" was asked.

"I never saw her at the Oriental hotel in my life."

"Do you remember asking her in the month of August, 1901, at the Oriental hotel, to become your wife?"

"I never asked her. It's false."

The senator described his rooms at the Arlington hotel, and said No. 188

SEVEN ARE DROWNED

Prominent Young Society People of Clarendon, Ark., the Victims.

On Moonlight Excursion When Gasoline Tank on Launch Explodes.

Clarendon, Ark., May 20.—Seven prominent young society people were drowned last night when the tank of a gasoline launch in which they were going for a moonlight excursion exploded, wrecking the boat. Other members of the party were rescued with difficulty.

The drowned: Miss Lillian Winfield of Clarendon, Ark.; Miss Alma Pette of St. Louis, Mo.; Miss Mattie Cosnots of Clarendon, Ark.; Miss Bessie Palmer of Kansas City, Mo.; Miss Aline Burton of Helena, Ark.; Joseph McManus of Clarendon, Ark., and Dr. A. L. Huston of Clarendon, Ark.

One of those rescued, Miss Mary Cavett of Clarendon, was severely burned.

The boat left Clarendon early in the evening, bearing a merry party, who had planned to go several miles down the river. When about five miles below Clarendon the tank of the launch exploded, wrecking the boat and hurling the occupants into the river, which at this point, more than fifty feet from shore, is very deep.

Few could swim and some were stunned by the force of the explosion and went down before swimmers in the party could make an effort at rescue.

The boat was owned by E. A. Farfer, one of those aboard, and who saved the lives of several of the women of the party.

A MYSTERIOUS SHIP ARRIVES

Japanese Steamer Puts in at a Small California Port.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 20.—Immigration officials were notified last night of the arrival of a mysterious Japanese steamer at Gaviota, in Santa Barbara county. The vessel carries a large crew. When the captain attempted to land his men the authorities at the small seaport prevented it.

The immigration authorities at this point telegraphed the officials at Gaviota to detain the vessel until an investigation can be made. The steamer had been seen off the coast for several days, and this led the officials at Gaviota to telegraph to this city for instructions.

An immigration officer will go to Gaviota today to question the ship's captain and examine his papers.

It is thought the vessel may contain the Chinese who are trying to land in violation of the immigration laws. The captain stated last night that he came in for food and water. He said he had a cargo of oil.

REUNITED AFTER EIGHTEEN YEARS

Dillon, Mont., May 20.—After eighteen years a mother and daughter, Mrs. Jacob Hartwig and Mrs. Charles Jollison, the latter a resident of Portland, Or., have been reunited in that city. The daughter had been placed in a convent at Deer Lodge and was kidnaped by the father, who spent years in traveling, visiting nearly every state in the Union, and constantly eluding the mother. Finally, the child was placed in a hospital at Beloit, Wis., where she became a sister. Later, she removed to Portland, where she married Dr. Jollison. Mother and daughter finally located each other and their reunion occurred yesterday.

NELSON SECURES SUM FOR DULUTH

Grant of $95,000 Added to the Public Buildings Bill.

Collector of Customs L. M. Willcuts received a telegram from Senator Knute Nelson this morning, stating that an appropriation of $95,000 for the new federal building site has been inserted in the public buildings bill by the senate committee. When the bill passed the house there was no item in it for Duluth, and Congressman Bede said he was depending upon the senators to add it, as he had failed to get the house committee to make an appropriation. Senator Nelson's telegram says:

"Washington, May 20.— L. M. Willcuts, Duluth: Ninty-five thousand dollars for your building site put in bill in the senate.

"KNUTE NELSON."

This will provide a site for the new postoffice building and insures the participation of the government in the grouping plan.

WILL BE BRANCH OFFICES.

Washington, May 20.—The postmaster general has issued an order that hereafter postal stations, for the receipt and dispatch of mails that are located outside of the corporate limits of cities, shall be known as branch offices and shall be reparately entered in the postal guide, in alphabetical order, in the list of postoffices.

A JOHNSON DELEGATE

Evidently Elected at the Democratic Primaries in Alabama.

Contests in Many Districts Are as Yet Undecided.

Montgomery, Ala., May 20.—In many counties the vote in the Democratic primary, Monday, is not yet in. It is indicated, however, that Dr. R. M. Cunningham, one of the Johnson men for delegate-at-large, is elected.

The returns indicate that John W. Tomlinson of Birmingham, Congressman J. Thomas Heflin of the Fifth district, Congressman H. D. Clayton of the Third district, and E. W. Booker of Birmingham, all supporters of William J. Bryan, are elected.

Returns are still incomplete, and are coming in very slowly. There were warm contests for district delegates in the First, Seventh and Ninth districts, and the results there are in doubt.

CRUSHED UNDER LOGS.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 20.—Edward Thompson of Stanley was brought to this city in a badly mangled condition as a result of a load of logs toppling upon him. He sustained internal injuries and had several bones broken, but it is thought he will recover.

J. P. MORGAN'S OLD YACHT FOR NAVAL RESERVES

J. P. Morgan's old yacht, the Corsair, will fly the pennant of the Duluth naval reserves this summer.

Word was received this afternoon by Guy Eaton, commander of the Duluth Naval Reserves, that the Corsair, now known as The Scorpion, had been turned over to the local sailors for their use, to replace the Gopher.

The Scorpion is one of the most modern gunboats on the lakes. The government purchased her from J. P. Morgan and used her during the Spanish-American war. She was for one year the flagship of the New York Yacht club.

The vessel is 212 feet over all, or thirty-two feet longer than the Gopher, and has a speed of twenty-one miles an hour. She has greater power than the Douglas Houghton, the most powerful boat in the Pittsburg Steamship company's fleet.

The reserves will take the Gopher east some time in the near future, and return with the Scorpion.

The Scorpion is in first-class condition, and has an armament of two 4-inch guns; six six pounders, and four Colt's automatic guns.

The members of the Naval Reserves are naturally delighted with the prospect of having a modern gunboat in place of the Gopher, and their fondest hopes are more than realized in securing the Scorpion.

WOMAN ROBBED WHILE SHOPPING

Loses Handbag Containing Over $2,000 in Minneapolis Store.

Minneapolis, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—While shopping in a Nicollet avenue department store, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Mamie Slocum, whose address the police failed to learn, was robbed of property valued at $2,000, including diamonds, bank notes, checks and a $1,000 mortgage.

The theft was executed at a time when the store was filled with shoppers. The lost property was carried in a large handbag, which was taken while the owner was having a waist fitted.

Mrs. Slocum gave detectives from the Minneapolis department, who were summoned on the case, the following invoice of her losses: One handbag, 7 by 14, gold mounted; one solid silver purse; one diamond sunburst brooch, large diamond in center, pearls on rays; one marquis ring, thirty-two diamonds around edge, three rubies across center; one solid gold chain for eye glasses; one eye glass, bought of Dr. Kittridge, 40 South Fifth street; three twenty dollar bank notes; two bank checks, one a check for $350 on a Lake City bank, and the other for $150 on the Citizens' bank at Lake City; one mortgage of $1,000 payable at the Lake City bank.

Mrs. Slocum has no suspicions as to who may have been the thief. She says the handbag was out of her possession for only a few minutes. The only address recorded at police headquarters is "Mrs. Mamie Slocum, general delivery, Minneapolis." Mrs. Slocum said she was visiting friends in the city.

YOUNG WIDOW IS BRUTALLY KILLED

Body of Mrs. Carrie Shaw of Hortonville, Wis., Found.

Milwaukee, May 20.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Appleton, Wis., says: The discovery of a portion of wearing apparel of a woman on the banks of a mill in the village of Hortonville at 9 o'clock this forenoon lead to the later discovery of the dead body of Mrs. Carrie Shaw, a wealthy young widow of Hortonville. The body is badly mutilated and the authorities declare there is every evidence of a brutal murder having been committed.

Mrs. Shaw had been keeping company recently with Charles Abrams of New London and the couple were seen together last night as late as 9 o'clock.

District Attorney Rooney this morning ordered the arrest of Abrams who is now in custody of the New London police. When asked what he knew of the whereabouts of Mrs. Shaw, Abrams replied: "It is none of your business where she is."

It has been learned that Mrs. Shaw and Abrams had been at outs for some days and it was also said to have been learned that Abrams called upon her last night for the purpose of making up.

District Attorney Rooney has departed for Hortonville and New London and Abrams will be brought from New London to the Outagamie county jail at Appleton this afternoon.

HOLDS AN ELECTION.

El-Sirat Temple, D. O. K. K., Plans Big Meeting for Initiatory Work.

El-Sirat Temple, No. 135, D. O. K. K. held a session at Elks' hall last evening, following the regular meeting of North Star lodge, Knights of Pythias, and elected officers for the ensuing year. The officers are: Royal vizier, James A. Wharton; grand emir, Andrew Nelson; mahdi, E. C. Boyce; secretary, A. M. Fenton; treasurer, J. J. Lumm; satrap, George Detert; sahib, Fred W. Edwards; mokanna, Louis Dworshak; sheik, William Hillis; joc, William Marx; executive committee, James L. Cromwell, Frank L. Young and A. M. Peterson.

The local temple is making arrangements for a big meeting in the near future, at which a class of candidates from Duluth and the ranges will be initiated into the mysteries of the order.

SPEAKER CONFERS WITH PRESIDENT.

Washington, May 20.—After a somewhat extended conference with President Roosevelt at the White House today, Speaker Cannon, on leaving, said:

"Whenever I am requested by the president to come to his office I have made it an invariable rule to refrain from discussing the subject matter under consideration. However, there was nothing of such importance considered today that the president should not make it known if he sees fit."

Speaker Cannon would express no prophesy as to whether or not congress would conclude its work this week.

BAD FIRE OCCURS AT RUSSELL, MAN.

Winnipeg, Man., May 20.—Fire at Russell, Man., last night, which was under control this morning, destroyed half of the business section of the town. The loss is estimated at $150,000, with little insurance. Russell is situated 225 miles from here.

THE CLOSE IS WEAKER

Copper Stocks Have an Up and Down Day.

Directors of Anaconda Are Re-Elected, With One Exception.

The copper stock market broke several times today and closed weak. The opening prices were easier and the market went off during the first hour. There was a good rally after that, followed by another break. The recovery at the close did not bring prices up to yesterday's level.

North Butte opened at $64, went as high as $65.25, declined to $64 and closed at $64 bid and $4.25 asked. Amalgamated opened at $66.75, advanced to $67.62½, declined to $65 and closed at $66.62½ bid.

Greene-Cananea opened at $9.75, declined to $9.50 and closed at $9.50 bid and $9.62½ asked. Butte Coalition opened at $24, advanced to $24.25, declined to $23.25 and closed at $23.50 bid and $23.75 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $111.50, declined to $109.50 and closed at $110 bid and $110.50 asked. Anaconda opened at $43.50, advanced to $44.25, declined to $42.25 and closed at $43.37½ bid.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $12.75, declined to $12.50 and closed at $12.50 bid and $12.62½ asked. Globe sold at $6.12½ and closed at $6 bid and $6.25 asked, and Butte & Superior at $1.12½ and closed at $1 bid and $1.12½ asked.

Denn-Arizona was inactive and closed at $2.87½ bid and $3 asked; Calumet & Sonora at $7.50 bid and $7.75 asked, and Copper Queen of Idaho at $1 bid and $1.12½ asked.

Black Mountain was inactive and closed at $4.25 bid and $4.50 asked.

The Beaver County, Utah, News of Friday, May 15, says: "A fine vein of high grade ore was uncovered in the prospect work on the Red Warrior property yesterday. No assays have yet been made, but it is believed that the ore will run very high. Samples were brought to town and an assay will be made in a few days. The main shaft at the Red Warrior is now down to a depth of 125 feet with an excellent showing of ore. Drifts are now being run on the ore lead and preparations will soon be made for some good shipments from this property. A large amount of ore is now on the dump, but the management will develop the property more extensively before making any shipments. New boarding and bunk houses have just been completed which will accommodate about twenty men, and it is expected that the force will be increased materially in the next few weeks."

GRAND JURORS RESUME WORK

Are Probing a Number of Blind Pig Cases.

The grand jury resumed its labors this afternoon after a recess of two days.

A large number of witnesses from the ranges arrived in the city on the noon trains, and it is believed that the grand jury is probing a number of blind pig cases.

There are also several larceny and assault cases to be considered.

It is now expected that the jury will be able to complete its work this afternoon.

CITIZENS AROUSED.

Will Urge Minnesota Congressman to Guard Duluth's Interest.

Duluth citizens have become aroused to the importance of having an appropriation for the sight for the new federal building kept in the bill now before the senate.

Through the efforts of Senator Nelson the appropriation was placed in the bill. It will now be referred to the conference committee of the senate and the house, and every effort will be made to have it kept in the bill. Several prominent Duluth citizens this afternoon sent telegrams to Washington to the Minnesota congressmen urging them to use their influence to prevent the appropriation being stricken out.

BLACK HAND BOMB FOR A WEALTHY ITALIAN.

New York, May 20.—The refusal of Dr. Attilife Caccini, a wealthy Italian physician, to comply with the demands of Black Hand criminals for money resulted in the lives of a hundred persons being placed in danger today, when a bomb was exploded in the tenement house at 316 East Eleventh street, where he had his office. Four persons were injured and the house was badly damaged.

Respect Your Furs.

Any woman who owns nice furs should take more pride in them than to let them lay around the house during the heated summer months. The old-fashioned attempts at home storage, such as packing in moth balls and winding in cotton may do well enough for some, but the woman who wants her furs to come out in best possible condition will call up the Gidding store for a messenger to call for them. The storage vaults of the J. M. Gidding & Co. store are up-to-date, the charges are moderate and cover insurance against all losses or damages.

BEES CAN TELL THE TIME.

The latest observer of the bees credits them with ability to judge the time of day. He is Auguste Force, a Frenchman, and his studies were involuntary at the outset. He lives in a villa not far from Paris, and in summer it is the habit of his family to take their meals outdoors on a terrace, says the New York Sun.

At 7 o'clock in the morning the table was habitually set for the light French breakfast. A great dish of preserved fruit was always a feature of this meal. At noon came the "grand dejeuner," or luncheon, when there was no fruit. At 4 o'clock something like the English tea was served and then again preserves made their appearance, remaining on the table for half to three-quarters of an hour.

The bees had their colony about a hundred yards from the terrace, but until last June they never gave the slightest trouble. Then the cook put a basin of cherries preserved in syrup to cool in a window near the table. There were some flowers in the window. A bee visiting these discovered the cherries and soon came back with the whole swarm to enjoy them. When they came back later and found the cherries gone they went foraging and presently discovered the preserves on the breakfast table.

"We are lost," said the proprietor; "we will have to give up eating here."

At first the bees buzzed over the terrace all day from dawn to dusk. Then they began to disappear in the middle of the day. They made early breakfast and tea impossible, but they were totally absent at the dinner hour. About the middle of July the family gave up using the terrace for the bee-infested meals, but by way of experiment the table was set one morning as usual. Promptly at 7 a. m. the bees began to arrive, and at 10 o'clock, when the table was cleared as usual, they ceased coming. Not a trace of a bee was seen again until 4. The luncheon was eaten without the presence of a single one.

But at 4 they began to gather again. They were plainly surprised at finding no preserves—the table was not set—but in increasing numbers they kept up the search until about 5 o'clock, when they gradually took themselves off. This kept on for several days after the table ceased to be set. The bees came looking for it between 7 and 10 in the forenoon and 4 and 5 in the afternoon. In fact, however, they recognized the time, they observed it with clocklike regularity until in the course of a week or two they ceased their visits altogether, finding them unprofitable.

DO CATS LIKE FLOWERS?

New York Sun: "I have been wondering," said the man of domestic habits, "if cats like flowers. Some cats do, I know, but I would like to know if they do as a class.

"Now, my wife has a seven-toed Maltese—yes, sir, seven toes; I've counted 'em—which she got when it was a mighty younk kitten. It so happens that this cat has grown up without any opportunity to associate with its kind, so its ideas of life are natural, necessarily.

"If it had a chance to meet other cats it might have exchanged thoughts on life. But since it hadn't such a chance its actions have been particularly interesting to us, because they are peculiarly indicative of the essential cat nature.

"Take this matter of flowers. This seven toed Maltese has always taken a deep interest in them. Whenever flowers appear in the house the cat proceeds immediately to investigate.

"He will jump up on the table or mantel or wherever the flowers happen to be and sniff them critically. Apparently the odor pleases him, for his tail curves with every appearance of delight.

"He's discriminating, too. Lilies of the valley and violets appeal to him more than carnations or roses. A working of Providence, my wife calls it, for she prefers the violets and lilies, and quotes the cat as an inducement to me to get those blooms for her even if they do happen to be more expensive.

"I haven't dared try orchids yet for fear the cat will evince an overwhelming preference for the most costly flowers the florist offers.

SHERLOCK FLAT DWELLER.

New York Sun: "Ah," said a flat dweller who was looking at flats to the friend who was going around with him, "the previous occupant of this apartment had a young child."

"Why, how can you tell that?" said his friend, for the apartment was empty and to him there was no sign.

"You see those marks on the door jamb," said the expert, "and these horizontal scratches on the door at the same height?"—and he pointed to the marks and scratches appearing at an elevation of about fifteen inches above the floor.

"Sure," said the friend.

"Well, those marks," said the expert; "were made by the hubs of the wheels of a baby carriage. The doors are only just a little more than wide enough to let a baby carriage through, and unless they use the very greatest care they scratch the door jambs and the door in getting the baby carriage in and out.

"Wherever you see those marks you can know that the apartment has been occupied by somebody who had a child young enough to be taken out in a baby carriage."

"Why, you're a regular Sherlock Holmes," said the admiring friend.

"Oh, I don't know," said the expert, but it was plain that he was not pained by his friend's admiration.

DON'T HOLD YOUR ARMS.

Family Doctor: By folding your arms you pull the shoulders forward, flatten the chest and impair deep breathing. Folding the arms across the chest so flattens it down that it requires a conscious effort to keep the chest in what should be its natural position. As soon as you forget yourself down drops the chest.

We cannot see ourselves as others see us. If we could many of us would be ashamed of our shapes. The position you hold your body in most of the time soon becomes its natural position. Continuously folding your arms across the chest will develop a flat chest and a rounded back.

Here are four other hints which should be made habits: Keep the back of the neck close to the back of the collar at all possible times. Always carry the chest farther to the front than any other part of the anterior body. Draw the abdomen in and up a hundred times each day. Take a dozen deep, slow breaths a dozen times each day.

Buy the MONARCH

It Pays for Itself

Buying a Monarch Range of us is like securing an interest bearing GOLD BOND on such easy terms that after the first small investment is made the interest will carry along the payments—

Because—

The genuine saving of fuel,—of time,—of hard disagreeable labor,—of food, so often spoiled and wasted by the ordinary steel range,—and the delightful satisfaction of having your work perfectly done, amount each month in actual dollars and cents to at least as much as the small payments we ask on one of these Remarkable Ranges.

You don't have to take our word for these things. Investigate for yourself the way the Monarch is built. See how the Malleable Iron and steel are riveted together, making AIR-TIGHT JOINTS without the use of STOVE putty, and you will understand WHY the Monarch saves fuel and time. See the brightly polished top and body, which will never require any stove blacking, and you will be satisfied that the Range saves much disagreeable labor. Also notice the duplex grate, and the other special features. These things PROVE our statements.

Monarch MALLEABLE The "Stay Satisfactory" Range

The riveted seams and joints of the Monarch cannot be affected by the hardest usage or the most intense heat. It stays as it is built.

The common sort of steel ranges are WASTEFUL — EXTRAVAGANT—because they are not built in the right way or even of the right kind of material.

It is not wise to buy one nor yet to continue using one even though you may have had it only a few years. Its seams have already opened up—the stove bolts worked loose, the putty has fallen out and these "air leaks" into the flues and firebox cause a waste of fuel every year equal to a large part of the cost of a Monarch.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

A pretty home wedding took place this afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Miller of 429 East Second street, when their niece, Miss Millie McKee, became the bride of Rollo N. Chaffee. The rooms were prettily decorated in palms and ferns and bride's roses, and the service was read at 3 o'clock by Rev. Campbell C. Coyle of the First Presbyterian church. The bride was attended by Mrs. Edward Mirick, as matron of honor, and the ribbon bearers were Miss Adelaide Miller and Miss Imelda Monaghan. The groomsman was Edward Mirick.

The bride wore a gown of white lace fashioned over liberty satin, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. Mrs. Mirick was also gowned in white and carried white roses. The ribbon bearers wore white gowns and marked the aisle for the wedding party with broad white ribbons.

At the reception which followed the ceremony, Mrs. Horace W. Reyner and Mrs. J. E. Bowers presided in the dining-room, assisted by Misses Florence Newcomb, Mildred Hobbs, Dorothy Chaffee and Lida Stewart. At the punch bowl, Miss Edith Stewart presided.

Mr. Chaffee and his bride left on the afternoon train for an Eastern wedding trip. After August 1 they will be at home in the Ashtabula apartments.

Among the out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. James F. Chaffee of Amenia, N. Y., parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. George B. Winship of Grand Forks; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Chaffee of Amenia, N. D.; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reed of Minneapolis, and Walter Thexton of Minneapolis.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

Plans Being Made for Country Home During Summer.

A country home on a modest scale is the promise that the local Young Women's Christian association is holding out for the members during the summer of 1908. For several years it has been the desire of the board members and general secretary of the association to have a cottage within easy reach of the city where the members might spend a few days, or several weeks, as a part of their vocation, or to live while still attending to their duties in the city. A cottage at Pond du Lac is being considered, and it is possible, if suitable plans can be made, that the cottage may be open by June 1, to be continued during the season. Although the arrangements are still indefinite, it is hoped that provision may be made for twelve or fifteen guests, and the plan has appealed to so many of the young business women of the association that it is probable that the rooms will be almost constantly engaged during the season.

The last meeting of the year of the members of the English classes of the educational department of the association will be held Tuesday evening of next week, at the association rooms. The year's study will be closed with an informal party.

The last meetings of the millinery and dressmaking and gymnasium classes will all be held before the first of the month.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Fresh cocoanuts, 10 cents each.
Pie plant, 5 cents a lb.
New beets, 10 cents a bunch.
New potatoes, 70 cents a peck.
Strawberries, 15 cents a box.
Lamb chops, 35 cents a lb.
Hamburger steak, 15 cents a lb.
Lake trout, 15 cents a lb.
Fresh pineapples, 20 cents each.

There are women so devoted to their life work—that of keeping their households happy, cheerful, well fed and content—that they will preserve pineapples. If any man doubt the real affection which his wife may harbor for him, let him suggest, in an offhand way, that he should love some preserved pineapple. Any woman who will undertake to preserve pineapple must be struggling in the first throes of love. To seriously consider peeling a series of pineapples and nipping out the eyes, would only be the part of a person suffering some part of temporary insanity. The pineapples in the market are, however, of the proper degree of ripeness and are as cheap as they will be. So that if their preservation is contemplated, now is the time.

MISS JULIA DONOVAN, Duluth Singer, Who Will Be Heard in a Recital Thursday Evening.

Entertain Guests.

Cloquet chapter, No. 30, of the Order of the Eastern Star, will be guests of the local Zenith chapter, No. 25, Friday of this week, at the Masonic Temple. An interesting program has been arranged, which will begin at 3:30 o'clock, Friday afternoon, when degrees of the order will be conferred on candidates by the local chapter. A tanquet will be served at 6:30 o'clock, to be followed by an organ recital at 8 o'clock.

Card Club.

The Five Hundred club of Lakeside was entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. R. M. Ritchie of 4303 McCulloch street. Ths highest score for the afternoon was made by Mrs. J. B. Greenfield.

Successful Sale.

The proceeds of the rummage sale, which has been conducted by the members of the board of directors of the Children's Home, amounted to $330, and this sum will go to the general fund for the various needs of the institution. The women who have worked so arduously are delighted at the success of the plan, and it is probable that the sale will be made an annual feature.

By noon today the sales rooms at 428 West First street was dismantled of the quantities of clothing, books and bric a brac which had been collected, and the proceeds of the sale deposited in the bank.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. C. F. Macdonald is visiting friends at Minneapolis.

* * *

Mrs. A Abraham of 1426 East First street has returned from Philadelphia, Pa., where she was called by the death of her mother.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Harvy P. Smith, formerly of Duluth, who have been living at Bisbee, Ariz., for the past two years, have arrived in the city and will be at home during the summer at 1905 East Superior street.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Billson have returned from Los Angeles, Cal., where they spent the winter.

* * *

Mrs. R. T. Blakely and children of Chicago are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. O'Leary of West Second street.

Experience Social.

In place of the regular meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance union, the members will entertain tomorrow afternoon with an experience at the home of Mrs. Roger Weaver of 4721 West Sixth street. Friends of the members are invited to be present.

Summer Styles.

So much has been said about the long, clinging lines, that are so fashionable, that women are beginning to question whether it is a style that will stay any length of time and be absolutely the only correct model for all gowns. Needless to say, these lines are only becoming to the slender, graceful woman, and then it has a charming effect. But it will be noticed that failures have made it a most hideous fashion. The very latest gowns of the slim order are being heavily trimmed, and many of the skirts show the tunic effect. When this effect is given the material is draped long on the sides and much shorter in the front and back. The seams are cut to give as much length as possible. The expert dressmaker can arrange wide, flat embroidery, folds or flounces on a skirt without interfering with the long lines. Narrow soutache braid is the most popular trimming of the moment.

* * *

One-piece frocks of thin material will be much worn during the summer months, and there are many attractive models cut out from the daintiest muslins, organdies and silk batistes. Such dresses require a lining of some delicate, plain color and should be fitted perfectly. Although the blouse and skirt are made separately, they are joined together as invisibly as possible by insertion, beading or even a narrow band of the material. If the fabric is too sheer for a slip, a deep girdle, perhaps ten by twelve inches, is fitted and boned very carefully, and is caught to the frock. This girdle is often finished with Valenciennes edging top and botton, that it may not show any hard lines. The blouse and skirt fall prettily over it and it also holds the waistband in place.

WEDDING ETIQUETTE.

Rules of Procedure For Bride and Her Attendants.

This is the season of weddings—more, perhaps, than at any other period of the year—and many young women, unaccustomed to some social forms of etiquette, are eager to know a few details relative to such occasions, says an exchange. First, one will wish to know about acknowledging gifts. Girts are sent before the wedding, though often a few belated ones arrive afterwards. The bride-elect must acknowledge these before the wedding, if possible. It is discourteous not to do so if there is sufficient time; should there be any delay, the bride must write as soon as possible after the wedding. No verbal or telephone message is acceptable; the cordial thanks must be written. In acknowledging gifts mention the name of the article received and also the appreciation of both parties. Write cordially, friendly and do not have the letter presenting the appearance of some legal document. Write just as you would speak. Something like this would be appropriate: "The linen pieces you so kindly sent are beautiful and something I shall appreciate very much in my own little home. Mr. B. appreciates your kindness, also, for your gift is something so appropriate for this occasion and adds greatly to our happiness." A note of this kind is formal, but courteous and all that is needful. The groom writes no letter of thanks, unless gifts are sent to him from persons unacquainted with his wife. Invitations can be written for a small home wedding, though neatly engraved ones are more desirable. One card may be extended to a single individual or an entire family. The bride's family purchases the invitations, the house and church decorations. The groom pays for the bridal flowers, the ring, license, flowers for bridesmaids and carriage for himself and best man. In some places the organist is paid, while often a friend performs this pleasant duty and no remuneration is offered. The best man carries the groom's wedding fee and it is delivered at an appropriate moment after the ceremony. The bride has the right to ask of her bridesmaids to wear certain colors that will harmonize with certain color schemes. A married sister or married friend may properly be chosen as matron of honor, even though bridesmaids are omitted.

VIRGINIA STYLE

Of Frying Chicken a Delicious Method of Preparation.

Fried chicken is, of course, my chief recollection of the poultry dishes "mother used to make," says Christine Terhune Herrick in the May Delineator. We had roast chicken besides, and barbecued and smothered and boiled chicken, and roast and boiled turkey and roast duck. But fried chicken was as regular an article on the Virginia bill of fare as beefsteak is in some Northern homes—chicken, fried plain, or with cream gravy, with bacon or without. Broiled chicken appeared pretty often—we always had it for breakfast Sunday—but it was not such a Virginia dish as fried chicken. The Southern cook of old time might fail on anything else in the culinary line, but I don't believe I ever heard of one who got her "han' out" in cooking poultry.

For this you must have young chickens, broiling size, and they must be cut apart as for fricassee, rinsed, wiped dry, peppered lightly and then rolled in flour, a piece at a time. Meanwhile half a pound of salt pork should have been sliced and cooked in a frying-pan long enough to make the fat flow, but not enough to brown the pork. In this fat lay the pieces of chicken and fry to a good brown, turning the pieces as they cook. When all are done take out with a fork, so as to free from grease, and lay in a hot dish. Set this in the open oven and pour into the gravy left in the frying pan a cupful of rich milk—half cream is better—add a tablespoonful of flour rubbed smooth with a tablespoonful of butter, stir until the sauce has boiled smooth and thick, add a tablespoonful of minced parsley and pour over the chicken.

DAUGHTERS OF NORWAY MEET

Grand Lodge is Holding Annual Session in West End.

Credentials from twenty-six lodges were received today at the first session of the annual convention of the Grand Lodge of the Daughters of Norway, which is convened in Duluth. The meetings are being held at Columbia hall, at Twentieth avenue west. Routine business was transacted at today's sessions, and tomorrow the annual election of officers for the grand lodge will take place and the place of meeting for the next convention will be decided upon. It is probable that Superior will be chosen as the meeting place.

Delegates from Minneapolis, St. Paul, Albert Lea and other Northwestern cities are in attendance at the meeting, which is one of the most successful the society has ever held. The order was founded eleven years ago and now has a membership of 1,700, with lodges in Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin and Washington.

The present officers are: Grand president, Marie Johanson, Minneapolis; grand secretary, Karen Larsen, Minneapolis; grand vice president, Sophia Wetterland, Minneapolis; past grand president, Lena Schulberg, Minneapolis; grand treasurer, Matilda Gilbertson, Minneapolis; trustees, Sarah Lee and Belle Smith, Minneapolis, and Inga Warwick of St. Paul; ceremoner, Mrs. Figen, St. Paul; marshal, Miss Wangen, Albert Lea; inside guard, Miss Wollen, Fargo; outside guard, Mrs. Olson, West Duluth.

SUPERIOR NEWS

HAS BUSY SESSION.

City Council Sustains Mayor Crompton's Veto of Bridge Resolution.

The city council had a busy session last evening and disposed of a great many matters which had been accumulating during the past several days. Mayor Crumpton's veto of a resolution conferring certain powers to a committee of the aldermen to negotiate with the railroads relative to the building of a footbridge over the tracks from Third street to the Lehigh road was sustained. Mayor Crumpton claimed the resolution was too binding on the city.

The board of public works was directed to make the necessary arrangements preparatory to paving Third street with plain macadam between Lumborn and Banks avenues.

The aldermen voted to settle a lawsuit involving $11,000 worth of street improvement bonds, at a saving of $2,141.07 to the city.

The ordinance providing that the appointment of a secretary to the board of public works and of sewer, street and sidewalk inspectors, should be subject to the approval of the mayor was sidetracked for a time.

Alderman Rosie introduced an ordinance prohibiting newsboys from selling papers in the saloons.

The council ordered a large number of sidewalks built.

Sanborn an Optimist.

Senator Sandborn of Ashland, Wis., who is a member of the La Follette campaign committee, and who is in Superior today, says that the La Follette boom is taking on great proportions and that everywhere they are climbing on the band wagon. Everything looks bright and promising for the Wisconsin man at the Chicago convention, in Senator Sandborn's opinion.

Civic League Gets Evidence.

According to statements by the members of the Civic league the lid was tilted fast Sunday by two of the saloons in South Superior. Acting on the information furnished warrants have been issued for the arrest of George Dow and Herman Malchow, proprietors of the two saloons. It is claimed that members of the Civic league purchased liquor in the places in question last Sunday. Dow's place is just outside the city limits so a state warrant was procured in his case.

Bids Are Opened.

The county asylum committee of the board of supervisors met yesterday and opened bid for the construction work on the new building. Little progress was made in the way of awards. There are some points in connection with the contracts that will have to be settled before any ward will be made. A. J. Dauplaise of South Superior will let the contract for the boiler house and laundry and the American Heating company will get the contract for the heating, ventilating and plumbing. Mr. Dauplaise's bid was $11,800 and the heating company's bid was about $33,000.

CLAIMS SALARY WAS WITHHELD

Mrs. Dixon Demands $595 From the Du Pont Powder Company.

The trial of the civil action of Mrs. Myrtle Dixon of Hibbing against the DuPont Powder company was begun yesterday afternoon in Judge Dibell's room. Mrs. Dixon claims that the powder company owes her $595 for services rendered in 1906 and 1907, at Hibbing. She alleges that the company agreed to pay her $35 per month, but that so far she had been paid nothing. C. C. Teare is Mrs. Dixon's attorney and H. R. Spencer appears for the powder company.

The personal injury case of Blume against the Dumas-Backus Lumber company was argued to the jury this morning. The plaintiff asks for $2,200 for the loss of a finger at the defendant's sawmill. He claims the accident was due to a peculiarity in the operation of the circular saw of which he had not been informed. W. E. Green appeared for Blume and H. B. Fryberger for the defendant.

When your food seems to nauseate take Kodol. There isn't any doubt about what it will do and you will find the truth of this statement verified after a few weeks' use. Sold here by all druggists.

FOOTLIGHT FAVORITES GIVE HEARTY PRAISE TO THE NEW BALLAD, "SWEETHEART DAYS"

"Many thanks for the new songs just received. I think "Sweetheart Days" the best of all. It should be one of the greatest hits you have ever published."

Bessie Wynn.

"I want to extend congratulations upon your new song "Sweetheart Days." That this ballad will win universal popularity goes without saying. It has the true ring."

Adele Ritchie.

"Sweetheart Days" is one of the prettiest and most pleasing songs I have heard in years. I sincerely believe it will crowd to the front rank of popular ballads. Congratulations."

Cheridah Simpson.

"Again you have picked a winner. If "Sweetheart Days" does not take the country by storm I will be much surprised. The words and music are certainly ideal for a sentimental ballad."

Ethel Levy.

Four of America's best stage favorites have furnished their opinions, as above, to Jerome H. Remick & Co., publishers of "Sweetheart Days." Certainly they are well qualified to judge of the merits of a song, as all of the best numbers published are submitted for their consideration. "Sweetheart Days" is by the writer of "Dreaming," but has a much sweeter melody and the verses and chorus are written with a rare charm and sentimental appeal. Leading music dealers everywhere already report a tremendous sale on "Sweetheart Days," which would indicate that the four singers pictured above have made no mistake in predicting great success for this new song.

CONGRESSMAN LILLEY IS WARMLY ROASTED

self to be used as an instrument of the Lake Torpedo Boat company in its rivalry and attacks upon a competing company.

Seventh—That Mr. Lilley's real object in introducing his resolution and making his charges was the same as the purpose of the propaganda of the Lake Torpedo company, namely, the defeat of the clause in the naval committee's bill relating to submarines.

Eighth—That Mr. Lilley acted in bad faith in concealing from your committee the real parties in interest who were behind this investigation and furnishing him with information and evidence.

Ninth—That the charge that the four battleship proposition was defeated by the adoption of the submarine clause was false; that Mr. Lilley, as a member of the naval committee, knew that the charge was false, and that he refused to maintain the charge before this committee.

Tenth—That Mr. Loud was made the object of anonymous charges that were without any foundation in fact.

Violated His Obligation.

Eleventh—That Mr. Lilley violated his obligation as a member of this house in formulating and urging before this committee the groundless charges charges against Representative Loud.

Twelfth—That Mr. Lilley acted in contempt of this house in destroying the forged letter from Webster to Edinborough, instead of delivering it to this committee.

Thirteenth—That Mr. Lilley violated his obligations as a member of this house in permitting his clerk to send out letters in Mr. Lilley's name reflecting on the honor and integrity of members of this house.

Fourteenth—That Mr. Lilley acted in contempt of this house in not disavowing, openly upon the floor of the house, the letter to Goff, published over his signature, reflecting upon the honor and integrity of members of this house.

Fifteenth—That no official of the navy has been induced by the officials of the Electric company, or any one else, to act in his official capacity for corrupt or improper motives.

Sixteenth—That Mr. Lilley's charge of excessive profits in the submarine contracts was based on fictitious figures, composed by an agent of the Lake Torpedo Boat company, by a perversion of the testimony of Admiral Bowles in 1902.

Seventeenth—That the charge that an excessive profit in the submarine contracts was due to special legislation in favor of one company was false, and Mr. Lilley knew that the charge was false when he made it.

No Representative of Press Bribed.

Eighteenth—That no representative of the press has been bribed or corrupted by the Electric Boat company.

Nineteenth—That no member of the committee on naval affairs has been induced by the officers of the electric company to act in his official capacity from corrupt or improper motives.

Twentieth—That no member of this house has been induced by the officers of the electric company to act in his official capacity from corrupt or improper methods.

Twenty-first—That the two attorneys employed by the Electric Boat company in the districts of members of the naval committee, and remote from business of said company, did not exercise a corrupting influence upon either Mr. Lilley or Mr. Loud, in whose districts they lived.

Twenty-second—That no campaign or other contributions were made by the Electric Boat company to any member of this house or to any campaign committee or fund of any political party.

Twenty-third—That Mr. Lilley has sworn repeatedly, including his last appearance before this comittee, that he had no further suggestions, facts or sources of information and that he had withheld from the committee nothing that would tend to sustain his charges.

Henry Sherman Boutell, Frederick C. Stevens, Martin Olmstead, William M. Howard, R. F. Broussard.

will show results which the public mind will be able to grasp, but I should say that after the expiration of the formative period big things will be realized. If, as it is generally said, this nation has reached a pass which should occasion the gravest apprehension, it is about time that we began to put our house in order. I do not know of a better way to go about it than through the permanent establishment of an annual gubernatorial conference or convention.

Washington No Place to Meet.

"But I want to say right here that I believe Washington should never be selected as the place of another meeting of the kind. The atmospaere of the capital is essentially political. You must keep politics out of this institution. I think a city like Springfield, Ill., would be an ideal place. Then there are the large university and college towns. The place chosen should be where big agricultural experiments are being carried on. There you would have object lessons to hand—lessons that are essential—for our redemption is to come from the soil and in no other way.

"It is all very well to hold conventions and prepare papers and talk, but we might as well stay at home if our papers, our talk and our purposes mean nothing. At the recent conference talkers were limited to twenty minutes, and, to illustrate what I have just said, I want to mention the case of a man from Chicago, who got up and used fifteen minutes of his time telling us that if the world kept going around as it has been doing for so long that at the end of 10,000 years it will have shrunk a foot through erosion.

"I could not help but chuckle over this terrifying announcement. That, indeed, is looking ahead. I am more modest—2,000 or 4,000 years is far enough to plan, I think.

"But what I hope to see is the people looking ahead and planning for a couple of generations. That will be enough to get them into the habit of thinking, and those who come after will inherit the idea and purposes of conservation and carry them along for their allotted time. We must go back to the land. There is no other way for us."

SENATOR PLATT, AGED AND FEEBLE, SWEARS HE NEVER ASKED MAY C. WOOD TO WED

was the parlor and there were two bedrooms and a bathroom.

"Did you talk to the plaintiff in November, 1901, about marriage?"

"No."

"Did you, on Thursday, Nov. 9, ask her to marry you, the ceremony to take place on Saturday, and say you yourself would make all arrangements?"

"I did not," replied the senator.

Never Gave Her Photograph.

The senator denied emphatically that he had given Miss Wood a photograph of himself on which he had written, "To my dear wife." Miss Wood testified that she was sitting on Platt's knee while he wrote these words.

Mr. Lebarbier, Miss Wood's counsel, asked Mr. Platt if he ever addressed Miss Wood in endearing terms.

Patt said:

"I may have foolishly done so some times."

Platt said he saw Miss Wood sometimes at his business office at 49 Broadway and that Miss Wood called with a Mrs. Canfield, who was a candidate for an appointment in the Philippines.

"How many times did you see her at the Fifth Avenue hotel?" asked Mr. Lebarbier.

"I could not say. I saw her there a good many times."

"Did you call her Katy?"

"I called her Catty in my love letters. I was very much pleased with her and liked her very much."

"Did she call you by any pet name?"

"Never in my life."

"Why did you like her?"

"Because she was an agreeable woman."

"Did you ever at any time or place marry the plaintiff in this suit?" asked Mr. Stanchfield, counsel for the senator.

"I did not."

"Did you ever promise to marry the plaintiff?"

"I did not."

"Did she ever promise to marry you?"

"Not that I know of."

The senator said that he first learned that Miss Wood claimed to be his wife from a Chicago newspaper, he thought in 1903. he could not remember the year.

"Did you ever give the plaintiff a wedding ring?"

"I never gave the plaintiff a wedding ring in my life."

"Did you ever have a wedding ring inscribed for her?"

"Never in my life," was the answer.

Never Saw Certificate.

The lawyer handed the senator the alleged marriage certificate and the senator said that he never saw the paper before in his life, although he had seen a photograph of it.

"Did you, on the night of Nov. 9, 1901, hand that paper to the plaintiff?"

"I never did."

"Do you know where the exhibit was procured, or who procured it?"

"I do not."

"Is there any handwriting of yours on that paper?"

The senator looked the paper over, back and front, and answered:

"There is not."

A number of the letters alleged to have been written by the senator to Miss Mae C. Wood were read, and he denied that he had written of them.

The letter reading "Your letter is so bright, it almost reconciles me to Odell's election," was dated 1901, and Mr. Stanchfield asked "Odell was elected way back in 1900, was he not?"

"He was."

"Yes that was the year he beat me, and I thought I could not be mistaken," said Mr. Stanchfield, which raised a laugh in the court room, in which the senator joined.

The senator declared positively that he had never maintained improper relations with the plaintiff.

Victim of Drink Needs Orrine

Drink cunningly destroys the will power, and while the drunkard wants to do what you tell him, he wants a thousand times more the drink that he craves. Medical treatment is necessary. Orrine will destroy the desire for liquor, so that the drink will not be missed and restores the patient to health.

The remedy is thoroughly scientific, and is so uniformly successful that it is sold with a registered guarantee to refund your money if it fails to effect a cure. STATE HAS A NEW THEORY but that on this second trip he took the Guenther road. From this road he could readily have seen the fire. If the state is able to fully support this theory, it will be a blow to Lamphere's defense, for the accused is somewhat relying on an alibi that will show that he went north that morning, on the Guenther road, about an hour after the fire was started. Much depends upon the testimony of Albert Zelmer, the 14-year-old boy, who made a deposition before Prosecutor Smith to the effect that he saw flames shooting up from the Gunness house, flames that looked to him like they had been started by oil. Later, he saw a man coming from the scene, and though he did not know him, he identified Lamphere in the county jail several days later as the man that was running back toward town. Since then the lad has told a different story and fixed a later time for this important incident.

When his attention was drawn thereto, the boy declined to explain.

Mrs. H. Whitzer of Toledo, Ohio, fears that her daughter, who in 1902 attended the University of Valparaiso, at Valparaiso, Ind., nine miles west of Laporte, was among Mrs. Gunness' victims. Mrs. Whitzer arrived here today to investigate the girl's disappearance. The girl disappeared from school after writing her mother that she was going on a visit. She was never heard from after that and no trace was ever found of her.

large. The convention has nothing to do with the sixty-four district delegates, who were elected at the primaries in April. A majority of these delegates are claimed for William J. Bryan and a few are favorable to Judge George Gray. Col. Guffey is supported by Charles H. Donnelly and Thomas J. Ryan, the leaders of the Philadelphia Democracy and by State Chairman Doemling and some other leaders from the interior of the state.

Opposed to Col. Guffey and his followers are several well known leaders such as Former Lieutenant Governor Jere S. Black of York and James Kerr of Clearfield, former clerk of the national house of representatives. They are out for binding instructions for Bryan and will listen to nothing else. They claim that the Democrats at the polls elected a majority of the district delegates for Mr. Bryan.

An Attempt to Oust Him.

Col. Guffey believes that the fight being made to instruct the delegates is really an attempt to oust him from the national committee and he is making his fight on that ground. The new national committeeman will be elected by the Pennsylvania delegation at Denver.

The Guffey or organization, faction has prepared a platform which does not touch on the matter of presidential candidates. The Bryan people say they will accept this platform and add to it a plank indorsing Bryan. The few followers here of Judge Gray and Governor Johnson are supporting the Guffey people in favor of no instructions.

R. W. Irwin of Washington county is the temporary chairman of the convention. Peter A. O'Boyle of Wilkesbarre is the Guffey candidate for permanent chairman and the Bryanites are supporting William T. Creasy of Columbia county, for the place. There will be a stiff fight over the chairmanship of the committee on resolutions.

Probably the most interesting and at the same time important development of the morning will be the action of the organization Democrats in bowling out Former State Treasurer Berry as one of their candidates for delegates-at-large. Mr. Berry is a Bryan man and was placed on the slate of the Bryan men.

When he arrived here early today he was informed by a state leader that he could not ride two horses at the same time, and that if he was for Mr. Guffey and wanted to be on the organization ticket he would have to decline to stand as a candidate on the Bryan ticket.

After Mr. Berry had a talk with Col. Guffey it was announced that he would not be placed on the Guffey ticket.

WAS HELD UP BY HIGHWAYMEN

Henry Mattson Knocked Down and Robbed of $4.

According to a story told the police at midnight last night by Henry Mattson, he was held up and robbed of his watch and $4 by two men on Michigan street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues west. He says the pair sprang at him from a dark hallway, and after throwing him to the sidewalk, one of them held him by the throat while the other went through his pockets.

Reprint Home Recipe—Many Thin Women Now Plump and Pretty.

Madame Moneaux, deceased beauty specialist of New York, long possessed the greatest of all secrets pertaining to feminine charm. And what is this great secret, so much desired by women—the secret that has made a vast fortune for the madam's heirs, and that brought her all the famous actresses and society leaders for patrons?

"What, you don't know?"

It is a simple, but sure method of developing the bust, arms and neck of women, who, through defect of nutrition and circulation, are humiliated by undeveloped arms, neck and bust. The treatment consists of applying a powerful but harmless nerve-stimulant to the cells of the skin, to be absorbed and utilized as nourishment to the flesh cells and tissues. Beautiful changes are wrought. Ugly, deformed women are developed into charming personages, with well-rounded arms and neck and full normal bust of exquisite curve and proportion so much admired in our great actresses and society leaders. Any leading druggist will supply the ingredients to mix at home, and as they are used for various prescriptions no one need be the wiser as to what they are to be used for, which is as it should be for modest womanhood. Get separately "two ounces glycerine," "three ounces Rose Water" and "one ounce Tincture Cadomene" and 5 cents worth of borax. Take home, mix the glycerine with Tincture Cadomene, shake and let stand two hours; then add a teaspoonful of borax and the rose water. Shake well and apply to the neck, arms and bust, rubbing and massaging until completely absorbed; then wash thoroughly with hot water and soap and dry thoroughly. Apply morning and night regularly for several weeks and the most beautiful development wil begin to reward the efforts. It is believed by experts to be the most necessary and effective prescription ever conceived.

This is worth keeping, if not for yourself, for some dear friend who needs it.

HOMEOPATHIC INSTITUTE.

Forty-Second Annual Session Being Held in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The forty-second annual session of the Minnesota State Homeopathic Institute began Tuesday in the mayor's office. The morning session was given over to reports and routine business, and the afternoon session was devoted to scientific subjects. Last evening there was the annual meeting of the Alumni association of the College of Homeopathic Medicine and Surgery of the State university, at Dayton's tea rooms.

Today will come a report on homeopathic institutions in the state, election of officers, and a memorial service in the evening, with scientific sessions morning and afternoon.

The session will adjourn at noon Thursday, and, following adjournment, will come an outing and dinner at Lake Minnetonka, with Minneapolis physicians of the institute the hosts.

The present officers of the institute are as follows: Dr. A.E. Comstock, St. Paul, president; Dr. G. G. Balcom, Lake Wilson, and Dr. H. H. Leavitt, Minneapolis, vice presidents; Dr. H. O. Skinner, St. Paul, secretary; Dr. Margaret Koch, Minneapolis, treasurer.

MARRIAGE LEAKS OUT.

Conductor "Dan" Nolan Could Not Keep It Secret Longer.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. D. Nolan and Johanna Westcott were married April 10, at Moorhead, Minn., by Judge of Probate Court James H. Shade. "Dan" Nolan is a conductor on the Great Northern railway and is running out from this city, while his bride was recently housekeeper at the Hotel Antlers here. There are many friends of the parties who will be pleased at the announcement, for the fact of their marriage had so far been kept a secret.

MADE HIS BOAST GOOD.

Pioneer Minnesotan Said He Bought Rope to Hang Self.

Elk River, Minn., May 20.—William Collins, aged 72, committed suicide here by hanging himself to a tree. He came from Maine to St. Anthony fifty years ago, and later settled in this town. He was making his home with Mrs. Willard Frye, his daughter, on a farm near by. Mr. Collins bought a rope at a store in town yesterday and told several persons he was about to hang himself. It was thought he was fooling, but the sheriff, as a precautionary measure, followed him almost to his home. It was when the officer had turned his back, and no one was near, that Collins committed the deed. He had long been sick and despondent.

CHICAGO CONCERN GETS STATE DITCH CONTRACT.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The award for the contract for the drainage ditch in Kandiyohi and Meeker counties, bids for which were opened at the office of the state drainage engineer two weeks ago, has been made to Forestal & Fegen of Chicago. The digging of this ditch was contested in the supreme court, and the matter was taken from the district court to the supreme, where a vacating order was obtained releasing a restraining order which had been issued.

The price of construction on the Forestal & Fegen bid, 6 2-10 cents per cubic yard, means a saving of $10,669 on the engineer's estimate, which was considered low at the time it was made.

CAN'T KILL CARIBOU.

Red Lake Indians Now Have to Quit Slaughtering Animals.

Bemidji, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Carlos Avery, executive agent for the state game and fish commission, has obtained from the United States commissioner of Indian affairs orders to the Indian agent at Red Lake agency, whereby the Red Lake Indians are forbidden to kill caribou, not only off the reservation, but also within the confines of the reserve.

Heretofore, the Red Lakers have been allowed to about do as they pleased with relation to the observing of the state game and fish laws, and the reds have killed many of the herd of caribou which have inhabited the territory north of the upper arm of Red lake; and it has been a sort of sentiment that the Indian was a privileged person when it came to killing game.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 20.—A message from Pelican Rapids says Andrew Isakson was killed by lightning in his home there. He was closing a window when he met his death.

FESTIVAL A SUCCESS

Last of Three Concerts by Duluth Oratio Association.

Musical Triumph for Directors and Members of Organization.

Last evening's concert at the First M. E. church brought the May festival to a close. It was probably the most successful of the three given, and by many was though: to even surpass, as an artistic success, the other two performances. The audience was frankly delighted with it.

The chorus work last night was particularly fine in "The Wreck of the Hesperus" and in "Olaf Trygvasson," the former being given for the first time in America. Both orchestra and chorus gave it a fine interpretation, and Mr. Reyner is receiving many congratulations on the success he was able to attain.

The Grieg cantata, "Olaf Trygvasson," was very difficult of rendition, but the chorus and orchestra accomplished marvelous results. Madame Ragna Linne and Dr. Schussler were the soloists of the evening. Their work was a delight. Madame Linne appeared to exceptional advantage in an aria from Massenet's "Herciddo," and in the solos of "Olaf Trygvasson."

The Minneapolis orchestra repeated the successes of the previous performances. The program last evening was a well-balanced one. By special request the program was closed with the Elgar arrangement of "America," which opened the festival so brilliantly on Monday evening. Miss Isabelle Pearson was organ accompanist for "Olaf Trygvasson," and her work was excellent.

The feature of the afternoon concert was the splendid rendition of Beethoven's fifth symphony by the orchestra.

The orchestra's reading of it was apparently perfect, and it showed to excellent advantage the magnificent musical organization which has been gathered together under the leadership of Emil Oberhoffer.

The cantata "Into the World" was sung by the chorus of children's voices. Mr. Reyner showed his ability to handle a chorus of children as well as he has handled the adult choral work. The result was most effective, the voices of the children blending well, and the tone being free from the strident note that is too often found in such a chorus. The festival as a whole was one of the greatest musical successes in the history of the city, and few cities in the country are able to boast of such an organization as the Duluth Oratorio association. The patronage was not as large as the festival deserved, and the directors will probably have to stand a financial loss.

Following the concert last evening Mr. Reyner was presented with a handsome cut glass dish by the members of the association, in appreciation of the work he has done.

L. C. WIELAND FUNERAL.

Services Will be Held at Home of His Mother Thursday.

Funeral services for Louis C. Wieland, who died last Sunday at St. Paul, will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home of his mother, Mrs. Louise Wieland, 1107 East Third street at 1:30 p. m., and at the German Evangelical church, Tenth avenue east and Third street at 2 o'clock. The interment will take place at Forest Hill cemetery.

Mr. Wieland was a resident of Duluth from 1893 until 1903, when he married Miss Jennie Schadewald of this city. Shortly after his marriage he removed to Bayfield, Wis., and engaged in the hardware business there.

He leaves a wife, a mother, one sister, Miss Jennie Wieland, of Duluth, and a brother, T. E. Wieland, of Bayfield.

SERMON PRECEDES GAME.

Unusual Proceeding Upon Diamond at Albert Lea.

Albert Lea, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the striking and unusual features of a ball game here Sunday afternoon was an address by Rev. George H. Mueller, rector of the Episcopal church. The divine spoke just before the game was called. In giving his reasons why he was at the ball game he said that there was an old conventional idea that it was a sin to go to a baseball game on Sunday, that a game of baseball on Sunday was contrary to religion. He believed, he said, that if the Master, whom he was trying to serve, was on earth today He would be the first one to the ball game, as he was in sympathy with man and human nature. He, therefore, felt himself justified in being present. He had been asked if he believed in Sunday baseball and he had replied that if anybody's conscience was hurting them because they were present at a Sunday baseball game, they had better go home. The time is past when people can be made good by law. Many men work hard all week and Sunday is their only day of rest and holiday, and they want to be out of doors, and this was especially true of the young men. Mr. Mueller was enthusiastically applauded at the close of his address and he promised to deliver another sermon next Sunday.

The game then proceeded and Albert Lea lost to Lake Mills, the score being 6 to 0.

DID SOME QUICK WORK.

Crookston, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Northern did a fast stroke of business in connection with their efforts to stop further trouble with the Third street sewer outlet. Monday morning they started driving piling each side of the sewer along the main tracks, and by evening the work was completed. Yesterday a gang of men put in the stringers and before night this work was completed.

This is about the fastest piece of work that was ever done in the city.

SEEKS WRECK INVESTIGATION

Morris Man Alleges Soo Suppressed Facts About Affair.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—Representative L. C. Spooner of Morris, has filed with the railway and warehouse commission a demand for an investigation of the wreck on the Soo line near Kensington on Dec. 20, last, in which two were killed and a number hurt. The casualties in all numbered about twenty-five.

Mr. Spooner who says he has been asked to act for the people in the locality where the wreck occurred, declares that he has been informed that the train was running at a high and dangerous rate of speed and that following the wreck, the company was negligent in caring for the killed and wounded. An expressman was killed outright, and a passenger died shortly afterward of her injuries.

Under a law passed by the last legislature, every railroad operating in the state, following a wreck must report to the railway commission, giving all details and including a list of the killed and injured. This Mr. Spooner says was not done by the Soo in this particular accident. He says particulars concerning the wreck were suppressed.

SUES FOR VALUE OF HIS DOG KILLED BY AUTO.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—William S. Miscrip has brought suit against Leslie H. Fawkes of the Fawkes Automobile company, and Wilbur C. Rader to recover $500, the alleged value of a dog run down and killed by the defendant Rader when he was driving a car owned by Mr. Fawkes. The plaintiff describes his dog as a Scotch collie, pure breed, unusual intelligence and thoroughly trained in handling cattle.

TELEPHONE COMPANY SUED.

Employe Seeking Damages in Norman County for Injuries.

Ada, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The district court for Norman county opened here Monday with Judge Grindeland on the bench. There are thirty-four civil cases on the calendar and no criminal. The grand jury is in session and may find some indictments.

The most important case is a damage suit brought by Hans Holden vs. the Gary Telephone company for $2,500 for injuries received last fall while repairing a telephone pole, which broke, throwing the plaintiff to the ground and thereby causing a fracture and sprained ankle. There are fourteen lawyers, making in all eighteen, that will try the different cases.

NEW CHURCH DEDICATED.

Event in Norwegian Lutheran Circles at Colfax, Wis.

Colfax, Wis., May 20.—An event of considerable interest was the dedication of the new Norwegian Synod Lutheran church here Sunday, May 17. The beautiful weather attracted many from neighboring places and the attendance was so large that not all could gain admission to the church.

The dedication service was held in the morning, Bishop J. Norby of Lee, Ill., conducting the services. Nine ministers were also in attendance and assisted, they being Rev. O. S. Rygg of Eau Claire, Rev. Kvanse of Menominie, Rev. Blomholm of Hudson, Rev. Wievy of Prarie Farm, Rev. Flatten of Sand Creek, Rev. Koam of Rice Lake, Rev. Belhus of Stanley, Rev. Waage, also of Sand Creek, and the pastor of the new church, Rev. Satvedt.

ICE WAGON HIT HIM.

Houghton, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Meyer of Meyer Bros. ice dealers, is laid up as the result of being run over by one of the firm's ice wagons, having about 3,000 pounds of the frozen aqua pura on board. A bone in his leg was fractured and he was otherwise injured.

If you want to be forceful you will have to eat foods that are full of "FORCE"

Why not eat "FORCE" itself? It is the wheat-barley food—the kind that repairs waste tissues, builds up worn-out muscles and tired nerves. All the nutritive elements of the whole wheat combined with barley-malt, making them partially digested before they enter the stomach.

"FORCE" is made of the best white wheat, steam-cooked, rolled into thin flakes, combined with the purest barley-malt and baked. Always "crisp" it before serving it by pouring into a pan and warming it in oven. Then serve in large dish with cream, piling the flakes in one side of the dish and pouring the cream in the other side, dipping the flakes as eaten.

Your Grocer sells it. No other Flaked Food is "just as good."

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

FIND HIGH GRADE ORE

Todd County Worked Up Over Some Recent Tests Made.

Iron Ore Similar to That of Europe Said to Exist.

Hewitt, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—This section of Todd county is considerably worked up over the discovery of what is believed to be iron ore of a high quality in Stowe Prairie township. The property owners in the locality are of the opinion a deposit of iron ore of great value underlies the entire region.

The find has been discovered by different farmers and on different farms, so that it is evident it is of wide area. The first discovery of the ore was made on the O'Macht farm, section 12 of that town. While drilling a well the bed of ore was discovered at a depth of forty feet. After drilling into the ore a depth of six feet, the well men gave up the task, as the drill could make little or no progress through the hard material. No one though: the substance was ore of any kind, the supposition being that it was a ledge of hard clay or stone. However, bits of the material being examined, Mr. O'Macht decided it was ore of some kind, and sent a sample to the Chicago Chemical company. It reported after a careful analysis that the substance was iron ore of high quality, testing from 40 to 85 per cent and of a variety seldom found in this country. The ore is similar to that found in some parts of Europe and imported to this country to mix with the Mesabi ore to make the best quality of steel. It thus appears that if the ore is in the right quantities, the find is a very valuable one, and its discovery will have a great and far-reaching importance.

All the farms in that neighborhood that have been listed for sale have suddenly been withdrawn from the market. The O'Macht farm can be prospected on but not sold, Mr. O'Macht stating that if any one wants to drill for iron and give him a royalty on what is mined, he will make such a lease. The Gossel farm is being drilled by the Bank of Bertha people, and soon other farms will be in the hands of prospectors who will continue the investigation and search for iron ore.

FIRST TO BE CALLED.

Brother of Congressman Steenerson Dead at Climax.

Climax, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Andrew Steenerson, formerly sheriff of this Polk county, brother of Congressman Halvor Steenerson, and the first of a family of nine to die, passed away here Monday.

He was 53 years of age and death was caused from diabetes. He left a widow and four children, two boys and two girls, all grown but one girl. The funeral will be held here from the residence at 1 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, under the auspices of the Woodmen, at which the Rev. Mr. Berg will officiate.

Andrew Steenerson was born at Sheldon, Houston county, Minn., on Feb. 9, and came to Climax in the spring of 1874. In 1880 he was united in marriage to Miss Bertha Lang in Crookston.

Deceased was in busines in Crookston under the firm name of Steenerson, Alderman & Hensing in 1880 and this firm did a general mercantile business until 1887. In 1874 Mr. Steenerson took a homestead at Climax, and for some time afterward he was a resident of this place.

Later the deceased became identified with the Farmers' Alliance movement. He was one of the leaders in the movement in Polk county, and on that ticket he was elected sheriff in 1894. In 1900 he was sent to Cincinnati, where he was prominently identified with the organization of the People's party, and the same year came very nearly being elected as a member of congress from this district.

Reduce Your Fat

Rengo Rapidly Reduces Excess Fat Without the Aid of Tiresome Exercises of Starvation Diet.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

Rengo will reduce excess fat and build up the strength and health of anyone who eats it regularly for a short time. It is a product of nature.

Every fat person is a victim to constant, cruel ridicule. Save yourself from humiliation and danger by taking Rengo. Don't wait until you are a disgusting fright.

delicious to the taste and safe and harmless in all its properties. It will not injure the digestive organs as so many drugs and medicines do.

Rengo will positively reduce surplus fat rapidly and do so without harm to the subject. It is very palatable and pleasant to eat. It is prepared in a highly concentrated form and is convenient to carry in the pocket so one can have it with him at all times.

Eat Rengo Like Fruit or Candy.

Rengo requires no exhausting exercises or starvation dieting to help it out as so many of the so-called fat remedies do. You can go right ahead and attend to your regular daily duties. It compels proper assimilation of the food and sends the food nutriment into the muscles, bones and nerves and builds them up instead of piling it up in the form of excess fat.

There is nothing "just as good" as Rengo. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per full sized box, or by mail prepaid, by the Rengo Co., 3325 Rengo Bldg., Detroit, Mich. LARGE AMOUNT IN CHECKS MISSING

Nineteen Thousand Dollars Lost Between Marquette and Ishpeming.

Marquette, Mich., May 20. — (Special to The Herald.) — If anyone will step up to the officials of the county treasurer's office or the local postoffice and inform them of the whereabout of an envelope containing $19,000 of county checks indorsed over to the Miners' National bank of Ishpeming they will ease their minds of considerable worry, and solve what so far appears to be an absolute mystery.

Let it be understood at the outset that there is not a dollar of real money at stake, but unless the checks are forthcoming it may be some time before the cash is all back in the county treasury, and meanwhile the officials will be put to much work. Wherever they are, the checks are hardly negotiable, because of the manner of their indorsement to the Miners' National bank, but notwithstanding it would be a comforable feeling for the officials to have their hand on them again.

The checks were mailed to the Miners' National bank from the county treasurer's office May 7, but have not yet been received at the bank or turned up anywhere else. Where are they? That's the question. Nearly two weeks have elapsed. If they had been misdirected they should have been returned long ago; if they were mislaid they should have turned up, but despite the most searching inquiry by everybody directly interested it has been impossible to get a line on them.

Most of the missing checks were paid into the county treasurer's office by liquor dealers in return for the red card entitling them to do a retail business.

WILL ESTABLISH CEMENT FACTORY

New Industry to be Started at East Grand Forks.

East Grand Forks, Minn., May 20. —(Special to The Herald.)—The latest enterprise to be established in East Grand Forks and one which is bound to make good, will be the cement factory to be opened in this city by W. D. Rowe of Crookston, better kuown as "Sidewalk" Rowe.

Mr. Rowe has been in the city and has fully decided to locate here and give up his business at Crookston, moving his entire establishment to this city. He has not decided on just where he will locate here but his cement works will be somewhere near the Northern Pacific tracks.

The prospects in the cement line in this city will be very good during the coming year as much improvement in the line of cement walks over the city is contemplated. Mr. Rowe is a cement sidewalk contractor of considerable reputation and he has even gained the name of "Sidewalk" Rowe, he neing an expert in this line. East Grand Forks can indeed be congratulated in getting such a worthy enterprise started here, as nothing will help more to build up the city.

JAMES BRYCE TO DELIVER ADDRESS

British Ambassador Will Speak to Wisconsin University Graduates.

Madison, Wis., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—More elaborate than ever are the plans for the fifty-fifth commencement of the University of Wisconsin, which will begin on Sunday, June 14, with the baccalaureate address to be given by James Bryce, British ambassador, and will close Wednesday evening, June 17, with the annual alumni reception and ball. As there are 500 members of the senior class in all the colleges and 195 candidates for higher degrees, the total number of degrees to be granted on commencement day will be nearly 600.

Monday, June 15, will be class day with the ivy planting in the morning, the class day exercises in the afternoon, and the class play, "The Mikado," in the evening, followed by the pipe of peace ceremony. At 10 o'clock the senior class, in caps and gowns, will gather on the upper campus in front of University hall, where the ivy ceremonies will be held. At the ivy ceremonies George C. Matthews of Burlington, class president, will deliver the address of welcome, followed by the ivy planting by Philip Schwenker of La Crosse. Ray M. Stroud of Portage will deliver the ivy oration, and Laura Jamison of Poynette the ivy ode. The farewell to the buildings will be given by William M. Leiserson of Madison.

At 2 o'clock the class day exercises will be given in Assembly hall. John V. Mulany of East Troy and Susan Armstrong of Madison are the class historians. A musical number by Edwin F. Gruhl of Milwaukee will be followed by the farewell to underclassmen by Leslie Spence of Madison and the junior response by Charles Pearce of Dodgeville. Raymond Frost of Madison will deliver the class day oration and Martha Wertz of Forreston, Ill., the class poem. Class statistics will be given by Richard A. Schmidt, Depere, and the class prophecy by Edith Swenson of Madison. The presentation of the class memorial will be made by Homer H. Benton of Madison, and the acceptance for the faculty will be by Prof. H. Maurer of the department of mechanics in the engineering college. Gerhard A. Gesell, Madison, will deliver the farewell to the faculty, and after a musical number by Helen Flint and Walter Kustermann, both of Madison, George Mathews, Burlington, will give the farewell address.

SHORTAGE MADE GOOD.

Citizens' Bank of Bellville, Wis., Has Reopened Its Doors.

Madison, Wis., May 20.—E. C. Story, cashier of the Citizens' Bank of Belleville, Wis., was released Monday on $8,000 bail, signed by himself and several prominent farmers in the vicinity of Belleville. District Attorney Mason filed information against Story, charging him with embezzling $28,355.06 and of sending false reports to the state bank department for examination. The Citizens' State Bank of Belleville was reopened Monday morning, with Assistant Cashier Ivan Ruff acting as cashier. The directors of the bank came forward and made up the shortage.

WRESTLER PUNGLES UP.

Costs Him Over $100 for Brutally Beating Man.

Williston, N. D., May 20.—John Benner of Grand Forks was assessed a fine of $100 and costs, together with a 30-day jail sentence, as a result of a beating administered to a homesteader named Larson. The jail sentence, however, was suspended by the court in view of the fact that the defendant paid all expenses made by Larson as a result of the affair. The fine was also paid. John Benner was arrested in Grafton while en route to Winnipeg, having eluded the Grand Forks and East Grand Forks police during the early morning hours. They got track of him, however, and soon had him arrested at Grafton. Benner is a well-known wrestler.

HOUSE FALLS ON HER.

North Dakota Child is Killed in Strange Manner.

Devils Lake, N. D., May 20.—The 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Johnson, who live in one of the Home Investment residences on Ninth street, was instantly killed by being caught under a falling outhouse.

The accident happened in a peculiar way. A wire clothes line was attached to the house and the closet. A horse, driven by a boy by the name of Lashan became unmanageable, and bolted between the house and closet, striking the clothes line. The strain on the line caused the closet to overturn, and the little girl who had just stepped out of the closet was caught under it.

MAY ISSUE SOME BONDS.

Calumet Gas Company to Consider Proposition Soon.

Calumet, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special meeting of the stockholders of the Calumet Gas company has been called at the company's offices on Friday, May 29, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose of considering and acting upon the following propositions:

1. To consider the proposition of raising money by issuing bonds to be secured by first mortgage on the company's property or in any other manner deemed advisable.

2. To authorize, empower and direct the board of directors of the company to take all such steps as may be necessary or expedient in the issuing of said bonds and the mortgaging or pledging of the company's property for the purpose of securing the same.

3. To authorize and empower the board of directors, officers, or other agents of the company to make, execute, and deliver such instruments in writing as may be necessary to carry out the purpose aforesaid.

WARD COUNTY EDITORS

Form Association to Work for Mutual Interests.

Minot, N. D., May 20.—The Ward County Editorial association, which held a meeting here recently did some very good work for the newspapers of Ward county. The principal object of the meeting was to perfect the organization of the association, which was started last winter. Officers were elected as follows: President, Sam H. Clark of the Reporter; secretary and treasurer, Leigh Carroll of the Carpio News; executive committee, G. D. Colcord of the Ward County Independent, George J. Smith of the Plaza Pioneer, G. W. Tilton of the Ryder News, J. W. Schnitzler of the Mohall Tribune and J. C. Mitchell of the Kenmare News.

It was decided to hold the next meeting of the association June 25, the day following the primary election.

INJURED UNDER ENGINE IN YARDS AT DILWORTH.

Fargo, N. D., May 20.—With every chance for recovery against him, a man whose name is believed to be William Olson lies at the St. John's hospital, the victim of an accident at Dilworth Saturday evening at 7:30, which adds another name to the list of fatally injured which has increased so fast since the establishment of the Minnesota railroad town just across the river.

The accident occurred when three engines were at work on parallel tracks in the Dilworth yards and it is believed that the man was getting out of the way of one engine when he stepped in front of another as it came speeding by, unseen by him while he was not discovered in time to stop the engine.

A horrible scalp wound was inflicted, half of the scalp being laid back, which was replaced at the hospital. The right arm was mutilated to such an extent that amputation was imperative while the right leg was crushed badly.

COMMISSIONERS IN CONTEMPT

Bismarck, N. D., May 20.—Judge Winchester held the commissioners of Dunn county in contempt of court Saturday for not obeying the order of the court to call an election in that county to decide the location of the county seat, the commissioners having refused to obey on the ground that law was unconstitutional.

Monday the commissioners appeared before the supreme court and asked for a writ of habeas corpus on the above grounds.

This is a fight between the towns of Manning and Connolly, the latter having been designated as the county seat by the governor, and the case hinges on the construction the court will place on two separate laws governing removal of county seats.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Nagaunee—The Catholic Order of Foresters of Marquette county will hold a celebration here next Sunday, in observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the society. The courts at Marquette, Ishpeming and Negaunee will participate.

Ishpeming—Chester Betteson, who has served three years in Uncle Sam's army, has returned to his home in this city, having received his honorable discharge. He spent the first year at Fort Logan, Colo., and the last two in the Philippines.

Marquette—Frank Wallace, who is now in the employ of the Southern Pacific in California, is in the city, having been called here on account of the serious condition of his mother, Mrs Cuddahey, who recently suffered a stroke of apoplexy. Mrs. Cuddahey's condition was yesterday reported as being somewhat better.

EACH IS GIVEN A JAIL SENTENCE

R. Jackson and Tillie Hendrickson Guilty of Statutory Offense.

Robert Jackson and Tillie Hendrickson were given jail sentences by Judge Cutting in municipal court yesterday afternoon. Jackson is the negro arrested Monday night on complaint of Miss Hendrickson, who is a white girl, and who charged the man with having tried to force her to live a life of shame in order to provide support for them both.

Jackson was sentenced to four months in jail, thirty days on a charge of assault and ninety days on a statutory charge. The young woman was sent to the county jail for two months. Both testified that they had been living together as man and wife for some time past, although unmarried.

The evidence showed that the two met in a St. Paul restaurant owned and operated by a negro, and patronized largely by negroes. After living for a time together in the Saintly City, they came to Duluth two weeks ago, and since then have been living at the Royal hotel.

According to the story told on the witness stand by the girl yesterday, Jackson accused her of being on familiar terms with other men, told her he was without money, and that she would have to earn a living for them both by leading a life of shame. She claims he made her get on her knees and swear that she had been on intimate terms with another man since coming to Duluth, and that he struck her several times after the admission. As soon as she could get away from him, she made her complaint to the police, and his arrest followed.

PURDY JUDGESHIP NOT TO BE SETTLED

Senator Nelson's Committee Will Not Meet Again This Session.

Washington, May 20.—Definite announcement was made yesterday that the senate committee on judiciary has held its last meeting this session. This means that there will be no action on M. D. Purdy's nomination for federal judge in Minnesota and that the president will have to decide whether he will give Mr. Purdy a recess appointment.

If he does, Mr. Purdy will have to serve without compensation and must take chances on being confirmed in the short session next winter.

Senator Nelson, who is chairman of the sub-committee in charge of the Purdy nomination, has not indicated to a single person in Washington what he will do if Mr. Purdy is given a recess appointment and renomination next December. In fact, so far as can be learned he has not talked with anyone about the case since Purdy's name was sent to the senate.

Some friends of Mr. Purdy believed at one time that he would be confirmed before adjournment, but they have changed their minds lately after learning that Senator Nelson had not even called a meeting of his sub-committee.

GENERAL CONDEMNATION LAW IS SUFFICIENT.

Washington, May 20.—Holding that the general condemnation law of 1907 is sufficient for any necessary procedure by the government in the case, the house committee on rivers and harbors yesterday voted to take no action on the Young bill, whose purpose is to authorize the secretary of war to obtain possession of lands necessary for new locks, with a spare canal, at the falls of St. Mary's river, Michigan. It will now be in order for the government to acquire by condemnation proceedings under the 1907 act, the lands of Sault Ste. Marie required for locks and canals.

SIX-TRACK RAILROAD

From Pittsburg is Projected by the Pennsylvania Company.

New Orders Received by Foundries for Constructural Iron.

New York, May 20.—It has been months since there was such a continuous stream of business items, all looking to improvement and all contributing to the great movement of the country toward active and profitable industrial and economical affairs. No one section of the country is leading in this, but all sections are briskly advancing to greater volumes of trade and traffic.

The new orders for structural iron have started the Trenton, N. J., works, and 1,800 men went to work on full time last week.

The orders of the Pennsylvania Railroad company to resume work on the Greensburg tunnel is a preparatory step to the project of making a six-track road from Pittsburg to New York city, and in every direction in railway circles there is activity that portends immense expenditures in all portions of the country and a renewed demand for labor and for railway supplies and material. The reports from the South as to railway business is very reassuring, and in some of the districts the current movement of cars is fully equal to that of 1907 at the same period of the year.

The government appropriation for public buildings, which passed the senate yesterday, carries upward of $26,000,000 for such purposes and will give quite an impetus to the market for structural material, and also contribute to the employment of many trades union people now idle.

This bill generally distributes such expenditures in a very equitable manner over the United States, and after a depression in business and stagnation in demand for labor, the local and the resultant general betterment caused by such expenditures becomes an important factor in the national recovery.

Markets Improving.

The upward swing of the securities market continues, and for fully three weeks now no reaction of any consequence has been apparent. Recessions of one-third of a prior advance have been witnessed, but such recessions have quickly been followed by advances that swept the level of prices point after point above the prior heights. Wall street has lost all fear and has become most optimistic.

Here and there one hears expressions (and wise ones they are), "Better wait until we know surely as to the crops," but the street, in its new-born enthusiasm, pays no attention to the words of caution.

Again, some fearsome one says, "The presidential election will check all business," but others reply, "The country is sound and no man or no party can stay its progress."

Six weeks ago the majority of the operators were telling each other frightful stories of future financial, commercial and industrial distress; now they scoff at caution and are filled with an optimism largely the result of the rebound from calamity to security. The successful placing of the Pennsylvania railway bond issue completely dispelled the clouds in the security markets and the financial institutions are now helping on to good times by encouraging words, and by every means in their power are striving to produce conditions so their vast hoards of idle money can be safely put to work.

It has been plain for three months that all that was needed to cause renewed activity in all classes of business was to remove the fright which had taken possession of bankers of high and low degree.

They had drawn in their loans as fast and as far as possible and this paralyzed the merchants and manufacturers of the country and stoped construction works in 10,000 places.

Were Still Fearsome.

The bankers generally were safe at all times, except through a foolish, frantic panic, but by the 10th of December, 1907, such folly on the part of the depositors had ceased and the bankers as a class were no longer at the mercy of clients or rumor mongers, but for weeks after they were governed by the fears engendered during October and November.

Now all goes well, and except in the Pittsburg district, where peculiar local financial practices still produce disturbance, there is a renewal of the business relations between the banks and their customers who borrow for business purposes.

It is surprising the quiet yet rapid progress toward complete restoration of former business activities.

Work was resumed last week upon double tracking, ten miles of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg railroad giving employment to 1,000 men. This work will involve an expenditure of $1,250,000. Advices from all the cotton manufacturing sections of New England report much better demand for their products, and it is stated everything points to a continued increase of demand for the future months.

The London wool auction sales of last week displayed a broadening of the trade and wools brought advance in prices as compared with the prior sales.

There is not the slightest doubt that wool will be much higher in price next autumn and winter than it is now, but it is very plainly to be seen that the greater part of the clip of the United States will pass to the buyers at present low prices, and that the wool producers, not being as thoroughly organized as the cotton planters, will not be able to obtain either last year's prices nor hold for the increase over present prevailing low rates. In short, the first eight months of 1908 will be the wool buyers' profitable period. It is their innings and they will make a good score.

The reserves of foreign banks continue to increase and the Bank of England's percentage of reserve is 5 per cent greater than at the same period of the past eight years. The Bank of France has had an increase of 33,000,000 francs in its gold holdings for the last week.

Germany is rapidly becoming quite easy financially, and private reports from England and France all concur in the statement as to the favorable conditions for financing enterprises located in the United States.

The money is ready and the sentiment of the people decidedly in favor of investing it here. The Pennsylvania loan is but the forerunner of others that are now in process of negotiation.

BISHOP BANG VISITS DULUTH

Foremost Churchman of Norway Stops at Head of Lakes.

Norway's foremost churchman, Bishop Anton Christian Bang, D. D., of Christiania, and primate of Norway's state church, was in the city yesterday, the guest of H. B. Knudson and Attorney John Heltman. He came here from Minneapolis, where he was the principal speaker at the 17th of May celebration. He left again last night on the steamer Buffalo, the guest of the Western Transit company, for a trip down the lakes.

Bishop Bang crowned Haakon VI king of Norway in 1906, and on his trip to America he brought greetings and a private message from King Haakon to President Roosevelt. In Washington he had a long conference with the president, and received highly favorable impressions of the nation's chief executive.

On behalf of the king he conferred the degree of the Order of St. Olaf upon Lur Larson, professor in the Norwegian college at Decorah, Iowa; Rev. Dahl of Minneapolis, and Prof. Sven Oftedal, principal of the Augsburg seminary at Minneapolis, all of whom have distinguished themselves by their work in America. In Minneapolis he dedicated the statue of Henrick Wergeland, one of Norway's greatest poets, a gift of the Norwegian people to the Norwegians of America. The bishop is visiting various points of interest in the United States, and said he liked Duluth very much. He was entertained at luncheon at the Spalding hotel, and afterwards was taken by William Eklund for a drive around the boulevard.

HOUSE GETS BUSY.

Cleans Up Many Matters, Looking to Adjournment This Week.

Washington, May 20.—The house yesterday again showed its capacity for work, and having adjournment this week in mind, continued the cleaning up process. The conference report on the legislative bill was again discussed on the agricultural appropriations. The bill making an appropriation of $1,500,000 for representation by the United States at the Tokio exposition in 1912 was passed, as were also two omnibus bills, embodying forty separate measures having to do with public lands and matters in the territories.

Twenty-five bills embraced in one and having to do with land matters in a number of states, were passed by the house under suspension of the rules. Among these were the following:

Relieving certain classes of commutation nomestead entrymen. Confirming a large number of patents heretofore issued on lands under military bounty land warrants. Extending the mining laws of the United States to the Bitter Root valley mining district. Establishing new land districts in North and South Dakota. Granting a cemetery tract in Dubuque, Iowa, to the archbishop of the Catholic diocese of that city, and confirming a number of private land titles.

BUFFALO BILL

Celebrates His Twenty-Fifth Anniversary as an Exhibitor.

Washington, May 20.—Col. William F. Cody's (Buffalo Bill's) twenty-fifth anniversary as an exhibitor of typical American wild life was celebrated yesterday in Washington. Government officials, army officers and many long-time friends of Col. Cody participated. The anniversary performances of Buffalo Bill's show were attended by members of the president's family, Gen. Eugene A. Carr, Gen. Wesley Merritt and twenty other general officers of the army with whom Col. Cody served in the early days on the Western plains. In addition there were cabinet officers, senators and representatives in congress and officials of all branches of the government. Col. Cody's mimic repitition of the historic American events was approved by distinguished army officers, who themselves participated in them. Quentin Roosevelt rode in the Deadwood coach and made the acquaintance of the noted Indian chiefs with the show.

DUEL CALLED OFF.

St. Petersburg, May 20.—A duel which had been arranged to take place Thursday morning between M. Guchkoff, the Octoberist leader, and Prof. Paul Milukoff, leader of the Constitutional Democrats, has been declared off, thanks to the intervention of influential members of the duma.

CONSPIRACY IS ALLEGED

Mae Wood Says Government Officials Tried to Get Love Letters.

Sensational Testimony is Given in Suit Against Senator Clapp.

New York, May 20.—High government officials at Washington are alleged to have conspired to obtain possession of love letters said to have been written by United States Senator Thomas C. Platt to Miss Mae C. Wood, according to a signed statement introduced as evidence during yesterday's hearing in Miss Wood's suit for divorce against the senator.

The statement which was introduced after the court had denied a motion by counsel for Senator Platt to dismiss the complaint, bears what purports to be the signature of J. Martin Miller, and Miss Wood said that while she did not see the signature affixed she was assurred by Mr. Miller that it was genuine.

The statement was prepared by Miller at her request, she testified. It declared that Miller was asked by "high government officials in Washington and New York to get possession of Senator Platt's love letters," that the papers when obtained were not to be given to Senator Platt, but were to be turned over to "Mr. Loeb in Washington;" and that when the plan to get possession of the original papers failed, a scandal was begun in the newspapers to force Miss Wood to come to terms. "Wynne, first assistant postmaster general, started the ball rolling by getting a New York newspaper to print the article as it first appeared," says the statement, which concludes:

Acted Under Loeb's Direction.

"I was gotten into the conspiracy by powerful officials whom I dare not to displease from a newspaper or political standpoint. I consulted Mr. Howe, Senator Platt's secretary, frequently, and acted at all times under the direction of Loeb and Platt."

Former Postmaster General Robert J. Wynne is the present American consul general to London. J. Martin Miller, a former newspaper man, recently was American consul at Rheims, France.

"Did Miller ever say anything to you about the letters?" asked the examining attorney of Miss Wood, who had been on the witness stand in her own behalf since early Monday.

"Yes," she replied, "he said that if he got the letters the Platts would never get them."

"What was he going to do with them?"

"Hold them over Platt's head, I believe," she answered.

Statement by Miller.

The statement purporting to have been signed by Miller bears the date of Oct. 15, 1903. It reads:

"I was asked by high officials in Washington and New York to get possession of Senator Platt's love letters to Mae C. Wood. In order to do this, I had to pretend I would get out a book for which she gave me the manuscript on Oct. 8, 1903. It was agreed by all parties interested that I was to get her to New York and get the papers out of her room.

"Mr. Loeb called up Platt in New York and told him Miss Wood was suing him for breach of promise. Then Platt said he would be a party to the scheme. I failed to get possession of any original documents or letters. We then began the scandal in the newspapers to force her to come to terms. Wynne, first assistant postmaster general, started the ball rolling by getting a New York paper to print the article as it first appeared.

"I established my headquarters in the Tribune building, disseminating such information as I could get from the office of the first assistant postmaster general, Senator T. C. Platt was fully informed of all matters by me, and I was instructed to co-operate with him, but the original papers were not to be given to Platt, but to Mr. Loeb at Washington.

"I was gotten into the conspiracy by powerful officials whom I dare not displease from a newspaper or political standpoint. I consulted Mr. Howe, Senator Platt's secretary, frequently, and acted at all times under the direction of Loeb and Platt. (Signed)

"J. MARTIN MILLER."

Denied by Loeb.

Washington, May 20.—Secretary Loeb said last night that he knew nothing about the allegations contained in a statement signed J. Martin Miller, and brought out in the Wood-Platt suit in New York yesterday, and that the statements made therein, in so far as they concern him, are wholly untrue.

"I never called on Senator Platt," he said, "and know nothing whatever about the matter."

Consul General Wynne, also mentioned in the Miller statement, is at his post in London.

Wynne Will Say Nothing.

London, May 20.—"I have absolutely nothing to say about this subject," was the emphatic reply of Robert J. Wynne, the American consul general at London, when questioned last night regarding the statement made by Mae C. Wood yesterday in her divorce suit against Senator Platt.

CONGRESS MAKES TWO RECORDS.

If the present congress cannot do anything in the way of constructive legislation, it is certainly entitled to a large and handsome prize cake for one thing—it can spend money.

On the whole, it ought to have two cakes; one for proficiency in scattering the people's money, and the other for agility in dodging the risk that it might do something for the people.

These two features, coupled together, ought to make a very extraordinary record, one that will naturally attract the attention of the people and keep the campaign spellbinder busy with explanations all through the coming political contest.

There are a few days left in which congress can do things if it wishes, but apparently it doesn't wish. The business of postponing and defeating action has been managed very cleverly indeed. With the president hammering on one side, and the Democratic minority hammering on the other, the Republican majority has complacently pursued its pre-arranged course of doing nothing.

But it has spent money. When the session ends this week it is estimated that the total appropriations will amount to $1,026,000,000, the largest amount ever appropriated at a single session.

These appropriations are for the fiscal year which begins July 1, 1908. It is impossible, of course, to estimate accurately the government's receipts for that year, but the members of the appropriations committees believe they will run somewhere between $850,000,000 and $900,000,000. If they are right, this congress had provided for spending, in the coming year, $125,000,000 to $175,000,000 more than the government will take in.

In anything else but government, this is not considered good business. No business except that of government, in fact, can stand such methods without bankruptcy. One of the first rules of business is that if you spend more than you take in, you are going to fail. But in the business of government the statesmen say "Oh, well, the people will pay," and let it go at that.

It happens that the government is carrying a surplus in its treasury. Otherwise this thing of spending more than the income couldn't be managed at all. But it will not take very much more of the kind of financiering this congress has done to wipe out the surplus, and then what?

At any rate, congress has made a couple of records—one for spending money and the other for doing a minimum of work with a maximum of fuss and feathers, and it will go home contented with itself. What its sensations will be when the people want to know about it during the campaign can be easily imagined.

THE MAY MUSIC FESTIVAL.

Congratulations to the Duluth Oratorio society and its director, Mr. Rayner, and to all others who contributed to the success of the second May music festival. For it was a success, a thoroughly gratifying success. Perhaps that is not true financially, but that isn't the idea. Strange as it may seem to many, this is not a money-making scheme. Everybody associated with it will be completely satisfied when the receipts balance the expenses, which will probably not be for some time yet. Their satisfaction will not even then be entirely due to the fact that the public has assumed its full share of the financial burden, but more largely to the fact that the appreciation of good music has been cultivated to the extent of making good musical productions popular. For that is the object of the May festival; that is why the highest class of talent is secured even though there is a practical certainty in advance that the patronage will not meet the large expense.

The excellent Minneapolis Symphony orchestra does not pay, either. It produces an annual deficit of rather formidable proportions which Minneapolis business men cheerfully meet because they realize that the orchestra is a good thing for Minneapolis. It cultivates musical appreciation and helps to bring on the time when good music will be popular enough to pay its own way. Besides, it advertises Minneapolis.

It must be evident to everybody that a man or a community developing upon the material side only must be poorly balanced and incomplete. The members and patrons of the Duluth Oratorio society wish to see Duluth developed in other than merely material ways, in order that it may properly appreciate and properly use the material development that is coming. That is why the May festival is a very important institution, which should have every encouragement and every possible help.

IMMIGRATION.

Those who look only at the figures of immigration without going back of the returns not unnaturally acquire the idea that the population of the United States must have become pretty largely foreign-born, and that the percentage of native stock must be decreasing.

This is not the case, however, as S. N. D. North, the director of the census, shows in an article in the New York World. In 1883 the total population of the United States was about 54,000,000, and of this total 8,000,000 were immigrants. Nearly 13,000,000 immigrants have come in since then, but that does not mean that the present foreign-born population is 21,000,000. As a matter of fact, at the census of 1900, when the total population of the country had increased to 76,000,000, the population of foreign birth was only 10,341,276, or only 2,000,000 greater than in 1883, although in the intervening period over 7,000,000 immigrants had arrived. Over 6,000,000 more have come in since 1900, yet it is hardly probable, according to Mr. North, that the present foreign-born population of the United States exceeds 13,000,000, out of a total population of about 86,000,000.

"It should be remembered," says the director of the census in explanation of this apparent discrepancy, "that the flow of the stream of migration is not all inward. There is a return current, fluctuating greatly in amount according as the economic conditions that prevail in this country are favorable or unfavorable to the immigrant seeking employment. Until recently this return current has not been statistically measured with exactness.

"We need not be surprised that the net increase in our immigrant population comes far short of the total influx of immigrants, especially when we remember that this population is constantly being depleted not alone by the return migration but also by deaths. Thus it comes about that an immigration of 13,500,000 foreigners in a period of twenty-five years has produced an increase of only about 5,000,000 in our total foreign-born population."

Measured by their relationship to the total population, the immigrants have not increased very greatly in the past twenty-five years. In 1880 the foreign-born element in our population amounted to only 13.3 per cent, and in 1900 the percentage was only slightly larger —13.7 per cent. This percentage, however, does not fairly measure the real importance of the immigrant, because the foreigners arriving on these shores include few infants and young children. In 1900 the foreign-born, while constituting only 13.7 per cent of the total population, formed 23.2 per cent of the male population over 21 years of age—of the voting population, in other words. In the North Atlantic states they constituted 33.9 per cent or one-third of the voting population, while in the cities of Chicago and New York a majority of the males of voting age are immigrants, the percentage being 53.5 for Chicago and 54.7 for New York.

TOO MUCH BOWERY?

Very often the stranger within our gates is able to tell us things about our city that we didn't know. They have come so insidiously that we do not notice them until somebody to whom they are new disturbs us by calling attention to them.

In this connection, perhaps there is something worth considering in the interview published in The Herald last night with a traveling man who makes Duluth about once a month, and who said: "You Duluth people are allowing the appearance of your principal business street to be ruined by penny shows, moving picture shows, cheap musical instruments and all that kind of claptrap. Superior street, from Fifth avenue west to Second avenue east, is rapidly assuming the appearance of a Bowery. There are two or three saloons in every block from which you can hear discordant music issuing at almost any hour of the day or evening. Then, scattered along the street are several cheap moving picture shows, a penny arcade or two, with their flaring fronts. It gives the street a cheap appearance, and is decidedly out of place on the principal business street of the city."

Is this picture overdrawn? Very likely it will seem so to those who have become accustomed to conditions by degrees. But if that is the way Superior street strikes the stranger's eye and ear, surely the condition is one worth thinking about. Perhaps nothing can be done about it; perhaps these jarring sounds and sights are necessary penalties of city life; perhaps, on the other hand, there is a good deal that can be done about it if the city and its authorities take proper thought regarding it.

ARRAYING CLASS AGAINST CLASS.

Galveston News: The demagogue of today who arrays class against class is the rascal on horseback of a few centuries back who organized clans for predatory purposes.

This sounds all right, and yet there seems to be something the matter with it, too. It would jingle a little more harmoniously, perhaps, if the predatory rider of a few centuries back were compared with the plutocrat of today, who gathers his fellows together for a plundering conspiracy which is quietly done in the form of watering stock, rigging the marget or buying special privileges from politicians.

We hear so much of this "class against class" business, always uttered in heated indignation as of something very reprehensible indeed, that it is worth analyzing.

If there are classes in this country, it would be wrong to array them against each other. If there are no classes, of course it is absurdly impossible to array class against class.

But if there are classes, something is radically wrong, and a fight against the conditions that create classes is a very good fight indeed.

Who can doubt that there are classes? There are plutocrats and paupers, a few of the one class and many of the other. In between is the vast bulk of the people, however, though there are many who alarm us by saying that the logical outcome of present tendencies is the elimination of this middle class, leaving only the two—plutocrats and paupers.

But if there is a plutocrat class and a pauper class—pauper being used in the hyperbolical sense of covering everybody who has constant trouble making both ends meet—there must be something that creates these classes, and if there is anything of that nature it is manifestly a very bad thing to have in a "land of equality and opportunity."

If the plutocrat class is growing more plutocratic though not more numerous, and the pauper class is growing poorer and more numerous at the same time, clearly something is wrong, and it behooves us to study conditions and find out what it is. Having found it, there can be no doubt that we ought to remedy it.

But this should not involve a war of class against class. Nobody worth while is seeking to foment any inter-class war. It should be a war of all classes against the conditions and systems that make for inequality, against whatever it is that makes classes. Nothing is to be gained by arraying class against class. The poorer class should be interested in this war because it is their right to improve their condition, and they have the votes to do it with if they wish. The richer class should be interested because their native sense of justice must tell them that present conditions are wrong. Surely their own profits from these conditions cannot blind them to the fact that their enormous wealth is at the cost of enormous poverty in others.

There is nothing to be gained by denying the existence of classes when everybody can see that there are classes; there is nothing to be gained by arousing class hatred when everybody must see that the fault does not lie with a class but with a condition.

And before heedlessly reproaching class hostility, we should remember that the arrogance of the richer class has done more to engender it than all the demagogues that ever lived.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

George E. Robinson at the Lenox, figures it out that the average traveling man loses about four hours sleep a day, owing to the noises that vibrate through the average hotel. He says that many nights he doesn't reach the land of nod until the wee sma' hours of the morning, simply because fellow lodgers around the corridor are "hitting it up."

For instance, the other night in Davenport, Iowa, where they have a hotel where the sounds travel like a whisper of scandal, Mr. Robinson didn't get together with Morpheus until the village clock had struck 6 in the cold grey dawn.

Next to his room was a congenial bunch of men playing a game that occasionally calls for the rattle of chips. The popping of corks, was interspersed with the monotonous metallic click of the chips, while the voices of the players grew louder as the waning hours of the night grew grayer. There was no sleeping with that bunch of card players next door. But there were also other diversions that proved so potent a charm that the weary traveler could not find it possible to close his heavy lids.

It seems that some women—two or three of them—had come to the hotel for the first time. It was probably the first hotel in which they had ever lingered over night. Naturally, it was quite an event to them.

"Suppose," said one, "that this hotel was to burn down. How would we get out?" Indeed that was the question. They were undecided as to which course they would take, but they argued the question pro and con until the dawn began to tinge the sky. They grew excited, too, in their argument of what should be done in case the shrill cry of fire should startle the guests of the hotel.

Their voices were shrill, and they vied with the card players on the other side of the weary traveler's room in keeping him alive to his surroundings.

A baby that was cutting several teeth at once, or at least its vocal efforts would warrant that assumption, was the next object that awoke the echoes in the hotel and recalled to the mind of Mr. Robinson that a sign on the door of the house promised all the comforts of home. Here, surely, part of the promise was fulfilled.

A cat that must have lost something, claimed attention outside in the court. A drummer who told stories in the lobby in a voice that could be heard in the rooms of the guests, added another diversion to the all-night vaudeville show. Sundry other noises crept through the old house. The night clerk sang and whistled. He evidently liked sound and gayety, did this night clerk. A couple of actors had a pet dog—the kind you can wrap up in a handkerchief—which made enough noise to start the subsiding echoes going afresh. Finally, when the first streak of peeping sun was tinting the heavens a brilliant vermillion shade, the varied noises of the night subsided and quiet reigned over the house. But work stared the weary lodger in the face, and with a deep sigh, he thought of the golden hours of sleep he had lost.

J. W. Sargent, the well known Northern Pacific conductor, sailed into the St. Louis hotel Monday with a straw hat that made one think of Panama weather. Mr. Sargent is authority for the statement that everyone in Minneapolis is wearing a straw lid. The weather is so sultry, he says, that anything but a straw hat is uncomfortable.

Since the Minneapolis baseball team has reached the next to the lowest position in the American association pennant race, you notice fewer "make goods" after the names of travelers hailing from the mill city. Not so very long ago every Duluth hotel had a number of "make good" signs after the name of hotel guests instead of the city of their residence. But the failure of the Cantillion outfit to beat the other teams in the league has caused some of the "make gooders" to swerve in their allegiance Now "Minneapolis" is sufficient.

O. L. Swan, from San Francisco, who was at the McKay Monday, states that the rehabilitation of the city by the Golden Gate is almost accomplished. The debris, reminiscent of tragedy, loss of life and loss of countless millions of dollars, has been completely cleared away from the streets. Most of the buildings in the downtown business section of the city have been rebuilt. Many of the homes have also been rebuilt. There are still some tents for the poor, but the man who saw San Francisco on that fateful day, two years ago, when the visitation of the earthquake and fire left the city like a stricken victim of some horrible plague, would wonder at the marvels accomplished in that short space of two years.

What the people of San Francisco like to be patted on the back most about, though, according to Mr. Swan, is the courage shown by the citizens of the city. "Remember they were not only fighting the direful effects of the fire and plague," said Mr. Swan, "they were fighting the most stupendous graft that has ever been unearthed in any American city. They were combatting corrupt officials who opposed the improvement of the city. They were fighting forces within the municipality that wanted the city to stand still. Despite all these obstacles, the better citizens ruled and today San Francisco stands as a monument to civic enterprise and courage on the part of its citizens."

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday summer, today fall, tonight winter, perhaps. Yesterday the temperature got us to 81 degs., and last night it dropped to 41 degs., accompanied by a boisterous northeast wind. This morning it was cloudy and showery. The weather man looks for high northeast winds, with showers tonight and tomorrow, which looks like more real northeaster.

A year ago today it was cool and cloudy.

The sun rose this morning at 4:20 and sets tonight at 7:42, making 15 hours and 16 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The storm central Tuesday morning over the Rocky mountains has greatly increased in intensity and has advanced its center to Eastern South Dakota, with rather strong high pressures over Saskatchewan and Oregon. The Lake Michigan storm has moved its center to the Carolinas. During the past twenty-four hours these conditions caused warm weather in the central valleys and rains in Eastern and Northwestern states, and high winds in the Northwest, while the Saskatchewan high pressure has caused much cooler weather in Western Canada, North Dakota, Northern Minnesota and Western South Dakota. Conditions favor showers and high northeast winds in this locality tonight and Thursday."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, May 20.—Local forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Thursday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges—Showers this afternoon, tonight and Thursday, with brisk and high northeast winds; continued cool temperature.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, May 20.—Forecasts until 7 p. m. Thursday: Lakes Mehigan and Huron—Southeast to south winds, increasing tonight and Thursday; showers by Thursday morning.

Lake Superior—Increasing east to northeast winds, becoming high tonight and Thursday; showers. Hoist storm northcast warning 10 a. m., Duluth, Ashland and Houghton sections.

Upper Michigan—Rain tonight and Thursday.

Wisconsin—Showers tonight and Thursday; cooler Thursday afternoon.

Minnesota—Rain tonight and Thursday, probably turning to snow in west portion; colder in south and west portions; high northeast winds.

North Dakota—Rain or snow tonight and possibly Thursday; colder tonight, with freezing temperature; high northerly winds.

TAPPING THE FUNNYBONE.

Chicago Tribune: City Friend (in disgust, pointing to a number of girls entering the theater)—Look at those "Merry Widows!"

Rural Visitor (in astonishment)—What! All of them?

Chicago Tribune: "Do you know," said Cholly, "I never had played a game of golf in my life, and when I asked the old Scotchman what was the first thing for me to do he looked at me just like this and said, 'Hoot, mon!' "

"Then what did you do?"

"I hooted, of course."

Washington Star: "What's your favorite character in Shakespeare?" asked the interviewer.

"Shylock," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes. "In my days of struggle it was certain satisfaction to come on the stage and talk as if I had so much money that I didn't care about any more."

Chicago Record-Herald: "The anti-race track gambling crusade in New York has set me wondering if that administration can last."

"Why so?"

"Because how can a rule which is against horse races be a stable government?"

Philadelphia Press: "See here, Mr. Knox," said Mrs. Slipschod to her star boarder. "I heard you talking about the board of health and I want to say your slurs upon my establishment—"

"Where is the connection?" interrupted Mr. Knox. "Surely, madame, the board here is not the board of health."

Philadelphia Press: Miss Uglygirl—That's a horrible picture you took of me, and I heard you were so good at amateur work.

Miss Foto—But you must allow for the feelings of the camera. You know its plates are sensitive ones.

Baltimore American: "How am I to run in this 'Merry Widow' hat story?"

"Let it have its whole end and aim. Give it a 'display' head."

Baltimore American: Active Party Worker—We must have honest and honorable men in office.

Party Boss—Indeed we must. There's Holdup making a good thing out of his job and not a cent of it coming to us.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: The best thing you can do is to do your best.

Only a man after her own heart interests a young widow.

A little dimple has caused many a man to have heart trouble.

It's hard to keep up appearance and save money simultaneously.

The more justice some men get the less they want to talk about it.

There are times when the truth is about as inspiring as a cold fried egg.

A milliner feathers her nest by putting feathers on other women's hats.

A man may overtake a lot of people on the road to ruin, but he never meets any one.

When a woman tells her husband she wishes she had been born a man he is apt to echo the wish.

The difference between a "job" and a "position" is sometimes not even a matter of remuneration.

When an honest man is in hard luck he doesn't want charity so much as an opportunity to dispense with charity.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A woman likes to have a man jealous about her so she needn't be about him.

A man has a head for finance when he thinks a stock is going up, but he is too sensible to buy it.

A convenient thing about the big hats girls wear is when they are in the way of your lips they can take them off.

One thing a mother is absolutely sure of is that she can pick a better husband for her daughter than she did for herself.

The thing that vexes a woman about mathematics is it never changes its mind about how much two things added together makes.

ENGLAND SAYS NO ALUM IN FOOD and strictly prohibits the sale of alum baking powder—

So does France
So does Germany

The sale of alum foods has been made illegal in Washington and the District of Columbia, and alum baking powders are everywhere recognized as injurious.

To protect yourself against alum, when ordering baking powder,

Say plainly—

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

and be very sure you get Royal.

Royal is the only Baking Powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar. It adds to the digestibility and wholesomeness of the food.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

Capt. McCullough of the propellor Colorado and brother-in-law of Alderman Harry Armstrong, reports that on the voyage up his ship struck a piece of solid ice and stove a hole in her bow. The foresail was lowered over the hole, and the pumps soon sucked the canvas into it and stopped the leak.

Mr. Prentiss of New York is again in the city and announces that he will start suit again to obtain title to a mile square in the heart of Duluth, which claim has been defeated several times in the courts. He now says he has "additional witnesses and further proof" to support his case.

In the United States district court at Madison a few days ago, John Torrent of Michigan won the suit against alleged infringement of his steam log-turning patents. Almost every lumber mill in the Duluth district is interested in this suit, as nearly all use steam "niggles," upon which the same action for infringement can be brought.

A Buffalo telegram states that the Lehigh company proposes to change the principal terminus from Chicago to either Duluth or Milwaukee.

Joseph Wolf and A. H. Truax have succeeded Wolf & Son in the contracting business, Mr. Wolf, Sr., retiring. The firm will be known as Wolf & Truax.

Matt Hanson, aged 59, and Laura Jorgenson, aged 50, were married yesterday. The bride recently arrived from Norway.

The Minnesota Iron company has begun shipping ore and expects to send out 450,000 tons this season, an increase of 50,000 tons over last year and the largest output by the company on record.

S. T. Johnson of St. Paul has been in the city several days agitating a scheme to erect a flat steel nail plant in connection with the steel works at West Duluth.

Information has been received of an increase in the salary of Messrs. Monaghan and Chalk, the government hull and boiler inspectors of this district, from $1,500 to $1,800 a year.

Maj. and Mrs. Guy Wells arrived home this morning from the South, where they have passed the winter.

A project for dividing St. Louis county has been inaugurated at Tower. The Republican club of that place recently passed a resolution bearing on the subject. It is proposed to call the new county Vermilion.

The steamship Aurora, the largest wooden vessel on the lakes, arrived yesterday, towing the five-masted schooner David Dows. The Dows is the largest schooner-rigged vessel afloat—either on salt water or fresh. The two carry 4,500 tons on a fourteen-feet draft of water.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Sauk Center Herald: As the days go by the chances for a dark horse winning the Republican gubernatorial nomination grow brighter. Conditions are such that no one of those already in the field appears to have very much of a chance for landing the prize. The time for the grooming of dark horses seems to have arrived.

Olivia Review: It is quite amusing to read in the resolutions adopted by the Republicans in conventions held at various places throughout the country, that we believe the time has come for a revision of the tariff schedules by a Republican congress," and then to read in the same resolutions, an endorsement of some congressman who is known to be opposed to the revision.

Warroad Plaindealer: Although only about one voter in twenty in this precinct is a Democrat, about the only political talk here is by groups of men speculating on Johnson's chances for the Democratic nomination for president. Very seldom is Taft mentioned except in depreciation. The straws show the direction of the wind.

Ortonville Herald Star: Congress is considering a bill to prevent the sale of poor or adulterated seeds. Probably some congressman tried planting some of the fake federal seeds distributed by himself.

Madison Independent Press: We do not care who reduces the tariff, its friends or its foes; what we want to see is its reduction.

Aitkin Republican: The president has sent four messages to congress this session, urging remedial legislation, the majority of the Republican congressmen are in favor of the president's requests, the Democrats have been filibustering to help the Republican president get this measure passed, but there is nothing doing. Verily, this is a peculiar situation, but it must look good to the Democrats of the country.

Two Harbors Journal: If anyone has doubts of the practicability of municipal ownership of public utilities, let them come and investigate our water and light plant. Our electric lights can't be beat, and our city water is of a cheapness and quality that would make one ashamed to drink else.

Elk River Star-News: The decks are now all clear for the Republican gubernatorial campaign. It has been languishing up-to-date, but there ought to be something doing now that minor problems are out of the way.

Princeton Union: That last pill which Dr. Roosevelt administered to Grandma Congress is evidently curing the old lady of the sleeping sickness from which she has so long suffered.

"Johnson of Minnesota."

Chicago Journal: That is the sort of man of whom all Americans are proud. That is the spirit which has made American great, the spirit of Lincoln.

But the likeness of Johnson to Lincoln does not end here. Like Illinois' greatest son, Johnson soon showed an interest in government and kindred matters. He served seven years in the Minnesota National Guard, becoming captain in that organization. Then he was elected to the legislature and, making adherents through his qualities of honesty and forcefulness, became the nominee of his party for governor.

As governor he exerted powerful influence upon a legislature politically hostile, and accomplished many notable reforms, which so appealed to the voters that he was re-elected in order that he might pursue his course.

Johnson and his record naturally affect the imagination of Americans, who admire a sturdy and successful battle against adverse conditions. He may not be the Democratic candidate for president this year, but if he should be presented he would not only awaken enthusiasm but draw the suffrages of good citizens everywhere.

An American Novel.

New York World: On the foreleaf of his latest and best work of semi-fiction Winston Churchill has placed a dedication to "the men in every state who are engaged in the struggle for purer politics." This inscription indicates perhaps the sole particular in which a book may meet the popular expectation, still existent though less vivid than in years gone by, of "the great American novel."

Stories of society, of the woods, of the mines, of factory life, of character types, of special causes, of ordinary politics—these are measurably local stories in a country as large and as variously interested as ours. But the story big enough and broad enough to carry an American purpose crossed by no lines of county, state or sectional division is a national story. This is where "Mr. Crewe's Career" justifies itself of the dedication to "the men in every state." Recognition of this truth is important to a just assignment of national literary ratings.

The smallest points which have been made in respect to Mr. Churchill's work are in the identifying of certain places and characters and happenings in the book with certain towns and persons and events in New Hampshire. "Mr. Crewe's Career" does not fulfill its noblest end in promoting a guessing contest, or in providing a vehicle for veiled innuendo. Its author knows his Granite state. Legitimately he has employed that intimate knowledge toward the exposition of a "system" in commercialized politics peculiar to no commonwealth.

If New Hampshire and its bosses were all there is in "Mr. Crewe's Career," Mr. Churchill might be treated with reason as a clever tattler against his neighbors. That his broader grasp and purpose are appreciated may be seen from the practical unanimity with which his new book, following the premonitory "Coniston," is hailed as marking a significant literary movement.

The boss has more to fear from a clean and gifted story-teller in earnest than from the feverish muck-raker.

Wise Warhorse Retreats.

Indianapolis News: Consideration of the Brownsville affair has been postponed by Senator Foraker until Dec. 16. "In time of war prepare for peace" is a mighty good motto, you know. Senator Foraker may not be wholly discreet in all things, but he is probably too judicious to take any chances on losing his job in the senate.

We Invite You to Examine our 1908 Bohn Syphon Refrigerator

Now Ready at Your Dealer's

Enamel, Opalite or Porcelain Linings

Our porcelain is melted into and made part of sheet steel.

THE HOME TEST PLAN—Every dealer has our authority to deliver a Bohn Syphon Refrigerator to your home for a 10 days' trial. This home test must prove the truth of all the following claims or the refrigerator may be returned to your dealer and full purchase price will be refunded.

Celery, muskmelons, onions—any vegetable or fruit will not taint any milk, butter and the like (in open vessels) in the same Bohn Syphon Refrigerator food compartment, proving absence of dead air.

Milk will remain fresh, sweet and of perfect nourishing quality for at least 72 hours in the Bohn, proving absence of germ life.

Matches will light freely after a day or more in the Bohn food compartment—the supreme test of dryness.

A given quantity of ice will keep the Bohn Syphon Refrigerator 6 to 15 degs. colder than any other of equal size, and the ice lasts longer, proving economy.

The food compartment of the Bohn Syphon Refrigerator is as large as that of any refrigerator for size.

A lighted match will almost flicker out in the active current of live air from the base of the ice chamber, proving perfect circulation.

There is no refrigerator so beautiful in finish, symmetrical lines, interior spotlessness and daintiness as the Bohn, America's favorite home refrigerator.

Remember, you prove these statements in your home—every dealer authorized to allow the test.

The Hoosier Kitchen Cabinets

Have special features that make them different, better and more convenient than any other kitchen cabinet.

Husbands, when you get your wife a kitchen cabinet get her a real cabinet—a labor-saving kitchen machine, that is not merely a collection of shelves, hooks and dark bins, but a modern, perfected unit that really saves labor and money.

These special features tell the story. Show this advertisement to her. She will know their importance.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Hoosier Mfg. Co.

Other cabinets do not have these features and the extra Hoosier arrangement that saves hundreds of steps each day. Besides, remember this important fact:

The "Hoosier" Is Low In Price.

Flour Bin

The flour is put in at the top, passes through the entire bin, and is taken out thoroughly sifted at the bottom. Thus no mouldy flour can accumulate. The bin is self-cleaning, made of metal and white wood.

Recipe Cabinet

This outfit consists of 100 recipe cards, ten guide cards labeled, bread, cake and desserts, egg, fish, meats, miscellaneous, salads, sauces, soups and vegetables. The cards are in a neat rack attached to the same door as the spice tins.

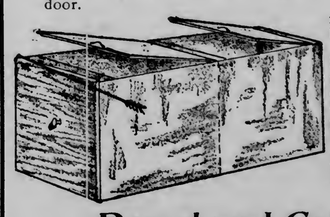
Aluminum Work Table

This extension can be drawn out or extended beyond the front of the cabinet over 11 inches, adding more than one-third the working space.

Spice Cabinets

The cabinet for spices contains six air-tight cans, highly finished and labeled ginger, cloves, cream of tartar, allspice, baking powder and cinnamon. A neat rack holds them in place on the left hand door.

Sugar Bin



The sugar bin is the most cleverly devised bin in the Hoosier.

The bulk of the sugar is held in the upper part of the bin, as the opening is only large enough to allow a small part of the bin, as the lower part. When a scoop full is taken out the same quantity drops down.

Bread and Cake Box

The place for keeping bread fresh and moist is one of the best features of the Hoosier. The Hoosier Bread Box takes the place of the lower drawer. It is 8x11x24 inches, made of metal, and has close fitted lids. One end is partitioned off for cake.

Want List

Attached to the front of the flour bin is a handy want list, covering everything that can possibly be needed in the kitchen, alphabetically arranged with tacks set opposite names on the list—a simple and effective system for keeping stock in the kitchen.

Discuss Socialism.
"Socialism," was the topic at the meeting of the Men's society of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church in the West end last evening and the discussion of the subject became so spirited and interesting that the members decided to continue it at the next meeting of the society. Henry Truelson, not the former mayor, led the affirmative and Otto Swanstrom the negative.

Elect Delegates.
At the meeting of the Court Eastern Star, No. 86, of the United Order of Foresters, the delegates to the high court, which will be held at Spooner, Wis., June 17, were elected. The court will be represented by Miss Lottie Hatley, Mrs. Rachael Duff, Mrs. Clara Paul and Harry Milnes. The degree team of the court initiated a class of candiadates.

Meeting of Samaritans.
There will be a joint meeting of the Beneficent and Samaritan degrees of Alpha Council Thursday evening. Matters of importance in connection with "Toodles in Holland," will be discussed. The drill team and officers will meet in the banquet hall at 7:30 p. m. sharp.

Elect Officers.
At the annual election of officers of the Epworth League of the Asbury M. E. church of West Duluth, held last evening in the parlors of the church, the following officers were elected to office for the ensuing year: President, Albert Meldahl; first vice president, Eliza Remfrey; second vice president, Eva McLyman; third vice president, Louise Remfry; secretary, Bessie Greeley; treasurer, Andrew Meldahl, and organist, Hazel Crosby.

Hearing Land Case.
A hearing was begun today before Register Engle of the United States land office in the case of Angie C. Thomas against Pascal J. Rosso and the Northern Pacific Railway company. The land involved is in the Northern Pacific Railroad company's indemnity land grant and the case is similar to several others, which have been heard recently. Grafton Meeson of St. Paul is appearing for the Railway company, T. H. Seymour for Rosso and H. H. Hoyt for the contestant.

Make Good Catch.
F. E. Paine and Jack McLennan returned this morning from a fishing trip on the north shore above Grand Marais. They caught sixty-one trout, running from one pound to two pounds and a half in weight.

Fined for Assault.
Henry Hall, a negro wrestler, was fined $35 and costs, with the alternative of thirty days in jail, in municipal court this afternoon for assault. He was in a restaurant at 200 Railroad street and broke into an argument between the proprietor of the place and one of the help. His interference was unwarranted in the judgment of the court.

Looking for Relatives.
Chief Troyer received a telegram this afternoon from Ironwood, Mich., requesting him to ascertain, if possible, the whereabouts of Mary and Allene Maryland, who are supposed to be in Duluth. Their sister died at Ironwood this morning.

Cheadle Leaves for East.
City Clerk Harry W. Cheadle left today for Washington, D. C., to attend a committee meeting of the National Association of City Clerks, called for the purpose of discussing the feasibility of adopting the uniform report system throughout the country. The adoption of the system would not mean any change in the city charters, but simply the inauguration of a uniform system of bookkeeping.

Many Weddings Occur.
Weddings have been contagious in Duluth in the past two days, eleven marriage licenses having been issued by the clerk of the district court within that interval.

Dies in Elmira.
Ell M. Mosher of Elmira, N. Y., died at his home on May 19. He is survived by his wife and seven children, Mrs. Henry Nolte of Duluth being one of his daughters.

100 EXTRA SALESPEOPLE WANTED, COME AT 8 O'CLOCK PREPARED FOR WORK.

WILL RENEW THE LID WAR

Council Will Once More be Rent by Saloon Question.

Trevillion Ordinance Will Precipitate Another Merry Fight.

Alderman Trevillion's amendment to the saloon and license ordinance, designed to make it possible for a saloonkeeper to secure a renewal of his license within a period of one year after he has been convicted of breaking the law, will, in connection with other saloon matters to come before the council next week, make the meeting one of the warmest held in years, unless prophets around the city hall are very much mistaken.

While the clause providing that no renewal of license shall be granted a saloonkeeper within a year after a conviction has been secured against his place of business, has been in the charter for years, there has been no general knowledge of this fact, and the clause has not been lived up to in any respect. In several instances renewals have been granted within less than a year's time after such conviction, and Alderman Trevillion asks that the practice be continued, but of course the liddists will oppose the amendment.

It is only within the last two weeks that all the aldermen became acquainted with the fact that the clause in question referred to, existed. It was tucked away in an obscure part of the charter, and only a careful study of the document revealed it. Backers of Trevillion's measure will probably argue that as long as the clause has not been enforced in the past, it should not be enforced in the future. Three or four saloonkeepers will be affected, if the council chooses to make them live up to the letter of the ordinance, for during the recent activity against the violators of the law, several saloon men have become involved. The amendment provides that a saloonkeeper can secure a renewal of his license within a year unless he "knowingly" has violated the ordinance, and a conviction has been secured.

The McQueen license matter will also come up for consideration Monday. Mr. McQueen, who keeps a saloon on Lake avenue, has been summoned to appear and show cause why his license should not be revoked. He was arrested on the charge of selling intoxicants after hours, was found guilty and fined in municipal court. Other matters in connection with the saloons will also be discussed, and altogether the meeting next Monday evening promises to be a very interesting one.

YOUNG MOTHER GONE.

Leaves Two Babes With Mother-in-Law and Disappears.

Marshalltown, Iowa, May 20.—When Mrs. Herbert Bishop, aged 19, the wife of a young farmer living at Lamoille, in this county, came here Saturday afternoon with two baby daughters, her husband fully expected she would return home the same evening. She has not been seen since, and she left her babies with her mother-in-law in this city.

MANY ACRES OF TIMBER ARE DEVASTATED BY FIRE.

Belle Fourche, S. D., May 20.—Word from the Long Pine national forest, northwest of here, tells of the most destructive forest fire that has occurred in this state for many years. The fire started Friday night at the head of Plum creek and spread quickly with the aid of a high wind, continuing until Monday. The flames swept the reserve, and when at last the government men had extinguished them the fire had damaged over ten thousand acres of the reserve. It burned a space extending ten miles long and on an average of from one to two miles wide.

DROPS DEAD AT HIS WORK

Death Comes Very Suddenly to John W. Miller.

Stone Mason Thought to Have Relatives in the East.

John W. Miller, a stone mason, about 45 years of age, dropped dead, about 10 o'clock this morning while at work on the building which is being erected on Superior street, near Third avenue. Death is thought to have been due to heart failure. The body was removed to Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms.

Miller went to work as usual this morning, and semed to be in good health. An hour or two later he remarked that he did not feel exactly right, but kept on working, saying the ailment, whatever it was, was not serious enough to make it worth while to go home. Suddenly he fell to the ground, and a few moments later was dead before medical assistance could be summoned. Probably an inquest will be held tomorrow morning.

Miller had not been in town very long and not much is known about him by his fellow workmen. He is said to have come here from the East. It is not known whether he was married or not. He has a brother at Cambridge, Mass., who has been notified of the death. The body will be held awaiting some word from him. Miller was a member of the Odd Fellows lodge and the Odd Fellows probably will have charge of the funeral.

BEMIDJI CITY JAIL BAD.

Lockup is Condemned by State Board of Control.

Bemidji, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of the city council Monday evening, a communication was read from the state board of control, emphatically condemning the city lock-up, stating that it was insanitary, and forbidding the keeping of prisoners and vagrants therein. The communication was something of a surprise to the council, and considerable discussion was indulged in as to the proper method to take for relieving the situation. The consensus of opinion seemed to favor the erection of a new building, but the condition of the city's finances showed a floating indebtedness, according to the treasurer's report, of something more than $13,000, seemed to preclude the erection of the new building. However, immediate action will be taken to put the present building in a condition to conform with the requirements of the state board of control, or else erect a new building.

WILLIAM MILLER DEAD.

Proctor Man Never Recovered From Appendicitis Operation.

Proctor, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Miller died at 8 a. m. today at the home of his father-in-law, Arthur Bainville, where he resided, after an illness following an operation performed in Duluth several months ago for appendicitis. Miller was a young man and had resided here only a short time. He was married here last September and is survived by his young wife and an infant child, born recently.

Well to Remember.

A little vinegar put in the water when boiling fish will tend to harden the flesh and keep it firm. In case of fire, tie a wet silk handkerchief over the face to prevent suffocation from smoke. When recovering from an illness, take regularly at meal time and upon retiring a glass of golden grain belt beer. It will help to build up the system and revitalize the nerves. Order of your nearest dealer, or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE, IS SHOT IN STOMACH.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sylvester Esser, 28, who lives near Opole, this, Stearns county, is lying at his home with a bullet hole through his stomach and a wound in the hip, as the result of an altercation he had with a saloonkeeper at Opole by the name of Martin Lahr. Esser and Lahr have not been on good terms for some time and Monday Esser is said to have gone into Lahr's saloon with the avowed intention of "cleaning out the place." During the fight that ensued Lahr shot Esser with a pistol, one bullet going through the stomach and into the abdomen and the other lodging in the hip. The abdomen bullet has been removed, but the other cannot be reached. His condition is reported critical. Lahr, at last accounts, had not been arrested, although he offered to surrender himself. Public sentiment is said to hold that the shooting was justifiable.

TEACHERS WINNERS.

Proctor, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The much talked of basketball game at the Y. M. C. A. between the teachers and the married women, a culmination of several games between them, was played last night and resulted in a victory for the teachers. The schoolmarms carried off the honors by a score of 12 to 7. Only women were admitted to the gymnasium during the game, a ruling that made some of the more curious of the male population somewhat indignant.

CO-ED TRESPASSERS LAND IN GUARDHOUSE.

Seattle, Wash., May 20.—The class in geology of the University of Washington had an exciting experience several days ago. In the course of their field work the class spent a day in the hills back of Fort Ward, near Pleasant Beach, on Bainbridge island. Several of the students disregarded the "no trespassing" signs at the foot and invaded the grounds. The patrols from the guards promptly arrested the invaders, who included two young ladies, and placed them in the guardhouse. It took four hours of pleading on the part of the others and money spent in long-distance telephoning to get the culprits released.

AITKIN LIBRARY SITE.

Aitkin, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The county commissioners have set aside a piece of ground 75x100 feet in the northeast corner of the courthouse grounds as a site for the library offered the city by Andrew Carnegie providing a site is furnished and $500 per annum provided for maintenance. The property is not deeded to the city but dedicated to permanent library purposes and if this meets the condition of the Carnegie gift it is expected work on the building will begin as soon as the contract can be awarded.

DRUNKEN MAN KILLED.

Houghton, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Matti Kuukasjarvi, a Finnish trammer employed at the Baltic mine, was cut in two by a Copper Range train at South Range late Monday night. He had been drinking and started for Baltic, when drowsiness overcame him and he laid down on the track. The engine was upon the prostrate man before the engineer could stop the train. The deceased was 30.

MISSING ONES FOUND.

Calumet, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joe Marabello, who is alleged to have abducted a 13-year-old girl from her home in Hurontown, where he boarded, was arrested in the Tamarack location yesterday afternoon, along with the girl. The disappearance of the couple has been a sensation here for several days.

JURY MAY DISAGREE.

San Francisco, May 20.—The jury in the case of Abraham Rueff, accused of offering a bribe to Former Supervisor Jennings Phillips, came into court this morning, after having been locked up all night, and announced that no agreement had yet been reached and asked for instructions. The indications point to a disagreement.

WILL ADD TO MARINE CORPS

An Order is Sent Out for 750 New Recruits.

A war department order received at the local marine recruiting office this morning, conveys the information that congress has provided for the increasing of the marine corps by the additon of 750 recruits.

Recruiting offices, the country over, have had little to do during the past few months for the reason that the marine corps has reached its full strength. The provision by congress for more men will result in renewed activity among the various recruiting offices.

The specifications contained in the order provides that no men shall be accepted over the age of 32 years, unless they are considered of exceptional quality. Foreigners are discriminated against unless they are unusually intelligent.

The record made by the various recruiting stations over the country last month, was: Total applications, 2,455; enlistments, 318. The Minnesota station received ninety-two applications and enlisted twenty-sir recruits. Minnesota stands high among the states in the number of men that were finally accepted for enlistment.

Before leaving, Bishop Bang expressed himself as being highly pleased with Duluth, and stated that he regretted that he could not spend a longer time in the city.

ROWE FINDS WORK.

Ex-Convict Will Not be Forced to Return to Prison.

James Rowe, the ex-convict, came to The Herald office last evening and received the list of positions which had been offered him as a result of the story published in The Herald Monday evening.

Rowe had been in prison for so many years that he was unfit for hard labor and, being unable to get any other kind of work, appealed to The Herald for assistance, as he feared that if he remained idle any longer he would be arrested for vagrancy and have his parole revoked. Following the publishing of the story, several offers came to The Herald office, and they were yesterday handed over to Rowe.

BOYS WILL HAVE AN AUTO RIDE

Owners of Machines Are Lending Their Cars for the Purpose.

The boys' department summer program will open Friday with an automobile ride. The members are looking forward with a great deal of expectation to this trip, as it is always one of the most popular and enjoyable trips of the season. The members of the cabinet are planning the trip, and they are busy seeing owners of autos, soliciting them for the occasion. They are endeavoring to secure enough machines to accommodate 100 boys. The party will leave the boys' building, Friday evening, at 7:30, and on the return, refreshments will be served. Boys planning to come can telephone their names, and places will be reserved in the order the names come in.

MONEY THE CAUSE

Of the Murder and Suicide in Sterrey Family, Says Fiancee.

New York, May 20.—Miss Rachel Blaikie, the young woman whose engagement to marry George E. Sterrey was one of the causes of yesterday's double tragedy when George E. Sterrey, Jr., shot and killed his aged millionaire father and then sent a bullet into his own brain, is seriously ill at her home in East Orange, N. J., today.

"Money was the cause of this whole terrible affair more than anything else," she said after the news of the tragedy had been taken to her. "I suppose George feared that I would receive some of his father's money, but I want to say that I would rather George had every penny of his father's money than to have either of them harmed. I wish I could have told him before it was too late that it was because of the money that I had been unwilling to marry his father."

Mrs. George Sterrey, Jr., the widow of the murderer and suicide, is in a desperate condition today from hysteria.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

RALLY IS CUT SHORT

Three Men on Bases in Ninth, But O'Brien Strikes Out.

Giencke is Right and Sox Are Blanked Once More.

Winnipeg, Man., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Little Freddie Giencke beat "Darby" O'Brien to the honors yesterday in the situation that makes baseball heroes. It was the ninth inning and a few shivering fans were anxiously waiting for the end. Some had already left their seats and were headed toward the gate, when Koepping stepped to the plate. "Four balls," the cry of the umpire reached their ears. Duluth men on bases were rare and the shivering fans paused to see what would happen.

Jim Haney, pole and all, took Josie Krick's position before Giencke and Jim was about due for a hit. A harmless fly and one was down. "Doc" Voss was up and, with the head of the batting order coming, the possibilities grew. But Voss forced Koepping at second. Two down and Baker to bat. "Four balls" again and Voss moved up a base. Brandt came up for Morrow and King erred on his grounder. The bases were full and Winnipeg two runs to the good.

It was all up to "Darby." He had been hitting during the series and the few shivering fans shivered some more, but not with the cold. A hit, an error, a pass—anything would mean a run and ninth inning rallies are dangerous. Eddie Herr walked nervously up and down in front of the bench. "One strike" and Herr looked pleased. "Two strikes," and he smiled faintly. "Three strikes" and he grinned all over, for the day was saved. "Darby" wasn't there in the pinch.

Josie Krick pitched pretty nice ball for the Sox yesterday, but it wasn't quite good enough to beat Giencke. Baker was the only man to connect with the little southpaw and his single didn't do any damage. Not a Duluth man saw third base until the ninth inning. With men on bases, the infield worked beautifully and, except in the ninth, there was no danger of Duluth getting a man over the plate.

Krick let the Maroons down with four hits, two of which Giencke annexed. The two Winnipeg runs were scored in the sixth inning, when a pass, a single and Sensenbach's three bagger came together. The weather was intensely cold and the crowd small.

Waddell Beats Athletics.

Philadelphia, May 20.—Waddell yesterday afternoon faced his former comrades of the Philadelphia team for the first time, and largely through his excellent pitching St. Louis won by 5 to 2. Bender, who fanned eight men, weakened in the seventh, when three singles and two doubles netted St. Louis four runs and decided the game. Score:

Killian Batted Out.

New York, May 20.—The New York team downed the Detroits yesterday by hitting Killian hard in two innings and driving him from the box. The star of the game was Manning, who time and again cut the Tiger batters down with men on bases. He pitched great ball in pinches and struck out Cobb twice. Score:

ASHLAND HAS PETE HAUSER

Great Indian Football Man to Play Baseball in Wisconsin.

Ashland, Wis., May 20.—Peter Hauser, the star fullback of the Carlisle Indian football team of last year, has signed with the Ashland baseball team for the present season, and he will be in the game with the Ashland team at Rhinelander next Sunday. Mr. Hauser has played with the crack Haskell Indian baseball team, and will materially strengthen the local team. He is an excellent pitcher as well as an infielder and has also done considerable work behind the bat. He is an all around athlete, and is a powerfully built man.

Mr. Hauser's home is in Darlington, Okla., but has been attending the Carlisle college in Pennsylvania. He arrived in Ashland a week or so ago to visit with Mr. T. St. Germain, who is in the office of George F. Merrill, and it was through the efforts of Mr. St. Germain, who is playing first base for Ashland this year, that Mr. Hauser was induced to remain in Ashland and play ball.

Cadreau, who was reported as having signed with the Washburn team, called on the manager of the local nine, and said that he would remain with the Ashland team. With Hauser and Cadreau, the Ashland team should hold their own in the pitching department against all comers.

S.S.S. HEALS OLD SORES

The deep, underlying cause of every old sore is a bad condition of the blood. This vital fluid has become infected with some germ or poison which prevents the place from healing. This infection may be the result of an inactive, sluggish condition of the system leaving the refuse matter in the body to be absorbed into the circulation instead of throwing it off through the usual channels of nature. Another cause is the weakening or polluting of this life-stream from hereditary taints, or from the effects of a long spell of sickness, leaving disease germs in the system. When the blood is in this condition a sore cannot heal because the impurities with which the circulation is filled are being constantly discharged into the place to irritate and inflame the tissues and further disease the surrounding flesh. The only treatment that can do any good is one that removes the cause, and for this purpose nothing equals S. S. S. It begins at the fountain head of the trouble and drives out all germs, impurities and poisons, and then the place, being supplied with rich, pure blood, heals naturally and permanently. Local applications assist in cleansing the place, but a cure can only be affected through a purification of the blood. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free. TOUGH LUCK FOR FARGO

Brandon Wins Fifth Game in Ninth Inning Finish.

McGraw Bats for Dahlgren and Saves Day With Hit.

Brandon, Man., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—In another ninth inning finish, in which Frank McGraw, the Duluth boy, who is out of the game on account of an injury, was the hero, Brandon won the fifth straight game of the series yesterday afternoon by a 10 to 9 score.

The game was played with the mercury hovering around zero and errors were numerous. Though Brandon had the big end of the hitting, the Fargo men bunched their hits with Brandon's errors effectively, fighting against a Brandon lead of four runs, secured by good hitting in the third. In the seventh inning, Fargo cut loose with three successive hits. Then Burke bumped one up against the fence for three sacks and Fargo took the lead.

In the ninth Mills was hit by a pitched ball and Custer singled to center. O'Dea sent McGraw in to bat for Dahlgren and the Duluth boy was all to the good. He straightened one of Clarke's fast ones out and it went into center for two sacks, sending Mills and Custer over the plate with the winning runs.

The Fargo team is improving right along, especially in the hitting department. With a couple of good pitchers added to the staff, it will be a hard team to beat, as it has strong hitters and some sensational fielders. The detailed score follows:

TO CUT OUT THE RANGES

Transportation Difficulties Cause Cancellation of Baseball Dates.

Desertions From Ranks of Kelley Hardware Company Team.

The Kelley baseball team will not go to Hibbing for the games scheduled for next Saturday and Sunday. Manager Tom Brady of the Hibbing team is consumed with wrath, but the Kelleys unfeelingly let the consumption go on and are obdurate.

The trip to Virginia last Saturday was disastrous for the Kelleys as far as finances are concerned and unless some kind-hearted crowd of railroad magnates put on a train that will bring the ball players back Sunday night instead of Monday morning, Virginia, Hibbing, Eveleth and other range towns will be cut off of the list of opponents of Duluth semi-professional teams.

The boys of the semi-pro teams are all workers and the trips up the range entail loss of time from their regular work, as well as heavy expenses for traveling and accommodations. Trips to Hibbing and Virginia don't carry very much money with them and the loss is too heavy. Cloquet, Two Harbors and several other towns can be made in one day, but the others will be cut off.

The Kelleys are pretty badly riddled by desertions. Superior has grabbed Pitcher Brownlee and First Baseman Buchanan. Third Baseman Bernston has gone to Minneapolis and Pitcher Max Cook will go to Hurley for the summer. He will work and play ball. Wegman isn't inclined to leave the city to play and Robinson may take his place on the team. Still Manager Ziegler smiles. He says he will continue to play the local teams and will come out with the city championship, even if he doesn't invade the range as often as he expected.

The Fitwells and Superior will stage a show at Athletic park next Sunday afternoon. The clothing men are well pleased with their showing against Hibbing and they think they can easily hang one on the boys from over the bay. Superior is said to have a strong semi-professional nine and the game will furnish diversion for those, who long for baseball and must needs await the return of the Sox to see the league article.

HIBBING TO BE WORRIED

Eveleth and Virginia Spend Money for Good Teams.

"Butch" Kennelley Secures Men for His Eveleth Squad.

Hot times are predicted on the range this summer by "Roxie" Walters, who jumped his contract with the Fond du Lac team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league to play independent ball with Virginia. Walters was in Duluth yesterday and he has evidently absorbed a good part of the enthusiasm of the Virginia fans.

"'Beat Hibbing' is the slogan up in Virginia, and we'll do it, if good ball playing and the lavish expenditure of money will serve," said Walters. "With a very few changes the team we have at present will give Hibbing about as good an argument as they ever had. Grogan, Tredway and Currie are all in fine shape, and the boys are hitting the ball like fiends. I think the team is strong enough as it is, but we may have a couple of new men, and when we get against Hibbing the range will see baseball that will be new to the fans there."

Billings, who has played in the Wisconsin league for several years, is behind the bat for Virginia, with O'Hayer on first, Walters on second, Cox on third, Olmstead at short and Fred Anthony, Jimmy Ryan and McDonald in the field.

To all appearances, Eveleth isn't going to be far behind Virginia. "Butch" Kennelly, who is to manage the Eveleth team, has returned from the Twin Cities, where he picked up several players for his club. Josie Lynch, who played in nearly every town that was ever in the Northern league, will cover third base and captain the team on the field. Donovan, a former Western leaguer, will be behind the bat, and Dahlquist, a former Western association man; Gebeau, who played with Grand Forks some years ago, and Knudsen are on the pitching staff. "Butch" will take care of first and Metcalf, who comes from the Three I league, will be on third. Molan, the best shortstop on the Twin City lots, has also been picked up, and "Butch" has his eye on a second baseman, who will fit in well.

The Eveleth fans have raised a goodly sum to back their team and they will go right after the range honors. The Duluth semi-professional teams will probably be taken on first, and negotiations are now on for the Kelley team for Decoration day and the following Sunday.

Go Fishing Sunday!

The Duluth & Northern Minnesota Railway will run a special train Sunday, May 24th, and every Sunday thereafter, connecting with the Duluth & Iron Range at Knife River over their line, 45 miles to Schauff Lake, crossing several of the finest fishing streams in Minnesota.

LOOK OVER THE PLANS

Progress of Construction of Duluth's Nutting Cup Entry.

Large Representation of Club Will See Races at Chicago.

Reports from Chicago to Commodore Johnson of the Duluth Yacht club regarding the new yacht Duluth, which is to be entered by the club in the Nutting cup races on Lake Michigan next fall, are encouraging. The keel is laid, the builders are working and everything is going along nicely for the delivery of the yacht on time.

A representative of the yacht club will probably go to Chicago this week to look over the final plans, which have now been prepared. Everything is left in the hands of the builders, but the construction will be under the supervision of a representative of the Duluth club, who will see that everything is carried out according to the original designs.

Efforts will be made all season to arouse enthusiasm among the club members, so that the delegation which will go from Duluth to Chicago for the races will be the biggest ever sent to represent the city at any event of the kind. The branching out of the Duluth Yacht club to a competition taking in the whole Great Lakes is a big mark in the club's history, and it will be properly celebrated.

The members of the club are already laying their plans. Vacations, which ordinarily consist of a trip to the woods or a journey down the lakes, will this year be spent in Chicago, where Duluth and its yacht club will be boosted by enthusiastic supporters of the yacht Duluth. If a big representation of the club will encourage the crew to better efforts, they will receive all kinds of encouragement, and the hope of lifting the cup will not be abandoned until the last leg of the course is covered.

LAST GAME AT THE 'PEG

Duluth White Sox Will Open Series at Brandon.

Fans Hope for Even Break on the Canadian Side.

The Northern league teams will change around tomorrow, Fargo going to Winnipeg and Duluth to Brandon. They play another series of six games before returning to their home grounds to open with the Canadians May 28.

Duluth fans look for an even break on the Winnipeg series and they will get it, if the Sox can take this afternoon's game. Brandt will probably pitch against Sawyer or Terry, and if the boys use the club a little, a victory is not improbable. The team will go through the Brandon series as at present constituted and changes will be in order after the return home.

Fargo's showing at Brandon is disappointing to the Fargo fans, but they may take heart over the fact that in the last two games, the leaders were given a close run. Give Fargo a couple of pitchers and the hitting they have been doing against Brandon indicates that they will make trouble for the other teams. They should grab off a couple of the Winnipeg games.

Duluth's fate at Brandon is doubtful. The Sox have not been hitting very much, but their pitchers are working well, and Brandon's record of five straight victories was gained against a team which is certainly weaker than Duluth. If the Duluth pitchers can hold the Brandon sluggers in check, there is some hope for an even break there also, and if the team returns to Duluth with a .500 percentage, the fans will be well satisfied.

NEW WORLD'S RECORD.

Preceptor Goes Four and One-Half Furlongs in 51 Flat.

Belmont Park, N. Y., May 20.—A new world's record was made at Belmont Park yesterday when Preceptor, a 2-year-old, carrying 112 pounds, won the second race at 4½ furlongs straightaway. He stepped the distance in 51 flat, which is three-fifths of a second faster than the best previous time, made by Tampt, a 2-year-old, with 107 pounds up, at Morris Park, May 12, 1904.

Jack Atkin won the Crotona handicap, six furlongs straightaway, in the remarkable time of 1:08 3-5, which is three-fifths of a second slower than the world's record.

A track record was broken in the first race, when Queen Marguerito ran 5½ furlongs in 1:04.

JENNINGS IS SUSPENDED.

Rowdyism of the Detroit Manager Will be Investigated.

New York, May 20.—Manager Hugh Jennings of the Detroit team was suspended yesterday by President Ban B. Johnson of the American league, pending an investigation of alleged acts of rowdyism during Saturday's and Monday's games between New York and Detroit, resulting in Jennings and Pitcher William Donovan being ordered from the field by Umpire Hurst. Donovan was suspended Monday.

BOWLERS IN TOURNEY

Handicap Events Will Continue for Next Two Weeks.

Berini and Olson Roll Good Score in Opening Game.

The city handicap bowling tournament opened last night at the Central alleys and will continue for two weeks, with games every evening except Saturday. There are six five-men teams, twelve two-men teams and twenty-four individuals entered, and the rivalry is great. Handicaps will be given on league records, and they add interest to the events.

Good scores were made last night. Berini and S. Olsen rolled 1,292 in the doubles. Berini scored 651 in the singles and S. Olsen 627. Following are the scores:

GOTCH PAYS FORFEIT.

World's Champion Fails to Throw Olsen in Fifteen Minutes.

St. Louis, May 20.—Frank Gotch, the world's champion wrestler, met Charles Olsen on the mat at a theater last night and, proving unable to throw Olsen in fifteen minutes, paid Olsen $100 forfeit. Gotch had agreed to meet all comers and pay the forfeit if he did not get a fall in the specified time.

WILL ACCEPT ARBITRATION

Freight Question is to be Submitted to Third Party.

Chicago, May 20.—A joint conference between the commercial and industrial interests of the country and the railroads of the East to consider the whole question of advanced freight rates from all points of view is assured. That this conference probably will lead to submitting the issue either to President Roosevelt, the interstate commerce commission or an impartial board of arbitration for a final decision, also is likely, according to the opinions of railroad men expressed yesterday.

Apparently the olive branch of peace, rather than the war club, either of which alternatives was presented by the shipping interests in the resolutions which were the outcome of last Friday's conference, will be the choice of the Eastern railroads.

While it is probable the necessity of the railroads for more revenue, either through advanced freight rates or reduced employes' wages, will be considered in a conference over all phases of the problem, it is not probable that a contingent reduction of wages will be considered, if the issue is left for arbitration or a binding decision with the interstate commerce commission. The commission has no power to fix or determine any phase of the wage question, and therefore can only consider whether an advance in rates is just and reasonable. The threat of reducing wages is regarded by manufacturers and shippers as a measure more easily threatened than put into effect.

Torpid Livers Must Not be Treated Harshly

Salts and cathartics will wake the liver to action. But note what else they do.

They ruin the stomach, so that nearly all dyspepsia is due to them.

They harden the liver, as shown by the fact that a larger dose becomes necessary.

The end is dyspepsia and constipation. You have caused what you sought to cure.

Delicate organs cannot be helped by abuse.

Drastic physic is never used by those who know. This is the day of the gentle in medicine.

Cascarets bring all the good results with none of the ill effects.

They are vegetable. Their action is exactly the same as the action of laxative foods.

They aid digestion, while cathartics ruin it. They restore the natural functions which cathartics wreck.

We now sell a million boxes a month to those who have quit harsh physics.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

TASTE GOOD DO GOOD NEVER SICKEN WEAKEN OR GRIPE

The vest-pocket box is 10 cents. The month-treatment box 50 cents. 12,000,000 boxes sold annually. 630

TAKES FIVE MINUTES TO CURE YOUR INDIGESTION

Read Why Nothing Will Upset Your Stomach or Remain Undigested if You Eat Diapepsin Afterwards.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will take one 22-grain Triangule of Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or Stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective Diapepsin is used. No matter what you think your trouble—call it by any name you choose—it is certain that the real cause is fermentation of the food you eat. All else are merely symptoms or the result of this cause. For all these things you will find a sure cure in Diapepsin, and one 22-grain Triangule, taken after your next meal, will prove this. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest 3,000 grains of food and leave nothing to ferment or sour. Any good pharmacy here can supply these 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, which have the complete formula printed thereon to show just what you are taking, and that it is no more harmful than candy.

Start taking Diapepsin today, and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

MRS. VANDERBILT TO GET DIVORCE

Referee Asks Granting of Decree—Settlement Stumbling Block.

New York, May 20.—Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt is to gain absolute divorce from her husband if the recommendation of Referee McClure is carried out.

After weeks of delay, Mr. McClure has completed his report and turned it over to Lewis Cass Ledyard, Jr., of the law firm of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn. The report is being held by the attorneys for the plaintiff until a cablegram is received from attorneys in London who are trying to bring about a money settlement of the case.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, according to the best information, has not asked that Alfred Gwynne settle any money on her, but she wants not less than $10,000,000 set aside for their child.

That the report has not been filed is due only to the money consideration. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt does not want to set aside $10,000,000 of his fortune for the use of his son at this date, because it would materially affect his income. During the last year his income has been reduced to less than $800,000 a year. He has borrowed heavily, it is said, and as a result has tied up many of his securities for the next ten years.

THE OCCUPANTS OF TWO SLEEPING CARS ROBBED.

Mexico City, May 20.—News just received here states that every occupant of two sleeping cars attached to a train which left this city Saturday for Vera Cruz was held up by two negroes, and, at the point of pistols, relieved of money and valuables, amounting to about $10,000. The robbers entered the train at midnight, while it was detained at Apizaco, in the state of Tlaxicala, by heavy washouts.

One of the porters on the train was arrested at Apizaco for alleged complicity.

CLEVELAND IMPROVES.

Lakewood, N. J., May 20.—Former President Grover Cleveland shows steady improvement, according to the statement issued tonight by Manager Becker of the Lakewood hotel, acting for Mrs. Cleveland. During the past week Mrs. Cleveland has left the patient a number of times and has been away from him all day on several occasions.

FIVE WITNESSES TOLD GRAND JURY THEY WERE PAID TO VOTE ILLEGALLY

THE MEN WHO ARE CLAIMED TO HAVE BEEN INDUCED TO VOTE ILLEGALLY.

The accompanying picture shows the five men on whose testimony before the grand jury, a few days ago, Louis Roth, a citizen of Chisholm, has been indicted on five counts for procuring illegal votes at the last municipal election in that village.

The men who testified before the grand jury are Juri Kustodich, Ivo Kustodich, Norica Drashkovich, Mys Radovich and Blagoja Abramovich, all Montenegrins, employed in the mines near Chisholm, who, it is claimed, have not become citizens of this country and cannot legally vote at any election in the country, state or municipality.

One of the witnesses is said to have testified that Roth paid him $1 for his vote and promised him more for another vote.

Another is said to have testified before the grand jury that he voted twice at Roth's request, and was paid $1 for each vote.

The remaining three Montenegrins are understood to have testified that they were paid certain amounts for their votes.

Several other witnesses from Chisholm were examined in connection with the alleged election frauds, but, so far as known, the indictments against Roth are the only ones that have thus far been returned by the grand jury.

The five men whose picture is here produced posed for The Herald photographer the day that they appeared before the grand jury.

BLOCK SYSTEM IS ABANDONED

Some Roads Have Stopped the Use of Safety Devices.

Chicago, May 20.—In their eagerness of their desire to cut operating expenses to the bone, a number of railroads have curtailed the use of their block signal systems, which were installed with a view to making travel safer.

The abandonment of the block signals have thus far been mostly to branch lines of road, and in the night service on the main lines. This curtailment of expenses, which is regarded by many railway men as inexcusable even in stress of financial emergency, has spread to both Eastern and Western roads, and two of the systems extending into the Northwest country. In the words of one Western vice president yesterday, the roads to which reference is made are "skating on thin ice."

This action by the comparatively few roads, among which are some of the larger systems, is viewed by many with alarm, and it is confidently expected that there will be an explosion if the matter become public knowledge. News that some of the roads have temporarily abandoned the use of some portions of their block signals for train operation is said to have been given to the interstate commerce commission, and an investigation may follow. The commission has no power to compel railroads to adopt any particular method of train operation, but it is well known that if the knowledge becomes public, public opinion would compel the roads in question to resume full use of their safety devices.

In defense of their action the officials of the roads making the changes declare that on the lines in question there are no more than one or two freight trains a day, where there used to be at least four, and that the passenger train service has been cut down to a point where train operation by means of the time card and the train dispatcher can be conducted with as great safety as formerly by the aid of the block signals. The operation of what are known as "manually controlled" block signals is expensive, and the railroad officials making the changes insist that they have not done so where safety would be diminished.

IRON AND STEEL WORKERS ADJOURN.

Youngstown, Ohio, May 20.—The thirty-third annual convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers adjourned here yesterday, after a two weeks' session. Detroit was selected for the 1909 convention. President H. J. McCardle and all other national officers were re-elected, with the exception of Thomas Williams of Pittsburg and John Hogan of Piqua, Ohio.

The local wage agreement adopted by the association becomes effective July 1, 1909. This is a measure which may possibly avert a strike. Under it, each mill will make a wage settlement of its own, entirely separate and distinct from any other settlement. This will make possible a reduction of the wage scale adopted by the convention last week.

CARRS SELL BUSINESS.

Well-Known Brokers Will Take Life Easy for a While.

Walter W. Carr, who, during the three years he has been in Duluth, has built up one of the largest curb brokerage businesses in this part of the country, has disposed of it to N. S. Mitchell & Co., and the new owners will take charge of it Saturday.

Three years ago, Walter and William Carr came here from Calumet and went into business under the firm name of Walter W. Carr.

Walter Carr said today that he and his brother had great faith in Duluth and intended to make investments in Duluth property. Of his plans for the future and those of his brother, Mr. Carr could say little, declaring that for the next six months both of them proposed to take life easy.

The Carr office at Hibbing has been disposed of to the manager, L. W. Browne, and the Eveleth office has been purchased by the manager there, J. P. Tredinnick.

FARGO SECURES STATUE.

Memorial to Norwegian Genins Goes to That Nearby State.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo, N. D., was selected by the Wergeland Statue committee Monday as the permanent home of the bronze effigy of the Norwegian poet which was presented to the Norwegians of America by the people of Norway at a big meeting at the Auditorium Sunday.

The Wergeland committee consists of Laurits S. Swenson, Dr. H. C. Stub, William Ager, Eau Claire, Wis.; Congressman N. C. Haugen, Northwood, Iowa; Judge Oscar M. Torrison, Chicago; Judge L. K. Hassall, Grand Forks, N. D.; Hans A. Ustrud, Pierre, S. D.; Dr. Herman O. Fjelde, Olav Bjorke and H. J. Hagen, Abercrombie, N. D.; Sam G. Iverson, Prof. Gisle Bothne, Dr. Knut Heogh, Andreas Ueland, Prof. Sven Oftedal, Prof. E. K. Johnson, Otto C. Tollefsen.

"Hands across the sea," were stretched out in fillial affection by her American sons to Mother Norway, represented by his excellency Ove Gude, envoy extraordinary and minister plenpotentiary to the United States, and Right Rev. A. Christian Bang, primate of the church of Norway, at the reception and banquet at the West hotel Monday evening, tendered the crown's envoys by citizens of Minneapolis, when over 250 representatives citizens of Norwegian birth or parentage were present.

The reception took place in the alcove of the balcony of the hotel and hundreds who had not previously been presented to the honored guests of the evening were duly introduced wit hall formality.

The Wergeland dedicatory exercises will be held at Fargo, June 17, the hundredth anniversary of Wergeland's birth.

MORE IF HE WAITED.

Staples Hotel Thief Was in Too Much of Hurry.

Staples, Minn., May 20.—The proprietor of the St. Charles hotel in this place was robbed Monday night of about $350 by a trusted employe. Eugene Shank, the night clerk, worked out the combination to the hotel safe and taking all the money in sight left town on a train early yesterday. It is thought he made for the Twin Cities, and the police there have been notified.

Shank came here in February and soon made a favorable impression and secured the clerkship at the hotel. He was an absolute stranger and nothing is known of his antecedents. He is about 20 years of age, has dark hair, blue eyes and light complexion. Had he waited two days longer his loot would have amounted to about a thousand dollars. The railway men who live at the hotel would be paid off then and in turn settle their bills and deposit their funds in the hotel safe.

FREED FROM HER PRISON

Chicago Girl Released From Asylum and Weds at Once.

Chicago, May 20.—Given her freedom from an insane asylum to be married to the sweetheart who had stood by her faithfully in her troubles, was the romantic experience of Etta P. Maxwell, who yesterday morning was discharged by Judge McEwen from Kankakee hospital.

Shortly after 9 o'clock she was given her discharge, and half an hour later she was married to Charles W. Burnitz, 1530 West Division street, by Judge Arntz.

It was nearly two months ago that the young woman was sent to the asylum. For some time she had been ill from nervous prostration, and her condition finally became so serious that her sister asked that she be taken to the detention hospital.

From the time she was taken there Miss Maxwell was forbidden to communicate with anyone, not even to send word to her sweetheart. For several days she was at the hospital before being taken to the asylum. Behind the iron bars her condition became more serious.

One morning, while she was standing at the bars, fate willed that Louis Glickman should pass. She attracted his attention and piteously begged that he should intercede for her. He became so interested in her story of being wronged that he went inside and attempted to see her. He was threatened with arrest if he persisted in visiting her.

Angered, he sought the advice of his counsel. A writ of habeas corpus was taken out and she was brought back to this city.

Judge McEwen heard both sides' stories. Burnitz, who had been searching everywhere for her, found her in the court room. Quickly he went to her side and prayed the judge for her release. The court finally decided to patrole her.

It was over the telephone that the romance was completed. Burnitz called her up and asked her to wed him at once. Miss Maxwell demurely insisted that Judge McEwen should first be consulted. Burnitz agreed, and the next morning the pair visited the court and got his consent.

IT WAS NOT DIGNIFIED.

Roosevelt Shocked by Jerome's Story of His Dice Shaking.

New York, May 20.—That President Roosevelt disapproved of District Attorney Jerome's frankness on the witness stand, when the prosecutor of New York county declared that he had shaken dice with Allan Ryan, son of Thomas F. Ryan, while Harry Thaw's attorney was summing up, is told by two New York politicians, who had a half hour's talk with the executive in Washington last Friday.

The president feels that Jerome should have maintained a degree of modesty in relating the exploit. He said that Jerome's tale of shaking dice was a shock.

"I was surprised and pained to hear of District Attorney Jerome's testimony before the body examining him. Just think of it. He was throwing dice for drinks. It wasn't at all dignified, now, was it?"

These are President Roosevelt's exact words, spoken to John S. Whalen, secretary of state of New York, and Assemblyman James J. Hoey, who represents John F. Curry's district at Albany.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The Indiana railroad commission was temporarily enjoined from enforcing its recent order reducing the express rates on interstate business in Indiana Tuesday night by a temporary injunction entered by Judge A. B. Anderson, in the federal court.

Jud B. Vance of Des Moines, Iowa, aged 45 years, shot and instantly killed himself in his room in the Savoy hotel at Kansas City Tuesday night. His body was found lying across the bed, a bullet hole behind the right ear and a revolver lying where it had fallen from his right hand.

United States Senator Samuel Douglas McEnery was elected to succeed himself by both the senate and the house of representatives of the Louisiana legislature Tuesday. His present term will expire March 3, 1909.

The Carr faction of the Democratic party of the District of Columbia Tuesday night elected six delegates to the Denver convention. The delegation, which is uninstructed, will contest the seating of the delegation to be elected by the Kelly faction at the convention to be held on May 23, the primaries for which were held here Tuesday.

MANUFACTURERS TAKE ACTION

Against the Raising of Class Issues by Political Parties.

New York, May 20.—Following up the important actions of its earlier sessions, protesting against political agitation, of a demagogic nature, calculated to set capital and labor at odds, the National Association of Manufacturers in annual convention late yesterday took a decided stand against the raising of class issues by the great political parties. This action was in the form of a resolution introduced by John Kirby of Dayton, Ohio., and worded as follows:

"Resolved, That the president of this association be authorized and instructed to select members as he may deem proper to serve with him as a committee to present this association before the national committees of the two political parties and that he invite the cooperation of committees from other associations to the end that class harmony planks be taken into the platform of both parties."

Close upon the heels of this move by the manufacturers came the taking on their part of a decided stand against the advance in freight rates which the trunk lines have announced to be impending. The manufacturers seek an amicable adjustment of the matter with the railroads, but failing in that, announce their intention of resisting the proposed advance in the courts.

The aid of other associations is to be invoked, if thought advisable, by a committee authorized to carry the terms of the resolution into effect.

The association before adjournment for the day after a spirited debate went on record as indorsing the formation of a permanent tariff commission to revise tariff schedules upon the principle of international costs. The association ordered a telegram sent to the conferees of the national house of representatives on the postoffice bill requesting them to favor the enactment of ocean mail subsidy provision in that measure, now in dispute between the two houses.

FELL FROM WINDOW.

St. Louis, May 20.—Balmy summer breezes lulled Ira Baty to sleep sitting in a window on the fourth floor of a North Third street building yesterday, and he tumbled out. His head struck the roof of a shed three stories below and penetrated the wooden structure, presenting the remarkable spectacle of a man's body dangling from the shed roof and his head not visible. A policeman frantically chopped him out of confinement. Baty was unconscious but will recover. His skull was fractured.

SYMPATHY MOVED HIM

Duluth Attorney Volunteers Services to Penniless Woman.

Secures a Dismissal of the Charge Against Her.

Sympathy for a woman who, penniless and sick stood before the court charged with a crime, and unable to employ an attorney, caused H. B. Fryberger, one of Duluth's prominent lawyers, to volunteer his services in the district court, yesterday afternoon.

As a result of Mr. Fryberger's efforts the indictment against the woman was dismissed and she was released from custody.

Mrs. Anna Yelavich, an Austrian woman, who was indicted by the grand jury for running a blind pig, near Hibbing, was brought into court on a bench warrant. The woman, who is in a delicate condition, was poorly dressed. She had no money and when arraigned showed unmistakable signs of being sick. Unable to understand English, she seemed much distressed because she could not understand what was transpiring in court. All she seemed to understand was that she was under arrest.

Learning that Mrs. Yelavich had no money to employ an attorney, the court consulted the revised statutes, but could find no provision whereby the county is obligated to furnish an attorney for persons accused of selling liquor without a license and who have no funds to hire a lawyer.

The outlook was pretty bad for Mrs. Yelavich, when Mr. Fryberger, who was defending a personal injury case, on trial before Judge Ensign, arose and said:

"Your honor, if this woman has no attorney to look after her case, I will defend her."

The incident was witnessed by a large number of people who were attending the trial of the damage case, in one capacity or another, the proceedings of which had been suspended for a few moments to enable the court to dispose of the two people brought in on bench warrants.

Mr. Fryberger's offer can be more fully realized from the fact that he has steadily refused to defend criminal actions of this nature when sought by persons well able to pay the fees. The situation in which the woman was placed appealed to him and his offer was a voluntary one.

MAY OPEN BRIDGE ON JULY 4

Work on the Interstate Structure is Now Being Rushed.

The interstate bridge will be opened for traffic on July 4, according to present indications. Work on the bridge is progressing as rapidly as it can be pushed, and if the calculations of the men in charge of the work do not go astray, trains will be running over the bridge on Independence day.

The bridge was wrecked in August, 1906, so that twenty-three months will have elapsed when the repairs are completed.

DOINGS AT RICE LAKE.

Rice Lake, Wis., May 20.—This city will have an old-fashioned celebration on July 4, in which all neighboring cities have promised to join. Six or eight bands will be engaged, a firemen's tournament and big baseball games will be pulled off, as well as races and sports of all kinds. Milwaukee's ex-mayor, "Sherbie" Becker, has promised to be here with his airship. Ex-Speaker Lenroot of Superior will give an oration.

ON THE IRON RANGES

HIBBING WELL TO BE SUNK DEEPER

Some Plans for New City Hall Are Received by Council.

Hibbing, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Plans for the new city hall were submitted by several Duluth architects at the village council meeting last night. It was decided to defer the selection for at least one week, and the council will meet Friday to select an architect.

It was decided to sink the village well until 1,000 gallons per minute can be obtained, the sinking not to exceed 109 feet. The bid of Joe Thomas to sink the well at $21 per foot was accepted.

The bid of the Zenith Coal company of $3.50 a ton was accepted, the company to supply 6,000 tons.

The first steps toward the erection of the new Merchants' & Miners' bank were taken when Antoin Passard asked permission to move the buildings which he bought recently, from their present location on Third and Pine streets, which will be used for the new bank, to lot 18, block 8, and lot 13, block 12.

Rev. Mr. Mehuriz of Virginia has purchased the bath tubs and old iron from Messrs. Miles & Markham, and will, according to contract, remove the same from the premises at once.

FIREMEN GETTING READY.

Preparing for Tournament to be Held in Biwabik.

Biwabik, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fire department held a meeting last night to arrange for the firemen's tournament to be held here Aug. 11 and 12.

Messrs. A. L. Myers, E. A. Koen, Herman Jones, Edward Berrill, Joseph Polak, Charles Christian, Jr., Thomas Mulvany, Kirk S. Johnson, J. F. Toeller and Don C. Anderson were appointed to take charge of the arrangements.

A committee consisting of Messrs. J. F. Toeller, H. L. Fields and W. T. Scott was appointed to look after the erection of a dancing pavilion for the tournament.

Representatives of the firemen will petition the city council at the next meeting to give the town to the firemen during the tournament.

AURORA CATHOLICS OBJECT HAVING SUICIDE NEAR DEAD.

Aurora, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Charles Carlson, who committed suicide by hanging himself Friday, was held from the Methodist church Sunday, under the direction of the Aurora lodge, Modern Woodmen of America. Through a mistake the body was buried on the Catholic side of the cemetery, and the Catholics of Aurora are asking for its removal. It is one of the rules of this church that no suicide shall be buried in Catholic territory, and the members of that church here claim that if the body is not removed, they will transfer all other bodies buried there to other sections of the cemetery.

EVELETH SEEKING GOOD SIDEWALKS

Duluth and Other Contractors to be Asked for Pointers.

Eveleth, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sidewalks were generally discussed at the city council last night. Every one was talking sidewalks, as the result of a notice sent out to property owners on certain streets to fix up cement sidewalks within two weeks.

A petition signed by thirty-four interested property owners was read and accepted, asking for more time in which to build the sidewalks, and calling attention to a section of the law relating to the filling in of the ditches.

It appears that many are not satisfied with the hasty sidewalk work that was done last year, and do not wish the same state of affairs to occur again this summer. A number of last year's sidewalks will have to be replaced again this time, making additional expense to the property owners.

The city clerk was instructed to correspond with Duluth and other sidewalk contractors, and secure figures on the cost of building the sidewalks and the time necessary to build. These figures will be submitted to the property owners, who will then decide which way they want to build—singly or by city contract. A 30-day extension was given in which to lay the sidewalks, as the two weeks' notice is considered too short.

Efforts are being made to stamp out those saloons which are charged with being disorderly, and with the city attorney's aid the proprietors of these places will be brought before the council to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked.

The chief of police has been having trouble in trying to get the merchants to raise their awnings to seven feet, as he was instructed to, and also in getting them to keep obstructions off the sidewalk. To remedy this, the ordinance committee will meet this afternoon to draft ordinances regarding the awnings and the sidewalk obstructions.

The council will hold an adjourned meeting Friday night.

WILL MAINTAIN CITY'S HEALTH

Virginia is to Enforce All Regulations to That End.

Virginia, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. J. H. Crowe, health officer, in a written communication to the council last evening, made the statement that the alleys of the city are now in a cleaner condition than they have ever been before, but he feared that they would not long remain so unless immediate steps were taken in regard to the collection and disposal of garbage. He recommended that steps be taken to enforce that portion of the health ordinance which provides that water-tight barrels shall be stationed at the rear of each building for the reception of all garbage. The communication stated that several parties were using out houses overhanging Virginia lake; also that diphtheria, which was plentiful at the beginning of the year, has been abated and that there are no other contagious diseases in the city at this time.

The council instructed the city clerk to post notices to the effect that the provision regarding garbage barrels would be enforced in the future and provided that the garbage be hauled away weekly by the scavenger at the expense of the city. The health officer was instructed to abate the lake front nuisance.

The city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for the construction of a sanitary sewer in District No. 3 E.

The Virginia Light & Water company was instructed to install five new arch lights in the Southside addition, also to lay a water main in Spruce street from Central to Virginia avenues.

The clerk was instructed to request the Standard Oil company to remove their tanks and warehouse from their present location inside of thirty days, and if they fail to do so the city attorney was instructed to begin condemnation proceedings.

Mayor Hawkinson stated that he had not signed the liquor license of Cohen & Mendelson, granted last week, because complaint had been made regarding the saloon and he desired the matter referred to the license committee for report. This was done.

The matter of a new road to Eveleth, which would avoid the big hill, was brought up and referred to the committee on ways and means.

The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for construction of a board walk to the cemetery on the southside of the Mountain Iron road.

The street commissioner was instructed to set up the drinking fountain recently received by the city.

On complain of a Third ward citizen, the committee on city property and buildings was instructed to look up a location for a new pest house and devise the best means of disposing of the old one, whether by sale or destruction.

The Light & Water company was given thirty days to remove all poles and hydrants to a distance of fourteen feet from the lot line.

WATER FOR BREWERY.

Virginia Hop Factory to Sink Its Present Well Deeper.

Virginia, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a precaution against possible failure of its present water supply, the Virginia Brewing company is preparing to drill a well deep enough to insure a never-failing supply. A drilling machine driven by a gasoline engine is being set up today. It is hoped to strike an artesian flow of water before the drilling is discontinued.

The time schedule as finally adopted by the Missabe road differs somewhat from that previously published. The train leaving Virginia at 3:15 in the afternoon reaches Hibbing at 4:06, leaves there at 4:45, arrives Eveleth at 5:45, leaves there at 5:55, and arrives in Virginia at 6:35. The local train leaves here at 5:42 in the evening, reaches Eveleth at 6:33, and returning arrives at Virginia at 7:26.

Mrs. James Lavick of this city was operated on yesterday for appendicitis at the Mayo hospital at Rochester. She was accompanied there by Mr. Lavick and her father, John Mesberg.

A son was born yesterday morning to Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Biss and a daughter in the afternoon to Mr. and Mrs. Matt Derosia.

PURSE SNATCHER.

Bold Thief Secures Pocketbook Containing $4 and Escapes.

A purse snatcher made his appearance on Sutphin street, yesterday afternoon.

Hilda St. Clair, proprietor of a resort in the red light district, was walking along Sutphin street, about 4 o'clock, when a young man passed her and snatched the pocketbook she was carrying. He fled at top speed and made his escape, dodging into one of the saloons on Lake avenue and probably walking out a side or rear entrance.

The pocketbook contained $4.

JOHN LOIDER BURIED.

Victim of Accident at Chisholm Mine Laid to Rest.

Chisholm, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral was held here this morning from the Catholic church of John Loider, who was instantly killed by a cave-in in the Chisholm mine, when a large chunk of ore dropped from the top of the chamber in which he was working, striking him on the head and causing instant death. Loider was 23, unmarried, and leaves relatives in Austria, from which country he came only two years ago.

FIND BRACK'S BODY.

Rainy River Has Finally Given Up Its Dead.

Virginia, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of William Brack, the deputy United States collector of customs who was drowned in the Rainy river below the upper falls, April 17, and for which extended search was made, was recovered Tuesday and has been taken to St. Paul for interment, where relatives reside. Editor Terry of Ranier passed through here yesterday afternoon en route to the Saintly city with the body.

PROVIDE FIRE ESCAPES.

Aurora, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Aurora Hardware & Furniture company has been awarded the contract for erecting the fire escapes on the Aurora schoolhouse. Their bid was $509.

The salaries of the teachers were fixed at the same meeting of the board, ranging from the superintendent's salary at $138 per month, for twelve months, to $52.50.

CHISHOLM VS. VIRGINIA.

Chisholm, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Chisholm baseball team will go to Virginia Saturday, where they will play two games on Saturday and Sunday. The Chisholm team will not lack rooters, for a large number of Chisholm fans will drive over to witness the game, and others will go over on the train. The nine is a strong aggregation and expects to take at least one of the games.

Sam Markovich and Miss Misa Dukova were happily married Sunday at the Austrian church. They are of Austrian parentage and reside at the Glen location. A large number of friends and relatives attended the ceremony and afterwards partook of a sumptuous supper.

MANY ATTEND FUNERAL OF DEAD POSTMASTER.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The high esteem in which the late Thomas A. Bury for many years postmaster here and an honored citizen, was held was amply testified to this afternoon when a large number of friends, many coming from Duluth and other points, gathered at the Methodist church to attend the last sad rites. The body lied in state at the home from 10 a. m., until 2 p. m., when it was removed to the church the services beginning soon after. The church was crowded to the doors. Rev. Mr. Powell conducted the services paying an eloquent tribute to the dead.

THEY BROKE FISHING LAW.

Virginia, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Herman Hackonen and John Roslop were arraigned before Judge Fleming yesterday, pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal fishing, and each paid a fine of $10 and costs. The men were charged with using set lines in Sand lake. Chief Walsh, who went up the line to assist in bringing the men to town, noticed portions of the carcasses of two deer that had been left on the shores of Sand lake to rot.

GOING TO COLERAINE.

Ishpeming, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. G. G. Barnett will leave Sunday for Coleraine, Minn., on a visit to her son Lawrence. From there she will go East to visit relatives.

NASHWAUK IN BRIEF.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. A. Gordon was a Hibbing visitor Monday evening returning Tuesday.

Mrs. C. E. King of Buhl looked after business interests here Monday.

Mrs. John L. Shellman returned from Chisholm Monday, where she spent a few days visiting friends.

Miss Ruth Dolson was pleasantly surprised Saturday evening at her home, by her young friends. Those present were: the Misses Pearl Gordon, Mary Pasevanto, Gladys Gordon, Mary Saccoman, Hilma Berglund, Hannah Pearson, and Messrs. Frank White, Russell Teythal, John Arshnault, and Harry Johnston.

The Misses Braehm of Hibbing arrived Saturday and spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Riley returning home Wednesday.

The Nashwauk Social club gave a dance Monday evening, May 18. Music was furnished by the Nashwauk orchestra. A midnight lunch was served at Pearson's restaurant.

The Ladies' Aid society will meet at the home of Mrs. W. T. Sandritzky Wednesday afternoon.

Erick Johnson of Bovey was a Nashwauk visitor Saturday.

The Outcasts won a game of ball Sunday from the Beavers by a score of 13 to 16. Everything went well for the Beavers until the last inning. A few outfield hits gave them the game.

BOVEY'S FAST TEAM.

Bovey, Minn., May 20.—The Bovey baseball team defeated Coleraine here Sunday 2 to 1 in a hotly contested game. The battery for Bovey was Holmes and Wellis. Holmes allowed only two hits and Stolquin of Coleraine six. Bovey will undoubtedly have one of the fastest teams on the range this season.

COUNTY MUST BURY HIM.

Chisholm, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Matt Johnson, the Finn who was found drowned in Longyear lake last week, still lies in the morgue for want of burial expenses. It is now up to the county to bury him, for his wife is unable to stand the expense.

A Square-Deal

Is assured you when you buy one of Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and attested under oath as being complete and correct. They are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native, medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. While potent to cure they are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children.

Not a drop of alcohol enters into Dr. Pierce's leading medicines. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine of proper strength. This agent possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable anti-septic and anti-ferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, "heartburn," foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

For all diseases of the mucous membranes, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific. Catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs is cured by it. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures even in the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on-coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate hang-on, or chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

It's an insult to your intelligence for a dealer to endeavor to palm off upon you some nostrum of unknown composition in place of Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines which are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. Most dealers recommend Doctor Pierce's medicines because they know what they are made of and that the ingredients employed are among the most valuable that a medicine for like purposes can be made of. The same is true of leading physicians who do not hesitate to recommend them, since they know exactly what they contain and that their ingredients are the very best known to medical science for the cure of the several diseases for which these medicines are recommended.

With tricky dealers it is different.

Something else that pays them a little greater profit will be urged upon you as "just as good," or even better. You can hardly afford to accept a substitute of unknown composition and without any particular record of cures in place of Doctor Pierce's medicines which are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and have a record of forty years of cures behind them. You know what you want and it is the dealer's business to supply that want. Insist upon it.

WRONGS OF A JACKASS

Illinois Appellate Court Jurists Rule Brute Has Rights.

Reverse Judgment for His Former Valet by Lower Tribunal.

Chicago, May 20.—Here is the way the grave and learned judges of the appellate court have sized up our old tried and true companion, the jackass:

"The jackass is nobody's fool.

"The milk of human kindness fills his breast.

"Furthermore, he can bear a grudge.

"Besides, he is not to be gold-bricked.

"He has a sympathetic nature.

"Smite one cheek and he will not turn the other.

"He thinks in curves and kicks out straight behind."

Judges Holdom, Adams and Brown, who sit upon the appellate bench, have considered him in a legal way, handed down their findings, after dissecting his nature, and now, for the first time in centuries the jackass is about to receive his just dues. The judges reversed a judgment yesterday of $511 against the Frank E. Scott Transfer company in favor of John Donahue, who had been maltreated by a trick jackass owned by the company.

"It appears from many pages of written testimony that Mr. Donahue was employed to curry the jackass and to act in a general way as his valet. Whether the jackass assumed superior airs after Mr. Donahue took up his duties is not known, but this much is certain—an awful row occurred after Valet Donahue had been on the job a week.

Valet Donahue, it appears, used to take a pitchfork and tickle the jackass with the prongs. Another little habit which the valet had learned was to take a rake and drag it along the animal's back. This used to irritate the jackass, and he became so peevish that he brayed at all hours of the night, thereby awakening the neighborhood.

Finally Valet Donahue began to use a strap upon his charge. This proved to be the last straw. The jackass layed for the valet, and according to a jury, inflicted $511 worth of injury upon him. The $50 was awarded to Mr. Donahue because the jackass bit his arm almost off, and the $11 was given him because the jackass had tattooed so many horse shoes upon his anatomy that he looked like a clock token.

Mr. Donahue quit his position. He told a few friends that he had been inveigled into going into the jackass' stall unarmed one summer's day, when Mr. Jackass appeared to be half asleep.

The jackass set his teeth firmly into Mr. Donahue's arm. Mr. Donahue retaliated by hitting his enemy a blow in the left optic. Then they came to the center of the stall and mixed furiously. Unfortunately, Mr. Donahue came within range of the jackass' heels. He said afterward that he heard automobiles honking, engines whistling, street car gongs clanging, fire bells ringing and a roaring in his ears which would have made fifty grains of quinine sound like the lulling murmur of the south wind.

Then came the suit for damages and the award of $511 by a jury. Of course the transfer company appealed the case and in handing down their reasons for reversal of the verdict the judges extolled the humble jackass.

MRS. EDDY SAYS SHE IS NOT ILL

Minding Own Business and Suggests Others Do Same.

Boston, Mass., May 20.—Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy objects to the current rumors that she is in ill health. In the current issue of the Christian Science Sentinel, there are two announcements by her. One says:

"In view of the recent rumors as to her health Mrs. Eddy has given out the following statement:

"'To Whom It May Concern:

"'Since Mrs. Eddy is watched, as one watches a criminal or a sick person, she begs to say in her own behalf that she is neither; therefore to be criticised or judged by either a daily drive or a dignified stay at home is superfluous. When accumulating work requires it or because of a preference to remain within doors she omits her drive; do not strain at gnats or swallow camels over it, but try to be composed and resigned to the shocking fact that she is minding her own business, and recommends this surprising privilege to all her dear friends and enemies.

"'MARY BAKER G. EDDY.'"

The other announcement says:

"Beloved Students: Rest assured that your leader is living, loving, acting, enjoying. She is neither dead nor plucked up by the roots, but she is keenly alive to the quality of living, and safely, soulfully founded upon the rock Christ Jesus. Like the verdure and evergreen that flourish when trampled upon, the Christian Scientist thrives in adversity. His is a life lease of hope, home, heaven. His idea is nearing the way, the truth and the life when misrepresented, belied and trodden upon. Justice, honesty cannot be abjured; their vitality involves life, calm, irresistible, eternal."

That light, flaky, delicious, melt-in-your-mouth quality that Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder gives to the baking is one reason why good cooks always use it.

ROBBED BOX CARS.

Sidney Dowell is Taken to Minneapolis for Trial.

Sidney Dowell of Minneapolis was taken in custody in Duluth Monday by Detective Edward M. Helin of the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad and taken back to Minneapolis, where he is charged with having robbed box-cars. Cutlery and silverware which had been stolen from box-cars was found in his possession.

Dowell formerly was a city detective in Minneapolis, and by a strange chance, Helin, who was the first man he has arrested since taking up his new duties, was the first man he arrested for larceny when he went on the city force. Dowell will be given a trial in Minneapolis.

FUMIGATION.

State Health Inspector Gives Duluth Inspectors Pointers.

A. S. Sands of Minneapolis, one of the state health inspectors, who was in the city yesterday, delivered a lecture on "Fumigation" before the health inspectors of Duluth yesterday afternoon. The meeting, held in the council chamber at the city hall, was attended by people connected with the health department.

Mr. Sands' talk was largely technical, dealing with fumigation and the best way to go about it, as well as with results expected to be attained from the process. He described different methods of fumigating, and told of different experiments with different methods, giving the inspectors the benefit of several years' experience in that line of work. Some of his suggestions were valuable ones, and will be followed out in Duluth.

LOADING AT ORE DOCKS

Pittsburg Boats Will Sail With First Cargoes This Week.

Shipments Will be Light Until After First of June.

The first ton of ore for the season of 1908 was let through the chutes at the Duluth, Missabe & Northern ore docks into the steamer J. P. Morgan of the Pittsburg Steamship company's fleet this morning, and before the week is out several cargoes from the Steel corporation's mines on the range will be started for the Lake Erie docks.

The steamers Mariposa, Morgan, Baker and Maritana of the Pittsburg fleet arrived last night from the lower lakes and proceeded directly to the Missabe docks. A small force of ore handlers was put at work and the loading of the Morgan and Baker began first, so that they will take the first cargoes down the lakes. The Black, Mataafa and Cornell were moved to the Missabe docks yesterday from their station at the Pittsburg coal dock No. 1, where the Lynch and Princeton are still lying. The boats, which wintered here, are not yet ready to be put in commission, but probably will be before the end of the week.

The beginning of loading at the docks is not taken as an indication that the general movement has begun. Ore shipping will go on in a desultory way for the remainder of this month from the docks here, at Allouez and Two Harbors, but there will be only a comparatively few boats in operation and the big fleet will not get into motion before June 1.

Cargoes of coal are straggling into port and reports from the lower lake ports indicate that there will be no rush of boats up the lake for some weeks yet. Boats are loaded and waiting for the prospect of return cargoes before sailing, but the rush of ore will not begin until June 1 and until then, there will be but little activity.

RETURN CONTRACTS.

Men at Cleveland Repudiate Their "Open Shop" Agreements.

Cleveland, May 20.—The steamer Mathew Andrews which took coal to Fort William, returned yesterday and was laid up.

The steamer French, the first arrival with ore, was unloaded at 8 o'clock and will go to Erie to load hard coal.

A number of men on the local ore docks, who signed contracts for two years, returned the contracts yesterday and quit work.

DREDGING AT HOUGHTON.

Zenith Company Will Clear Channel Where Stanton Grounded.

Houghton, Mich., May 20.—A contract has been entered into with the Zenith Dredge Company of Duluth to do some dredging in Portage river, at the point near where the steamer John Stanton stranded a week ago, and where the Mary Woolson also went aground. The outfit of the Zenith Dredging company arrived in Portage lake this week, en route to Marquette, where it has a large contract for the South Shore railroad at its ore docks, and some other minor dredging.

The local engineer's office got into communication with Maj. Graham D. Fitch of Duluth, the United States engineer in charge of the local waterway, and a decision was reached to have the dredging done at once. As the Zenith company had its equipment here, a contract was entered into, and the work will commence immediately.

The contract calls for the removal of about 1,000 yards of material at the intersection of range lights Nos. 14 and 15, and 13 and 8 on the west bank of the river, near where the Stanton ground-d. In addition to dredging out this filling in, the contract calls for the removal of several shoals near the residence of the watchman at the lower entry, and the dredging of some shoals both above and below. The work will require about two or three weeks to complete.

The removal of these shoals from Portage river will leave that body of water in a thoroughly navigable condition. The Stanton grounded near the west bank of the river, at about one and one-half miles from the entrance to Big Portage, but her position was such that had she not swung in in channel, navigation would not have been blocked. The river at this point, however, is quite narrow, and it was deemed advisable by the government to have it dredged. The coming here of the Duluth dredging concern afforded an excellent opportunity and the present contract as a result.

The dredging outfit is made up of dredge No. 2, tugs Ashland and Duncan Robertson and three scows.

FEEDING FOR HEALTH.

Directions by a Food Expert.

A complete change in food makes a complete change in the body. Therefore if you are ailing in any way the surest road back to health is to change your diet. Try the following breakfast for ten days and mark the result.

Two soft boiled eggs (if you have a weak stomach, boil the eggs as follows: Put two eggs into a pint tin cup of boiling water, cover and set off the stove. Take out in nine minutes; the whites will be the consistency of cream and partly digested. Don't change the directions in any particular), some fruit, cooked or raw, cooked preferred; a slice of toast, a little butter, four heaping teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with some cream, a cup of properly boiled Postum Food Coffee.

The Grape-Nuts breakfast food is fully and scientifically cooked at the factory, and both that and the Postum have the diastase (that which digests the starchy part) developed in the manufacture. Both the food and the coffee, therefore, are predigested and assist, in a natural way, to digest the balance of the food. Lunch at noon the same.

For dinner in the evening use meat and one or two vegetables. Leave out the fancy desserts. Never overeat. Better a little less than too much.

If you can use health as a means to gain success in business or in a profession it is well worth the time and attention required to arrange your diet to accomplish the result. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

LIGHT FOR THE STERN

Danger of Rear End Collisions Between Motor Boats.

Faster Boats Cannot See Slow Craft in Front of Them.

Because government regulations do not demand a safeguard, motor boat owner are laying themselves open to grave danger of collision, which even the required lights will not altogether protect them against. At present motor boats must carry three lights—the usual green and red and the center white light—none of which must show light behind. These lights are supposed to warn boats coming toward them.

The danger, however, comes from the speed boats, which, making two or three times the speed of the ordinary launch, are apt to come up behind on a launch running in the dark with the three lights set. The auto boat running at a great speed throws up a spray that keeps the operators from obtaining a clear view ahead, and in the dark it could easily be possible for them to smash into one of the slower boats. Built staunchly and with a knife-like edge, they would cut through a launch like butter.

"If launch owners would carry their white anchor lights at the stern while running, there would be little chance for an accident like this," said a government inspector, this morning. "The menace of the speed boats should also be a warning to launch owners to carry at least the regulation lights. When things are looked at in the right light it will be found that the government does not demand much, and all its demands are for the safety of the people."

LICENSE WAS ALTERED.

Engineer of Steamer Suit Arrested on Serious Charge.

Chicago, May 20.—Charles A. Dalton was placed under arrest yesterday charged with altering his engineer's license and was held under bonds to appear before Commissioner Foote for examination on Monday, May 25. Dalton is believed to have altered his license to enable him to act as chief engineer on the steamer J. C. Sult. His license allowed him to act as assistant engineer only. The alteration was detected when he tried to have his license renewed in the local inspectors' office. Dalton is liable to a fine of $500 or three years' imprisonment.

FRONTENAC AGROUND.

East or South Wind Do Great Damage to Boat.

Sturgeon Bay, May 20.—The package freighter Frontenac bound to Green Bay with a cargo of merchandise went aground on the southwest reef off Pilot Island, 50 miles north of here about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon during a dense fog on the lake. She was attempting to enter Death's Door passage. The steamer is about two feet out forward and on sand rocky bottom. Word has been sent to Green Bay for the tug Taylor. The life saving crew at Plum Island went to the stranded steamer. The weather is favorable but a southerly or east wind would result in serious damage. The Frontenac is of wood and 625 tons. She sailed from Chicago.

ENGINES TESTED.

New Passenger Steamer Given Trial Run at Buffalo.

Buffalo, May 20.—The engines of the new steamer Americana of the Crystal Beach line have been tested by a short run into the lake up. The trial was most satisfactory, a speed of 18¼ miles on hour being attained. May 27 is the day set for the official trial trip. The vessel will be turned over to the owner today.

BOATS ARE RELEASED.

Mitchell and Chickamauga Will be Temporarily Repaired at Ashland.

The tugs Inman and Superior, which went to the relief of the steamer Samuel Mitchell and consort Chickamauga at Houghton point yesterday, returned this morning, after having released the Mitchell and towed both boats back to Ashland. The two tugs had quite a hard pull to release the Mitchell, which had gone in on the mud bottom in the fog. They released her at about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The two boats will need temporary repairs at Ashland before they will be able to proceed down the lakes. When the Mitchell went aground, the Chickamauga crashed into her, breaking the rudder and tearing a hole in the stern. The Chickamauga was practically uninjured. The temporary repairs will be made in a day or two and the boats will go into dry dock for permanent repairs after they discharge their cargoes at Cleveland.

Capt. McLeod Resigns.

Capt. W. A. McLeod, for ten years with the Wolvin line, has resigned his position as master of the steamer J. H. Hoyt and will later in the season sail a Canadian boat, which is being constructed at Newcastle, England. Capt. McLeod was on the F. B. Wells last year and for two years prior to that sailed the Hoyt. He took the Hoyt out on her first trip this season. He will go to Hamilton, Ont., to await the arrival of his new charge.

America Sails.

The steamer America of the Booth line left this morning for Port Arthur and north shore points on a regular trip. A party of members of the Washington club, including Messrs. Panton, Morrow, Brown and George Stone, left on the America for the club for a few days' fishing. The steamer Easton will go into commission Sunday.

Crashes Into Bridge.

Lorain, May 20.—While the steamer Harvey Goulder was being towed, stern first, through the Erie Avenue bridge by a tug, the line parted and she crashed into the bridge breaking her rudder nu. The bridge was put out of commission for several hours.

Contracts Investigated.

Cleveland, May 20.—The meeting of the committee appointed by the vessel owners to investigate the contracts, was held here yesterday. The chairman of the committee said there was no change in the situation and that only boats that have contracts are in commission.

Buoy Near Reef.

Port Huron, May 20.—The Canadian government has placed a red canvas buoy in the shoal abreast of the Point Edward's reef.

Collide in River.

Cleveland, May 20.—While coming out of the old river bed last night, the steamer French collided with the Eugene Kennedy and put the latter out of business. The Kennedy was tied up at Front street when the steamer hit her.

VERDICT FOR SMITH.

Recovers From Hibbing Merchant for Bill of Goods.

A verdict of $52.86 in favor of Roderick Smith of Carlton, against Bryan O'Rourke of Hibbing, was returned by a jury in the district court last evening. Mr. Smith sued Mr. O'Rourke for $300, which amount was alleged to be due for merchandise sold the Hibbing merchant. Mr. O'Rourke denied the claim and made a counter claim of $108.90 against Mr. Smith for freight charges which he claims to have paid under promise of refundment, and for alleged losses in profits by a failure of Smith to fill certain orders for goods when the market was rising.

ADA WOMAN BECOMES CRAZY IN GRAND FORKS.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 20.—Mrs. Marie Wang of Ada, Minn., became insane on North Seventh street and violently resisted efforts of police summoned to take her to the county jail. She told Judge L. K. Hassell that she had a son at Lakota and came here to secure work. She claimed to have been persecuted by enemies at Ada.

Th Minnesota board of control has been notified and if the woman does not recover she will be sent to Ada for a hearing as to her sanity.

SUITS AT NINE

But None Are Nine Dollar Suits.

While our buyer was in Chicago last week he was offered 400 suits of the present season's manufacture, all cut in the latest models and at such a sacrifice that he could not resist the temptation to buy them, even though he must have known that we had plenty of suits in stock.

For just this latter reason, we are going to sell these suits at once. They arrived yesterday and not a single one will be put in our regular stock. Here's how we'll sell them:

Nine Dollars the Price, $13.50 to $20 the Values, Friday the Start

This special purchase comes from the well-known shops of the Sincerity Tailors, which is a guarantee of their real goodness and worth. We do not over-state things in saying that buying them at just about 50 per cent of their true value, we can inaugurate a suit sale that will eclipse anything we've yet been able to place before you.

Mrs. Leslie Carter Not Going Back With Belasco.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Leslie Carter, now playing in Minneapolis denies that there is any truth in the rumor current in New York that she is contemplating a re-alliance with her former manager, David Belasco.

William Louis Payne, Mrs. Carter's husband and business manager, speaking for his wife, said that there was not the slightest reason for starting this rumor. Monday night he thought that possibly a prominent daily, given largely to reporting theatrical news, may have been pressed for a sensation and brought up this old matter.

"There is no truth in it," said Mr. Payne. "Mrs. Carter will not return to Mr. Belasco. This may have been only some press agent's yarn, and may have come even from the Belasco office just to keep things interesting."

LITTLE ONE SWALLOWS CARBOLIC ACID, BUT LIVES.

Owatonna, Minn., May 20.—The 3-year-old child of T. L. Barstow was nearly killed by swallowing carbolic acid. The Barstow family had just moved into the house and evidently the previous tenants had left the bottle containing about an ounce of acid, of which the child took about two teaspoonfuls. The life of the child was saved, although she was terribly burned about the mouth.

ANOKA BOY CALLED.

Anoka, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Morris Morton, the son of Ed Morton of Burns, died at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning of uremic convulsions. He was sick but a very short time, having been taken ill with measles a little over a week ago.

Morris was 15 years of age, having been born Jan. 11, 1893, and had not been in very good health for some time. The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock Thursday from the the home and the burial will be at Anoka.

DROWNED IN WHITE FACE

William Murray Meets His Death on Log Drive.

Body is Brought to West Duluth for Burial.

Word was received in West Duluth last evening of the drowning of William Murray in the White Face river, above Cloquet.

Murray was driving logs down the White Face river Monday afternoon, when he slipped from the log he was riding and fell beneath the drive. His body was recovered and was brought to West Duluth this noon, where it was taken to M. J. Filiatrault's undertaking rooms. No arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral.

Murray was 25 years old and was well known in West Duluth where he had several relatives. His home is in Canada. He was a nephew of Mrs. James A. Brotherton of 317 Fifty-first avenue west. Albert Murray and John Murray of Cloquet are uncles of the deceased.

FREE OF DEBT.

Diocese of Duluth Has Clear Title to Churches and Rectory.

Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, rector of the Holy Apostles' and the St. Luke's Episcopal churches of West Duluth and the West end, is approaching the end of his fifth year as rector of those churches.

In the five years that he has been rector 162 members have been confirmed in the two churches. When Rev. Mooney first took the St. Luke's church, the lot on which it stands had not been paid for. Since then the building has been raised, reconstructed and refurnished, and is free of debt, the lot and church having been paid for.

The same is true of the Holy Apostle's church. It has been raised and repainted and the lots on which it and the rectory are situated are paid for and the church free from debt. The title to the property of the two churches including the rectory and its lot, is now invested in the diocese of Duluth, free of encumbrance.

NEW BRIDGE.

Concrete Structure Will be Built on West Third Street.

Specifications for a new street bridge to replace the old tumble down affair on Third street near Thirty-seventh avenue west, are being prepared by City Engineer McGilvray. The old bridge was condemned a short time ago by the bridge inspector.

The new structure will be made of concrete in accordance with the ideas of Mayor Haven, and will probably cost from $11,000 to $15,000.

Most of the repair work to be done on bridges will be carried on in the western part of the city. The Third street bridge will likely be the only one to be entirely rebuilt; the rest will be only repaired, as the fund of $37,000 which was appropriated by the council, is not sufficient to do any extensive work on new bridges.

West Duluth Briefs.

Nick Kleanch, Joe Peterson and Fred Serbant left last night for Portland, Or.

John Holms has returned from a short trip to the Twin Cities.

The Royal Neighbors of America will hold a dance at the Great Eastern hall Friday evening.

Curtis Sliger, who has been very ill with diphtheria, is reported to be improving.

Mary Duggan and Daniel Cavenaugh of Cloquet were married yesterday morning at 8 o'clock by Father D. W. Lynch of the St. James' Catholic church. After the ceremony, breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, 4407 Oneota street. The couple left for Cloquet on an afternoon train.

The Ladies' Sewing society of the Elim Swedish Lutheran church, corner of Elinor street and Fifty-sixth avenue west, has made elaborate arrangements for their annual bazaar to be held Friday and Saturday evenings in the basement of their new church. There will be a program and supper each evening.

Don't forget the dance by Royal Neighbors of West Duluth, Great Eastern hall, Friday night, May 22.

Harry Larson of Minneapolis, who has been the guest of his aunt, Mrs. Haldora Olson, of 329 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, has returned to his home.

The Alumni association of the Longfellow school will hold its annual banquet Friday evening at the school on Elinor street.

The Forty-ninth avenue west trunk sewer is progressing rapidly. Work has been started on Grand avenue and the work is already about half a block above Oneota street.

GREAT DEMAND FOR SEATS.

Preparations for Democratic Convention at Denver About Completed.

Denver, Colo., May 20.—Preparations for the national Democratic convention have been practically completed. Work on the new Auditorium has been hurried until nothing remains to be done except to place the space to various delegations. As an indication of what the attendance will be, the unusual demand for seats at the convention is significant. Those in charge of the convention for the national committee say the requests for seats is easily twice as numerous as at any other convention the Democratic party has held.

SCHOOL FOR CHINESE.

San Francisco, May 20.—A Chinese school, where the children of local Chinese may be educated in Chinese, is to be built in this city at once. It will be the only school of its kind in this country. The school will be built with $50,000 of the $100,000 relief fund sent to the Chinese colony after the fire of April, 1906.

RAILROADS

GETTING CARS READY.

Range Roads Are Preparing for Heavier Shipments of Ore.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern has begun active preparations for the handling of ore. It is estimated that the tonnage will increase daily until the first of June.

On the Great Northern, also, the ore traffic will increase steadily. The officials of the Missabe road have sent out orders that all rolling stock be placed in order to meet the heavy demands.

Employes who have been granted leaves of absence, extending from thirty to sixty days, will be recalled by the first of the month and the rumble of ore trains between the range and the loading docks will take on mid-season volume.

Heavy Coast Travel.

Passenger business on both the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, according to local information, has received a great stimulus from the presence of the Atlantic squadron on the Pacific coast.

Special trains are being run on the Northern Pacific as far east as Bismark, N. D., to accommodate the number of travelers who are going to Seattle to witness the naval maneuvers. The Great Northern has also found it necessary to run some special trains to take care of the increased passenger travel.

Coast travel is generally heavy at this time of the year, but the presence of the fleet has served as an added attraction.

Harriman Extension.

Portland, Or., May 20.—The Harriman system will this season build a railroad from Lakeview south to the state line, a distance of fifteen miles.

The projected road will be a branch of the Oregon Eastern.

Whether this line will be built further south in California cannot be learned. It is considered likely that this will be done and a connection made with the Southern Pacific or the Central Pacific.

New Traffic Manager.

F. R. Hall, formerly manager of the Southern Dispatch line of Chicago, has accepted the position of traffic manager of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad, the position to become effective June 1.

Mr. Hall has served in the traffic department of the Wisconsin Central, Canadian Pacific and the Northern Pacific roads.

C. A. Van Oder, mill superintendent of the Rainy Lake Lumber company's interests at West Duluth, will leave that company to take a position with the Pigeon River company at Port Arthur.

MITCHELL HAD AN ALCOHOL JAG

Two Old Offenders Draw Jail Sentences Before Judge Cutting.

Charles Mitchell, an old offender, appeared before Judge Cutting in municipal court this morning on a charge of drunkenness. He was fined $25, with an alternative of twenty days in jail.

Mitchell has been in police court so often that it seems like home to him now, and generally he greets the judge and clerks with a glad smile of welcome. He seems unable to keep away from the cup that cheers, so manages to spend a good deal of time in the county jail.

This morning he had a new story to offer in explanation of his condition. He said he was in Superior yesterday and met an old friend, a bartender, who presented him with some raw alcohol, which he took for purely medicinal reasons. The alcohol was stronger than he thought, and produced unexpected results, in the shape of a huge drunk.

Mitchell says he got on a car to go to another part of the city, but made a mistake and got on the car coming to Duluth. That is how he happened to land on this side of the bay.

Gus Maki, also an old offender, drew a straight jail sentence of sixty days. This is the fourth time he has appeared in court during the last two months, and the judge decided that stringent measures were necessary to bring him to time. Jail sentences are not as agreeable in the summer as they are in winter, so his imprisonment is likely to bring about good results.

TO EASE HIS DYING HOURS

Marsh Will be Kept Under Opiates Until Death.

New York, May 20.—To ease the last hours of the victim of rabies, William H. Marsh, a wealthy inventor and manufacturer of Brooklyn, who was told yesterday at the pasteur institute that he had hydrophobia and could live but a few days, the physicians about his bedside put him under the influence of opiates early today and he was kept in that condition until his death. Mr. Marsh was perfectly conscious and apparently did not suffer except when seized with convulsions. The paroxysms became more frequent last night, each growing more violent than the preceding ones. The physicians feared that he would begin to rave and determined to relieve any suffering that might ensue. Between the paroxysms, Mr. Marsh bid farewell to his family, which had gathered at his home in Brooklyn and arranged his business affairs.

WILL MEET ON RANGES

Program Announced for Lake Superior Mining Institute Meeting.

Papers Will be Read by Experts on Mining Matters.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the Lake Superior Mining Institute will be held on the Minnesota ranges June 24 to 27. An elaborate program is being prepared by committees of the institute, and the meeting promises to be one of the most interesting and instructive in the history of the institute which was formed with the purpose of promoting the interests of mining.

Special rates have been arranged for, assuring a large attendance. Papers will be read by experts on mining matters and current mining problems of interest will be taken up for discussion.

Prof. L. S. Austin of Houghton will read a paper on "Sampling of Iron Ores." J. H. Hearding of Eveleth will read a paper of "Biographical Sketches." "The Standard Boiler-house of the Oliver Iron Mining Company," will be the subject of a paper by A. M. Gow of Duluth, and "Automatic Throttle Closing Device for Hoisting Machinery," will be discussed by Spencer S. Rumsey of Duluth.

Mine sanitation and the subject of sampling ore at mines and at upper and lower lake docks, will be subjects that will be discussed by members of the institute. Other subjects of interest to the development of mining will be taken up at the range meeting.

T. F. Cole of Duluth is president of the institute; A. J. Yungbluth, Ishpeming, secretary, and E. W. Hopkins, Commonwealth, Wis., treasurer. An urgent call will be sent to all members of the institute, as the meeting is one of great importance to the mining interests of the Northwest.

STEAMER FOUNDERS; ALL ON BOARD SAVED.

Falmouth, May 20.—The British steamer Latonia, from Montreal for London, foundered westward of the Lizard this morning, after colliding with the British steamer Japanic, from Newport for Montivideo.

All the passengers and crew of the Latonia were saved. The Japanic was badly damaged.

HOME TO CURE HIS MALARIA

Young Frenchman Will Re-Enlist After Vacation in Pine Woods.

After serving two years in the Philippines as a member of the United States marine corps, Joheph La France, a native born Frenchman, has returned to recuperate in health so that he may apply for re-enlistment and return to the United States army.

La France was enlisted at the Duluth marine office, March 10, 1906. He was sent to the Mare Island navy yard and ordered to foreign service. He remained with his company until recently, when his health became so bad that he was ordered home. He was discharged from service May 11, at the Mare Island yard, where the naval doctors recommended the Northern woods as the best place to recuperate from the tropical malaria with which the young man was affected.

The young Frenchman was at the local marine recruiting office today on his way to the pine woods in the northern part of the state. He is enthusiastic over the United States army and will re-enlist just as soon as the state of his health permits.

La France has served in the French army. He also saw foreign service for a brief period during the Boer war. He informed Sergeant Hutchins that the American army was the greatest army in the world. As proof of this belief he will join the fighting squad of his adopted country as soon as the doctors pronounce him fit.

STUDENTS RUN DOWN BY A CAR

Young Man and Woman Seriously Injured Near Como Park.

St. Paul, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Jennie Constance and Warren Heins, juniors at Hamline university, were run down by a Como-Harriet street car near Como Park last night, and both are seriously, but not fatally, hurt. They are at the Cobb hospital. Miss Constance has several cuts on her head. Her face is cut and bruised and there are symptoms of internal injuries, indicated by a hemorrhage, and she is suffering from the shock.

Mr. Heins has a complete fracture of both bones of the left arm. His collar bone is also fractured and he has multiple bruises and abrasions about the head and face. He remained unconscious during the night.

Miss Constance is 23 years of age. Her parents reside at Cumberland, Wis.

Warren Heins, 24 years of age, has his home at Olivia, Minn. He rooms at 1689 Van Buren street. He is said to have a brother, an only relative, living in Minneapolis.

The street car officials say that the motorman saw the couple on the tracks and that he rang the bell in warning, but that he struck them before he could stop the car.

PRESBYTERIANS MAY FAVOR AMALGAMATION.

Kansas City, May 20.—Amalgamation of the different branches of the Presbyterian church and the harmonizing of all organized religions will likely form one of the most important questions to be brought up in the one hundred and twentieth general assembly of the Presbyterian church, which begins here tomorrow. It is already known that the report of the committee on fraternity and union will show a strong sentiment favorable to amalgamation. Twenty delegates from Porto Rico arrived today.

MAJOR LIKES BEMIDJI.

Bemidji, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Maj. W. W. Cooley who is connected with the United States Instalment Realty company of Minneapolis, is here for a week's outing and is so impressed with the city that it is very likely that he will take residence here. The major is an enthusiastic fisherman and during the stay here hooked on many of the finny tribe, and comes out with the statement that as a fishing resort Bemidji has them all cheated.

MAKING CEMENT BLOCKS.

Anoka, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. J. Green has begun the manufacture of cement blocks for sidewalks and building purposes. He has leased for a season the cement block works owned by Dr. J. F. Kline and will operate it this summer. Last week a number of men were employed putting it in first class order. An experienced block maker is here and the manufacture of the blocks has begun.

ANOTHER PAVING CONTRACT.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 20.—Preliminary steps were taken at a meeting of the city council Monday evening to let the contract for the repaving of twenty-five blocks in the business portion of the city. Some time ago the district was divided into three parts, but an ordinance has been introduced making the district all one.

PRESSURE IN CHICAGO

Causes Wheat to Close Weak—Duluth is Unchanged.

Flax is Well Bought During the Session Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 20.—Heavy pressure in Chicago put most of the American markets off at the close today, but wheat held firm and closed unchanged in Duluth.

The bear movement in Chicago was largely manipulation, as much of the news of the day was bullish. The cables were higher at the opening and stimulated the market then. Until the last hour, prices were up everywhere.

Duluth did not respond much to the weakness in Chicago, the September being the only option to show a decline from the previous day at the close.

Liverpool closed 1½d to 1¼d higher, Berlin 1⅝c higher, Budapest ⅝c lower and Antwerp ⅝c higher.

The May option closed unchanged in Duluth, 1⅝c lower in Chicago, ⅞c lower in Minneapolis, ⅝c higher in New York and ⅝c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed unchanged in Duluth, 1c lower in Chicago, 5⅝@5⅞c lower in Minneapolis, 1¼c lower in New York and ½c lower in Winnipeg.

July corn closed ½@⅝c lower in Chicago and ½d higher in Liverpool. July oats closed a shade lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat as a result of the firmness in the American markets yesterday and reports of wet weather in Argentina, shorts became nervous and covered freely. At the opening, the market was firm and from ¼@½d higher and further advanced ⅝@⅞d during the early trading, with the nearby months particularly well supported. There was an improved demand for spot and offerings were light. Toward midday, there was some reaction as support lessened, due to the fact that there was no inquiry reported for us. At this time, until the market was dull, but 1¼@1½d higher than Tuesday.

"Corn was firm and ¼d higher at the opening in sympathy with the advance in wheat, and the strength in La Plata parcels. After the opening the market was neglected and unchanged at the early advance."

Car receipts at Duluth were 7 against 66 last year, and at Minneapolis 120 against 246 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 127 against 311 last year. Chicago received 22 against 52 last year; Winnipeg received 48 against 244 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 318,000 bus, last year 591,000 bus. Shipments 269,000 bus, last year 655,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 326,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 621,000 bus, last year 450,000 bus. Shipments 451,000 bus, last year 442,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 49,000 bus.

July wheat was fairly active during the session in the Duluth market. May wheat was inactive and closed unchanged from yesterday at $1.04⅜. July wheat opened ⅜c higher at $1.04⅜, advanced to $1.05¼, declined to $1.04⅞, rallied to $1.05, went off to $1.04⅜ and closed at $1.04⅝, unchanged from yesterday. September wheat opened ¾c higher at 92⅜c and closed at 91½ bid, a loss of ½c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ¼c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2¼ over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was active and closed firm. May flax was inactive and closed unchanged from yesterday at $1.20. July flax opened ¼c higher at $1.21¼, advanced to $1.21⅜, declined to $1.21¼, rallied to $1.21⅜, went off to $1.20⅜ and closed at $1.21, unchanged from yesterday. September flax was inactive and closed unchanged from yesterday at $1.21¼. October flax was inactive and closed at $1.19⅞, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Excellent Growing Weather Has a Depressing Influence on Wheat.

Chicago, May 20.—The wheat market was weak at the opening today despite an advance of more than 1d at Liverpool. The excellent growing weather in this country was the depressing influence. July wheat opened 1⅛@⅜c lower at 90⅜@90¾c, sold up to 91⅛c and then declined to 90⅛c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 140 cars against 216 cars last week and 394 cars one year ago.

Profit-taking sales were in evidence for the greater part of the day, and the general sentiment was bearish. The low point for July was 88⅝c. The close was weak, with July 1c lower at 89¾c.

The corn market was irregular, the May option being strong with the other deliveries easy. May corn opened ⅜c higher at 78¾c, sold at 78¼c and then advanced to 79c. July corn was ⅛@⅜c lower at 69⅛@69⅜c and for a time held within that range. Local receipts were 169 cars with 36 of contract grade.

The market became weak in the latter part of the day, and May corn declined to 77½c, while July sold down to 66¼c. The close was weak, with May ¼c lower at 77½c, and with July off ½@⅝c at 66¼@⅜c.

The oats market was quiet and prices were steady. July oats opened unchanged at 46⅞c and sold at 46¾c. Local receipts were 138 cars.

The provisions market was active and weak. A general disposition to take profits after the advance of yesterday was the weakening influence. July pork opened unchanged at $13.75 and sold at $13.62½. Lard was unchanged to 5c higher, at $8.57½@8.62½ and sold at $8.55. Ribs were unchanged at $7.42½ and sold at $7.37½@7.40.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.01¼; July, 89¾c; September, 86⅜c; December, 87c. Corn—May, 77½c; July, 66¼@66⅜c; to 66⅜c; September, 64⅝@64⅝c; December, 56⅛c. Oats—May old, 56c; May, 54½c; July old, 46¾@46⅝c; July, 45c; September, 37⅜@37½c. Pork—May, $13.47½; July, $13.62½; September, $13.87½. Lard—May, $8.45; July, $8.62½; September, $8.67½@8.70. Ribs—May, $7.22½; July, $7.35; September, $7.57½@7.60. Rye—Cash, 85c. Barley—Cash, 64@72c. Timothy—September, $4.25. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.01@1.03½; No. 3 red, 96c@$1.03; No. 2 hard, $1.01@1.05; No. 3 hard, 97c@$1.03; No. 3 spring, 98c@$1.07. Corn—No. 3, 76½c.

New York Grain.

New York, May 20.—Close: Wheat—May, $1.07¼; July, 98⅝c; September, 94c. Corn—May, 77¼c; July, 75¼c.

Duluth Car Inspection.

Wheat—No 2 northern, 2; No. 1 durum, 4; No. 3 durum, 1; total of durum, 5; total of wheat, 7, last year, 65.

Flax—Total of flax, none, last year, 20.

Oats, 1; barley, 1.

Total of all cars, 9. Cars on track today, 22.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Forecast for Rain and Colder Weather Gives Wheat Strength.

Minneapolis, May 20.—Wheat took on strength early today. A forecast for rain and colder weather made the trade a little uneasy about the maintenance of the present fine crop prospects. News from North Dakota was not so favorable, but reports from South Dakota and Southern Minnesota were very good. Receipts at Minneapolis were 120 cars against 246, Duluth 7 against 66. Minneapolis stocks decreased 225,000 bus for four days, and if the rate of daily decrease continues will be under 4,500,000 bus for Saturday next. The market weakened after the noon hour and July after selling up to $1.05½, broke to $1.04½. July opened at $1.05¼; high, $1.05½; low, $1.04¾; closed, $1.04⅝@⅞. September closed, 90¾c; May closed, $1.05⅝. Cash demand was better.

The tendency premiums were about the same, 2½@2c over July for No. 1 northern, and ½@1c over for No. 2 northern.

Cash close: No. 1 northern, $1.05@1.06⅛; spot, $1.06⅛ to $1.06⅜; No. 2 northern, $1.04⅜@1.05⅛ spot; $1.04⅜ to arrive. No. 3 wheat, 96c@$1.02.

No. 3 yellow corn, 71¼@71¾c; No. 3 white oats, 50⅝@51⅛c.

No. 2 rye, 77¼@78¾c.

Barley steady in fair demand and not much changed from yesterday, a little easier if anything. Close, 50@68c.

Flax very strong at Duluth, 1c over the July price on the light receipts, only five cars coming in. Closed: $1.21¾.

Bran in bulk was quoted $21.75@22.00.

Two of the larger companies received flour orders for fair; seed lots urging immediate shipment because of immediate need and exhausted stocks. Shipments, 44,781 barrels. First patents, $5.45@5.60; second patents, $5.30@5.45; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.55@3.65.

Liverpool Grain.

Liverpool, May 20.—Closing: Wheat—Spot No. 2 red Western winter, steady, 7s 6d; No. 1 California, steady, 7s 7½d on quays and 7s 8½d in store; futures quiet; May, nominal; July, 7s 7½d; September, 7s 3-10d; December, 7s 2⅝d. Corn—Spot, new American kiln dried, firm, 5s 10d; old American mixed, steady, 5s 10½d; futures, quiet, May, 5s 9½d.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

Butter has taken a slump and is cheaper now than it has been since last fall. The market for all grades is off from three to four points. More liberal receipts are responsible for the decline.

THE ELECTION OF BISHOPS BEGINS

Two-Thirds of All Votes Cast Necessary to Elect.

Baltimore, May 20.—The election of eight new bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church began at today's session of the general conference of that denomination, in the presence of the largest gathering of spectators that has yet attended any of the meetings, the opening day not excepted. As soon as the first ballot had been cast the tellers retired to count the votes. This task was expected to take some time, owing to the number of general superintendents to be chosen and the likelihood that there would be a large number of complimentary votes. Two-thirds of all the votes cast were necessary to elect.

The committee on revision, whose adverse report on the proposition to change the title of "presiding elder" to "district superintendent," was rejected by the conference, will again report against the substitution, but there will be a minority report, signed by Chancellor James R. Day of Syracuse and eighteen other members of the committee, asking for the suggested change.

SALOON MAN IS ARRESTED

C. F. Korth Charged With Selling Liquor to a Minor.

C. F. W. Korth, the West Duluth saloonkeeper, in whose place John Ottley attempted to commit suicide last week by drinking laudanum, was brought into municipal court this afternoon on a warrant charging him with selling liquor to a minor. He pleaded not guilty and his examination was set for Friday afternoon.

MICHIGAN DEMOCRATS HOLD STATE CONVENTION.

Lansing, Mich., May 20.—That William J. Bryan would be endorsed by the Democratic state convention today, and that the Michigan delegation to Denver would be instructed to vote for the Nebraskan for the presidential nomination, was the practically unanimous opinion among the delegates before the representatives of the Michigan Democracy were called to order in Baird's Opera house this morning.

When the convention met, A. M. Cummins of Lansing was introduced as temporary chairman.

INSTRUCTS FOR BRYAN.

Columbia, S. C., May 20.—By a vote so nearly unanimous that no division was called for, the South Carolina state Democratic convention today decided to instruct its delegates to the national convention for Bryan.

ADVANCES NOT HELD

Stocks Started Lower, Rallied Sharply, But Fell Off Again.

Prices Rebounded When Selling Ceased and Was Strong.

New York, May 20.—Effective realizing sales were still manifest in the opening dealings in stocks today while supporting measures were in evidence in some issues. The result was a confused price movement showing sharp gains and losss in contrast. Dealings were on a large scale. Erie first preferred dropped 2, Amalgamated Copper 1¼ and Great Northern preferred 1⅛. Great Northern Ore Certificates rose 1⅛.

A brisk rally occurred which cancelled the opening decline and placed St. Paul a point over yesterday's closing. A drive against American Smelting undermined the market and prices fell again. Illinois Central yielded 2, American Smelting 1½, the preferred 2¾, and some others a point or more. Supporting orders were distributed again and the market rallied. From the opening price of 58 Missouri Pacific was rushed up to 64, carrying with it other members of the Gould group for gains of 1@2⅝ points. The effect elsewhere showed in one point gains for Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, American Sugar and North America. Bonds were irregular.

The leaders of the rise did not improve much further, the demand shifting into stocks that had not participated notably in the midday rally. Of these, St. Paul, Reading and Missouri Pacific were conspicuous.

Heavy selling of American Smelting was resumed when the advance in prices ceased and there was a subsequent violent drop. Large blocks of the principal stocks were sold. American Smelting touched 69½, a loss of 3¾; Reading, 3; Atchison, 2¾; St. Paul, 2⅝; Amalgamated Copper, 2¾, and Union Pacific 1⅞.

The market closed strong and active at a rally. After the selling movement had swept the market, prices rebounded and dealings became dull.

Stock Gossip.

New York, to M. W. Lee & Co.: The session has been one of extremely wide fluctuations, the governing influence being entirely interest in metal stocks, especially in American Smelters, on which it was rumored that the dividend would be passed entirely.

The semi-professional element was inclined to the view that the reaction today was overdue, and sold stocks freely. At one time there was some very furious selling coming from the coterie that was so successful in the bear campaign in 1907. London traded freely on both sides of the market, sales exceeding purchases about 15,000 shares.

We regard the market as in the near future apt to be influenced in high degree by technical influences. Sales of stocks by investors on the advance will gradually be replaced again on such declines, thus forming the basis, we believe, in the not distant future, for another upward movement.

Sterling exchange steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87.30 for demand and at $4.85.25 for 60 days bills. Commercial bills, $4.84⅞; bar silver, 53¼c; Mexican dollars, 47c; government bonds steady; railroad bonds easy.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: The market never saw so many real good business and delivery horses as it did today, they had quality and finish and everything that went to make good horses, and a number of orders were filled by the big department stores. A number of out of town buyers were on the market and made purchases of medium drafters and farm mares. H. F. Lyon, Hinckley, Minn., G. P. Taplin, Hastings, Minn., C. B. Anderson, Washburn, N. D., being among the buyers. Mules were in good demand. Drivers and saddlers meet with steady call.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 20.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 1 to 2 points, May and June showing only small losses, while later months were influenced by weak cables and better weather. The active months ruled about 2 points lower to 4 points higher during the middle of the morning, while trading was moderately active and the undertone steady. Reports of a better spot demand aided the advance, particularly in the near months.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 10.90; middling gulf, 11.15; sales, 100 bales. Futures closed barely steady. Closing bids: May, 9.62; June, 9.57; July, 9.32; August, 9.36; September, 9.26; October, 9.16; November, 9.02; December, 8.96; January, 8.94; February, 8.94; March 8.94.

DATES ARE SET FOR REGATTA

Five Clubs Will Contest at Winnipeg July 24 and 25.

The dates for the regatta of the Northwestern Rowing association have been set for July 24 and 25. The regatta will be held at Winnipeg this year, and crews from St. Paul, Duluth, Winnipeg, Fort William and Kenora will take part.

The Duluth club has also arranged for a regatta to be held in July, shortly before the crew leaves for Winnipeg. The Kelly-Killorin medals will be the prizes contested for. There are four handsome gold medals, for the members of the best four-oared crew in the club. During the coming week several four-oared crews will be organized among the carsmen now rowing at the club, to compete for the medals, and its expected that at least four crews will be entered in the races.

The annual meeting of the club will be held May 28, when there will be a smoker. The club will be formally opened at that time.

GIVE YOUR RAZOR A REST.

A man who was showing his new set of ivory handled razors to some friends the other day explained to them the shaving system which he has perfected for his own use, says the New York Sun.

"I'm an old dog and I learn few new tricks," said he. "Using a safety razor is one of the many modern accomplishments which I cannot boast. I stick to the old fashioned implement and have accumulated some fine specimens.

"These ivory handled ones I bought in England, and as I regard them as the choicest ones I have, I use them only on Sundays and holidays. Number 1," he pointed to a mark on one handle, "I use on holidays. Number 2 I use on the first, the third and the fifth Sunday.

"That gives them about the same amount of use and allows them the rest which they need. I always give my razors rest.

"It isn't the act of shaving which is so hard on them. It is the sharpening. Especially as the average man's method of stropping is positively brutal maltreatment of a defenseless and delicate victim.

"Even the most careful sharpening leaves a razor blade in a very susceptible and precarious condition. For that reason I never sharpen my razor just before I shave. On the contrary, I sharpen it when I have finished. Then I put it carefully in its case and it has a chance to rest and to regain its temper before I use it.

"You strop a razor vigorously and the friction produces heat in the blade. This very materially affects the exceedingly thin edge, so that the crystallization breaks down when you begin to shave. Let your blade cool off, become set and cold, and you will find your morning shave a much easier and calmer performance."

A BASHFUL SWEETHEART.

Tit-Bits: A sharp-featured, determined little woman popped her head out of the door and indignantly demanded the business of a bashful young man, who had been hanging around the house for hours in a pitiless downpour of rain, hoping against hope that his adored one would invite him in.

"Now, then, young feller, what do yer want here? 'Tryin' to wear the pavement out, or what?" she demanded, sarcastically.

"I reckon I've come a-courtin' your daughter," the shame-faced youth admitted.

"Oh, ye're after Lizzie, are yer? Then take my advice, young man, an' run away an' lose yerself. My gal ain't goin' t' marry a chap that ain't courage to knock at the door an' ax for her—not likely! Why, when my husban' came a-courtin' me and found the door locked he climbed the back yard wall, strangled the bulldog an' knocked the old man silly wi' a clump on the jaw. Then he grabbed hold of my hand and shoved a ring as big as a cartwheel on my finger and told me that the banns were published last Sunday. That's the sort o' husband I want for our Lizzie—not a shiverin' milksop that ain't got sense to come in out of the rain!"

PULLED UP SHORT.

Prof. Charles Zeublin of the University of Chicago was reiterating at a dinner his belief that most American philanthropy failed of its object.

"Many a philanthropist, his heart beating with love for his fellow-man, would be pulled up with a round turn," said Prof. Zeublin, "if he knew what really became of the last hundred or the last thousand that he gave to charity.

"Yes, he would be taken as completely aback as the young man who said proudly to his girl in the moonlight:

"'Tell me, my own, when did you first discover that you loved me?'

"'When I found myself getting angry every time anyone called you a fool,' she replied."

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADJUSTMENT OF FINAL ACCOUNT AND FOR FINAL DECREE OF DISTRIBUTION.

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of Peter Uselatz, Deceased.

The petition of Paya Uselatz, as representative of the above named decedent, together with his final account of the administration of said estate, having been filed in this court, representing, among other things, that he has fully administered said estate, and praying that said final account of said administration be examined, adjusted and allowed by the court, and that the court make and enter the final decree of distribution of the residue of the estate of said decedent to the persons entitled thereto, and for the discharge of the representative and the sureties on his bond.

It Is Ordered, That said petition be heard, and said final account examined, adjusted and allowed by the court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in the City of Duluth in said County, on Monday the 8th day of June, 1908, at ten o'clock, A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

Ordered Further, That this order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald, according to law.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., May 12, 1908.

By the Court,
DAVID H. LAWRENCE,
Judge of Probate of Lake County.

BACK TO FACE CHARGES.

Minot Man, Accused of Serious Crime, Voluntarily Returns.

Minot, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Herman Scheer, arrested on a warrant charging a grave offense, has voluntarily returned to Minot. Mr. Scheer was in Minneapolis at the time the warrant was issued and as soon as he heard of it, he hurried back to the city.

"If I were guilty of the charge I should be sent to the penitentiary," said Mr. Scheer, "but I will prove that I am not guilty of it, and this is why I have returned.

"The whole thing is a trumped up charge, I am satisfied that the complaint was made through coercion. All I ask is to let the public know the significance of this whole matter and why certain individuals have seen fit to form a conspiracy of this kind."

Judge Murray issued a warrant for the arrest of Jerry Riley on a charge of making a criminal assault on Christine Jensen. The complaint is signed by Miss Jensen, who alleges that she is not the wife of Riley and that he made an assault on her. Riley will be given a preliminary hearing by Judge Murray.

CANADIANS GET BIG SUM FROM CHINESE POLL TAX.

Victoria, B. C., May 20.—The Ottawa government has sent to the British Columbia government $345,000, being half the amount of poll tax on Chinese entering the province last year. The poll tax of $500 on each Chinese immigrating into Canada brought the Federal treasury last year no less than $690,000, the total arrivals of Chinese being 1,330. Under the terms of the act half of the tax goes to the Dominion and half to British Columbia, where nearly all the Celestials remain.

PLACES HOTEL BONDS.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 20.—J. E. Rogers, who is promoting a $1,250,000 hotel for Minneapolis, has returned from the East, where he says he placed the bonds for the new building and will soon be ready to build. He purchased the lease on the ground for the site of the new building from the Boston owners. He expects to return to Boston in a few weeks to complete the sale of the bonds.

STILL HOPE FOR PEACE

Negotiators at Cleveland Believe Strike Will Soon End.

No Additional Acts of Violence Since Tuesday Night.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 20.—Prominent negotiators in the street railway war predicted that the strike would come to an end before the close of the day.

Member Bishop of the state board of arbitration met with Vice President Behner of the international union and other members of the strikers' executive committee to confer on a new proposition, drawn up by Harry Thomas, president of the Cleveland labor council, and President Dupont of the Municipal Traction company. This meeting began at 10 o'clock.

Since daybreak no additional acts of violence by strike sympathizers had been reported.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 20.—Continuation of the unsettled conditions in the local street railway strike for at least twenty-four hours is the result of an all-night meeting of the members of the state board of arbitration and the officials of the Municipal Street Railway company, together with the leaders of the union. The conference adjourned shortly after 3 o'clock this morning, without hour for reassembling. No announcement was made on behalf of either side of the controversy.

After a night marked by the most violent conditions since the strike was inaugurated, five days ago, the police and county officials began preparations to protect the so-called non-union crews of cars and the public that had the courage to ride.

What was reported to be the final conference for peace began in the company's offices at 1 o'clock, after the members of the state board, with high labor officials, had spent two hours going over matters that developed at an earlier meeting. It was hoped that an agreement might be reached. The points of difference, however, were too great. The discussion was extraordinarily animated, the crux of the strikers' point of view being the question of seniority of position in the event the strikers should return to work.

But Little Patronage.

Because of the riotous actions of last night, wherein eighteen persons were injured, some perhaps fatally, the cars early today were not patronized to any extent. Busses and other vehicles were liberally used. Daylight brought with it, however, courage, and as the police force was strengthened the people began to use the cars.

The majority of the violence so far in the strike has been done during the night hours, and consequently it is believed by the authorities that, unless something is done today to reach a settlement of the dispute, tonight may witness a repetition of the dynamiting outrages.

A patrolman found fully a hundred big dynamite caps scattered along the car tracks at Bridge avenue and West Forty-fifth street at 2 o'clock this morning. The caps were placed so close together that they would have completely wrecked the first car that struck them. Fifteen minutes later he found a bottle of nitro-glycerin lying in the gutter at Bridge avenue and West Forty-third street.

Leaders of the street railway men's strike opened their campaign of publicity last night with three open air meetings. These meetings are to be held for several nights in all parts of the city, and the public is to be told the strikers' side of the controversy.

List of Injured.

The following is a list of the injured in yesterday rioting, incident to the strike:

Shot in Lakewood riot—J. M. Gray, motorman, Lima, Ohio, shot in leg; P. C. Elshotz, Municipal Company guard, shot in back; Joseph Gray, Municipal Company guard, shot in back; George Alexander, Municipal Company gpard, shot in chest; Harry Burlingame, finger shot off; unknown man, shot in calf of leg; unknown man, shot in leg; taken away from crowd by friends.

Injured in other disorders—E. H. Newman, Wadepaerk, motorman, attacked by ten men on Lake View avenue and beaten about head, suffering concussion of brain, may die; Alfred Musser, conductor of car which killed girl on Woodlawn avenue, badly beaten about head by crowd; Mrs. Mary Chopinski, accidentally struck on head with club in hands of policeman dispersing crowd; Albert Stoider, 8, jumped off Madison avenue car and fell under the wheels and had right leg amputated; Mildred Hurlbut, neck lacerated by wadding from dynamite cartridge, exploded under car; Charles Brady, conductor, badly beaten by crowd which attacked Woodland avenue car; M. F. Moore, jaw broken by stone when crowd attacked Woodland avenue car.

LARGE CLASS GRADUATES.

Commencement at St. Olaf College Early in June.

Northfield, Minn., May 20.—Preparations for a gala week at St. Olaf college during commencement are being made. Final examinations will be held on June 5 and on that afternoon a baseball game has been arranged between the St. Olaf team and Ripon college. On the following Saturday evening the famous St. Olaf band will give a concert at the Auditorium.

On Sunday, June 7, Pentecost Sunday, the baccalaureat sermon will be delivered in the evening at Hoyma Memorial chapel. June 8 the academy graduation exercises will take place in the morning. The class this year numbers twenty-six from the academic department and one from the preparatory school of music. On that evening the second sacred song service, the music composed by Prof. F. M. Christiansen, will be given by the choral union in the college chapel. The chorus members and the concert promises to be an impressive affair.

The college commencement will come Tuesday morning, when one of the largest classes will be graduated. The senior class numbers thirty, fifteen of whom will receive their degree of B. A. and fifteen the degree of science. In addition there will be three graduates from the collegiate department of music, this being the first class to finish that course.

MEN HAVE TWO MINDS

When Subjective Mind is Supreme They Are Insane.

Insane People Treated Insanely by Sane Members of Society.

"When the insane are treated more sanely, there will be less insanity." This statement was made by Benjamin Fay Mills in a few minutes of discussion which followed his lecture this morning at Flaaten's hall on the "Subliminal Consciousness" in his course of four lectures on "Higher Psychology."

Insanity is that state where the subjective mind controls the objective, according to Mr. Mills. The subjective mind is the spirited horse, to be ridden by the rider, the objective mind. When the rider is unseated by the horse, the mind subjective, insanity follows. The subjective mind has no reasoning power of its own and needs another consciousness to suggest what it is to do, according to Mr. Mills. It is a form of telepathy. The subjective mind is open to suggestions from the objective mind. The objective mind is will power and can subject the subjective mind by its stronger suggestions.

"The world is absolutely suggestive," said Mr. Mills. "There is no sane Duluth to any two persons. Everyone sees it differently. Some see the city one way and others another. But all are open to the suggestions of the objective mind.

"By overcoming the subliminal consciousness," continued the speaker, "habits and disease can be cured. Learn how to talk from the objective mind to the subjective mind. The objective is the spirit, and the subjective, the flesh. I knew of a man who had the tobacco habit fastened strongly upon him. He took his tobacco and laid it before him, and said to it, 'You are a weed and I am a man,' and the weed understood.

"Young men who have bad habits and are subjective in mind, have been brought to strong good lives by suggestion. If you tell a hypnotized person that this table is a locomotive and say that it is coming toward him, he will believe your suggestion and act as a rational man would under the circumstances."

POCKETS BUILDING BILL.

President Withholds Signature to Aid the House "Insurgents."

Washington, May 20.—President Roosevelt has promised the committee of house "insurgents" that he will not sign the public building bill until congress had had opportunity to consider an anti-injunction bill. The insurgents held a meeting Saturday night and directed Representative Norris of Nebraska to see the president and ask him to withhold approval of the public building bill, in the hope that congress would remain in session long enough to pass an anti-injunction bill. The president readily agreed to the proposition and will sit tight and wait developments.
